Teacher shortage

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — The 8,000 member New Hampshire Education Association warned Friday that plans to use uncertified teachers in state classrooms this fall threaten the quality of education.

Education Commissioner Robert Brunelle has announced that school districts will be allowed to hire uncertified teachers this fall due to a shortage of math, science and industrial arts instructors.

But Brunelle said uncertified teachers will have to qualify for New Hampshire credentials by the end of the year or face termination of their employment.

In a letter to the education commissioner released Friday, the 8,000 member teachers group said "there are strict requirements that a teacher must complete to be qualified to work with students. To place an uncertified person in the classroom threatens the quality of education which we are all trying to protect."

NHEA president William Shanahan said the state would ask itself "why don't I have enough math, science and industrial arts teachers?"

Answering his own question, the teacher's union president said low salaries are to blame.

For period ending 7 p.m. EST 7/19/80. During Saturday, thunderstorms are expected in Florida and the Upper Mississippi Valley. Elsewhere weather is fair in general.

The weather

Scattered showers cooled the sizzling South by a few degrees Friday but relief was minimal and fleeting. Meteorologists saw no end to a month-long heat wave blamed for 1,000 deaths in the Southwest, South and Midwest.

Psychics attending the three-day Psychic Entertainers Association convention in St. Louis predicted the killer heat would abate in precisely 10 days. Perhaps they forgot Missouri dubs itself the "Show Me State."

"If they know so much, how come they're holding their convention here," quipped one sweating St. Louis resident as temperatures climbed toward the 100-degree mark again.

Oven-like temperatures baked much of the country and the death toll climbed to 1,000. Missouri reported 255 heat-related deaths — the most in the country. State officials said the number of heat deaths in a normal year usually is about 10.

Arkansas reported 120 deaths, Texas 94, Alabama 92, Tennessee 81, Kansas 74, Georgia 63, Illinois 60, Mississippi 56, Oklahoma 54, Louisiana 24, Florida and Kentucky 5 each, South Carolina 7, Ohio 6, Iowa and Nebraska 5 each, Indiana 4, North Carolina 2 and Colorado 1.

In St. Louis, the morgue was full and ambulance drivers were working double shifts.

"The other day we had seven hearses backed up at the morgue to get bodies out," said Dan Emerson, director of the Disaster Operation Office in St. Louis.

Nearly 100 heat-related deaths have been reported in St. Louis and authorities say they believe there are more bodies yet to be discovered.

Anderson strong

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Independent candidate John B. Anderson is a very strong presidential hopeful and could have a profound effect on the November election, Joseph E. Brennan said Friday.

"He's a live, viable candidate—at least to the point of forcing the election in the House of Representatives," said Brennan, who learned to respect independents in 1973 by watching James B. Longley win the Maine gubernatorial race.

Anderson, a veteran Republican congressman from Illinois, withdrew from the GOP presidential race and announced April 24 he was running as an independent.

Democrat Brennan — the only governor to support the presidential bid of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. — feels the Anderson candidacy could hurt the Democratic party's chances nationally in November.

"If he's in the picture, he'll hurt the Democratic card," Brennan said.

"Anderson is just nine points behind the leaders (in certain polls)," he said in an exclusive interview with UPI. "Anyone within nine points of the leaders is a serious contender, a damn serious contender."

So far Anderson is barred from the Maine ballot because his campaign failed to file qualifying petitions with Secretary of State Rodney S. Quinne to meet the April 1 deadline set by state law.

Anderson's campaign lawyers are fighting the Maine deadline in U.S. District Court. They told Chief U.S. District Judge Edward T. Gignoux July 11 that the deadline was too early and infringed on constitutional rights of independent candidates.

Reagan blasted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy charged Friday that the Republican party and its champion, Ronald Reagan, have "summoned America backward" to the days of a bitter cold war abroad and social inequality at home.

In a speech at American University, Kennedy also attacked President Carter's administration and warned Democrats the election will be handed to Reagan "on a silver platter" if they "cling to the fool's gold of failing policies."

The Massachusetts Democrat also made it clear he has no intention of quitting his twilight career for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Kennedy, his face tanned and his hair longer than during his primary campaign, re-emerged from a brief Democratic election to be handed to Reagan "on a silver platter" if they "cling to the fool's gold of failing policies."

Aroian feted on retirement

MANCHESTER — Martin Aroian, chief pharmacist at Manchester Memorial Hospital for more than 25 years, was honored at a retirement dinner Thursday at Flano's Restaurant in Bolton.

About 100 friends, family members and co-workers attended the tribute.

Aroian joined the staff of the hospital in 1954 as the chief, and at that time, the only pharmacist.

Under his leadership, the Hospital Pharmacy has grown to its current staff of five registered pharmacists, plus pharmacy technicians and secretaries. He helped establish the Pharmacy and Therapeutics Committee of the Medical Staff, developed and implemented a narcotic control and distribution system, created and edited a pharmacy newsletter for both physicians and nurses to update them on current information on drugs and on additions or deletions to the hospital's formulary, assisted with the teaching of the pharmacology course for nursing personnel and supervised the hospital's participation in the Pharmacy Group Purchasing Program with other hospital pharmacies in the state.

It was during Aroian's tenure that the hospital moved from its rather crowded quarters on the hospital's ground floor to its spacious, modern quarters in the basement of the new East Building which was part of the hospital's Phase I Construction Project in the early 1970's.

A graduate of Hartford Public High School, Aroian received his pharmacy degree from the University

Maine leader blasts treaty

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Gov. Joseph E. Brennan Friday argued resuming of a proposed U.S.-Canadian fishing treaty, saying it is "absolutely impractical" and unfair to New England fishermen.

"I think we should go back to the drawing board," Brennan told a Statehouse news conference. "I want to see a treaty, but I want a treaty that is fair to our fishermen."

"Fish just won't cooperate by swimming into the right net at the right time to comply with the treaty," he said. "It's absolutely impractical."

Negotiations leading to the proposed East Coast Fishery Resource Treaty resulted from disputes following the 1976 adoption by both countries of a 200-mile offshore fishing limit.

Overlapping boundary claims and disagreements over the treaty's provisions for territorial jurisdiction and the implementation of prospective administrative objectives.

The groups will also receive a report on the activities of the Zoning Board of Appeals and on zoning violations.

A review will be made of hazardous waste legislation and zoning regulations pertaining to rear lots and additions for commercial and industrial buildings along with a review of condominiums and condominium conversions.

An open space designation for vacant lots on the lake will also be discussed as it pertains to a letter received from A. Carlson.

Wages for top officials keep pace with industry

HARTFORD (UPI) — Salaries for Connecticut's top ranking appointed officials will increase by up to 11 percent to help keep the jobs competitive with regional government and private industry, Gov. Ella Grasso said Friday.

The pay raises for 85 commissioners, deputy commissioners and executive directors, will cost a total of $315,238 when spread over an entire salary year and will be phased in, in many cases, over two years.

"Our goal is to place appointed officials in Connecticut government in a more competitive position relative to the marketplace and to demonstrate the state's recognition of the value of the men and women who make important sacrifices when they accept important assignments in state government," Mrs. Grasso said.

Health Commissioner Dr. Douglas Lloyd, under the new salary plan, will be the highest paid appointed official. He now earns $48,638 and by March 1981 will have a salary of $52,400. His pay includes $4,600 for being a medical doctor.

Mrs. Grasso is paid $42,000-a-year.

The increases approved by the governor were based on a modified study by Hay Associates, a Philadelphia-based consulting firm. The review was commissioned and paid for by the Hartford Insurance Group.

Hays Associates, which recommended salary hikes of 16 percent to 45 percent, said collective bargaining

Does shopping around really cut food costs?

By MARTIN SLOANE
You will be able to test your supermarket savvy from time to time with my new National Supermarket Shopping Test. Here is the first question:
Which is the best strategy when looking through the supermarket advertisements in the food section of your newspaper?
(a) You figure that prices are about the same at all supermarkets in your community. So, you save time—and gasoline—by planning menus around the bargain-priced specials at the store closest to home.
(b) You check all the advertisements to determine which supermarket has the week's best specials. Then you do all your shopping for the week at that store.
(c) You circle the interesting main-dish specials at all supermarkets that advertise in the newspaper. Then you try to find other bargains for the items on the "I need" list that you have compiled during the preceding week. Finally, you visit at least three supermarkets, picking up specials for most of the items on your shopping list.
Let's pretend your family lives in the same neighborhood and has the same food preferences as mine. Here's how you would have come out using each strategy during one recent week.
If you chose the first answer and shopped at the store closest to home, you would have found some good specials in its full-page newspaper advertisement. Those specials included whole fryers at 49 cents a pound—the lowest price for any store in the area.
At this store, the total cost of the 68 items on my typical shopping list was $106.70 before subtracting my coupon savings.

If you picked the second answer and shopped at the store with the most appealing specials, you would have shopped at the supermarket farthest from home. This store advertised homeless bottom-round roast at $1.89 a pound, fresh cod fillets at $1.39 a pound and the 13-ounce can of Folger's Flaked Coffee at $2.29. So, the third answer is the right one for supermarket shoppers. Shopping at those six stores took a little more than two hours, and the gasoline cost was less than $1. My savings were well worth the effort.

CLUES ACROSS:
4. FUSE; not fuse. One's nature usually to have the lights OK again is hardly new "fuse."
6. RENUNCIATE; not denounce. "Renounce" is apt to lead him to RENUNCIATE (his own) sinful ways, rather than to denounce them in a general sense.
7. STAR; not star. Complimenting, one says that a star is able, rather than "shout" "too dry," as the garden soil (LOAM) may be.
8. STAR; not star. Regarding "STAR," specifically, is not of permanent concern.
11. DEAL; not deal. People generally go where they can get a better DEAL, whether or not it's a question of a meal. Also, a better meal can be expensive and not especially popular.
12. DUST; not dust. Any certain piece is necessary to DUST (it) is a question of not being unable to enter rather than "get" in certain pieces.
13. FLOW; not glow. Electric current is understood to FLOW, of course, but electricity in itself does not have any glow.
14. FEW; not few. He having "few things to say" is a positive sort of quality; this tends to clash with the "undecided nature of the clue's phrase (you are the Impressionist)." Also, since the expression "few things to say" implies approval anyway, there is no reason for the clue to add, "You are the Impressionist."
15. THIS; not this. The clue refers more aptly to a condition that can sometimes be quality corrected (though in a "bad" case, presumably, not by the very real word) than this (the clue (LAMP), since one assumes a lamp to be more or less permanent anyway.
19. ARAB; not arab. The clue has a certain air of referring to metaphorically.

Phone revamp slated
VERNON—Robert Dotson, director of administration met with representatives of National Telephone Co., a subsidiary of Action Corp. of South Windsor, to discuss the possibility of putting a new phone system in for the town offices in the Memorial Building.
Although the plan doesn't include the Board of Education phones, Dotson said about $30,000 a year is being spent for town phones and about the same amount for board phones.
The town has about 70 phones. Dotson said he discussed with representatives of National, the needs and objectives of the town. He said he gave them information and asked them to come back with a cost analysis of a system that would suit the town's needs.
He said the cost analysis will be on rentals and purchases and lease-purchase arrangements.
Dotson is seeking proposals from any other interested private phone companies but to date has only received the one from National.
Under the arrangement the town would receive a bill from the private company and also one from Southern New England Telephone Co. for the service of the lines.

School registration
COVENTRY — Registration for school children who have recently moved to Coventry has been set for Aug. 18 and 19 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.
Parents are asked to call the school child will attend to make an appointment for registration.
The schools and the phone numbers are: Coventry High, 742-7346; Captain Nathan Hale School, 742-7334; Coventry Grammar School, 742-7313; and Robertson School, 742-7341.
At the time of registration the child's birth certificate, any health records, proof of immunization and any past scholastic records should be presented.

Policy adopted by corps
COVENTRY — A new policy on non-emergency ambulance calls has been instituted by the Volunteer Fire Association due to increasing difficulties in providing routine transportation on short notice.
The association asks that it be given at least 24 hours notice for routine ambulance transportation to or from medical facilities. Notice can be given by using the emergency phone number of the Tolland Mutual Aid dispatch service.
The Coventry Volunteer Fire Departments provide an ambulance service staffed by qualified Emergency Medical Technicians. It is available day and night and is paid for through local taxes.
In the event the Coventry ambulance isn't available for an emergency, the dispatch service will ensure that an ambulance will be sent to the scene.

Police restore order

MIAMI (UPI) — A tough new police stance restored order Friday to the predominantly black Liberty City section, plagued by two days of sniping and firebombings that officials said was the work of one or more groups of "well organized and well armed hoodlums." A curfew imposed Thursday remained in effect, and a highly visible force of about 300 police patrolled the troubled 170-square block area. A company of 400 National Guardsmen also remained on alert, ready to go to the aid of police, if needed.

In addition, the National Weather Service promised more rain. A deluge Thursday night cooled the troubled area. "It's the quietest night we've had in a year," said Capt. Douglas Hughes. "The community is getting tired of it too." One warehouse fire was the only serious incident reported Thursday night and there were 29 arrests for curfew violations. Four of those arrested also were charged with carrying concealed weapons. "The weather was a help, naturally, but I also believe there was a fear of our manpower and commitment," said Assistant Public Safety Department Director Robert Dempsey. Dempsey and other officials, including Gov. Bob Graham, said they believed violence Tuesday and Wednesday which resulted in injuries to at least 35 persons, including six policemen, was the product of at least one organized group. "The problem is one of a group of fairly well organized and well-armed hoodlums attempting by the use of guerrilla tactics to take over a housing area," Graham said.

Vacationers steak dinner turns into an experiment

By MARY KITZMANN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — It was an experiment of sorts. Dick Lawitzke just wondered if anybody cared. So he attended the Board of Directors meeting Tuesday and dumped the charred remains of a steak in front of Mayor Stephen Penny.

It is there a Chamber of Commerce or a Better Business Bureau? he asked.

This was the second step of an experiment the California resident never expected to begin. He, his wife and mother simply expected an enjoyable steak dinner at a Manchester restaurant.

Lawitzke and his wife are traveling through New England, Canada, Pennsylvania and Michigan. Stopping here and there, they plan to see relatives along the way back to Carmel, Calif.

The couple stopped in Manchester, taking in the town and the Hartford area. But when their dinner order, Mr. and Mrs. Sirloin, arrived Tuesday, the vacation stopped and the experiment began.

Lawitzke asked for the manager after receiving a black sirloin. The manager, according to Lawitzke, said he would get back to their table. But, Lawitzke said, he never came. Instead the waitress offered an after-dinner drink.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. markets and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 61,991,408 shares, compared with 55,403,530 traded Thursday.

Volume soared to $8,040,000 shares in the institutional stampede sparked in part by Commerce Department economist Courtney Slater who said the recession hit with full force in the second quarter and a recovery may be under way by December.

She made these remarks after the government reported the second-quarter gross national product, which had risen 1.1 percent in the late afternoon, battled back to gain 1.89 points to 923.98, the highest level since it finished at 924.10 on June 27, 1977.

The closely watched average gained 32.85 points for the week, the best performance since it jumped 40.18 points the period ended April 26. The Dow has climbed about 160 points since mid-April and brokers said this was one of the reasons for the late profit taking.

Other averages, such as the New York Stock Exchange, reached all-time highs. The NYSE index rose 0.31 to 69.84 and the price of a share increased 16 cents. Advances topped 927 to 669, among the 1,891

Crash, arrests end car chase

MANCHESTER — Two men were arrested after a chase through town ended in a car crash on North Main Street early Thursday morning. Nelson Lizardi, 18 and George Baez, 19, both of Holyoke, Mass., were charged with second-degree larceny after Preston Drive said he saw them driving in a car he had recently sold to a friend, about 12:45 a.m. Not recognizing the two teens, Stratton asked them who they were, but they ignored him, and left the Center Street scene.

Stratton said he gave chase on his motorcycle at speeds in excess of 70 mph, until the car finally struck a utility pole near the intersection of Main and N. Main streets.

The two youths who were unhurt, fled the scene and were finally apprehended at a restaurant on Tolland Turnpike. They were presented in East Hartford Superior Court Thursday morning.

A previous police report had said O'Connor's five-shot pump action shotgun disintegrated accidentally as the officer stepped back when Brown got out of his car.

Later a citizen's ad-hoc committee decided O'Connor, who had investigated a double shooting just an hour before stopping Brown's car, was "locked in fear and panic" and fired deliberately.

Sullivan said the new report still maintained the shooting was accidental. He said the committee had reviewed the prior police department reports and clarified them.

Scott Dickie of 214 Henry St., Manchester, pauses to reflect on his current project-pochoir.

Dickie checks out one of the many stencils used to add various color to the black & white sketch he made of Provincetown Harbor.

Learning pochoir skills

By BETTY RYDER
Family-Travel Editor

A Manchester artist whose interest in art blossomed when he was a student at Bowers School and Illing Junior High School, has pursued his career and is currently branching out into the art of pochoir.

Scott Dickie of 214 Henry St., graduated from Manchester High School in 1972 and received a bachelor of fine arts degree in painting from Hartford Art School at the University of Hartford. Currently he is residing in Dennis, Mass., where he is self-employed and is a sub-contractor at the Martha Berrien Studio on the Cape's Northside.

Pochoir (pronounced post-wor) developed from stenciling which was used for centuries in Europe as means of reproducing color prints.

The black and white sketch which Dickie is currently stenciling is of Provincetown.

"First I took some photographs of the harbor area, then proceeded to make a black and white sketch. I returned to the scene several times for reference and tried to remain loyal to the actual scene with few variations.

"It takes a good black ink and quality stock paper which I was able to obtain in Boston, he said.

In the art of pochoir, Dickie explained, one must make a different stencil for every color and it commonly calls for twenty to thirty different colors.

"Then one must analyze the colors and paint each tint on a separate polystyrene. These colorotypes are then pasted down on the stencil sheets and the colored patches cut out. Of course, no pieces of stencil can be left as unattached islands. If a color completely surrounds any part, it must be built up from cutouts in two or three separate sheets. The colors are then applied with stencil brushes, one for each color," he said.

Dickie, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Dickie Jr., also does chalk drawings and acrylic paintings.

Dickie learned pochoir from Martha Berrien who operates one of the very few pochoir workshops in the United States today. She takes in black and white work and, with the help of two assistants in her shop and other helpers around the country, colors it with stencils and returns it to printers or publishers.

Miss Berrien learned the technique in a New York sweatshop in the late 1920s, when she first worked as a letterer and later was promoted to stencil-colorist. Through the years, she perfected her own method of pochoir.

Reflecting on his career, Dickie credits his father, and John Jackson, librarian at Manchester's Mary Cheney Library, for instilling him with interest. "My dad is an engineer and when I was younger I got used to seeing him working on sketches at home," he said.

"When I was in high school, Mr. Jackson encouraged me to continue with art and let me illustrate the new book lists at the library."

At 26, Dickie is a man of many talents and admits that while he spends most of his time painting, he does have other goals. For instance, someday he'd like to build a solar house and being a self-taught guitarist, he may even put together a jazz group.

But, in the meantime, he's content with his art and excited about his pochoir, which marks the first time he is using one of his own sketches—that of Provincetown.

Dickie's current sketches are available at Hartford Framing Co. in East Hartford or by calling his Manchester home at 649-6543.

Wings of Morning

Friends are to be prized

By CLIFF SIMPSON

I recall a ally old German who taught that language at Harvard back in the twenties, and it was his lone comment now and then about life that I liked much better than his teaching. My memory tells me that my grade then was not a very good one. One time he got to talking about friendship and in stating that a man was indeed fortunate if over the years he found one, two, or even three friends at the most, I feel that it is a very small number of "friends" but it does point up how precious they are. Cherish the ones you have - and recall the familiar advice "If you want friends, be one." Perhaps this poem will add insight to your experience of friendship or help you in your search for it.

Our Friend - tenderly placed in soil by loving hands - soil enriched by nutrients, warmed by the sun, moistened by a steady, gentle rain. Germination. A green stalk - reaching for the source of warmth, stretches above the life-giving earth, vulnerable to wind, stray footsteps and destruction. Yet, as each day passes - it is more firmly rooted, growing taller and stronger, nurtured by loving care, strengthened by trust in God's plan.

Two buds appear among the leafy fronds - both reach for sustenance and life each striving individually, independent, but rooted together. Nourishment. A brilliant crimson flower opens in glorious array. A bright gold blossom unfolds complementing the red. Each flower - distinct, complete within itself. God's special creation, unique, fragrant, rich in beauty and fullness of life. Yet both arising from a single stalk - united, sharing similar goals, complementing each other's assets, surviving stormy rains, celebrating sunshine and warmth, growing together in fullness, bringing a shared beauty and richness for all to appreciate and enjoy - Anne Flynn

The Bell

I can remember very well preaching one Sunday morning when suddenly the bell began a frantic clanging. It was a heavy bell and shook the whole building. Actually it was used to announce a fire - and the fire company was supposed to disconnect it in order not to disrupt the morning service. Immediately when the service was ended, the bell was connected again for an emergency. I was reminded of this interruption when I came across this brief reference.

"This bell," said the well-meaning sexton as he stood in the vestibule with the bell-ringer in his hand, speaking to a party of visitors to the church, is not rung every Sunday because of a bad crack. It is only rung as a warning bell in case of fire, or a flood, or a visit from the Bishop, or some other calamity."

Christian unity

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

For many of those outside the drive for Christian unity, the pace of progress seems tortle-like and the continuing division of the church remains a scandal that discredits the message of Christianity's founder, Jesus Christ. And more recently, the divisions, both between and within denominations, seem to generate more centrifugal forces than the small steps taken toward unity.

In Roman Catholicism, for example, Pope John Paul II's apparent hardening of doctrinal line, suggested in the disciplinary measures taken against theologian Hans Kung, have overshadowed the wide variety of Roman Catholic-Lutheran joint celebrations of the 46th anniversary of the Augsburg posers a bright contrast to Maine's nearby capital city of Augusta - called "Disgust" by Hallowell, Maine (UPI) - The romance and intrigue that drew West Indian traders to this riverfront town in the 18th century is still thriving. The closely knit community, once the nation's largest city, rejected pressures for urban sprawl and created a tiny renaissance center bustling with cafe charm and proud vitality.

Hallowell was once a great shipping capital on the Kennebec River and home to a famous grange industry. It has staged a colorful comeback after years of decay and neglect. Artists, writers and musicians now mingle with antique dealers whose numerous shops line downtown Water Street. It makes for an unlikely melange in a city isolated inland from the fashionable tourist towns on the Maine coast.
