Economy has turned around

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a major turnaround for the economy, the government reported today the Gross National Product grew at an annual rate of 1 percent in the third quarter on heavy consumer spending.

The jump in economic output in the July-September period followed a record 9.6 percent decline in the second quarter, the Commerce Department said.

The report, one of the last major economic barometers before the Nov. 4 election, could be a major boost in President Carter's battle for the White House with Republican Ronald Reagan.

The preliminary report of a 1 percent rise in the "real" GNP—which measures the value of American goods and services in a calendar quarter adjusted for inflation—will be revised next month.

The government attributed the GNP rise to a sharp boost in consumer spending, including purchases of new 1981 model automobiles. Such spending has fallen sharply in the April-June quarter.

The report said economic output increased at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $2.59 trillion in the third quarter of the year.

The government attributed the 1 percent rise in the "real" GNP to increased consumer spending in the third quarter after such spending fell sharply in the second quarter.

The Commerce Department said business stock inventories were drawn down sharply in the third quarter, falling by $17.9 billion compared to an $11.4 billion increase in the second. Smaller inventories means manufacturers are drawing on stocks to meet production needs and will be required to begin restocking soon—a good sign for the quarter.

Consumer purchases of durable goods, including cars, rose $13.6 billion in the third quarter following a $24.5 billion decline in the second. Purchases of smaller, non-durable goods also increased, rising $12.3 billion in the third quarter compared to a much smaller increase in the second quarter.

During the July-September period, Americans spent more money than they earned, causing the average personal savings rate to decline to 4.6 percent from 4.9 percent in the second quarter.

Personal income rose 0.9 percent. And, for the first time since spring, Americans last month spent money at a slower rate than they earned it.

The Commerce department said a new report showing a 1 percent improvement in industrial production last month—the second consecutive increase after six months of declines.

The Commerce department said Americans increased their consumer spending by only $10.9 billion or 0.7 percent in September—compared with $18.7 billion, or 1.1 percent, in August.

Water can be precious

Drought changes lifestyles

By United Press International

In Virginia one man is happily belting down his scotch straight—sans water—and in New Jersey residents are cutting back on showers and police are making nocturnal checks to crack down on illegal lawn sprinkling in the "suburban Sahara."

Millions of Americans in heavily populated northern New Jersey, coastal southeastern Virginia, Massachusetts and southeastern New York State are faced with water shortages, largely the legacy from last summer's withering drought.

They are learning just how precious water can be in times of scant rain and they're learning it the hard way—with mandatory rationing, bans on non-essential usage, stiff fines and higher bills from the water company.

Officials report the water shortages are bringing out the good—and some of the bad—in people.

Millions are rallying to the pleas for conservation put out by public officials and using their ingenuity to come up with ingenious methods to cut water usage.

But others are paying scant heed to the conservation calls and disappointing frustrated officials.

A Virginia psychiatrist said non-conservation minded residents were acting like "rebellious" children and in New Jersey police have been handing out hundreds of warnings to violators of water-saving measures.

In New Jersey, where some reservoirs are bone dry, 2.9 million residents in six counties were placed under a water rationing plan last month after voluntary conservation measures failed.

The residents in the parched region are restricted to 50 gallons of water per person a day, and industries have been ordered to reduce consumption by 25 percent.

The measures are being enforced by spot meter checks and violators could be hit right in their pocketbooks—with fines and penalty charges.

Lawn waterings have also been banned and some police departments began conducting night-time spot checks for wet lawns—the telltale sign of water scofflaws.

Recent rain in the area has put some green back on the lawns, but has failed to make a dent in the water shortage.

Eileen Gardner, a Livingston, N.J. resident, has altered her life style drastically in an effort to comply with the rationing program. She is confining her three children to two showers each a week, putting bricks in the toilet to cut down on water use, stretching wash loads and using water from her dehumidifier to sprinkle her plants.

"It's difficult being conscious of something when you all along have been unconscious," she said.

But others are doing the opposite—just pretending there is no shortage at all. In Jersey City and Newark, New Jersey's two largest cities, officials last week said water consumption had only dropped 1 and 3 percent respectively during the rationing program.

A top state water official said special meetings would be set up to encourage water conservation by the apartment dwellers, but "if that doesn't work, we frankly don't know how to get people to pay attention."

A disappointed Gov. Brendan Byrne is urging local police to crack down harder on the scofflaws.

In southeast Virginia nearly 700,000 water users in drought parched Norfolk, Virginia Beach and a section of Chesapeake are being told to cut water consumption by 25 percent—or in some areas pay stiff penalty charges of up to 14 times the normal water rate.

Bee beard a record

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dan Cooke of Ohio won a piece of immortality by allowing at least 21,000 bees to swarm on his face, chest and throat, setting a new "Beard of Bees" world record.

And Peter Dowdeswell set a new pruned-gobbling mark by downing 144 prunes in a lightning 53.5 seconds in Paris.

If there's one lesson to be learned in the 1981 edition of the Guinness Book of World Records, it's that recordbreakers are going to enormous lengths to push back the limits of human endurance, courage—and outlandishness—in their quest to set new marks.

And even the book's compilers feel some of the lengths may be a little too enormous—to the point of becoming dangerous.

To mark the publication of the 19th American edition of the Guinness book today, the book's editors have announced especially risky record categories will be retired and no further claims to them will be entertained or published.

So Vernon "Komar" E. Craig of Wooster, Ohio, can be assured he will forever hold the "ultimate" record for the "Iron Maiden" feat—lying between two beds of nails with weight put on top. He set the Guinness mark by enduring a bed of nails laden with 1,642½ pounds in 1971.

But that doesn't mean new marks in "non-risky" categories won't be entertained in the book, first introduced 25 years ago as a way of peacefully settling arguments that might develop over record performances.

The new American edition put out by Sterling Publishing Co. is full of new, sometimes mind-boggling marks.

In other new Guinness records:—Arden Chapman of Pioneer, La., caught a grape in his mouth, thrown from 319 feet and 8 inches in July.

—Jim Puro of Livonia, Mich., crawled nonstop for 25 miles in October.

—Hornesh Sharma of New Delhi, India, broke his own world record listed last year for the longest fingernail as his nail grew another inch to 26¼ inches. He has left his world record breaking nail uncut for 14 years.

Alert chief results in closed case

MANCHESTER — Alert action by the police chief in the predawn hours of this morning has led to the arrest of a suspect accused of grabbing a female jogger in the vicinity of Scott Drive.

Police arrested Rodney Collis, 38, of Vernon, who was to be presented in Manchester Superior Court this morning to face a charge of first-degree unlawful restraint in connection with the attack on the woman jogger.

Police Chief Robert Lannan today said he was barely awake when he heard a noise he associated with a car with a flat tire.

Lannan said the car stopped in front of his Taylor Street home with its lights off. Lannan became suspicious, called police headquarters and had the incident checked.

Police linked the car with an incident in the Scott Drive area in which a woman jogger had been grabbed by a male assailant who, she told police, tried to drag her away.

A motorist, hearing the woman scream, stopped his car and, police said, apparently frightened the attacker away.

Police said the car used in the getaway apparently struck an object, causing a tire to go flat.

Police established the link between the car Chief Lannan reported and the earlier incident.

Mount St. Helens quivers, blows top for sixth time

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Mount St. Helens shuddered through several quakes then unleashed a sixth major eruption Thursday night that sent a towering plume of black ash 42,000 feet high and lightly dusted Portland, Ore., 50 miles to the southwest.

Earthquakes began rocking the volcano in mid-afternoon, then the volcano rumbled with "an intense, six-minute burst of seismic activity" beginning at 9:58 p.m. PDT, Craig Weaver of the U.S. geological Survey reported.

A light shower of pumice fell within minutes on the tiny town of Cougar, 12 miles southwest of the volcano. About an hour later a light dusting of ash began to fall in Portland and Vancouver, both about 50 miles away from the mountain.

The ash moved southwest later in the morning to sprinkle the northern edge of Salem Ore., and the Oregon coastal cities of Lincoln City and Newport, 150 miles from the volcano.

Oregon state police advised motorists to reduce speeds on major highways as a Portland police spokesman said a heavy fog was causing more problems for drivers than the ash.

The eruption appeared to subside after the spectacular six-minute blast. There were no reports of injury or mudflows.

National Weather Service officials said ash would blow in a south-southwest direction at all elevations. The ashfall trajectories were east of a line from the mountain to North Bend, Ore., and west of a line from the mountain to Klamath Falls.

Earlier Thursday, Mount St. Helens shot a plume of ash and steam 1,000 feet skyward and rumbled with several earthquakes, prompting the Forest Service to issue a warning a major eruption was possible and might be imminent.

Bob Norris, a spokesman for the University of Washington Geophysics Department, said an earthquake measuring 2.9 on the Richter scale—centered directly under the volatile peak—was registered at 7:02 p.m. PDT, following several "Class B" tremors.

Update

Volcano erupts again

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Mount St. Helens burst forth with its sixth major eruption Thursday night, sending up a plume of ash that blew south and lightly dusted Portland, Ore., 50 miles away.

The volcano, rocked by continuous earthquakes starting in mid-afternoon, rumbled with an intense burst of seismic activity beginning at 9:58 p.m. PDT, said Craig Weaver of the U.S. Geological Survey.

Iranian arrives at U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Iranian Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajavi arrived in New York today to address the U.N. Security Council, causing speculation of a breakthrough in the 346-day hostage crisis.

Rajavi appeared to scotch reports he would meet with U.S. officials on the hostages, answering "No" when asked earlier in Tehran about possible meetings with Americans.

Iraqi forces advance

BASRA, IRAQ (UPI) — Iraqi forces advanced to within 1 mile of Abadan today and claimed they had the Iranian oil refinery surrounded.

Iran said civilians and soldiers dug trenches in the streets, and the Iranians appeared to be using F-4 planes to try to stave off the Iraqis.

Train crash kills two

The Almanac

By United Press International Today is Friday, Oct. 17, the 291st day of 1980 with 75 to follow.

The moon is in its first quarter. The morning stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Mars.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Libra. American actresses Jean Arthur and Rita Hayworth were born Oct. 17 — Miss Arthur in 1904 and Miss Hayworth in 1919.

On this date in history: In 1777, at one of the great turning points of the Revolutionary War, British Gen. John Burgoyne surrendered his forces to the Americans at Saratoga, N.Y.

In 1945, Juan Peron became dictator of Argentina and ran the country for 11 years until he was overthrown.

In 1977, German commandos stormed a hijacked airliner in Mogadishu, Somalia, and freed 80 hostages held aboard the plane since it left Spain for Frankfurt a day earlier. Three of the four hijackers were killed.

In 1979, Mother Teresa of Calcutta, a Roman Catholic nun who cares for the sick and poor, was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize.

A thought for the day: American humorist, artist and writer James Thurber said it this way, "Early to rise and early to bed makes a male healthy and wealthy and dead."

Perry Como and Richard Chamberlain, still sporting his "Shogun" beard, are in Israel to film a Christmas special for ABC.

Como said he has waited 10 years for the chance to do a show from the Holy Land and expects it "will be one of the most important shows I've done in 25-30 years."

Chamberlain, who says American television viewers know him with the beard but Israelis don't, recognizes him, wants to "hang out a bit in Jerusalem" after the show is in the can.

There's one area of disagreement — Como and Israeli singer Ilanit say Chamberlain will sing on the show. Chamberlain said he just plans to read from Shakespeare.

Basra, Iraq — Iraqi forces spearheaded by armored columns advanced to within 1 mile of Abadan today and claimed they had the Iranian oil refinery surrounded.

London — There are so many disabled or sunken ships in the Strait al-Arab waterway that even if the Iran-Iraq war ended tomorrow, it would take weeks or months to reopen the vital oil outlet to the Persian Gulf, experts in London said Thursday.

New York — Treasury Secretary G. William Miller said Thursday he would be "disappointed" if the United Arab Emirates, an OPEC member, decides to raise its oil prices by $2 a barrel as indicated by U.S. oil industry sources.

Washington — Free market zealots and proponents of federal controls agree oil imports are the main threat to U.S. security but they can't get together on a solution, the Tennessee Valley Authority chairman said Thursday.

Priest's charge upsets U.S. Senate candidates

HARTFORD (UPI) — U.S. Senate contenders Republican James Buckley and Democrat Christopher Dodd agreed at least on one issue — that they are not racists as charged by a Catholic priest.

Meeting in their fourth debate Thursday, the two candidates argued over issues as chemical warfare, decontrol of oil prices and housing.

Buckley also revived the issue of Dodd's vote for the Fair Housing Act Amendments and Dodd again denied that the bill would, as Buckley claims, lead to federal intervention in local zoning decisions.

"The bill does nothing of the kind," Dodd said as the two sparred at the annual convention of the Connecticut Broadcasters Association. "It's a total distortion of the facts."

"It's not just a question of shading the issue," Dodd said. "You're 100 percent wrong."

Buckley stuck by his arguments, which have not been supported by the honorary chairman of his campaign, Rep. Stewart McKinney, R-Conn., and said Dodd's answer was a "cop out."

But the two were both stunned and took offense when the Rev. Edmund Nadeau, communications director for the Catholic Archdiocese of Hartford, said the two represented the "racist" attitudes about housing for the poor in Connecticut.

"You might choose your words a little more carefully," said Dodd, adding that he supported various low interest loan programs to help low and middle income residents buy homes.

Buckley said he "shared Chris' dismay" at the comment and said the problem was one of channeling federal housing funds for use at local governments' discretion.

Nadeau said while the two candidates may not act as individuals but racist, the governmental system they represented had neglected the urban poor.

"I've got to blame the politicians for that," the priest said. Buckley said he supported tuition tax credits for parents who send their children to private schools. He introduced such a bill when he represented New York in the U.S. Senate from 1971 to 1977.

"To me, it's an act of fundamental fairness," Buckley said. Dodd said he was in favor of helping parents send their children to college, but did not support tuition tax credits for elementary and secondary schooling because it was the parents' choice not to use public schools.

"As a public official, my obligation is to public education," Dodd said. He said the two represented the Troopers to form union

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut State troopers have overwhelmingly voted to form the state's largest and oldest state employees' union and form their own labor organization.

Jerry Herskowitz, leader of the new Connecticut State Police Union, said Thursday the members voted 349-45 over a two-day period to drop the Connecticut State Employees Association.

He said nine votes were cast for no union representation. Over 20 percent of the 850 members who had made up a unit of the CSEA filed cards with the state by last Aug. 29 indicating they wanted to switch unions.

That forced the state labor board to pull the troopers, a process conducted in police barracks across Connecticut on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Herskowitz said the overwhelming vote didn't indicate the troopers were dissatisfied with the CSEA, but showed state police were attracted to the idea of a union designed to handle specific problems troopers face.

"We still think CSEA is a good union for non-police and we still have a good relationship with the CSEA," he said. "We didn't go out with bad feelings."

Carter urges new effort to ensure Dem victory

HARTFORD — Saying Connecticut's eight electoral votes "were still in doubt" President Carter requested campaigners "go that extra mile" in the next 18 days.

In a campaign swing yesterday through Hartford and the Newington Children's Hospital, Carter spoke for several minutes at a meeting with 100 Democratic leaders at the Old State House.

Amid a crowd of several thousand, jammed on the lawn and streets, Carter said firmly "he didn't intend to lose this election." He requested the support of the leaders and listeners saying "I can't do it without you."

"There are 18 days to go in making one of the most profound political decisions in our lives," Carter said. Carter reminded the listeners of the state's strong Democratic congressional contingent, and said "things important to yourself and your family are at stake."

Carter attacks Reagan saying he opposes programs such as Social Security and Medicare. Although the lunchtime crowd was one of the largest assembled in the state house lawn, there was evidence of the state's uncertainty in voting for Carter in November. Several hecklers waved signs supporting Republican Reagan, and the crowd, while attentive, and receptive, was not overly enthusiastic.

Both men praised the Catholic church for "having a power even greater than the League of Women Voters" by getting the two presidential candidates together on the same forum when all other attempts have failed.

Reagan, in a veiled criticism of Carter, said "no one in America will rejoice more than I" when the hostages come home from Iran. But beyond that he had no harsh words for the president.

The two are not believed to have been on the same platform since a 1973 governors' conference in Lake Tahoe, Nev., when Reagan, then governor of California, spoke against a resolution proposed by Carter, then governor of Georgia.

Although he never mentioned Reagan or his supporters by name, Carter's intent was obvious as he closed his speech on a serious note with an attack on the "Moral Majority," a right-wing political action committee whose leader, the Rev. Jerry Falwell, has questioned whether God hears the prayers of Jews. Falwell later retracted his statement.

Carter likened the attempts to influence government leaders by the Moral Majority, which has strongly endorsed Reagan — to the religious bigotry that defeated Smith for president in 1928.

Carter said religious intolerance still exists in the United States, while Reagan pointed to John Kennedy's election in 1960 as evidence that religious bigotry had ended.

Earlier in the day, Reagan was endorsed by two leaders of the civil rights battles of the 1960s — former Southern Christian Leadership Conference head Ralph Abernathy and his colleague, Hosea Williams.

Reagan called their decision "magnificent ... a great help," and said, "I'm overwhelmed."

And Fayette, Miss., Mayor Charles Evers, former of slain civil rights activist Medgar Evers, called on blacks to vote against Carter — but stopped short of endorsing Reagan. He said he's going to ignore the race.

Voter apathy

Some disturbing trends of voter apathy, particularly among the younger citizens, have turned up in national polls. The 26th Amendment, ratified in 1971, lowered the age of voting eligibility from 21 to 18 - but apparently the young people haven't been rushing to the polls with the anticipated gusto to exercise their franchise.

Opinion

Thoughts

In the presidential election of 1960, 62.8 percent of the registered voters cast ballots. For 1964 the percentage was 61.9; 1968, 60.9; 1972, 55.5; and 1976, 54.4 percent.

people only when they use their power at the ballot box. Extended erosion of public participation could threaten survival of the democracy itself.

NO WONDER YOU THINK IT'S GETTING DULL! THAT'S NOT A CHAIN SAW! WELL, IT IS A CHAIN SAW - BUT, NOT A CHAIN SAW!

Sandi Patarini of Manchester holds up a double bed quilt in the Apple Basket pattern which was made by the women of South United Methodist Church, which will be featured at the annual Fall Fair on Saturday.

SUMC plans Fall Fair

The annual Fall Fair of South United Methodist church, sponsored by the United Methodist Women, will be held Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. For the first time, all the activities will be held north of Hartford Road.

A feature of the fair will be the double bed quilt completely hand-quilted by the women of South Church. It includes calicos of cranberry with touches of colonial blue. There will also be baby quilts, pillow kits, and United States map wall-hanging kits. A spinning demonstration will be given by Liga Jahnke.

The Baked Goods Booth will feature many kinds of breads, cakes, pies, cookies and breakfast pastries. The Holiday Booth will have Thanksgiving pineapples, turkey heads, felt Christmas tree ornaments, door and wall wreaths in gingham, burlap, and calico, and stuffed centerpiece trees. A prize-winning baby afghan will be a feature of the Knitwear Booth. It will also have hats, mittens and baby clothing. A Country Coffee Shop will be serving Bishop's Bread and muffins along with coffee. Also available at this booth will be Vermont cheddar cheese and various jellies, jams and pickles.

The Children's Corner will be showing old-fashioned dolls and a huge variety of stuffed animals. The wishing well will be located there and also face painting, the lollipop tree and shrink art. Small collectibles will be priced for young budgets.

In addition to house plants, Plants & Staff will have calico spice balls, raffia dolls and dried flowers. A four-foot Norfolk Island pine tree will be for sale at this booth. Several area craftswomen will show their crafts, including leaded stained glass by Marion Atkinson and sanded jewelry by Rita Kenway.

There will also be a Food Booth with the lawn run by the United Methodist Men.

Assistant Secretary of Defense wore flowered hats

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tiny Anna Rosenberg sits behind a huge desk on the 26th floor of a skyscraper in New York.

She looks to weigh no more than 98 pounds soaking wet and stand about five feet tall. The full sleeves of the white satin blouse she wears are cuff-ed at the wrist and look like wings when she waves her arms. The little jacket that matches her black skirt is hung over the back of her chair. It is the only casual touch in the impeccably correct executive suite.

The office is a corner one and out one set of windows in the distance one sees the needle atop the Empire State building. A little closer in, the view is of Grand Central Station and the Pan-Am building.

Inside, bowls of roses and other freshly cut flowers from Mrs. Rosenberg's country gardens vie with potted plants for attention. The office furnishings include a crystal chandelier and plush white sofa and chairs.

Mrs. Rosenberg's hands are in perpetual motion. Tugging at the double strand of pearls. Fluffing her hair. Arranging and rearranging papers on the desk. Tying with a vanilla wafer in the saucer holding her cup of caffeine-free coffee.

She talks about her trip to China, Australia, Japan, Hawaii—all within 15 recent days. She topped this off with a trip to Chicago. All of these trips were business-connected for one of her public relations clients, the Encyclopedia Britannica. In China arrangements were made to have the meat and potatoes parts of the encyclopedia translated into Chinese. This is the short version of the reference work. The chore will take four years.

The arrangements were made with Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping. Mrs. Rosenberg, president of her own prominent public relations firm and once the highest ranking woman in the U.S. government, is 78.

It is all of 23 years since she was U.S. Assistant Secretary of Defense and a 12-page spread about her in "Life" magazine of Jan. 21, 1952 issue called her "the busiest woman in the United States."

As assistant secretary of defense she was in charge of manpower requirements, procurement and utilization and policy. "Life" also called her by her nickname, "Madame Bangles," for all the bracelets she wore. The "assistant secretary of defense" always wore a flowered hat.

The white-walled, bright blue carpeted office that she occupies today contains plaques, medals, and autographed pictures of the U.S. Presidents she served, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry Truman and Lyndon Johnson.

The words before the signatures include "affectionately," "with affection to my faithful friend," "faithful remembering your dedicated service."

There is a picture of Jimmy Carter

in the collection and one of Eleanor Roosevelt. "The President wanted me to find out what the soldiers wanted when the war was over," she said. "I told him when I returned — 'They want a chance to better themselves, to go to school'."

And that, as Mrs. Rosenberg tells it, was just the boost the FDR needed to push the plan for a G.I. Bill of Rights providing for college educations for hundreds of thousands of soldiers, sailors, marines, airmen when the war ended. In Truman's administration, Assistant Secretary of Defense Rosenberg visited troops and their commanders at the battlefronts in Korea.

Now her concerns are for her public relations clients such as the American Hospital Association, Blue Cross & Blue Shield Associations of America, the Encyclopedia Britannica, the American Cancer Society, G. & C. Merriman Co., publishers of Merriam-Webster dictionaries.

Mrs. Rosenberg, who marched for suffrage as a teenager, was questioned on women in business, the Equal Rights Amendment, the draft, abortion and other topics. Here are some of her observations: —On succeeding in business, which she has done for the last 35 years: "You make up your mind and do it. You don't fret and say it takes too much effort or time. You spend Saturdays in the office. You have to love people. After Mr. Hoffman died, I put more into it. (Paul G. Hoffman, her late second husband, was a president of Studebaker Corp., president of the Ford Foundation, head of the Marshall Plan in Europe, and a senator of a number of United Nations programs.)

—On the armed services today: "I am very worried about the services. We have machines in the Navy that not enough people know how to operate. The voluntary armed forces probably need to be paid more. It is shameful some service families have such low incomes they must use foodstamps. The recruits need some good training, benefits and incentives to make that a career."

—On women and the draft: "Women should not be eligible to be drafted until they have equal rights."

—On legalized abortion on demand: "I think a woman has a right to do with her body what she wishes. It is a tragedy that women of means can get abortions and others cannot."

—On women in business: "Many women in business try to act like a man and even dress like a man. It just doesn't work. You have to be a woman, look it, act it, and you must work harder than the men."

—On the hardest thing in business: "To get people to listen."

—On the second hardest thing in business: "To get people to follow the advice they asked for."

—On the hardest thing for women in business: "To get men to give them a chance."

Mrs. Rosenberg said she wishes women in business would really dress like women.

"I mean frilly blouses with suits, not man-tailored shirts," she said. She recalled that when she was assistant secretary of defense, a senator told her once:

"Madame Secretary, you have worn on your hats at one time or the other over the years practically every flower or every state except mine."

Lunch costs compared

MANCHESTER — This has been national school lunch week. The Manchester Public School Lunch program has provided the following comparison between the cost of a school lunch and the cost of preparing a bag lunch. Elementary school children now pay 75 cents for a hot meal in the school lunch program. The chart compares the cost of the school lunch and bag lunch. School officials contend the hot lunch provided by the program is a bargain compared to a bag lunch. In addition, officials say, the school lunch program provides a warm meal meeting one third the child's recommended daily dietary allowances. Officials say the lunch program has faced inflationary pressures along with every other consumer commodity. As examples the officials cite increased equipment replacement and repair costs and higher costs of food. As an example the officials say hamburger patties, which cost $1.27 per pound last year, now cost the food service $1.48 per pound. Manchester school food service officials presented the chart above comparing the cost of a bag lunch with the cost of a school lunch. It shows the 75-cent school lunch costs 18 cents per day less than a bag lunch providing equal nutritional value.

Stratford to offer 'The Wiz'

STRATFORD — "The Wiz," Broadway's super-soul musical version of L. Frank Baum's classic "The Wonderful Wizard of Oz," will open Oct. 22 at the American Shakespeare Theater for 10 performances. The hit musical is the latest in the Stratford theater's fall Broadway season which just completed a run of the successful "Ginger Rogers musical," "Anything Goes."

When L. Frank Baum wrote his immortal fantasy in 1900, it's doubtful that even he had any comprehension of the timeless universality his delightful story possessed. "The Wiz," which during its Broadway run won seven Tony Awards including Best Musical, is in many ways faithful to the original story, it takes Dorothy from Kansas to Oz and back again, she meets all the old familiar characters and problems, but there the similarity ends.

As Time magazine said, "The show, with all new music and lyrics, is saucy with urban humor. Its talk is jumping jive-rhythmic, its walk is a big city strut, its dances have a bluesy, torch-trendy, and its songs range from a warm gospel glow to the rock beat of the riveter mining asphalt."

The Grammy Award winning upbeat score includes the phenomenally successful disco delight, "Ease On Down the Road," the inspirational "Be A Lion" and the powerful finale, "A Home."

A special treat for the entire family with its popular tale, outrageous costumes, invigorating choreography and eye-popping visual effects, "The Wiz" is "family priced" with special discounts for children 17 years and under. Special discounts for groups of 20 or more are also available. Charge by phone with major credit cards or obtain through any Ticketron outlet.

"The Wiz" opens Wednesday and runs through Sunday. Evening performances at 8 p.m. are scheduled on Wednesday and Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 7 and 10 p.m. and Sunday at 7 p.m. Special 12:30 p.m. matinees are slated Wednesday and Thursday, to accommodate school groups, with a 2 p.m. performance scheduled Sunday. For further information call the theater box office at 375-5000.

Israeli artist to show work

HARTFORD — An exhibition of paintings and drawings by the Israeli artist Moshe Kupferman will be presented at the Wadsworth Atheneum's MATRIX Gallery, today through Nov. 24.

The exhibition, titled "Moshe Kupferman/MATRIX 61," will include six oil paintings and five graphite and oil drawings. The works were executed between 1971 and 1980 in the artist's studio on the Kibbutz Lohamey Hagatzoth (Kibbutz of the Ghetto Survivors), an agricultural and ceramics-manufacturing collective in the Western Galilee where Kupferman lives, alternating his time between painting and drawing and working in the kibbutz. Some color photographs of the kibbutz will also be included in the exhibition.

Kupferman has remained pretty much isolated from the mainstream of contemporary art, developing an unusual style that is, in the view of MATRIX curator Andrew Miller-Keller, "both painterly and draftsmanlike, expressive and reductive." In his paintings, for instance, which are rendered largely in tones of violet and gray, Kupferman builds up his coatings of oils and then gouges through the layers with powerful, scratch-like strokes that reveal the underlying pigments and structures.

Similarly, in his drawings, Kupferman applies layers of charcoal and graphite, sometimes mixed with oil, often pressing so hard that the paper becomes shiny and the image appears on the other side of the sheet. Again, the final touch may be a sweeping, almost violent scratchmark that breaks through the paper to cause round-edged, stippled effects. In fact, many of his drawings are meant to be seen on both sides.

MATRIX, a changing exhibition of contemporary art, is supported in part by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Films

THE ELEPHANT MAN (PG) — Anthony Hopkins, John Hurt, Anne Bancroft. (Drama) The story of a horribly deformed Englishman, John Merrick, and the doctor who befriended him. It is a story of a struggle, a story of a man who is deformed, but who is not a deformed man. It is a story of a man who is deformed, but who is not a deformed man. It is a story of a man who is deformed, but who is not a deformed man.

WINTER, THE (PG) — Steve McQueen, Robert Redford, Burt Reynolds, Leif Ericson. (Adventure) The story of the happy-go-lucky, carefree, and somewhat irresponsible Steve McQueen, who finds his temper and brings back his old-fashioned sense of adventure. It is a story of a man who is deformed, but who is not a deformed man. It is a story of a man who is deformed, but who is not a deformed man.

MY BODYGUARD (PG) — Chris Mulkey, Adam Baldwin, Beth Grant, Martin Mull. (Comedy) A delight, this could be the first of a series of happy stories of a kid who runs into a gang of bullies. (R — unrated)

"Gustaf and His Ensemble" returns to the University of Connecticut for performances Saturday and Oct. 26 and a master class on Oct. 26.

Adult puppet show returning to UConn

STORRS — Albrecht Roser's one man, adult marionette show, Gustaf and His Ensemble, is returning to the University of Connecticut for performances Sunday and Oct. 26, and a master class on Oct. 26. These will be Roser's first performances in Connecticut since 1977, when he played to six sell-out houses. Considered to be the world's finest marionettist, Roser has performed extensively throughout Europe, Asia, Australia and the Americas. Unlike most puppet productions seen in America, Gustaf and His Ensemble is designed for adult audiences, rather than for children. Parents are discouraged from bringing children under the age of 15 years.

Roser's vignettes introduce creatures, characters and clowns of pathos and comedy, all masterfully manipulated and skillfully presented. With the accompaniment of music, simple props and very little spoken language, Gustaf and His Ensemble is an international show. Although it is hard to proclaim any one of the vignettes as the favorite, the uncontest star is the marionette clown Gustaf, an impish creation embodying all the mischief and fun of mankind. Gustaf has won the hearts of audiences in every corner of the world.

Miller's 'Crucible' first show at ECSC

WILLIMANTIC — The Drama Society of Eastern Connecticut State College opens its first production of the season with "The Crucible" by Arthur Miller's historical tragedy about the Salem witch trials. There will be performances Oct. 23 through 25 (Parents Day), at 8:15 p.m. with a matinee on the 25th at 2:15 p.m. The performances are free and are open to the public. They will be held in the Larry Hope Theater in Stafer Hall, located at the corner of Valley and High streets in Willimantic.

"The Crucible" is being directed by Diana Tucker, a senior at ECSC. In the cast are Michael Sainsbury, playing the part of John Proctor; Dawn Davis, playing Proctor's wife, Elizabeth; Sue Bellerose, playing Abigail Williams; and Michelle Cochran, in the role of Mary Warren.

Tourism up in region

BOSTON (UPI) — Tourism in spite of a recession in region of New England resisted the recession and rose 20 to 25 percent over 1979, according to excerpts released Wednesday from a New England Regional Commission report.

Christine Knowles, the commission's director of economic development, said the area's tourist industry last year equalled or exceeded 1978 peak levels. "The New England travel industry in 1980 has shown a remarkable strength in spite of a summer of national economic recession," Ms. Knowles will present her report on regional tourism at the second annual New England Conference on Tourism Oct. 27 in Waterville Valley, N.H. More than 300 travel agents, tour operators, hotel and restaurant owners, and other travel industry representatives are expected to attend.

Reports from Connecticut indicated tourism was up 20 to 30 percent over last year, she said.

Five blocks separate Euripides and Berman

By GLENNE CURRIE
NEW YORK (UPI) — Euripides and Shelley Berman may be 2,500 years apart but only five blocks separate them on Broadway.

"Euripides' 'The Bacchae' and Berman's latest one-man show opened the same day, Oct. 2. If I had to choose a single stand-up comic, it would have to be Shelley Berman. He's back on Broadway, where he opened 'Inside/Outside/And/All/Around Shelley Berman' at the Bijou Theater Oct. 2. (The title recalls his Grammy-winning comedy record 'Inside Shelley Berman.') But you'll have to hurry; he'll only be there through Oct. 26.

Berman tells his share of bathroom and sex jokes, and he insults the producer, the theater, and the audience. He does it all in such a friendly way he never offends.

The heart of his comedy is the average citizen betrayed and baffled by technology, bureaucracy and the spoken word. His "Inside Shelley Berman" is justly famous: making a credit phone call; being answered by a child; trying to get help for a woman on Broadway at all. "The Bacchae" plays through Nov. 23.

"I absolutely have to have these records. I need them so badly that I'm willing to hire someone to get them for me," C.J. Muzzochi commented at a Freedom of Information Commission hearing where he was arguing for the release of financial records kept by the town of Glastonbury Police Department.

On the last day of voter registration Tuesday in East Hartford, there were almost as many residents registering unaffiliated as those registering Democrat in this Democratically-controlled town.

Man critical after crash

BOLTON—A Coventry man is in critical condition at Hartford Hospital as the result of injuries suffered in a car-motorcycle accident on Boston Turnpike (Route 44A) shortly before 9 this morning.

Steven J. Bartolucci, 29, 42 Midland Road, Coventry, was taken to Hartford Hospital shortly after the 7:43 a.m. accident.

According to state police, Bartolucci was the operator of a motorcycle involved in an accident with an auto driven by Jeremiah Brown Jr., 17, of 151 Deborah Drive, Coventry.

Police said the accident happened when Brown was attempting to make a left-hand turn into a service station.

Members of the Bolton Volunteer Fire Department and state police responded to the call.

The accident is being investigated by Trooper John Sellick of the Colchester Barracks, Connecticut State Police.

Vandalism and thefts investigated

MANCHESTER—Police are investigating several incidents of theft and vandalism Thursday.

Judith Jones, 75 Congress St., reported her 1974 Chevrolet was stolen from her back yard, after she had left it unlocked, but had taken the keys.

Two youths on Campfield Street told police their bicycles have been stolen during recent days from their homes.

Police are investigating the theft of 30 gallons of gasoline from a company owned truck at Manchester Packing Co., 349 Wetherell St.

Tires were reported stolen from a car stored in the 700 block of North Main Street.

Vandalism incidents included the smashing of a pumpkin in the 200 block of Hilliard Street in what a homeowner told police was the fourth incident of vandalism in as many days.

An Equine Drive resident reported a window of a storm door was smashed in an apparent act of vandalism. Police reports say a rock or pellet may have broken the window.

Police were active Wednesday at Thursday, citing violators who run red traffic lights. Several citations were issued at the intersection of Adams Street and West Middle Turnpike, where the signals have been recent switched to flashing red.

Police cited a driver for passing a school bus with its red lights flashing at the intersection of Spruce and Birch Streets. Police said the bus was of loading children when the car passed.

Josephine Bonfiglio
MANCHESTER—Josephine (Patti) Bonfiglio, 79, formerly of Enfield, died Oct. 16 at a Manchester Nursing Home. She was the mother of Mrs. Lou (Louisa) Stachowicz of South Windsor.

Other survivors are a son; two daughters; a brother; 19 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The funeral is Saturday at 9:15 a.m. from Lee-Stevens Enfield Chapel, 60 South Road, with a mass at 10 a.m. in Holy Family Church. Burial will be in Mount St. Benedict Cemetery, Bloomfield.

Friends may call at the funeral home tonight from 7 to 9. Memorial donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, 470 Prospect Ave., Hartford.

Horace C. Vibert
SOUTH WINDSOR—Horace Clark Vibert, 87, a former South Windsor town official, retired tobacco grower, a 30-year employee of the National Fire Insurance Co. of Hartford, later the Continental Insurance Co., and a U.S. infantry veteran of World War I, died Oct. 15 at 1060 Main St., South Windsor.

A lifelong resident of South Windsor, he was born Nov. 5, 1892, son of Horace H. and Mary (Meyer) Vibert. He was a graduate of Storrs Agricultural School, now the University of Connecticut, class of 1913. Mr. Vibert was also discharged as a second lieutenant following World War I.

He was a member of the Republican Town Committee and held various town offices including posts on the board of education and selectman. He was the municipal judge for eight years. In 1961, he was appointed by Gov. John N. Dempsey to the New England Flood Control

Green's project pays off for Phils

MANCHESTER—One of Dallas Green's projects paying off for the Philadelphia Phillies manager was to involve all his players in the game.

Just because someone didn't start every game or pitch every fourth day, Green reasoned, was no reason for the player to believe he couldn't help.

The philosophy succeeded wonderfully during the regular season with youngsters like Bob Walk, Marty Bystrom, Keith Moreland and others playing key roles.

With the World Series headed toward Game 2 in the Phils holding a 2-0 edge over the Kansas City Royals, Green's reserves keep producing.

"Our bench has done a good job all year and that's why we're here," said Del Unser, whose pinch double keyed a four-run eighth inning that gave Philadelphia a 6-4 victory in Game 2.

"When you don't play every day like Greg Gross, myself and Keith Moreland you just try to contribute as much as you can every time you go on the field. Our contributions are magnified because we don't play that much."

Center fielder Garry Maddox praised the work of the reserves.

"We've gotten key hits from the guys on the bench," Maddox said and third baseman Mike Schmidt described Unser in particular as "unreal."

"I'm not unreal," said Unser. "I just managed to get a couple of hits at key times."

Gross, whose bunt single helped Philadelphia even the division, says none of the Phils will let down despite the two-game advantage.

"Not at all," he said. "Against Montreal we won a game and nearly let it get away and against Houston we won the first game and then nearly let it get away."

"We're not gonna' get over confident, especially in this ballpark," Moreland, who got the first hit of the game as the designated hitter for the Phils, said he can easily live with his season role as a backup to catcher Bob Boone.

"We just get the bench into it," said Moreland. "The guys who are not in the game start screaming. If we win it, I'll be so happy I might just retire. Hey, I'm only a kid. I don't think I'll ever quit."

Hoop clinics
Coming up Sunday at Boston College will be a free basketball clinic featuring Hugh Durham of Georgia, John Thompson of Georgetown, Rick Pitino of Boston U., Tom Davis of Boston College, George Blanton of Holy Cross and Rollie Massimino of Villanova. Program starts at 10. Tom Kelley, of East Hartford, the No. 1 large competitor in New England, will exhibit his skills at the Center Court Health and Racquetball Center in Vernon Tuesday night at 7. The public is invited.

Karen Saunders, 28-year-old marathon runner from Manchester, led the field in the Hartford MiniMarathon (10,000 kilometers) last Sunday. She was timed in 40:17.

Wilson wears goat's horns
Every World Series has its goat, a player who falls on his face in the national spotlight after having shone so brilliantly during the course of the regular season.

Last year Baltimore's Eddie Murray wore the horns after going hitless in his last 21 at-bats and All Stars such as Gil Hodges, Don Newcombe and even Ted Williams, have been embarrassed in World Series competition.

So far in this year's World Series, it is Kansas City's Willie Wilson who is falling the most to live up to expectations.

Wilson, perhaps baseball's fastest runner, led the major leagues in hits (280) and runs scored (123) this season while compiling a batting average of .326 and stealing 79 bases.

Yet, in two World Series games he has managed only one hit in nine at-bats and has struck out five times. During the regular season he struck out only 81 times while establishing a major league record of 306 at-bats.

Many baseball people believe Wilson's failure to get on base is a major reason why the Royals are down two games to none to the Philadelphia Phils.

What, then, is wrong with the speedy left fielder? Even Wilson admits it could be the pressure of playing in his first World Series and trying to make a big impression.

"I'm not pleased with my performance by any means," Wilson said. "I realize it's my job to get on base and I haven't been doing it. I'll have to admit I'm putting a lot of pressure on myself."

Wilson said he was thinking about his 0-for-5 performance in Tuesday night's opening game when he walked to the plate in the first inning Wednesday night.

"Then I struck out my first three times up and that didn't help things," said Wilson. "But I walked in the seventh and got a single in the eighth and maybe that will get me going."

Outfielder Clint Hurdle of the Royals thinks it's just a case of Wilson's trying too hard.

"I might be doing the same thing if I were playing mops," said Hurdle. "He's trying to show 60 million people what he can do. He's trying too hard. I think he can shake things off and play his natural game."

Royals manager Jim Frey feels it is wrong to single out Wilson as the reason for the club's poor showing so far.

"It's unreal to believe that anybody can go out any day and get on three or four times," said Frey. "He went 0-for-5 in the first game and everybody says it's wrong with Wilson. He obviously gets things going for our club, but you can't expect anybody to just go out there and get on base every time. It's unfair to point your finger and spotlight anyone. There are a lot of other guys that didn't get any hits their first, too ... on both teams."

Manchester high booters look ahead

It pays to be a top professional athlete. In addition to ridiculous salary scales in all sports, most allowances for baseball, basketball and football players while the team is on the road are nothing to laugh about. Major league baseball players receive $33.50 a day, basketball players in the NBA receive $32 daily while the National Football League performers have to get along on only $27 a day. Rita Lupacchino, of Manchester, is a member of the Central Connecticut State College women's volleyball squad this season as well as Teri Stiebitz and Margaret Tracy, both of South Windsor.

"It's unreal to believe that anybody can go out any day and get on three or four times," said Frey. "He went 0-for-5 in the first game and everybody says it's wrong with Wilson. He obviously gets things going for our club, but you can't expect anybody to just go out there and get on base every time. It's unfair to point your finger and spotlight anyone. There are a lot of other guys that didn't get any hits their first, too ... on both teams."

Green's project pays off for Phils

MANCHESTER—One of Dallas Green's projects paying off for the Philadelphia Phillies manager was to involve all his players in the game.

Just because someone didn't start every game or pitch every fourth day, Green reasoned, was no reason for the player to believe he couldn't help.

The philosophy succeeded wonderfully during the regular season with youngsters like Bob Walk, Marty Bystrom, Keith Moreland and others playing key roles.

With the World Series headed toward Game 2 in the Phils holding a 2-0 edge over the Kansas City Royals, Green's reserves keep producing.

"Our bench has done a good job all year and that's why we're here," said Del Unser, whose pinch double keyed a four-run eighth inning that gave Philadelphia a 6-4 victory in Game 2.

"When you don't play every day like Greg Gross, myself and Keith Moreland you just try to contribute as much as you can every time you go on the field. Our contributions are magnified because we don't play that much."

Center fielder Garry Maddox praised the work of the reserves.

"We've gotten key hits from the guys on the bench," Maddox said and third baseman Mike Schmidt described Unser in particular as "unreal."

"I'm not unreal," said Unser. "I just managed to get a couple of hits at key times."

Gross, whose bunt single helped Philadelphia even the division, says none of the Phils will let down despite the two-game advantage.

"Not at all," he said. "Against Montreal we won a game and nearly let it get away and against Houston we won the first game and then nearly let it get away."

"We're not gonna' get over confident, especially in this ballpark," Moreland, who got the first hit of the game as the designated hitter for the Phils, said he can easily live with his season role as a backup to catcher Bob Boone.

"We just get the bench into it," said Moreland. "The guys who are not in the game start screaming. If we win it, I'll be so happy I might just retire. Hey, I'm only a kid. I don't think I'll ever quit."

Hoop clinics
Coming up Sunday at Boston College will be a free basketball clinic featuring Hugh Durham of Georgia, John Thompson of Georgetown, Rick Pitino of Boston U., Tom Davis of Boston College, George Blanton of Holy Cross and Rollie Massimino of Villanova. Program starts at 10. Tom Kelley, of East Hartford, the No. 1 large competitor in New England, will exhibit his skills at the Center Court Health and Racquetball Center in Vernon Tuesday night at 7. The public is invited.

Karen Saunders, 28-year-old marathon runner from Manchester, led the field in the Hartford MiniMarathon (10,000 kilometers) last Sunday. She was timed in 40:17.

Wilson wears goat's horns
Every World Series has its goat, a player who falls on his face in the national spotlight after having shone so brilliantly during the course of the regular season.

Last year Baltimore's Eddie Murray wore the horns after going hitless in his last 21 at-bats and All Stars such as Gil Hodges, Don Newcombe and even Ted Williams, have been embarrassed in World Series competition.

So far in this year's World Series, it is Kansas City's Willie Wilson who is falling the most to live up to expectations.

Wilson, perhaps baseball's fastest runner, led the major leagues in hits (280) and runs scored (123) this season while compiling a batting average of .326 and stealing 79 bases.

Yet, in two World Series games he has managed only one hit in nine at-bats and has struck out five times. During the regular season he struck out only 81 times while establishing a major league record of 306 at-bats.

Many baseball people believe Wilson's failure to get on base is a major reason why the Royals are down two games to none to the Philadelphia Phils.

What, then, is wrong with the speedy left fielder? Even Wilson admits it could be the pressure of playing in his first World Series and trying to make a big impression.

"I'm not pleased with my performance by any means," Wilson said. "I realize it's my job to get on base and I haven't been doing it. I'll have to admit I'm putting a lot of pressure on myself."

Wilson said he was thinking about his 0-for-5 performance in Tuesday night's opening game when he walked to the plate in the first inning Wednesday night.

"Then I struck out my first three times up and that didn't help things," said Wilson. "But I walked in the seventh and got a single in the eighth and maybe that will get me going."

Outfielder Clint Hurdle of the Royals thinks it's just a case of Wilson's trying too hard.

"I might be doing the same thing if I were playing mops," said Hurdle. "He's trying to show 60 million people what he can do. He's trying too hard. I think he can shake things off and play his natural game."

Royals manager Jim Frey feels it is wrong to single out Wilson as the reason for the club's poor showing so far.

"It's unreal to believe that anybody can go out any day and get on three or four times," said Frey. "He went 0-for-5 in the first game and everybody says it's wrong with Wilson. He obviously gets things going for our club, but you can't expect anybody to just go out there and get on base every time. It's unfair to point your finger and spotlight anyone. UConn enjoys winning trail

UConn enjoys winning trail

STORRS (UPI) — University of Connecticut quarterback Ken Sweitzer has made his share of mistakes but he sees the 4-1 Huskies back on their way to a winning tradition. "I've made mistakes mentally," Sweitzer said as he prepared for Saturday's clash with Holy Cross at Worcester, Mass. "I haven't thrown the ball when I should have and a few times I've thrown a low interception when I should have held onto the ball," said the Madison, Conn., junior. The Huskies, off to their best start since 1954, were off last week and defeated Colgate, 24-21, two weeks ago. "Beating Colgate was such a big win going into the open date," Sweitzer said. "I would have dreamed being at 3-2 and going to play Holy Cross, another Division I-A team." Colgate defeated Holy Cross last week 38-7.

"I guess it could be called a little confidence builder for us," Sweitzer said about the easy time Colgate had with 2-3 Holy Cross. "But we can't let it get to our heads. Colgate could have done the same thing to us," he said. "They blew Holy Cross out early and almost blew us out early." After the game, Huskies' coach Walt Nadzak called the victory the biggest in his four years at UConn. With a little over four minutes remaining in the game and the Huskies down 21-17, they got the ball on their own 7 yard line and drove 93 yards for the winning score. In the touchdown drive, Sweitzer completed four passes for 63 yards, caught a pass for 7 yards on a half-back option and scored the winning touchdown on a 13-yard run. For his performance against Colgate, Sweitzer was named Yankee Conference offensive Player of the week and was also named

Morgan sorry he sounded off

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston Astros second baseman Joe Morgan, who took reporters to task last week for playing for Bill Virdon next year, has expressed regret the remark became public and will meet with club officials soon to discuss his future. "Joe explained to me that he hadn't expected what he said to be made public," said General Manager Tom Postell. "I don't know if he's more than to say that we would get together soon."

Outstanding

Morgan spoke to Paul Orzek of radio station KILT after Sunday's playoffs loss to Philadelphia. He said he was disappointed field manager Virdon took him out in the eighth inning and that he did not expect to return next year. "Virdon this year often replaced Morgan with Rafael Landestoy, who was quicker than the older Morgan. Morgan believed experience

Series brings business

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — There's one player which will come away winners from the World Series, regardless of the outcome on the playing field — Philadelphia's business. "The Longstreth, head of the Greater Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, estimates the first two weeks will attract about 10,000 out-of-town visitors, each whom will spend about $100, for a total of $1 million. Add to that the spending by local fans, who will pour another $1 million into food, drink, transportation and parking for the games, the result is "about the same as if Philadelphia had acquired a small plant for a year," Longstreth said. What the locals and out-of-towners spend, added to ticket sales of $2.5 million, gives the area $4.3 million for just the two games. If the series returns for the sixth and seventh games, that figure would double. Eugene D. Houmer, president of the Convention and Visitors Bureau, said a four-game series would reap $3 million from 11,400 visitors.

One of the reasons for the success of the Manchester Community College soccer squad this fall has been the play of goalie Mark Pastula. The South Windsor resident has been credited with four shutouts and has turned aside 67 of 77 opponent scoring attempts to date. The Cougars have won their last seven starts and entertain Mt. Wachusett C.C. Saturday at 2 o'clock.

Annie musical at Bushnell great success

The Bushnell came alive on Oct. 2, 1980 when "Annie" came to Hartford. Pure entertainment from beginning to end, twelve-year-old star Rosanne Sorrentino stole every heart with her golden voice and superb acting skills. "Annie" is situated in New York City, in the midst of the Great Depression. The musical saga revolves around a young orphan determined to locate her parents. Instead, however, Annie is adopted by Oliver Warbucks, a multi-millionaire businessman, and lives happily ever after in traditional musical style. Although the entire "Annie" cast was magnificent, standouts included Patricia Drylie, Miss Hannigan, the five orphans and Harvie Presnell as Oliver Warbucks. Patricia Drylie brought zest to the colorful Miss Hannigan character. Miss Hannigan received great applause and laughter as she nipped at her whiskey handy in her robe and lamented the life of an orphanage mistress in "Little Girls." The role was portrayed with magnificent flair and finesse by Miss Drylie. The five orphans, Molly, Pepper, Julie, Tessie and Kate, were delightful as they opened the show with "It's Hard Knock Life." All five young actresses added to the musical and proved that past acting experience

Season begins for IOH

The 1980-81 season for the Instructors of the Handicapped (IOH) is now in full swing. This year will be the 25th anniversary of the group and promises to be a successful one. IOH is an organization that teaches mentally and physically handicapped people how to swim. This year teenagers from Manchester, Vernon, Bolton, Rockville, Tolland and South Windsor came to the Manchester High School pool every Sunday to teach their student basic swimming skills. There are 57 instructors presently in IOH to teach students. Thirty students from Mansfield Training School come by bus to participate in the Sunday swim program.

This year's first fund raiser will be a mobile bake sale on Nov. 8. The bake sale is an annual event, and is one of the major fund raisers of the year. The money from the bake sale goes toward the construction of a new pool for the handicapped, to be built at Manchester High School. The IOH officers for this year are president, Janet Crealey; vice president, Meg McNamara; treasurer, Glenn Marx; business secretary, Linda Weiss; corresponding secretary, Heidi Cloutier; public relations, Brad Woodhouse; male sergeant-at-arms, Tim Kenefick; and female sergeant-at-arms, Janet Locke. The adult advisor to the group is Richard Conti. Due to the loss of many seniors last year, instructors for this year are needed. If anyone is interested in becoming an IOH instructor and teaching the handicapped to swim, contact any of the officers or come to the Manchester High School pool on Sunday afternoons at 12:30.

Beatles memorabilia shown at convention for fans

The Beatles were by far the greatest rock and roll group to emerge on the music scene in the early 1960's. Their music and their appeal were so widespread that it seems they have made a major and lasting impact on the future of rock music. The Beatles maintained this pinnacle of rock stardom throughout the entire era until finally, and inevitably, in 1970 the pressures of fame and fortune caused them to split up. Even though the group no longer existed, it would have been impossible to erase the marks they had made. Their music was still very alive, as was their image, if not in the public eye, at least in the hearts of their fans. During the group's seven year reign as rock superstars, hundreds of products took the Beatles name from dolls and lunchboxes to wallpaper and nylon stockings. The four famous faces appeared on almost everything sold during the sixties. Now, several years after the breakup of the band, these products have become valuable collectors items. Some worth up to hundreds of dollars. During the seventies, groups of Beatles fans and collectors convened to display and sell their collections and relive the good old days of the sixties. The Beatles were once again atop their pedestals and have yet to come down again. These conventions have now grown into large, well organized events, drawing large crowds who come from miles around to see old movies, hear Beatles impersonations, and buy rare albums, books and other memorabilia. On Oct. 10-11 and 12, Southern Connecticut State College housed Liverpool Productions' third annual New England Beatles convention. Dealers from all over New England showed up for this weekend of celebration in honor of the Beatles. One of the special guests at the convention was Mr. Paul Glaser, a specialist on the "Paul is Dead" hoax. In 1969 a small group of fans in Ohio found "clues" on an album cover leading them to believe that Paul McCartney was dead. They believed that the Beatles were trying to inform the public of Paul's death by putting clues in the song lyrics and their album covers. This rumor spread throughout the country and there were many who really believed that Paul was dead and had been replaced by an imposter. Mr. Glaser showed slides of album covers, pointing out clues and explaining how the whole hoax was started. Also, special guests were the members of a Beatles impersonation band called The Beatles. The Beatles specialize in early Beatles music and gave a sampling of their music in a mini concert at the convention. If you are one who believes that the Beatles are only a part of the past, you need only go to a Beatles convention to discover that the Beatles are alive and well and thriving in the eighties. Courts visited Seniors taking Law in American Society, or Law and Order were able to observe the Connecticut judicial system firsthand recently. They visited the Superior Court in Hartford last Wednesday. They arrived at the court at approximately 10:00 a.m. and were taken to one of the courtrooms. Judge Bieluch spoke to them about the court system and some of the problems facing teenagers today. He mentioned that stealing is the criminal offense most common among young people today. He urged them to give considerable thought to their futures and especially their careers. They were then given the opportunity to ask the judge questions. After answering all of them, he told them that they were free to visit most of the other courtrooms. Outside in the lobby, they checked the court docket to see which cases were being heard. One of the more important ones was a pre-trial hearing. It was being held to determine whether or not there was good cause to place the defendant on trial for murder. They heard testimony by the defendant and several policemen involved in the case. It would have been interesting to observe the case all day, but they were also wanted to view some civil cases. They hurried upstairs to look for a civil case. They had to move quickly because the court would soon recess for lunch. When they entered one of the first rooms they saw and encountered an individual voir dire. A voir dire is the process by which the attorneys for both sides of a case question prospective jurors for objectivity. Jurors are questioned individually, or in a group, or both. They were also able to observe a group voir dire which was being held during the hour. When the court recessed for lunch, they too, were able to take off. Most of us occupied the time looking for a restaurant, while others put the time to use and visited the state capitol. They then met back at the courthouse where they boarded the bus for home. Everyone enjoyed the trip and we may return in another month or two. Our thanks to Ms. Cathy Cerina and Mr. Zatursky for arranging the trip for them.

Guidance Dept. Bulletin

The Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT) will be given on Saturday, Oct. 25, at MHS. The PSAT measures verbal and mathematical abilities that are important in college work. It is also the qualifying test for students who wish to participate in the nationwide scholarship competitions administered by National Merit Scholarship Corporation. Juniors should register for the PSAT in Room 110 by October 22. The fee is $5. On Tuesday, Oct. 28, from 11:30 to 1:00, there will be an Armed Services Mini-Fair in the Cafeteria Lobby. All branches of the armed services will explain their programs and enlistment procedures. Students should check the Guidance bulletin board frequently for notices of Open House programs at area colleges. On Saturday, Oct. 25, the University of Connecticut will sponsor a program, "Investigate Your Career in Engineering." On Tuesday, Oct. 14, the New England Deaconess Hospital School of Nursing in Boston will welcome students interested in a career in nursing. See the bulletin board for details of these programs and many more offered during October. Patty Cone

High School Happenings

Recently, someone expressed dissatisfaction of our newspaper. He said he was glad to see the exciting and skillful games. We can use your articles and ideas on Tuesday afternoons. Yearbooks are now being sold in the room adjacent to the cafeteria or from any yearbook staff member. The books are $13, plus an additional fifteen cents for a plastic protective cover. Don't regret not buying this book of high school memories. Athletes of the Week Dept.: Seniors Jennifer Hedlund and Paul McCluskey are this week's two outstanding players. Miss Hedlund received her award in recognition of her position as the top scorer on the Girls' Varsity Field Hockey Team. Mr. McCluskey brought the Indians out from behind, as he led the Indians Football Team to its first victory against East Hartford, with two touchdowns. Bravo!

Foreigners welcome

Recently there has been an abundance of club announcements booming over the internet during a second period homework, trying to persuade some of these fresh new sophomores, tired juniors, and valedictorians, to join their organizations. They have used every means of persuasion, including posters, announcements, and literal dragging students to their meetings. One problem, though, has manifested itself out of all of these clubs recruiting at one people just don't know what most of these clubs are. Many students have inquired: what is IOH, FSA, or SAA, and of course that all-time favorite the Simulation Games Club? A certain club in particular has brought numerous questions. This club is AFS. Many people want to know what we do and what the letters AFS mean. AFS stands for American Field Service. We are an organization with chapters, not only in this country, but all around the world. We promote leadership, friendship, and understanding between the young people of these countries and we give students an opportunity to travel to a foreign country to discover some of its culture and encounter their way of life. Each year AFS hosts foreign students, who spend the school year living in Manchester while attending Manchester High. This year we are pleased to have Silvia Andrade from Cuenca, Ecuador. Silvia is a senior here at the high school and her American host family is the Armstrongs on Henry Street. So far, Silvia has found life here in Manchester quite different from that which she left back in Ecuador, but she has been able to defeat some of

Surgery delayed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Doctors have delayed surgery on star San Francisco 49er halfback Paul Hoyer. A club spokesman said Tuesday bleeding and swelling around Hoyer's injured right knee made it difficult to get clear X-rays of the area, but surgery still appears to be necessary. The 49ers placed free-agent defensive end Mel Land on waivers Tuesday and are expected to add another back and defensive lineman to their roster before Sunday's game with Los Angeles at Candlestick Park. Movie house owners also predicted a drop in business.

College update

As many seniors may have noticed while passing the Guidance Office on your way to class, a large October calendar has been posted in the hallway on the Guidance bulletin board. No, the sole purpose of the calendar is not to help you count down the days until June. It is, however, a reminder that June 81, our graduation month and year, is approaching, and that the time to think about colleges is now! If you'll take note of the calendar, you'll see that, besides there being two weeks left in October, a number of days have been reserved for college representatives to visit MHS. These representatives will be available for questioning in the Guidance Office on various dates. Why not check the calendar and see when someone from a prospective college of yours will be visiting the school? Then, if you have any questions about financial aid or admission requirements, you can go straight to the source. For those of you who will somehow never have the time to stop and look over the calendar, the agenda for the rest of October is as follows: Oct. 20 at 10:15 — Fairfield University, Fair-

Union Church honors pastor

VERNON—The social room of Union Congregational Church has been dedicated and named the Paul J. Bowman Hall in honor of the Rev. Paul Bowman who retired last month as pastor after many years of service to the church.

As Paul Bowman's long and fruitful pastorate ends, it seems only fitting that a portion of this church building be named in his honor so that generations of Union Church yet unborn will remember his years of service to the church, the Prudential Board said.

The board decided that the social room, "the scene of so many occasions of fellowship and unity in Union Church," is the appropriate part of the building to be named in Pastor Bowman's honor. A plaque will be placed over the door into the hall.

There will also be a portrait of Mr. Bowman hung in the hall.

At a special worship service on the last Sunday of Pastor Bowman's service, he and his wife, Harriett, were given a farewell party and a retirement purse of contributions from church members and friends of the church, other church organizations and the Prudential Board. Pastor Bowman is chaplain for the fire department.

Mayor will attend school conference

VERNON—Mayor Marie Herbst will be attending an all-day conference on the topic of school closings Oct. 22.

The conference will be held at the Brantford House Executive Conference Center in Grafton. It is being sponsored by the State Department of Education in cooperation with the Connecticut Conference of Municipalities, the Connecticut Association of School Administrators, the Connecticut Association of School Business Officials and the Connecticut Association of Boards of Education.

The purpose of the conference is to help school superintendents and business officials, school board members and chief selected town officials to deal with the current problem of school closings which education officials feel will continue well into the present decade.

Topics to be covered by the conference will include: Population and enrollment trends, how to approach the problem of school closings, steps in the decision process, community involvement and public relations, how to maintain a closed school, alternate uses and options, financing, renovation, financing and governance.

The cost for the entire conference, including lunch and dinner, will be $55 per person. Those wishing to attend should register by Oct. 15. Anyone wishing more information should contact Richard S. Kringsberg, director of the school facilities unit of the state Department of Education, 566-7880.

Armentano to speak

VERNON—Francis Armentano, assistant town planner, will be the guest speaker at the 28th meeting of the Northwest Rockville Neighborhood Association.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in the community room of First Federal Savings, Park Place. Armentano will discuss zoning district proposal for Rockville, which he prepared.

As a member of the Mayor's Revitalization Task Force, Armentano will be seeking citizen input on Rockville's problems. All residents with an interest in zoning and other issues pertaining to Rockville are invited to attend.

Dance classes set

SOUTH WINDSOR—The Recreation Department is offering dance classes for students in grades 1 through 12.

Board wants school for offices

By DONNA HOLLAND
Herald Correspondent

HOLTON—The Board of Selectmen will officially inform the Board of Education that it wants the entire Bolton Elementary School (K-4 Building) for town office use.

At a special meeting Thursday, four of the five selectmen decided "somebody has to make somebody move."

The selectmen will request the elementary building for town use with plans to develop the 25-plus acre parcel of land the Bolton Elementary and Bolton Center Schools are situated on for town office use, a new fire station, a new highway station, also needed by the town, it being proposed for Freja Park.

Efforts of this board and earlier boards to obtain land for such facilities and for a town owned dump have met with failure. Because the facilities are needed and because the cost of land is continually increasing or is unavailable, the selectmen decided to use the 25 acre parcel owned by the town.

The Board of Education is studying options for the future use of the school buildings because of declining enrollment. The board plans to make a decision in November as to whether it will continue using all three school buildings or whether all or part of a building may become available for town office use.

The school board wanted "a reaction from the Board of Selectmen so we can react" and the selectmen, after studying various proposals decided to request the elementary building because of the available land.

The entire parcel on which the schools are situated is 25.26 acres. If plans go forward it will be used as a central site for town facilities whether or not either of the two school buildings are given up.

A road or roads would have to be built, but apparently wherever the central site for town facilities is located would require road building.

If the town gets the K-4 Building, the 5-8 Building could be isolated from the town facilities by barriers such as fences and trees. There is enough land to also use some of it for recreational purposes.

The town business and school buildings would have separate access roads.

The same isolation and separation could be made possible if the entire 5-8 Building was given to the town.

First Selectman Henry Ryba said he doesn't care to have part of either building because "I don't care to have educational and town functions in the same building."

Selectman Douglas Cheney supported the proposal and said, "I like the idea of using that property for a central location. The property is just sitting there. If we can improve it, fine."

Selectman Carl Preuss felt the parcel was pretty well landlocked and direct access to either Notch Road or Bolton Center Road would be needed.

Preuss said, "The decision rests with the school board. If they say no to the proposal do you still plan to utilize the 25 acres?" The answer was yes.

Preuss said, "Then I think you should lay all the cards on the table and tell them (the school board) in any event you want to develop the 25 acres."

Ryba said, "The land is vacant and we don't know which other way to turn. With all the setbacks in land acquisition so far, that town owned parcel is just sitting there. I think we should use it. All we need is right-of-ways to open it up."

When asked if the entire K-4 Building could be used by the town Ryba said yes for town offices, a town meeting hall and by our senior citizens.

Selectman Aloysius Ahearn said, "I think the taxpayers will respond positively to using a parcel of land the town already owns instead of paying $2 million for another piece of land."

Selectmen propose changes in charter

By DONNA HOLLAND
Herald Correspondent

BOLTON—Past problems of the Board of Selectmen and the Board of Finance regarding who has the authority to do what, resulted in the selectmen proposing several changes to the town charter.

The Charter Revision Commission will have a public hearing Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Hall to hear and receive comments about any aspect of the town government.

One of the changes proposed by the selectmen is for them to receive budgets prepared by all town offices, agencies, commissions and boards, except the Board of Education, examine and review those budgets and then prepare an executive budget.

Under the current charter, the selectmen only review the budgets under their jurisdiction. The selectmen are proposing the word budget be changed to executive budget throughout that section of the charter.

Under the selectmen's authority section of the charter, the selectmen are proposing two additions. They are: "To annually adopt wage scales, salaries and fees for all persons employed by the town except the first selectman, Board of Selectmen and employees of the Board of Education."

Also: "To adopt, and amend policies pertaining to the conduct, employment, and termination of town employees consistent with the standards of professional personnel administration."

Selectman Douglas Cheney thought the changes would eliminate problems between the selectmen and the Board of Finance as to who has the authority to set salaries.

Selectman Aloysius Ahearn said, "It's a good idea. It will put the responsibility where it is supposed to be."

Objections by Selectman Carl Preuss over the word annually will be checked by the town attorney. Preuss said, "I have nothing against the intent. It's the word."

State educators pleased by test scoring offers

HARTFORD (UPI)—Education officials who were pressed to find enough teachers to score writing proficiency tests a year ago say they've had more offers than they know what to do with this year.

Joan Baron, project manager for the ninth grade testing program, said far more than the 550 teachers needed to score the essays at sessions around the state had offered to accept the task for which they will be paid $35 a day.

"This year, we're in very good shape and I feel wonderful about it," she said Thursday.

"They're from all over the state, all age levels," she said, adding the specific numbers weren't available. "All I can say is there are many more than needed. Some teachers asked if they could score at all seven sessions."

Last year, the state had to ask local school districts to provide teachers in proportion to student populations to read and score the essays.

The scoring sessions will be held on four Saturdays and three weekdays next month in Hartford, Meriden, New Haven, Norwalk, Norwich and Waterbury.

Each essay will be read by two teachers with students expected to score a combined total from the two teachers of at least two points of a possible eight.

Ms. Baron said the topic of the essay would be read by the two teachers with students expected to score a combined total from the two teachers of at least two points of a possible eight.

CD program foes starting campaign

By MARY KITZMANN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER—The Concerned Citizens for Manchester's Development opened its campaign against the Community Development Block Grant Thursday night on a familiar note. The group played a tape from a Hartford radio station in which Plans of moving blacks and Hispanics to the suburbs were discussed.

The tape was an interview of Wilbur Smith, former fair housing director, apparently before he came to Manchester about two years ago. Eugene Sierakowski explained the program involved racial objectives and we were accused of being racist," Sweeney said.

"Because the program involves racial objectives we were accused of being racist," Sweeney said. "Because we objected to the federal intervention."

Sweeney charged the racist labeling was reminiscent of the 1950's "McCarthy Era." "We were improperly, unduly, and unfairly accused of being racist," he said. "The benefits of the moratorium" have, he said, led him to believe it is in the best "economic interests to remain out of the program."

Sweeney maintains if the town rejects, Manchester will have to build 150 units of low-income housing, in terms of services such as utilities and education, would be borne by the property owner and not the lower-income renter.

However, he wasn't "claiming no one had biased feelings" in the vote a year and a half ago, but stressed the economic arguments.

"We are not a lily-white community," Sweeney said. "I believe the 1990 census figures will show we have a sprinkling of blacks and Hispanics. They are not all in one neighborhood, but sprinkled all over town."

The members were urged to explain their objections to friends and neighbors. The 30 persons

Legion group sets meeting

SOUTH WINDSOR—Members of the Abe E. Miller American Legion Auxiliary Unit 113 will hold a special meeting on Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Society for Savings.

The unit will host the South Windsor Republican Committee, the South Windsor Rotary, and the two junior high school girls who attended Laurel Girls' State, which was made possible through the financial contributions of the Committee and Rotary.

The purpose of Girls' State is to train leaders for America's future and prepare youth for their roles as active citizens.

Abby

By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Do you know what it's like to: Walk down the street and have a total stranger say, "You have such a pretty face, it's a shame you're so fat." -Sheep in a grocery store and have people watch to see what you put in your cart? -Walk into a restaurant and wonder if you'll fit into the booths or chairs? (Or worse yet, go to someone's home and pray there will be a chair that's sturdy enough to hold you?) -Squeeze into a theater seat, and sit so snug during the entire performance while the sides of the seat dig into your thighs? -Lose out on a job for which you are highly qualified because of the way you look? (They never tell you that's the reason, but somehow you know it.) -Be told that someone would like to date you if you would lose some weight? -Wonder if maybe you wouldn't be better off dead? Well, I do. I know there's nothing you or anybody else can do about my problem, Abby, but it felt good to get it off my chest. Thanks for listening.

FAT, FEMALE AND MISERABLE

DEAR MISERABLE: I know of two solutions to your problem. One is Overeaters Anonymous, P.O. Box 6180, Torrance, Calif. 90504. They have chapters in nearly every city in the nation, and a more loving, caring, understanding and supportive group of people you could never hope to meet.

The other is The National Association to Aid Fat Americans, Inc., P.O. Box 43, Bellerose, N.Y. 11428. This is a group of frankly fat people who have banded together for the purpose of helping the obese to accept themselves as they are. There is much to be said for both organizations.

When writing, please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: If you have room for just one more letter about "the other woman," I hope this is it, because I am an authority.

When I'd read a Dear Abby letter from "the other woman" who warned girls not to waste their time on a married man, I'd say, "No one's Miss in different. We are going to wind up together one day!"

He always talked about the "someday" when he'd divorce his wife and marry me, but he never got around to divorcing her. (He said it was too expensive, but he bought himself a $4,000 watch.) Then suddenly a terrible thing happened. His wife died.

Did he marry me? No on your life. He met somebody else, and now he wants nothing more to do with me. Why not? He could never trust a woman who would sneak around with a married man!

So Abby, please tell women not to be foolish and waste precious years on a married man. Don't hope and wait and sit like I did. I wasted three years for nothing. DUMPED

CONFIDENTIAL TO C. IN TAMPA: Strange world we're living in. Apropos your situation, how's this for a bit of ironic gratification? When I was in the Army, they gave me a medal for killing a man, and a dishonorable discharge for loving one."

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "When I Was in the Army," a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 152 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Astrograph

October 18, 1980

A renewed acquaintance can grow to be an extremely valuable contact for you this coming year. He or she could open new vistas for you just when you need you're down on your luck.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Even if you can't afford much by to find some social outlet today. The change of pace is exactly what you need and will do you a world of good. Romance, travel, lack of romance, possible illness and career for the coming month are all discussed in your Astro-Graph, which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 409, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10101. Send to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The surest way to get over being sorry for yourself is to concentrate on doing things for other. Negative thoughts cannot enter your mind when you are busy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A sign you have will be improved upon after you discuss it with a friend who will offer a twist that was missing, one that hadn't occurred to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Large-than-usual rewards can be yours today for your accomplishments, but you'll get a slow start if you listen to one who has little faith in you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you feel you have an unstable situation, your opinion could make a 160-degree turn.

TALIBAN (April 20-May 20) This is one of those days when it may be a little digging today to figure out the solution to a problem, but once you do your surprise everyone with your wit. Your opinion could make a 160-degree turn.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone at home who may be viewing things wrongly could have a strong influence on you today. Weigh what is discussed but be sure you're not misled.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't take advice from just anyone on how to perform a difficult or complex task. Get instructions from an expert and you'll do well. It's that simple.

Competitive bidding plus

Smith opens one heart with only 10 high-card points because his hand has such nice distribution. West has a mighty sound overall but is reluctant to bid because his strength is concentrated in the spade suit. North's four-heart bid shows distribution rather than high cards while East's four-spade call is just a normal sound bid.

Now is where the thinking comes in. South is going to bid again and choose five clubs to tell his partner what he has against any final spade contract. West doubts North goes to five hearts. East decides to double. Who can blame him? He leads the king of spades and South has no trouble bringing in the king.

Now look at what might have been. Suppose South had not stuck in that five-club bid. If West became declarer at any number of spades, he would make all the tricks against a heart lead by North.

After that club bid, North would open a club against that contract. An on-going South would cash two clubs and hold West to 10 tricks. A hungry South would cash one high diamond, put North in with the queen and get a second club ruff.
