Hospital budget cut $2.6 million

HARTFORD—A $2,600,000 cut in Manchester Memorial Hospital's operating budget request for next year was made by the Commission on Hospital and Health Care Tuesday night.

The commission, which is still in dispute with the hospital over the current operating budget, reduced next year's proposed budget from the hospital request of $25,187,000 to $22,527,000.

The commission made the cut by applying standard formulas to the budgeting process. One of the issues in the current dispute is that the commission applied standard formulas and the hospital insisted the formulas were not applicable.

Only $800,000 is involved in the current dispute, however. What reaction the hospital administration will have to the new $2.6 million cut is not yet clear. A spokesman for the hospital said the administration is concerned about the reduction.

Apparently the only reference Tuesday night to the current budget argument came from one commission member, William Lavery, an attorney, who urged the commission staff to write to the office of the state's attorney and try to speed up litigation. The question is before the Superior Court, but no hearing has been held yet.

In making the $2.6 million cut, however, the commission used figures which reflected last year's authorized budget, not the higher budget under which the hospital is operating while the litigation is pending. It effected the commission staff recomputed the budget request to have a basis on which to make its decisions.

The budget will be the subject of a public hearing Aug. 18 at 1 p.m. in Conference Room A at 304 Capitol Ave.

In addition to cutting the proposed operating budget, the commission also cut the capital budget by $48,182 from $377,300 to $329,118. Of that cut, $21,000 was in new medical equipment, $24,000 in new non-medical equipment, and $3,000 in replacement equipment.

The effect of the cuts, both in the operating budget and in the capital budget are now being studied by administrators.

Local Democrats split on open convention call

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER—In the face of calls by state Democratic leaders for President Jimmy Carter to release his delegates to the national convention, local politicians are far from united in their stands on the issue.

Democratic Town Chairman Ted Cummings said the calls could be traced to a variety of factors, culminating in the developing uproar over Billy Carter's ties to Libya.

"The camel (Carter) was coming down to its knees, and this (Billygate) just busted its back," Cummings said. "Carter's family sure doesn't help him any. They seem to take delight in it (making waves). Billy Carter is not a funny man, and anybody who acts like he does to damage the office of the presidency deserves everything he gets."

Cummings added his belief that delegates should be freed to form the rule binding them to the candidate they were elected to represent.

"If a decision was made in March in good faith, but in August following that decision, it meant committing suicide, would that be good sense? It's a rhetorical question, but it applies," he said.

Barbara Weinberg, an early Carter supporter in 1976, campaign coordinator this year, and Carter delegate to the convention, said she was opposed to changing the binding rule. She said running a campaign is time consuming, and without the rule, is an exercise with limited utility.

"If the president releases his delegates and still wins, I guess that would be a sign of strength but I think a sign of strength is that he came in there as a winner," Mrs. Weinberg said.

"I don't happen to think it's suicide (once the president takes on Ronald Reagan), and can talk to the people about his accomplishments. We're going to be in good shape. I think it's going to be a tough election, but I think Carter is going to win," Mrs. Weinberg added.

Dot Brindamour, town committee vice chairman and Kennedy delegate, said she felt the floor should be opened to nominations and the binding rule changed. "It would give the party a better chance of victory in the fall. Besides, the rule was never there before, the Carter people made that rule," she said.

Dominic Squatrito, chairman of operations for the Carter campaign in the state during the primary and a Carter delegate, said the rule is not new, but rather the effect of an evolution in rules that began 10 years ago.

"Right now, my sentiments are against changing the rules because it would be a step back in time. It is a philosophical question. Are we going to go back to the power brokers deciding who they want to vote for, or will we go with the will of the people as expressed in the primaries?"

Squatrito said.

Squatrito said the move in the last 10 years has been toward more grassroots involvement in the political process, at the expense of powerbrokers. "Using the word 'open' to call for a change in the rules is a ploy by political bosses to go back to the way it was, with no primaries," he said.

State Sen. Marcella Fahey, a Carter delegate from East Hartford, said she intends to vote for Carter regardless of his release of delegates or any change in the rules, and she said most delegates will do the same thing.

"I am a Carter delegate to represent the people. I am obligated to vote in their stead for him," she said.

Those concerns were voiced yesterday by two other Carter people, alternates Patricia Low of Glastonbury and Michael Whelton of East Hartford.

The rule referred to says all delegates are bound to vote for the presidential candidate they were elected to support for at least the first ballot unless released in writing by the candidate.

It also states that delegates who seek to violate the rules may be replaced with an alternate of the same presidential preference. A Democratic State Central Committee spokesman said the rule can be voted upon at the convention.

He's got to stand up once again and have a second trial by fire," he said.

The mostly junior lawmakers are trying to get Carter to drop his insistence on a proposed rule that would bind delegates to support the candidate for whom they were elected in the primaries or caucuses.

That rule has not been adopted yet and will be voted on by the convention next month.

The White House, however, remains opposed to the open convention idea. "We don't plan to release our delegates," White House press secretary Jody Powell said late Tuesday.

The congressmen are sensitive to the charge they are attempting to steal the nomination from the president.

O'Brien said that a charter revision would be necessary to change his interpretation of the petition. "The charter," he said, "They should change the charter if they want petition to go to a referendum."

The MPOA collected about 1,000 signatures to force a referendum question. Under Town Charter, if 5 percent of the voters or about 1,400 petition a referendum must be held. According to the charter provisions, it is legal.

In a similar petition effort in Woodstock, the courts found that the taxpayers did have a right to limit the mill-rate growth. Mrs. Sadoski has used this to validate the MPOA's efforts.

However, Louis Veronesi, 47, of 219 West St., Torrington, who was looking for coins with a metal detector in woods near exit 92 Tuesday at about 8:30 a.m. discovered the bag containing only seven checks totalling $100. Another 30 cards and envelopes were found scattered around empty.

Tax freeze plan detoured

By MARY KITZMANN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER—The town has decided not to act, either in the form of an adverse ruling, or a Board of Directors vote, on the tax freeze petition proposed by the Manchester Property Owner's Association.

This appears to be a detour, if not a roadblock, for the association which planned legal proceedings after receiving an adverse ruling on the petition.

The association had been waiting the 45 days, which a Town Charter interpretation required, for the Board of Directors to act. But Kevin O'Brien, town attorney, said today that no action is planned, after the 45 days expires since the petition was filed in the Town Clerk's Office. The 45 days expires Aug. 2.

O'Brien said that further research of legal statutes showed that a public hearing is not required on an illegal petition. O'Brien had ruled the petition invalid shortly after the association proposed it in March.

The petition would "freeze" the mill rate and allow revenue increases only through direct increases in the Grand List.

O'Brien maintains that only the Board of Directors can set the mill rate and act on fiscal policy, according to Manchester Town Charter.

Using this opinion, O'Brien said that the matter does not have to go on the Board of Directors agenda, opening it to public comment.

The petition's "illegality," according to O'Brien, also means that town does not have to reject or accept the petition.

"We don't intend to take any action on the matter, pending further activity," O'Brien said. "Under the Town Charter the board has 45 days in which to act. But the board shouldn't act on a petition that is illegal."

The association President Elizabeth Sadoski, said this week, that the MPOA had to wait until receiving an adverse ruling on the petition. An adverse ruling opens the way for the association to procure a writ of mandamus, ordering the town clerk to schedule a referendum. If the town would not schedule a referendum, because of doubts of the petition's legality, the matter would be decided in the courts.

But the town's decision not to issue an adverse ruling, or take a vote on the petition, detours his avenue. The next move, however, is still left with the Manchester Property Owner's Association.

The association could try to force town action, through court orders to act on the petition; before another court battle on the petition's legality. Another avenue would be to seek a charter revision, to make the petition legal.

Either way the association's hopes to put the question on the November presidential ballot appear to be dashed.

When proposing the petition, the association hoped the Board of Directors would immediately refuse it at the June meeting. The board however, cited charter provisions which mandated a 45-day wait before acting on the provision. This meant, if the petition ever came to a referendum, a special ballot would be needed.

Mrs. Sadoski continues to call the 45-day wait a ploy to insure the question does not appear on the November ballot.

"If it intended to refuse it on grounds it is illegal, they could have done that in June," she said.

Some wedding loot found

By KEVIN FOLEY
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER—A white satin bag containing about $190 in checks was discovered Tuesday morning off West Middle Turnpike, just several hundred feet from the spot where a newlywed couple lost it early Saturday morning as they returned home from their East Hartford wedding reception.

The couple, George and Deborah Bostock of Chestnut St., Vernon, stopped to change drivers at exit 92 eastbound as they drove home at about 1:30 a.m. Apparently the bag containing an estimated $1,000 in cash and checks presented as gifts to the couple, fell from the car in the process. Realizing the loss when they arrived home, the couple returned to the scene only to find a gift envelope stuck to the car's bumper. The bag was found by a passerby who turned it over to the police.

The Bostocks were forced to postpone their planned honeymoon to New York because of the loss, while state police, in response to the bride's mother, issued an appeal to the finder hoping it might be returned if the person knew the circumstances surrounding the loss.

However, Louis Veronesi, 47, of 219 West St., Torrington, who was looking for coins with a metal detector in woods near exit 92 Tuesday at about 8:30 a.m. discovered the bag containing only seven checks totalling $100. Another 30 cards and envelopes were found scattered around empty.

The East Hartford Police Department, which is investigating the case and calling it a "theft," has no suspects thus far. Police sources speculated that the bag's finder left the traceable checks behind and took only the cash.

In spite of the "no questions asked" stance taken by state police who offered to act as an intermediary for the finder if he had a change of heart Monday, spokesman Adam Berluti said the discovery of the opened envelope Saturday "proved the money was found and the finder was probably going to keep it."

East Hartford police investigators were reluctant to comment this morning, saying only that the bag was in the Bostock's and their investigation was ongoing.

Neither George nor Deborah Bostock could be reached for comment.

Oil refineries cut prices

Declining oil demand has prompted three of the nation's largest refiners to reduce their prices for decontaminated domestic crude oil between $1 and $1.50 a barrel in the first round of price decreases since the mid-1960s.

Gulf Oil Corp., Atlantic Richfield Co. and Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) Tuesday said they were lowering their posted prices for various grades of uncontrolled U.S. crude oil. Crude is priced as it comes out of the well.

"The oil market is soft," a spokesman for Gulf's refining and marketing operations in Houston said. "We haven't seen across-the-board price cuts for crude since the mid-1960s."

Gulf said the changes in its posted prices for decontaminated domestic crude — newly discovered oil, "stripper" crude from reservoirs and oil from tertiary recovery — were retroactive to July 1.

Explosion kills soldiers

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Three soldiers loading and unloading a truck were killed in an explosion and fire that rocked an ammunition bunker at the West Coast's largest nuclear submarine base.

Half a ton of fireworks, confiscated at the Mexico border, were being transferred Tuesday from an Army ammo bunker for disposal in the desert when a fire in the truck apparently touched off the blast.

Shah leaves $50 million

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — The deposed shah of Iran, who was buried in exile mourned by a handful of dignitaries, left behind $50 million "at the most," willing it all to his family, a spokesman for the late monarch's family said.

That fortune has been demanded by Iran to free 52 American hostages. And Iranian militants holding the captives have said the fortune is more like $20 billion to $30 billion — in money and assets.

Khomeini invites turmoil

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini is showing reluctance in taking any part in solving the nation's deepening political crisis, inviting new turmoil for the infant government.

The Islamic regime's difficulties in fully establishing a parliamentary government will ultimately delay a decision on the fate of the 52 American hostages, who today spent their 27th day in captivity.

Prison escape solved

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Three of four dangerous fugitives from the Georgia State Prison were flushed from a house with tear gas today and surrendered without resistance to police, who later found the body of the fourth convict in a reservoir in an adjoining county.

No shots were fired and no one was injured, said police. The FBI tentatively identified the dead man through fingerprints and tattoos as Troy Leon Greig, 32, of York, S.C., one of four convicted killers who fled the Georgia State Prison in a daring escape Monday.

Officers captured the other three men, Timothy McCorquodale, 27, of Alma, Ga.; Johnny L. Johnson, 26, of Logan, Utah; and David Jarrell, 25, of Greensboro, N.C., after firing two grenades of tear gas into a house on nearby Lake Wylie.

Israel given deadline

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The General Assembly overwhelmingly demanded Israel begin withdrawing from Arab territories by Nov. 15 to pave the way for a Palestinian state. But the United States voted against the resolution and Israel said it would disregard the measure.

The assembly, the world body's parliament, concluded a six-day emergency session on Palestine Tuesday by approving the comprehensive resolution, affirming the Arab Palestinians' right to return to their homes and establish their own state.

Despite the overwhelming vote — 112 for the resolution, seven against, with 24 abstaining — observers noted the Nov. 15 deadline in the resolution effectively put off any possible action on the forcing implementation of the measure until after the U.S. presidential election.

Caucuses tonight to pick candidates

Nominees for both Republican and Democratic candidates for the 10, 11th, 12th, and 13th General Assembly Districts will be chosen in East Hartford and Manchester tonight.

The candidates in the districts for the party nominations are unopposed, and no challengers are expected to surface. The endorsements will be the official party nod. Most of the maneuvering for candidacy took place far in advance of tonight's town committee meetings.

For Manchester's Democrats, the candidates expected to receive endorsement are Malcolm Barlow, assistant town attorney, for the 12th District, and Phyllis Jackson, former town director, in the 13th.

After several other candidates including Manchester Mayor Stephen Penny bowed out of seeking the nomination, a clear endorsement was left to Mrs. Jackson.

The pivotal point for Penny in seeking the nomination was losing the support of the town's 8th voting district. The district leaders firmly supported Mrs. Jackson. She was soundly defeated by incumbent Rep. Richard Willard, who is not seeking re-election.

A Republican candidate announced yesterday for the 11th District seat. Former Republican Town Committee member David Carlson said yesterday he will formally announce his candidacy at tonight's Republican Town Committee meeting.

Carlson, 46, of 141 Beacon Hill Road will be making his second bid for the seat. He was soundly defeated by incumbent Rep. Richard Willard in 1978.

In addition to serving on the Town Council, Carlson has been a member of the Inland Wetlands Commission, the Board of Tax Review and the Board of Selectman.

He is a member of the town's Insurance Committee and is an alternate member of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston. The GOP Town Committee will meet at 8 p.m. in the Raymond Library to nominate Glenn Widwell for the 10th District. Joyner won the position from Ted Cummings, Democratic Town Committee chairman, two years ago in a close election.

Joyner is seeking the nomination unopposed at the Republican Town Committee tonight. Elsie "Bibi" Swenson seeks the Republican nomination in the 13th District, a position she lost to Rep. Francis Mahoney two years ago.

If she receives the endorsement she will run against Mrs. Jackson for the seat for South Windsor's delegates as being the "spoiler" in his losing the party endorsement.

Myette, undecided in whether to wage a primary fight, could, if he entered, draw support from Glassman from the crucial hometown area of South Windsor.

Myette has denied the charge he participated in the trade-off, giving him primary rights, and denying the nomination to Glassman.

Glassman, warming up to the primary battle, also challenged Walsh and Della-Bitta in a debate. Both have said informally that they would participate.

In announcing his plans to primary, Walsh said "that he had always believed that the best and healthiest way to determine which candidate ought to be the Democratic Party's standard-bearer is by allowing all the Democrats in the district to vote in their leadership."

But Ted Cummings, Democratic Town Committee chairman, and leader of Manchester's delegation which staunchly supported Glassman, criticized the primary.

Cummings maintains that the four-way primary damages the political party's role to provide leadership.

The winner of the Sept. 9 primary will face former Manchester Director Carl Zisser for the 12th District seat and the Republican endorsement with all but five of the delegate votes.

Royal estate deal

Britain's Prince Charles is house-hunting — to mixed reviews from his countrymen. He's said to be negotiating for an 18th-century Georgian mansion — 347 acres, 15 bedrooms, eight bathrooms, four main reception rooms and six cottages — all for $2.38 million.

What titillates his fans is the fact the place also has a "nursery wing," and that sparks hope for the royal household — $2 million — finally may be contemplating marriage.

But the price tag is giving coronaries to critics. Roars Labor Party MP Reginald Race. "It is bloody outrageous on a day when the government is cutting social security benefits for millions of people."

Not to worry. If he buys it, he'll pay for it from his own private revenues as prince of Wales.

The Supreme Court clerk's office confirmed Tuesday that the justices who decided the case involving the performance had not agreed to an administrative panel at the University of Connecticut had denied the motion for reopening the appeal.

Think it's unfortunate that they didn't agree to a reargument of the case because we think the Supreme

Court's decision seriously misconstrued the legislative intent behind the Freedom of Information Act, said Peartman. "The legislative history which we cited in our brief clearly demonstrates that."

There is really nothing we can do with respect to that particular case. But the commission does intend to do what it can to change the Supreme Court's interpretation," he said.

Peartman said the commission would ask the Legislature to clarify the law, an issue which would most likely be submitted to lawmakers at their next session next year.

In a unanimous ruling released June 30, the justices found the UConn program review committee's memos were preliminary drafts and notes and thus exempt from disclosure under the law.

The court said there was no "illuminating legislative history" spelling out how the lawmakers intended the law to apply to the situation. Legislative intent is a key factor often used by the court to interpret and apply laws.

Instead, the justices turned to the federal Freedom of Information Act and based their conclusion on its provision which exempts interagency memos from public disclosure.

But Peartman said his agency had submitted nine pages of documentation supporting its claim the Legislature intended the law to open virtually all aspects of government.

Peartman, who had not yet received formal notice of the court's refusal to hear new arguments, said the justices had in effect amended the law to exclude "the deliberative process of public agencies."

"There's a possibility that the courts have misread the law to what the intent of the Legislature was in this regard," he said.

Panel seeks clarification of right-to-know statutes

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state Freedom of Information Commission today looked to the Legislature to clarify a part of Connecticut's right-to-know law which the panel says was "seriously misconstrued" in a recent court decision.

The commission decided to ask lawmakers to rework the law after the state Supreme Court denied a motion to reconsider the ruling in the case involving the University of Connecticut's executive director and general counsel.

The Supreme Court clerk's office confirmed Tuesday that the justices who decided the case involving the performance had not agreed to an administrative panel at the University of Connecticut had denied the motion for reopening the appeal.

Think it's unfortunate that they didn't agree to a reargument of the case because we think the Supreme

Court's decision seriously misconstrued the legislative intent behind the Freedom of Information Act, said Peartman. "The legislative history which we cited in our brief clearly demonstrates that."

There is really nothing we can do with respect to that particular case. But the commission does intend to do what it can to change the Supreme Court's interpretation," he said.

Peartman said the commission would ask the Legislature to clarify the law, an issue which would most likely be submitted to lawmakers at their next session next year.

In a unanimous ruling released June 30, the justices found the UConn program review committee's memos were preliminary drafts and notes and thus exempt from disclosure under the law.

The court said there was no "illuminating legislative history" spelling out how the lawmakers intended the law to apply to the situation. Legislative intent is a key factor often used by the court to interpret and apply laws.

Instead, the justices turned to the federal Freedom of Information Act and based their conclusion on its provision which exempts interagency memos from public disclosure.

But Peartman said his agency had submitted nine pages of documentation supporting its claim the Legislature intended the law to open virtually all aspects of government.

Peartman, who had not yet received formal notice of the court's refusal to hear new arguments, said the justices had in effect amended the law to exclude "the deliberative process of public agencies."

"There's a possibility that the courts have misread the law to what the intent of the Legislature was in this regard," he said.

Oil profits tax hearing is partisan free-for-all

HARTFORD (UPI) — The legislators were supposed to host testimony on the state's new 2 percent tax on oil company profits. But the hearing turned into a loud, highly partisan free-for-all over the legislation.

The Tuesday forum in the Capitol Senate Chamber was on the crippled tax, which was supposed to generate a budget-balancing $60 million, and corresponding price hikes by four oil companies.

The tax became an election year monkey on Democrats' backs because a federal court judge struck down a clause prohibiting oil companies from making consumers pay for it. The state is appealing.

Before the first witness was called, Sen. Russell Post, R-Canter, started arguing with Senate President Joseph Paulso, D-Hartford, over the "staged proceeding" which he said was "self-serving."

Post later received enough backing for a motion to have the committee publicly denounce the tax and urge it be repealed, forcing Post to call for a recess. Republicans have called for a special session to dump the tax.

"You've now brought the oil companies to suit the blame," Post said angrily. "But the blame really lies right here with those legislators who favored that tax."

"When Deputy Attorney General Peter Gillies got up to testify Post asked him if there was any possibility the pass-through provision wouldn't survive the current court appeal."

"I don't think it would be appropriate for me to answer," Gillies said.

Post asked the question several different ways. Prete repeatedly ruled him out of order. Post then said Prete should be embarrassed that he was not allowing questions at a hearing.

"If there should be any embarrassment, it should be at that end of the table," said Prete, glowering at Post.

Post asked Anthony Milano, secretary of the Office of Policy and Management. If there was any chance consumed into a political circus by someone who is politically ambitious," Prete said to Post after he gave him the list. "I'm embarrassed for you Senator Post."

"Senator Prete," Post said, "what you label as politics is the business of this state."

The committee broke for lunch after receiving statistics from Energy Undersecretary Thomas Fitzpatrick on oil supply and demand in Connecticut. A few members straggled back at 1:45 p.m.

Sen. Philip Robertson, R-Chester, moved to end the meeting. A 6-5 vote to adjourn was passed at 2:50 p.m. after the full committee returned.

People started filing out — except for a few.

"Mr. Chairman" hollered Allen Peichert of West Hartford, who said he came to testify as a taxpayer.

"The public has not been heard. We come in the rain and we want to be heard!"

Two jailed in tap case

LITCHFIELD (UPI) — A former state Department of Consumer Protection investigator and part-time Winsted patrolman has been sentenced to six months in jail for wiretapping a home and an office in 1978.

Dems will primary in Fourth District

MANCHESTER — A primary for the state Senate seat in the Fourth District is formally in the planning with two of three contenders notifying the secretary of state's office.

Rep. Abraham Glassman, South Windsor, and Rep. "Skip" Walsh have filed for the primary in the contest to succeed Sen. David Barry of Manchester.

The two representatives will challenge David Della-Bitta, Glastonbury, who received the Democratic nod at a convention last week.

The third candidate, Robert Myette, is undecided whether or not to wage a primary battle. He has been canvassing support the past few days trying to decide.

Myette has until Aug. 6 to file with the secretary of state's office.

Glassman had been the frontrunner going into the convention with 29 of the required 32 delegates for the nomination committee. Della-Bitta, however, won the nomination with exactly 22 votes, from a coalition of Glastonbury and the smaller hometown areas of South Windsor.

But Ted Cummings, Democratic Town Committee chairman, and leader of Manchester's delegation which staunchly supported Glassman, criticized the primary.

Cummings maintains that the four-way primary damages the political party's role to provide leadership.

The winner of the Sept. 9 primary will face former Manchester Director Carl Zisser for the 12th District seat and the Republican endorsement with all but five of the delegate votes.

Scandia Lodge members are reminded to bring a lawn chair. In case of rain, the event will be held at Emanuel Lutheran Church.

Federal deficit

An anticipated small surplus in the fiscal 1981 federal budget appears to have melted to a prospective substantial deficit as the budget saga continues in Washington. This despite a law requiring a balanced budget effective in '81.

Originally, last January, President Carter submitted a proposed $615.8 billion budget with a $15.8 billion deficit. But last spring Congress combined expenditure cutting with tax adjustments to produce a balanced budget that even showed a small surplus.

Many solons claimed the balancing act was artificial and government still would wind up in the red. Their warnings apparently were prophetic.

Now, reports from the capital definitely point to a large deficit. Estimates up to $25 or $30 billion have been quoted. Contributing to the problem have been the recession, accelerated defense costs, and Congress' defeat of Carter's oil import fee, say news dispatches.

It was on Oct. 10, 1978 that President Carter signed public law 95-435 which states: "Beginning with fiscal year 1981, the total budget outlays of the federal government shall not exceed its receipts."

The law certainly was due after a long string of annual deficits. But budget trends raise a question of how serious official Washington takes its own laws. We realize there are contingencies that can dictate drastic budget changes. On the other hand, have Congress and the president really sliced all the fat out of the '81 budget?

There's talk of a tax cut on both sides of the political aisle. Over-burdened taxpayers

It's time for more resolve in Washington to hold the line on spending. We believe more and more lawmakers are conceding that deficits should be reserved for emergencies such as wartime while building surpluses instead of debts in peacetime. We urge more work on the 1981 budget - cuts to offset the added contingency spending.

What did Billy know—and when?

By LEE RODERICK

WASHINGTON—What did he know about it—and when did he know it? That haunting question from congressional investigators in the Watergate scandal finally drove its subject, Richard Nixon, from office six years ago. It is being asked again of Jimmy Carter in the seamy scandal involving his brother Billy.

So far there is no hard evidence that the president acted improperly by trying to immunize Billy from the legal consequences of his actions on behalf of Libya. But the circumstantial evidence is growing that the president knew something was amiss—and failed to take action to stop it.

This much is known: Billy and a friend from Plains, Ga., traveled to Libya in the fall of 1976 as guests of that government, a rabidly anti-American and terrorist-prone regime. Billy returned home and subsequently hosted a delegation of his new Libyan friends in Plains.

By March of 1979, the Justice Department began investigating Billy to see if he was illegally acting as an unregistered foreign agent for Libya. It tried but failed to get him to so register. Then in May or June of this year, the department learned of the $220,000 Billy had received in "loans" from Libya, and its investigation quickened.

On June 4, President Carter's appointments secretary, Phillip Wise—an old family friend—was questioned for the second time by the Justice Department about reports that he paved the way for Billy to receive secret government briefings on Libya before traveling there back in 1976. Wise says he has "record or independent recollection" of talking to Billy about the trip.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Arab dealings strung with strange coincidences

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON—President Carter's backdoor dealings with the Arabs are beginning to raise eyebrows. So far in my investigation, the president's involvement is limited to a series of strange coincidences.

Coincidence No. 1—A Senate investigator's memo alleges that Carter's banker, Bert Lance, began his banking manipulations—juggling funds, allowing overdrafts, authorizing dubious loans and engaging in other irregular if not illegal practices—to cover up his political fund raising. As the principal recipient, Carter sought "to help Lance out of a deepening financial hole before the 1976 election."

The effort continued until January 1978, when two Saudi Arabian businessmen—both loaded with petrodollars, both close to the Saudi royal family—finally bailed out asking. The Senate Judiciary Committee, for one, already has appointed four of its members—two Democrats and two Republicans—to outline procedures for an investigation of the gravest. In a briefing the other day, an exasperated Trottler tried to ward off further queries this way: "Look, we're not much involved in the Billy Carter affair. It's primarily a White House affair, and Justice Department." "Fair enough. Over to you in the West Wing, Jody Powell. On Tuesday (July 22), the White House press secretary spent an hour and a half trying to explain the Billy Carter affair—and why his boss the president didn't contact Billy until early this month to urge him to register as a foreign agent."

Powell is a past master at obfuscating an answer—of keeping a reporter busy writing in a notebook without giving him anything of substance. He is also still Jimmy Carter's brother. While the president can't be blamed for that fact, it remains to be answered why he failed to act publicly before now to put Billy in line.

Less than one week later, on June 10, Billy hurriedly arranged a meeting with the Justice Department to belatedly register as a foreign agent. Billy says he "learned through the grapevine" that Justice was preparing a criminal investigation of him for not registering.

No one at the White House will confirm that Billy was tipped off by Wise or someone else regarding the impending Justice Department action, but the connection appears obvious. At any rate, Billy's registering as Libya's agent stopped the criminal investigation in its tracks and got Billy off the hook for the moment.

But questions regarding possible improper involvement by the president or others are just starting to be asked. For one, already has appointed four of its members—two Democrats and two Republicans—to outline procedures for an investigation of the gravest. Powell: "That I don't know. I can only hypothesize that a reasonably intelligent fellow might have figured that out."

Q: (Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security advisor, saw a foreign intelligence report on Billy in March and called him about it.) "Wasn't that the time for Brzezinski and/or the president to advise Billy that he should register, that he should make a clean breast of everything?"

Powell: "Well, I frankly don't know whether, acting as a broker, middleman, or whatever, between an oil company, if that's what this was, and a foreign government, presumably if press accounts are correct, to be reimbursed by the oil company constitutes acting as a foreign agent—I mean, you see what I'm talking about?"

Q: (Billy allegedly used some of the Libyan money to pay off debts to a peanut warehouse, 82 percent of which is owned by the president.) "This leaves the strong conclusion, you know, that the money from the Libyans went to the benefit of the President... Billy still owes that money to the warehouse... he still is a partner. Are you denying that?"

Powell: "Owing money does not make you a partner, old buddy. I mean, just think about it."

communications foul-up. About this time, my reporter, Peter Peckarsky, began making inquiries about a $600,000 debt that Carter peanut business still owed to the National Bank of Georgia. Suddenly on March 7, the loan was transferred out of the Saudi-owned bank to the Trust Company Bank of Atlanta, Ga.

The trustee who manages Carter's business interests, Charles Kirbo, flew to Saudi Arabia in March to confer with Saudi leaders. Not long afterward, word leaked out that Carter administration favored providing the Saudis with the additional equipment that would give their F-15s offensive capability. This caused another furor in the U.S. Jewish community, and the idea was shelved.

This was followed a few weeks later by a flurry of activity. On March 1, 1980, the Carter administration voted in the United Nations to condemn Israeli settlements on the West Bank. This created such an uproar in the U.S. Jewish community that Carter disavowed the vote two days later, claiming a com-

A study was made by Johns Hopkins University and among its findings it revealed that your heart will last longer, and you will live longer if you go to church. It may sound strange to you, but it is true!

The death rate per 100,000 of those who attend church weekly is about 500 per 100,000. The death rate per 100,000 of those who go to church infrequently is about 900 per 100,000.

So, dear friend, if for no other reason, for your heart's sake, make church attendance a regular part of your life. The Psalmist said: "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the House of the Lord."

So why not make Sunday one of the best days of your life by being present in the Lord's House. If you're poor, your heart good!

Automobile here to stay, state's transit chief says

MANCHESTER—After dining with members of the Manchester Kiwanis Club, Connecticut Transportation Commissioner Arthur Powers told the groups there is no free lunch in mass transit in the state. Powers, whose department is responsible for highways, mass transit, air and water transportation in the state, said the automobile is here to stay and government officials at local and federal levels recognize that fact and are undergoing a change in philosophy about the role of the automobile in the nation's transportation mix.

He said Connecticut is committed to a balanced plan for transportation including rail and bus service. He reminded citizens that rail service is costly and passenger rail transportation is highly subsidized.

He said the proposed reinstatement of passenger rail service between Manchester and Hartford is being considered on the basis of its ability to pay its own way.

Plans proceeding for interstate link

MANCHESTER—Connecticut Transportation Commissioner Arthur Powers told the Manchester Kiwanis Club Tuesday the plans for the I-94-96 connector are proceeding. He said design will be complete by the end of the year for the $26 million 3-mile project. He said the cost estimate is at $180 dollars and would escalate by the time it went to bid in 1982.

Powers said the project is expected to take three to four years to complete.

He said although the state is seeking a balanced transportation plan, officials are recognizing that 77 percent of travel within the state is by automobile. He said steps are being taken to better manage auto-occupancy traffic lanes and removing the toll from the Charter Oak Bridge will help reduce traffic congestion around Hartford.

He said, "The private auto is not going away because it is the last vestige of freedom for the American people."

"We are not willing to pay higher taxes and we are not willing to pay subsidies for rail, so we will continue to rely on the automobile," he said. Powers said his department, in light of budget restrictions, the state of the economy in general and the lack of desire of the public to use mass transit is emphasizing better management of automobile traffic, while seeking to find rail service areas that would require the least subsidy and come the closest to being self-supporting.

He said he is expecting approval of the plan, but noted the federal government is holding up the project because the environmental protection agency is concerned approving the Connecticut route would force Rhode Island to build a superhighway through its fragile watershed area.

Powers dismissed the argument, saying it makes sense to connect I-84 with the Connecticut turnpike in the eastern part of the state.

He said he hopes to hear from the federal government within two weeks that the design of the route can be completed.

Region Firehouse bids opened

By BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter

VERNON—Orlando Annulli & Sons Inc. of Manchester is apparent low bidder of a total of 12 firms submitting bids to construct a new firehouse in Vernon.

Bids were opened by the Permanent Municipal Building Committee Tuesday night. The Annulli bid for $275,000 is $49,100 less than the $324,100 appropriated by voters in a referendum vote last May.

Richard Lawrence of Lawrence Associates of Manchester, the architectural firm that designed the new firehouse, said "It's quite obvious the bidding was very competitive and very tight."

The highest bid submitted by Keenan and Navarro Builders Inc. of Danville, was for $360,000. Lawrence said there was only about $3,000 difference between about half of the bids.

The next lowest bid was that of Alma Construction Inc. of Vernon. Lawrence said the bid doesn't pay anything to support the transit system.

He said federal transportation support levels are at their maximum, the state is not willing to increase its support and the cities and towns are already overburdened in taxation.

Powers said his department can't be influenced by emotion in making decisions on new service. He said the service will be instituted where it will be the most self-supporting and requires the least state subsidy.

"If we can justify rail service to Manchester, then we should look at it," he said.

In the fall a study will be conducted on the rail service to Manchester. Meanwhile, Powers said, the state is dealing with the fact transportation in Connecticut is done 97 percent by the private automobile.

He said priorities include developing a better way to manage automobile ridership through carpooling, using park-and-ride services and other methods to increase the number of passengers per auto.

He said if auto ridership could be increased from the present 1.2 riders per car up to 1.5 riders per car it would reduce gasoline consumption in the state by 15 percent and would also reduce traffic congestion on state road by 15 percent.

He emphasized the need to complete I-84 to the Rhode Island line, solving Connecticut and Rhode Island are the only two states in the continental United States that don't have an interstate highway running between their capitals.

$63,000 for site work; $42,000 for plumbing, heating and ventilation; and $40,129 for electrical work.

John Fiske, chairman of the building committee, told Meier his questioning of Annulli's bid would be reviewed by the committee and Lawrence before the contract is awarded.

Lawrence said the apparent low bidder has to put up a performance bond before the contract is awarded. The building committee gave Lawrence its advance approval to proceed with the process of the contract awarding if he finds everything to be in order with the Annulli bid in order to expedite matters.

The Town Council will have the final say about the awarding of the contract but the building committee wants to go through all of the other normal processes of the town before going to the council. It was decided to give the information to Robert Dotson, director of administration, and to let him go to the town attorney if he feels it is necessary.

Lawrence said he doesn't foresee any problems. He said he wanted to move forward as soon as possible but was further because the building together all parts of the charter pertaining to the operation of the sewage treatment plant.

Up to this year the operation of the plant and the budget was included in the regular town budget under several departments. Because the new treatment plant operations have to be paid for by the users, a separate budget was set up for that. Under the proposed revisions, the new Water Pollution Control Authority would have the responsibility of developing the enterprise budget to be submitted at budget time to the Town Council. Originally some members of the revision commission wanted the authority to have sole power over the budget.

The proposal to be presented at the hearing tonight calls for a seven-member authority which will also handle the day-to-day operations of the town's water company as well as the new sewage treatment plant.

'Good Time Days' start today

By DAVE LAVALLEE
Herald Reporter

GLASTONBURY — Through the end of the week, the center area of town will be filled with clowns, actors and musicians. There will be a pie-eating contest, photography contest and a large auction. It sounds as though the circus is coming to town, but it's not.

Starting today and ending Saturday, the Glastonbury Chamber of Commerce is running "Good Time Days," a four-day extravaganza designed to attract to the central business district.

According to Dee McCoy, the chamber's acting director, the chamber has traditionally run a promotion called "Sale Days." However, this marks the first time that outside activities have been planned along with the "Sale Days" promotion, Ms. McCoy said.

We have always done this to get customers to look at some of the shops and merchants here in the center area of town," Ms. McCoy said.

"We are trying to encourage people to take a good look at what's happening in Glastonbury," Ms. McCoy emphasized.

The festivities begin tonight at 6 with the presentation of the Merchant of the Year Award to Nick DeGemmis at the Blacksmith's Tavern.

Ms. McCoy said DeGemmis has been a retailer in town for 30 years.

"He has been a strong influence in the town's growth and has been a promoter of redevelopment. He is extremely progressive," Ms. McCoy said.

Throughout the four days, merchants will be featuring bargains on their merchandise.

"Our merchants don't buy cheap material for sales. They sell their regular goods at sale prices," she explained.

Tomorrow at 11:15 on the Center Green, the cast of the Youth and Family Resource Center's production of "Carousel" will perform excerpts from the play. Clowns will also be providing entertainment throughout Saturday.

On Saturday, the program begins at 11 a.m. with a show by local magician Dale Miller and then the "Carousel" cast will perform.

At 12:15 p.m., the final segment of the kite flying contest sponsored by Kidstuff will be held in the Derr parking lot.

Following those events, the "Windfall Quartet," "The Roving Minstrels," and "The Light and Lively Barbershop Quartet," will perform respectively on the green.

A photography exhibit will be going on throughout the day at Station 35 Commons and at 2:30 p.m. a pie-eating contest will be conducted.

Ms. McCoy said most of the merchants have contributed to the auction scheduled for 2:45 p.m. to 4 p.m. The proceeds of the auction are going to the purchase of a sound system for the town's Showmobile.

Welles Village Bus to Eastbury: Each Monday until Aug. 25, the Welles Village Splashmobile will run from Welles Village Community Center to Eastbury Pool. It will leave at 10:30 a.m. from Welles Village and pick up the children at Eastbury at 2:30 p.m. for the return home.

NOTE: All children, age 9 and under, must be accompanied by an adult. The bus is available to all Welles Village residents and Glastonbury residents from the neighboring areas. Come join the fun at Eastbury Pool.

Parks and rec events slated

GLASTONBURY—Events scheduled by the Town Parks and Recreation Department include:

Town Band. All instrumentalists are invited to participate—grades 8-12, returning college students, citizens and former Glastonbury High School band members. Rehearsals, open to the public, will be held Wednesday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the GHS band room on July 30 and Aug. 6. Concerts are held Sunday evenings at no charge, on the Hubbard Street Green, 7:30 to 9:30. Bring a lawn chair or blanket and a friend to relax and enjoy an evening of music. Some school instruments will be available for use during the concert session. For additional information, call Mr. Erikson, 633-5231, ext. 322, or Recreation office, extension 390.

Summer Playground Programs are held at Buttonball & Naubuc Schools Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., through Aug. 15, for girls and boys (grades 1 to 6). Structured activities include arts and crafts, sports, games, quiet activities, special events and one field trip every week. From noon to 3 p.m., Tee-League for boys and girls (ages 8 to 9) is underway and is designed to prepare youngsters for the minor leagues. Monday and Tuesday at Buttonball and Thursday and Friday at Naubuc.

Summer Recreation Center: At Gideon Welles for boys and girls ages 13 to 16 (grades 7 to 10), Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Structured activities include arts and crafts, sports, hiking, bicycling trips, swimming, etc. and a special trip every week. Daily bus service is provided from the high school parking lot at 9 a.m. and returns at 3 p.m.

Men's Saturday Morning Doubles: Any men interested in joining the town's Saturday morning Men's Tennis League should call Brian Gillie at 633-5231, extension 392. We will be competing against other town clubs on a regular schedule.

Adult Tennis Lessons: Monday evening

Library plans children's films

By DAVE LAVALLEE
Herald Reporter

GLASTONBURY — There will be a free showing of children's films at the East Glastonbury Public Library in August. The film "Gulliver's Travels" will be shown from 1:30 to 3 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 5. Four nature films will be shown from 1:30 to 2:45 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 12.

The films are shown as part of the library's summer program for children. Parents and other interested persons are invited. The program is under the direction of Ann Hansen, the president of the library's board of directors.

The library is next to the Eastbury School at 1389 Neispeck Road. The library's open hours may be obtained through its answering service when it is closed, telephone 633-5677.

At 12:15 p.m., the final segment of the kite flying contest sponsored by Kidstuff will be held in the Derr parking lot.

Following those events, the "Windfall Quartet," "The Roving Minstrels," and "The Light and Lively Barbershop Quartet," will perform respectively on the green.

A photography exhibit will be going on throughout the day at Station 35 Commons and at 2:30 p.m. a pie-eating contest will be conducted.

Glastonbury play experiment is expanding

By DAVE LAVALLEE
Herald Reporter

GLASTONBURY — She breathes a sigh of relief each spring when they return.

Since Chris Gullotta began directing summer plays for the Youth and Family Resource Center five years ago, she has always been delighted when Linda Evans, the choreographer and Cathy Clinton, the accompanist return for another season.

Mrs. Gullotta is not only delighted to work with them, but she is also quite proud of them.

Both worked on the initial Glastonbury Youth Services production of "The Wizard of Oz." Only 26 youngsters were involved in the show and it was considered an experiment. The play was simply geared to give youngsters in town a good, fun experience during the summer.

The experiment has worked in Glastonbury. Last year close to 400 youngsters participated in "L'il Abner."

Now the experiment, which was on shaky ground in Glastonbury in its early years, is taking hold in two other areas largely because of the efforts of Ms. Clinton and Ms. Evans.

Ms. Evans was appointed as the program coordinator for the Vernon Youth Services Bureau in February and naturally enough the first show being produced this summer is "The Wizard of Oz."

Ms. Clinton is the co-director of the South Windsor Youth Services production, "Annie Get Your Gun."

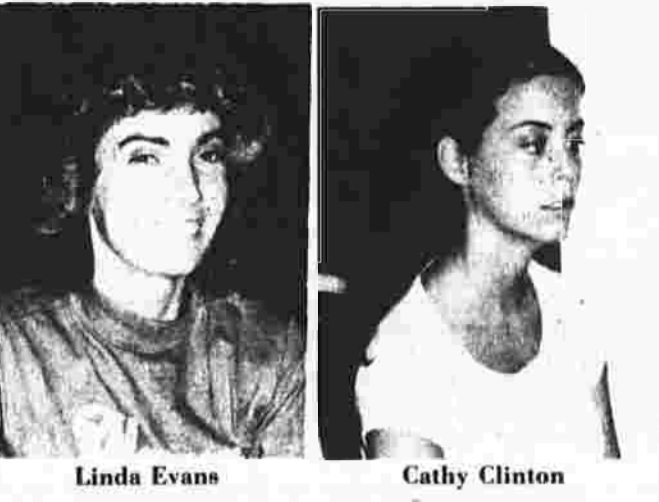

This is her second year in the program. Last year, as if to try to grab some of Glastonbury's good fortune, South Windsor also began with "The Wizard of Oz."

For Ms. Clinton, her job as co-director is steady summer employment, but Ms. Evans' position is a full-time job with the Vernon bureau.

Ms. Clinton began playing the piano for Glastonbury's productions when she was in high school. Now 21, she is going into medical school at Duke University.

How did she wind up in South Windsor? She said her mother saw an ad in the paper looking for an accompanist to help with the South Windsor summer show. Ms. Clinton said when she called the office, she was told the ad had been placed in the paper, but that a summer show was being considered. She went to the office and discussed the show with the Youth Services personnel and was hired.

Ms. Clinton, a Glastonbury resident, said Glastonbury has been a

are usually heard while she is sitting at the piano. She motions to the youngsters in the South Windsor production with a smile.

"This year the kids have been very quick about picking things up," she said about the South Windsor group.

"For music they are a quick bunch." "This type of program really works," she continued. "There are little ones who come in here crying, but they lose a lot of their inhibitions when they get on stage. It does great things for their confidence."

Mrs. Gullotta has helped her immensely, she said.

"Anyone who works with Chris gets a lot of help," she said.

South Windsor's YSB production of "Annie Get Your Gun" will be presented Friday and Saturday nights at South Windsor High School at 7:30. Admission is $1.

Mrs. Gullotta had worked with Ms. Evans in West Hartford before she was hired by Glastonbury.

"When she, (Chris), got the job, she looked me up as a choreographer," Ms. Evans said.

"Chris and I have always worked well together," she said about her work during the six productions.

Ms. Evans also did the choreography for the very successful youth Glastonbury production of "Godspell," which played three nights at the "Old Place."

"This was a real story and each actress and actor touched the audience," Ms. Evans said as the Glastonbury cast warmed up.

Even though she is involved with Vernon's YSB, she does not foresee ending her work with Glastonbury.

"It's nice to see kids come back. Chris is great to work with," she said.

She has been living in Vernon for seven years and two years ago she said she started fighting to get a program similar to Glastonbury's started in Vernon.

"I suggested this to the director and invited him to see the production in Glastonbury. When he saw the program, he said the town had to have it," Ms. Evans said.

However, that did not guarantee her an automatic position in Vernon.

"I had to apply like everyone else. I wanted the job, but I still had to go through the formalities. Even if I didn't get the job, I still wanted Vernon to have a program like this," the blond haired woman said.

There are 150 youngsters involved in the Vernon production, according to Ms. Evans.

The community involvement is becoming more and more evident because the phone continues to ring more frequently," she said.

Ms. Evans, who has worked with youngsters in her own studios, said the program gives youngsters something positive and creative to do.

"This kind of a program brings the audience in and it also gives the kids a chance to share their experiences."

Even though her only work has been as a choreographer in Glastonbury, she said she does not anticipate any major problems in her first year as a director.

"To be a good choreographer, it means more than teaching dance. You have to completely understand the show and that is what I have tried to do in Glastonbury," she said with a smile.

Ms. Evans, whose role in South Windsor is nearly a carbon copy of Mrs. Gullotta's role in Glastonbury, said she initially held workshops to find out what the interests were.

"I suggested this to the director and invited him to see the production in Glastonbury. When he saw the program, he said the town had to have it," Ms. Evans said.

However, that did not guarantee her an automatic position in Vernon.

"I had to apply like everyone else. I wanted the job, but I still had to go through the formalities. Even if I didn't get the job, I still wanted Vernon to have a program like this," the blond haired woman said.

Early ruling planned on Anderson line suit

HARTFORD (UPI) — Independent presidential candidate John B. Anderson should know by the end of the week whether he'll be literally independent or host to unwanted company on his third-party ballot line in Connecticut.

Chief U.S. District Court Judge T. Emmet Clarke Tuesday heard a second day of arguments in the suit filed by Sen. William Curry, D-Farmington, over which office-seekers can ride on the Anderson line in November.

Clarke said he would have a decision by the end of the week, but the first question was whether his court had jurisdiction over the matter and he hoped to have.

"I always like state issues decided in state courts, if that's possible to do," Clarke said at the conclusion of testimony Tuesday.

Curry wants everyone but Anderson cleared off the Anderson Coalition ballot in Connecticut. At issue is the Secretary of the State's policy of allowing any candidate to share the Anderson line on a first-come, first-served basis.

More than 130 Republicans and Democrats have taken out petitions to appear on the third party ballot. One set of petitions is handed out for each elective office from the U.S. Senate down to legislative seats.

John Berman, Curry's lawyer, told Clarke the only fair thing was to take everyone off the ballot except Anderson.

"Justice can only be done by cleaning the line and ending any possibilities of deception," he said.

Sharon Burger, who is representing Anderson's interests in the case, said the candidate didn't want anyone else on his ballot because he didn't want voters to think he endorsed the other candidates or that they were supporting him.

Ralph Elliot, a lawyer representing the state Republican Party, said Anderson should be the only candidate on the ballot so he could run "unnumbered by the baggage" of a slew of unknown candidates on his ticket.

Minimum security prison scores high in standards

HARTFORD (UPI) — The minimum-security Enfield Correctional Institution has received the highest score ever recorded in becoming Connecticut's second prison to win accreditation from a national prison standards group.

Corrections officials Tuesday viewed the status accorded the prison by the Commission on Accreditation as evidence of the state's progressive penal policies which may be found lacking in other states.

"Some don't want it (accreditation)," said Julie Lewin, the Corrections Department's accreditation manager. "It's too meaningful, too progressive. They don't want outsiders coming to their facilities."

"Enfield, which is considered to be a top facility, found it benefited from the accreditation process," she said. "They had to put many policies and procedures into writing, guaranteeing a uniformity of standards."

I-84 off ramp set to reopen

HARTFORD — State Transportation Commissioner Arthur B. Powers has announced that the off-ramp from Interstate 84 eastbound to Interstate 91 southbound in Hartford will be reopened to traffic by Monday, Aug. 4.

The ramp had been closed last month in conjunction with the ongoing Interstate 84 bridge deck repair project in the Hartford area.

The detour via Morgan Street to Interstate 91 southbound will suspended once the I-84 is reopened.

AARP plans Maine trip

MANCHESTER — Manchester Green Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons will sponsor a trip to Bar Harbor Sept. 15 to 18.

The trip includes a sightseeing tour to the summit of Cadillac Mountain, with its spectacular view of the islands; a jaunt along the coastal route with its beautiful mansions, including the home of Nelson Rockefeller at Seal Harbor; a visit to Northeast Harbor for a three-hour cruise, followed by a sumptuous lobster cookout; a stop at the Maine State Prison Store in Thomaston, where one can purchase things made by the prisoners; an overnight stay in Boothbay Harbor, a popular resort village on the coast; and five meals including the lobster bake.

The four-day trip is available to members of other AARP chapters, all retired persons and their friends, at a cost of $159.50 per person. Reservations may be sent, with a $25 deposit, to Mrs. Janet Phillips, 195 E. Center St., Apt. 4C, Manchester.

For additional information, call Mrs. Phillips, 649-0524, or Mrs. Marie Spolito, 649-0883. Reservations close Sept. 2.

Charges bias

HARTFORD (UPI) — A defense lawyer claims a special state program aimed at cracking down on "career crooks" with two or more felony convictions discriminates against black and Hispanic defendants.

Attorney Michael Graham made the allegation Tuesday when he filed a motion asking for dismissal of first-degree robbery charges against his client Corneus J. Brown, 25, of Hartford.

News for Senior Citizens Events planned for August

Hi everyone! Yours truly (Gloria) is writing this column and just realized summer is half over. July was a blistering hot month, now we will see what August brings.

The first thing we will be doing in August is registering for the Penn Dutch trip. This is a lovely three-day trip to the Amish Country. The price for this trip is $111 and two dates we go are Oct. 21 to 23. We will visit Roadside America, Hershey's Chocolate World and the Farmer's Market. The best part of the trip is our faithful tour guide, Mom Buckwater. She really gives you a full day's tour. We will stay at the Brunswick Motor Inn. The price includes two breakfasts and two dinners. Next Monday, Aug. 4, is registration day. The Senior Citizen Youth Field Day will be Aug. 3 from 1 to 5 in Center Park. This is a very lovely day that the youngsters play for you seniors, so plan on attending.

We have been asked to mention that new leagues will be forming at the Brunswick Holiday Lanes, 39 Spencer St. We have brochures at our office that you can pick up.

"Enfield received the highest compliance tallies of any facility of any kind in the country — higher than any jail, halfway house or prison," she said. "We don't have the final figures, but it's over 98 percent."

The facility located near the Massachusetts border was the second in the state system to be accredited. The New Haven Community Correctional Center was accredited last May after being the first jail in the nation to undergo an audit.

The prison was audited by a team of outside professionals at the beginning of April. To be accredited, a facility must meet a minimum 90 percent of the standards and also must meet mandatory life safety standards for inmates.

Boston Red Sox blow another

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Clint Hurdle's glove isn't one of gold. At least not yet. But his arm certainly is.

The right fielder of the Kansas City Royals made a brilliant defensive play in the third inning Tuesday night that turned what looked to be a Boston rout over the Royals into a 3-3 Kansas City win.

With two runs already across in the inning for a 4-1 Red Sox lead, the bases loaded and only one out, Gary Allenson lofted a fly ball to shallow right-center field. Hurdle came charging from his right-field spot to make a backhand catch of the ball barely above his shoepats.

His momentum carried him three more steps before Hurdle could right himself and make a perfect throw to the plate — on a fly to catcher Darrell Parmenter — to go to the batter. Parmenter, who had tried to tag up and score from third base, for an inning-ending double play.

"That was the play that kept me in the ballgame," said Kansas City Manager Jim Frey. "There's no doubt in my mind. If the ball drops in, there are two more runs across, runners on second and third and still only one out. They'd be up six or seven-to-one and still swinging."

"It was a sensational play. For a guy to come that far, to catch the ball that low and then make a throw not only that strong but that accurate — incredible. I was just hoping somebody would catch it. Forget about the baserunners, just catch the damn ball. But to get out of the inning with no damage is incredible."

"I wish I had a radar gun on that throw," said Kansas City pitcher Rich Gale. "Clint really brought that thing."

Boston added two more runs in the fourth anyway to take a 6-1 lead, but Kansas City scored five times in the half of the fourth to tie it in a rally highlighted by a three-run double by Hurdle.

"I take greater pride in the catch."

He made good on that promise, too, giving me a few years." The Royals rallied again to tie the game 7-7 on a solo homer by George Brett in the seventh and took their first lead of the game in the eighth on a solo homer by Chalk. But Boston tied it again in the ninth on a single by Dwight Evans and a two-base error by left fielder Willie Wilson on an RBI single by pinch hitter Jim Dwyer.

Kansas City won the game in its half of the ninth against Tom Burgmeier, 4-2, when Brett batted home from third on a two-out error by shortstop Rick Harrison on a ground ball by Otis. Brett led off the inning with a double and took third on a double-play ball by Johnathan after Hal McTee had been intentionally walked.

Don Quisenberry, the third of three Kansas City pitchers, upped his record to 7-4 with 2 1/3 innings of two-hit relief.

Kansas City increased its lead in the American League West to 12 1/2 games over second-place Texas, despite committing five errors and allowing the Red Sox 15 hits and six runs. Plus, of course, that early 6-1 lead.

"Six-to-one," said frustrated Boston Manager Don Zimmer. "You're supposed to win once in a while."

Race support from insurance company ends

Thanksgiving is nearly four months away but a new financial angel is being sought for the 40th running of the Five Mile Road Race on the holiday morning in Manchester.

Will Hadden, general chairman for the sponsoring Nutmeg Forest, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, reports Connecticut Mutual has decided to stop its financial assistance, effective immediately. For the past two years, as part of its nationwide Run for Life program, Connecticut Mutual has poured thousands of dollars into making the Manchester race bigger and better than ever. A number of behind the scene expenses were covered by CMI's support. Involvement of the Hartford-based insurance company was a stimulant needed to keep the Five Mile among the best road races run nationally.

While disappointed, Hadden said other means of outside financial help are now being explored.

Last year's race attracted more than 4,000 runners and was viewed by an estimated 25,000 spectators along the five-mile route.

End of the line

Busier than ever as all around handymen at the Manchester Senior Citizens Center is George Meyer and Bill Rodgers, one-time finishers in the recent Brunswick Maine five mile road race. Meyer was one of New England's top dog trainers and handlers and one of the country's leading field trail judges. Preliminary plans are under way to make the 50th year of the Manchester High this fall. The sport was started by the late Hugh Greer in 1931.

Phone call helped Montreal pitching

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Gullickson was kicking around in the minor leagues when the phone call came. The Montreal Expos needed a pitcher and Gullickson was their man — but manager Dick Williams had no idea what to do with him.

"We weren't sure whether we were going to use Bill as a starter or reliever when we brought him up from Denver," Williams said Tuesday night after the rookie struck out 10 and tossed a six-hitter to lift the Expos to a 4-1 decision over the Cincinnati Reds.

"After Willie showed us tonight, it's going to be hard to knock him out of there as a starter."

Gullickson, 23, completed his second game of the season and his 10 strikeouts represented a team high this season. The only run off Gullickson came in the eighth inning on a single by pinch hitter Dave Collins. A walk to Ron Oester, an infield out and a single by Ken Griffey.

"When you bring up a player like Gullickson you always hope for a game like that," Williams continued. "He wasn't tired in the end. He pitched a strong game. We wanted a complete game from one of our starters and now we got one from a young fellow who has a whole future in front of him."

Meat 2, Braves 1

Mark Bombard and Neil Allen combined on a six-hitter for New York Bombers, 7-3, went 7 1/3 innings, surrendering four hits and walking two before being replaced by

Phillies 9, Astros 6

Lonnie Smith singled home the tie-breaking run and Mike McBride knocked in two more in the fifth of the game in a three-run eighth inning to lift Philadelphia. The victory went to Kevin Saucier, 5-3, and Tom Hickey's run batted in his eighth save.

Padres 3, Cubs 1

Randy Jones, 5-0, tossed an eight-hitter and San Diego took advantage of four Chicago errors on the way to victory. It was the fourth complete game for Jones, who bested Doug Capilla, 2-4.

Dodgers 10, Pirates 2

Burt Hooton pitched a seventh-inning and drove in four runs with his first homer in five years — a three-run shot — and a squeeze bunt and Ron Cey pitched with a homer and two doubles as the Dodgers banged out 13 hits, including eight for extra bases. Hooton, 19-3, struck out eight and walked three in notching his seventh straight victory and fourth complete game.

Giants 4, Cardinals 1

Hot-hitting Larry Herndon drove in three runs with a triple and a single to lead San Francisco. Herndon has hit safely in 13 of the last 14 games and helped Allen Ripley improve his record to 5-4.

Cup trials to end today minus defending champ

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — America's Cup regatta trials end Wednesday with the reigning champion smarting from the final two days of bringing a crewman from a contending Cup challenger aboard his own yacht Courageous as a consultant. Turner, who defended the Cup in 1977 against the Australians, flew home to Atlanta Tuesday, refusing to discuss the incident.

Wilfong finds self against Yankees

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Minnesota's Bob Wilfong may not yet have found his former self, but don't tell Luis Tiant and the New York Yankees.

Wilfong, who hit .313 last year as a 140-game second baseman, rapped a two-run single off Tiant in the eighth Tuesday night to spark the Twins to a 3-2 victory.

"I feel great," said Wilfong, whose average is 80 points off last year's pace. "This is about the first time I walked into the club house this year and I feel good."

Wilfong also stroked a game-winning hit Monday night under similar circumstances — one out and the bases loaded. He singled, again to right, but the potential winning run walked off the plate.

"I'm trying to find the way I was hitting last year," Wilfong said. "My batting is improving, but no doubt, I've been going over the hills to find it. I'm getting there."

The Yankees nearly turned the tables on the Twins, as they did Monday night for a 7-6 10-inning victory. Ninth-inning singles by Bob Watson, Reggie Jackson and Lou Piniella loaded the bases with one out. Winner Geoff Zahn, 10-12, gave up a sacrifice fly to Rick Cerone but got Paul Dent to ground out to end the game.

"I don't overpower anybody," said Zahn after his 10th complete game.

Hit happy

Gottfried enjoying play now

NORTH CONWAY, N.H. (UPI) — There's nothing that improves one's tennis as much as out-and-out enjoyment. And when you work as hard as the game as Brian Gottfried, enjoyment is critical to success.

Gottfried, acknowledged by his peers as the most diligent worker on the pro circuit, is starting again to reap rewards for his persistence. Ranked 10th in the world only three years ago, he slipped back to the low teens but is on the upswing.

"A lot of it (improvement) has to do with enjoying it more," the ninth-seeded Gottfried said Tuesday after winning a first-round match 6-1, 6-4 over Spanish junior Gabriel Urbi at a rain-delayed $175,000 tennis tournament.

Indians on warpath, hottest team in AL

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Cleveland Indians are on the warpath in the league as they signal loud and clear.

They're a team to be reckoned with in the next few years.

Currently the hottest team in the league, the Indians notched their seventh straight victory Tuesday night by scalping the Seattle Mariners 7-2 to move over the .500 mark.

Ken Hargrove led the Indians' assault with a pair of homers and Dan Spillner and Sid Monge combined on an eight-hitter to spark the triumph.

"Confidence has been the key ingredient in the Indians' recent success."

"We know we are going to win," said outfielder Rick Manning. "It's not as easy as we're making it. Everybody is doing the job. The team has a relaxed attitude and when we need a run we get it."

Manager Dave Garcia has insisted the Indians were a good club all along. He just had to get the players to play better.

"Everybody has been hitting the ball," said Garcia. "When we weren't going so good, I told the team you guys Cooper also chipped in with a home run. We're a little short on power."

The Indians' 48-47 record is pretty good, considering the club lost half of its infield — first baseman Andre Thornton and second baseman Duane Kuiper — for most of the season. Thornton was injured in spring training and hasn't played all season, while Kuiper has been out since early in the season and will not be back this year.

Elsewhere, Minnesota edged the New York Yankees 3-2.

U.S. Olympic prexy denies allegations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Olympic Committee President Robert Kane has denied allegations that President Carter was asked to sign a resolution endorsing the ceremony honoring the U.S. Olympic team.

Kane Tuesday related a statement by the White House that the president of the men's rowing team, who said the USOC has expressed the wishes of some athletes that Carter not appear.

The athletes, who are not competing in the Moscow Olympics this week because of the U.S.-Soviet boycott of the games, are in Washington for four days of honors and festivities.

"The USOC set up and paid for this ceremony," Kane said. "I'm afraid our athletes and their families," said Kane. "When we talked to the White House people, we informed them of our position. It was understood that the President and some members of Congress would take part this week."

Strong comeback

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (UPI) — John McEnroe made a strong comeback Tuesday night to beat Jay Lapidus of Princeton University in the first round match of a $75,000 tennis tournament.

McEnroe lost the first set and was behind 1-3 in the second before he rallied to defeat Lapidus 4-6, 6-3, 6-4 in the first match for McEnroe since his loss to Bjorn Borg at Wimbledon

Quick fixin' antipasto platters

Antipasto platters and cheese or peanut butter spreads to eat with fruit, such as crisp apples, fit well into the lighter eating plans of most people during hot days.

These are good to make for unexpected guests to munch on when you don't plan to serve a heavy meal at lunch-time or during the afternoon.

These specialty dishes go well at a pitch-in gathering, too, when neighbors and friends decide on a spur-of-the-moment get together.

Great Granny Antipasto Platter
 1/2 pound sliced salami
 1/2 pound sliced cooked ham
 1/2 pound mushrooms, sliced, or 1 can (4 ounces) whole mushrooms, drained
 1 can (3/4 or 1 1/4 ounces) ripe olives
 1 cup cherry tomatoes (about 10)
 1/2 bunch scallions (about 4)

2 Cape Granny Smith apples, cored and cut in wedges
 Arrange meat, vegetables and apples on round platter. Serve with Snappy Cheese Dip. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 8 servings.

Snappy Cheese Dip
 1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, at room temperature
 1 cup (4 ounces) shredded cheddar cheese
 1/2 cup plus 2 tablespoons milk
 1 clove garlic, crushed
 1/2 teaspoon salt

Mix cream cheese and cheddar cheese. Gradually beat in milk. Stir in garlic and salt. Serve at room temperature with antipasto platter. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 1 1/2 cups.

Blue Cheese Apple Snacks
 1 package (4 ounces) blue cheese, softened
 1/2 cup soft butter or margarine
 1 cup finely chopped Cape Granny Smith apples
 2 tablespoons snipped spread.

Antipasto, crisp apples and spreads make quickie meal.

Cool party drinks

Combining fruit juices with club soda, ginger ale or cold tea is a quick way to make refreshing party drinks.

These give quick energy to those who are enjoying a game of softball, tennis or cruising on the water with friends.

Bonny Berry Lemonade
 1 can (16 ounces) frozen concentrated lemonade
 3 cups cranberry juice cocktail, chilled
 2 cups cold tea
 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
 Dash ground cloves
 Sugar to taste

In pitcher, combine lemonade, cranberry juice and tea. Stir until blended well. Stir in orange rind and cloves. Add sugar to taste and stir until dissolved. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings.

Berry Shimmer
 4 cups (1 quart) low-calorie cranberry juice cocktail
 3 cups club soda, chilled
 1 cup orange juice
 Ice cubes
 Orange slices, halved
 Chill club soda and juices. Combine just before serving. Serve with ice cubes in tall glasses. Garnish with halved orange slices. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 8 servings (32 calories each).

chives
 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
 1/2 Cape Granny Smith apples
 Blend together blue cheese and butter. Stir in chopped apples, chives and parsley. Core remaining apples. Cut in thick wedges, then cut in half crosswise. Spread cheese mixture on top of each apple chunk. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 8 servings.

Cape's Crunchy Peanut Butter Spread
 2 Cape Granny Smith apples
 1 jar (12 ounces) chunky peanut butter
 1/2 cup milk
 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
 Core apples. Dice to equal about 1 cup and slice the rest. Set aside. Blend peanut butter and milk. Add diced apples and cinnamon. Serve on apple slices. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 1 1/2 cups spread.

Cheese omelet takes a Spanish sauce

When friends drop in for a visit and decide to stay for lunch, what do you do when the refrigerator yields cheese and eggs? The answer is prepare the simplest kind of omelet, such as women have been doing for ages. That means using whole eggs, water, salt and pepper, mixing them quickly with a fork. Just before folding the omelet, drizzle with an easily made Spanish Sauce from live ingredients. After folding, the sauce recipe may be doubled or even tripled.

For the sauce, it's a matter of cooking onion until tender, then adding a can of tomato sauce and chili powder for seasoning.

Our recipe is enough for serving two. You have four or six for lunch? Do not double the omelet recipe; just make it over again. The sauce recipe may be doubled or even tripled.

Grapes and sliced orange make a lovely garnish for the omelet, while milk is the beverage of choice.

Make it special by having Batter Cornmeal Muffins to go with the cheesy eggs. An interesting feature of this recipe is that the muffins may be made in advance and, after wrapping in foil, defrost and take about 15 minutes for reheating time.

Cheese Omelet Espanole
 2 servings
 1 tablespoon butter
 1/4 cup chopped green cheddar cheese
 1/4 cup chopped onion
 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
 1/4 teaspoon chili powder
 Omelet:
 4 eggs
 1/4 cup water
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 Dash pepper

1 tablespoon butter
 1/4 cup (2 ounces) shredded cheddar cheese
 For sauce, melt butter; add green pepper and onion and saute until tender but not browned. Stir in tomato sauce and chili powder. Bring to a boil; boil and stir 1 minute. Keep warm while preparing omelet.

For omelet, mix eggs, water, salt and pepper with a fork. Beat butter in 10 inch omelet pan or skillet until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water (medium high heat). Pour in egg mixture. Mixture should set at edges at once. With pancake turner, carefully draw cooked portions at edges toward center, so uncooked portions flow to bottom. Tilt skillet as it is necessary to hasten flow of uncooked eggs. Slide pan rapidly back and forth over heat to keep mixture moving and sliding freely. While top is still moist and creamy looking, drizzle 2 tablespoons Spanish Sauce over half of omelet; sprinkle with half the cheese. With pancake turner, fold omelet in half or roll turning out onto warm serving platter with a quick flip of the wrist. Spoon a small amount of sauce over omelet and sprinkle with remaining cheese. Pass remaining sauce.

Batter-Cornmeal Muffins
 Yield: 2 dozen
 4 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
 1 cup cornmeal
 1/2 cup sugar
 1 tablespoon salt
 1 package active dry yeast
 2 1/2 cups milk
 1/2 cup (1 stick) butter, cut up
 2 eggs, beaten
 Combine 2 cups flour, cornmeal, yeast, salt and undissolved sugar. Heat remaining milk and butter until very warm (120-130° F.). Gradually add milk mixture to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add egg and 2 cups additional flour. Beat 2 minutes at high speed, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in remaining 1/2 cup flour to make a heavy batter. Cover; let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Stir batter down; spoon into lightly buttered medium-sized muffin cups, filling each 3/4 full. Let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk, about 30 minutes. Bake in preheated 400° F. oven 15 to 20 minutes.

NOTE: Muffins may be divided into serving amounts and frozen in foil. To reheat, defrost one foil package and bake in foil in preheated 400° F. oven about 15 minutes or until heated through.

1 cup milk
 1/2 cup cooking oil
 2 tablespoons honey
 3 1/4 cups Pillsbury's Best® All Purpose or Unbleached Flour
 1 package active dry yeast
 1 teaspoon salt
 2 eggs (reserve 1 white for Topping)
 1 1/3 cup sugar or powdered sugar
 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
 1 tablespoon honey
 1 reserved egg white
 In saucepan, heat first 3 ingredients until warm (120° to 130° F.). Lightly spoon flour into measuring cup; level off.) In large bowl, blend 1 1/2 cups flour, yeast, salt, eggs and warm liquid. Beat 3 minutes at medium speed by hand; stir in remaining 1 1/2 cups flour. (Dough will be soft and sticky.) Cover; let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 45 to 60 minutes. Generously grease two 8 or 9-inch round cake or pie pans. Stir down dough, beating 30 seconds. Drop tablespoonfuls of dough side-by-side in single layer in prepared pans, making about 10 rolls per pan. Combine Topping ingredients and drizzle half over rolls. Cover; let rise again in warm place until doubled in size, 20 to 30 minutes. Drizzle remaining Topping over rolls before baking. Preheat oven to 350°. Bake 25 to 30 minutes until golden brown. Immediately remove from pan. Makes about 20 rolls.

"Self-rising flour not recommended."
 Fish and guests in three days are stale.

How to keep temperatures down in supermarket lines

By MARTIN SLOANE
In many parts of the country, this is providing to be one of the hottest summers on record. Those following the letter will help to keep temperatures down in the checkout line. DEAR SUPERMARKET CASHIERS - Most shoppers realize that you're not an easy job. You are under a lot of pressure to be accurate and courteous at all times, even under the most trying circumstances. You stand on your feet hour after hour until you feel numb. You get headaches from searching for price labels on products and expiration dates on coupons. At the end of the day, you are peoped. But so are many of the shoppers who wait in long checkout lines for what seems to them like an eternity. Many of them have also worked all day, and their feet may ache as badly as yours. Many of these shoppers are under pressure, too. They are praying they have enough money to pay for everything in their shopping carts. When these shoppers finally begin unloading their purchases at the checkout counter, they need a little consideration too.

Before you start ringing up their purchases, please give them a chance to unload everything from their carts and hand you their coupons. Please take their coupons courteously and handle them carefully. Remember, these savings mean a lot of a shopper. Please be patient. Try to help if they have questions even about items you have rung up on the register. Please treat each carton and jar as if you were buying it yourself. You wouldn't want your eggs dropped into the bottom of the shopping bag, would you? Please take their coupons and expiration dates on coupons. At the end of the day, you are peoped. But so are many of the shoppers who wait in long checkout lines for what seems to them like an eternity. Many of them have also worked all day, and their feet may ache as badly as yours. Many of these shoppers are under pressure, too. They are praying they have enough money to pay for everything in their shopping carts. When these shoppers finally begin unloading their purchases at the checkout counter, they need a little consideration too.

are the only ones stealing proofs of purchase. I hope supermarket managers will issue stern warnings that any employees caught destroying merchandise in this manner will be fired. I also hope store managers will prosecute any shoppers found stealing proofs or coupons from their merchandise. I mentioned this to a grocery clerk, and she told me that one of her store's employees cut proof-of-purchase seals from boxes on the shelves for their own refund. Write to the following address to receive the form required by this refund offer: Laveris $1.50 Cash and $1.50 Refund. P.O. Box 1323, Great Neck, N.Y. 11024. This offer expires Dec. 31, 1980.

DEAR SUPERMARKET SHOPPER - Several weeks ago you printed a letter about the disgraced shoppers who steal coupons and proofs of purchase from boxes on the supermarket shelves. I mentioned this to a grocery clerk, and she told me that one of her store's employees cut proof-of-purchase seals from boxes on the shelves for their own refund. Write to the following address to receive the form required by this refund offer: Laveris $1.50 Cash and $1.50 Refund. P.O. Box 1323, Great Neck, N.Y. 11024. This offer expires Dec. 31, 1980.

DEAR DEBBIE - I mentioned this to a grocery clerk, and she told me that one of her store's employees cut proof-of-purchase seals from boxes on the shelves for their own refund. Social Security

Q. I heard that some people who become entitled to Social Security disability benefits after June 1980 may get less money because fewer years of earnings can be dropped out when figuring average earnings for benefit purposes. Please explain.
A. Social Security disability benefits are based on a worker's average monthly earnings until recently, 5 years of low or no earnings could be excluded in figuring the average, regardless of the worker's age at the time of disability. This often gave younger disabled workers an advantage over older ones since a considerably longer period of their younger worker's career earnings could be disregarded. A new law effective July 1980 establishes a "graduated scale" for dropouts years based on a person's age when disability starts.
Q. I receive monthly SSI checks. Next month, I am going into the hospital. Do I have to report this to Social Security?
A. Yes, you should notify Social Security promptly if you enter or leave a hospital, skilled nursing facility, nursing home, intermediate care facility, residential institution, or correctional institution. Your notice should give the name of the institution and the date you entered or were released. If you are unable to notify Social Security, ask someone in the institution's office to help you.
Q. Our 15-year-old son recently became eligible for Medicare because he has permanent kidney failure. We know Medicare will cover his dialysis and other major services. What services are not covered?
A. Some of the services Medicare does not cover are ambulance or other transportation costs to a dialysis, except under certain conditions; inpatient hospital and skilled nursing facility costs when the stay is solely for maintenance dialysis; and lodging costs when an outpatient dialysis facility is not near your home. For detailed information, ask for "Medicare coverage of kidney dialysis and kidney transplant services - A Supplement to 'Your Medicare Handbook'" at any Social Security office.

Q. I receive Social Security student benefits and I've earned only $1,700 so far this year, but my total wages by the end of 1980 will probably be close to $5,000. How will this affect my Social Security student benefits?
A. If you would expect to earn more than $3,720 for 1980, then $1 in benefits should be withheld for each $2 in earnings above that amount. Contact any Social Security office to determine how your benefits should stop to avoid overpayment.

Nutrition

We all know how attractive and tasty watermelon can be—especially on a hot summer day. But many people do not know that watermelon is also nutritious. The new paperback "The Medicine Called Nutrition" notes that watermelon is far richer in potassium than orange juice or bananas. An average slice of watermelon has 600 milligrams of potassium, while a medium banana has 300 and a half cup of orange juice has 200. Many foods that are high in potassium are also high in calories. But not watermelon. A 4-by-8-inch wedge has only 110 calories. Watermelon is also a good source of vitamins A and C. Here are some other facts of interest to dieters from "The Medicine Called Nutrition."
"Eating for health and enjoyment requires a knowledgeable trade-off of foods, not total exclusion of any type of food," reports the publication. "That is a vital point for fat dieters to remember."
Are you under the impression that you cannot gain weight if you stick to high-protein foods like meat, eggs and cheese? This again is a misconception. Protein above essential needs is always used for energy and converted into fat," says the book.
"The Medicine Called Nutrition" joins the chorus against overuse of salt. "I believe the evidence is strong enough to justify a universal reduction of salt intake," writes the medical contributor active in nutrition studies. He notes that while nutrition may be involved in the development of hypertension, it should always be involved in its treatment.

Entertaining with pasta, easy and economical

Company Chicken with Noodles
6 ounces fine egg noodles (about 3 cups)
2 tablespoons salt
2 1/2 quarts boiling water
5 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 medium yellow squash, cut into thin slices
1 medium green pepper, cut into thin rings
1 medium red onion, thinly sliced
1 broiler-fryer (about 2 1/2 pounds) cut-up
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 medium garlic clove, crushed
2 tablespoons salt
2 cans (1 1/4 ounces each) condensed cream of celery soup, undiluted
3/4 cup milk
1/4 cup leopards rosemary, crushed
1 large tomato, cut into wedges
Gradually add egg noodles and 2 teaspoons salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until almost tender. Drain in colander. Set aside.
In 10-inch glass ceramic skillet, melt 3 tablespoons butter. Add squash, green pepper and onion slices; saute over medium heat, turning vegetables occasionally until squash is almost tender, about 3 to 5 minutes. Remove vegetables and set aside.
Melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter in same skillet. Add chicken, chopped onion, garlic and 1/4 teaspoon salt; brown chicken well on all sides; stirring onions and garlic occasionally. Stir in undiluted soup, milk and rosemary and bring just to a boil. Reduce heat to low; cover and cook until 2 tablespoons salt
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup flour
3/4 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon crushed red pepper
1 teaspoon Worcester sauce
4 cups grated sharp Cheddar cheese (about 1 pound)
1/2 cup dry white wine
Gradually add macaroni and 2 tablespoons salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Meanwhile, in medium saucepan, saute onion and celery in butter until crisp-tender; stir in flour. Gradually add milk; cook, stirring constantly, until sauce boils 1 minute. Remove from heat. Add remaining seasonings and 3 cups of the cheese. Stir until cheese melts; gradually add wine. Combine macaroni and sauce; turn into 8-quart baking dish. Sprinkle remaining cheese on top. Bake uncovered in 375 degree oven 15 to 20 minutes until bubbling. Makes 8 servings.
— Wine may be omitted, and milk increased to 4 cups.
Homemade Noodle Sauce
4 bacon slices
2 1/2 cups chopped celery
1 large onion, chopped
9 cups hot water
1 can (28 ounces) tomatoes, undrained
1 ham bone (with some meat)
1/2 cup chopped parsley
Salt
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon pepper
8 ounces medium egg noodles (about 4 cups)
3 quarts boiling water
1 package (9 ounces) frozen mixed vegetables, (thawed)
In 6-quart Dutch oven or sautepot, cook bacon until limp. Add celery and onion; saute until tender, stirring occasionally, about 5 minutes. Add 9 cups water, undrained tomatoes, ham bone, parsley, 1 tablespoon salt, bay leaf, sugar and pepper; heat to boiling. Reduce heat to low; cover and simmer 45 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Meanwhile, gradually add noodles and 1 tablespoon salt, rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Remove bone and bay leaf. Cool ham bone slightly; remove meat from bone. Add ham, noodles and mixed vegetables to hot mixture. Cook until heated through, about 10 minutes. Note: If soup is reheated, add bouillon or stock if needed for desired consistency. (Makes 12 cups or 6 to 8 servings.)
Macaroni Zucchini Salad
2 cups elbow macaroni (8 ounces)
1 tablespoon salt
3 quarts boiling water
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
2 cups elbow macaroni (8 ounces)
1 teaspoon basil leaves
1/2 cup diced red radishes
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 pound zucchini squash, sliced, cooked & drained
Salt
Pepper
2 medium ripe tomatoes, cut in wedges
Gradually add macaroni and 1 tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Drain again. Blend mayonnaise, mustard and basil leaves in large bowl; add radishes, onion, squash and zucchini. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Chill salad one or more hours. Add macaroni. Toss until combined. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Cover and chill for several hours. Drain again.
To prepare dressing for salad, blend sour cream, mayonnaise, milk, dry mustard, basil leaves, and lemon juice in large bowl. Add macaroni, vegetables and olive slices. Toss until combined. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Cover and chill for several hours. Bon appetit!

Shrimp broccoli bake

You can have a hot, tasty entree ready when the family arrives by planning ahead and having several items on the menu. Fish and shellfish are noted for fine flavor, excellent nutrition, and quick-cooking. Shrimp, in particular, are great when time is important. Weather defines shrimp as "A small or puny person or thing" but the only part of that definition that applies to shrimp is that they are small. There is nothing puny or unimportant about these little crustaceans, after all they do have the reputation of being "favorable" with thousands of people. Their versatility is well known and they are shrimp-delightful whether in appetizers, canapes, cocktails, salads, or gourmet entrees. Shrimp are power-packed with high-quality protein and other nutrients while being low in fat and calories. They may be purchased raw or cooked, peeled or unpeeled, and fresh or frozen in many parts of the country as well as being available in convenient 4-ounce cans. You'll win accolades with a tempting, low-calorie Shrimp Broccoli Bake. This recipe, from the National Marine Fisheries Service, flavor accents the shrimp in an Italian dressing, catsup, onion, and parsley mixture. The shrimp are heated on top of and surrounded by buttered broccoli and baked in a covered casserole for about 20 minutes. Just before serving, sprinkle the shrimp mixture with cheese and pop back into the oven until the cheese melts, or omit the cheese if you are seriously counting calories. This top-drawer recipe is irresistibly good and one you'll want to serve again and again.
For more exciting, refreshing, low-calorie recipes, Seafood Slimmers has the answer. For your copy of this full-color booklet send $1.20 to Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20540. G.P.O. stock no. 003-020-001-4-1 to expedite your order.
Shrimp Broccoli Bake
1/2 pound cooked, peeled, and deveined shrimp, fresh or frozen
3 cans (4 1/2 or 5 ounces each) shrimp
1/2 cup commercial Italian dressing
1/4 cup catsup
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen broccoli spears, cooked and drained
2 tablespoons margarine
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup finely shredded process American cheese (optional)
Rinse canned shrimp, if used, in cold water; drain well. Combine and mix Italian dressing, catsup, onion, and parsley. Pour over shrimp; mix carefully. Cut broccoli stems into small pieces. Arrange in bottom of shallow 1-1/2 quart baking dish. Arrange broccoli flowerettes at either end of casserole. Melt margarine; stir in lemon juice. Drizzle over broccoli. Spoon shrimp mixture between broccoli flowerettes and cheese. Cover with aluminum foil, crimping it to edges of dish. Bake in hot oven, 400° F., about 20 minutes or until hot. Uncover; sprinkle with cheese, if desired. Return to oven to melt cheese. Make 8 servings.
For convenience, shrimp may be cooked ahead of time, cleaned and stored in refrigerator until preparation time. About 1-1/2 pounds of raw shrimp will yield 1/2 pound cooked, peeled, and cleaned shrimp.
