Area may be immune to money woes

First of four stories
By KEVIN FOLEY
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The rest of the country may be facing a long, hard recessionary sleep, but three local bankers agree Manchester, and the Hartford vicinity in general, may be one area immune to the money woes beginning to show up elsewhere.

Those same bankers also agree local wage earners should exercise caution with their savings. William Hale, president of the Heritage Savings and Loan, Nathan Agostinelli, president of the Manchester State Bank and William Johnson, president of the Savings Bank of Manchester, each say savings are on the rise at their banks.

The sliding economic trends in the rest of the nation have not surfaced to a large extent in Manchester, they contend.

All three bankers credit the presence of a healthy Pratt and Whitney Aircraft in East Hartford and a solid insurance industry in Hartford as the key elements in the barrier to an otherwise difficult recession.

That recession made itself known nationally earlier this month when the unemployment figure hit 7.8 percent and a 21 percent drop in new housing starts was recorded in April, the worst showing in 17 years, according to Census Bureau figures.

The advice from the three bankers surveyed? Avoid risky investments and channel savings into "sure bet."

"The east of the river labor market has always run contrary to what the rest of the state and nation are experiencing," Hale remarked recently. "Our market seems to be much more constant. Pratt and Whitney and the Hartford-based insurance companies have something to do with it."

Agostinelli echoed Hale, saying the luxury of a firmly entrenched employment base is one reason he and other bankers have noticed the swing towards saving.

Johnson tempered his optimism by saying although deposits were up slightly, a recession which affects the two major industries would have a backlash affect in Manchester's economy. This in the face of United Technologies Chairman of the Board Harry Gray's pronouncement that UTC is all but "recession proof."

"I wouldn't say an increase in saving runs contrary to what happens during recessions," Johnson said. "People put more away because they want to have something there in case they lose their job. They want to keep the anchor to windward."

Bearing out the bankers' statements is Richard Ficks, a spokesman for the State Labor Department in West Hartford. Saying the department has always contended UTC is one of Connecticut's "great strengths," he noted that such divisions as Electric Boat in Groton and Pratt and Whitney have contracts "they won't be able to fill for ten years."

"And we have a number of other strong points," Ficks said. "Many corporations are moving headquarters into the state and 17,000 to 20,000 more people were employed in April 1980 than in April, 1979."

Still, Ficks pointed out, Connecticut's labor force experienced a 4.9 percent unemployment rate but he added no "mass layoffs" had been registered.

"We have seen a 'ripple effect' from what the rest of the U.S. is experiencing," Ficks said, "with more claims, two-tenths of a percent higher unemployment in April and a decline in personal income. But our strengths stop those ripples from becoming waves."

The bankers called local depositors cautious by nature, and Hale said, "They want safety as opposed to risky investments or high flyers." While his bank has seen what he termed "a negative deposit flow" from savings over the last year, Hale pointed out much of that money was being invested in insured money market certificates, something the Heritage and other financial institutions have been recommending.

The certificates, unlike standard savings accounts, require a minimum deposit of $10,000 and yield around 9 percent after a six-month maturity is reached. A two-year certificate is also offered, yielding upwards of 11 1/2 percent after two years. Like Hale, Agostinelli said he has moved larger depositors over to the money market as a hedge against spiraling inflation.

Inflation—the flip side of a recession—Hale blames on loose credit. He said the public "has been playing it lazy," by "using the plastic when the cash isn't available." Recent restrictions imposed on Federal Reserve banks may stem the flow of easy credit, but Hale and the others still call it America's "number one" problem.

Clerk OKs tax freeze signatures

By MARY KITZMANN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The Town Clerk's Office has verified the tax freeze petition of the Manchester Property Owner's Association has the required number of signatures to force a referendum.

Edward Tomkiel, town clerk, notified the Board of Directors, that it has 45 days from June 18 to act on the petition which would limit municipal spending increases to 2 percent in the Grand List.

The board has two regular meetings, the July meetings, before the August 2 deadline to act on the referendum request.

Tomkiel said the petition easily met the mark of about 1470 signatures needed to force a referendum. After verifying the required amount were valid plus about 50 more signatures, Tomkiel said there were several pages of signatures left over.

Mrs. Sadoski, president of the MPOA, had estimated about 1800 signatures were given to the Town Clerk's Office at the direction of the Board of Directors.

Mrs. Sadoski had tried to present the petition to the Board of Directors, but was told to submit it to the clerk's office for verification.

The board has said it will wait the full 45 days before an decision on the petition as mandated by the Town Charter. Town Attorney Kevin O'Brien has agreed that this procedure is proper.

The MPOA had hoped for an immediate decision in order to speed the expected litigation.

O'Brien has ruled that the petition, which would "freeze" the mill rate and allow revenue increases only through direct increases in the Grand List, is invalid according to Manchester's Town Charter.

He maintains that only the Board of Directors can set the mill rate and act on fiscal policy.

The MPOA is prepared to obtain a court ruling of the petition's validity, but must obtain an "adverse vote" from the Board of Directors before beginning the litigation.

The 45-day wait, which gives the board an opportunity to study issues, according to O'Brien and Mayor Stephen Penny, delays the group's court action.

However, several directors indicate they will follow the town attorney's ruling and reject the petition, unless a court order forces a referendum. After the 45-day wait, the town clerk sends the petition to the town attorney who verifies wording and legality. Since the opinion ruling the petition's validity, has already given, legal action is expected after that.

It is expected that the MPOA will try to submit a Writ of Mandamus, ordering the town clerk to schedule a referendum, which cannot be done due to legal opinion.

The MPOA wishes to place the question on the November ballot.

Soviets withdraw from Afghanistan

KABUL, Afghanistan (UPI) — Soviet troops have begun to withdraw from Afghanistan, official diplomatic sources said today.

The sources said they had no definite figures but reports from New Delhi said at least one Soviet division of 10,000 men is pulling out of Afghanistan. An estimated 85,000 Soviet troops invaded the country last Dec. 25.

The reported withdrawal came a day after the Soviet Union announced a limited pullout of "some army units whose stay in Afghanistan is not necessary at present."

In Moscow Radio-Moscow announced today the Soviet Union was withdrawing 108 tanks along with a division of troops. The radio said the division, about 10,000 men, was crossing the Salang Pass north of Kabul and returning to the Soviet Union.

Despite the move, Soviet troops were highly visible in Kabul.

Police seek help again in murder investigations

GLASTONBURY — Police are again seeking public assistance to try to find a canvas bag believed to have been owned by a young housewife found shot to death less than a day after her infant son's suspicious death.

The two-handled bag was seen by the division of Burnt Hill Road in Hebron late Tuesday afternoon by a woman and a man, police said.

The force of 30 state and local police looked this weekend for help from spectators and players who were at a Little League game last Tuesday, the bag disappeared.

Mrs. Hart's body was found Wednesday less than 24 hours after her husband Robert found the infant's body in the driveway of their home. The child's head had been crushed, apparently by the tire of a motor vehicle.

Crowley said police were examining the woman's car to see if it had struck the infant. He also said, Hart, an engineer with a Hartford firm, was not a suspect in the case.

SOUTH WINDSOR — A crystal clear evening, a large crowd and enthusiastic applause greeted the South Windsor High School graduating class as 371 diplomas were awarded at Saturday night's ceremony.

Valencitorian Maria L. Mainelli said high school was a period of great satisfaction for the class.

She cited many of the student accomplishments in athletics, the arts, and other school activities.

"These activities afforded the opportunity to develop thinking and acting. If we put precious time to good use, we should find fulfillment in life," she said.

Following both the salutatory and valedictory addresses, Gregory J. Plunkett, the high school principal, presented the awards to the class.

"Logic is a necessity for the American way of life. American lifestyle has adapted itself to the flex of science," Miss Patrick explained.

"Now is the time for us to stop observing and to start thinking and acting. If we put precious time to good use, we should find fulfillment in life," she said.

Following both the salutatory and valedictory addresses, Gregory J. Plunkett, the high school principal, presented the awards to the class.

Class President Michelle Lenkeit thanked the Board of Education and Goldman said he hoped at least one person had an affect on each student's life while attending South Windsor High School.

"Thank that person some time in your own special way," he told the graduates. "I can wish all of you the very best. Congratulations," Goldman said.

Board of Education Chairman John giordano said, to the large class that all my fellow graduates, I would like 17 or 18 years ago, "you were all indeed the main event in your parents' lives."

"As board members there is no better bunch of young people that we can be sending forth than the class of 1980," giordano said.

A list of the South Windsor graduates appears on page 7 of today's Evening Herald.

Honor America

This week, the middle week between Flag Day and July 4, is part of a nationwide observance to honor America during the 21 days between the two patriotic holidays. The Evening Herald is proud to be presenting the daily messages which are words of freedom by figures important to American history. Each day until July 4 we will publish one of the brief messages along with a representation of our flag. The messages serve as a reminder of our freedom as a nation and as individuals. The Honor America observance is a program of the

The Honor America Program of the society is intended to increase the knowledge of the American people about the nation's cultural heritage, constitutional form of government, and history. It also is designed to commemorate the anniversary of United States independence. The goal is accomplished by the dissemination to the public of educational materials on historic sites and state or federal government public facilities. It also supports musical and cultural events featuring examples of American music, art and culture.

The events included throughout the nation consist of historic commemorative ceremonies, parades, erection of monuments, band concerts, festivals of American folklife, displays of historic documents in public buildings, contemporary and fireworks displays. The entire program is non-political and nonpartisan. The stylized eagle appearing with this editorial is the symbol of the program.

Zoning questions

Letter to the Editor: I have been increasingly concerned over the misunderstanding of the zoning regulations surrounding the use of the old Senior Citizen Center. In the Herald editorial of April 22 entitled "Zoning Violation" the writer states "The purpose of zoning is to establish areas of the community free of businesses, where residential property owners can have peace of mind."

Since then, several editorials have referred to the variance requested and granted for non-conforming use of the Linden Street property as bad public policy. The editorial of June 17 mistakenly branded the decision a "bad decision of a public policy maker: letting government make up different sets of rules for itself than it has established for everyone else."

The Zoning Regulations of the Town of Manchester, Article II, Section 6:01.05 defining Residence C use permits: "municipal parks, playgrounds, and recreation buildings including customary accessory use."

Reading of the same article and section may reassure The Herald editorial writer and readers that the Zoning Board that appears in their action of May 19, 1980 was fully cognizant of residential property owners. Residence C use allows: "Office use in a residential building provided that part of the building is used for residential purposes."

Washington Merry-Go-Round
Budget committee members revolt vs. reform

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON - Perhaps the most prominent victim of the economic recession will be Jimmy Carter's precariously balanced federal budget. Another casualty may well be the whole congressional budget-reform process that has been trying to restrain the free-spending habits of our lawmakers for the past six years.

The direct impact of hard times on unemployment and welfare benefits will be bad enough. But the most drastic effect may be indirect - and the impact may be more lasting.

Quote
"All the people who thought I was crazy to put on all this shiny stuff look at me with renewed respect in today's economic climate."
- Sammy Davis, singer, referring to his usual array of gold jewelry. (NBC-TV)

Thoughts

Charter jet to an island paradise...

The apostle Paul wrote: Therefore I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses for Christ's sake: for when I am weak, then am I strong. II Cor. 12:10.

Approximately four months ago, an automobile accident left me in the hospital with multiple injuries. As I lay in bed after two operations, I discovered that my position was not unique. Many other people, victims of a variety of circumstances were my companions.

A recent brief report from the Mount St. Helens area is in a way more dramatic than the eruptions that are keeping that particular big story on the front pages.

But what does it get to a gallon?
The Wall Street Journal, as legions of devoted readers well know, is a gold mine of fascinating information on our times and lifestyles.

The Book of John, Chapter 21, the exchange between Jesus and Simon Peter that we're all familiar with, Jesus asks Peter three times, "Simon, son of John, do you love me?" Each time when Peter answers, "Yes, Lord," Jesus directs him to "tend my sheep."
