'Godiva' protest planned

ASHFORD (UPI) — Thomas Supina Jr. is once again turning to "Lady Godiva" to show his upset with the political process and government. The 74-year-old veteran protester has hired a young music teacher to don a leotard for two midnight horseback rides through Ashford and a grand finale ride to the 2nd District Democratic convention in Norwich. "She will ride the Pipmuck Trail from the bookends to the sea," he said of the ride from rural Ashford to Norwich, which lies about 10 miles from Long Island Sound. "Ashford's midnight ride she'll make to preserve democracy."

Supina said Monday he hired Shary Hoffenberg, a 21-year-old voice and piano teacher from Hartford, to draw attention to Supina's candidacy for Congress in the 2nd District. The former Ashford first selectman and three-term state representative has failed to win support from any delegates to the July 22 convention.

Candidacy set by Ratchford

WATERBURY (UPI) — Rep. William R. Ratchford, D-Conn., has announced his candidacy for re-election, vowing to keep close ties with his district and work to solve the nation's major problems. The freshman lawmaker admitted Monday night that Congress had failed to solve some major problems, but expressed optimism that those troubles could be conquered.

"Efforts have often faltered to significantly restrain government spending, slow sharp rises in the cost of health care and get a handle on the problems of inflation and crushing dependence on foreign energy sources. "Just a generation ago, this nation confronted the dual threat of economic depression and global war. We survived because we are strong and because the will of America cannot be denied or suppressed," he said. Ratchford, a former state legislator and commissioner on aging, also cited his work for the 9th District which includes the Waterbury, Meriden and Danbury areas.

"The greatest share of my time and energy has been devoted to meeting the constituents' needs of this district," he told supporters at Waterbury Democratic headquarters. Ratchford said he had held meetings with constituents in each of the district's towns and had opened a new district office in Danbury. He also cited his establishment of programs to help firms in the area keep informed of government contracts and to provide affordable health care to the elderly. Ratchford is expected to be unopposed for the Democratic nomination. Three Republicans have announced for their party's nomination.

Anderson backers to seek signatures

HARTFORD (UPI) — Supporters of John Anderson's independent bid for the presidency today prepared to launch their drive to collect the 14,085 signatures needed to place his name on Connecticut's November ballot. Anderson campaign officials were scheduled to take out petitions for the voters' signatures from the secretary of the state's office where they filed the names of eight presidential electors on Monday.

The electors-four Republicans and four Democrats-would cast votes for the Illinois congressman in the Electoral College if he wins Connecticut in November. Anderson supporters also filed the name of Belton A. Copp of Old Lyme as their vice presidential candidate. Copp will serve as a stand-in to meet the requirement that a vice presidential candidate be named until Anderson chooses a running mate.

Named electors for Anderson were: Katherine Avery of Niantic, Kay Bergin of Waterbury, Bruce Dillingham of Fairfield, Stephen Humphrey of West Hartford, William McTernan of Washington, William Moore of Lyme, Susan Shimmelman of Woodbridge and Anita Vogel of Bridgeport.

Energy prices eyed

BOSTON (UPI) — The number two man in the U.S. Energy Department says "chances are that the price of gasoline will go up some, but I think that any increases would be moderate."

Deputy Energy Secretary John C. Sawhill also spoke Monday of the need for standby rationing controls. "Rationing is not an advice for energy conservation. Rationing is a system of allocating supplies in a very severe shortage," he said.

"It would be something we would use if there was a severe interruption in the energy supplies available to this country, but not something we would use to reduce demand during normal times," he said. In his address before the New England Conference of Public Utilities Commissioners, Sawhill spoke of reducing oil consumption and stimulating conservation by converting utility oil boilers to coal.

Appropriations, new fees on agenda for directors

MANCHESTER — The Board of Directors will consider a number of appropriations and the setting of new fees at 8 p.m. tonight. Although the board voted during the budget sessions to increase the water rates 33 percent, there will be a public hearing on the ordinance tonight.

The board approved a 33 percent increase in the 1980-81 despite a request from town management for a 50 percent hike. The increase raises the average water bill about $25.40 a year. There had been some question whether a public hearing is required for the increase which has already been approved.

However, a search of the Town Charter showed a public hearing was not necessary, according to Kevin O'Brien, town attorney. But the board decided to schedule a hearing to give the public another chance to comment, and to avoid any misunderstandings.

The board will also consider an ordinance setting a $25 fine for pet droppings. The ordinance was proposed by the town Health Department after numerous complaints. Under the ordinance pet owners are responsible for pet droppings and must clean the area.

The board will also consider buying two new dump trucks using surplus money in the Highway Department 1979-80 budget. The money stems from the unusually mild winter that did not require large amounts of snow removal, sanding and salting.

Several Republican directors have said they may oppose the purchase of the trucks.

New parking regulations and fines are also on the board's agenda. The ordinance to be considered tonight sets a $5 fee for overtime parking, a $15 fine for parking outside 12 inches from the curb, and 10 feet from a fire hydrant, and 25 feet from a corner. There will be a $25 fine for parking in a fire lane.

Establishing an Emergency Medical Services council is scheduled to be finalized tonight. The board earlier approved the concept of the nine-member council. The council, representing consumers, respondents, and medical fields, would study possibilities of an EMS service and report to the Board of Directors. The council members will be board appointed.

Settling a claim against the town for $12,000 is recommended by the Town Attorney's Office. This amount, for stumbling on the sidewalks was set by a court in a pre-trial hearing of Anna Diioria's case.

Although last month the board approved selling Buckland School to Richard Hayes, the ordinance finalizing the sale is not on the agenda. The town management is reviewing the submitted bids before drafting the ordinance. It is expected the sale will be on the July agenda.

Grasso OKs rewards in four murder cases

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella Grasso has authorized rewards ranging from $20,000 to $10,000 for information leading to the killers in four separate murders.

A $10,000 reward was offered Monday in the slaying of Janette Reynolds, 17, of Griswold, whose skeletal remains were found buried March 25, 1979, in Groton. She had last been seen on Aug. 27, 1978. The reward was requested by New London State's Attorney Robert Sali, who said police had been unable to find any suspect.

A $20,000 reward was approved for information in the arson murders of Gilbert Hegamin and Sam McNeil, who both died June 2, 1980, in New Haven. New Haven State's Attorney Arnold Markle asked that a reward be offered.

Rewards of $20,000 each were also authorized by the governor in the separate slayings of Catherine Healey, 87, of Hartford, and Juan Angel Velez, 40, also of Hartford. Mrs. Healey was severely beaten and found in her burglarized apartment on April 24. She died several days later. Velez was found stabbed to death in his apartment on March 14.

Rewards in the two murders were requested by Hartford State's Attorney John Bailey.

Squirrel causes blackout

By KEVIN FOLEY Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — A squirrel which found its way into a 23,000-volt underground electrical system this morning at Manchester Memorial Hospital caused a three-phase electrical failure, leaving 466 Hartford Electric Light Co. customers without power for about half an hour.

Andrew Beck, a spokesman for the hospital, said HELCO officials on the scene told him the squirrel got between lighting arresters in the lines which lead to the hospital's new laundry touching off the failure. Beck said the hospital was able to switch over to auxiliary power immediately, and no emergency services were interrupted. The operating room was being used, but he added no problems occurred there as a result of the failure.

George Nelson, a spokesman for HELCO said customers in Bolton and on E. Center Street in town lost power from 8:32 a.m. until 9:06 a.m. According to Nelson, Bolton residents on Sunny Road, South Road, Bolton North Road and Rt. 44 experienced the outage because a main circuit to Bolton was affected by the hospital failure.

Beck said Helco was able to isolate the underground feed to the laundry and restore regular service to the hospital by 10 a.m., however, service had been not restored to the laundry itself as of 10 a.m. Beck, when first told of the failure, said he wasn't aware that it had originated at the hospital, saying he thought a car had struck a pole on West Middle Turnpike. However, after consulting engineers, he learned of the squirrel in the electrical line. The squirrel did not survive.

Coincidentally, traffic lights in town, most notably at the intersection at Main and Center streets developed problems this morning, but Capt. Henry Minor of the Police Department's Patrol Division, said the trouble was not related to the hospital failure.

"The power outage did not affect the traffic lights," he said, "it was a malfunction in our system and I understand the state is on the way to make repairs."

MPOA petition goes to clerk

By MARY KITZMANN Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The Board of Directors refused to accept the petition of the Manchester Property Owners Association last night, and directed it to the Town Clerk's Office.

Speaking for the board, Mayor Stephen Penny said the directors must wait 45 days before acting on the petition, which requests that town spending be limited solely to increases in the Grand List. Penny based the statement on an interpretation of Town Charter provisions, but an opinion by town counsel has not been given.

Elizabeth Sadloski, president of the MPOA, who initiated the petition drive in March, called the opinion a delaying tactic. "I don't see why if they can accept something within the 45 days, why they can't reject it before the full 45 days," she said. "Obviously they know all along they intend to reject it."

Several directors indicate that they will follow the Town Attorney Kevin O'Brien's ruling that the petitions are invalid. O'Brien's opinion issued in April, maintains that only the Board of Directors has authority over fiscal matters such as setting the mill rate.

Mrs. Sadloski plans litigation to resolve the issue, but needs a written "adverse" ruling to proceed. The 45-day wait for a board response precludes beginning any legal action. Penny says the board, under the charter, has no choice but to wait the full time period. "I don't mind being taken to task

Students get grants

MANCHESTER — About 200 persons attended the 15th annual Manchester Scholarship Foundation Inc. awards ceremony Tuesday night, held in the Manchester High School cafeteria. The 34 students who received awards knew they were going to be recognized, but didn't know who the award sponsor was or how much the scholarship was for until they actually had the award in hand. Of the 34 students, one received an honor award. Including this student, 20 of the 34 are graduating from MHS. East Catholic High School was represented by 11 award winners, with one award winner coming from Howell Cheney Technical School and two award winners from Manchester Community College. Altogether, the 34 students received $26,550, an increase of $1,150 over the total sum awarded last year.

Kravet gains support

ANDOVER — David Kravet, Andover Elementary School principal, under attack by several residents and a former school employee for his "dictatorial, intimidator and harassing methods," received the support of the majority of people at a Board of Education meeting Tuesday at the school. The meeting was attended by about 200 people. Many residents had expressed dissatisfaction with Kravet by voting to eliminate a proposed 9 percent pay raise for him at the Annual Budget Meeting in May. That meeting, news releases by school personnel and rumors throughout town led to about 200 people attending the school board meeting Tuesday. The state included the results of the mentally retarded students in Manchester's total score, which brought the score down by about one percent. Kravet was criticized for being a publicly hostile and praiseful for implementing programs at the school whether or not they were his idea. One man wanted to pass a resolution supporting Kravet and the school. It will be considered by the school board.

SHVC won't sell building

By MARY KITZMANN Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The owners of the Odd Fellows building have decided not to sell to the state. The sale and the building's demolition was planned as part of the reconstruction of the intersection of Center and Main Street where the building is located.

The owners, SHVC Inc., a family corporation, notified the board of opposition to the plan to take the property. In a letter to the board, read at Tuesday night's meeting, the owners now suggest that the necessary land be taken from the Center Congregational Church property, across from the half-moon structure. The corporation is composed of members of the Stuart Carlson family.

The board scheduled a public hearing on the matter for July. Voters authorized the reconstruction when approving funding for three other projects; the renovation of Main, Adams, and Vernon Streets. According to Jay Walsh, state director, about $1.56 million was approved for the projects in November of 1977.

Although no work has begun, the State Department of Transportation has begun acquiring the rights of way. After the project's completion the remaining land that was purchased by the state, will be returned to the town.

Under the agreement with DOT, the town pays about 30 percent of the cost of the project. The project will create two separate intersections relieving traffic congestion at the corner.

According to Jerome Walsh, attorney for SHVC Inc., the state did not exercise the option to buy under a specified time. The owners feel the structure is a good, viable building, and no longer wish to sell. Walsh said that using empty land from the church and possibly the Lincoln Center grounds would be an alternative solution.

However, Walsh noted the state could still condemn the land. "What we're trying to do is point out why they shouldn't," he said. "Because of the reversal, the board felt it necessary to re-evaluate the town's position on the project."

Ninth graders pass state test

MANCHESTER — Reflecting a districtwide priority on reading, Manchester ninth graders overwhelmingly passed the state's minimum competency tests in all areas but did especially well in that area.

Results of the statewide test taken for the first time in March of this year were released by the town Tuesday, with Superintendent of Schools James J. Kennedy saying results confirm administration expectations. The vast majority of our ninth graders exceeded the state minimum competency tests. These results parallel very closely our own results with the district's tenth grade minimum competency tests," Kennedy said in a memo to be given to the Board of Education.

Kennedy referred to the town's basic skills exam, which students are required to pass if they are to receive a diploma. The test, which concerned the areas of reading, language arts, mathematics and writing, was administered to educable mentally retarded students, in addition to the regular students. The state included the results of the mentally retarded students in Manchester's total score, which brought the score down by about one percent.

In reporting its results, the state has included whatever data towns have supplied. Thus in some town and school districts, the scores do not include tests of educable mentally retarded students or other special education students.

While the administration had planned to release the results at Monday's Board of Education meeting, officials chose to wait until computations could be made that would show the district's score without the educable mentally retarded students included. With those students included, 96.5 percent passed the reading section. Not including those students, 97.2 percent passed. "Outside of the idle curiosity to compare school districts, it doesn't make one whit of a difference whether the scores are 97.2 percent or 96.5 percent," Kennedy said. All the scores were: Reading - 97.2 percent of 815 students passed; language arts - 84.4 percent of 815

Energy at a glance

Algiers, Algeria - OPEC's summit ended in chaos Tuesday with Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates rejecting an agreement by the majority of the cartel's members to raise their base price for oil to $32 per barrel.

New York - The Saudi Arabian refusal to adopt the proposed OPEC base price of $32 a barrel could gut the cartel's power if the global recession deepens and shrinks world oil demand, a U.S. analyst said Tuesday.

Washington - The Nuclear Regulatory Commission voted unanimously Tuesday to allow radioactive krypton gas to be vented from the damaged Three Mile Island reactor containment building.

Washington - The government, abandoning its last feeble hope of resurrecting President Carter's dime-a-gallon gasoline fee, agreed Tuesday to drop its appeal of a federal court decision outlawing the program.

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Wednesday, June 11, the 163rd day of 1980 with 293 to follow.
The moon is approaching its new phase.
There is no morning star.
The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.
Those born on this date are under the sign of Gemini.
German composer Richard Strauss was born June 11, 1864.
On this date in history:
In 1920, Ohio Sen. Warren Harding was chosen as the "dark horse" Republican candidate for president. He won in November, defeating James Cox, to become the nation's 29th president.
In 1927, Charles Lindbergh was welcomed home by President Calvin Coolidge after making history's first non-stop flight across the Atlantic Ocean to Paris.
In 1969, labor leader John L. Lewis, president emeritus of the United Mine Workers Union, died at the age of 89.
In 1979, actor John Wayne died of cancer at the age of 72.

A thought for the day: In 1916, Republican Warren G. Harding made a statement paraphrased 40 years later by President John F. Kennedy, "... We must have a citizenship less concerned about what the government can do for it, and more anxious about what it can do for the nation."

Signatures being collected to get Anderson on ballot

HARTFORD (UPI) - John Anderson's supporters say they expect to have thousands of signatures backing their candidate's independent presidential bid in the hands of the Connecticut election officials within a month.

Anderson's campaign coordinators Tuesday took the first step to place the Illinois congressman's name on the November presidential ballot while controversy continued over the six Republican primary delegates he won.

Anderson's state campaign chairman, George Ward, filed an affidavit signed by Anderson with the secretary of the state's office to begin the collection of 14,085 signatures needed to put the candidate on the ballot.

The figure represents 1 percent of the votes cast in the 1976 presidential election. Anderson won 40,000 votes in the state's March 25 Republican presidential primary.

Ward, of Washington, Conn., said "We expect to get several times the needed signatures for Anderson within a month's time. The petitions must be returned to the state by Aug. 28."

The affidavit also contained the name of eight presidential electors who would vote for Anderson if the Electoral College meets in the event he defeats the Democratic and Republican nominees in state voting.

The electors include four Republicans and four Democrats.

Meanwhile, Secretary of the State Barbara Kennedy said state law requires that convention delegates remain committed until freed by their candidate should supercede national party rules, and Anderson to spend on the primary, although $1.2 million was finally allocated.

Region vote urged

Primary cost was less

HARTFORD (UPI) - Connecticut's 1980 presidential primary cost the state $745,000-roughly $455,000 cheaper than originally estimated, says Secretary of the State Barbara Kennedy.

Mrs. Kennedy, in releasing the figures at a news conference Tuesday, said she hoped a regional primary would be among options considered for the next presidential election to reduce the overall cost.

She also said state law requiring that convention delegates remain committed until freed by their candidate should supercede national party rules which allowed Rep. John Anderson's, R-Ill., six delegates to be divided up.

"Under our law, those six delegates are John Anderson's delegates until he releases them," said Mrs. Kennedy. The state GOP last weekend refused to award any Republican delegates to Anderson, who's running as an Independent.

And she said Sen. Edward Kennedy's, D-Mass., suggestion that delegates be cut loose to vote for whomever they want at convention time would negate the whole idea behind the primaries.

"You don't change the rules after the game," Mrs. Kennedy said.

Commenting on the cost of the primary, she said it came in way under budget because of cost controls imposed on towns and cities and "the efficiency and dedication of the local officials on the scene."

The primary, where roughly 400,000 people voted, cost $745,000. The tab for the 1976 general election was $942,000. Some 1.35 million people voted in the statewide election.

The state reimbursed municipalities for basic expenses in the primary.

Mrs. Kennedy said part of the tight budgeting was because she initially thought she only would have $400,000.

Thirteen confirmed

MANCHESTER - Thirteen young persons from Temple Beth Shalom were confirmed in recent ceremonies at the temple.

They are Linda Abramson, Adam Borgida, Beth Edelson, Naomi Goldick, David Gorman, Andrea Gussak, Steven Kahaner, Cindy Katz, Judith Keller, Brenda Kravitz, Michael Moses, Stacey Reuben, and Daniel Weinbaum.

The ceremony symbolized the continued commitment of the confirmands to the study of the Judaism and to the Torah. Most of the students had been attending classes since kindergarten. The confirmation came at the end of the 10th grade.

Participating in the ceremony were Rabbi Richard Plavin, Mrs. Ruth Weiner, and Mrs. Sidney Keller.

Linden Street revisited

When bad public policy is made the decision tends to haunt officials.

The case of the former senior citizens center on Linden Street seems to qualify as an example.

Rather than selling the old center, the town has decided to circumvent its own zoning ordinance by allowing a variance so the center can be occupied by MARCH and the Manchester Area Conference of Churches along with the town human services department and health department.

We have no objection and have given our support to the efforts of MACC and MARCH. We think the organizations do a great deal to provide services that give Manchester its reputation for being a town that cares about people.

But when the town decides to make an exception in established zoning practices on property it owns, a precedent is established that will make it difficult to control future incursions into the zoning of the town by others.

Neighbors of the Linden Street building may appeal the variance allowed by the Zoning Board of Appeals.

The neighbors contend the use will significantly alter traffic, parking and congestion in the usually quiet neighborhood.

Had the board of directors put the property up for sale to the highest bidder it would not be facing another controversy the town doesn't need at this time.

It seems inconsistent that the town is selling the Bockland School building, but holding on to the Linden Street center.

The action also seems to lack consistency in light of efforts to be made in the next year to update the town's plan of development, a move seeking to better define the use of various sections of Manchester so land use will be orderly.

Spending tax money to prevent a hodge-podge land-use pattern, while giving town government a variance to create just such an undesirable pattern makes little sense to us.

Variances should be allowed only in the most extreme cases where a hardship exists and where the variance would not significantly alter the character of the neighborhood.

We feel the Linden Street decision will be an ineffective zoning ordinance putting land-use decisions out of control

Old acquaintances renewed

EAST HARTFORD — Mr. and Mrs. Roy Howard of Manchester, England, renewed old acquaintances recently when they visited with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Melody of 27 Cheney Lane, East Hartford.

Melody first met the couple in 1944 when he was serving with the 9th Air Force and stationed at Burton AFB, near Manchester, England.

During their visit the Howards toured New York City, Niagara Falls, Boston, Cape Cod, and Mystic Seaport.

"They were particularly impressed with Manchester, the sister city of Manchester, England, and commented that Manchester's title 'City of Village Charm' was an appropriate name," Melody said.

Catholic women's group installs Barbara Wallet

MANCHESTER — At a recent meeting of the Manchester Council of St. James Church, was installed as president of the Manchester Council of Catholic Women. Mary McKeever, past president, presided over the installation ceremonies.

Other officers installed were: Marilyn Parker, St. Bridget Church, first vice president; Teresa MacDonald, Church of the Assumption, second vice president; Marjorie Minor, St. Bartholomew, third vice president; and Dorothy Thompson, St. James, fourth vice president.

Also: Florence Parker, St. Bartholomew, treasurer; Jean Kielick, Assumption, recording secretary; Winifred Johnson, St. Bridget, corresponding secretary.

Representatives from the parishes are: Anna May Potocki, Assumption; Helen Keefe, Rosemary Fahy, Kathleen McNamara, St. Bartholomew; Mrs. McKeever, Florence Ryan, Irene Bergin, St. Bridget; and Helen Conroy, Doris Audette, Judy Kargl, Teresa Moriarty, St. James.

The Rev. Martin Scholsky of the St. Bartholomew parish serves as chaplain for the organization.

The state convention of the Council of Catholic Women will be hosted by the Manchester council in October.

Thoughts

Jesus tells us that if we take His yoke upon our shoulders our souls will find rest. What is His yoke? It is the Will of His Father. That is the burden Jesus carried and it is the one He invites us to take up. He assures us that His yoke is easy and that we will find the burden light.

But it is so hard for us to believe this. The Will of God somehow has fearful connotations for us. If there is an earthquake, an automobile accident or some other disaster, we often hear someone remark, "Well, it was the Will of God."

It is natural that believers should want to affirm that even the most extreme and catastrophic events are not outside the Providence of God. Unfortunately, however, we are not always as quick to credit God with having His finger in the joyous occasions of life.

Jesus, who is the perfect image of His Father, reveals to us a God who is patient, slow to get angry, and quick to forgive. He manifests the greatest compassion for human weakness and all His parables picture the growth of the Kingdom of God as a slow, gradual process.

If only we had a trust in God comparable to what little children have for their human fathers! We could throw off the heavy yoke of our own will, by which we make life burdensome; and the frequently unreasonable demands of the world, which weary us; and we could refresh our souls by embracing God's wise and loving Will for us.

Loophole in Conrail

By JUDY GARASOHN

WASHINGTON — Thousands of Conrail employees are receiving millions of dollars in payments Congress never intended when it passed a 1973 law to create the railroad.

Payments — ranging from $50 to $1,800 a month — were designed to compensate workers for lost jobs, wages or benefits when Conrail was created by merging seven bankrupt railroads in the Midwest and Northeast.

But unforeseen problems with the formula determining payments to the railroad's senior vice president, despite the lack of funds, the current law requires Conrail to continue the payments out of other monies.

"Labor is supporting the legislation reluctantly" to avoid a potentially worse solution by Congress, said William G. Mahoney, an attorney representing the labor association.

The roots of the problem go back to 1970 when Penn Central, the country's largest railroad delivering 20 percent of the nation's freight and operating 70 percent of its passenger service, went bankrupt. In 1973 the railroad's trustees called for federal help to avoid closing down the line.

After union workers walked off their jobs to protest the trustees' plan to eliminate one of the two brakemen carried on most trains, Congress passed a law to end the strike and called for a plan to protect Northeast rail service.

One of the major obstacles to any rail reorganization legislation was considered to be labor opposition because of the unions' political clout.

The labor protection agreement was worked out in private talks between representatives of rail management and labor and then written into the bill.

The agreement, which covers Conrail and seven other employers, was designed to protect employees from losing their jobs, pay or other benefits as the result of the rail consolidation. The monthly payments were to ensure that employees earn at least as much as their total earnings in 1974.

There are about 118,500 people covered by the agreement and at least 34,500 are receiving the monthly payments, according to a General Accounting Office (GAO) report.

Of these, about 11,000 Conrail employees — 10,000 of whom are working full-time for Conrail — receive monthly payments that average about $300.

Costly problems with the program were unforeseen at the time. A major problem, officials said, was the use of 1974 as the base year for determining the payments.

No one realized at the time that employees would be racking up "monumental" overtime pay because of a freeze on job hiring and a surge in rail traffic. The use of 1974, therefore, resulted in higher than expected payments.

There were other problems that made the Conrail agreement unusual for rail labor protection plans, the GAO said.

The GAO noted that the act made protected employees, those with at least five years on the job at the time of the law's enactment, eligible until the age of 65. The program is expected to end in 2021 when the last protected employee turns 65. The labor protection plan for Amtrak, the subsidized passenger service, is limited to six years.

The legislation before Congress, however, retains the 65 age cutoff.

Also, unlike the Amtrak plan, the Conrail program did not clearly limit the payments for conditions resulting from the rail reorganization. Payments have gone to workers idled by strikes, snowstorms, floods and similar occurrences.

Costs also have been high, the GAO said, because the payments for laid-off employees now working in non-rail jobs were reduced by only 50 percent of their earnings. This was intended to help rail employees who were thought to be unable to get as well-paid jobs in other professions.

But the GAO said the provision was a boon to laid-off Conrail truck drivers because they continue to work in well-paying trucking jobs. One driver in 1978 earned more than $44,600, including $13,735 in the monthly payments.

The proposed legislation incorporates a GAO recommendation that 100 percent of non-rail earnings be considered in the determination of the monthly payments.

The legislation also would allow Conrail to offer transfers to laid-off marine and truck employees to vacant positions in other crafts for which they would be trained. If an employee rejected the transfer, he would have to accept a one-time severance payment.

Conrail has laid off 96 of 103 marine employees and they now are collecting full pay. Their payments could cost $23 million if the law is not changed, the GAO estimated.

Notes from new China

By DON GRAFF

The Chinese, who have been taking plenty in the way of hardware and know-how from the West, may be about to return the favor.

Not, however, in the field of advanced technology. It develops, according to a recent report in the news columns, that a traditional ingredient of Chinese cuisine may have medical as well as gustatory value.

The discovery came accidentally — as have so many great ones; think of Newton and that apple — when a researcher at the University of Minnesota Medical School was running blood tests on subject in an experiment.

One individual's blood unexpectedly failed to clot normally and the only thing that set him apart from the other participants was his most recent meal — you guessed it, Chinese.

Further tests were run with additional subjects participating until one ingredient common to many Chinese dishes was singled out as the inhibitor of blood clotting. It may well explain why the incidence of heart disease among people in China is much lower than among Westerners and suggests the possibility of laboratory development of a new anti-coagulant to benefit heart patients.

The Chinese know the item as mo or "tree ears." It is a black fungus with a squishy, rubbery texture.

Not that we shouldn't be grateful for this serendipitous Oriental contribution to Occidental good health, mind you, but on second thought is there any possibility of substituting something from Column B?

Big-characters from the sponsors

In other areas, the Chinese are still taking.

Such as ideas for making use of one of China's most famous walls.

That is Xidan or "democracy" wall, a 250-yard length of gray brick along Chang'an Boulevard, Peking's main drag, that was the focus of the country's brief but intensive experiment with free speech a bit back.

For a while, you may recall, it was plastered with "big-character" posters proclaiming the aspirations of individuals and groups for a better and freer future.

Agent's book attacks CIA's demands

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — A veteran CIA agent has just written an explosive book, charging that the agency's top brass have repeatedly lied about its secret operations to the public, the Congress and even the president.

The revelations could stymie the congressional campaign to loosen the leash on the CIA.

The agent, Ralph McGehee, spent 25 years with the CIA in a variety of assignments. He has produced an unpublished manuscript that debunks many of the CIA's arguments for greater secrecy. My associate Dale Van Atta interviewed McGehee, and was allowed to examine the book-length manuscript. McGehee is no Philip Agee, out to destroy the CIA by identifying former colleagues and endangering their lives. But his disillusionment runs deep, and he lays out the reasons for it articulately on moral grounds.

"I did not reach my apostasy easily," he explains, noting that he chose the CIA for a career in 1952, fresh out of Notre Dame, where he played four years on undefeated football teams.

Essentially, McGehee charges that the CIA uses secrecy to cover up incompetence, bureaucratic bungling and illegal activities. "Other than identity of sources and any unique technological collection processes," he writes, the CIA "does not have any secrets to protect."

Here are some of McGehee's charges:

- "It has been my observation that most everything an agency official says about the agency is either false or so misleading as to convey a greatly false impression," he asserts.
- "President Ford was given a glowing account of a superspy with supposed access to critical inside information. 'Not mentioned was the fact that the agent had been completely unproductive, and ... his meager salary of less than $100 a month had been suspended.'"
- "Footnote: McGehee dutifully submitted his manuscript to the CIA, and made the deletions ordered. The agency has refused comment to us."
- "Informing Ivan: The chill in Soviet-American relations hasn't interrupted the flow of U.S. government publications, including copies of the U.S. Army's field manual, technical manual and a guide to the LANCE missile."
- "Even the Iranian government is on Uncle Sam's free mailing list. The hostage holders get some 3,100 publications at a cost of $1,800 a year. The cost figures, incidentally, don't include mailing, which is also paid by the American taxpayers."

This annoys Sen. Jim Sasser, D-

Tenn., who has conducted his own private investigation. Here are some of his findings:

- "It cost $12,000 in fiscal year 1979 to send the Kremlin some 23,000 documents, including the Defense Intelligence Agency's 'Review of Soviet Ground Forces' and CIA maps and atlases of Afghanistan, Yugoslavia, Angola, Pakistan, Israel and South Korea."
- "It cost just about as much over the same period of time? To see that Fidel Castro received our government publications, including copies of the U.S. Army's field manual, technical manual and a guide to the LANCE missile."

Area women earn degrees

HARTFORD — Hartford College for Women, a two-year, liberal arts transfer college, held its annual commencement exercise on Saturday, May 31. Sharon Toffey Sheple, Ph.D., director of research at the Counseling Center of Hartford College and associate professor of psychology, addressed the 63 graduating sophomores. Four area women were awarded the associate in arts degree.

Tammy Anne Bouchard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bouchard, 73 Country Lane, East Hartford, graduated with honors and was awarded the Abraham A. Klein Award in recognition of a student who has achieved academically and assumed social responsibility. A Dean's list student, she was treasurer of the Student Council and plans to attend Goucher College to major in dance therapy.

Patricia Lee Gatzkiewicz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy M. Gatzkiewicz, 161 Green Road, Manchester, was named to the Dean's list for her two years of study at Hartford College and received her associate in arts degree.

Ingrid Emily Klavins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Olga Klavins, 81 Ludlow Road, Manchester, received her associate in arts degree.

The Vernon Board of Education, discussing a proposed program, talked about charging a fee and figured there would be a profit of $200. One of the board members asked where the fees would go and Dr. Bernard Sidman, with tongue in cheek, commented, "We can use it to go toward some of the deficits we're anticipating."

Woman dies in accident

VERNON - Jordan Thorpe, 20, of 166 Lydall St., Manchester, was pronounced dead on arrival at Rockville General Hospital this morning after suffering in a two-car accident on Route 83. The accident happened about 1 a.m. Police said the Thorpe car was traveling north and a car driven by Stephen Holden, 21, of 55 Oak St., Manchester, was traveling south. Police said Wanda Holden, sister of Stephen, was treated and released at Rockville General Hospital. Police said the Vernon Rescue Squad was called to pry open the Thorpe vehicle. The accident is still under investigation.

Mrs. Caffy enters race

SOUTH WINDSOR - Former Republican mayor and chairman of the Town Council, Nancy J. Caffy, has decided to seek her party's nomination for the fourth senatorial district. She will formally announce her candidacy at a reception at the Potomac Mill Restaurant on Ellington Road at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. Mrs. Caffy joins Republican Carl A. Zinsler, formerly of the Manchester Board of Directors, in seeking the nomination. She was the top vote-getter on the Republican slate in 1977 and was subsequently elected mayor in the heavily Democratic town. Mrs. Caffy is an executive committee member of the Capitol Region Council of Governments, the chairman of the South Windsor Mass Transit Commission and the vice-chairman of the Board of Education Facilities Study Committee.

Cops probe break

MANCHESTER - A break-in at a Progress Drive factory is under investigation after a $300 stereo receiver was discovered stolen this morning. Police said they were called to the Dignio Pallet Co. about 7 a.m. where they found burglars had smashed a glass door with a "heavy object," entered and taken the receiver. Another industrial theft was discovered Tuesday afternoon at the Acorn Corp., 1339 Tolland Turnpike where a 10-inch table saw valued at $600 was reported stolen about 4:30 p.m. Police said they were told the saw was chained to a post at about 1:30 when employees there last saw it. There are no suspects in either incident.

4-H awards

COVENTRY - Two Coventry 4-Hers were presented with certificates of recognition during a program held recently in the Old State House in Hartford. Judi Kelley of High Street received a certificate for participation in the 4-H Foods and Nutrition Program and Jane Loftus, 105 Deborah Drive, for the 4-H Human Relations program.

Appraisals said reasonable

MANCHESTER - The two appraisals valuing Buckland School at about $222,000, were "reasonable," Robert Weiss, town manager, told the Board of Directors last night. The town management, including Town Assessor J. Richard Vincent, reviewed the appraisals following questions about their validity and the assumptions made in the valuation. The board sought the appraisals after agreeing to sell the school to Richard Hayes for their average amount. Richard Barry, Manchester and Richard Marrese appraised the building last week. However, it was then revealed Vincent had estimated the building's worth at $478,000, and an earlier appraisal by Alfred Werthner sought by Hayes valued the school at $115,000. Last night Weiss noted the $222,000 average was "appropriate" when considering land value based on zoning for offices. He said the valuation would rise if the land was zoned for "general use." He noted that Vincent's figure was an "eyeball" estimate and not a proper appraisal. However, Vincent and the two appraisers has all said their "estimates" were based on zoning for the land for commercial use. It is presently zoned residential. Weiss said the differences were caused by the land

Proposed water rate hike not same as original plan

By MARY KITZMAN
Herald Reporter
MANCHESTER - The chairman of the Water Study Committee, which led to a $20 million authorization for water improvements, charged last night that this year's rate increases do not follow the committee's recommendations. The Water Study Committee finished its report, outlining the water improvements and recommending the $20 million program shortly before the April 1979 referendum, according to Reinborn. He said that the recent rate increase "has completely shaken" his confidence in town management to follow the recommendations. However, Giles noted that he said a triple rate increase could be expected to fund the improvements before the referendum.

Woman held as fugitive
MANCHESTER - A 33-year-old woman was arrested Tuesday on a fugitive from justice warrant by local police who are still looking for her husband in connection with an incident in Florida where the couple allegedly pushed a truckload of peaches and then paid for it with a $200 check which proved to be bad. The MDC's it would have been cheaper to join the MDC. The $3 percent increase raises the average water bill from about $20 to about $25. The MDC charges about $20 for customers within the district and $28 for those outside it. However, Jay Giles, public works director, said although the rates appear to be the same, joining the MDC would be more expensive. To join the district requires extensive renovation of Manchester's water system, Giles said. The taxpayers would have to pay for the improvements plus the higher rate. The town's own improvements will be financed with the rate hike, a single charge instead of double, Giles maintained. Giles, and Robert Weiss, town

Woman held as fugitive
MANCHESTER - A 33-year-old woman was arrested Tuesday on a fugitive from justice warrant by local police who are still looking for her husband in connection with an incident in Florida where the couple allegedly pushed a truckload of peaches and then paid for it with a $200 check which proved to be bad. The MDC's it would have been cheaper to join the MDC. The $3 percent increase raises the average water bill from about $20 to about $25. The MDC charges about $20 for customers within the district and $28 for those outside it. However, Jay Giles, public works director, said although the rates appear to be the same, joining the MDC would be more expensive. To join the district requires extensive renovation of Manchester's water system, Giles said. The taxpayers would have to pay for the improvements plus the higher rate. The town's own improvements will be financed with the rate hike, a single charge instead of double, Giles maintained. Giles, and Robert Weiss, town

Annual Father of the Year Honors List recognizes outstanding fathers

Thirteen prominent and not-so-prominent American Fathers were named to the 45th Annual Father of the Year Honors List, it was announced, May 22nd, by Gary Boyson, Chairman of the Father of the Year Awards Committee of the National Father of the Year Committee. This year's National Fathers of the Year include: Itzhak Perlman, for Music; Robert Merrill, for Performing Arts; Bob Keeshan (Captain Kangaroo) for Television; Stan Smith for Tennis; Pete Rozelle, for Football; Sonny Werble for Sports; Murray Schisgal for Stage; Rev. Joseph Lowery for Religious Leadership; Dr. Alton Ochsner, Medical Father; and John McKinnon, representing "Everyman's Father of the Year."

Each man was presented with the new famous DAD Award, suitably engraved, as a symbol of his achievement in family stability and cohesion. Bruce Roberts, President of the National Father of the Year Committee, in introducing the Awards ceremony said: "The nominations of the Fathers of the Year is a real and rewarding responsibility for those of us privileged to participate in the process. The men who have been named to the Honors List, over the many years that they have been published, read like a history of American leadership figures, who have so largely, through their activities, shaped the world in which we live. And, as each list is released, it reflects the values and concerns of the nation in the year to which it applies. Continuing, Roberts announced that "The Fathers of the Year Committee and Father of the Year Award is made to needy families, and other youngsters deprived of a father during the year, or in want for some other reason." "So, I am pleased to make the initial donation to the New York Ronald McDonald House, with the hope that a similar donation will be made at the Regional Fathers of the Year in Chicago, Los Angeles, Atlanta and Dallas—all by the Father of the Year Committee. And a Special Award to the family of Officer John Mullick whose courage enables him to be with his today. The Award Presentations were made in the Sheraton Centre, New York, before an enthusiastic audience of 1,500 community, education and business leaders, with Regional Awards presented subsequently in Los Angeles, Chicago, Dallas and Atlanta.

Super gifts for super Dads

Remember the guy who sat up with you all night when you had that awful fever? The one who helped you carry all your furniture up to your college dorm room, only to find that it didn't fit? That great man who was always there when you needed him—for money, troubles, or just some sympathy—is your dear old Dad, and this Father's Day may be the time to show him just how much he means to you. Unless he's really fond of clothes, forget about the standard shirt-and-tie, and get your dad a present that's as special as he is. A silver-handled shaving set every morning, if he's a devotee of the "old-fashioned" shave. If he's a connoisseur of fine wines and spirits, treat him to a bottle of rare, aged cognac such as Hennessy XO. You'll show him that you both have great taste! For careful calculations with a useful twist, give him a musical calculator. He'll be a hit at home or office. To show him that being a father has "paid off," help him organize his pocket cash with a sterling silver, monogrammed money clip. If he's a pipe or cigar smoker, hunt for an unusual rack or humidifier for the end table next to his chair. With a little thought and planning, this June 15 will be a day your dad remembers all the year long!

Dads are getting dressed up this year

Fashion-conscious fathers have been aware of it for some time, and even those Dads who don't think too often about their appearances are beginning to notice it—men are dressing up again. The Men's Fashion Association declares that the "grungy" look is out. Men are going for a dressier look that, while far from being "starchy," is more orderly and becoming from head to toe. Haircuts are shorter, and dress shoes are neater and better polished than they have been for some time. This current trend is also noticeable in the type of jewelry being worn. For example, many men are wearing collar pins with the new medium to shorter length collars, a small touch which does a good deal to spruce up any outfit. Although it's in its beginning stages, there is also a move back to the wearing of tie clasps and tie ties. They keep the centered under a vest and, when a man goes vestless, they keep the tie from swinging carelessly in the breeze. While some TV personalities are wearing tie pins in their lapels, this fashion idea is probably too "far out" for the average Dad—but who knows? However, many men have resurrected button-down ties, scouring the antique stores for them, and wearing them in the conventional manner. Key chains are also on the list of revived fashions. Practiced as well as decorative, key chains make good Father's Day gifts, as do all jewelry items. With the old look becoming the new look, it probably won't be long before Dad will take to wearing cuff links again.

Region Principal gains support of Andover folk, staff

By DONNA HOLLAND
Herald Correspondent

ANDOVER — David Kravet, Andover Elementary School principal, was recognized by the verbal and written support of many townspeople and school staff members who attended the Board of Education meeting Tuesday. At least 200 people attended the meeting, held in the school's all purpose room, to discuss Kravet's tenure.

The meeting, that lasted about three hours, heard about 34 people speak in support of Kravet, about five criticize him and about five make general comments.

The definitions of Kravet ranged from "intimidator" to "fantastic."

The situation became public at a Town Meeting in May when the majority of residents there, expressing dissatisfaction with Kravet, voted to eliminate a proposed nine percent pay raise for him.

The meeting was followed by news releases from David Cattanch, school superintendent, the Andover School Team (a name given to all school employees by Kravet) and Kravet supporting himself and the school.

A group of people met Sunday to further discuss the situation. They were not only criticized Kravet, they criticized Cattanch, the Board of Education and the teacher's association, for "not listening, not being receptive to people."

Teacher after teacher Tuesday went to the podium to sing the praises of the man who has been their leader for about six years.

Residents questioned, criticized and praised Kravet.

William Covill questioned Kravet as to whether he had ever tape recorded conversations with parents and threatened to sue them. Kravet denied both allegations.

Covill charged the school with "un-due harassment and pressure" to children after he made a statement to the school board in November. He didn't elaborate on his statement.

When Paul Sales, teacher, asked Covill for the specifics of harassment, he (Covill) refused to answer.

Then Beatrice Kowalski, school board chairman, ruled that a back and forth discussion was "inappropriate."

Christine Edolich described the school after a personal two week observation) as having a "positive educational atmosphere."

James Malinoski, former teacher, said he spoke at the meeting Sunday and was speaking Tuesday to "ensure the kinds of recurrences happening at the school when I was there do not happen again."

He said by talking he hoped to "alleviate undue pressure and intimidation placed on other teachers."

Cattanch questioned whether Malinoski's "perspective was factual because he had gotten busted." Cattanch said Malinoski was "not rehired in Gilead because of problems but was given another chance under Kravet where, after a year and half, his contract was not renewed because of problems."

Peter Hoole said, "I researched my roots and found my ancestors were processed as witches in Salem. I'm not too proud to be in Andover for what I consider to be a witch hunt."

He said, "I don't like this. I don't think it should be part of our town."

Frank Utakis said, "I'm hearing innuendos tonight and I heard them innuendos tonight but I don't consider character assassination part of the American way and this is what you get with innuendos."

Fran Comerford, health room employee for 14 years, who submitted her resignation earlier this year, said, "There's a lot of misinterpretation over the reason I'm leaving. The reason I'm leaving is personal, not because David Kravet and I do not get along."

To Kravet she said, "Thank you for being so nice to me. You had a certain way of making me feel you were happy I was a member of your staff."

To the people she said, "When I see what Dave Kravet has done to the school and how he handles kids, if I were you I would think twice of what might happen if you decide to let him go."

Evelyn Lauffer, teacher, said, "Dave Kravet's leadership makes the job worthwhile. Every child matters. Be careful. I'd hate to see a mediocre principal come in. I live this program and it is top notch."

George Platt, a former student and employee of the school, who admitted he could not work under Kravet so he left his job, said, "We parted boss-employee. I think he is a good administrator. He's done a lot for the school. To crucify him... it's not right to do that to anybody."

Bill Wern said, "I don't know what the hell this meeting is all about. I refused a job out of town because of the school system. I want my son to go through Andover Elementary School."

Patricia Dunnack, who submitted her resignation Tuesday night (it was not accepted by the board) said, "Problems prompted my resignation. I thought Mr. Kravet and I had a mutual respect for one another but working under him was an eye opener. I no longer respect him. He is solely responsible for my resignation."

Mrs. Dunnack said, "He asks you to do too many extras and if you disagree with him, you are by-passed person for promotion and you do not measure up to his standards."

Robert Post, bus driver, said, "I thought that this was a witch hunt but most of us are in back of the school. Dave Kravet and the Board of Education. I think he's (Kravet) doing a great job."

Jane Bouffard, speaking as a parent and ex-employee said, "I feel the supervision of the staff in an educational system is what you want for your children and it occurs under a good administrator and disciplinarian. Dave Kravet is an asset to Andover and should remain as principal."

Jackie Bell, art teacher, said, "Every person on this staff generally cares about your child and that includes Dave and he also cares about us and our families. If we have a problem as individuals, we can't function as we should and he wants to help us. I wish I could bring my own son to this school. It's special."

David Caron, a teacher for "seven or eight years" said, "When Dave Kravet came to the school, he moved me from one grade to another and I wasn't happy about it. But he strives for excellence, not just for kids, for us too."

Caron said, "The pressure on teachers is to help them, not to get anybody. If I had a child (and I do) I'd want that child to be in Dave Kravet's school."

Julie Haverl said, "Dave Kravet is doing an excellent job. I think the board needs to work out the mechanics for handling disagreements and complaints because this is a special, special place."

Mrs. Helen Knowlton, said, "People are afraid to come forward. There are people here tonight who have changed their stories. There are other parents with complaints but maybe I'm the only one with guts enough to say them."

Mrs. Knowlton said "Teachers, in the middle of a sentence, change the tenor of what they are saying when he (Kravet) comes into the room, he changes grades on report cards and my child was harassed by Mr. Kravet and teachers because of a library book."

She said, "I heard this meeting was going to be stacked against anyone with complaints and it is."

George Kitchen said, "I support Dave Kravet and I like him in spite of the fact I find a fair amount to disagree with him about the educational program. It's because I'm a Christian. We disagree philosophically but he's real easy to talk to and he stands up for his beliefs and accommodates mine. He's honest."

Margaret Yeomans said, "I've been here 50 years and for all the years I've been here I've never seen anything like this. I'm thoroughly ashamed to have a meeting like this and to be talking about people the way we have. I really am. It's just awful."

Dave Turking, who has taught at the school for 19 years and has lived through all the principals, said, "Dave Kravet got a lot out of me that I probably wouldn't have given on my own. There were a lot of challenges when he came and I did like all of them. I didn't always agree with him and he didn't agree with me and we've had confrontations but it was in the best interest of the classroom, not his or mine."

Margaret Standish said grades were changed on one of her children's report cards and offered the report card to the board. She said, "We applied for free lunch for the children and from that moment on we've regretted it. We've had a mutual respect for one another but working under him was an eye opener. I no longer respect him. He is solely responsible for my resignation."

Jane Foran said, "Dave Kravet is a respectful, considerate and compassionate man. He's a quite silent person. He helps the children in a way you can't see. Nobody can be intimidated unless you're willing to be intimidated. He's an exceptional principal."

Rodney Mooney, towards the end of the meeting said, "If after six years that's all the complaints we have about our principal, he must be an exceptional man indeed."

Jackie Eagles, music teacher, also at the end of the meeting said, "My faith in Andover has been restored. I've taught from Maine to California and Andover has been something very special to me. I love the kids and now I love you, I had my doubts."

Mrs. Eagles said, "Dave Kravet is a super person and you're darn right he needs us. Don't you want him to be here so you get the best for your kids?"

John Gasper, first year teacher said, "I've grown so much over the year because of the leadership Dave Kravet gave me."

Beatrice Kowalski, board chairman, said this morning, "I thought it was a very good meeting. I'm sorry things got this way. The comments gave us an insight as to what is going on, something to work with."

She said, "It was good just to get it off your shoulders. People have problems that are big and real to them. If a problem is with your child, it's the biggest."

The school board did not take any action on the comments about Kravet nor did it discuss them.

Kravet, when contacted this morning, said, "I'm very, very pleased at the support of the parents and staff."

He said, "Now I'm anxious to get back to business."

Vernon
Delmont R. Martin, 21, of 51 Mountain St., Rockville, was charged Tuesday with first-degree criminal trespassing.

Police said he was arrested at 199 South St. on property he allegedly had been warned to stay away from. He was held at the police station in lieu of posting a $200 bond and was to be presented in court in Rockville today.

William R. Ziemba, 16, of 47 Village St., Rockville, was arrested Tuesday on warrants charging him with second-degree larceny, fourth-degree larceny, two counts of driving without a license, driving an un-registered motor vehicle and misuse of registration plates.

The alleged offenses took place in April and May. Police said Ziemba is also wanted as an escapee from Long Lane in Meriden. He was held at the police station in lieu of posting a $7,500 bond and was to be presented in court today.

Cynthia B. Bouta, 16, of 27 Echo Drive, Vernon, was charged Tuesday with three counts of fourth-degree larceny on property of Sage-Alden's, Worth's and the Dress Barn at Vernon Circle. She was allegedly apprehended with $90-worth of merchandise. She was released on her promise to appear in court on June 24.

Kenneth J. Cox, 18, of Hartford, was charged Tuesday with fourth-degree larceny in connection with the investigation of a complaint that money was taken from a Prospect Street home. He was released on his promise to appear in court on June 24.

Sheds require permits

BOLTON — "I have seen more than a few sheds in town that have been built or installed without a permit and there is no need for it," said Calvin Hutchinson, building inspector.

Hutchinson said he will be sending out violation notices to those people who have structures and who didn't get a permit for them.

Hutchinson said, "I don't want anyone to think because they haven't gotten a notice, that their shed has gone unnoticed."

Circle merchants set meeting on road work

VERNON — The merchants in the Vernon Circle Shopping area were concerned, several years ago, about the possible devastating effects the rebuilding of Interstate 86 could have on their businesses. And they're still concerned. Work has now started in the circle area on the new ramp which will replace the existing eastbound ramp and this is the major concern of the merchants. They feel the change will discourage people from coming off the highway to shop. The merchants, sponsored by the Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce, will meet Friday at 8:30 a.m. with state Department of Transportation officials to review the potential impact of this phase of the highway widening project. James Burns, an engineer from DOT, will be the guest speaker. He will explain the state's plans, the estimated timetable for the work, plans for traffic detours and final design plans. The state, over the 10 years the project has been in the planning stages, has conducted many informational meetings in town and officials have condescended to some changes, especially in the Talcottville area. Merchants tried, several years ago, to have the state change its plans for the Vernon Circle area ramps. Plans are to remove the existing eastbound entrance ramp and to relocate the off ramp. State officials have told local merchants that the changes won't have any long-term negative effects on their businesses. The work in the circle area isn't expected to be completed for about two years. Eastbound Exit 96 has been closed and the state will be closing the Dobson Road bridge as of June 23. Mayor Marie Herbst asked the state to delay the bridge closing at least until schools were closed for the summer and the state agreed. Mayor Herbst, during her weekly press conference Tuesday afternoon, said she is still concerned about how emergency vehicles will get to the area south of the highway once the bridge is closed.

Friday Strawberry fest in South Windsor

SOUTH WINDSOR — The first session of Day Camp on Thursday, June 26 at the Community Center from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. The camp will run from June 30 to July 11, 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. daily. The public is invited and will be Wapping, Orchard Hill and Eli Terry. Children are asked to bring their own lunches. Milk, and ice cream will be served daily and twice each week respectively. All children 6, or going into Grade 1, through age 13 may register. There will be an additional charge for field trips. In other recreation news, the department will offer beginner racquetball lessons in conjunction with Court House One. A class will be held on Wednesday evenings from 7 to 8:30 beginning June 25 for 16 to 18-year-olds.

State-backed loans to create new jobs

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Development Authority has approved $14 million in state-sponsored industrial loans which will allow 14 state firms to create or retain 1,400 jobs. The loans approved Tuesday were the monthly batch brought before the quasi-public authority and will be used by the firms to build new facilities or expand existing ones. Economic Development Commissioner Edward Stockton said the loans, which ranged from $124,000 to $4.5 million, showed that "expansion by Connecticut business and industry continues to be strong." The largest loan was $4.5 million to Leybold-Heraeus Vacuum Systems Inc. of Enfield to purchase its existing plant and construct and equip an addition. The German manufacturer of electron beam welders, heat treaters and vacuum furnaces, will increase its 196 member workforce by 291 workers.

Teachers denied insurance request

VERNON — The Vernon Education Association was denied, by the Board of Education Monday night, a request to incorporate coordination of insurance benefits in the contract that has already been signed. On advice of its attorney, Donald Strickland, the board recommended that the coordination of benefits program not be initiated during the term of the three-year contract now in effect. The teachers' basic insurance coverage, agreed upon by the board and the VEA, allows individual coverage of individual family coverage. If a husband and wife are both teachers one or the other can be designated as head of the family, but not both. The VEA contends that this is discrimination and members want both husbands and wife to be allowed to have the family coverage on their policies. What this could accomplish would be to allow some additional riders for the husband and wife policies. Board officials said this would cost the town money to pay for two individuals in a family at the family rate. Legislation is now on the books that would allow this coordinated coverage but because the contract was negotiated without it, the board doesn't feel it should initiate the action until the contract runs out. At that time the matter will be reconsidered, depending on what the Legislature does in the meantime.

Police investigate store cash theft

VERNON — Vernon Police are investigating the report of the theft of money from a cash register at the Stop & Shop store at Vernon Circle. The alleged incident happened Monday night. Police said a cashier was making change for a customer when a black male allegedly reached over, took the money from the drawer and fled to the parking lot. A witness said the alleged thief got into a station wagon and the witness said he blocked him with his car. The black male then left the wagon and got into another car driven by another black male and the pair left. The station wagon was later found to be one stolen out of Hartford. After checking the registration of the car that the pair fled in it was found to be one that was reportedly stolen from the lot of the theaters in Talcottville. Police said an undetermined amount of money was taken from the store. No weapons were displayed. Police said the car is which the two men fled was later found in Hartford. Later Monday night another vehicle was located at Tri-City Plaza and was also found to be stolen out of Hartford. Police said it's not known if that vehicle was linked to the Stop & Shop incident. The holdup man was described as being about six feet tall, wearing blue jeans, a jacket and having a corn braided hair style with pigtails.

Sportsmanship award to East

First two recipients now gone

Two years ago the first annual Sportsmanship Award, given by the Manchester Chapter of Approved Baseball Umpires, in the name of this writer, was won by Coventry High and Coach Dick Page. The latter has since relinquished his duties. Last year, Cheney Tech Coach Aaron Silvia stepped up to receive the award. He announced his retirement at the end of the past season. Last night at Willie's, Jim Penders, who guided East Catholic High to the Hartford County Conference championship, was the recipient. The former UConn athlete said he has no immediate plans to follow Page and Silvia in retirement from coaching. "This is icing on the cake," Penders said in accepting the award for his school. "Hopefully, this is what high school baseball is all about. It's an honor to receive this. "I respect umpires and I tell my players, if anyone has a beef, I'll do it. "I've been fortunate over the years to have good athletes at East Catholic. This has helped me, as well as the whole program," he added. This writer, too, was most pleased with the honor by the men in blue to the East. The award was instituted by the board in recognition of 30 years served, of which I am most appreciative.

Notes off the cuff

Nancy Narkon, playing out of the Manchester Country Club, carded a 6 over par 60-41-81 score to tie for fourth place in the Lancers Golf Tournament yesterday. Wendy Ehrlich of Ellington Ridge and Judy Stankis of Blackledge, better known as a top tennis player, fashioned 47 and 68 first round scores. Four Connecticut residents were picked in the NBA draft yesterday. Mike Gminski of Duke by New Jersey, Wes Matthews of Brattleboro, Wes Bullets, Rick Boucher of Leydard by Portland and Rick Mahorn of Hartford by Washington.

Whalers deny trade reports

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Hartford Whalers have denied reports they want to trade their first-round National Hockey League draft choice to Philadelphia for a goaltender and center. "It's no secret that I'm in the market for a goaltender who can play for us. But I'm not giving up a first-round draft pick or any draft pick for that matter," Whalers Director of Hockey Operations Jack Kelley said Tuesday. Kelley denied a Hartford Courant report that "rumors were circulating widely" in Montreal that Hartford would give up its first-round draft pick for Flyers center Rick MacLeish and goalie Rick St. Croix. MacLeish, a 19-year-old NHL veteran, was the Flyers' leading scorer last season. St. Croix was a first-team all-star pick last season and had the best goals-against average in the AHL. Kelley was in Montreal for NHL meetings where hockey legend Gordie Howe presented the NHL scoring championship trophy to Marcel Dionne of Los Angeles. During the presentation, Howe also was praised by NHL President John Zeigler who said, "If there is an all-star in every sport, Gordie is our all star."

Hall of Famers

MONTREAL (UPI) — Two former National Hockey League goalies — Harry Lumley and Lorne "Gump" Worsley — and hockey icon Lynn Patrick were named Tuesday to the Hockey Hall of Fame. The three, along with Jack Butterfield of Springfield, Mass., whose election as a builder candidate was announced in April, will be inducted formally Sept. 8 in ceremonies in Toronto.

Perry happy

BOSTON (UPI) — Multitalented Ronnie Perry of Holy Cross says he is happy to be drafted by the Boston Celtics, but he hasn't made up his mind whether to play professional basketball or baseball. "I feel happy. I just found out," said Perry Tuesday in a telephone interview from the Worcester school shortly after he was taken by the Celtics in the third round of the NBA draft.

Henderson signs

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Celtics have signed guard Gerald Henderson to a four-year contract. Henderson joined the team as a rookie free agent last season and saw action as a substitute in the backcourt. He appeared in 76 games, averaging 14 minutes a contest and 6.2 points. His season high was 17 points.

Matt Moriarty named to Sports Hall of Fame

By EARL YOST Sports Editor

Matt Moriarty

Hundreds of honors have been showered on Matt Moriarty Sr., for his interest in making the town a better place to live. For nearly half a century, athletic teams have campaigned under the banner of Moriarty Brothers. No one man in the long history of sports in Manchester has contributed so much financial support than Moriarty. Today, Moriarty was announced as the sixth man to be named to the Manchester Sports Hall of Fame. Previous selectees were Joe McCuskey, the late Jerry Fay, the late Ty Holland, Moe Morhardt and Tony Lupien. Three more individuals will comprise the nine who will officially be inducted at the Hall of Fame dinner September 19 at the Army & Navy Club. Over the years, Moriarty's sponsored teams in baseball, basketball, football, volleyball, bowling and softball on an adult level and hundreds of youth baseball and basketball squads. "Seeing people enjoy themselves has been a big satisfaction to me. I have always enjoyed helping young people. I like people and I like to see them having a good time," he once said. Moriarty, head of one of New England's leading auto dealerships, is one of the most successful and influential men in this City of Village Charm. But he can remember the days of patched pants and peanut butter and jelly sandwiches. With his late brother, Maurice, the brothers cleared scrub brush from the northeast corner of Center and Broad Streets, erected a gasoline pump and were in business in 1933. Shortly after the service station opened, Fran Mahony approached the brothers and sought sponsorship for a basketball team. The green light was given and that was the start of teams bearing Moriarty's name on the sports scene in 1934. "I have never been interested in trophies. They defeat the purpose of our sponsoring them. We have always wanted the boys on our teams to have fun and be near the top. Winning trophies has never been a factor with me," Moriarty often said. For his interest in adult baseball, Moriarty was honored in 1975 when the baseball diamond at Mt. Nebo was named Moriarty Field. Thanks to Moriarty, adult baseball is still alive. His entry in the Hartford Twilight League, now in its 18th season, has been a perennial regular season and/or playoff champion, the most successful entry in league history. American Legion baseball in Manchester is thriving thanks to Moriarty who stepped in 25 years ago and offered financial assistance when the program was doomed due to lack of funds. Moriarty-sponsored teams always were outfitted in the best equipment available. While he wasn't an outstanding athlete, Moriarty's background included sandlot baseball and football and boxing. In fact, in the latter sport, he helped earn his way through college with his fists. "I won several gold watches and cashed them in when I got hungry," he recalled of his days at Pratt Institute from where he graduated with a degree in engineering. A native of Manchester, Moriarty had his early schooling at Buncie and Bradford Schools, attended Manchester High for two years and then at 16 went to work at Cheney Brothers to help both ends meet at home. He was able to attend night school with his fists. "I have never been interested in trophies. They defeat the purpose of our sponsoring them. We have always wanted the boys on our teams to have fun and be near the top. Winning trophies has never been a factor with me," Moriarty often said. For his interest in adult baseball, Moriarty was honored in 1975 when the baseball diamond at Mt. Nebo was named Moriarty Field. Thanks to Moriarty, adult baseball

Bolton seeking soccer coaches

Boys' and girls' varsity soccer coaching positions are vacant for the 1980-81 scholastic season at Bolton High. It has been announced by Mike Landolph, director of athletics. Candidates should have played high school or college soccer and previous coaching experience is desirable but not necessary. Compensation for each post is $255 to $322 depending on experience. Time involved is from August to November. Resumes and letters of reference should be forwarded to Mike Landolph, director of athletics, Bolton High School, 72 Brandt Street, Bolton, Conn., 06040. Closing date for applications is June 18.

Rockies name MacMillan

DENVER (UPI) — Billy MacMillan, an assistant with the Stanley Cup champion New York Islanders, has been hired to replace hometown favorite Don Cherry as head coach of the Colorado Rockies. Ray Miron, Rockies general manager, said MacMillan was offered the contract last weekend and he accepted the job Tuesday during National Hockey League meetings in Montreal. Miron made the announcement at a news conference. Cherry, who was fired from Boston last year, was hired May 20 after Colorado finished with the worst record in the NHL. MacMillan, 37, was assistant to Islanders coach Al Arbour during the 1979 season.

Unger traded

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Los Angeles Kings announced Tuesday they had acquired forward Gary Unger from the Calgary Flames in exchange for forward Bert Wilson and defenseman Randy Holt.

Patek on homer spree

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — If Fred Patek was paid $10 for each home run he's hit in the past two years, he'd have won another $5 to fill his car's tank with gasoline. Patek, generously listed as 5-foot-6 and weighing just 145 pounds, doesn't earn his keep hitting home runs. "I hit one last year and this was it for this season," the California shortstop said. "You won't have to worry about me hitting another one this year." Rod Carew singled home the winning run with two out in the eighth after Patek had tied the game with a two-run homer earlier in the inning Tuesday night to give the Angels a 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees, snapping California's losing skid at six games. After reliever Rudy May, 32, had pitched five scoreless innings, the Angels got to their former teammate with one out in the eighth when rookie Bobby Clark led off with a single. Patek followed with his first home run of the year over the 370-foot mark in left field. "I wasn't going for the homer," Patek said with a grin. "I was just trying to advance the runner. I knew I hit hard but I thought he (left fielder Lou Piniella) caught it. My first thought was, 'Oh, Lou caught it.'" Following the home run, Tom Donohue singled and Rick Miller laid down a perfect bunt for a hit. Rich

Patek on homer spree

Gossage came on to strike out Carney Lansford, but Carew rifled his third hit of the game, a single to left, to bring in Donohue with the winning run. Mark Clear pitched the final two innings to record his fourth win against four losses. The Angels had blown a 2-1 lead when New York scored twice in the seventh. Willie Randolph's double set up one run and he scored the second on Bob Watson's sacrifice fly. Frank Tanana started for California and gave up nine hits in seven innings, his second-longest outing of the season and the first time in several weeks he was around after the third inning. Tanana said his performance might have increased his market value. "It was nice for me to win and nice for me to go more than one inning," the southpaw said. "Possibly I was being showcased. Only time will tell. We've got 12 pitchers with the acquisition of (Andy) Hassler. It remains to be seen what will happen. The way things have gone this year, I still would be surprised if I was gone before the (inter-league trading) deadline (June 15). "Like I've said all year, I've got nothing to prove to anyone from a personal standpoint. It's been somewhat of an embarrassing year for me. We played well but we got beat."

Whalers deny trade reports

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Hartford Whalers have denied reports they want to trade their first-round National Hockey League draft choice to Philadelphia for a goaltender and center. "It's no secret that I'm in the market for a goaltender who can play for us. His season high was 17 points.

Lynn's HR decides

ATTLE (UPI) — Fred Lynn could joke about the short 358-foot power alleys in the Kingdom, but Rob Dressler couldn't. "I thought maybe the air conditioning was going to be a problem," Lynn said Tuesday night after his 365-foot home run leading off the 11th inning broke a 4-4 tie and gave the Boston Red Sox a 5-4 victory over the Seattle Mariners. Lynn acknowledged that his high fly would have been caught for an out in any other park in the American League, but not in the compact Kingdom. Dressler, the losing pitcher who saw his record drop 0-4, tried to hide the pain. With the count 3-2, Dressler twice nearly got Lynn on strikes. But each time Lynn ticked the ball for a foul to stay alive. "You've got to give him credit," Boston manager Tom Yount said. "He fought off two good pitches. Then he hit a fast ball up and away. I didn't want to give him a pitch he could pull. In this park, you have to adapt. I guess he adapted better than I did." Lynn's home run made a winner of Skip Lockwood, who pitched 3 1/3 innings of hitless relief to run his record to 3-1.

Hartford in conference

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI) — Seven southern New England colleges have joined to form a new athletic conference called the Northeast-7. The new conference will include American International, Assumption, Bentley, Bryant, Springfield and Stonehill colleges and the University of Hartford. The seven schools will compete initially in only soccer and basketball, but additional sports may be added, according to league organizers. The conference has already been recognized by the NCAA and will apply for automatic qualifying status to NCAA tournaments after a two-year probationary status. The new conference commissioner is Al Shields, athletic director at Bentley. "The formation of the Big East conference and the Eastern Athletic Association have sparked interest in Division I athletics, and we are confident that the Northeast-7 will do the same for Division II," he said Tuesday.

Kiro, MacDonald All-State choices

Two local athletes have been selected to first All-State teams in baseball and softball instituted by the Connecticut High School Coaches Association. East Catholic High shortstop Pete Kiro has been tabbed to the Class LL All-State baseball team while Manchester High catcher Marcy MacDonald has been selected to the Class LL All-State girls' softball squad. The entire rosters will be presented formally Monday at Southington High. Kiro led the Eagles in batting this season with a .364 average (32 for 88) and drove in 17 runs. The senior,

Completes realty course

MANCHESTER—Michelle M. Miranda, manager of ERA D.F. Reale Inc., Realtors, 175 Main St., has completed a three-week long course of intensive real estate studies in the Graduate Realtors Institute sponsored by the Connecticut Association of Realtors.

Ms. Miranda participated in the third course of the 90 hour program which leads to the nationally recognized "Graduate Realtors Institute" designation. The course is designed for Realtors and Realtor-Associates who have already mastered the fundamentals of the real estate business by providing comprehensive professional training in a broad range of subjects; construction, appraising, advertising, marketing, investment property analysis and equal opportunity in housing, to mention several.

The Connecticut Association of Realtors awards the GRI designation under the authority of the education committee of the National Association of Realtors.

Jewelry store manager

MANCHESTER—Patricia Kelly of 5 Dorothy Drive, Middletown, has been appointed general manager of Michaels Jewelers in Manchester.

Ms. Kelly joined the Michaels organization as a bridal consultant in 1974 in the Hartford store and was later promoted to the position of sales manager.

She is currently enrolled in professional studies sponsored by the Gemological Institute of America.

A native of Middletown, Ms. Kelly graduated from Woodrow Wilson High School in Middletown in 1969.

Founded in 1900 by the late Irving Michaels Sr., Michaels Jewelers has a network of 13 retail stores and is the largest independently-owned jewelry business in Connecticut.

Assistant vice president

HARTFORD—Judith S. Kallet, assistant treasurer in the Computer Planning and Programming Department of the Connecticut Bank and Trust Co., has been elected an assistant vice president.

Mrs. Kallet joined CBT in 1972 as a programmer and became a senior programmer in 1975. She assumed her present position in 1977 and, as a group leader in Management Information Systems, is responsible for computer planning and programming for the areas of International, Portfolio, Controllers, Bookkeeping, Correspondent Bank Services and Marketing.

A graduate of Brooklyn College in New York, Mrs. Kallet earned a B.A. degree in mathematics and attended the University of Connecticut. She and her family live in Manchester.

CBT assistant treasurer

HARTFORD—Roy R. Sanden has been elected assistant treasurer of the Connecticut Bank and Trust Co. Consumer Credit Department.

Mr. Sanden joined CBT as a Consumer Credit Assistant in 1972 and has held various managerial positions since 1976. He recently assumed the position of Southern Area Collections manager and is responsible for the three Southern Collection Zones.

Sanden attended Manchester Community College in the business administration program and has taken courses at the American Institute of Banking. He is a member of the Masonic Lodge 146. He and his family live in Manchester.

Promoted at D.C. bank

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Robert Sweet, formerly of Manchester, has been named vice-president in charge of international trust accounts at the National Bank of Washington.

Sweet, who left Manchester 20 years ago, lived on Parker Street. He and his wife, Bonita, live in Chevy Chase, Md., but he has traveled extensively in Singapore, France, Caracas, and Chile.

Home heat to cost more if court rejects oil tax

HARTFORD (UPI)—Connecticut homeowners might be paying an estimated $90 more per year for their heating oil if a federal court agrees a rider in the state's new 2 percent tax on oil company profits is illegal.

Five major oil companies have filed suit in U.S. District Court challenging the constitutionality of a provision in the tax—the only one of its kind in the country—which prohibits passing the cost through to consumers.

"It's going to be a tough case," Rep. Irving Stoberg, D-New Haven, co-chairman of the Legislature's Finance, Revenue and Bonding Committee, said Tuesday. "I think that (pass through ban) is a vulnerable part of it."

Stoberg, who opposed the tax, said if the entire cost must be borne by Connecticut consumers, heating oil prices for the average homeowner would increase by about $90 each year—or four-to-eight cents per gallon of oil.

The rider directs oil companies to spread the cost of the tax on their gross profits, which is expected to generate $60 million in state revenue, over to all customers' bills.

Promoted to manager

HARTFORD—Charles Everett of Manchester was promoted to manager, Pension Technical Department, at Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co. He is responsible for the accounting and administration of specialized products for individual pension funds.

Everett joined Connecticut Mutual Life in 1979 as an Accounting Technician.

A 1973 graduate of Elmira College, Everett has a B.S. in Business. In addition, he has completed three LOMA Courses.

New assistant secretary

HARTFORD—Anthony J. Retartha of Manchester, has been elected an assistant secretary in the claim department at the Hartford Insurance Group.

Retartha is responsible for planning and operations of claim teleprocessing, claim processing field support and is manager of the Hartford's field office claim system project.

He joined the Hartford in 1963 as a claim representative in the company's Bridgeport office and advanced to claim supervisor in 1965. He moved to the home office in Hartford in 1967 as a supervisor in claim headquarters.

In 1973 he was promoted to division supervisor and, in 1975, division manager of corporate claim processing systems.

Retartha is a 1969 graduate of the University of Connecticut.

'Discounter of the Year'

NORWALK—Carl Bennett, founder and chairman of Caldor Inc., a major discount department store chain, has been named "Discounter of the Year" by a nationwide poll of top retail executives.

The industry poll was conducted by Discount Store News, a leading retail trade publication, of the presidents of the 100 leading retail chains in the United States. The newspaper will sponsor a banquet honoring Bennett on Aug. 10 in Chicago.

Douglas W. Stanton, editor of Discount Store News, said Bennett was elected as the executive who contributed the most in 1979 to the discount industry. "His selection clearly indicates the respect and admiration of his peers," Stanton said. "Caldor's unparalleled success and its leadership in the discount store industry, has made the company and Carl Bennett models after which other chains and executives fashion themselves."

FARMINGTON—Robert G. Johnston has been named H & R Block's district manager for the Hartford area.

As district manager, Johnston will supervise the Hartford and Manchester tax preparation services of the nation's largest income tax preparation firm, which has more than 8,500 offices located in the United States, Canada, and 11 overseas countries and U.S. possessions.

Johnston said, "H & R Block has a responsibility to the public to offer thorough, accurate and courteous tax preparation service. We intend to do that here."

Johnston resides in Elizabeth, N.J. but plans to relocate in the Hartford area.

Beautiful, Bountiful Brunch

Whether it be a bridal breakfast, brunch for the bunch, welcome home frolic or graduation party, entertaining at home is one of the most rewarding ways to enjoy friendship. Try an elegant indoor brunch using grandma's lace tablecloth, or an outdoor buffet with easy informally and spectacular food. We've done the basic planning for you with these effortless, no-fall recipes made with convenience foods which cut down on kitchen capers and leave the host or hostess more time for hospitality.

Combine ease with elegance...

Turkey ham provides rich taste with less fat and fewer calories. For a flavor treat combine cured, fully cooked Turkey Ham with California Mustard Sauce. A sprightly mustard flavor and colorful bits of fruit cocktail offer a sweet-sour combination that complements the ham and adds color and interest to the menu.

Vary a favorite French quiche by adding Beafoggetti canned spaghetti rings in a rich tomatoey sauce with plenty of dry meatballs. The result is a ringy colored quiche with plenty of substance.

SPINACH BUFFET QUICHE

French favorite unusually good with a canned pasta

1/2 lb. bacon	2 cups milk
1/2 cup chopped onions	2 cutings
4 slices Swiss cheese, cut in 1" slices	4 tablespoons chopped pimento
1 (10 oz.) package pie crust mix	1 (10 oz.) package frozen chopped spinach, cooked, drained
6 eggs
2 cans (15 oz.) Chef Boy-ardee Beafoggetti

Fry bacon slices; drain on absorbent toweling; crumble. Remove all fat except one tablespoon. Sauté onions in bacon fat. Sprinkle bacon crumbles, onions, and cheese slices on bottom of pie shell. Beat eggs until light and lemony. Remove about 12 meat balls from Beafoggetti for topping. Stir in remaining Beafoggetti, milk and dash of nutmeg. Mix and roll out pie shell according to package directions to about 16" diameter. Arrange in 12" pie or quiche pan. Pour Beafoggetti mixture into pie shell. Garnish with pimento and meat balls. Bake in preheated 425° F. oven for 15 minutes. Reduce to 350° F. and continue baking for 30 minutes longer or until knife inserted in pie comes out clean. Arrange cooked, drained spinach around edge, garnish with meat balls. Allow to set for 5 minutes before cutting.

Serves 8 to 10.

TURKEY HAM WITH CALIFORNIA MUSTARD SAUCE

Turkey ham is fully cooked and excellent served either hot or cold. To heat, remove wrapper and place turkey ham in shallow pan. Cover with foil tent and heat in 325° F. oven until meat thermometer registers 140° F., about 35-45 minutes.

Slice and serve hot with California Mustard Sauce.

CALIFORNIA MUSTARD SAUCE

1 can (17 oz.) California Fruit Cocktail	1/2 cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon corn starch	1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 cup Golden's Mustard®	2 tablespoons sherry (optional)

Drain fruit; save fruit syrup. Combine fruit syrup and corn starch; stir well so that mixture is smooth. Add other ingredients; simmer for about 7 minutes, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove from heat; add drained fruit cocktail. Makes approximately 1-1/2 cups.

Use over turkey or turkey ham. Can be stored in refrigerator.

DELI TURKEY ROLL-UPS

Sliced turkey ham, turkey salami, turkey bologna, turkey pastrami, oven-roasted or smoked breast of turkey.

Spoon about 1 1/2 tablespoons of Cream Cheese or Zippy Avocado Filling in center of each deli turkey slice; roll up and secure with toothpick, if necessary. Chill until ready to serve.

CREAM CHEESE FILLING

1 (8 ounce) package cream cheese 1 tablespoon chopped chives or parsley (optional)

1 (2 ounce) package Dash cayenne pepper

Mash cream cheese with fork until soft. Add remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly.

ZIPPY AVOCADO FILLING

2 ripe avocados 1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce

1 tablespoon lemon or lime juice Dash seasoned salt

Peel avocados and mash with fork. Add remaining ingredients and mix well.

TEMPTATION TORTE

1 can (29 ounce) cling peach slices	3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 package (6 ounce) raspberry gelatin	3 tablespoons chopped crystallized ginger
1/4 cup sugar	1 1/2 cups whipping cream
	10 large lady fingers

Drain peaches, saving syrup. In a saucepan heat 1 cup syrup to boiling; remove from heat and dissolve gelatin and sugar in the hot liquid. Stir in the remaining syrup, lemon juice and ginger. Cool until mixture mounds on a spoon. Whip cream; fold in gelatin and all except 7 peach slices. Split lady fingers, cutting one rounded end off each. Butter the bottom only of a 9-inch spring-form pan and cover with cut-off ends. Line sides with lady fingers (rounded ends up). Carefully pour filling into pan. Garnish top with reserved peach slices. Chill until firm.

Makes 8 to 10 servings.

SPRING GARDEN SPAGHETTI

1 bunch fresh broccoli

2 small zucchini, cut in 1" lengths

1 1/2 cups green beans, cut in 1" lengths

1/2 cup frozen peas

3/4 cup fresh or frozen pea pods (optional)

3 or 4 asparagus spears (optional)

1/4 cup finely chopped parsley

2 cups thinly sliced mushrooms

1/3 cup pine nuts (optional)

1 tablespoon cooking oil

2 packages (19.5 oz. each) Chef Boy-ardee® Complete Spaghetti Dinner with Meat Sauce

1/4 cup butter or margarine

1 packet Golden Seasoning and Broth Mix

3/4 cup heavy cream

Clean broccoli and break into bite-sized pieces. Cook or steam broccoli, zucchini and beans in boiling water until just tender (about 5 minutes). Drain, cool immediately under cold water. Cook peas, pea pods and asparagus about 1 minute; drain. Sauté mushrooms and pine nuts in cooking oil, drain.

Cook spaghetti from package according to package directions; drain. Use spaghetti pot to melt butter. Reduce heat, add seasoning and broth mix, heavy cream and grated cheese from package; stir until sauce thickens. Add vegetables and parsley and toss; add drained spaghetti and toss. Heat canned sauce from package; serve over vegetable-spaghetti mixture.

Serves 8 to 10.

...or enjoy outdoor informality!

Add color and sparkle to your favorite fruit juice with a gala ring of frozen fruit. Bite size pieces of fruit cocktail floating in the punch give texture to the mixture. Just turn a can of fruit cocktail into a ring mold and freeze overnight. Turn out into the punch bowl just before serving.

The whole new world of turkey products will be a delightful surprise for good eating and carefree entertaining. With the rich flavor of turkey pastrami, turkey bologna and oven-roasted turkey breasts you are providing high protein, low fat and low calorie meat products for family and friends.

Here's a great looking, great tasting spaghetti dish made with plenty of fresh vegetables and an easy to use package spaghetti dinner from Chef Boy-ardee. The combination is something new in the spaghetti field—taste tempting and irresistible.

For a glamorous dessert designed to please hostess and guests, serve colorful Temptation Torte. Easily prepared and held in the refrigerator it offers the golden color of canned cling peaches in happy combination with a creamy fruit gelatin mixture. Truly a finale fit for the most festive occasion.

The classical dinner - a gastronomic treat

By BETTY RYDER
Food Editor

When you ask "what's cooking?" at the Rhode Island Inn in Warwick, R.I., be prepared for a variety of answers. The Inn is operated by the Johnson & Wales College in Providence and is used as a teaching facility for students majoring in Hospitality Management, Food Service Management, Hotel & Restaurant Management and Culinary Arts.

Glen Thomas of Manchester, a first-year culinary student at Johnson & Wales College, at left, displays entries in the recent Boston Food Show, in which the college took first place in the Industrial Schools Division. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Thomas Jr., of 8 Gerard St. At center, one of the entries in the show made of entirely edible ingredients. Chef Moshe Nograd, at right, affixes shrimp to a huge "shrimp tree" at the reception prior to the classical dinner at the Rhode Island Inn. (Herald photos by Costello)

Students get "hands on experience" as they participate in training at the front desk, reception area, guest bedrooms, public dining room, cocktail lounge, banquet and function rooms, etc.

During a recent visit to the facility, we had the opportunity to tour Johnson & Wales Culinary Division, chat with some very enthusiastic students, and watch the chefs prepare mouth-watering entrees.

Chef Socrates Z. Inouo, a native of Manila, the Philippines, is currently the Director of Operations of the Culinary Division. He received his early training in culinary arts while serving as an apprentice in the family catering business under the direction of his father and grandfather. From 1936 to 1938, he trained in many other area restaurants and also earned an Associate in Arts degree from Far Eastern University in Manila.

With an extensive career in food service, Inouo has recently been named to the 1980 L.J. Minor Corporation International Culinary Olympic Team, and will compete against chefs from all over the world at the Olympic competition in Frankfurt, Germany, in October.

Chef Moshe Nograd, director of the Culinary and Food Service Management Practical Training Programs at the Inn, was born in Hungary. He spent his early years in the Auschwitz concentration camp until he was freed by American troops in April 1948. Thoughts of food while near starvation and the desire never to be hungry again led him to cooking when offered a choice of professions.

During the media tour, which drew representatives from all over New England, we dined on a modern classical dinner, which would be difficult to surpass. In a formal dining room, resplendent with white linen, sparkling crystal and shining silverware, we feasted wisely, as well as gastronomically, on food skillfully prepared and presented.

At a cocktail reception preceding dinner, we munched on such tasty morsels as tiny pasty cups filled with shrimp, shrimp which we picked from a tall "shrimp tree" then dipped in a choice of two tasty sauces, stuffed mushroom caps and a shrimp pate.

Escorted to our tables by two handsome waiters, students at J&W, we cleaned our palate by sipping a Dry Sac, before continuing on to the first course, a beef consommé.

A Chef Inouo supplied the recipe for our second course, a Malay fish course of baked stuffed blue crab with relish of ripe papaya. Nograd said it took three crabs to make each crab serving. It was accompanied by a light white wine.

Next we were served quail stuffed with chicken liver sautéed with apples and walnuts topped with a circle of evenly browned mashed potatoes and accompanied by spears of asparagus. It was served with a pate de foie gras and truffles accompanied by a glass of Meot et Chandon brut imperial.

Chef Nograd, who discussed the courses as they were served, said the truffles are mushroom-like fungus which grow underground in certain regions of France and are detected by pigs and specially trained ducks which sniff them out. Considered a great delicacy, truffles are not now commonly used in restaurants, as they cost approximately $100 a pound.

Commenting on the delicious sherbet which followed, Chef Nograd said it was intended to "push down" the lighter part of the meal we had just consumed, thereby paving the way for the heavier part to come. Most of us just sighed at the prospect of eating more, but eat we did, not willing to pass up a morsel of this great feast.

The sherbet was made with a delicate liqueur made from sabra, a cactus flower which grows in Israel. Incidentally, in Israel, one may purchase "Sabra" liqueur as we did during a recent visit. A person born in the State of Israel is called a "sabra," (a native), and since that nation recently celebrated its 30th year, sabras are young people.

The entree was a boneless leg of lamb, trimmed of fat and marinated, and then roasted. It was served with glazed carrots, cauliflower florets, and an artichoke filled with a puree of beans and peas. With it, we sipped Reisinger white.

The dish before the dessert was a salad composed of finely chopped romaine, orange slices and avocado, with a Dijon mustard based sauce. With it, we sipped Reisinger white.

Then, as many of us silently vowed we wouldn't eat another mouthful, the dessert arrived and all our calorie-conscious intentions were lost.

It consisted of a crepe filled with a heavy cream, chopped nougat and walnuts, topped with a light chocolate sauce. Still to come was the demitasse and liqueurs.

A brief address by Chef Inouo followed in which he explained the purpose, goals and dedication of Johnson & Wales staff, and the endless prospects for students enrolled in the Culinary Division.

As we headed for our attractive accommodations at the Inn, for a fleeting moment we toyed with the idea of jogging a mile or two, but that thought soon passed (thank heavens) and we tucked ourselves in comfortably for the evening trying to recall each delectable course as we dozed off.

Boarding house meals with a difference

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — To Attorney General Rufus Edmiston, it's still called "dinner," the place to go at midday is an unpretentious two-story house just a half-block behind the Governor's Mansion in Raleigh. Edmiston and dozens of other workers in the Raleigh-area are frequent guests at Amie Johnson's boarding house, where a traditional buffet-style home-cooked meal is offered to the public three times a week. "As far as I'm concerned, it will always be dinner, even though everybody today calls it lunch," Edmiston said. "My mother used to run a boarding house when I was growing up." During a recent visit, Edmiston arrived with a handful of flowers picked from his home garden for Mrs. Johnson. He entered the dining room, hung his jacket on the door and was greeted with a warm embrace. Inside the dining room, the wooden table was covered with dishes—three varieties of meat, three types of beans, a steaming bowl of steamed cabbage, creamed corn, sliced tomatoes and the specialty of the house, potato cakes.

Mrs. Johnson sits in an easy chair in one corner, watching as diners flow in, grab a plate and walk around the table filling them. When they finish eating, they take their plates into the tiny kitchen and pay her the $3 fee. "I don't know how they find out," she said. "I guess one (person) tells another, I don't have to advertise." Mrs. Johnson, 78, began operating a boarding house in 1940 to support her three children. She has been at her present location since 1946. "I got laid off, so I just started, renting one bed at a time," she said. Until recently, she did most of the cooking chores herself, but a leg injury kept her off her feet and an assistant now does most of the cooking under Mrs. Johnson's supervision. Although Mrs. Johnson has cut back public dining to from five to three days a week, she still provides three meals a day for the 11 men who rent rooms from her. "We start every morning. She (assistant Denis Scott) goes to the grocery store around 9 o'clock and from then to noon, you go as hard as you can go," Mrs. Johnson said.

Summertime tips

- From the American Medical Association: Don't overdo anything, especially recreational sports. Warm up. Work up to your peak gradually. Never push beyond exhaustion. Be liberal with rest breaks. Allergic to insect stings? Get desensitizing shots. If you've never had the doctor pronto, this could be an early-warning sign you're allergic in a big way. Watch for welts. Watch for swelling. Watch for super itching. Be alert for tingling lips and nose. When these things happen, get help at once. You could be swelling on the inside. And that could be fatal. Fast. On super hot days get out of heat zones. Do the yard work or fun things outdoors early in the morning or in late afternoon when sun's not so hot. When too hot, move to shade and rest. Drink plenty of liquids to replace what is lost in sweat. Hot liquid, when charcoal bits settle on the patio or terrace. Barefoot chefs also get cut feet when boiling break. Chefs should wear shoes. Never use an electric mower on wet or damp grass. Only refuel when engine is cool. Gasoline splashed on red-hot metal can cause a fire. Conserve fingers. Make sure power is off before tinkering with a cutting blade that's blotted. Don't let the kids play with wood or metal buried by the swirling blade. Water safety. Use buddy system. One study shows around 40 percent of drowning victims were swimming solo. Statistics tell you where to be on special guard. To wit: 34 percent of fatalities occur among swimmers in open water—lake, river, pond, ocean; 24 percent are due to falls from docks, bridges, shore, riverbanks; about 14 percent involve recreational boating; about eight percent are swimming pool related—about half in backyard pools. Stay alive when you're all wet. Don't hook up a plug-in television or radio on a pool deck where it can get wet. If you, also wet, want to use it under those circumstances, first make sure your affairs are in order. You can get killed—electrocuted. Safety postscript: Wet swimming solo. Wearing light colored clothing when running at low-visibility times: dawn, dusk. Watch where you're going. Stay out of the way of cars, trucks.

Chefs shouldn't drink too much. Drunk chefs don't know what they're doing and cause accidents. If it rains on your cookout, don't seal a blazing grill into garage unless you are ready to deal with a garage fire or maybe a house fire. Barefoot chefs get burned feet when hot liquids spill, when charcoal bits settle on the patio or terrace. Barefoot chefs also get cut feet when boiling break. Chefs should wear shoes.

Why long delays in refund requests?

By MARTIN SLOANE
Where is my refund? Thousands of supermarket shoppers are asking that question. They have been waiting months for the cash refunds and free products that manufacturers have promised them. Now their patience is wearing thin. One reason for these delays is what a customer-relations director calls "the refund explosion." She told me that requests for her company's refunds have tripled in the last six months. Many companies seem to have underestimated the response to their offer.

Suprisingly, many manufacturers aren't aware of the long delays shoppers experience in receiving refunds. That's because most manufacturers use clearing houses to process their refunds. When I asked another customer-relations director how long it took the clearing house to send out refunds, she frankly admitted that she hadn't the slightest idea. If you have been waiting many months to receive a refund or a refund form that you requested, the root of the problem may lie in the way the manufacturer views these offers. Some companies that otherwise practice good customer relations permit long delays because they consider refunds to be "freebies."

Few shoppers think of refunds as freebies, however. The refund offer was probably one of their major reasons for purchasing the product in the first place. When you consider the time spent in assembling the required proofs of purchase plus the costs of envelopes, stamps and trips to the post office, no manufacturer should be surprised that shoppers become furious when they still haven't received their refunds after months of waiting. What's the answer? Good customer relations require that every refund form include the manufacturer's best estimate of how long it will take to fulfill the request. Most manufacturers now include the statement: "Please allow eight weeks to process your request."

If fulfillment is delayed more than two weeks beyond the stated period, the company should send out a notice indicating the cause of the delay and the new date when the shopper can expect to receive the refund. If you have been waiting 12 weeks or more for a refund, complain directly to the manufacturer's customer-relations department. (It is rare that a manufacturer finds out about a complaint sent to an outside clearing house.) I would also like to hear about your problem. Please send all details to me in care of this newspaper.

Many shoppers have had similar difficulties. I contacted the makers of Hawaiian Punch after receiving many letters from readers who had not received refund forms that they had requested. The company told me that unanticipated demand caused its refund forms to run out of forms for its Hawaiian Punch after it expired May 15. The company asks that shoppers be patient as it will soon send out the forms with an expiration date to all those who requested them.

Sweets to the sweet

"Come on over for dessert!" This hospitable invitation is being extended with greater frequency these days as the lavish dinner parties of years past on the shelf for the time being. A gracious way to entertain, the dessert invitation allows a hostess to put her most creative spin on the forward since she has only one course to concern her. When it comes to concoctions, it's hard to top Italy's dolci. Even the word dolci has a sweet taste on the lips.

This Savarin alla Saronno is a toothsome sweet to set before friends and family. It begins with a hot roll mix and goes on to become a fabulous dessert that's hard to resist. While the oven is still hot from the cake, it's saturated with Amaretto di Saronno, Italy's legendary liqueur. At serving time, the center is filled with whipped cream and strawberries. The result is mouthwatering and memorable.

If your dessert guests are partial to liqueur, they'll love the fabulous flavor combination of coffee, chocolate and Amaretto di Saronno in Harlequin Parfaits.

Savarin Alla Saronno
1 package (13-3/4 ounces) hot roll mix
1/2 cup lukewarm water
4 eggs
2 tablespoons sugar
Grated rind of 1 lemon
1/2 cup (1 stick) butter or margarine, softened

1 1/4 cups Amaretto di Saronno
1 cup (1/2 pint) heavy cream, whipped
1 pint strawberries, hulled and halved
1 navel orange, peeled and cut into thin slices
Remove yeast from hot roll mix and pour into a bowl. Stir in lukewarm water, until yeast is dissolved. Stir in eggs, sugar, lemon rind, butter, or margarine, and flour in mix. Beat until mixture is very smooth and thick. Pour batter into a greased 9-inch bundt pan. Spread batter evenly in pan. Cover and let stand in a warm place until batter has risen to within 1 inch of the top of the pan. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350° F.) for 30 to 35 minutes, or until richly browned. Unmold onto a large plate. Spoon Amaretto di Saronno over cake slowly, fill center with whipped cream and some of the strawberries. Garnish edge of cake with orange slices and remaining strawberries. Makes 9-12 servings.

Harlequin Parfaits
In 4-6 parfait glasses, alternate spoonfuls of coffee ice cream and chocolate ice cream. Pour 2 tablespoons of Amaretto di Saronno in each parfait glass. Sprinkle with toasted silvered almonds.

On super hot days get out of heat zones. Do the yard work or fun things outdoors early in the morning or in late afternoon when sun's not so hot. When too hot, move to shade and rest. Drink plenty of liquids to replace what is lost in sweat. Hot liquid, when charcoal bits settle on the patio or terrace. Barefoot chefs also get cut feet when boiling break. Chefs should wear shoes.

2. TIPS: About sun rays on skin: "Far and away the most effective, single sunscreen is 'aminobenzoic acid,'" says a report in "Scientist," an American Chemical Society journal. This is abbreviated PABA on many sunscreen product labels. People who applied PABA 45 minutes before sunbathing could take over twice the sunlight before burning. They could swim farther without the stuff washing off—and they could go longer between applications. Tanning occurred through the sunscreen.

"Other sunscreens that fared well in tests," said the report, "were salicylates like homomethyl salicylate or homosalate, for short. Also PABA esters (derivatives) such as glyceryl aminobenzoate. Mixtures of sunblocks and sunscreens have the potential for even better results." One mixture cited in the report gave 50 percent more protection than PABA alone.

Sunlight thickens skin and dries it out. Skin becomes coarse, leathery and wrinkled. The lower level of skin—the one you don't see—bakes and contracts, making upper level pucker. Sun-battered skin undergoes same changes associated with aging—except it happens much faster. The changes are permanent.

3. Powermower safety tips: —Long pants and heavy shoes protect legs and feet from lawn hills, mow parallel. Never push up from down.

Community cookbooks offer popular recipes

Here are two recipes from two popular community cookbooks:

Sopa de tortilla from Home Cooking, published by the Junior League of Wichita Falls, Texas. 1 hen (5-6 pounds)
12 corn tortillas
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
Grated American cheese
Silvered almonds
Boil hen until done, saving liquid. Bone hen and cut into medium-size chunks. Cut tortillas into 1-inch strips. Brown in oil and drain. Put cut up chicken in 3 quart casserole and pour "sopa" mixture over it, adding chicken broth to barely cover. Sprinkle with cheese and almonds. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes or until brown. Simmer 10 minutes. Yield: 8 servings.

Sopa:
1 onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, chopped
Tortilla strips
1 cup canned tomatoes, drained
1 teaspoon chili powder
Salt and pepper
1/4 teaspoon oregano
1 teaspoon cumin powder

1 cup chicken stock
Paprika
In same skillet used for browning tortilla strips, saute onion and garlic. Add tortilla strips and almonds. Ingredients:
Margarita Pie from Soups, published by the Junior League of Chicago. Recipe contributed by Mrs. J. Stephen Laing (Suzanne Reyburn).
CRUST:
3/4 cup pretzel crumbs
One-third cup butter
1/4 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup sliced carrots
1/4 cup chopped fresh or drained canned tomatoes
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup water
1 can (7 1/2 oz.) Chef Boy-Ar-dee® Beefaroni (macaroni with beef in tomato sauce)
1/2 cup chopped leftover chicken or shrimp
1/4 cup defrosted frozen okra or drained canned okra
2 tablespoons parsley
Dash hot pepper sauce
In 2 quart sauce pan saute onion, celery, carrots and tomatoes in butter. Add salt and water. Cover, simmer for 10 minutes. Add Beefaroni, cover and simmer for 10 minutes. Add chicken, okra, shrimp, parsley and pepper sauce; simmer for 10 minutes. One serving for two, or two servings for one.

A happy marriage

A casserole combining peaches, blueberries, macaroni and cheese may sound startling. But the proof of those ingredients' happy marrying is in the eating.

This is a quickie dish that you may decide to prepare for your golfing companions, bridge club or fellow den mothers.

Peach Casseroles
1/2 pound package shell macaroni
1/4 cup butter
2 tablespoons tomato paste
2 tablespoons red wine (or apple juice)
2 fresh California peaches, peeled and halved
1 cup blueberries, fresh or frozen
1/2 cup Swiss cheese, grated
Preheat oven to 350 degrees.
Bring large pot of salted water to boil. Add shell macaroni. Cook until just tender. Drain and rinse macaroni. Set aside.
Melt butter in small saucepan. Add tomato paste, then wine, stirring until well blended.
Toss sauce with macaroni. Spoon into 4 individual casseroles.

GUMBO MACARONI SOUP
1/4 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup sliced carrots
1/4 cup chopped fresh or drained canned tomatoes
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup water
1 can (7 1/2 oz.) Chef Boy-Ar-dee® Beefaroni (macaroni with beef in tomato sauce)
1/2 cup chopped leftover chicken or shrimp
1/4 cup defrosted frozen okra or drained canned okra
2 tablespoons parsley
Dash hot pepper sauce
In 2 quart sauce pan saute onion, celery, carrots and tomatoes in butter. Add salt and water. Cover, simmer for 10 minutes. Add Beefaroni, cover and simmer for 10 minutes. Add chicken, okra, shrimp, parsley and pepper sauce; simmer for 10 minutes. One serving for two, or two servings for one.

Wagon said inadequate

GLASTONBURY — The use of a station wagon to supplement the 14-passenger Dial-a-Ride van only would have been adequate on three days in April, according to statistics released by the Commission on Aging.

The commission presented the figures to the Town Council Tuesday night.

The commission had requested a new van to replace an old one that has just been taken off the road for safety reasons.

However, the council did not appropriate the funding for the van, but approved a $6,000 figure during the budget session to investigate the feasibility of a station wagon for the elderly program.

The commission is currently limited to the use of its 14-passenger van.

According to a memorandum from Rita Gagnon, the school transportation director, on any day at least three or four trips are taken with six to 10 passengers.

She said the extreme rear seat of a wagon would not be comfortable for an adult and would only be able to comfortably seat five passengers.

"Also, I do not feel that it would be possible to purchase a new station wagon for anything less than $7,000," Mrs. Gagnon said in the memo.

"Unless the commission wishes to curtail the services provided it is my opinion that the scheduling could not be improved," she added.

The commission requested $11,000 for a new van in the upcoming budget year, but the council only approved the $6,000.

Probe requested in death

HARTFORD (UPI) — A state agency is asking federal officials and the chief state attorney to investigate the death of a patient who allegedly received inadequate medical care at the Southbury Training School.

Stanley J. Kosloski Jr., assistant director of the Office of Protection and Advocacy for Handicapped and Developmentally Disabled Persons, said other patients at the facility for the retarded also may be getting inadequate care.

Kosloski wrote U.S. Attorney Richard Blumenthal and the federal Department of Health and Human Services Tuesday asking for formal investigations into the death of Lucille Hogan, 56, at the school Feb. 22.

He asked Blumenthal to determine if the woman's civil rights were violated and sent a similar letter to Chief State's Attorney Austin J. McGuigan asking for a determination of whether any criminal violations had occurred.

Ms. Hogan, a profoundly retarded patient in state care since she was 17, died after doctors reportedly refused to admit her to the school's clinic although she had difficulty breathing and a high fever for four days.

"The inadequate medical treatment Lucille Hogan apparently received appears to be a more common occurrence than originally believed," Hogan said in the letters.

His concern was echoed by Dr. Lawrence W. Osborn, acting director of the Bureau of Health Standards and Quality in the federal health agency, who asked the state Health Services Department to investigate the death.

Emergency phone hookup estimated to cost $25,000

GLASTONBURY — Town Manager Richard Borden said the total price tag for the emergency telephone system installed in the Town Office Building to replace the damaged one in the Board of Education building is about $25,000.

However, Borden said it has not been determined whether the town or Southern New England Telephone will pick up the cost of the installation. He said the Public Utilities Control Authority will have to decide which party would pay for the installation of the system.

According to Borden, the town did not own the switchboard system at the fire-damaged Board of Education Building. He said SNET owns it and probably has insurance to cover the loss.

Before the fire, the town had given the installation of a new phone setup high priority on its capital improvements financing plan. About $30,000 was projected by town administrators for the project.

However, Borden said the total cost of renovating the system would now be about $80,000. That cost could be reduced to about $60,000 because some of the work has already been done at the Town Office Building.

"We would need a brand new system to work with the replacements we have made since the fire," Borden said.

The town's telephone center will probably remain in the Town Office Building, Borden said.

"SNET may be able to salvage some of the lines over at the board building and some other equipment. We are going to leave the center here (the Town Office Building) because the switchboard used to be located here," Borden said.

Banks said incompetent to be tried in shooting

NEW LONDON (UPI) — An unemployed New Haven man is incompetent to stand trial on charges that he shot three persons aboard a crowded Amtrak train, killing one of them, a Superior Court judge has ruled.

Judge Daniel Spallone's finding Tuesday will result in the transfer of Frank W. Banks to Norwich State Hospital, a facility for the mentally ill, where he will be kept for up to 18 months, authorities said.

Banks, 30, was arrested on May 31 after allegedly shot a passenger and two Amtrak employees aboard the Merchant's Limited near New London.

The passenger, Diane Calise, 24, of Johnston, R.I., died later from a bullet wound to the brain.

Banks, who was being held on $175,000 bond at the Montville Community Correctional Center, was to be arraigned Tuesday.

The proceedings were delayed until he can understand the charges of murder, attempted murder and assault facing him.

His attorney, Public Defender Edward Lavallee, said initial psychiatric tests had shown his client "so mentally ill he is unable to assist in his own defense."

Hooking in the phones

S. Robert Pryby, (standing), Glastonbury Public Works director, looks on as Southern New England Telephone technicians Roger Pierce and Walter Conner test the newly installed switching equipment at the Town Office Building. Town and phone company staff members worked until 1:30 a.m. Monday following Sunday's Board of Education Building fire, which destroyed the town switchboard located there.

Swimmers aid MD fund

GLASTONBURY — The first annual Swim-A-Thon sponsored by the Glastonbury Camp Fire Girls raised more than $1,600 to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Respectively, a 10-speed bicycle, a gift certificate and a radio were awarded to the top three fundraisers.

Nicole Travers won first place honors, Carole Webster second and Kristen Sikes third. The Glastonbury Sport Shop and Towne Pharmacy donated the gifts.

During 1980, close to $300,000 has been appropriated for research at the University of Connecticut, Quinnipiac College and Yale University.

Additionally, MDA supports clinics at the Newington Children's Hospital in Newington, St. Vincent's Hospital in Bridgeport and St. Raphael Hospital in New Haven.

Graduation speakers

GLASTONBURY — Speakers for the graduation ceremonies on June 12 are the top three academically ranked students for the Class of 1980.

The students' names and titles of their speeches are as follows: Susan Reusswig — "One Essential Element," Matthew Jordan — "Remembrances and Speculations," and Kimbel Dahms — "Rainbows."

GHS honor society inducts 53 students

GLASTONBURY — The National Honor Society held its induction ceremonies at Glastonbury High School on May 20 and 53 students were admitted to the society.

After introductory remarks by GHS Principal Theodore Bartolotta, four students described the traits found in the students.

Hooks Johnston III discussed leadership, Steve Thomas scholarship, Doug Weiss service and Diane Gorski character.

Before the inductees were called to the stage, a brief statement was made on each student's accomplishments. New members were awarded pins and cards.

After all of the students had been honored, they were charged by Bartolotta to bring honor and credit to the society, the community and to the high school.

The following seniors were honored: Kristin Bean, Lu-An Conner, Sally Conner, Karen Hanley, Jane Prael, Robert Roser, Penny Roser, Laura Schmitt, Sandra Schoon, Lynn Stasiowski, Helen Swanson, Amy Szklas, Karen Anne Weatherwax and Walter Wolf.

Zoning Board of Appeals
Edward Colman, Secretary

Dated this 9th day of June, 1980.

Abby

By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You told NO LOVE-YOUS IN VEGAS that most guys are reluctant to say "I love you" because they aren't ready to make a commitment. Well, my man made a commitment (marriage) 24 years ago, and he's said "I love you" only twice. The first time was when he came home from an Christmas office party so drunk he could hardly stand up. (That's the only time I ever saw him drunk.) The next time was when he was coming out of the anesthetic after surgery.

For years I'd nag him to say "I love you," but he wasn't able to get the words out. Then I realized that although he wasn't a very demonstrative man, he showed his love by putting up with a temperamental wife and doing his best to raise seven kids. He was patient, faithful, kind and hardworking. He was loving, too, in his way, but he just wasn't a talker.

Lately he's been giving me more compliments and showing his feelings more. Maybe it's because I've quit nagging him. Anyway, if your correspondent has a boyfriend who treats her well and is faithful, and she knows he loves her, tell her that actions speak louder than words.

LOVED IN WILLOWOOD, ILL.

DEAR ABBY: You make a good point. Read on for a letter from a woman who's had plenty of "I love you's".

DEAR ABBY: Boy, have I got a message for "NO LOVE-YOUS IN VEGAS"! I was married for 14 years to a man who told me he loved me every time he turned around.

When I found a receipt in his coat pocket showing that he and his wife had stayed at a motel on the edge of town for three days, and I wasn't the Mrs. he told me he loved me. When I found cigarette butts with lipstick on them in the ashtray of our car - I don't smoke - he told me he loved me. When women would call him at home and were surprised to learn that he was married, he told me he loved me.

When he lost his wallet and some nice old lady found it back, and I found names, telephone numbers and pictures of pretty girls in it, he told me he loved me.

Well, maybe he did, but I couldn't care less because we aren't married anymore.

TALK IS CHEAP

DEAR ABBY: My mother received an invitation to her niece's wedding. She was unable to attend, so she returned the invitation with a note saying she was sorry she couldn't make it.

The niece (and her whole family) got very upset when they got the invitation back. After talking to my mother about it, she said that up there (New Jersey) it is customary to return the invitation if you can't attend. Is this true? It is either quite an issue, so please let me know.

NOT FROM JERSEY

DEAR ABBY: I've never heard of returning an invitation along with regrets. And if it's "customary" in New Jersey, it's a new wrinkle to me.

DEAR ABBY: What is the matter with women? They roll up their hair in big curls, then they snarl it and spray it with glue! Then they take half an hour to paint their faces, with make-up and eye shadow and lipstick and blush and for what? When their husbands call them out for a little kiss or squeeze, they say, "Please, Henry, you'll mess my hair!" or "Don't kiss me, you'll smear my make-up!"

I thought the whole idea behind looking pretty was to make themselves more huggable and kissable. So why do they get out the hair if they don't want to catch the mouse?

Bridge

Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Declarer deserves defeat

North did not share South's confidence in his dummy play. With 17 high-card points he did use Stayman and make one dummy slam try, but signed off at four hearts after South's three-ortrum bid.

That four-heart call inflated South's as a red eagle and led to disaster.

He checked to see that he would play a heart contract and bid the heart slam.

He was the spade lead and picked up trumps by three leads. Then he cashed the spades and noted that East had followed to three trumps and discarded a diamond on the third spade. This meant that East had been dealt eight trumps and had discarded a diamond on the third spade. This meant that East had been dealt eight trumps and had discarded a diamond on the third spade. This meant that East had been dealt eight trumps and had discarded a diamond on the third spade.

West look his queen and led back a third diamond.

Now South had to try to ruff his queen and led back a third diamond.

Again he went wrong and had checked the slam.

The play had been bad. All South needed to do was to play ace-king, small of either ruff or club. Whoever won there, he opened a 19-point notrump so as to make sure that if the hand played in notrump he would be manipulating the dummy.

Your Birthday

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Solutions to problems can be easily found today if you draw upon successful past experiences. Handle things now the same way you handled them in the past.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your marvelous talent for translating the outmoded into something more useful can be applied today. Get to work on projects or situations that need your special touch.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Because you're willing to cooperate today, others in turn are sure to take a few extra steps for you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your desire to do the best you can at whatever you undertake today will do to enhance your status. Administer will initiate your good intentions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your managerial and organizational abilities are very pronounced today. You can resolve complicated situations that befuddle others.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're a good star today, and a strong finisher. This will be especially true in situations where you're working for the benefit of others or for yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) Without being arrogant or pushy today, assume a leadership role when dealing with your peers. They need you to get the job done.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Competition motivates you to make your best efforts today. Don't be afraid of challenges or a little opposition, especially if it affects your career.
