Residents pack parks and roads

By United Press International
Bright sunny skies drew capacity crowds to beaches, state parks and picnics and packed highways with traffic to keep police busy as Connecticut residents wrapped up the long Fourth of July holiday weekend.

At least 10 people had died in traffic accidents in the state as of today, including a young race car driver who was killed when his car went out of control and slammed into a safety barrier at Lime Rock Park in Salisbury.

A high school athlete working a summer job also died when the golf cart he was riding on flipped over and pinned him beneath in Windsor while a Greenwich man died in a traffic accident in New York, authorities said.

State police said Keith Flye, 23, of Hartford, died Sunday apparently after he was struck by a truck in a hit-and-run accident on Interstate 95 in Milford. Officials said Flye was found on a service driveway at a Howard Johnsons along the highways and high waves which caused several dozen small sailboats to capsize on Long Island Sound.

Authorities said no injuries were reported as a result of the 45 knot winds and 4 to 6 foot seas, but a Coast Guard spokesman in New Haven said some of the accidents could have been prevented had sailors heeded marine warnings.

While most state residents had a weekend off, state police were at work issuing more than 1,000 traffic tickets — all but a few for speeding — between the official start of the holiday period 8 p.m. Thursday and midnight Sunday.

State police Sgt. Raymond Andrews said traffic on the interstates had been average during the day Sunday but became heavier as motorists headed home at night.

Race car driver Tom Stewart, 20, of Syosset, N.Y., died Saturday when his car went out of control while traveling at 100 mph on the back straight during a practice run at Lime Rock Park.

Stewart, in his first season on the North American Formula Atlantic circuit, died of multiple injuries. It was the first fatality at the track in 14 years and the fifth in its 23-year history.

James Kevin Pinckney, 15, died Saturday when the golf cart he was riding on ran off a bridge and into a brook at Millbrook Country Club in Windsor. An autopsy was planned on the body of the youth, who played baseball and football at Windsor High School.

Police in Ridgfield were investigating a Saturday night crash on Route 7 in which Tori Hansen, 20, of Monroe, died. The driver of the car she was riding in wasn't injured.

In Old Saybrook, Harold Eickler Jr., 26, of Centerbrook, died Saturday night after the motorcycle he was riding struck a car and a telephone pole, police said. The car's occupants were not injured and no charges had been filed.

Henry Green, 29, of Bristol, died Saturday of injuries sustained when his pickup truck struck a telephone pole in Wolcott Friday night.

State police were investigating a two-car crash Friday night crash on Route 219 in Barkhamsted in which William Simpson, 58, his wife Anne Simpson, 59, both of Wetherfield, and Ralph Dimenna of Bloomfield died.

In Danbury, 8-year-old Paulo Mendes died Friday after a pickup truck traveling too fast to brake for slower traffic crossed into the oncoming lane and collided head-on with the Mendes family car on Route 6, police said.

Daniel Martin, 22, of Newton, the driver of the pickup, was charged with negligent homicide with a motor vehicle, reckless driving, failure to drive right, and operating with unsafe tires, police said.

The victims father, Louis Mendes-Ribeiro, 36, of Danbury, was listed in satisfactory condition at Danbury Hospital while two other family members were treated and released at the hospital.

Also in Danbury, Osvaldo Rivera, 20, of Danbury, died Friday when the car he was driving skidded on Interstate 94, struck a guard rail and rolled over.

A Greenwich man died Thursday evening when the car he was driving was involved in a crash on Route 17 in Blooming Grove, N.Y., in which a New Jersey woman also was killed.

Police said Wendy Anton, 21, of Emerson, N.J., was thrown from a car operated by Joseph Herschel, 21, of Orfield, N.J., when it crossed a highway divider and struck a car operated by Worthington Mayer, 46, of Greenwich.

Weeding time

Despite the influx of modern technology some things remain the same. An example is the process of weeding beets at the Newfields farm in Buckland, Manchester. The process is still done by hand. (Herald photo by Flint)

Chamber forms rental unit

MANCHESTER — A new division, to act as a clearinghouse for apartment rentals, has been formed by the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

Formation of the Apartment and Property Owners Division is in response to recent recommendations of the Mayor's Committee on Condominium Conversions, a committee which studied Manchester's housing shortage.

The mayor's committee recommended a clearinghouse for rentals to aid apartment seekers in Manchester, which has a less than one percent vacancy rate. This will be the primary task of the chamber's new division, Anne Flint, chamber president said.

The chamber initiated the new division, without encouragement from town officials, Mrs. Flint said.

"The idea came as an offshoot of a subcommittee of the mayor's committee," she said. "It's logical for the chamber to act as an umbrella for the division, as most of the property and apartment owners belong to the chamber."

There are about 20 members in the new division. Mrs. Flint believes that its membership will be limited to chamber members. While the Apartment and Property Owners Division is a private organization, it will cooperate with town government, according to Mrs. Flint.

The chamber plans to coordinate the clearinghouse service with the newly-created Department of Human Services. The division will catalog the vacancies, while the town department will take calls for information.

Robert Weiss, town manager

recently designated the human services department as a referral center for tenants' with complaints. The department will provide information on tenants' rights and how to pursue a complaint. This was also a recommendation of the mayor's committee.

Besides the clearinghouse, the division will provide a means of communication for property owners. Mrs. Flint said the division will discuss legislation, group purchasing of common products and other issues "of critical concern" to property owners.

She expects the division, one of several within the chamber, such as the division on fuel, to begin meeting within the month.

At its organization meeting, John DeQuattro, an owner of JD Real Estate, was elected chairman. DeQuattro, a member of the Economic Development Commission, past chamber president, owned a number of apartment complexes that converted into condominiums last spring.

The rash of conversions, which tightened the rental market by about 400 apartments, sparked the call for the moratorium on conversions. The mayor's committee was formed when the town Board of Directors imposed the moratorium.

The mayor's committee report, which included recommendations for relaxing the town's M zone which regulates multi-family housing construction has been given to the Board of Directors.

With the creation of the new chamber division, Mrs. Flint said the committee's clearinghouse recommendation would be fulfilled. With the division's clearinghouse working in conjunction with the town, she said a separate town clearinghouse should not be needed. She said the chamber hopes to avoid duplication of effort.

Robert Faucher, chairman of the mayor's committee, was "pleased" at the announcement. "The Chamber of Commerce recognized the problem and is taking a responsible position," he said.

He mentioned the mayor's committee recommended a private organization serve as the clearinghouse. "The chamber is performing a service to the community," he said.

Grasso is feeling better

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella Grasso has completed radiation treatments for ovarian cancer and said today she is feeling better, her office announced.

Mrs. Grasso, 61, underwent a hysterectomy April 1 for removal of malignant cells from a cancerous ovary.

The governor began the five-day-a-week radiation treatments, which left her feeling fatigue and nausea.

on May 8. She received her last treatment Friday.

Mrs. Grasso said today she is feeling better and expects that her condition will improve steadily.

Spokesman Larry deBear said the governor, who has been conducting business from the executive residence, had not decided when she would return to work at the Capitol. It takes some time to get over the treatments, deBear said.

Mrs. Grasso's physician, Dr. Joseph Russo, said the radiation treatments were precautionary. The governor has made few public appearances since the treatments began.

He bowed out of a New England regional conference last month and postponed a Washington meeting of the Democratic National Convention Credentials Committee, which she chairs.

President to stress China ties

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — President Carter is expected to stress the growing economic and political ties between the United States and China when he meets with Premier Hua Guofeng for the first time in Tokyo this week.

Both leaders will be in Japan Wednesday to attend the memorial services for Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira.

The Carter-Hua hour-long meeting will take place Thursday morning (Tokyo time) just before Carter flies back to Georgia for a vacation on Sapelo Island. Enroute, he will have an overnight stop in Anchorage, Alaska, and a brief fishing jaunt with Republican Gov. Jay Hammond.

The huddle with Hua takes on added meaning in view of Republican Ronald Reagan's hint he may reestablish diplomatic relations with Taiwan if he is elected president.

The vague Reagan statement several weeks ago upset Peking.

Carter announced what he has since described as a highly sensitive and controversial decision to formally recognize China in December 1979. He told a fund-raising gathering in California last week that trade with both China and Taiwan has increased dramatically since recognition of the mainland.

Carter met previously in Washington with Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping and received an invitation to visit China.

Presidential rest

A blazing sun and 96 degree temperatures will take the energy out of any pitcher including President Carter. Carter pitched for his staff against the Washington Press Corps Sunday in Plains, Ga., and after several innings, decided to take the chance to get some rest while his team battled. (UPI photo)

Texas is tinder box

By United Press International
With the death toll from the Southern heat wave approaching 100 today, Texas forest officials said the 16-million-acre Piney Woods was a tinder box and Arkansas health authorities warned the heat might drive rabid bats into the open.

Forecasters said the stalled high pressure system, which has produced intense heat across the Sun Belt for two weeks, decreased in intensity during the weekend but they predicted no long-range relief.

East Texas lush Piney Woods, the states most important forest resource covering 16 million acres, was tinder dry and ready to burst into flames at the slightest spark. Forest Service officials said.

In Arkansas, the state Health Department warned that many rabies-carrying bats had been forced from their roosting places by the heat.

As of today, a total of 185 deaths were being classified as heat-related in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana and Alabama. Texas reported the most — 79 — and Arkansas was close behind with 67 deaths.

A total of 52 deaths have been classed as heat-related in Dallas, 14 of those confirmed heat strokes, the medical examiners office said. With the exception of June 29, at least one Dallas resident has died daily of heatstroke since June 25.

Millions of acres of pine and oak trees in East Texas were tinder dry, but no major fires were reported, said Charles Wells, a staff technician with the Texas Forest Service.

"In the afternoon, you can walk out and it feels like everything could ignite around you," he said, noting temperatures have climbed to 104 degrees in the Piney Woods.

"Some of the trees, the oaks, are starting to die from lack of water. It's been close to a month since we've had a good rain."

"The only fires have been confined to patches of about 10 acres, said Wells, who answers fire calls in a 10-county district that includes 2 million acres of timber.

"We've been lucky so far on fires, and I think it could be its just too hot for people to be out," he said.

Forecasters in Arkansas said the high pressure dome, which had been centered over Wichita Fall, Texas, moved to northeast Arkansas during the weekend but was expected to swing back over Texas this week.

"We're in the midst of slight moderation right now," said Kermil Keeter of the National Weather Service in Fort Worth, Texas.

Pope warns Latin America

SALVADOR, Brazil (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, speaking in a city that once was a major slave trade center, warned that Latin America is at a historical turning point and must decide if it will realize justice through violence or bold and sweeping reforms.

The pope was to begin the eighth day of his 12-day tour of Brazil today by visiting a leper colony and a slum in Salvador before flying to the northeastern seaside city of Recife, whose archbishop was blacklisted by the military regime 12 years ago.

By including Recife in his itinerary, John Paul opened the way for Monsignor Heider Camara to return to the national spotlight he was forced out of because he ran afoul of the government by denouncing injustice in Brazil.

Terrorists massacre

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Suspected right-wing terrorists shot dead 4 people in gangland-style machine-gun attacks on two restaurants in the San Salvador slums, authorities said.

Right-wing extremists also were blamed for a bombing

Sunday at the office of the leftist Popular Revolutionary Bloc on the east side of the capital.

Authorities said there were no injuries in the bombing, the third at the bloc's office, but a church in front of the office was damaged by the blast.

Police said several men armed with automatic rifles burst into the Don Jacinto Cafe shortly after midnight Sunday and sprayed the restaurant with bullets.

Eight patrons were killed at their tables, a man in the restroom was fatally wounded by bullets that blasted through the walls, and a waitress also was killed.

Shah in delicate condition

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — The exiled shah of Iran is in delicate condition, recuperating from surgery to correct a mistake by American surgeon Michael DeBakey who removed his cancerous spleen three months ago, the semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram said today.

At the Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, Dr. Charles McCutchan, an associate of DeBakey, said the surgeon had no immediate comment.

Medical sources said the deposed monarch's temperature went down to 100.4 F Sunday from a dangerously high 104 F and he was fed fruit juice orally for the first time, following a second operation to drain fluids from an abscess in the upper abdomen.

Detroit talks break off

DETROIT (UPI) — Despite a personal appearance by Mayor Coleman Young, talks to end the week-old municipal strike that could disrupt the GOP National Convention broke off early today.

Negotiators for the 5,000 striking city workers halted the bargaining session, charging Detroit officials had reneged on earlier commitments.

The city has withdrawn some of the items we had previously agreed to, said Lloyd Simpson, executive vice president of Council 25, the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Union.

GOP urged to back ERA

DETROIT (UPI) — Michigan Gov. William Milliken warned the Republican Platform Committee today that if the party abandons support for the Equal Rights Amendment it deserves to be repudiated by a large segment of the American population.

"To drop the ERA plank from our platform now would be a public demonstration that this party had abandoned its goal of equal rights for women," said Milliken, the leadoff witness as the committee began the process of drafting a party platform.

The committee members were the advance guard of 4,000 delegates and alternates due in town next Monday to officially designate Ronald Reagan the party nominee at the GOP convention.

Hostages are moved again

Militants holding the American hostages announced they have moved some of their captives from three western Iranian cities because of U.S. hatched satanic plots against their lives and said more of the prisoners will be moved later.

The hostages, now in their 24th day of captivity, reportedly were moved from the occupied U.S. embassy in Tehran to 14 cities during the aborted April 25 rescue mission and the militants latest statement is the first claimed transfer of the captives since that dispersal.

Nine face drug charges

EAST HARTFORD — Police arrested nine persons on drug charges and one person for indecent public exposure during the July 4 weekend.

Charged with conspiracy early Sunday to possess narcotics and conspiracy to possess marijuana were John Donovan, 21, of 29 Greenwood St.; Brenda Laine, 19, of 6 Hickory Road, Marlborough; Sandra Caron, 19, of Wellswood Road, Hebron; and Karen Kelly, 23, of 205 Center St., Manchester.

Charged with possession of marijuana, possession of narcotics and conspiracy to possess both were Martin Thibodeau, 24, of 8 Wickham Drive, John Dryden, 20, of Bolton Lake House, Bolton; Joseph Lavalley, 21, of Colebrook River Road, Tolland.

Arrested on the same charges and of an additional charge of possession of firearms was Christopher Ackerson, 24, of 36 Washington Road, Windsor.

Walter J. Leary Jr., 29, of 115 Harte Drive, Vernon, was charged with possession of narcotics, conspiracy to possess narcotics and conspiracy to possess marijuana. Police said all were released on non-cash bonds for appearances July 28 in Superior Court.

Police charged Richard Zatorski, 41, of 41 Central Ave., with indecent public exposure Friday in his apartment. Police said neighbors could see Zatorski through their apartment windows.

Zatorski was released on a $5,000 cash bond and will appear in Superior Court Tuesday.

Sunday police charged 68-year-old Henry Gordon, of 39 Latimer St., with disorderly conduct and risk of injury to a minor. Police said he exposed himself in the hallway of the men's room at Martin Park. Gordon was released on a $5,000 cash bond and will appear in Superior Court July 21.

Peopletalk

To the point

Someone went to a great deal of trouble writing the long-winded speech President Carter's mom was supposed to give Friday in Puerto Rico. They might have spent the time better elsewhere.

Introduced in Spanish at Fourth of July ceremonies in San Juan, by Puerto Rican Secretary of State Pedro Vazquez, Miss Lillian said, "I didn't understand all that, but I heard my name called, and here I am."

Then, with a disparaging look at her critics, "I can't read this thing. It's too long. Let me say a few words of my own."

And few they were. Said the 81-year-old first mother, "Jimmy sends his warmest and most sincere wishes as we celebrate our unity as a nation. Have a good time and God bless you all." The cheers were thunderous.

Fife and drum

New York publisher Ralph Ginzburg says he's riding with the times, and the times call for Uncle Sam.

That's the new tabloid he'll publish under a non-profit foundation to which he'll give $250,000 in seed money. Ginzburg says it's doing it because our economy is depressed, our international prestige declining, our nation's self-esteem is sagging.

Yet, says he, America remains the richest, mightiest nation in the world — the envy of freedom-loving men and women everywhere.

Ginzburg once did time as a porn-pusher for distributing Eros magazine — innocuous as Winnie-the-Pooh by contemporary standards — or, perhaps, as patriot as then.

Uncle Sam will carry advertising, but be free to anyone of voting age.

The uninvited

Diplomats don't crash parties. Not if they like their jobs, they don't, and Newsweek magazine indexes Richard N. Gardner may not be too fond of his.

He's U.S. ambassador to Italy and Newsweek says he crashed the presidential hackles when his boss came to visit.

Seems President Carter left word he wanted to lunch at the U.S. embassy only with wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy following the first family's audience in Rome with Pope John Paul II, but that Gardner ignored the request and showed up with his own wife and two children.

Later, on his last night in Venice, Carter called for dinner only with a few close aides. Guess who showed up, uninvited? Carter may have to trade in his Secret Service agents for bouncers.

Glimpses

Dorothy Stratten — Playboy magazine's 1980 Playmate of the Year — has been signed for a major role in Peter Bogdanovich's "They All Laughed," co-starring Audrey Hepburn, Ben Gazzara and John Ritter.

Liza Minnelli will portray Lillian Heilman in the Showtime pay television network's version of Eric Bentley's "Are You Now Or Have You Ever Been," which chronicles the infamous House Un-American Activities Committee hearings of the 1950s.

Irwin Schiff's tax revolt doesn't draw big crowd

WEST HARTFORD (UPI) — It was billed as a big tax revolt rally but all it drew was its headliner, Irwin A. Schiff, and 125 partisans supporting the tax maverick's cause.

Plus two men some spectators suggested were Internal Revenue Service agents.

A chartered bus carried 27 people from Philadelphia who paid $50 for the round-trip and the pleasure of hearing Schiff at $4 a head sound off on his recent trial and conviction in U.S. District Court.

Playing for laughs, Schiff suggested half-way houses for IRS agents and said not paying taxes can improve your social and sex life.

"You become popular," Schiff said.

Schiff is appealing a six-month sentence and $10,000 fine for willful failure to file income tax returns for 1974 and 1975. Schiff, 52, is the author of "The Biggest Con — How the Government is Fleecing You and is a financial consultant and insurance specialist from Hamden.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Michael Hartmeyer argued before a Hartford jury that deliberated nine hours over two days that Schiff was the biggest con and was pushing his confrontation with the IRS to promote the sale of his book.

The rally last week attracted speakers like tax resister Bob Graham of Philadelphia.

"I'm ashamed to be here in Connecticut because I saw on your license plates that you're the Constitution State but after what I saw what happened in federal court to Mr. Schiff, I can tell you your system is corrupt," Graham said.

Mary Price, a Philadelphia real estate broker, told a reporter she had not paid income taxes in 12 years and like Schiff blamed the press for not spreading the word.

"The press," she said, "is not behind the American people. It's behind the liberals, but not the conservatives. You see the conservatives are still parasites, the liberals are..."

Some spectators' suspicions were aroused by two men sitting in a car outside the meeting hall at the University of Hartford. One of them said, "I was just waiting for a couple of girls."

A spokesman for the university security force said the men were questioned because they appeared to be writing and recording information.

He said when officers looked into the cars interior they found nothing suspicious and the vehicle contained no one from the federal government.

Elmer Bull, 69, of Hamden, dressed in a colonial farmer costume with tri-cornered hat, said he hadn't filed returns for 16 years. In the 1960s, he got a suspended sentence for willful failure to file and was told to please obey the law.

"That's what makes Irwin and I kindred spirits. The law is manifestly so unconstitutional its a crime to fulfill it in my view. I obey the law — the Constitution — not what passes for the law today," Bull said.

Speaker John Kotamir told of forming a posse in Baltimore to enforce the Constitution.

He told his audience its members were armed with police whistles and they cheered.

He told a reporter later his posse wasn't organized as yet.

Mary Ann Skirpan of Philadelphia said in an interview the IRS didn't scare her.

"Everybody shudders at the IRS. But when you're in the movement you shouldn't be scared because you know what they're doing is downright illegal."

She said IRS agents attempted an audit at her house in April and, "I locked the door on them." She relented after six minutes, she said, laughing.

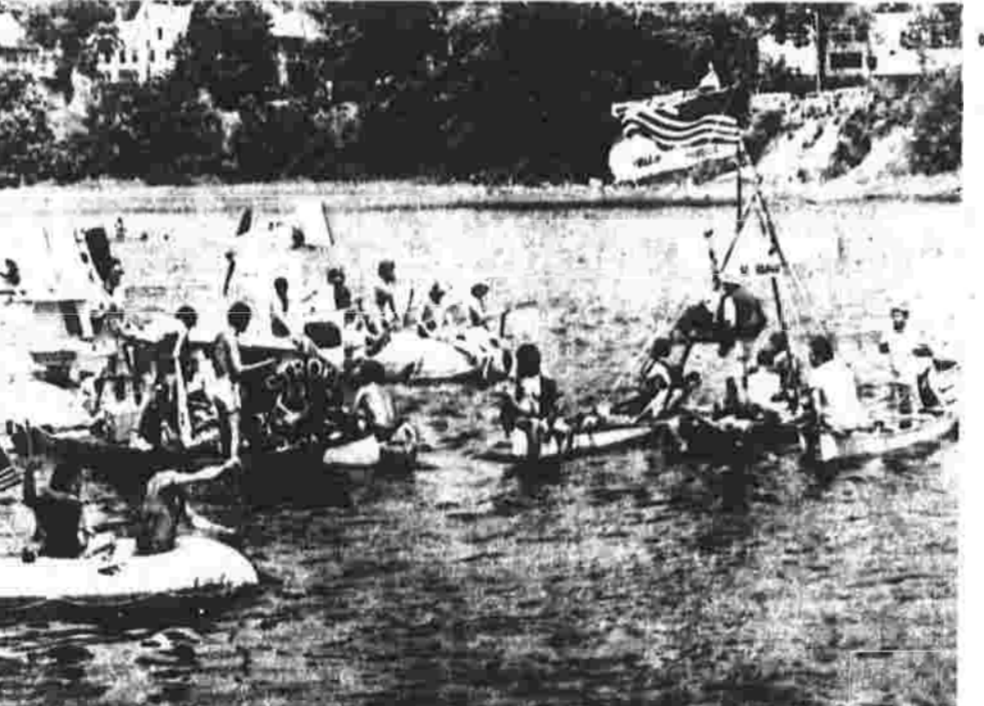

"People out in California opened a halfway house. We had 14 IRS agents. We're opening up one on the East Coast. If there's any IRS agents in the audience, well tell them what's available and they can very smoothly make the transition from a parasite to a productive citizen," Schiff said. He got no takers.

Walter J. Leary Jr., 29, of 115 Harte Drive, Vernon, was charged with possession of narcotics, conspiracy to possess narcotics and conspiracy to possess marijuana. Police said all were released on non-cash bonds for appearances July 28 in Superior Court.

Police charged Richard Zatorski, 41, of 41 Central Ave., with indecent public exposure Friday in his apartment. Police said neighbors could see Zatorski through their apartment windows.

Zatorski was released on a $5,000 cash bond and will appear in Superior Court Tuesday.

Sunday police charged 68-year-old Henry Gordon, of 39 Latimer St., with disorderly conduct and risk of injury to a minor. Police said he exposed himself in the hallway of the men's room at Martin Park. Gordon was released on a $5,000 cash bond and will appear in Superior Court July 21.

Crowded craft

A little crowded at the finish line of the Great Kennebec River Whatever Race, homemade rafts and unofficial, but there were more than 500 craft that took to the water Saturday in Gardiner, Maine.

Circus fire remembered

HARTFORD (UPI) — It was called the day the clowns cried — the day 168 people died in a blistering fire that marked the worst circus disaster in American history.

And for many, the July 6, 1944, Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus fire remained a sharp and painful memory on its 36th anniversary Sunday.

"At Northwoods Cemetery, flowers decorated the grave of Little Miss 1965, the little girl whose face was untouched by the flames, but was never identified. She was known only as 1965, her morgue tag number.

An elderly Hartford woman, who did not want to be identified, called a newspaper over the weekend to point out the anniversary date.

I lost eight. I'm just calling so that people will remember and so it will never happen again, she said with tears in her voice.

The woman lost two of her own children, ages 8 and 16, an aunt and uncle and their four children.

It was hot and humid the afternoon of the fire, and 6,000 people were gathered under the Big Top in the city's North End.

The nation was at war, and most of the 168 killed and 500 injured when the 20-minute fire tore through the main tent were women and children.

Some burned to death when the tent, water-proofed with a mixture of white gasoline and paraffin, burst into flames.

Others were trampled in the frenzy to escape, as burning pieces of canvas dropped on the crowd.

Duplex change to face PZC

MANCHESTER — A change in the zoning regulations to allow separate ownership of each side of a duplex will be considered tonight by the Planning and Zoning Commission.

A public hearing is scheduled for the request of Blanchard and Rossetto, a real estate firm. The change would allow the sale of one half of a duplex.

Presently a duplex and its lot, although two families occupy the building.

Under the regulations, there must be 60 feet of frontage for the lots. The requested change would give each owner a minimum of 30 feet of frontage.

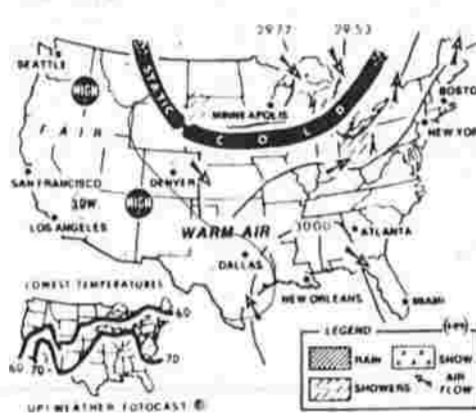

A public hearing will also be conducted on another application of Blanchard and Rossetto for a zone change. The firm wishes to rezone 38 Grove St. from Residence A to Residence

The group apparently plans to relocate the church, and convert the present structure into apartments.

A four-lot subdivision is requested by Frechette, Martin and Rothman. The subdivision, proposed for the corner of North Elm and Green Road, involves about 1.25 acres. The area is zoned Residence A, or single family homes.

The commission will also consider the request of William Olenkski, owner of Willie's Steak House, to change the building line for the restaurant.

The change was requested to allow Olenkski to retain a window overhang. The overhang was constructed without prior site plan approval and its construction was halted. The Zoning Board of Appeals denied the variance request for the overhang last month.

Is natural gas more efficient than oil?

It's amazing that some people are thinking of converting their heating system to gas because they think it's more efficient.

Because recently, the U.S. Government began to require efficiency labels on all home heating systems. And some interesting figures are coming out.

The average new gas system is 67% efficient. Whereas the average new oil system is 78% efficient.

So if the future belongs to the efficient it would seem that the future belongs to oil.

The more you know about gas the more comfortable you'll feel with oil heat.

Editorial Public trial rights

The United States Supreme Court has ruled criminal trials must be open to the public and the press unless there is an "overriding interest" in closing them. At first blush, the decision appears to be a positive one for the rights of the people. But the qualifying exception in the undefined term, "overriding interest," will, we are certain, lead to more closed trials.

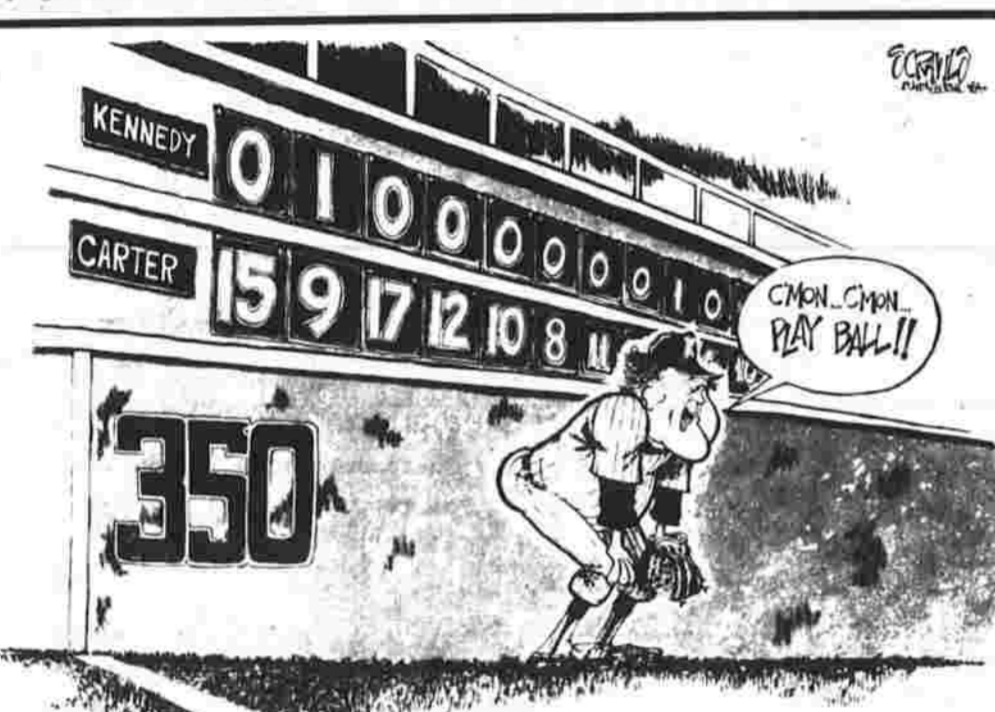

The justices opinion relies largely on the First Amendment of the Constitution. Although the Supreme Court has given a short-term victory to the right of a public trial, the decision opens the door, for begging lower court judges to slam that shut again.

Open trials are needed for a purpose. Trials are public, not just to community snoops can attend to "hear all the dirt," although that is a side benefit. The Supreme Court decision discusses the First Amendment implications, saying, "without the freedom to attend such trials, which people have exercised for centuries, important aspects of freedom of speech and of the press could be evaded."

The unsettling portion of the decision lies in a footnote by Chief Justice Warren Burger comparing access to trials with controlling traffic on streets. The footnote says First Amendment rights are not absolute. The other amendment to the Constitution dealing with open trials most explicitly is the Sixth. It says, "In all criminal trials the accused shall have the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the state and district where the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature of the accusation; to be confronted with witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense."

Federal funds sought for boating programs

WASHINGTON—Almost a decade ago, I introduced Idi Amin, the mad ruler of Uganda, to a world that had taken little notice of him. He trotted for a while on the world stage until his ignominious fall from power last year. Now his place as the world's most infamous despot has been taken by a flamboyant man with the unpronounceable name of Eyadema Gnassingbe Eyadema. He rules the 2.4 million people of the small West African nation of Togo with a flair which, if set to music, would make comedia opera.

over the inability of others to see those simple truths that are so clear to him. Although he is less bloodyhanded than Idi Amin, Eyadema's attempt to portray himself as a living god indicates that he is cut from the same cloth. Here are some examples of his reach for divinity. Portraits of the 44-year-old president-for-life, wearing the wings of an angel, are displayed in government and private offices throughout Togo. Eyadema buttons showing the dictator's smiling face are worn like bouillonieres on lapels throughout the country. Eyadema not only makes most of the news in Togo, he also reports it. He is the Walter Cronkite of Togolese television, reading the evening news himself. The murdered president's son, Gilchrist Olympio, now a businessman living in Paris, has been trying to oust Eyadema from power. Gilchrist Olympio told my reporters Bob Sherman and

When the '71 boating act was established, it was planned to be phased out later," she said, "and then the states were supposed to take over the programs." Apparently the 1971 act was a great success. According to Eagleton, in 1971 there were 1,822 fatalities. That figure was cut to 1,321 by 1978. "Obviously, the modest expenditure of federal funds has been returned many times over on the reduction of fatalities," he said. However, Beltshe said because some states started boating safety programs late, they were in no position to carry on services in 1979 when funds were cut back. This year, Congress decided to halt funding now would be a good time to completely phase out the federal program, she said. Under the Eagleton legislation, a similar bill has already passed the House, one-third of the tax funds received would be used to finance boating safety programs and to enforce safety regulations. The bill would annually return close to $30 million to state boating programs. The primary opposition to the bill comes from the Coast Guard, which is cutting back on its budget and is opposed to any new programs. Also, the Department of the Interior believes the legislation is too narrow in scope. A spokesman for the department said if the funds were shifted just to boating programs, other public outdoor programs may lose funding. He added that with the current trend of the economy being poor, boating may decline in popularity and funds would also inevitably decline. Currently there is an estimated 56 million boaters in the United States operating about 14 million pleasure craft.

If judges take Burger's footnote to be a license to close trials, we are confident the rights of society to see justice done and the right of the accused to have a public trial will be in jeopardy. The framers of the Constitution made public trials the law because of the possibility of persons being snatched from society, tried, convicted and disposed of in secret. The decision is yet another example of the Burger court's prevailing attitude against the right of the people to know what the government is doing.

Who is being tried on what charges in full public view. We are concerned the long-term impact of the decision by the Supreme Court will further erode the rights of the governed, who are the government in a democratic society.

1981 taxes to rise with tax cut

By LEE RODERICK
WASHINGTON—There's a very good reason why a tax cut for 1981 is increasingly likely: the taxes of Americans are scheduled to go up next year more than the most generous cut being discussed in other words—tax cut or no tax cut, citizens will still pay more to Uncle Sam next year than this year. Most economists estimate that the total American tax burden will increase between $40 billion to $60 billion in 1981. Even the relative tax-cut package just proposed by GOP presidential candidate Ronald Reagan and his congressional backers would only offset about $22 billion of that amount. Tax Foundation, Inc., a private nonpartisan research organization, has just added further fuel to the tax-cutting fire with a study indicating that even a 14.5 percent cost-of-living raise this year won't help an American worker keep the wolf of inflation from the door. "Those lucky enough to get a pay hike that exactly matches the projected 14.5 percent inflation rate for 1980 will lose money because of the effect 'taxflation' has on any increase in earnings," says the Tax Foundation. "Taxflation" is a term describing the effects of inflation pushing workers into higher tax brackets. According to the Washington-based foundation, this is what will happen to a typical family of four (one earner) making $10,000 that gets a 14.5 percent increase, taking it to $11,450 going into this year.

On paper they have a net gain of $1,450. But their federal income tax increases by $224 and social security by $89, leaving them with $10,202 in after-tax income. At a 14.5 percent inflation rate, the 1980 dollar will be worth only 87 cents compared to the 1979 dollar. Thus the $10,202 in 1980 will purchase only $9,210 worth of goods in 1979 dollars—an inflationary loss of $1,292. When combined with higher taxes, inflation means this family ends up with a net loss of $155. Thus instead of a supposed gain of 14.5 percent for the year, the family suffers a net loss in purchasing power of 1.7 percent. Calculated the same way for a family of four, here's how much those with higher incomes would lose, despite a 14.5 percent raise: Those earning $15,000 would lose $173; $20,000 would lose $270; $25,000 would lose $342; $30,000 would lose $432; $35,000 would lose $568; and $50,000 would lose $1,150.

Given this stunning reality, it is easy to see why Reagan and his Republican congressional supporters rang a bell the other day with their proposal to cut personal income taxes 10 percent across the board beginning Jan. 1. They would also permit businesses to deduct new investments more quickly. "When their plan was unveiled, Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd (D-W.Va.) promptly labeled it a 'linker top' approach. Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill (D-Mass.) said it shows Republicans 'have small minds,' and Treasury Secretary G. William Miller added that Reagan's policies were like 'Barnum and Bailey.'" So what did Senate Democrats do next? They promptly joined the cir-

Not many convinced there's energy crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A new national survey commissioned by the conservative Heritage Foundation indicates less than half the American people are convinced there is an energy crisis. The Sindlinger & Co. energy survey of 1,517 adults conducted also found broad support for nuclear power, if it can be made safe, and for oil and gas exploration in wilderness areas. Those surveyed, interviewed by telephone between June 5 and June 18, also put most of the blame for current energy problems on the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. But the major oil companies and the government also drew their share of blame, the survey reported. And an overwhelming majority of Americans said price dictated their decisions on purchasing gasoline, although they would pay a premium to use domestic oil rather than foreign imports. It mandates strong action to increase domestic production of energy. It shows a strong sentiment in favor of that, said Mill Copulos, Heritage Foundations energy analyst. This is the theme that goes through all of these answers. On the existence of an energy crisis, the believers barely nosed out the doubters by a margin of 46.7 percent to 48.8 percent, with 9.4 percent undecided. Women outnumbered men among the believers. But less than three out of 10 respondents — 29.8 percent — were willing to describe energy problems as very serious. Asked in a separate question if there was a real shortage of energy that assumed substantial domestic reserves could be found there, believe there was. About half of those surveyed (49.9 percent) who thought there was a real shortage, 194 placed the principal blame on OPEC, 90 on the oil companies and 73 on governments. With lesser culpability assigned to environmentalists, utilities, wasteful consumers and natural shortages. About half of those surveyed regarded themselves as fairly well informed on the national energy situation, and magazines drew the highest marks as the source of that information. They were followed by newspapers, television, periodicals, books and radio, in that order. More than 65 percent approved of continuing to use nuclear power for electricity generation in a question based on the assumption that government would require adequate safeguards to protect the public. Less than three in 10 — 28.2 percent — disagreed under the same circumstances, with 6.6 percent undecided. A clear majority, 57.6 percent, favored new reactor licensing with adequate safeguards by government. The respondents overwhelmingly rated price, not brand name or convenience, as the key factor in a decision on where to buy gasoline. Brand names, in fact, finished at a distant third. Given a choice between paying a slightly higher price for domestic oil products or buying lower-priced imports, 86.7 percent, or two-thirds, picked the domestic variety. The 67.8-percent majority that favored oil and gas drilling in wilderness areas drew a real shortage of energy that assumed substantial domestic reserves could be found there, five, or 59.8 percent, said they did not

Vernon's Town council sets Tuesday's agenda

VERNON — The Town Council will meet Tuesday night, after a public hearing scheduled for 7:30. The meeting was changed this week due to the long holiday weekend. The hearing and the council meeting will be in the Memorial Building, Park Place. During the regular council meeting Councilman Morgan Campbell will explain the reconstruction that is taking place at Vernon Circle in connection with the expansion of Interstate 86. Charles Vassilopoulos, environmental health officer, will report on the Dobson Road well water which is allegedly contaminated with high levels of sodium, chloride and hardness. Vassilopoulos is suggesting that the town consider providing a public water supply to the residents of the Dobson Road area, provide a gravity sewer system for the Vernon Elementary School swimming pool, provide maintenance on the Vernon School Road swale, provide a design and construct a means of diverting storm water runoff from the school's paved area, tie the public works garage floor drains into the public sewers or provide a holding tank for waste water, and to have the public works department minimize the amount of unprotected sand and silt in the yard and discharge any runoff into the public sanitary sewers or a retention basin which would require scheduled pumping. The council will also receive a memo from architect, Richard Lawrie, concerning the construction of the new firehouse south of Interstate 86; be asked to approve a schedule of transfers and additional appropriations; receive a report of the Rockville Public Health Nursing Association; and receive quarterly reports from the various town boards and commissions. The council will also hear a report by Neil Danahy, the town's chief accountant, concerning a computer system for the police. Neil Danahy will also discuss the appraisal on the Burke Road playground; be asked to schedule a date for a council meeting to specifically discuss the proposed Fair Rent Commission, an ordinance concerning the abatement of nuisances in tenement houses, and police power, and the housing code enforcement officer. Councilman John Makowsky will report to the other council members on the status of the application for workers' compensation insurance for the town; the council will receive a letter from the superintendent of schools relative to the funding of slates from the sports equipment center; the closing out of town of the Ellington refuse area for the dumping of slates from the sports equipment plant; and will act on recommendations for job reallocations.

Eyadema, Togo's tyrant portrays self as divine

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON—Almost a decade ago, I introduced Idi Amin, the mad ruler of Uganda, to a world that had taken little notice of him. He trotted for a while on the world stage until his ignominious fall from power last year. Now his place as the world's most infamous despot has been taken by a flamboyant man with the unpronounceable name of Eyadema Gnassingbe Eyadema. declared a national holiday. • A $250,000 vanity-press comic book, recounting Eyadema's miraculous survival of the plane crash, starts out in fairy-tale fashion. "Once upon a time there was Eyadema..." • The erstwhile army sergeant uses such titles as "guide of the nation," "the helmsman," "leader of the new march" and "source of knowledge." • The reality of Eyadema's rule is less saintly, however, than his propaganda would suggest. With a handful of other non-commissioned officers in the French-trained Togolese army, he seized power from President Sylvanus Olympio in 1963. In the past, Eyadema has boasted he is the Walter Cronkite of Togolese television, reading the evening news himself. The murdered president's son, Gilchrist Olympio, now a businessman living in Paris, has been trying to oust Eyadema from power. Gilchrist Olympio told my reporters Bob Sherman and

Katherine Koch: "Eyadema has rounded up entire families, even entire tribes, and held them incommunicado from the outside world. One tribe was picked up and held in the desert last year and about 200 people died." • When my reporters telephoned the palace for comment, the tyrant of Togo handed the call himself. He responded in resonant French, graced to begin, then increasingly belligerent. He denied all charges, finally cutting off the conversation with an abrupt: "I have no time to talk about this nonsense." • Do as I say: Richard Daschbach, the flamboyant chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission, has ordered a crackdown on the staff's official travel. "Only essential" trips could be taken, he warned. So stringent were the travel restrictions that the commission's hearing lawyers had to cancel a trip to San Francisco to take depositions. Meanwhile, however, Daschbach himself was flying off at public expense on "essential" trips to Palm

Thoughts

Some people came to the disciples and said, "We want to see Jesus." We can only speculate about why they wanted to see Jesus. Some were simply curious; some were looking for help; some may have seen him before and were drawn back again to learn more. Whatever their reasons they expressed an interest in Jesus. What happened then? What kind of reception did they get? What helped them and what hindered them? What did they find of lasting value? It is frequently observed that fewer and fewer people are attending church services these days. If we wonder why, perhaps we should ask not only about the motivations which draw people to church or which draw them away. Perhaps we should ask what they find when they come. What kind of reception do they get? What helps and what hinders them? What do they find of lasting value? If they find the Lord of Life present, it may be they will come back. If they find Jesus, perhaps they will stay.

ELECTRICAL SAFETY: WHAT YOU DON'T KNOW MAY SHOCK YOU.

Electricity is one of the safest and most useful forms of energy we have. But people sometimes forget that when some simple rules of safety are ignored, electricity can become dangerous. Here are a few basic safety rules that may make the difference between a great day outdoors and the shock of your life.

1. Don't be misled by birds sitting on electrical lines. The covering which you may see on the lines is not insulation, and it will not protect you from a shock.
2. Metal ladders near electrical lines can be very dangerous. When using ladders around the house or on the job, be sure to move them cautiously, always watching for power lines above.
3. Be careful with roof antennas. They should never be near electrical wires. Check the area thoroughly for wires before you begin to install, repair or remove a roof antenna.
4. Teach your children the hazards of climbing utility poles and towers or playing around any electrical facility. They may not be aware of just how dangerous electricity can be.
5. Trimming or climbing trees? Watch out for electrical wires! Wires may have become entangled in the branches, so inspect the tree carefully before you begin work.
6. Use outdoor electrical equipment properly. Never use it in the rain, and use electric power mowers or clippers only on dry grass or dry shrubs.
7. Go fly a kite—far away from electrical wires. If your kite string should get snagged on or near a power line, do not try to remove it yourself. Call your local Northeast Utilities office.
8. Stay away from downed electric lines—at least 10 feet away—they may be live. Report all downed lines to your local Northeast Utilities office immediately.
9. When used safely and properly, electricity is a valuable part of our lives. At Northeast Utilities we want you to know how to use it safely. Because nothing is more valuable than you.

Region Progress reported on area cable TV

VERNON — If all goes well, the town of Vernon may have cable television in one and one-half to two years. Mayor Marie Herbst said.

In response to many requests by townspeople, the mayor has been investigating, along with South Windsor and other area towns, the possibility of a cable franchise to serve area towns.

Besides contacting the Public Utilities Control Authority Mrs. Herbst has also asked the Capitol Region Council of Governments to assist in the matter.

She said she contacted David Sheehan, an engineer with the Public Utilities Commission and he told her that a study recommending franchise areas for the 48 Connecticut towns that do not have cable service, has been completed and will be reviewed by a consultant.

Resolutions on agenda

SOUTH WINDSOR — When the Town Council meets tonight at 8 at the Town Hall it will have three resolutions to act on.

Councilman Bruce Braithwaite will read a resolution to accept, with regret, the resignation of Elizabeth A. Warren from the Library Board of Directors.

Councilman Sherman Tarr will read a resolution to authorize Richard Sartor, town manager, to hire a part-time, temporary person to assist in the preparation of the town's annual report.

Course on Uganda offered at UofH

HARTFORD — An intensive one-week, three-credit course on the status of former African colonies will be offered Monday through Friday, July 28 - Aug. 1, at the University of Hartford.

Title of the senior-level course, which will meet from 9 a.m. to noon and 1-4 p.m., is "Special Studies in Public Administration: Colonization and Decolonization in African Territory," with emphasis on the Republic of Uganda.

The course will be taught by Kenneth R. Gladish, a former British civil servant and an expert on Uganda. Gladish is senior lecturer in politics and Director of Studies, Combined Social Sciences Program, at the University of Reading, in England.

Gladish is coming to Hartford for the 1980-81 academic year in a faculty exchange arrangement with Dr. James Wilson, professor and chairman of public administration in the University of Hartford's Barney School of Business and Public Administration.

Prof. Wilson, who earned his doctorate at Syracuse University, will teach at the University of Reading. Dr. Wilson joined in the University of Hartford faculty in 1974 after serving as a state educational official in Springfield, Ill.

An honors graduate of the University of Manchester, Gladish has also studied law, economics and social anthropology at the University of London.

From 1952 to 1962, he served in Great Britain's Overseas Civil Service, initially as a district officer in Uganda and then as adviser to the Government of Uganda, then a Ugandan state. He left the civil service after Uganda became independent on Oct. 9, 1962.

Eggs topic of contest

SOUTH WINDSOR — Oliver Butterworth, the author of the popular children's story, "The Enormous Egg," will be the special guest who will award the prizes to the winners of the "Eggscentric Contest" being sponsored by the South Windsor Public Library.

The contest is open to children ages 8-17 and they are to guess what will be hatched from an enormous egg nested in the library. The contest will start July 14 and end Aug. 22.

Participants in the contest are asked to come to the library once a week for six weeks and listen to one tape recorded clue each week. The clues will lead to the identity of whatever is in the egg. After all the clues have been heard, one guess per child may be submitted in writing only. Special forms will be provided by the library.

The contest was inspired by an enormous egg which was displayed at the student art exhibit held in the library during May. With assistance from their teacher, John Scialuto, students Kim Tomolonia and Candy Morgester of the Orchard Hill School, constructed the egg to illustrate the story.

In the original story a dinosaur, whatever it will hatch from the library's egg is in no way connected to the original story. The egg is due to hatch on Sept. 5. Those to participate must register in advance at the library.

Hospital gets new machine

VERNON — The new pediatrics department at Rockville General Hospital has obtained a new instrument that provides constant electronic monitoring of the heart rates of children suspected of having cardiac abnormalities.

The instrument, known as a datascop, can identify conditions that may not be discovered through conventional checks of a patient's blood pressure, heart rate and body temperature. Hospital officials said it has a highly audible alarm that alerts hospital officials with saving the life of a two-month old infant.

Hospital officials said the machine eliminates the need to transfer young patients to the hospital's intensive care units.

Hearing set on beerfest

BOLTON — A public hearing on how townspeople feel about a planned special event will be held July 15 at 7 p.m. at the Community Hall.

The hearing will be on the application of George Negro, West Street, for a three-day beerfest with country rock and roll bands at the Bolton Riding Academy on West Street (route 85). A crowd of 2,000 is estimated.

The mayor said Sheehan told her selectman has the authority to issue permits for special events and may require that a public hearing be held.

Negro is planning the event for August 22, 23, and 24 from 3 p.m. to 1 a.m. daily. Rain dates are August 29, 30 and 31.

Negro's first application for a special event was turned down by a Selectman Henry Ryba for legal technicalities because it wasn't filled out properly.

Borona-Tinklepaugh

Joanne M. Tinklepaugh of Oakville and John J. Borona Jr. of Goshen were married July 5 at United Methodist Church in Waterford.

So mark it in your calendars and keep these dates open: Thursday evenings, 5:30, starting July 17 and Mondays 10 a.m.-1 p.m. starting July 21st. Hope to see you there!

The market which ran last year from August right through the end of October, on Wednesday mornings is back with double the exposure. The market is now going to run twice a week: Monday mornings from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. and Thursday evenings, 5-9 p.m.

The first market will open on Thursday evening, July 17, and the first Monday market will follow on the 21st. The location will remain the same as last year, the St. James Church parking lot, on the corner of Main and Park Streets.

The additional evening market was added to make the market available for those who work days and were unable to attend last year. The morning market has been retained for last year's regular customers and anyone who's more comfortable with morning shopping. The morning hours were moved up to 10 to 1 for those people who work on Main Street who might want to stop during their lunch break.

We've had a lot of feedback about last year's market over the winter. Many have been asking if and when will re-open. Some have said how much they enjoyed it. Others have said they could never find it. Exposure seems to have been a problem. We made a search for another spot in the downtown area, wanting to keep the market available to the downtown residents, especially the elderly.

But all the other places special zoning, special vending permits, or had even poorer exposure. So, back to the St. James parking lot with apologies to those who weren't too fond of the hill and encouragement to anyone who can't find us to not give up.

Hopefully, there won't be quite the same problem finding the market this year compliments of Heritage Savings and Loan, whose donation enabled us to buy supplies for a sign. We now have a three by five wood sign, which will hang on the St. James lawn facing Main

Young broker claims bias

EAST HARTFORD - Carl E. Smith wants to be a real estate salesman and his father, Frank Smith, who owns a Hartford real estate firm, thinks he should be, but the 16-year-old son says he won't let him be one.

The 16-year-old East Hartford youth is fighting the state and Sunday has filed a suit in Hartford Superior Court claiming that the Real Estate Commission's denial of his license renewal is unconstitutional and discriminates against him on the basis of age.

Carl Smith now works as a real estate salesman for his father's firm, Frank Smith Associates Inc. of Hartford. Smith has applied the commission's decision in April not to renew his real estate license and Judge Norris L. O'Neill has ruled the youth may retain his license until the court appeal is completed.

Larry Hannafin, executive director of the Real Estate Commission, said April the commission revoked Carl's license because of a state law in effect since October that prohibits a broker or salesman from being younger than 18.

Smith said now his right to have a Marine Corps League

McEnroe and Chris point towards U.S. Open next

WIMBLEDON (UPI) - For the losers, there still may be some solace in the near future.

All the honor, all the royal glory of Wimbledon, went to Bjorn Borg and Evonne Goolagong Cawley. He won it for a record fifth time, and she capped two comebacks by winning the women's crown for the second time, nine years apart.

For John McEnroe and Chris Evert, the losing finalists, they're now pointing toward the U.S. Open, beginning the last week of August, and both have good reason for confidence.

McEnroe will be the defending champion in the Open, a tournament his chief antagonist, Borg, has yet to win. And Evert, flush with successes in the Italian and French Opens, following her brief withdrawal from tennis, has won the Open four times, and was runner-up once in the last five years.

"I've been feeling motivated in the past eight weeks, and now it's a matter of confidence," said Evert, who was upset by Goolagong, 6-1, 7-6 (7-4), in Fridays Wimbledon final. I lost a little bit of my confidence last year. I lost nine or 10 matches, and that did something to my confidence.

Perez on top in RBI race

BALTIMORE (UPI) - Tony Perez had good reason to smile. After all, the veteran first baseman had just hit his 12th home run of the season and still leads the American League in runs batted in.

Asked what he was doing right lately, Perez quickly replied, "Everything."

Everything included hitting his 12th AL home in the fifth inning of Sunday's 6-4 victory for the Red Sox against the Baltimore Orioles.

It also included his third win in the four-game series to Baltimore, which moved the Red Sox to 9 1/2 games behind the New York Yankees in the American League East.

Bruins' choice

BOSTON (UPI) - Veteran goaltender Gerry Cheevers has ended months of speculation by accepting the head coaching job of the Boston Bruins, the team he backed out of two Stanley Cup championships in the early 1970s.

His only disappointment is that he will be resting the next three days in it for both leagues, said Perez, who played in seven All-Star games during his 13 years with the Cincinnati Reds.

"I can't really be disappointed," he said. "I'm having a good year and, actually, the real disappointment was the loss in the nightcap. Mike Falowski tripped and Panaro dived for the RBI single to pace the locals."

Hospitals combine under one roof

BOSTON (UPI) — Four major teaching hospitals with a history of pioneering in medical research will join under one $110 million roof this week in the largest merger of its kind in the United States. Patients will begin moving into the new 680-bed Brigham and Women Hospital in the city's Roxbury section Thursday, culminating two years of planning for the Harvard University-affiliated institutions. Now, we will bring to one spot the great and varied expertise of the four specialty hospitals and provide a greatly expanded range of services to patients under one roof, said Dr. Robert Petersdorf, president of the new complex. It should eliminate a lot of duplication. Peter Bent Brigham, Mount Breck Brigham, the Lying-In and Parkway Divisions of Boston Hospital for Women have been technically merged for some time, operating independently under the name of Affiliated Hospitals Center.

Patients will be housed in a 16-story tower shaped like a four-foot clover with support services in the core area. A two-story underground complex contains operating and recovery rooms, laboratories, radiology and nuclear medicine centers, and other treatment areas. The new building will accommodate the first two weeks of July are traditionally a low occupancy period, officials said. To finance the venture, hospital planners obtained the federal guaranty loan mortgage in U.S. health care history - a bond issue of $94.5 million in first use.

Peter Bent Brigham is where an iron lung was first used to help a polio victim and is where the world's first kidney transplant and heart valve replacement took place. The other Brigham hospital is the only major teaching hospital in the country devoted to arthritis and related diseases.

Rail breakdown possible

GREENWICH (UPI) — State transit officials are holding their breath hoping that the aging generating plants for the New Haven line commuter trains will make it through the summer while its backup is being repaired. Otherwise, it could be a long hot summer for Amtrak passengers and the 65,000 commuters who ride the line daily, said William J. Lynch, director of rail operations in the Department of Transportation. Were holding our breath, he said, referring to his agency's fears the air-borne generators at the Cos Cob plant may break down. A coal-fired boiler which filled in for the other three oil and gas-fired boilers during an electrical power outage last fall is being shut down for 12 to 16 weeks to be converted to gas-firing. The coal-fired boiler is also used as backup during peak periods. The boilers provide steam for the plants two turbine generators, which are more than 50-year-old and tend to break down. We just don't have the ability to replace these systems, they require daily maintenance to keep them going, Lynch said. The Cos Cob plant itself, built in 1907, has to hang on until August 1981, when the railroad traction power supply is converted from the present 25-cycle power to 60-cycle power so commercial utility power can be used. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency ordered the plant closed after area residents filed suit over the facility, which then spent about 4,000 tons of coal dust and fly ash into the air each year.

Abby
By Abigail van Buren

A Healthy Cure For Kissing Cause

DEAR ABBY: Last year our hospital auxiliary had a fundraiser that proved hugely successful. We was put on an "Evening in Monte Carlo," and the biggest money-raiser of all was our "kissing booth." It was staffed by three attractive college girls (daughters of members) who volunteered their services.

Kisses lasting three seconds were sold for $10 each, kisses lasting seven seconds went for $25, kisses lasting 15 seconds went for $50, and all kisses over 15 seconds went for $100. One man bought three $100 kisses and said it was the best tax-deductible donation he ever made!

Although we're planning to have a dinner dance this year, some of the women want to have the kissing booth again, but some objections have been raised on the grounds that it's unhygienic and, therefore, risky. What is your opinion?

FOR A GOOD CAUSE

DEAR ABBY: For an anti-septic solution to a tongue-in-cheek problem, provide the kisses and the kisses with germicidal cocktails. You'll make a fortune and minimize the risk.

DEAR ABBY: We are employed as librarians in Iowa City, Iowa. The enclosed item from your column was recently found in our suggestion box.

"Dear Abby: I am a girl, 12, very inexperienced, and I need to know the correct way to kiss a boy. My mother says it will just come naturally, but in case it doesn't, can you give me a few pointers?"

Should the girl be breathing? I heard she isn't supposed to make a "smack" sound when kissing a boy, but it's OK for kissing relatives, right?

Another question: Am I supposed to move my head? Or do I just move my lips? One last thing: What am I supposed to do with my nose? Never. I heard that.

"Dear Abby: You should not put anything in your mouth, not even with relatives. It's not necessary to move anything. And all you do with your nose is breathe through it."

Attached to the above exchange was this message: "Dear Librarians: How do you know how to answer questions like this one? They would be a lot more interesting than how hot or cold the library should be, or if business students belong here. Dedicated Reader."

Abby, we thought you might enjoy the following reply offered by our resident problem-solver:

"Dear Dedicated: We answer all questions found in the suggestion box. Up to this point we haven't received any of the type illustrated here. We have a feeling, though, that you really are concerned about this particular problem and are a bit hesitant to admit your own lack of experience in this area. Rest assured we will do our best to help you. File this under 'Youth Wants to Know.'"

"I, the girl who inquired, not quite breathing. CPR measures are employed. Contrary to what you may think, mouth-to-mouth resuscitation is not the best way to kiss. Don't make a 'smack' sound unless your partner starts to do more than kiss, in which case a firm smack applied to his face would be both appropriate and effective."

"Once your lips are engaged, moving your head can be kind of messy unless your partner moves with you. Work this out beforehand."

"Leave your nose in the middle of your face. Most noses look fine there."

set at his five-heart contract. Alan: "After that remark, I think I can work out South. Just answer one question: Did he lead a spade at trick two?"

Oswald: "Yes. East won and led a second trump." Alan: "I'm ready now. South won in dummy, led the jack of clubs and let it ride. He didn't care if the finesse were going to lose because West could not lead another trump. He had shown up on the second trump lead. As we can see that club queen is in the West hand. If West takes his queen South will be able to ruff one spade with dummy's last trump, draw trumps and eventually discard his last spade on the long club in dummy. But West doesn't take his queen at that first opportunity."

Oswald: "You have it. West let the jack hold. Now South overtook that possibility and led a second club to his ten. He intended to make an overtrick by ruffing his last spade, coming back to bid hand with the king of clubs, drawing trumps, etc."

Alan: "Then West produced his queen. Led a third club and East ruffed." Alan Sontag

Tricks of arson trade told in insurance manual

HARTFORD (UPI) — Arson specialist John Barracato slowly sweeps his flashlight beam across the floor of the smoking tenement. He suspected it had been firebombed but was unprepared for his next discovery.

"I looked into the room and felt the sobs rise in my throat. Four children were on the bed — their mother lay across them," Barracato says in his recollection of case histories.

He later questioned a 14-year-old Brooklyn, N.Y., street gang member known as "Lemon Tree." Under Barracato's prodding, the youth told how the fire was set to appease a heroin trafficker.

Barracato, 47, spent 10 years as a New York City fire marshal and was the co-author with Peter Michelmore of a book detailing cases he investigated. He now specializes in arson control and investigation for Aetna Life & Casualty Co., and has written a manual outlining various tricks of the arson trade.

The manual is a primer for law enforcement personnel and claims agents for the Hartford-based company. If the arson-minded know there's a good chance of being caught, Barracato says they'll think twice about setting fires.

Barracato writes in his manual about the "degree of aggression" in a fire usually being immediately apparent to the seasoned investigator. Evidence left in fires "talks" to him, he says.

In the Brooklyn fire, he found the timbers in every room were charred. In five separate spots the charring went right through the flooring and most of the way through the beams underneath. The nature of the charring indicated an accelerant was used.

The motive was revenge — the violence in starting the 1974 fire in five places made Barracato suspect some kind of war was going on — and its intensity plus the use of accelerant suggested males instead of females committed the crime.

That's because female arsonists don't often use accelerants. They rarely set profit-motivated fires either. There are set for revenge or attention, and their fires are generally less violent than those of males who seek total destruction.

He says while most school fires are started by boys aged 9 to 12, wastebasket fires can be traced to girls in the same age group. The first female who volunteers to clean up afterwards is usually the culprit.

Experience has also shown Barracato that if a married woman sets fire to her bed, it generally means she is bored with her marriage. By destroying the bed — which is a symbol of security — she is attempting to change an unacceptable situation.

"But if she piles all her husband's clothes on the bed first and then lights a fire, it means she suspects or has caught him having an extramarital affair. By burning her husband's clothes she is expressing her anger and at the same time preventing him — she thinks — from further philandering," Barracato says.

While arsonists set fires for profit, revenge or attention, pyromaniacs work from a different perspective.

"A common misconception about the pyromaniac is the Hollywood image of him standing in front of a burning building, watching the flames with a look of ecstasy on his face," Barracato says.

"But a pyromaniac is interested only in the incipient stages of the fire he sets. He achieves gratification from setting the fire and, when he has accomplished that, he simply walks away."

Automobile arsonists leave a lot of clues. A motorist fed up with his car might take it to a familiar place to torch it — say some secluded wooded area on the way to work — while a car thief would have no reason to travel such a route.

In almost every case of automobile arson, gasoline is usually used, and the arsonist discards the container nearby, making it convenient and less time-consuming for investigators. And there's the problem of the return ride home.

Usually, the arsonist will prevail on a family member — the spouse in almost all cases — to follow him to the scene. That's why Barracato says tire tracks can tell an interesting story.

When an owner burns his car, he frequently removes the license plates. This gives him extra time to falsely report the car as stolen and file a claim with the insurance company before the car is identified as his.

But when he removes the plates at home, he reattaches them with wire or string so they can be easily removed when he reaches the torching area. Barracato thus tells investigators to look for remnants of wire or string.

Here's another suggestion Barracato has for investigators:

Look on the floor beneath the driver's seat for the ignition key because when many owners report their cars stolen they say they have the only set of keys.

"But what they really do is drive the car to the scene and, in their haste to set the fire and get away, they leave a key in the ignition. The heat build-up causes the key to fall out of the ignition onto the floor, where it remains intact."

Concert planned at shell

MANCHESTER — The 1st Company Governor's Foot Guard Concert Band will present a patriotic and old-fashioned band concert Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Manchester Bicentennial Band Shell.
