Anderson courting disgruntled Democrats

By United Press International
John Anderson got a mixed reception from the American Legion, but is hoping for a better one from disgruntled Democrats and in polls that will determine whether he qualifies for the third microphone in the presidential debates.

In remarks prepared for delivery to the veterans group today, Reagan criticized Carter's military policies, saying they could "ultimately become provocative."

He told reporters later Mrs. Chisholm still is in the "afterglow" of the convention and wants time to reflect before answering his plea.

Energy at a glance

WASHINGTON — Billy Carter, who "needed money desperately" sought a $80,000 loan from Libya without offering any collateral and planned to repay it with money made through an oil deal, a financial adviser testified Wednesday.

NEW YORK — U.S. crude oil imports plunged to a five-year low last week and domestic refineries trimmed output as petroleum inventories continued abnormally high, the American Petroleum Institute said Wednesday.

NORFOLK, Va. — American crude oil producers and exporters completed a three-day conference with Japanese customers Wednesday, admittedly shaken by warnings that the Japanese may look elsewhere for future oil imports.

PHILADELPHIA — Atlantic Richfield Co. announced Wednesday it would market a high-octane grade of unleaded gasoline in October.

TOKYO — Vigorous oil-saving measures will result in a 6.4 percent drop in Japan's crude oil imports in fiscal 1980, the Institute of Energy Economics predicted Wednesday.

Soviets jam radio stations

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet authorities have resumed jamming Russian-language broadcasts of Western radio stations for the first time in seven years, apparently to halt news of the mass strike in Poland.

Representatives of the Voice of America, the British Broadcasting Corp. and the West German station Deutsche Welle said Wednesday their broadcasts in Russian and other languages spoken in the Soviet Union all were being jammed.

The purpose of the jamming, an apparent violation of the 1975 Helsinki Accords, was unknown; and the state broadcasting commission, Gosteleradio, denied knowledge of it.

the actual cost is going to be different than we planned is the state going to give us the difference?" Schowisky asked.

Although Phelan was unsure, he told Schowisky, "It could very well be they would give us an increase, they gave us two already because of inflation." He said the proposal would have to come before the state Bonding Commission as a class action.

Phelan estimated construction would begin by the spring. The authority had planned to approve preliminary plans Wednesday night, but Project Architect Dominick C. Cimino of Hartford did not attend the meeting to present the plans.

Phelan said he would call a special meeting for plan presentation within the next few weeks. These plans must be approved by the authority and by the state. Then, two additional sets of plans must go through the same procedure before the project can be put out to bid, Phelan said.

As of July 31, there were 246 people on the waiting list for the complex, 80 percent of whom are single, Phelan told the authority. All but four of the waiting list are for single persons. Labor and materials are increasing.

East Hartford fireworks

The future of the annual July 4 fireworks display in East Hartford's McAuiliffe Park is in doubt. Although no action has been taken by the town council, there is a growing sentiment to abandon the display of Independence Day patriotism.

It's a shame the traditional display of patriotism reminiscent of the battle for freedom and independence from tyranny is marred by the failure of a few to behave themselves with appropriate demeanor. If anything, Independence Day should be a time for exemplary citizenship in the spirit of patriotism.

Something is wrong when a community hosting such a patriotic display considers abandoning it. It is important Americans have an opportunity to recognize the independence that was won after long and bloody battle with a tyrant king.

Neighbors near the park have experienced the thoughtless trappings of spectators who have damaged property and gardens. The large numbers of spectators have jammed the park to see the fireworks and, we are confident, the majority has respected the rights of others.

WASHINGTON - President Carter should go ahead with his plan to invade Iran in October, he would risk war with the Soviet Union. There have already been ominous rumblings out of the Kremlin warning Soviet retaliation if Iran should be attacked.

The Defense Intelligence Agency has been ordered to "study and report on possible Soviet military reactions to various scenarios in which the United States forces have invaded Iran." The assignment of the Central Intelligence Agency is to gauge the political fallout.

There is another, more sinister scenario. Intelligence reports claim that the Soviets have their own designs on northern Iran. Working through the communist Tudeh party, they are maneuvering to gain control of the northern provinces.

Carter defends defense before legion convention

BOSTON (UPI) — President Carter today defended his defense spending record as wise and prudent and said it would do "no good to seek absolute superiority over the Soviet Union."

He gave the message in a speech to the national convention of the American Legion, which heard Ronald Reagan roundly criticize U.S. military strength around the world on Wednesday.

"The destructive power of the world's strategic arsenal is already adequate for total devastation," the president said.

"It does no good to increase that destructive power in search of a temporary edge or in pursuit of the illusion of absolute superiority. Chasing either advantage can undercut the stability and assured deterrence that is our real goal and need."

Carter did not mention Reagan by name today, but he clearly countered many of the Republican presidential candidate's accusations in laying out what he sees as the nation's defense needs for the 1980s.

Citizens Party keeps moving

By JAMES V. HEALON

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — "The important thing," candidate Louis Zemel was saying as he persuaded one man to sign his petition to get on the ballot and struck out with another, "is to keep moving."

Zemel was working the streets around Yale University and after five hours, he had obtained 70 signatures. There were too many out-of-towners who weren't registered Connecticut voters. He kept moving.

He is the Citizens Party candidate for the U.S. Senate from Connecticut. At 68 years old, he describes himself as "a venerable old man and I feel it. Oh, yes," Zemel said he expects to lose.

So does Barry Commoner, the party's presidential candidate, who is a 63-year-old professor of environmental science at Washington University in St. Louis. Commoner founded the movement a year ago as an alternative to the major parties.

"I don't expect to be elected in 1980," he said. The party's strategy is to get 5 percent of the national vote this year — roughly 4 million votes — which then makes it eligible for several million dollars of post-election federal financing.

Thus, with a contemplated constituency of working people, unionists, feminists, minorities and young activists, the Citizens Party expects to rock the White House, Congress, Statehouses, and City Halls through the 1980s.

It is antiwar.

"We had the truth, the movement grew, the Vietnam war was stopped, now we have the Citizens Party," said Zemel, whose Powder Ridge Ski Area in Middlefield was the site of several antiwar protests.

Commoner was asked by a spectator at a sparsely attended evening appearance at Wilbur Cross High School how the Citizens Party would go about "converting the Soviet Union to pacifism."

"By making absolutely clear to them that we will not accept a nuclear war solution to any problem; publish all documents on its consequences, and have the United Nations hold an international conference on the issue."

He suggested fostering a peaceful approach to the Soviet Union. He said the Soviets invaded Afghanistan last December following the Iranian hostage crisis because of "a perceived threat."

Lapses in defense, as well as in the strategic arms talks, and the presence of American warships in the Persian Gulf, reinforced the position of Soviet hawks and the invasion resulted, he said.

While the party's main commitment is to peace, it is also anti-nuke, against draft registration, sexism, racism, and multinational corporations. It wants sharp reversals in military spending, and jobs for anybody willing to work.

It has very little money now. Zemel asked for a $1,000 contribution after Commoner spoke, got no takers, and said he would give it himself. He was somewhat successful with pleas for amounts under $100.

The party's main goal so far has been to obtain access to the ballot through valid petition signatures. "Qualifying to participate in a democratic process," Commoner said wryly, "which I thought we were all born into."

He said the party is on the ballot in 22 of 35 targeted states and the District of Columbia. It has apparently gathered the required 14,085 signatures or 1 percent of the registered voters in Connecticut.

But it routinely strives for more than required to offset any names that may be tossed out after examination in the various states. It has set a goal of 20,000 for submission Aug. 26 to Connecticut's secretary of the state.

Obtaining the petition signatures begins with motivating volunteers. Karen Matthews of the party's New Haven chapter sometimes gives them pep talks and said that for some it isn't easy, but once "you psyche yourself up" to make the approach, it can be done.

Paul Bass needed no encouragement. The exuberant folk singer persuaded 800 people to sign their names, and apparently holds the Connecticut record. The volunteers get some unusual replies when they approach people.

"It's against my religion to vote," one man told Karen Matthews.

Speakers bureau formed

HARTFORD — Saint Francis Hospital and Medical Center Foundation has established a free health information service in the form of the Saint Francis Hospital and Medical Center Speakers Bureau.

Comprised of physicians and health-care professionals, the bureau is a community resource which can provide social, civic and community organizations and clubs with facts about the prevention and treatment of disease and other health care issues.

Through the Speakers Bureau, community groups can gain free access to experts representing a variety of medical and related specialties. Proper nutrition during pregnancy, myths about alcoholism, the effect of lifestyle on heart and lung disease, and the benefits of home care are among the subjects discussed by the speakers.

Speakers may be scheduled by calling the Department of Public Information, 548-4976, at Saint Francis Hospital and Medical Center. Brochures listing the speakers and their subjects may also be obtained by calling that number.

Hints For Homemakers!

AUTOMATIC WASHERS
New miracle machine-washable synthetic fibers have made wash-day a lot easier, but just a few laundering mistakes can be very costly. To help you avoid mistakes, here are some laundry tips from Whirlpool home economists that can help you keep your clothes cleaner looking and longer lasting.

• Treat spots and stains before washing. Many stains are easy to remove when fresh but become set when allowed to dry.

• Close zippers and hooks and remove pins, burks or other sharp objects from the clothing before loading to prevent snagging other items in the load.

• Mend rips and tears before washing so that they don't become larger during washing.

• For cold water washing, heavy duty liquid detergents are recommended. If you use a powdered detergent, dissolve it in a little warm water first and then add it to your cold wash water.

• Don't overfill the washer. Clothes need room to move and to be properly cleaned.

• Don't use too much detergent. Excess detergent can leave clothes stiff and can irritate the skin.

• Don't use fabric softener on towels and washcloths. They will absorb the softener and become stiff.

• Don't use fabric softener on synthetic fibers. They will become brittle and break.

• Don't use fabric softener on wool. It will mat and shrink.

• Don't use fabric softener on leather. It will dry and crack.

• Don't use fabric softener on silk. It will lose its luster.

• Don't use fabric softener on rayon. It will lose its strength.

• Don't use fabric softener on cotton. It will become stiff.

• Don't use fabric softener on polyester. It will become stiff.

A Soviet nuclear submarine caught fire off Okinawa, killing at least seven crewmen and injuring three others, Japanese officials said today.

Fire kills nine, disables Soviet sub

TOKYO (UPI) — Fire broke out aboard a Soviet nuclear submarine off Okinawa today, killing nine crewmen and injuring three others and disabling the vessel.

In a telephone interview with Japan Broadcasting Corp., the captain of the British ship said "smoke was billowing from the submarine for about one hour. About 15 crewmen were seen busily working near the stern, indicating the fire broke out in the rear part of the ship."

The cause of the fire and extent of damage was not immediately known but Japan Defense Agency sources said officials had not ruled out the possibility of an explosion.

Tea break may have caused jet fire

JEDDAH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — Mecca-bound Muslim pilgrims using gas stoves to brew tea on a crowded Saudi Arabian jetliner may have started the fire that engulfed the plane at Riyadh airport, killing all 301 people, a preliminary report said.

The burned corpses were found — a fact which may have hindered the crew from carrying out their duties," the report said.

The in-flight blaze, which spread through the cabin to the cockpit, forced the American-made plane on a flight from Karachi, Pakistan to Jeddah via Riyadh, to turn back to the Saudi capital.

The report said other fires aboard airliners in the Middle East had been blamed on passengers using stoves to brew tea and coffee and occasionally cook food in flight.

The Saudi report said the Tri-Star's "black-box" flight recorder showed pilot Mohammed Al Khawater radioed soon after leaving Riyadh a fire had started in the economy-class section and had spread through first-class to the cockpit.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hanson of 22 Union Place and Mr. and Mrs. John Legault of 1 Union Place, Manchester, observed their 25th wedding anniversaries at a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Graham MacDonald, 50 Ralph Road, Manchester. Mrs. Hanson and Mrs. Legault are sisters.

The Hansons were married Sept. 3, 1955 in Chapel. The Legaults were married Aug. 9, 1955.

The party was hosted by the Hanson's children, Marcia Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Graham MacDonald, all of Manchester, and the Legault's children, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Eldridge of Bolton and Mrs. Legault, Michelle Legault, Melissa Legault, John Legault, and Patrick Legault, all of Manchester.

Among those attending was Mrs. Alice Hanson of Manchester, Mrs. Hanson's mother; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Landon of Chaplin, Mrs. Hanson's parents; Mrs. George Kennedy of Manchester, Mr. Legault's mother and others from New Jersey and Connecticut.

The couples received money and other gifts. (Village photo)

Garden clubs plan course

The Federated Garden Clubs of Connecticut will sponsor a Flower Show School, Course II, at the Connecticut Agriculture Experiment Station, 123 Huntington St., New Haven, on Sept. 23, 24 and 25. The program will include horticulture, design and flower show procedure.

The examination is optional and it is not necessary to take the courses in sequence.

Paul Fries will discuss classification and nomenclature, general methods of propagating and growing exhibition plant material and specific methods of producing exhibition dahlias, geraniums and berried branches.

James Grinnell, master judge and noted lecturer, will review the elements and principles of design with emphasis on color.

Mrs. Milton Hescok's subject is flower show procedure. She is a master judge and nationally accredited instructor of Flower Show Schools and Symposiums.

This program is open to the public but only members of National Council member clubs are eligible for credit. For ticket information, call Mrs. Robert Mischer, Chestnut, 272-6020.

Smallest Planet

Mercury, nearest planet to the sun, is the smallest of the nine planets known to be in the solar system. It moves with great speed in its journey around the sun, averaging about 30 miles a second, to complete its circuit in 88 of its days. Mercury rotates on its axis over a period of nearly 59 days, thus exposing all of its surface periodically to the sun.

She also received the F.W. Bakker Award presented to the graduating student with the highest academic performance in the Department of Radiologic Technology.

She is presently completing an affiliation in the Department of Radiology at Dartmouth-Hitchcock Memorial Hospital at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H.

Women thinner with milkshakes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Disheartened with continuous failures in her 15-year battle against fat, Melody Marks started consuming all the milkshakes, not fudge sundaes and orange marmalade her overweight body craved. That's when she lost 65 pounds.

She has maintained her perfect, size-7, 125-pound form for the past three years simply, she claims, by tuning in to her body's needs.

"It's important to learn to listen to your body," she said. "Stop eating by the clock and forget the times as a child when you were made to sit at the table as long as it took you to clean your plate. Eat when your body tells you it's time to eat and stop when your body feels comfortable and not stuffed."

Ms. Marks, a psychiatric clinician with a Masters degree in social work, believed so firmly in her simple, but effective, method for shedding extra pounds, she gave up her job a year ago and started the Weight Wise program in San Francisco.

Dzens of her followers attest to the effectiveness of her solution to the American problem of overweight that has spawned an $11 billion diet industry, which, the American Medical Association says, has a 99 percent failure rate.

Ms. Marks says not everyone need attain "the perfect form."

"Two women attorneys at her workshop, for example, were individually asked how they would view themselves at their ideal weight."

"Surprisingly, both told me they thought they would not be as substitute in their presence in the courtroom if they were thinner," Ms. Marks said. "They said they feared being treated like sex symbols or Barbie dolls."

Melody Marks

Her key to her system is self-respect and self-acceptance, in contrast — she points out — to dieting programs that associate weight loss with punishment or self-rejection.

Hillary Plymate, 27, who tried "everything except bypass surgery" to slim down her 260-pound frame, said "incredible things have happened since I met Melody last March."

Now 45 pounds thinner, Ms. Plymate said she once used food to satisfy her "psychological rather than physical hunger. Whether I was sad, depressed, frustrated or even happy, I ate. Food was my reward, my comforter — and the source of all my guilt."

After several sessions — at $30 an hour for individual counseling and $95 for an eight-week group encounter — Ms. Plymate said she learned "I did not have to deprive myself of the pleasure of eating but that I should not use it as a substitute for other needs."

Advice to older women

There's another chance

BRISTOL, R.I. (UPI) — When Toni Tucci wrote her first how-to book on sex and self-esteem for women on the sunset side of middle age, she was surprised so many of the women who wanted to meet her were decades younger.

"Even in their 20s, they're afraid what's going to happen to them," said the 60-year-old, well-mannered beauty.

"It really tough out there," she said, leaning forward on the couch at her tiny beachfront summer house.

"We're the only culture where the older woman is looked down on. In Europe, South America, older women are the ones who introduce younger men to life."

Toni Tucci's message is this: older women are at a dangerous crossroads. They face likely odds of widowhood or divorce but also have a second chance to do something new with their lives.

Two years ago she wrote the "The Butterfly Secret," a book which explicitly chronicled her three disastrous marriages — "I was married to two millionaires and I don't have a dime" — and her rebirth as a woman of affairs, many of them with younger men.

"I had quite a fight with my publisher," said Miss Tucci, adjusting the flowing beige sweater she wore over tailored slacks. "He said old ladies don't know four-letter words."

The book sold 800,000 copies and is being published in Japan, Germany, England and Australia. Her newest book is "Mileage," a peep talk and navigation manual for women at mid-life.

"We have to stop playing the role of the older woman," Miss Tucci said. "We get to 50 and we start thinking of getting cancer and of our grandchildren. We have to absolutely change our attitude."

"We've brought up children, we can always get a job as a maid," she said. "We've had houses and we can decorate. We can certainly cook. If you've done volunteer work, you know how to run a business."

"Throw the memories out and start again," she said. "Sell the house and get a small apartment in a complex, where an older woman can meet people."

"We have a second chance to pick up our dreams," she said.

"Or better yet, Miss Tucci says, plan ahead.

"You have to think at 35: what if my husband should die?" she said. "Hey, watch out. Keep your own name when you marry. Your husband is going to desert you, divorce you or die on you."

Her face, even in the noontime sun, bears few lines and even less makeup.

Nearby cafe waitresses take nuke plant in stride

LUKA, Miss. (UPI) — They call it "Molly's Radiation Restaurant" and construction workers from the nearby Yellow Creek nuclear plant drift in and out during the day for breakfast or a quick snack.

"They say we have floating waitresses because of the radiation," laughed 18-year-old Barbara Wood, a waitress from nearby Pickwick. "Breakfast is our main business."

Molly Gladish is the owner of the small cafe, which sits along an access road to the nuclear plant and to the nearby J.P. Coleman State Park.

The name of the restaurant, in bold letters on a large sign, is an eye-catcher. But Barbara said it doesn't bother her to work near a nuclear plant.

"I don't ever think about it," she said. "I don't think most people around here are really worried about it."

The Tennessee Valley Authority recently gave the go-ahead for completion of reactor units at Yellow Creek, one of several nuclear plants where the agency had considered postponing construction because of decreasing energy growth load projections.

"If they had stopped it, I'd be out of a job," Barbara said, perhaps echoing the sentiment of most residents of this rural, economically depressed Appalachian area.

"TVA has kind of been the backbone of our area," Luka Mayor George Cutshaw explained from behind the desk of his city hall office, occasionally pausing to spit a wad of tobacco juice into a cup. He said chewing was helping him to quit smoking.

The mayor said TVA came into the area with construction jobs during the depression days of the 1930s and had been the region's chief employer ever since, along with the on-going Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway construction project.

"TVA gave people jobs who were starving," said Cutshaw, a 55-year-old mortician when he's not performing his municipal duties. "TVA has kind of been the backbone of our area. TVA and the people in the valley here — we just kind of go along together."

When the TVA held a public meeting in the area concerning the nuclear plant a couple of months earlier, Cutshaw said no opposition was voiced by residents of Tishomingo County.

"We had people from God knows where — people fighting nuclear energy — who spoke against it, but we didn't have anybody from our county that spoke against it," he said. "So that tells the story right there."

But some area residents feel the TVA project, which has brought an influx of construction workers and white-collar workers from other states, has had an inflationary effect on a small town economy.

"When this (the nuclear plant) came in, the supermarkets and clothing stores jacked the prices up on items," said Sarah Comer, an employee of the nearby state park and a resident of Luka for the past 10 years. She said many Luka residents work at local shirt and shoe factories, where salaries have not kept pace with the rising prices.

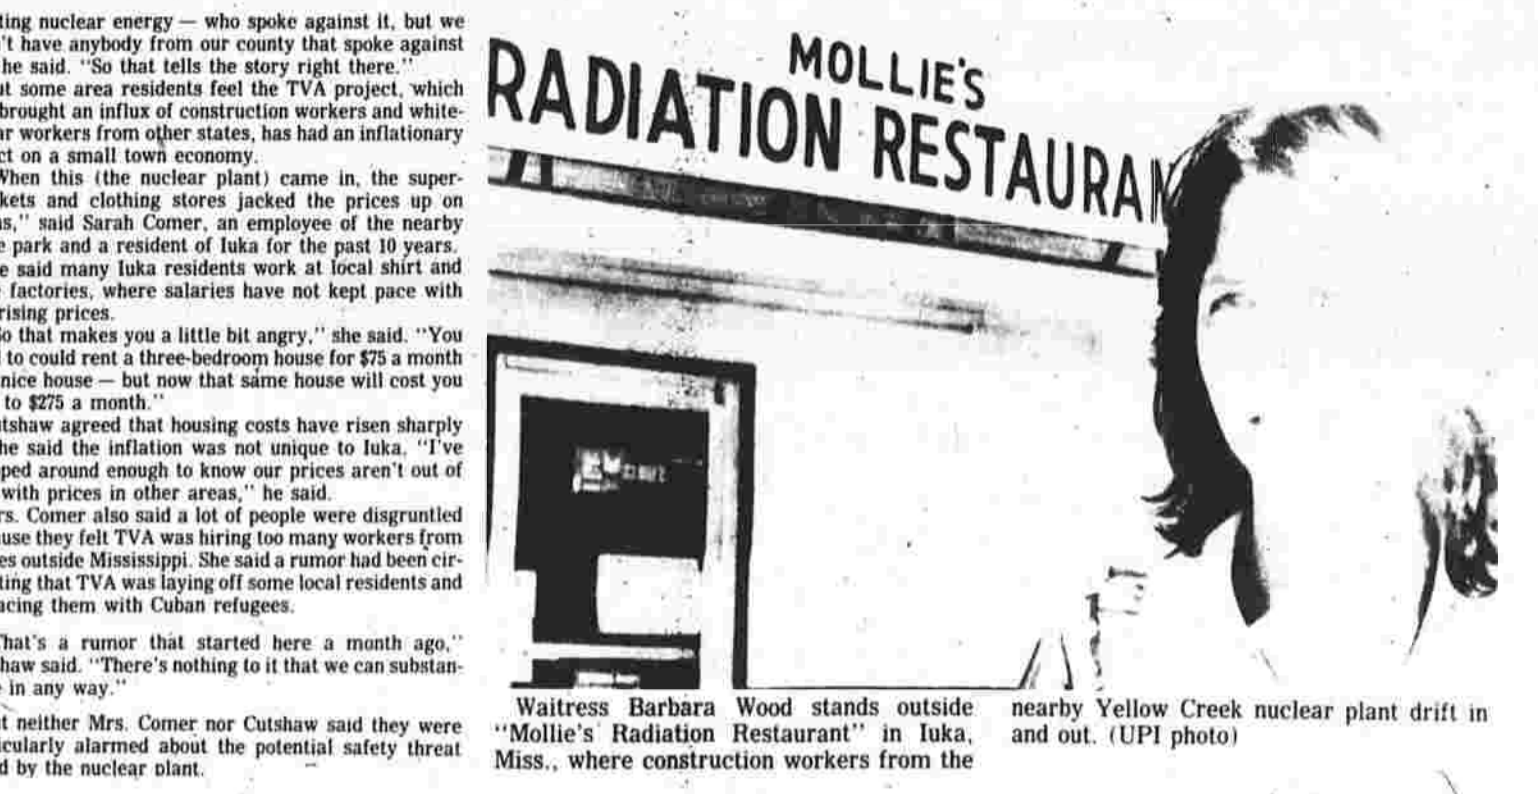

"So that makes you a little bit angry," she said. "You used to could rent a three-bedroom house for $75 a month — a nice house — but now that same house will cost you $250 to $275 a month."

Cutshaw agreed that housing costs have risen sharply but he said the inflation was not unique to Luka. "I've shopped around enough to know our prices aren't out of line with prices in other areas," he said.

Mrs. Comer also said a lot of people were disgruntled because they felt TVA was hiring too many workers from places outside Mississippi. She said a rumor had been circulating that TVA was laying off some local residents and replacing them with Cuban refugees.

"That's a rumor that started here a month ago," Cutshaw said. "There's nothing to it that we can substantiate in any way."

But neither Mrs. Comer nor Cutshaw said they were particularly alarmed about the potential safety threat posed by the nuclear plant.

Career courses offered by MCC

MANCHESTER — In answer to a growing need for education relevant to economic goals and the job market, the Community Services Division of Manchester Community College is offering several courses this fall for individuals seeking to change or develop careers.

The travel career certificate program is designed to prepare students to work in travel agencies. Courses in this program are offered on a repeating basis with introduction to Travel being offered every semester.

This fall, courses are being offered in Group Travel, Geography for the Travel Agent, and Independent Tours as well as Introduction to Travel.

The Small Business Career Program offers courses in cooperation with area Chambers of Commerce and the U.S. Small Business Administration. Fall courses include: Starting a Small Business, Operating a Small Business, Personnel Development and Training for the Small Business, Secretarial Practices for Small Businesses, Minicomputers for Small Businesses, and Financial Record Keeping for Small Businesses offered at the Adult Business Career Development Center in downtown Manchester.

Other career development courses being offered on campus at MCC include Real Estate Sales Techniques, Introduction to Writing Grants, Basic ERG Interpretation and Health Management.

These courses meet once per week. They cost between $20 and $85. For information, call the Community Services Office, 646-2137.

Non-credit program scheduled at college

MANCHESTER — Manchester Community College offers a variety of non-credit courses for personal interest and enjoyment. These courses provide an opportunity for education without the stress related to formal academic learning.

Among the cultural enrichment courses offered this fall are Language/Heritage courses including: "Conversational Italian," "Poland Today," and "An Introduction to Japanese Culture." Two music courses have been introduced, "Jazz: A History and Appreciation," appealing to those who are interested in the jazz and big band sound revival, and "Opera: The Audience View," which studies the operatic drama with the aim of enhancing spectator enjoyment. The wine program has expanded to include two specialized courses — "Wines of California" and "Wines of France."

The personal development courses include "College Preparation for Adults," a course designed to assist the prospective adult college student who has been away from the rigors of study and classroom habits. "Assertiveness Training" has been expanded to two sections and discusses how to better communicate thoughts and feelings. A new course, "Exploring Singlehood," seeks to help students through discussion to cope with areas of living important to single adults, many of whom were formerly married.

There are an additional 44 non-credit courses available for the fall at MCC. For more information and registration, contact the Community Services Division at 646-2137.

Club agent for life vials

SOUTH WINDSOR — The South Windsor Women's Club, in cooperation with Manchester Memorial Hospital, has been designated as the South Windsor authorized agent for the "Vials for Life" program.

The vials, kept in home or car, hold medical information to assist hospitals, doctors, police and fire departments in the event of an injury. Information may be obtained by calling Janette Nousek, 644-0023 or Carol Kinder, 644-3192.

Weaver signs last pact

NEW YORK (UPI) — You have Earl Weaver's word for it. This is the last baseball contract he's signing. When it runs out at the end of 1982, the umpires won't have Earl Weaver to kick around anymore...

His new contract, calling for somewhere in the neighborhood of $175,000 per year, makes Weaver the second best paid manager in the American League to Billy Martin. It also makes him enormously happy because it "keeps me in Baltimore two more years and if everything goes the way I figure, that will be the end of my career."

Weaver, speaking from Anaheim, Calif., where the Orioles are engaged in a three-game series with the Angels, says 25 years in baseball, which is what it will be for him in two more years, is more than enough. "I'll be 52 then and I'm hoping to retire," says the colorful little St. Louis native who has guided the Orioles to six division titles, four pennants and one world championship in the 11 1/2 previous seasons he has managed them and has another shot at winning again this year.

"If everything goes as planned, the contract will be my last one. Naturally, the economy and how far I can go on the money I've been able to save will be a factor, but right now my mind is made up to retire in two more years."

Weaver's decision isn't one he's made up with overnight. He has been thinking and talking about it for some time and it carries the full endorsement of his wife, Mariama. "I've probably made a lotta weaknesses," he says. "Everybody makes mistakes and I'm sure I've made my share. The big thing I try not to do is make the same ones over and over again."

Whether Weaver, who owns the best winning percentage of any present manager and now has moved to second on the all-time list behind only...

Abby By Adigan van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our 20-year-old daughter is living at home after three unsuccessful attempts at apartment living. She works, but pays too no rent. She's been dating a young man for a short period of time and goes out with him once a week. She stays all night at his apartment, comes home in the morning, changes her clothes and goes to work.

DEAR ABBY: Recently the director of the ballet company of which presidential candidate Ronald Reagan's son is a member, announced to issue a statement to the press that the younger Reagan and all the other male members of the troupe were "straight" and had "nice girlfriends."

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the reader who was surprised and disgusted to receive an invitation to a "potluck wedding feast."
