Proposed Home Energy Assistance Plan Program 1980-1981 1980-81 Home Energy Assistance Plan Draft Summary

The Office of Policy and Management announces that public hearings will be held on the Draft of the Home Energy Assistance Plan. OPM also invites public comments on the plan which are to be submitted no later than September 1980. Following the public comment period, the comments will be reviewed and incorporated, if appropriate, in the Final Plan to be submitted to the Department of Health and Human Services.

The Draft Home Energy Assistance Plan will provide direct financial assistance to all households in Connecticut who are receiving Food Stamps, or who are eligible to receive Food Stamps. Eligible households will be provided up to $500 of oil or its equivalent heating value in other fuels. In order to be a participant in the program a potential applicant must apply and be certified eligible and present a bill from a home energy supplier. It is proposed that the Department of Income Maintenance, as the state agency responsible for administering the program, will pay the vendor the amount of the bill, up to the individual's benefit limits.

The Department of Income Maintenance will also provide assistance to renters who meet the eligibility requirements but who pay for energy costs as part of their rent, if that rent is being raised to reflect a rise in energy costs. Additionally the state will work with building operators of publically subsidized housing to insure that rents do not rise for those eligible households who Outreach efforts with special emphasis on the elderly and handicapped will be implemented in a massive way to insure that all potentially eligible households will be aware of the Home Energy Assistance Program and where to apply.

The State intends to request a waiver of the federal regulations requiring termination procedures by energy suppliers. The State already has, through its Department of Public Utilities Control, a procedure for hearings on termination which goes beyond the requirements in the federal regulations. Rather than establishing a new procedure the State will request that the exising structure can be implemented in its place.

PIES: LABOR-SAVING FINALES

It's Labor Day! Or, it seems that imminent when the calendar forecasts that wonderful long weekend. If the prospect of company invades your thoughts. consider those people you seem to owe" an invitation to as summer fades. Decide on the merits of a relaxing dessert buffet and the labor-saving aspects of pies that pamper you, the

What's your strategy? Streamline preparation time with a trio of distinctive pies that are light yet satisfying, beautiful to look at, and deceptively easy to make. Most impressive, of course, is the high and handsome volume of these pies. It's time for you to discover that prepared Dream Whip whipped topping adds volume to the mixtures when it's whipped with instant pudding and pie filling right from the package.

Revel in the fact that these pies are the epitome of convenience. They either wait in the freezer or are kept chilled until near serving time. Each recipe calls for two envelopes of whipped topping mix and two packages of vanilla flavor instant pudding and pie filling which, incidentally, may be in your current inventory. Fresh, frozen and canned fruits add flavor and texture variety when folded into the mixtures

Time, now, to assemble the Labor Day guest list. You have mastered the art of streamlining a pie dessert buffet that promises a delicious finale to the season. It's distinctly another taste

DEAR ABBY: In your answer to KNOWS TOO MUCH. ho resented the tell-it-all aunt who had compiled the family history, exposing all the skeletons in the closet, you pported the aunt with, "Facts are facts!" Come on, Abby. My family learned the hard way. Our family history was written around 1910 and contained all the "facts." That wonderful record, dating back to the 1700s. was so factual that it was "lost" for 70 years because a few dmas gave birth a few months early. I am now rewriting and updating our genealogical seconds, but omitting some current details. Those facts can be sealed in a safety deposit box to be opened 50 years after auicide, a family feud, a prison record, etc. will be under stood as human experiences. Right now, they may b regarded by some as an embarrassment. When those "facts" are revealed, I hope I will not be regarded as a brittle old emotions. Far too many valuable family historical facts FAMILY HISTORIAN

DEAR HISTORIAN: You're right. While facts are indeed facts, keeping them buried until all the "horse thieves" are dead seems reasonable and fair.

DEAR ABBY: Is it considered good manners, upon being invited to a party, to ask, "Who else are you having?" This has happened to me several times, and I am always annoyed but don't know quite how to handle it, so I go shead and recite the guest list. When I extend an invitation I always give the details such as what kind of party it will be, approximately how many are invited, etc., but I don't think I should have to tell who else will be there. What is your opinion?

will be there. And you're right, you are not obligated

DEAR ABBY: I'm almost 18 and have a strange question by boyfriend and I are on the brink of a breakup. We've simply lost our love - but that's not the problem. We gave breaking up, he insists on giving back the gifts. I spent about $100 for his gift, and he spent even more on mine I want him to keep my gift, because when I gave it to him l loved him. However, he wants me to return the gift he gave
