'False and misleading,' judge says

Candidates can't use Anderson line

HARTFORD (UPI) — A federal judge Friday ordered 130 persons removed from independent presidential candidate John Anderson's line on Connecticut's November ballot, saying such use of the line was unfair, deceptive and confusing.

Chief U.S. District Court Judge, T. Emmet Clarke ruled the rush by Republicans and Democrats trying to ride Anderson's coattails in the general election "was false and misleading" and violated Anderson's rights.

Clarke's 11-page opinion allowed Anderson, his state running mate Belton A. Copp and eight presidential electors pledged to them to remain on the ballot. But he ordered Secretary of State Barbara Kennedy to remove all others and refuse any future petitions to be added to the line, since only one candidate was allowed to petition to be on the independent's ballot for each elective office.

Most of the 130 candidates, including Republican U.S. Senate contender Richard Bozuto, said they only took out petitions to prevent their opponents from doing so.

The judge said he agreed with state Sen. William Curry Jr., D-Farmington, who brought the suit claiming the policy was deceptive because it allowed use of Anderson lines by candidates who had nothing in common with the policies for philosophy of the Illinois congressman.

Curry said the law "engenders per say deception and confusion" by "creating an impression of political alignment among candidates who may not share a single political view and who might, in fact, be totally adverse."

The judge agreed, ruling that "such a ballot would suggest to a reasonable voter a political association or affiliation where none exists."

"Such deception on the face of the ballot debases the rights of all voters" and "would unduly abridge the constitutional rights of plaintiff Curry and all voters in the state," the judge ruled.

Curry is running for re-election against Republican Charles Alfano, who took out a petition for the Anderson line.

Anderson had asked Mrs. Kennedy to do something about the line, but she had said a legal or legislative remedy was needed.

The state had suggested Clarke allow only those candidates on the line who had been endorsed by Anderson himself. But Anderson's attorneys told the court the independent candidate did not intend to make any such endorsements.

Clarke said the rights of the Anderson Coalition "to associate freely for the purpose of advancing their common political beliefs" were violated.

"I'm just ecstatic. We feel this establishes the obligation of the state to secure a fundamentally fair election — an election free of deception and misleading advertising," Curry said.

He said being listed on a Democratic or Republican ballot as well as the Anderson line "was the political equivalent of false advertising."

Ballot ruling sheer relief

By MARY KITZMANN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The news Friday afternoon of the Anderson line decision was sheer relief for one local candidate.

"I'm very happy it's settled," said Elsie "Biz" Swenson, Republican candidate in the 13th Assembly District. "I wasn't too sure about staying on it anyhow."

Mrs. Swenson was among 130 candidates who took petitions to appear on the ballot line with independent presidential candidate John Anderson.

When candidates learned the petitions were available under legal loopholes, they were taken out quickly on a first-come, first-served basis.

Although Mrs. Swenson said she wasn't sure she would have filed the petition by Sept. 2, she took the petitions because she didn't want the Anderson line slot to go to her opponent. Only one candidate was allowed to petition for a ballot slot in each race.

"I'm running to win, and I face some very heavy Democratic districts," Mrs. Swenson said. "I had doubts, but I had to try what I could. I'm very relieved to stay entirely Republican. That's what I would prefer anyway," she said.

In U.S. District court in Hartford, a Manchester lawyer argued for Sen. William Curry Jr., D-Farmington, that the policy of allowing candidates to appear twice was deceptive.

Curry brought the suit after the rush to obtain the petitions, and a request to return them was ignored. Attorney Jon Berman, of the Manchester law firm of Beck and Pagano, said that Anderson should decide on philosophical grounds who should appear on the ballot line with him.

"Anderson told the court, through his attorneys, that he didn't want anyone else," Berman said. "He didn't want to carry the baggage of other candidates."

Mrs. Swenson was having second thoughts about carrying the baggage of John Anderson. A staunch Republican, the sight of Anderson conferring with Democratic candidate Edward Kennedy irritated her.

"I was wondering whether I should return the petitions. It was always in the back of my mind, but especially after the talk with Kennedy," she said. "I thought there was no way I would like my name to appear with his."

Kennedy and Anderson conferred for over an hour Thursday evening. The judge's decision, not to let any candidate solve the problem to stay on the ticket, or let another take her place. "I'm glad to be running solely as a Republican," she said. "That's where I'll stay, on the Reagan ballot."

Mrs. Swenson said she had collected only a few signatures.

But another Manchester Republican, Rep. Walter Joyner, seeking re-election in the 12th Assembly District, apparently had about 400 signatures.

Joyner, who was unavailable for comment, had persuaded Mrs. Swenson, and Republican Edward Wilson, who is seeking Sen. Marcella Fahay's seat in the East Hartford-Manchester district, to take the petitions.

Carter meets delegates

Open convention 'travesty'

By United Press International

White House East Room to meet the delegates to the party to the days when the nominee was picked in smoke-filled rooms.

"It's almost incomprehensible how a brokered, horse-trading, smoke-filled convention can be labeled open, and a decision made by 20 million Democrats in the open primaries and open caucuses could be called closed," Carter said.

"To violate that commitment and that rule would be a travesty in my opinion," Carter said. "This is what I've been talking about — honesty, truth, principle. That's what has been our guiding light and that's what's going to bring us victory."

It was the second major political meeting of the day for Carter, who earlier had an emotional White House session with 80 Democratic members of Congress who left him choked up with their renewed pledges of support.

As Carter walked into the crowded White House East Room to meet the delegates he was greeted with sustained cheers, shouts and whistles. The crowd burst into a chant, "We want Jimmy! We want Jimmy! We want Jimmy!"

"You got me!" Carter replied. "Four, five years, four more years," they shouted back, many of them waving four fingers in the air.

In another development aimed at derailing the "dummy Carter" movement started by junior House members, more than 100 Democratic representatives sent a letter to the 6,000 delegates and alternates to the Democratic National Convention saying they oppose the effort.

Carter has marshaled all his political clout to put down the rebellion led by about 44 House members, a handful of restless senators and eight governors.

"I guarantee your loyalty will never be forgotten," Carter was quoted as telling the congressmen.

Rep. Mary Rose Oaker of Ohio said Carter "choked up" at the end of the "highly emotional" meeting as he told of the "privacy and seclusion of the Oval Office... where sometimes you get lonesome."

Rep. William Alexander of Arkansas said reporters the president said he would "absolutely not" release the 1,900 convention delegates committed to him.

The Carter forces want the convention to adopt a rule binding delegates to vote for the candidate they were elected to support. Backers of Sen. Edward Kennedy want the delegates released, but Carter said that would disenfranchise the 19 million Democrats who voted in the primaries.

Mrs. Oaker quoted Carter saying, "I look forward to the campaign. I am not afraid of the democratic process and when Americans are asked which person can best serve, it will be me."

Alexander said Carter told the group he had "ups and downs" and referred to his brother, "Billy Carter, but gave no details of how he will deal with the Senate probe into Billy's connections with Libya.

The only dissenting note came from Rep. Thomas Downey, D-N.Y., a Carter supporter who said he told the president:

"I understand how you feel about an open convention but it's my belief that unless you allow those delegates to reaffirm their support for you this August in New York that you are going to lose the progressive wing of the Democratic Party. The party will be split apart and those people will go to John Anderson and your election will be in desperate trouble."

Draft signup over

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Selective Service chief Bernard Rostker said registration of military-age youths has gone "extremely well" in the two-week sign-up period that ended Friday.

Anti-registration groups, however, reported "large-scale non-compliance."

Rostker said anti-draft protest demonstrations fizzled nationwide and failed to disrupt the process, and the worst problem was registering the mentally retarded.

By law, retarded and autistic youths are required to register for an eventual draft. They would, in most cases, be disqualified for military service during physical examinations.

"Registration caused some inconvenience to parents and guardians of autistic and mentally retarded children," Rostker said in an interview at Selective Service headquarters.

"Under the law they have to register, and they needed extra help. But they did it. We worked with several organizations to support them."

"I can't give a quantitative appraisal of registration yet," Rostker said, "but qualitatively it went extremely well. It ran smoothly. There was little inconvenience to postal clerks."

However, a spokesman for the Committee Against Registration and the Draft said, "The sense that we've gotten from media reports and the local groups that we've been in touch with is that there have been large numbers of people that did not register."

Duane Shank, executive director of CARD, a coalition of more than 50 peace, religious and civic anti-draft groups, said while the anti-draft organization did not have any figures, "It is our sense that there was large-scale non-compliance."

Selective Service officials say they will not know for 90 days exactly how many of the estimated 4 million 19- and 20-year-olds registered.

Postal clerks have been instructed to accept late registrations without question.

Your neighbors' views: Will the shah's death have any effect on the release of the American hostages?

John Rodgers, East Hartford — "No, not really. If the Iranians were going to release the hostages it should have been done by now. We are the most powerful nation on earth but we haven't been able to release the hostages."
Nancy Yinger, Harrisburg, Pa. —

"No, I would like it to end but I don't think they will release them. I pray it will end."
Kelly White, East Hartford — "No. The students said that the death of the shah didn't matter. They want his fortune back."

Randy Saint Jean, East Hartford — "No, because they don't want to hurt the United States."
Mark Lareau, Manchester — "Yes, it should make a difference but I can't see them releasing the hostages for months. There is too much political unrest there."

Fernando Garcia, Manchester — "No, I don't think so because the Moslems who took the hostages were doing it just for a reason to get back at America."

Nigeria cuts oil output

Nigeria, America's second largest foreign oil supplier, has slashed its crude oil production by 10 percent to maintain its prices in the face of a world oil glut, industry sources said Friday.

The Nigerian cutback, which took the U.S. oil industry by surprise, reduced the African nation's output of medium-quality Forcados crude by 200,000 barrels a day, according to Petroleum Intelligence Weekly in New York.

But analysts said the Nigerian move would not have any impact on the U.S. consumer since an oil surplus estimated at between 1 million and 1.5 million barrels a day is swamping the world oil market.

Nigeria, an OPEC member that provides the United States with about 1.6 million barrels a day — or 16 percent of total U.S. crude imports — had been pumping 2.2 million barrels a day prior to the cutback.

"Nigeria was forced to either reduce production or lower its prices," an oil industry source said. Nigeria raised its official prices by 60 cents to $37 a barrel on July 1.

Train wreck kills 17

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — An express train carrying more than 200 teen-age vacationers jumped the tracks as it sped through a country village at 50 mph Friday, killing at least 17 persons and injuring 40 others in Ireland's worst train disaster.

Most of the dead and injured were teen-agers heading for a weekend vacation in the Cork countryside. They were packed into two crowded restaurant cars located just behind the locomotive when the train hit what officials said was apparently a faulty switch.

The switch sent the locomotive careening down a side track while the cars in back of it stayed on the main line until the train ripped apart, said railway spokesman Jim Jennings.

Authorities said there was no hint of any terrorist involvement in the crash. "I was sitting in the restaurant car when the whole thing suddenly caved in," said survivor James McQuillan.

"Panic broke out all over the place. It seemed to go on for several seconds with people screaming and apparently dying all around us."

Washington (UPI) — Unemployment rose again in July, the government reported Friday. President Carter was reported ready to take a new initiative to get Americans back to work.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Connecticut's surplus for the 1979-80 fiscal year, according to preliminary statistics, is $2.6 million.

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut's surplus for the 1979-80 fiscal year, according to preliminary statistics, is $2.6 million.

HARTFORD (UPI) — Members of the "Oxford Group," a dubious political group that surfaced this summer, maintained Friday they were just friends who got together to talk about politics.

Two men who said they attended meetings of the Oxford Group told the State Elections Commission they weren't raising money and weren't planning the political extermination of candidates they didn't like.

Craig Yesse of Hartford, who has been identified in some news accounts as founder of the Oxford Group, said he didn't found "it" because "it" didn't exist. The group supposedly was named for the street on which he lives.

The commission scheduled the hearing following a complaint by Sen. William Curry, D-Farmington, who said the group targeted him and Sen. Clifton Leonard, D-Avon, for defeat this year.

Curry claimed the Oxford Group was raising money to promote or defeat candidates and should file as a political action committee with the secretary of the State's Office.

"The Oxford Group is an assemblage of people that somebody else called the Oxford Group," Yesse told the commission. "The Oxford Group is simply an educational forum."

"I am not a member of the Oxford Group because there is no such thing," said Yesse, who is director of government affairs for the Loctite Corp., a Newington glass manufacturer.

Yesse said he and other people interested in politics first met at his home in late March or early April and congregated around what he called "the Oxford table" to discuss politics.

He said meetings were held at various locations around the state periodically and candidates were called in to give "their political sales pitch."

Yesse said many of those present were members of registered political action committees, known as PACs, and were involved with fundraising with those groups but did not raise money under the Oxford Group.

He said the Oxford Group had no bylaws, no officers, no minutes and no fundraising drives.

Charles Mokratski, a lawyer representing Yesse, objected to many of the commissioners' queries because he said people had a right to get together anywhere they wanted without having to discuss what they talked about.

"It's almost de jure. It's like we're back in 1954," said Mokratski, referring to the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy's anti-communist campaign.

Dana Andrusk, head of the Connecticut Conservative Caucus, said he attended Oxford Group meetings. He was asked if he or anyone else at the meetings ever asked candidates to come and speak with them.

"It is illegal to set up candidates on the phone and ask to talk to him? Churches do it. Should churches register as PACs?" Andrusk asked. He refused to answer the question.

Unemployment increased slightly to 7.8 percent in the month just ended, the Labor Department said. Although the overall rate was only 0.1 percentage point higher than in June, joblessness among blacks and other minorities jumped to a three-year high of 14.2 percent.

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller told Congress' Joint Economic Committee the moderate overall increase in July shows the country is forming the basis for an economic recovery.

"We believe we've bottomed out," Miller said. "There are signs of recovery starting some time in the fourth quarter."

However, House Speaker Thomas O'Neill told reporters Friday that Carter plans to announce a major economic package to ease unemployment and revitalize the economy. He said it would come in an address to the nation, probably next week.

Curry said interviews with Andrusk and Yesse showed "every word uttered by the Oxford Group evinced clear intent to promote and defeat candidates for office."

He also said the group had toned down talk about its meetings since he filed the complaint with the commission.

The commission was to decide following the fact-finding hearing whether to proceed with a full examination of any laws in question.

Police seek help in accident study

HARTFORD — Police are seeking the help of the public in the investigation of a two-car collision Tuesday at Ellington Road and Main Street in which three persons were injured, one critically.

The collision occurred at about 3:20 p.m. Tuesday in a rain storm which covered most of the state during that day's rush-hour traffic. Police said this week they are asking witnesses of the accident to contact the police department so it can complete its investigation.

Nona R. Horton, 19, of 68 Daily Road in Hebron was still in serious condition because of the accident, a Hartford Hospital spokesman said. The passenger of Ms. Horton's vehicle, Sharon Zwiers, 18, of 53 Zolli Road, was treated and released. The driver of the other vehicle, Richard S. Sherman, 17, of 12 Allen Drive, East Windsor, is listed in satisfactory condition in the intensive care unit of Manchester Memorial Hospital.

Formal hearing possible in police officer's case

MANCHESTER — While no resolution was reached Friday morning during an informal hearing involving the case of patrolman Howard Beeler, the state's representative at the meeting said afterward he feels the union has grounds for a formal hearing before the Board of Labor Relations.

"We didn't reach any agreement," Donald Wrenn, a board agent said. "But a full board hearing might be in the offing after I review my findings. I feel there's sufficient grounds."

Beeler is the officer Police Chief Robert Lannan fired and then rehired late last month after he refused to give a sworn statement during an internal investigation. Local 1495 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees wants the suspension without pay Beeler underwent as punishment for refusing to give a sworn statement during an internal investigation.

Edward Figue maintains that Beeler's request for union representation before he gave the sworn statement was proper in spite of Lannan's claims that Beeler's refusal of a lawful order placed his job in jeopardy.

On Friday, Figue said he hoped the informal hearing might iron out the problem and even see Beeler reinstated. According to Wrenn, however, that fell by the wayside when, as he put it, neither side was willing to move very far during the hearing.

"I thought there was a chance of a settlement," Wrenn said of the three-hour long meeting at town hall, "but it just wasn't to be. You can go back and forth forever on a settlement and never achieve it."

Wrenn said the meeting was attended by himself, Lannan, town personnel director Steven Werber, town attorney Kevin O'Brien and Capt. James Sweeney, the officer who originally suspended Beeler for refusing his order.

Tighte appeared to answer procedural questions from both sides, Wrenn said and then returned to duty.

Wrenn would not comment when asked which side had the stronger case. "That would be rendering a prediction on my part," he concluded.

Mayor Marie Herbst got up at the recent Democratic caucus in Vernon to make the nominating speech for State Rep. Chester Morgan. One of the Town Committee members, who shall remain unnamed but is noted for his lengthy discourses, said, "Make it brief."

Marie." The mayor, never at a loss for words, commented, "I love this, he's got the biggest mouth going."

A little honesty can brighten up a day: amidst the Manchester police reports Friday, which often contain tales of woe, a form headed only "returned wallet" told how Gerard Supino, 16, of Gloucester returned a wallet containing $40 and credit cards to its owner, Susan Harriman, 26, of Vernon.

George W. Parks
ANDOVER—George W. Parks, 87, of Hutchinson Road died Friday at Manchester Memorial Hospital. He was the husband of the late Helen Purington Parks.

Mr. Parks had lived in South Windsor before moving to Andover in 1938. Before retiring, he had been employed at Arrow Hart and Hegeman in Hartford for many years.

He was a United States Army veteran of World War II, a member of First Congregational Church of Andover and of the Young at Heart Club.

He is survived by three sons, Robert Parks of Andover, Walter Parks of Collidge, Ariz., and Donald Parks of San Diego, Calif.; a daughter, Connie Parks of Fairbanks, Alaska; eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Five die in state crashes

By United Press International
Five young men died in three traffic accidents around Connecticut on Friday. Two survivors of one of the accidents were charged in the crash.

Police said two victims died in a one-car accident in Meriden, two others died in a car-train collision in Suffield and a fifth victim was killed in a single vehicle crash in Windham.

Police said the car involved in the Meriden accident was stolen and was being pursued by Wallingford police when it crashed into a utility pole. Both victims, who were unidentified, were sitting in the car's back seat. They were pronounced dead on arrival at a nearby hospital.

The driver and another passenger in the front seat survived.

The driver, Robert Piersa, 19, of Hartford, was charged with misconduct with a motor vehicle, larceny of a motor vehicle, possession of a controlled substance and engaging in pursuit. His bond was set at $11,000.

Mark McCready, 17, of Hartland, was charged with conspiracy to commit larceny of a motor vehicle.

Both young men had been treated and released from an area hospital before they were arrested.

David Mortenson and Thomas Moran, both 18, of Windsor Locks, died when the car in which they were riding slammed into the side of a slow-moving Conrail freight train in Suffield.

Police said there was a flagman and flares outside the unprotected train crossing on a small back road when the accident occurred at about 1:15 a.m.

The two victims, who had to be rescued from the car, were pronounced dead at Mt. Sinai Hospital in Hartford.

Francisco Rivas, 24, died when his car, carrying an embezzler, was struck by a train in Windham. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Windham Hospital.

Carter press chief says Billy controversy foolish

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Friday he considers the controversy over Billy Carter to be "a good bit of foolishness" that will produce no evidence of wrongdoing.

Powell told reporters President Carter nevertheless still plans to make a full report on the matter to the Senate Monday and will work on the document this weekend at Camp David.

Asked how he assessed the matter, Powell said, "It looks pretty trivial to me... a good bit of foolishness."

But he said, "We are going to be as forthcoming and straight-forward as we can in answering questions on the controversy at a Monday news conference."

"The president made it clear that what his brother did did not influence his decisions on Libya and that no one acting on his behalf ever tried to interfere in decision-making."

Powell said, "So far as I know nothing has appeared to the contrary."

On Capitol Hill Friday, a Senate panel looking into the Billy Carter case met in private sessions to discuss a dozen prominent lawyers being considered to head the inquiry, but made no final decision.

With the Democratic National Convention only 10 days away, the specially appointed Judiciary subcommittee is just starting its investigation, and was scheduled two hearings next week.

Sens. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who head the panel, said the president will be allowed to testify next week if he wishes, but they would prefer to talk with him after the investigation is better established.

"Why bother the president with questions that may not be relevant when we get all the facts?" Bayh said at a news conference following the closed session.

And Thurmond said, "If he does come, I want an understanding that he will not be held back later."

The subcommittee is looking for a well-known lawyer from outside Congress to lead the investigation, and has narrowed the list to about 12.

"We discussed a number of prominent people, but no decision was reached," Thurmond said.

Robert Dole, R-Kan., said there were "a number of outstanding ones" on the list.

At the White House, Carter met with 80 Democratic members of Congress, most of them sympathetic to him. After the session, two congressmen said they think the Billy Carter controversy has died down this week — despite all the new disclosures.

"I think there was a nervousness that spread like wildfire on Capitol Hill last week, a temporary phenomenon," said Rep. Robert Carr, D-Mich. "I think the events of this week surely have dampened it."

Rep. Bill Hefner, D-N.C., said the president made only a brief reference to his brother during the White House meeting.

"He just referred to it like 10 seconds," Hefner said. "If you've kept your confidence in me in spite of the problems with my brother — that was it," Hefner said.

South Windsor council accepts charge change

SOUTH WINDSOR — The Town Council Thursday night unanimously accepted a revision in the Town Charter that wipes out an illegal section of the document.

The council voted on six charter changes, culminating months of work by the Charter Revision Commission.

The work began after a state elections attorney warned the town that its charter was conflicting with state law in a section involving municipal elections.

Man charged in meat theft

MANCHESTER — A 22-year-old man was arrested Friday in connection with a food store theft.

David Paul Oszurek, 84 Hope Court, Windsor, was arrested and charged with larceny in the fourth degree. On July 19, a man had taken about 15 packages of meat from the A & P Supermarket on Toland Turnpike, according to police reports. The man ran out of the store, and left police said.

Oszurek, charged with the theft, was released on a $100 non-surety bond. He was ordered to appear in Manchester Superior Court on Aug. 11.

In the old, illegal Section 204, the charter said no political party shall nominate more than three and no voter may vote for more than two members of the Planning and Zoning Commission during any election.

The new Section 204 reads: "No political party shall nominate and no elector shall vote for more than three members of the Town Planning and Zoning Commission at any election when four members are to be elected or for more than two when three are to be elected."

The new section conforms to state law and still retains the original language which ensures that no party may possess more than a bare majority on the planning board.

The illegal version of Section 204 was approved by the voters on Nov. 6, 1979.

In Section 714, the council also unanimously approved a change allowing the town manager to invite sealed bids on purchases or contracts for services of $5,000. Previous charter language put the limit at $2,000.

The council approved an increase in bid limits for the Public Works Department from $2,000 to $5,000 in Section 715.

The council must now approve a resolution putting all of the approved charter changes on the November ballot.

Police continuing probe of calls possible arson

MANCHESTER — Police are continuing to investigate of harassing telephone calls and possible arson in the car-burning of Deputy Mayor Stephen Cassano.

Cassano said Friday the calls are mostly "harassing" but that some were of a "life-threatening" nature.

He said the calls began several months ago, but have been increasing. Police say the calls were probably not initially directed to Cassano, but were random choices.

Police have no motive for the continuing calls, or for the fire in the deputy mayor's car which appeared to have been set.

The unlocked car was discovered in flames by a neighbor at about 4:30 a.m. Monday. The 1970 Volkswagen was outside of Cassano's home at 63 Lyness St. A neighbor discovered the car in flames and called the fire department.

Cassano, a sociology teacher at Manchester Community College, serves on a number of civic committees, including sports and MCC programs. He is a part-time real estate agent.

Cassano, a well-known speaker for the Board of Directors, said none of the calls referred to politics. The call usually says three or four words at the maximum and disconnects, according to Cassano. The man has a "raspy" voice.

A man claiming to be the person who set Cassano's car on fire called a local newspaper Thursday afternoon, according to newspaper accounts.

The man, whom the operator said had a "raspy voice" bragged that he "burned his car and could his home."

The operator said that the voice sounded like it was in his 40s. There was no background noise during the call, the operator said. The caller was apparently calm and had no accent.

Cassano said sometimes the harassing phone caller has a foreign accent, and other times a deep voice. The man disconnected when the operator offered to transfer the call to an editor.

Police said Friday evening there was nothing new in the investigation, and noted the difficulty of trying to pinpoint the origination of harassing calls.

The unlocked car was discovered in flames by a neighbor at about 4:30 a.m. Monday. The 1970 Volkswagen was outside of Cassano's home at 63 Lyness St. A neighbor discovered the car in flames and called the fire department.

Man shot to death

NORTH HAVEN (UPI) — Daniel P. Tallon III, 28, of North Haven, was found shot to death in the front seat of his car early Friday.

Police said Tallon had been shot several times at close range in the right side with a 9-millimeter pistol. Seven spent shells were found in and around the car.

The body was taken to the Chief State Medical Examiner's Office in Farmington for an autopsy, police said.

The body was found slumped over the steering wheel of the running car by North Haven Police Officer Robert Onofrio who was on a routine patrol of an access road to Interstate 91 just before 4 a.m.

Onofrio first suspected the man was intoxicated but discovered the bullet wounds when he tried to wake the victim.

Police said there was no apparent motive for the slaying, the third reported this year in the New Haven suburb.

Tehmina Kahn - noted designer from Pakistan.

Tehmina Khan of Pakistan Noted designer hits U.S. Market with high fashion

By BETTY RYDER
Family Editor

"East-West fashion exchange dates back more than 150 years," according to Tehmina Kahn, a rising designer from Pakistan, in Manchester as the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stewart of 179 Boulder Road.

"A portrait hung in the Louvre shows Josephine Bonaparte draped in a hand-embroidered Kashmiri shawl. Handspan muslin from the Asian sub-continent and silk from the Far East were very much a part of the Victorian wardrobe. The slim-legged silk trouser now worn in the West is nothing but the shordard worn by women in the Mogul courts with a shimmering mid-calf lame tunic," Tehmina said. Currently entering the international fashion market, Tehmina made her foreign debut at Washington, D.C., in 1978 where she sold her entire collection to an Alexandria boutique known for their ethnic and handcraft clothing.

"A scalloped and self-colored, thread-embroidered 'aba' found particular favor," she said.

More recently, she had great success with a collection shown at the Lahore Hilton and at showings in the U.S.A.

The attractive, dark-haired designer draws on the rich oriental tradition of shimmering satins and hand-printed fabrics. From the timeless handicraft tradition, she takes sequin-splashed fabrics, gold-embroidered chiffon and georgette, silk thread embroidery along petals of soft Chantilly rose in silk lace, and heavy silks studded with jewels and fashions them into garments to please the most fastidious jet-setter.

Her evening wear for the disco crowd, comes as gleaming satin tops, velvet skirts and Quana blossoms over slim-leg satin pants and harem pants. Her cocktail dresses are notable creations embodying gold thread around muted prints in beige or brown.

For summer she has a large range in white and white on white such as white cotton lace on crisp cotton material, white thread embroidery on plain white cotton. For autumn she is featuring separates, shirts in rust, olive and brown to accompany skirts in beige, rich chocolate, deep olive and black.

Among Tehmina's favorites, are hand-loomed silk squares with long silk tassels for wear folded over the hips or shoulders or just slung over the arm, silk sashes and cummerbunds.

Now, Tehmina is looking for more markets. Currently she is taking orders on items for the men's market, which "Seasons and Styles Ltd." in Karachi, Pakistan, will manufacture.

"The factory is equipped with the latest industrial high speed sewing machinery and all fabrics are treated before conversion," she said. "We are excited. We can now supply 10,000 shirts a month in 100 percent cotton, wool pulp viscose, flannel of handprinted loom."

"Seasons & Styles Ltd." is a company owned by the Habib Group, which owned and managed the largest bank in Pakistan before it was nationalized in 1979. Presently, some of its other activities include insurance, construction, ceramic tile, sugar, etc.," she said.

Her visit with the Stewarts will come to an end soon as she heads for Canada and then Europe once she has completed exploring business possibilities in the United States.

However, she will be returning in January to participate in the New York Trade Show at the Coliseum.

Meanwhile, Tehmina continues to design haute couture in exquisite fabrics for fashion-conscious women.

In front of the Stewart home in Manchester, Tehmina displays one of the many colorful tunics and trousers.

Tehmina has supplied Parsnip Hollow hand-pleated lounge worn by her hostess, Shoy in East Haddam with this pure cotton Rhea Talley Stewart.

Abby By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My beloved wife of 42 years recently died after a long and painful terminal illness. I feel that she was very alive much longer after it became obvious that there was no hope for her recovery. If you had ever watched a beautiful 150 pound woman reduced to a 70 pound skeleton, you would understand my feelings. She weighed for months to die, and we who loved her suffered with her. Her hospital bill alone was over $20,000. Thank God we could afford it. How I wish my dear wife had signed the Living Will you mentioned in your column. When I told my doctor I wanted to obtain a Living Will instructing all those who loved me that they were not to keep me alive should I fall victim to a terminal illness, and there was no reasonable hope for my recovery, he said, "You don't need one because California is one of the 10 states that have the Natural Death Act."

PLANNING AHEAD IN MODOSTO DEAR PLANNING: You need a document specifically prepared for the state in which you live because the law in each state differs slightly. The 10 states that have the Natural Death Act are: Arkansas, California, Idaho, Kansas, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oregon, Texas and Washington.

The Society for the Right to Die, 250 West 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019, has prepared forms and guidelines specifically designed for each of the above states. It will send you the proper form on request. There is no charge for the document, but the society is a non-profit organization, so available August 15th. There are 20 dollars to cover the cost of the document and mailing. If you live in one of the other 40 states (many of which now have bills pending) you will need your own Living Will declaration to sign as evidence of your wishes. Meanwhile your name will be recorded and the society will send you a proper form if and when the law is enacted in your state.

DEAR ABBY: I have never seen a problem like mine in your column, and it's a tough one. For the last two years my fiance and I have lived together, so it is assumed by everyone who knows us that we will be married. He probably will, although no date has been set. The problem is his sister. More than once she has said, "When are you two getting married? I can't wait to be a bridesmaid." Abby, how do I let her know that I am not planning to ask her to be in my wedding party? I tend to come right out and tell her because I don't want to hurt her feelings. Thanks for a snappy comeback. J. IN TORONTO

DEAR J.: More than a "snappy" comeback, you need a gentle and diplomatic way of letting the "kid sister" down. It's unfair to let her assume that she'll be in the wedding party if she's not given the word. The next time she mentions it, tell her the truth. The longer you put it off, the more disappointed she'll be.

Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (25 cent) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Patience is a virtue you'll need this coming year. You will need it to keep your mind on what you are doing. You will need it to keep your temper under control. You will need it to keep your mouth shut when you don't want to say anything. You will need it to keep your eyes off the prize when you are competing. You will need it to keep your feet on the ground when you are flying. You will need it to keep your hands off the prize when you are competing. LADES AND GENTLEMEN, WE WILL BE LANDING SHORTLY. THE CAPTAIN HAS TURNED ON THE "NO SMOKING" SIGN.

PLEASE BE SURE YOUR SEAT IS IN AN UPRIGHT POSITION AND ALL LUGGAGE IS STORED UNDER THE SEAT IN FRONT OF YOU.

IT HAS BEEN A PLEASURE SERVING YOU. THANK YOU FOR FLYING AIRLINES. HAVE A NICE DAY!

WHERE ARE WE?

TIME IS RUNNING OUT!

IF WE DON'T HELP THE WHITES TICKING AWAY, WE SHALL HAVE TO FLY...

OH DEAR! EXCUSE ME...

WHEN I MAKE IT...

MY DEAR: HOW THRILLING! BEING PUBLICLY SPANKED ON NATIONAL TELEVISION - AND BY SUCH A MANAGER. BRUTE - WHAT'S HE LIKE?

YOU'LL SOON BE BEING PUBLICLY SPANKED. I DO BELIEVE I HEAR YOU NOW.

OOOON! ISN'T HE DELICIOUS?

IT LOOKS LIKE A WORK OUT, DON'T YOU THINK?

THAT'S ALL RIGHT WITH ME! I'M READY FOR SOME LIGHT AGAIN!
