

Hospitality of Hartford impresses lady Texans

By JACQUELINE HUARD

HARTFORD (UPI)— Barbara Green, eye catching in a scarlet Stetson, checkered shirt and red hand-tooled cowboy boots, looked a little peaked when the weekend rolled around.

Raising hell in Hartford was hard work.

"We got here Tuesday night and I think the whole city of Hartford knew about it," she said Saturday. "The hospitality! It started right off the plane when the pilots bought us drinks."

Mrs. Green and nine Lone Star State sisters flew into Hartford from Houston, Texas, Tuesday night on the eve of the annual convention of the National Federation of Democratic Women.

Unlike other more conservatively dressed representatives, the Texas delegation stormed the city in full Western regalia—Stetsons, cowboy boots and duds that would have made Annie Oakley drool.

Barbara's only complaint about the annual get-together was that they didn't get to see more of the town. Instead they got a steady schedule of morning and afternoon workshops and evening business meetings.

She and 200 or so other delegates did get one meal out, a cook's tour of the Hartford Civic Center, and a half-day bus trip down to Mystic Seaport on Connecticut's shoreline. The Texans made do with nighttime partying.

"We work hard and we play hard, but then, we can be ladies," said Pic Rivers, president of the Texas delegation. Her voice was raspy with laryngitis, a direct result, she said, of trying to keep her delegation in line.

Mrs. Green didn't have much to say about politics. She's strictly a volunteer worker. "When they call me and say they need me I go. The day I start getting paid is the day it's not a favor, it's my job."

She's more of a free-lancer, spending part of her time working as a tour guide and at a hamburger stand. The long struggle to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment, she said, is a lot of work and a federal over nothing.

Mrs. Rivers, clad in a sedate black jacket and skirt with mud green cowboy boots, takes her politics a little more seriously. She started in the trenches when President John Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas, Texas.

"Before that I was a tailor, not a sewer," she recalled. "But then I got scared and started knocking on doors."

Mrs. Rivers, a fourth generation Texan who runs a construction business with her husband, said Northeast women are far ahead of the game in winning election to political office.

"We're trying, but you must remember Texas is a very macho state," she said. "But we feel we can impact so we don't have to settle on mediocre men. We can elect high class men."

"Without us," she continued, "they couldn't raise the money, have the functions, have the parties, run the campaigns. We're the movers and the shakers. Let them be out on the firing line."

Mrs. Rivers said she's right behind President Carter. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., she said, "is not my cup of tea. He's a lightweight compared to his brother."

Mary Burke, an imposing looking Houston visitor wearing a red straw cowboy hat, said she liked a lot of what she heard at the convention but thought "it was a little too feminist."

"When you get into minorities, any minority, it splinters the party," said Mrs. Burke, who used to run a rodeo with her husband in Simonton, Texas. She said everybody has to make their own way.

She muttered impatiently when she heard delegates complaining about women relegated to the envelope stuffing and postage stamp sticking side of politics.

"I don't think there's anything wrong with that," said Mrs. Burke. "Someone's got to pick up the garbage. If fundraising's your game, then go out and do it."

Mrs. Green drew on a cigarette inserted into a plastic, rhinestone studded holder. She looked worriedly at her hand and the battered guitar one her 27-year-old son bought 14 years ago with his paper route money.

She slugged the bruised instrument around all week and every once in a while strummed the five remaining strings. The tape holding the front and back together was wearing through.

"I need some glue, some super glue," she said. "And I can't find a drugstore."

DeNardis runs in 3rd District

HAMDEN (UPI)— The Republican race for Congress in Connecticut's 3rd District has become a three-way battle with the weekend entry of former state Sen. Lawrence DeNardis of Hamden into the fold.

The five-term state legislator told about 100 supporters Saturday at Hamden Town Hall he saw "divisive" national calling out for new leadership and new directions" and in need of better planned programs.

DeNardis, 42, joined Milford Mayor Henry Pavinelli and Robert Dunn, former director of community development in Milford, in seeking the GOP nomination for the seat being vacated by retiring Rep. Robert Gaiamo, D-Conn.

He advocated reduced federal spending, less government regulation and tax cuts to solve the nation's economic problems and also called for added research to make the U.S. energy independent and a "muscular foreign policy."

"Our policies must be integrated and designed to meet long range needs," he said. "The ad hoc, piecemeal, vacillating policies of our federal government keep bumping into one another."

"Programs are never planned, or pursued, beyond today's headlines—an approach that is nothing less than a disaster for the United States both at home and in its relations abroad," he said.

DeNardis has been granted a leave of absence from his job as president of the Connecticut Conference of Independent Colleges, a position he left the legislature last year to accept.

Senate Majority Leader Joseph Lieberman, D-New Haven, and Rep. Joseph Pattenelli, D-Branford, are contenders for the Democratic nomination.

LBJ daughter won't help Ted

HARTFORD (UPI)— Lynda Johnson Robb says she won't help Sen. Edward Kennedy win the White House even though they are neighbors, but she will help out when he needs a parking space.

The daughter of the late President Lyndon Johnson says she personally likes the Massachusetts senator who lives next to her in the Washington suburb of McLean, Va., but is endorsing President Carter's re-election.

"I'm fond of Senator Kennedy," said Mrs. Robb, whose father became president following the assassination of Kennedy's brother, John. "He's a neighbor of mine. He parks his cars in my yard and we park our cars in his yard."

Mrs. Robb made no direct mention of Carter in an address Saturday to the National Federation of Democratic Women, but told a reporter after the talk that she and her husband were endorsing Carter.

In the speech, Mrs. Robb discussed her work as chairwoman of the President's Advisory Committee for Women, a position to which she was appointed by Carter.

She told the federation's annual convention the committee will have several recommendations on how to ensure equality for women, specifically in Social Security laws, day care and help for divorcees and widows.

"These particularly hurt the women who have chosen to stay at home and raise a family," said Mrs. Robb referring to herself as a "housewife," and adding that "every mother is a working mother."

She said she met one secretary in Raleigh, N.C., who earns $6,800 a year and must spend more than half of her salary on day care. Many women are disqualified from free day care if they make only minimum wage, she said.

"Seventy-five percent of the women are going to be working outside the home by 1990," Mrs. Robb said.

"We've got to do something about that (day care). Overall," she said, "women are gradually making strides. I think we are making progress, slow as it seems now," she said. She urged women to use whatever clout they have to make sure women's state and local programs are not tossed by the wayside for economic reasons.

"It's critical that we make sure budget austerity is not at the expense of women," she said.

Mrs. Robb said ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment was "vital." She called it "the last piece of unfinished business human rights legislation."

Group home questioned

By MARY KITZMAN Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER— Although no one "opposed" locating a group home on Woodbridge Street, there were many questions and concerns about privacy and property values.

The home, requested by MARCH Inc., a community service group, meets the requirements for the special exception from Residence A. Alan Lamson, town planner, told the Planning and Zoning Commission.

The home, planned at 573 Woodbridge St., for about 10 people, the maximum allowed by regulations, would be supervised by a live-in staff, Robert Gorman, president of MARCH Inc. said. He noted the home's hopes to provide a "family atmosphere" in a country setting with city conveniences.

Gorman explained the home's need with a recent survey which showed Manchester needs respite care facilities.

Gorman explained the home would be used for mentally retarded persons whose family could no longer care for them, due to circumstances or the parent's age.

The home, if it receives the state license it applied for, would be state-funded for maintenance, Gorman said. But MARCH Inc. hopes to make it a "community showcase" with the help of the group's religious organization support.

Several local organizations favored the group home including the Manchester Junior Women's Club, the Manchester Association of Retarded Citizens, and the Manchester Citizens for Social Responsibility.

Several parents of mentally retarded persons also praised the request, saying that their children needed a place to go when they could no longer care for them.

The Planning and Zoning Commission tabled the request until its July 7 meeting.

1,000 delegates at stake Super Tuesday is here

Going into the eight Democratic primaries, in which 696 delegates were at stake, the president was only 28 short of the 1,696 he needed to sew up renomination. Kennedy had 850 delegates.

The political situation in the final round of primaries contrasted sharply with past election years, when one or both nominations remained in doubt until the last votes were counted.

This year, Ronald Reagan already achieved the 500 delegates he needs for the nomination more than a week ago, and went into the final primaries with 1,071 delegates and all major opposition on the sidelines.

The former California governor achieved the 998 delegates he needs for the nomination more than a week ago, and went into the final primaries with 1,071 delegates and all major opposition on the sidelines.

Although Carter made his first 1980 campaign appearance last week, only Sen. Edward Kennedy really campaigned for the final primaries.

Kennedy was given no chance of keeping Carter from achieving a mathematical lock on the Democratic nomination in today's delegate selection, but he did have the opportunity to win a couple of the primaries and establish his credibility as a political force at the Democratic National Convention.

Economy declining more than expected

WASHINGTON (UPI)— It now appears the recession slammed into the U.S. economy in early spring was more than expected, according to late reports, new manufacturing orders fell in April more than they have in almost 5 1/2 years, while construction spending registered yet another steep monthly decline, its third straight.

"The recession set in with a real wallop in April," said the Commerce Department's deputy chief economist William Cok.

"During the weekend, President Carter revised the administration's longstanding prediction of a 'short and mild' recession.

"We've got serious recession prospects, steeper than we expected," Carter said.

The Commerce Department reports Monday bore him out.

New orders flowing to U.S. factories plunged 5.5 percent, or $8.3 billion to a seasonally adjusted $143.8 billion in April, reaching their lowest point in eight months.

It was the largest drop since a 6.8 percent decline in December 1974 when the United States was trapped in its last recession.

The decline in new factory orders had been anticipated, but the severity of the drop was far greater than originally evident.

Earlier this month, in an advance report, the department said new orders for durable goods — those products designed to last more than three years — were off 4.2 percent in April.

However, new data included in Monday's report revealed orders for durable goods were actually down 6.6 percent, or $5.1 billion to $72.3 billion.

The decline in durable goods orders was widespread, affecting virtually every manufacturing industry except aircraft makers.

The decline would have been almost twice as bad, the department noted, except new orders for aircraft jumped 53 percent in April.

Orders for steel, on the other hand, were off a hefty 20 percent, while orders for non-electrical machinery were down 16.2 percent.

For non-durable goods, orders declined 4.3 percent, or $3.2 billion to $71.3 billion — a disturbing sign because non-durables had been holding up relatively well.

More cubans landing

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI)— The rusting Panamanian freighter Red Diamond V pulled into port today, jammed with an estimated 850 Cuban refugees and including an infant born at sea.

U.S. officials planned to file criminal charges against the captain and crew for illegally bringing aliens to American shores.

The freighter, which meandered about the Florida Straits during the night, pulled up to the old Navy Station at Key West, the crew and any U.S. citizens aboard will face criminal charges including bringing undocumented aliens into the country and improper transportation of passengers. Fines and prison terms can be $2,000 and five years for each alien, Fishar said.

He said the government of Panama took away the Red Diamond's registry Monday.

The 118-foot Red Diamond left the Cuban port of Mariel at 7:30 a.m. Monday at the head of a flotilla of about 50 to 60 smaller American craft hauling refugees. Coast Guard cutters intercepted it in the Florida Straits and told the skipper that as a condition for allowing the ship to remain, the crew and any U.S. citizens aboard will face criminal charges including bringing undocumented aliens into the country and improper transportation of passengers. Fines and prison terms can be $2,000 and five years for each alien, Fishar said.

The new arrivals swelled the 43-

Cuban refugees All quiet at Fort Chaffee

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. (UPI)— Cuban resettlement officials say that with President Carter's order to speed up refugee processing and the Army's new instructions to use force to quell any disturbances, the camp is "even quieter" than it was before Sunday's riot.

"The Army was not aware it could use reasonable force to contain (the) refugees," said Nelia Patrick, spokeswoman for the Federal Emergency Management Agency, explaining how a disturbance among several hundred of the 18,000 Cubans at the camp Sunday night led to a full-scale riot in which dozens of people were injured, some seriously.

"They (military police) backed off so many times it just got out of hand," she said Monday. "That has been corrected... By tonight we'll have 2,000 troops."

Gov. Bill Clinton said 600 National Guardsmen had been federalized, and a second unit of 300 Army troops arrived in Washington.

FEMA spokesman Bill McAda said 10,000 refugees had been interviewed by the Immigration and Naturalization Service and were awaiting families, sponsors or medical examinations before they could leave.

"We were prepared to process 300 to 500 of them per day before the trouble started," McAda said, adding that the procedure could resume today.

Bumpers and David Pryor, both D-Ark., Monday led the criticism of what they considered the major cause of the weekend violence—lack of instruction given to military leaders at the post.

Bumpers said Carter had earlier approved the use of "reasonable force" by military personnel toward the refugees, but commanding Gen. James Drummond said he never received the orders. Bumpers said the resulting "perceived lack of authority" contributed to Sunday's riot.

By LEE RODERICK WASHINGTON — The Joint Chiefs of Staff publicly broke with their commander-in-chief Jimmy Carter the other day and urged-Congress to vote more money for defense than Carter wants.

U.S. Must get strong nerves proposals, in the words of a group of top independent defense experts called the Committee on the Present Danger, "do not begin to correct the dangerous shifts in the world balance of power achieved by the Soviet Union at an accelerating rate in recent years."

Meanwhile, the Institute for Contemporary Studies, a San Francisco-based think tank, has just published the first major study of U.S. military strategy and policy written since the recent crises in Iran and Afghanistan.

weakness and shown that it can conduct strategy from weakness and recover."

What must be done in times such as the United States is now entering, says Nitze, is to "throw dust in the enemy's eyes" through an aggressive challenge on psychological, political and economic grounds, while working quickly to redress the military balance.

President Carter inherited a tough national security situation from his predecessors, and has proceeded to make it much worse.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON WASHINGTON — According to the latest public opinion polls, many Americans are so disenchanted with the likely Democratic and Republican candidates for president that they'd welcome a chance to vote for "None of the Above" this November.

to elect the only candidates on the ballot.

And yet, according to America's Kremlin-watchers, disenchanted Russians still manage to "vote with their feet" by staying home on Election Day. This has also been the practice of a Soviet defector who was once a high official of the Politburo.

There could be other reasons, though. Soviet elections are held on Sundays, and a lot of Russians use their day off to get drunk, according to a State Department source.

Washington's most potent pressure group is the military-munitions lobby, which is engaged in the great corporate scramble for defense dollars.

Betty's Notebook

By BETTY RYDER

Between vacation time and holidays, it's been a couple of weeks since the column was in print. Hope I can recall all the things I wanted to pass on to you.

As you probably know by now, we have some 250 Germans visiting in the Greater Hartford area, many of them in Manchester, under the Friendship Force people-to-people exchange program. Meanwhile, a like number of Americans are in Hamburg, due back on Thursday.

The Germans enjoyed a visit to the Ringling Brothers Barnum & Bailey Circus at the Civic Center Memorial Day evening, followed by a real old-fashioned beerfest in the center's assembly hall complete with beer, sauerkraut and knockwurst.

A German Jazz Band, which accompanied the visitors from Germany, played fine music and many of the visitors and their hosts moved smoothly across the dance floor.

Area hosts have entertained in various ways and the Germans seemed to be enjoying themselves. Some of them boarded a bus for Myrtle one day, others visited Boston, and still others are currently on a five-day trip to New York City, Mt. Vernon, Washington, D.C., and Williamsburg, Va. They depart Wednesday evening and their American counterparts are due to arrive home on Thursday.

We'll be out to the airport Wednesday night to say "auf Wiedersehen" to our new friends.

Help needed

Ralph Maccarone, program coordinator for the Bicentennial Bandsell activities, is trying to locate some Italian costumes, as well as people to wear them and perform dances of Italy for the July 19 performance at the Band Shell. It will be an Italian Music Festival with the Bruno Dubaldo Orchestra and an Old-fashioned Sing Along of Italian and American songs.

The evening will be sponsored by the Manchester Chapter of UNICO. Anyone having costumes or who knows where any may be obtained may call Maccarone, weekends at 649-2090, or the Manchester Recreation Department, week days, 649-3084.

Pops Concert

The 4th annual Pops Concert of the Manchester Symphony Orchestra and Choral is set for Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 p.m. at the various ways and the Germans seemed to be enjoying themselves.

Tickets are still available for the Friday evening performance and may be purchased by calling George Dickie at 241 Henry St., at 646-6543.

Theater Concert

The Singing Savoyards, comprised of soloists from the Manchester Gilbert & Sullivan Players, will be presenting a Benefit Theater Concert on Saturday, June 14 at 8 p.m. at South United Methodist Church in Manchester.

Favorite songs from "The Mikado," "H.M.S. Pinafore," "Gondoliers," will be heard as well as melodies from "Brigadoon," "My Fair Lady," etc.

Tickets may be obtained from all G&S members and at the door on the evening of the performance.

Down the river

Received an invitation from Northern Whitewater Expeditions Inc. of The Forks, Maine, inviting me to participate in a whitewater raft trip down the Kennebec or Penobscot Rivers.

Sounds like fun—but a little scary. Although, the brochure specifies just which trip (one-day) is more dangerous than the other.

Evidently, these river sections are the last of the big whitewater rivers in the Northeast and the two Maine rivers are presently being threatened by dams and the opportunity for, everyday, average people from this part of the country to float a whitewater river is in danger of being lost.

Well, the summer is young (although I'm not) and I still may have a go at it within the next few weeks.

Visitors from Hamburg tour The Herald

Karl Heinz Zachger and his wife, Marianne, of Hamburg, West Germany, are greeted by Betty Ryder, The Herald's family editor, as they arrived for a tour of The Herald's facilities. The Zachgers, here as participants of the Friendship Force's exchange flight to Hamburg, were the guests of the Kilbanoff family in Manchester. Following their visit in Manchester, they departed for a five-day tour of New York City, Mt. Vernon, Washington, D.C., and Williamsburg, Va. The more than 250 German visitors here for a 10-day visit depart for home on Wednesday evening and their American counterparts visiting in Hamburg arrive home Thursday. (Herald photo by Richmond)

Capt. Joseph Brooks of the Manchester Police Department subscribes to the saying "let the mayor beware." At Saturday town session where he went to buy a bicycle for his daughter, he obviously saw nothing he liked. "I wound up down at a bike shop," Brooks said. "I got a bike for her there for $60 and it came with a one-year guarantee."

The Vernon Town Council was discussing Mayor Marie Herbst's appointment of a new Charter Revision Commission and one council member said she should see an attorney on it. Council member Jane Lamb commented to the mayor, "I was just going to congratulate you for getting nine people together and nobody's an attorney."

Newly elected East Hartford Board of Education Chairman Jerry Ingallina said Monday night a "fact sheet" distributed by town Republicans about today's referendum is the furthest thing from the facts. He said the fact sheet is a disservice to the minority party in town and those who distributed it.

Season ends with whimper

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — New England, which opened the 1980 presidential primary season with a bang, closes it today with a whimper.

The region's primaries began in chilly February with New Hampshire's contest, which dealt Republican George Bush a knockout punch from which he would never recover and handed Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., a defeat on his home turf.

They end today in Rhode Island, day after he had but locked up for Republican Ronald Reagan and President Carter.

Rhode Island's primary allocates 52 Democratic delegates and 12 of the 13 Republicans — the smallest of any state holding a presidential primary this year.

Predicted sunny, humid weather was expected to have little effect on the already low voter turnout forecast by all sides. By the time polls close at 9 p.m., only 10 percent of the state's 538,000 voters were expected to cast ballots.

With the Democratic race rated dead even by campaign managers and political observers, it will locate a supermarket at 725 East Middle Turnpike, the site formerly occupied by Crispino's.

About 75 Republicans attended an evening rally at which the GOP hierarchy voiced support for Reagan, who was expected to notch an easy victory.

The committee will discuss the upcoming conventions, organization plans for voter registration and any other business necessary. This will be the final meeting of the season. Meetings will resume in the fall.

Farmer's cooperative fire listed as deliberate set

By KEVIN FOLEY
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Authorities this morning confirmed what they suspected: the fire which gutted a grain warehouse at the Central Connecticut Farmer's Cooperative Saturday night was deliberately set.

Firefighters battled flames at the storage facility used by some 600 local farmers for nearly six hours before the smoke had cleared, officials said. Other Coventry officers and Monday the two cans were found and added they were probably used by the arsonists.

State fire authorities could not be contacted for comment, however. Capt. Joseph Brooks, whose detective division is investigating the fire with the state arson squad said the cans also involved in the investigation. "The state police determined arson cans "as standard as two gasoline cans can get," but warned that the possibility existed that the fire was accidental.

"We've called in the experts," Brooks remarked.

Both Brooks and Christensen expressed relief flames from the fire had not reached the plant's two grain storage elevators on the far side of the building. The two said the explosive force of ignited grain dust completely destroyed the damage for at least the immediate neighborhood had a blast occurred.

"Our fire departments (district and town) demonstrated their professionalism," Brooks said.

Co-op manager Emanuel Hirth said this morning insurance investigators would not complete their estimates of the damage for at least "three or four more days," and added extensive damage to the plants computer system would not be estimated for some time.

Murder probe is continuing

MANCHESTER — Coventry Police and State Police are continuing the investigation into the death of Louise Marie Scott, 20, of Columbia whose body was found Saturday afternoon on the Skungamaug River in Coventry.

Officer Ronald Rouillard is one of three members of the Coventry Police appointed to investigate the death. Other Coventry officers are Ronald Doughty and Linden Wilmut. State Troopers and members of the Major Crime Unit are also involved in the investigation.

An autopsy by the state medical examiner determined Ms. Scott's death was due to asphyxiation by strangulation.

Ms. Scott was reportedly seen in the center of Coventry after she left work Friday night in the Lucky Star Bowling Alley in Mansfield.

Police would like anyone who might have been in the area of Truman Field, where the body was found, to contact them with any information they may have. Any information will be kept in strict confidence, police said.

Rabid bat concerns officials

By KEVIN FOLEY
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — A dead rabid bat was found earlier this month on the front lawn of a Fern Street residence, with the result that the Town Health Department has issued a warning to avoid a rabies scare.

Apparently a cat had carried the bat to avoid a rabies scare. The cat is being confined to determine if it has rabies. The dead bat was taken to a state laboratory where officials found rabies.

Bats, skunks, foxes and raccoons are mainly associated with rabies although all warm blooded animals may get the disease. In the last two years in Connecticut only bats and foxes have been identified as having rabies but in previous years skunks and raccoons have also been found with rabies.

Exposure to rabies, which is 100 percent fatal if left untreated, can be avoided by keeping away from any wild animals which behave aggressively or in an unusual way. Vaccinating dogs and cats that may have contact with wild animals also controls the disease.

Helping any animal which may have been injured or struck by an automobile should be done with extreme caution since the first reaction of the animal may be to bite. Playing with or handling bats should be avoided completely.

All unprovoked bites and scratches from wild animals, especially bats, foxes, skunks and raccoons, should be reported to a doctor and to the Health Department for evaluation of possible rabies exposure.

For further information, call the Health Department at 647-3173.

Request withdrawn for zone change

By KEVIN FOLEY
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The request of Jon Norris, to rezone 29 acres on East Center Street that was opposed by area residents, was removed from the Planning and Zoning Commission's agenda Monday night.

According to reports, the request was withdrawn because of ownership entanglements.

The area requested for rezoning, was owned by Charles "Jack" Coniam, entrepreneur who went bankrupt after building a network of 17 limited partnerships which controlled $20 million worth of apartment complexes, offices, and other assets.

According to reports, Norris would buy the lots, 407 to 423 E. Center St. and use the last lot to house his insurance business only if the rezoning request was approved.

However, the request was withdrawn due to the complexities of acquiring ownership from the bankrupt estate.

Residents from Parker Street circulated a petition, opposing the request based on traffic congestion. They had planned to present the petition at last night's meeting.

The residents feared moving the insurance company into the area would endanger pedestrians.

Fitch 'junks' Catholic

By LEND AUSTER
Herald Reporter

Put enough 'junk' together and something good might occur.

That was the winning formula employed by Fitch High.

The Groton-based Falcons, utilizing 11 bases on balls and key hits which fell into holes, bumped off East Catholic, 11-3, in a Class-L Region III final clash yesterday at Eastern Connecticut State College's Alumni Field.

Most important of all, however, were the offerings of 'junkballer' John Portelance, senior southpaw, who specialized in a tantalizing slow pitch which continually had East off stride.

Fitch Coach Ed Harvey indicated he didn't have advance notice of East and didn't pitch Portelance for a reason. "He just worked out that way," he explained his mound routine. "He (Portelance) mixes his pitches up and keeps the ball down. He's done a real steady job for us."

"But we have no alternative. Give Fitch plenty of credit. It was playing loose and we were tight."

Fitch got a run back in the top of the sixth on a walk and three consecutive sacrifices, the latter a suicide squeeze. The Falcons thought they had it tied but infielder Fournier gummed down Curt Vincete at third before Portelance crossed the plate with the apparent tying run.

But it was Fitch, sixth-inning in the Region and now 13-0 for the season, which got the 11 runs.

Portelance scattered six hits, walked three and fanned seven. Notching his fourth win against two a Falcon threat in the fourth.

East jumped in front with two unearned runs in the bottom of the fifth. Brad Cabral's suicide squeeze scored Jeff Barter with the first run and Mike Freiheit's mishandled grounder plated Dave Fournier.

Cabral was hit in the elbow by an errant pickoff by catcher Chuck Hope and had to come out in the top of the seventh.

"Cabral getting hurt took us out of our game," Penders commented. "When he left, it took the wind out of our sails. He's the heart of the middle of our infield."

"But we have no alternative. Give Fitch plenty of credit. It was playing loose and we were tight."

Hope was jammed by an inside pitch but muscled an opposite field single to right tying it and Portelance drove home what proved to be the deciding markers, ripping a shot past a diving runner in Eagle shortstop Pete Kiro. That made it 4-2.

"We left our bats and minds home today," Penders commented. "We didn't play heads up ball. When we went up 2-0, they came right back and buried us. We played well up till five innings. But the walks...we weren't in the game."

Outdoors inviting to women

While competition between men and women in such sports as auto racing, tennis and basketball has been receiving much headlines in recent years, a quiet but substantial revolution has been occurring with respect to women's involvement in outdoor participation sports.

A Nielsen survey issued in the late 1970s indicated that 21 million women fish in the United States, up from only 9 million at the start of the decade. The same report that 20 percent of the nation's scuba divers were women, compared to only 5 percent in 1970. Subsequent studies suggest that the growth of participation among women is fishing and boating in accelerants to beyond wild animals as they may carry the disease.

The expanded role of women in the decisions to buy outdoor recreation products came through loud and clear at a recent meeting staged by Mercury Outboards to collect marketing input from marine dealers.

It was revealed that women today have more buying power.

Other dealers concluded that with more women working today they are probably paying a large percentage of boats purchased by families.

Statistics bear out what retailers are saying.

An article in Nation's Business last year cited polls that show fishing is the No. 1 participating sport for men and No. 2 for women. (There could be arguments on this claim.)

What was the most popular sport for women?

Swimming is the answer which shows how important water sports are to the contemporary woman.

Even in offshore powerboat racing, a rugged sport once dominated by men, a 55-year-old grandmother holds the world's championship. Betty Cook of Newport, Calif., knows how to handle a boat at 85 mph, plus for hours on end against bating sun.

Women are gradually moving into area's that were always dominated by men on the sports beat.

Like good old days for Stanley, Rosox

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — For Bob Stanley and the struggling Boston Red Sox, it was just like the good old days.

Stanley, a 16-game winner last year, allowed only six Minnesota hits and the big Boston bats swatted 15, leading the Red Sox to a 5-2 victory Monday night over the Twins.

"I felt pretty good," said Stanley, who topped his record to 4-5 with his fourth complete game. "It seems I always have one bad inning but that time it didn't cost us the game."

"I threw a lot of off-speed pitches tonight. They started hitting my fast-ball in the third inning, so I went to the sinker and the change-up. And then our guys were really hitting. That's the old Sox."

Jim Meyer's fifth homer in the fourth inning staked Stanley to a 3-2 lead and the right-handed pitcher made additional runs, though the Sox added two in the fifth and one in the ninth.

The triumph lifted Boston, 23-24, to a field of 500.

Minnesota, 16-30 and in last place in the American League West, converted a walk and four straight singles into two runs in the third and four perfect throws from the outfield cut down runners at third base.

"I felt pretty good," said Stanley, who topped his record to 4-5 with his fourth complete game. "It seems I always have one bad inning but that time it didn't cost us the game."

IN HIS (Stanley's) last couple of times out, he's always had one bad inning. Boston Manager Don Zimmerman said, "The big inning could have cost him."

"They're having bad luck too," said Don Zimmerman, who drove in one of the four runs. "Jim Rice is hitting .220 for a guy like that, that's like not even making contact."

"But we've got to make our own breaks and not fight ourselves. If we do, we'll start winning. Teamwork is one of the ones that make their own breaks."

Thompson 'hit' as DH

NEW YORK (UPI) — Call the newest chapter of the California Angels' diary, "Jim in Search of a Golden Opportunity."

Jason Thompson, the Detroit Tigers' leadoff hitter, was traded to the Angels from the Detroit Tigers to join the new club Monday night by driving in three runs with a two-run homer and a single in leading the Angels to a 5-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Used as a designated hitter by Manager Jim Fregosi, Thompson singled home a three-run homer in the first inning against loser Luis Leal, 1-1, then unloaded his fifth homer in the fifth off reliever Bob Moore with Carney Lansford on base to extend the Angels' lead to 5-1.

"It feels great but I wasn't worried about it," said Thompson about his first home run for the Angels. "I was just trying to knock a run in. I wasn't bothered about being traded. They sent me to a good team. They ended up having me anywhere but I ended up with a team that has a chance for a pennant. They're a great bunch of guys. They made me feel comfortable right away."

Thompson, the regular first baseman for the Tigers, doesn't figure to see much action with the Angels in that capacity because of the presence of Rod Carew on the team. He also will be benched against certain left-handers, but Thompson is eager to accept any role Fregosi has planned for him.

There are so many superstitions on this team, I can't stop to play all the time," said Thompson. "Anyway they use me just to find out. Getting that home run off a left-hander tonight really helped me psychologically. If I keep hitting left-handers well when I get the chance, I may get a chance to play every day, who knows?"

"As far as being a designated hitter, I can still stay in shape. I come out to do extra running most days. It doesn't make much difference to me psychologically. I can concentrate on my hitting more and stay loose."

Evans' California batter collected at least one hit as the Angels shelled three pitchers for 15 hits.

Dave Frost, 4-3, gave up five hits, struck out two and walked two in six innings to notch his first victory since May 2. Dave LaRoche pitched out of a ninth-inning jam to record his third save. Otto Velez hit his 10th homer for Toronto.

Elsewhere in the American League, New York beat Kansas City 5-3, Baltimore edged Milwaukee 9-8 in 11 innings, Boston downed Oakland 10-5. Rain forced two games to be postponed with the score tied, Detroit and Seattle won 13 innings only to have their game postponed with the score tied 3-3 and the game

Monday big comic after hitting homer

NEW YORK (UPI) — He was trying to say that he got lucky, but Rick Monday always finds a more colorful way to explain things.

"Every blind squirrel is gonna stumble over an acorn once in a while," said Monday, after he pinch hit a home run with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning Monday night to give the Los Angeles Dodgers a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. It was his first homer since September 1978, so he added, "I was happy I didn't have to ask directions on the way around the bases."

Monday's blow gave the Dodgers a two-game lead over the Reds in the Western Division, and it came on the second pitch he'd hit by reliever Doug Bair, 9-3.

"I thought they'd try to keep the ball away," Monday said, "but I was looking for one inside and I got it. I told (Dodgers' pitcher Rick) Sotello I was gonna look for a ball in a certain area and if I got it, it would be least or famine. Today it was a feast."

Bair said Monday's blow didn't come off a mistake.

"It was a good, hard slider, a very good pitch in a very good location," said Bair. "It was one of those instances where a good batter drove a pitcher's best pitch. When he hit it, both of us knew it was gone. I felt a little emptiness for a few seconds, but it passed."

Cincinnati's 1-2, pitched two innings in relief of Don Sutton and got the victory. Sutton allowed just five hits over the first seven innings.

Cincinnati tied the score 2-2 in the eighth on a bloody RBI single to right by George Foster. The Reds grabbed a 1-0 lead in the third on Dave Concepcion's run-scoring single, but the Dodgers took a 2-1 lead in the seventh on a two-run homer by Dave Lopes.

In other games, Pittsburgh routed Philadelphia 5-3, San Diego blanked

Houston 3-0, Atlanta defeated San Francisco 4-2 and Montreal edged the Chicago Cubs 8-7 in 13 innings.

Prates 9, Phillips 3

Don Robinson scattered eight hits and helped his own cause with a two-run single to pace Pittsburgh over the error-prone Phillies. Rookie Vance Law and Dave Parker also drove in two runs each for the Pirates, who tagged Randy Lerch with his seventh loss in eight decisions. Five of Pittsburgh's runs were unearned as the result of three errors.

Padres 3, Astros 0

Rick Wise and Eric Rasmussen combined on a four-hitter and Willie Montanez delivered a two-run single to highlight a three-run first inning of Nolan Ryan. Wise, 3-3, was forced out of action in the sixth inning when he pulled a rib cage muscle on the left side, but he got credit for the victory in his 300th National League game.

Braves 4, Giants 2

The 41-year-old knuckleballer, scattered 11 hits to win the 22nd game of his career. Nickro, 4-7, struck out three and walked one in going the distance for the sixth time. The Braves scored all their runs off Ed Whitson, 2-6.

Expos 8, Cubs 7

The game was called off after a lengthy rain delay after one out in the bottom of the sixth inning. The game will be replayed as part of a doubleheader Wednesday night.

"The crop this year is average to below-average," Blue Jays Vice President Pat Gillick said Monday. "I see a lot of things that there isn't really any depth in this draft. The first and second rounds are fairly good but the third, fourth and fifth rounds are poor."

"I also notice a lack of positional players. What I mean by that is that there's a preponderance of pitching as opposed to positional players. Two rounds of the regular draft are held for first-time draftees—and the entire secondary phase—held for players previously drafted but not drafted in the regular draft. The regular phase will continue Wednesday and end Thursday."

Blue accused

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — San Francisco Giants pitcher Vida Blue was accused in a paternity suit Monday of fathering a boy 13 years ago in Shreveport, La., and with failing to provide adequate support.

The suit filed by Catherine White, asked for a court order to make Blue pay $200 a month in child support and Ms. White's court costs, estimated to be about $750.

Stein ailing

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Seattle Mariners placed third baseman Bill Stein on the 15-day disabled list Monday and activated outfielder Juan Beniquez.

Stein suffered a sprained thumb during a tag play at first base Sunday in Cleveland.

The Indiana Pacers won three NBA championship under Leonard (1970, 72, 76) and had a record of 307-270. Leonard's coaching mark in the NBA is 186-294 in six seasons, including one off-season, spent as a general manager with the Chicago Bulls, another with the Baltimore Bullets.

Leonard ranks fourth in pro coaching victories.

Guidry strong down stretch

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — It was a very typical Ron Guidry performance. But then again, it wasn't. The typical part of Guidry's Monday night outing was the way he blanked the Kansas City Royals over an eight-inning span, allowing three harmless singles and retiring 10 batters in a row at one point. But that constituted the final eight innings.

The typical part was the way the New York Yankees struggled in the first inning, allowing four hits, a walk and three runs, before straightening out to pitch his second complete game of the year en route to a 5-3 victory for the Yankees.

Guidry had the advantage of a five-run lead before he ever took the mound against the Royals. But he also had the disadvantage of a rain delay that pushed the game's starting time back 70 minutes.

"Guidry got tough," said New York Manager Dick Howser. "His typical runs off Kansas City starter Paul Splittorff, who was making his first start since May 8 following a month-long battle with back spasms. Splittorff lasted only 2.5 an inning to fall to 0-5. Willie Randolph opened the game with a walk, took third on a single by Dennis Werth and scored on a flyball hit by Bob Watson. Eric Soderholm then ripped his fifth home run of the year to make it 3-0 and extend the number of consecutive games the Yankees have hit at least one home run to 15.

Lon Piniella followed with a single and took third on a double by Bobby Brown, who extended his hitting streak to eight games. Rick Cerone then doubled home both Piniella and Brown to ensure New York its fourth straight road triumph. The Yankees have the American League's best road record at 15-7.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Mets selected first in today's free agent draft of high school and college players and were expected to reach into the crop of young talent and pick a Strawberry.

That's Darryl Strawberry, a lanky outfielder at Los Angeles' Crenshaw High School, who has been touted highly by all 26 major-league teams.

Strawberry, 6-foot-4, 180 pounds, already has been featured in a national sports magazine. He had played in 14 high school games so far this year and is batting .400, with 6 home runs and 21 RBI. He has stolen eight bases in nine attempts and has also posted a 1-1 record with three saves as a pitcher.

In 1980, New York picked a catcher named Steve Chitcott from Lancaster, Calif. and he never played a game in the major leagues. There were some other players taken in the first round of that draft who have been heard from since—like Reggie Jackson, Gary Nolan, Richie Hebner, Carlos May and Tommy Horton.

In 1980, the Mets again owned the first round of that draft and they took Tim Lincecum, the current Pittsburgh shortstop. When the Mets made Phil of last year, they gave up eight hits, 10 runs and one walk in the first inning in his first start of the season to pace Oakland's Dwayne Murphy had a two-run homer in the ninth.

Tigers 3, Mariners 3

The umpires waited an hour and two minutes after the 13th inning before calling the game off. It will be replayed Aug. 1, as part of a two-night doubleheader. Kirk Gibson hit his eighth homer for the Tigers.

White Sox 1, Rangers 1

The game was called off after a lengthy rain delay after one out in the bottom of the sixth inning. The game will be replayed as part of a doubleheader Wednesday night.

Madlock appeals for second time

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn says Pittsburgh Pirates' third baseman Bill Madlock can continue to play until Kuhn can review Madlock's appeal of a 15-day suspension and $5,000 fine for striking an umpire in the face with his glove.

After a lengthy delay that had prompted a fiery protest by umpires, National League President Chuck Feeney Monday rejected Madlock's appeal to his office and ordered him to begin serving his suspension in full.

Kuhn said he would set a hearing date for the appeal, but he said the suspension would be in full effect until then.

Madlock played in the Pirates' 3-2 romp over the Phillies Wednesday, sparking additional protest from the NL umpires, who had threatened over the weekend to begin ejecting him daily because of Feeney's decision not to rule before then on the appeal.

"After talking to my office, I've been told he legally has the right to play," umpire John Kilbar said before the game. "He has the legal right to appeal, and he has done so. We were very pleased with Chuck Feeney's decision."

Madlock originally was suspended for striking umpire Jerry Crawford in the face with his glove three times after Crawford ejected him for profanity in an argument over a called strikeout in a game against Montreal May 1. Feeney's original penalty was announced May 5 and was immediately appealed by Madlock. He was given a hearing May 8.

Since then Madlock has declined to comment on either the punishment or the threat to eject him by the NL umpires. But Monday night Madlock said he was trying not to think about the situation until he has exhausted all legal options.

"That's the last thing you want to worry about facing Randy Lerch, Dick Rutledge and Steve Carlton," Madlock said. "I've got to get a lot of thanks to the Pirate organization for helping me to stay calm. They've given me a lot of support."

Abby By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This letter is written in response to the woman whose son was planning to marry a paraplegic... Her ignorance concerning the limitations of persons with spinal cord injuries is all too common.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl. I know lots of boys as friends but have never had a real boyfriend. To be perfectly truthful about it, I have liked several boys a lot, and one in particular was on my mind night and day.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I attended a wedding reception a month ago. The bride is the daughter of friends. The affair was elegant. They had 200 guests for a mid-dinner and dance at the finest hotel.

DEAR NOT: Since the parents of the bride were your guests last at a dinner party, they now owe you a similar invitation. Even though their daughter's wedding was elegant, it cannot be considered repayment for your dinner party.

CONFIDENTIAL TO J.B.: To those who would give advice, the best advice I know is, if you can't be kind - be quiet.

CONFIDENTIAL TO THOSE WHO HAVE SENT FOR ABBY'S BOOKS: Please, please be patient. I am literally deluged with orders and am getting them out as quickly as possible.
