Computers, scooters aired at state level discussion

NORWICH—Computers and scooters were discussed last week at Norwich City Hall during a hearing into the use and allocation of state cars conducted by State Sen. Marcella C. Fahey, chairperson of the subcommittee on Regulation and Protection, but most of the discussion concerned gasoline usage. During questioning by Sen. Fahey of a dozen state officials from higher education institutions and the Department of Transportation, it was discovered that gasoline use covered by a mandated cutback in state departments does not include unleaded gasoline. The unleaded gas is purchased commercially, and thereby is not included in data processing gas usage from state pumps. Representatives of Connecticut's state, community, and technical colleges, and the University of Connecticut and UConn Health Center responded to questions concerning their systems of gasoline usage, and the effects on their programs of a mandated cutback in gasoline usage during the past year. A number of the representatives suggested that Connecticut trade in more of its older, larger cars for newer, more fuel efficient vehicles. There also was discussion of the possibility of using more three-wheel scooters at some of the college campuses in lieu of some cars to further cutback on gasoline usage. Another option discussed was the use of closed circuit television for meetings between college officials, thus reducing the number of trips made by car for meetings between college administrators. Sen. Fahey closely questioned those testifying on their use of computers, and their effectiveness, in keeping accurate records of the use of cars and gasoline. As was the case in previous subcommittee hearings, record keeping differs widely from one department to another, those testifying indicated. The subcommittee will conduct its final hearing next Thursday, at the Police Training Academy in Meriden at 7:30 p.m. A report will be submitted to the General Assembly in January.

Fish boycott

SPALDING, England (UPI) — An English fishing club held its annual angling contest, but not a single fish responded to the invitation of 74 dangling hooks. Seventy-four contestants tried for five chilly hours Sunday to lure the biggest fish, but none of them succeeded in reeling in a single catch. "Nothing like this has happened before," said an amused club official. The club canceled the celebration dinner and put away DO IT FRIDAY — Plan your weekend with the Weekend pages in your Friday Evening Herald.

Months of discussion Capital project plan near

By DAVE LAVALLEE Herald Reporter Glastonbury — After months of discussion on the plan, the town may finally be getting a capital improvements program. Members of the Town Council and Board of Finance met Wednesday night and formulated a list of eight capital projects totaling $349,000 to be paid for out of the Reserve Fund. After the Board of Finance had charged that the council was not taking action on the plan, the two groups decided to meet two weeks ago. Wednesday night's meeting completed the work started during the first meeting. During budget sessions, the finance board approved spending for 12 items totaling $439,000. However, the council never fully approved of the program. Councilman Allen Pfeffer questioned finance board members about whether they considered the eight items totaling $349,000 to be what they considered a capital plan. "Would you consider the capital improvements plan complete at this point?" Pfeffer asked. Finance board Chairman William Glotzer said the board is "looking for the beginnings of the capital plan." Finance board member Robert Bowden said if the $300,000 remaining on the list is not spent, then the funds should still remain in the Reserve Fund for the capital improvements program. At the groups' first meeting they recommended the following items as priorities: $15,000 for the ambulance building addition, $100,000 for a new computer, $10,000 for a study of Woodland Street Bridge improvements and $35,000 for roof replacements. The two groups Wednesday modified the cost for various energy saving measures from $44,300 to $62,000. Priorities added to the list Wednesday were $72,000 for improvements at the Town Office Building and High Street School, $16,000 for Rankin Road drainage improvements and $39,000 for drainage improvements at the Town Office Building and Canone Road. These items will be placed on the council agenda Tuesday night for final action. The council may decide to add projects and use the remaining $90,000 appropriated by the finance board. "There has been more progress tonight than before," finance board member Samuel Deich said. "There has to be a spirit of cooperation that we are trying to achieve." Council Majority Leader Janet Maher said the council did not approve the entire plan quickly because it needed more information. "In rushing to come to a decision, we did not have the backup information we needed. We felt strongly that some items should not have been priorities," she said.

Iraq stops Iran oil

BASRA, Iraq (UPI) — Iraq claimed its forces have severed Iran's domestic oil supplies and Tehran today announced rationing with households limited to 132 gallons of fuel oil a month. Early in the war Tehran began rationing gasoline to about eight gallons for automobile owners and slightly higher for physicians. Both sides claimed they sank each other's warships and shot down attacking planes. Iraq also said it was "continuing to clean enemy pockets of resistance in all sections of the battle zone." Iraq, in a communique carried by the Iraqi News Agency, said it lost 25 soldiers and four military vehicles and a troop carrier and claimed 24 Iranians were killed, four tanks and 10 vehicles as well as a fuel dump destroyed. Iraq claimed it shot down three Iraqi MiGs while Baghdad said two Iranian jets were downed. "Iran has become isolated from any oil source they have," the Iraqi News Agency reported as the Persian Gulf war went into its 32nd day. Iraq said it sank an advanced Iraqi vessel near Khor Musa and Iraq said it sank an Iranian warship in the Shatt-al-Arab waterway. Iraq said its attackers blew up a major Iranian underground pipeline in the Abadan area Wednesday, starting fires in several locations. The Abadan refinery supplies much of Iran's domestic fuel and has been a major Iraqi target since the early days of the one-month war. The nightly Iraqi military communique reported the new claim only as "explosions in the fuel pipelines" between Abadan and a location it identified as Sheikh-Badr. Iraq claimed last week it had cut another pipeline used for carrying oil from Abadan to other Iranian refineries.

Lawsuit threatened over map

By PATRICK REILLY Herald Reporter EAST HARTFORD — A resident who claims the town's Plan of Development Map was not adopted in accordance with state statutes, said Wednesday if she doesn't receive information or documents from town officials pertaining to the adoption of the map she will take legal action. Susan Kniep, a Roberts Street resident who has opposed a zone change for an industrial complex, in her neighborhood, has written to Town Planner John Shemo requesting the original proposed plan of development and the final plan approved by the Planning and Zoning Commission in February, among other documents. Shemo would not comment Wednesday on Mrs. Kniep's requests or whether he would agree to turn over the documents or information. Mrs. Kniep is requesting the proposed and approved maps because she said Shemo has made changes in the zoning designations of certain property on the map without informing the members of the planning commission or residents. In a conversation Monday with Shemo and her attorney Charles Greenleaf, Mrs. Kniep said Shemo admitted changing the listing of Roberts Street parcel on the land use map from residential to industrial without informing planning commission members. She said Shemo also admitted to making changes on the map to other parcels in town without informing the residents or the commission members. Shemo said it was not his responsibility to notify commission members about the change but rather the responsibility to compare the new land use map to the original map, Mrs. Kniep said. Mrs. Kniep said the change to the Roberts Street property was made before the planning commission adopted the map in February and was not discussed with the commission members. In April, West Hartford developers Malcolm Graff and Sidney Sick sought a zone change from residential to industrial for 1.6 acres for a parking lot adjacent to the land where the sign is now. The developers application was turned down by the planning commission following large and loud protests from residents in the neighborhood. The developer's Attorney Francis C. Vignati, has appealed the commission's decision, and it is now pending in Hartford Superior Court. But with the appearance of the sign, Mrs. Kniep had her attorney write to Shemo about the status of the project. Mrs. Kniep has not received a response. When she met with Shemo Monday she said he knew nothing about the sign posted at the site and said there were no plans at the Town Hall for use of the site. "Shemo should tell the taxpayers of this town what changes he has made to the map," Mrs. Kniep said. "If there is a change to be made in the map the commission members should know and at least a public hearing on the change should be held. I don't see why I have to retain an attorney to get answers from Town Hall."

Report raises hopes for freeing hostages

LONDON (UPI) — Iran's prime minister says the United States is ready to accept Ayatollah Khomeini's conditions for the release of the American hostages, raising sudden hope the 52 captives may be released as early as Monday after nearly a year under guard. In Washington, the State Department would neither confirm nor deny the reports. The signs of a possible break in the year-long crisis came from Prime Minister Mohammed Ali Rajai in a Tehran news conference Wednesday. Rajai said he believes the United States is ready to accept Khomeini's four conditions for the release of the hostages held 355 days, but stressed their fate ultimately must be decided by Iran's parliament. A parliament debate on the hostages is scheduled for Sunday. Khomeini's conditions were return of the late shah's wealth, freeing more than $8 billion of Iranian assets frozen in American-owned banks, a pledge not to interfere in Iranian affairs, and an American promise not to make any claims against Iran as a result of the hostage issue. State Department spokesman David Nall said in reply to questions: "We've said all along we've been in indirect contact with the Iran authorities but we're not going to discuss the substance of those contacts." Nall would not confirm or deny the report the Swiss Embassy, which has handled U.S. affairs in Iran since the occupation of the American embassy Nov. 4 of last year, transmitted a comprehensive U.S. reply to Khomeini's conditions that led to the agreement. But a White House spokesman called reports the United States has responded through the Swiss Embassy to Khomeini's conditions for release of the hostages "implausible." "We are not formally or informally responding to the ayatollah's conditions... or other statements from myriad sources that are issuing them," the spokesman said. While news reports from Tehran said the hostages could be released within 24 hours of U.S. acceptance of the final conditions, diplomats in Tehran remained cautious.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One glaring failure in these days of increasing successes with organ transplants has been transplantation of the human lung.

There have been 38 lung transplants around the world since 1963 and all have failed although one patient lived 10 months and another six months with someone else's lung.

The last lung transplant was performed by a University of Toronto medical team directed by Dr. J. M. Bill Nelenis. It was the first lung transplant in five years and also ended in failure.

Region Town budget healthy; school figures shaky

COVENTRY — The general government budget is healthy enough to absorb a 13 percent increase in health insurance premiums for town employees, but the Board of Education may run $19,000 into the red.

Town Manager Frank Connolly told the Town Council this week that the general government budget for 1990-91 provided for a 9 percent increase in Blue Cross premiums, and because the 13 percent hike is for just nine months, there will be enough money. But the Board of Education budgeted less than half of what the increased premiums will cost, Connolly said, so a deficit is likely at the end of the fiscal year. Notification of the Blue Cross increases was one of several matters discussed by the council Monday night. In other business, the council:

Agencies relationship explained

VERNON — John Loring, chairman of the Hockanum Valley Community Council Inc. (HVCC), and Leon J. Rioux, executive director of the Windham Area Community Action Program Inc. (WACAP), have explained, in a joint statement, the relationship between the two agencies.

The two services joined forces a few months ago when Hockanum Council was having financial difficulties. Loring explained that the role of the Windham program is to provide under the delegate agency agreement, administrative and fiscal management capacity. "In addition, by virtue of the fact that WACAP is a community action program, it has access to a whole range of federal funding which was never available to HVCC and we expect to proceed to access those funds," Loring said.

He explained that the 12-person volunteer board assesses the need in the Tri-Town area for social service programs, plans to meet those needs, supervises programs and serves as liaison between staff and community leaders and other organizations. Rioux said the WACAP has operated a Head Start Program for 45 children in Vernon for two years; since April of this year has provided energy assistance to 75 homes in the Tri-Town area, amounting to $18,018; weatherized 191 units at an estimated cost for materials of $17,221; conducted a Summer Work Experience Program for 30 young people; and a Youth Conservation Community Improvement Program for 10; served lunches during the summer to 90 children daily at three sites in Vernon. Loring said that HVCC programs continuing to operate include Dial-A-Ride, Crisis Counseling and referral, and Elderly Outreach, and that space is provided to other agencies such as Social Security.

Loring stressed the fact that throughout the difficulties of the past year and one-half, HVCC has provided quality social services to the Tri-Town area, and, working with WACAP, fully intends to match or exceed service delivery in the future.

Public invited to hear zoning concept

VERNON — Francis Armentano, assistant town planner, will discuss a new zoning concept for the Rockville section of Vernon, at the Oct. 28 meeting of the Northwest Rockville Neighborhood Association at 7:30 p.m., First Federal Savings, Park Place. Armentano said that by designating areas as "Planned Neighborhood Developments," the town would have a greater flexibility in making the best use of Rockville's assets as a commercially and residentially developed area. Armentano has said that he would like regulations to require that the chairmen of Rockville's neighborhood organizations be notified of any special permit requests made for their neighborhoods.

Dedication slated

VERNON — The museum, built by the Rockville Veteran Firemen's Association, to house the town's antique steam engine, will be dedicated Sunday at 2 p.m. The museum is to the rear of the Nye Street Firehouse.

The public is invited to inspect the new facility which besides housing the horse drawn steamer, also will house various other antique firefighting equipment.

Council votes funds for extra machine

VERNON — Due to the large increase in the number of persons made voters in voting District 4 in town, the Town Council, Monday night, had to agree to buy an additional voting machine for that district. The council agreed to transfer $2,500 from the contingency fund to buy the new machine. State law requires that there be a voting machine for each 800 voters. There had been three machines in that district for previous elections.

Police Chief Herman Fritz said $60,000 had been appropriated for the special account and as of Oct. 16, $58,349 had been expended. He said the remaining amount wasn't enough to cover one more week. He said since this is a "pass-through" account, the town has recovered $61,949 since July 1. He said $5,000 of this was for June services.

The council also agreed to appropriate an additional $18,875 from the general fund to the Police Department's salaries account for special police services. The money will be reimbursed by the construction firm working on Interstate 86 expansion where the police officers have been on special duty.

Region Revamped code proposal to add power to inspector

VERNON — An ordinance designed to give the town's housing code inspector more power will be aired at a public hearing at 7:15 p.m. Nov. 10 in the Memorial Building.

Darcey said he has the most problems with buildings that house three or more rents. The proposed ordinance would allow Darcey to go after people who don't keep the tenements in clean and safe condition.

He would first give the tenement owner a warning and if the violations aren't corrected he would then go to the prosecuting attorney and obtain a sworn affidavit and if the judge finds probable cause then an arrest warrant would be issued.

The proposed ordinance designates the housing code inspector as "another authority to exercise concurrent jurisdiction with the Board

Grant awarded

STORRS — A University of Connecticut biochemist has been awarded a $100,000 three-year federal grant to support a research project aimed ultimately at helping people with cancer and diabetes.

Dr. Edward A. Khairallah, a professor of biology, received the grant from the National Institutes of Health specifically to study the "nutritional control of hepatic protein and autophagy."

Khairallah described how previous research had shown the rate of breakdown of protein, a nutrient in the liver, centers upon the consumption of proteins by autophagic vacuoles or bags within the cell resulting in the digestion of these proteins.

Abby

By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: About two years ago I began to notice a change in my husband. He became increasingly forgetful and easily confused even though he was only 50.

I fear for his safety and have to watch him every minute. For a while he seemed perfectly normal, then he became dependent and forgetful.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 8-year-old girl who has had a bed-wetting problem all my life. I'm smart in school and have tried to stop wetting, but nothing helped.

DEAR ABBY: Your letter is proof that you are indeed a smart girl. Your penmanship is excellent and your spelling flawless.

DEAR ABBY: My fiancé and I are getting married after the first of the year.

Interesting new approach

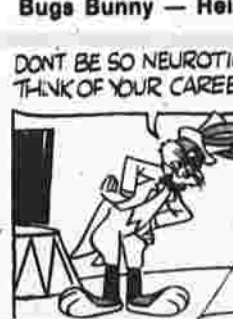

Bridge score table with columns for North and South and rows for various deal scenarios.

One thus South has enough strength for a takeout double, but prefers the overall because he wants to see his good suit suit immediately.
