Hulk suit

NEW YORK (UPI)—A jury award gives Lou Ferrigno television's "Incredible Hulk" more than $75,000 for the unauthorized use of his picture in a muscle magazine.

Manhattan attorney Morton Backus said his client, who lives in Los Angeles, was awarded $75,110 Monday by a four-man two-woman civil jury in state Supreme Court in Brooklyn.

Backus said Ferrigno, 28, filed suit for $250,000 against Dan Lurie, publisher of Muscle Training Illustrated magazine. The lawyer said Lurie used pictures of Ferrigno in the magazine suggesting that CBS-TV star had endorsed various system supplements advertised in the magazine.

Pictures of the muscle man also appeared on the magazine's cover, Backus said.

Ferrigno said in a telephone interview that he knew Lurie and signed releases eight years ago — but before the legal age of 21 — allowing the magazine publisher to use the photos.

Same subtitle Ferrigno charged Lurie drew up a 20-year contract that gave the publisher exclusive rights

Student protest

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (UPI)—Hundreds of Williams College students, black and white, wept and embraced as they attended a rally to protest a crossburning at their small liberal arts college in the Berkshires.

School officials Monday offered a $1,000 reward for information about persons involved in the Saturday night burning of a small wooden cross, set afire near a building where a homecoming party was being held by the black student union.

A college security officer doused the fire, but was unable to reach the area in time to arrest anyone, officials said. They said one or two "sheeted" figures were observed running away.

A security escort system was set up shortly afterward for those who requested it.

Burned Monday's anti-racism rally, Muhammad Kenyatta, a black senior at Williams, read an emotional prayer as students held hands in unity.

"We gather here because the burning of the cross was the burning of our hopes — the hopes of justice, of equality and of sisterhood and brotherhood among men," Kenyatta said. "The whisper that reaches us here, even in this place, is but a whisper of a roar sweeping across our land."

John W. Chandler, president of the prestigious school, told students, "The deeply disturbing incident is an affront to the fundamental values and commitments of Williams College."

"In view of the resurgence of the Ku Klux Klan in many areas of the country and the mysterious murders and disappearance of black children in Atlanta and Buffalo, black students have special reasons to be anxious and disturbed by what has happened," he said.

Black student Gregory Widcher told the crowd there are no tenured black faculty and few black faculty members or administrators at Williams, and an inadequate black studies curriculum.

Button ballot

Voters are marking their ballots today for Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan or John Anderson — but their hearts are with Miss Peggy.

Mark Jacobs, owner of the Americana Collectibles shop in Chicago, has sold 5,000 campaign buttons for this year's election. Five hundred of them read "Miss Peggy for President." That makes her a clear winner in the Jacobs poll.

He says according to button sales, Carter and Reagan are neck-and-neck — somewhere after Pogo Pussan.

It's also a big year for "anti" buttons. One of Jacobs' top sellers features a picture of Reagan and reads, "Bonzie is Back." Then there's an "Embargo Carter, 1980" button.

Jacobs says button sales reflect voter apathy.

J. R. again

The answer to "Who shot J.R.?" reportedly will be answered in the Nov. 21 episode of CBS's "Dallas."

Meanwhile People magazine polled its readers to get their votes. Answers ranged from Ayatollah Khomeini to J.R.'s 2-year-old son — "bad blood runs deep."

Winning culprit was Dusty Farlow, boyfriend of J.R.'s unfaithful wife. Dusty supposedly died in an air crash.

Actor Jared Martin, who plays Dusty, says he suspects J.R.'s ex-mistress, Kristin. She was People's No. 2 choice for culprit.

Other necks for whodunnit include the banker J.R. cheated out of $30 million. J.R. snined against and snining wife, and his samity mother, Miss Ellie, played by Barbara Bel Geddes.

CBS is said to be tacking sponsors almost $500,000 a commercial minute for the episode.

Roll 'em

There was ample evidence that the movie industry must be doing well in New York City these days, judging by the scene on East 56th Street in Manhattan Monday.

At an ice cream parlor, the sign said, "Closed for filming. Open at 7 p.m."

Inside sat actresses Marsha Mason and Kristy McNichol with producer Neil Simon — Miss Mason's husband — hovering nearby and giving directions.

They're filming "Only When I Laugh" for Columbia Pictures.

And only a half-block away, a caravan of Winnebagos sat with their motors running outside a shooting for the Paramount picture "Paternity," starring Bart Reynolds.

No glimpses of Reynolds for the star-struck, however — just the Winnebagos.

Quote of the day

Raguel Welch discussed age with Dick Cavett during a taping for his new show. Cavett talked about it being professional suicide for an actress like Miss Welch to admit to turning 40. Raguel replied, "There is such apprehension in this country about approaching 40. There is an age madness in this society. The head and body of a woman really do come together in her late 30s."

Glimpses

Joe DiMaggio, winner of an event at last year's National Council on Alcoholism golf tournament, had to look soft at the last minute this year because of an eye infection. John Curry, currently starring on Broadway in "Brigadoon," will appear on the Showtime live cable service in John Curry's "Feeling Fine," featuring Peggy Fleming and Jojo Starbuck.

Melissa Manchester will make her headlining concert debut at the 8,800-seat Neal Blaisdell Center Arena in Honolulu, backed by the Honolulu Symphony Orchestra.

New Hampshire man jailed in toxic waste dumping case

NASHUA, N.H. (UPI)—William Sylvester of Nashua has been fined $5,500 and sentenced to six months' hard labor for his involvement in what state officials call the largest hazardous waste site in New Hampshire.

Reversing his earlier pleas, Sylvester turns state's evidence against John Tinkham of Londonderry and pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy and criminal liability.

The conviction makes Sylvester the first person in state history to go to jail for dumping hazardous wastes.

Sylvester and Tinkham were charged with having a business enterprise between them that allowed Tinkham to discharge wastes at a Gilson Road dump site.

About 1300 barrels of hazardous wastes were removed last summer from the site, which Sylvester occupies and controls.

In addition to conspiracy, Tinkham was charged with dumping wastes without a permit and criminal solicitation in asking drivers to take

Voters are marking their ballots today for Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan or John Anderson — but their hearts are with Miss Peggy.

Mark Jacobs, owner of the Americana Collectibles shop in Chicago, has sold 5,000 campaign buttons for this year's election. Five hundred of them read "Miss Peggy for President." That makes her a clear winner in the Jacobs poll.

He says according to button sales, Carter and Reagan are neck-and-neck — somewhere after Pogo Pussan.

It's also a big year for "anti" buttons. One of Jacobs' top sellers features a picture of Reagan and reads, "Bonzie is Back." Then there's an "Embargo Carter, 1980" button.

Jacobs says button sales reflect voter apathy.

A look behind the dynamics of election decisions

By LEE RODRICK WASHINGTON — Slightly more than half of eligible Americans are expected to vote today. While each will have his or her own reasons for the choices made, there are fascinating dynamics at work that will ultimately decide whether Jimmy Carter or Ronald Reagan wins. Five days before the election, three of the nation's top pollsters gathered at the National Press Club to explain some of those dynamics. They were George Gallup, dean of pollsters, Louis Harris of the Harris Poll, and Warren Mitofsky, who does the CBS-New York Times Poll. While differing in their predictions, all agreed that 1980 is the most negative presidential election since 1948 when Harry Truman squeaked by Tom Dewey. Almost 30 percent of those planning to vote for Reagan or independent John Anderson say they are doing so to protest Carter. A similar number say the same thing about Reagan and Anderson. The evangelical Christian coalition called the Moral Majority could have a decisive effect on the outcome, says Harris. While many followers of the TV preachers are still overwhelmingly for Carter, white followers favor Reagan by about 55 to 34 percent. This means that with less than one week to go before the election, Carter was losing the white Baptists and other fundamentalist Christian support that helped elect him in 1976. Harris had Reagan leading Carter 44-42 percent with 19 percent for Anderson. But without the white Moral Majority vote, Carter would be ahead by 3 percent, explained Harris. Gallup — who will take one more survey after this is written and before Tuesday — saw Carter leading

Reagan 45-42 percent. With these surveys having a margin of error of several percentage points, the race was in a virtual dead heat. Harris and Mitofsky both see Carter's native South as the key to the election. Carter nearly swept the South in 1976, losing only Virginia, and went on to beat Gerald Ford by 27 electoral votes — the narrowest margin since World War II. Carter almost certainly won't do the same Tuesday, and has been behind in the region's two biggest prizes — Texas with its 26 electoral votes and Florida with 17 votes. "This puts an enormous burden on Carter," said Harris. With California likely going to Reagan, he added, the president will have to win six of the seven remaining biggest states to win the election. Those states include New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Texas, Ohio, Michigan and Florida. Mid-October polls showed Carter ahead only in Texas. A bellwether state to watch Tuesday night is Kentucky, whose polls close at 6 p.m. and which went for Carter four years ago. Mitofsky added that "if Carter can't hold onto a majority of the southern base, he faces an almost insurmountable job in getting re-elected." Carter's partisans, however, have taken heart in some recent surveys indicating that disgruntled Democrats, subverted by the prospects of a Reagan presidency, may be returning to Carter's fold in the closing days of the campaign. There are also late indications that despite widespread dislike of the candidate, support for him in a number of key states may be heavier than earlier predicted. That's a plus for Carter. Reagan's aides are hoping for a low turnout which "informed observers agree would help Reagan. Four years ago the turnout was about 54 percent. If the turnout instead is closer to 50 percent, Reagan's prospects will brighten. Anderson, like almost all third-party or independent presidential candidates before him, appears to be fading. He isn't expected to win any state, an outcome that would avoid the nightmare possibility of the election being thrown into the House of Representatives. One joker left in the deck at this writing is the possibility that Ayatollah Khomeini et al. might do something in the closing hours of the campaign to unfreeze the hostage situation. The political impact in the United States of such a move is far from predictable. Release of the hostages at this late hour, says Gallup, "isn't going to make any difference in the election." Mitofsky's surveys indicate only 2 percent of those not now supporting Carter would be moved to do so if the hostages were safely released before Tuesday, with 3 percent of the same group saying such action would lead them to vote against Carter. The bottom line heading into the election was that the presidency was very much up for grabs. Reagan appeared to have a slight edge over Carter, but the president was pulling out all the stops in using the powers of incumbency to retain his hold on the White House. At any rate, as the punsters have said a thousand times, the only poll that counts is the one to be taken by American voters on Tuesday.

Thoughts

Watch the chemist in his laboratory. He mixes compounds with absolute confidence in the molecules, certain that they can be depended upon to behave according to their own laws. Watch the physician in the sickroom. He administers his drugs with calm assurance that, given a certain set of conditions, they will produce exact results. All this is true because God is absolutely dependable. Imagine, if you can, what a madhouse this world would become within the space of minutes if oxygen began behaving like a politician or if molecules acted like the stock market!

No man ever exercises more complete and simple faith than does the scientist when he pours the chemicals into the retort, or when he sets out to control the development of a new variety of rose. Whenever he comes upon a law of nature, he rests back in complete assurance that he has found something that can be trusted. Our God is not a God of contradictions. He is not dependable in the realm of morals. He is not trustworthy in the sickroom and unreliable in the soul of man. The same Divinity who laid down the pattern for molecules also laid down the pattern of life for man. When mankind becomes obedient to spiritual law, then life for the race will run smoothly. Possibility of chemical warfare seen danger in Iraq-Iran war

By JACK ANDERSON WASHINGTON — Despite the near-hysterical rhetoric emanating from both Iran and Iraq, the desert conflict so far has been less than total war. But U.S. intelligence analysts say there is a danger of escalation in a particularly gruesome area: chemical warfare. The reason chemical or biological weapons have not been used may be simply that the balance of terror in this field is clearly in Iraq's favor, and the Iraqis have been doing well enough with conventional forces — so far. But if the fortunes of war should change dramatically, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein may decide to state off disaster by resorting to chemical weapons. Iran has done relatively little to develop chemical warfare capability, or defense against such attacks. But Hussein is known to consider Iraq's a useful military tool. Iraq's modest stockpile of chemical biological weapons is a legacy from its years as a military client of the Soviet Union. The Iraqis began actively acquiring a chemical warfare potential in the mid-1970s. As a secret defense intelligence agency report put it, Iraq embarked on "an aggressive chemical-biological-radiological program, including the construction of training facilities modeled after Soviet CBRB installations." Intelligence sources discovered "at least 16 locations" in Iraq where CBRB facilities had been constructed with Russian help. The extent of these training facilities highlights the importance the Iraqis place on being prepared to operate in a contaminated environment, one secret report stated. "The obstacle courses were used as part of general Iraqi army training. In these areas, troops are instructed to bypass or move through contaminated obstacles and perform normal combat duties while wearing protective clothing," the report notes. "Each Iraqi division has an organic chemical company that is equipped primarily with Soviet-manufactured material such as the truck-mounted ARS-12 and DDA-53 decontamination apparatus, an intelligence report states. "As in the Soviet Army, the Iraqi ground force has a chemical branch, and CBR doctrine is most likely based on Soviet concepts." Before relations with the Kremlin cooled following Hussein's crackdown on Iraqi communists in 1978, the Soviets reportedly supplied small amounts of chemical warfare agents for training use. "The Iraqis had no known chemical warfare production capability, although the technological base required to produce nerve agent exists, and an attempt has reportedly been made to do so," according to an intelligence analysis. It concludes ominously. "The Iraqis realize that, once acquired, weapons of this type could be used against potential adversaries, such as Iran and Israel. Numerous weapons systems already in the Iraqi inventory are capable of delivering CBR munitions, which would have to be externally supplied." Intelligence sources told his associate Dale Van Atta that the French, who replaced the Russians as Iraq's major supplier, have not provided chemical weapons. But the Iraqis have built up a small stockpile on their own. Exporting tragedies: Manufacturers who run afoul of stringent federal safety standards have a callous option available. Like the companies that found themselves with stocks of baby clothes treated with Tris, the suspected cancer-causing flame retardant, greedy manufacturers can dump their goods overseas. Now there is evidence the federal government is helping the United Nations job off a controversial birth-control drug on unsuspecting women around the world. The substance is Depo-Provera, and tests have linked it to sterility and congenital heart disease in women. In a private letter to Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y., officials of the Agency for International Development admitted that, despite attempted

Coventry names dog warden

COVENTRY — The Town Council Monday night approved the appointment of a new dog warden who, the council hopes, will help resolve the many complaints about canine control in town. The new dog warden is Elaine M. Jones of 746 Parker St., Manchester, who has been serving as the assistant dog warden in Manchester. She succeeds Robert Scheffach, dog warden for the last 12 years, whose retirement was effective Monday. Town Manager Frank Connolly, who recommended Mrs. Jones' appointment, said she taught dog obedience courses for the Vernon Recreation Department. In her Manchester post, she has had extensive experience in handling animals and is familiar with the required paperwork for the job, Connolly said. The council's action on the dog warden came near the end of a lengthy meeting. Earlier in the evening, the council heard renewed complaints from several residents about roaming dogs and lack of action by town officials. The council has been struggling with the dog issue for several months. Attempts to resolve the problems by restructuring the dog warden position and by hiring CETA employees have been hampered by the difficulty in keeping people on the job. In other business Monday night, the Town Council: • heard complaints from property owners about superficial inspections and appraising errors in the townwide revaluation now under way. The council, concerned about the accuracy of the updated assessments, plans to meet with officials of the United Appraisal Co. of East Hartford, which is doing the revaluation under contract. • heard several pleas from citizens to retain the full-time position of town planner, now vacant. Peter Halvorsen of 23 David Drive presented a sheet of petitions, signed by about 150 persons, asking the council not to cut the position. The council will meet with the Planning and Zoning Commission to study the issue. • approved spending up to $1,300 — all the money available in this account — for demolition of a fire-damaged structure on Oak Trail, Pine Lake Shores. Several neighbors have complained about the safety and health hazard posed by the burned-out home. • authorized the recently appointed School Building Committee to study the need for several improvements and energy conservation projects planned in town schools. Richard Ashley, school board chairman, said several renovation suggestions could be accomplished at the same time. • learned that Elmire and Antoinette Turkington have withdrawn

Coventry charter change to view budget process

COVENTRY — The Town Council Monday night approved to create a charter revision commission and limit its initial work to a change in town budget procedures. The council will give the commission 180 days, from the day of its appointment, to complete its report. The aim is to put any revision proposals up for a vote in November 1981, so the procedure can be changed in time for the 1981-82 budget. The council must make appointments to the commission within 30 days. A seven-member commission is planned. The council has already decided that the panel's makeup should be three Republicans, three Democrats and one unaffiliated voter. Monday night's unanimous vote to form a commission followed a long debate over whether to limit the scope of the study to the budget. The council has received a few requests for a complete revision of the charter. Councilman Roy McLain, urging that charter revision deal only with the budget procedure, said the council has had a longstanding request from the Coventry Taxpayers Association to consider charter changes so the annual town budget will be decided in referendum. The taxpayers' group seeks an amendment requiring that the final vote on a council's recommended budget be accomplished on voting machines instead of at the Annual Town Meeting. McLain, in his original motion to create the commission Monday night, sought to specify that the charter revision commission recommend such a machine vote on the town budget. Other council members felt this

Town approves police pact

SOUTH WINDSOR — A three-year contract, which calls for pay increases of 7.25 percent in the first two years and a 6 percent increase in the third year for police officers, was approved by the Town Council Monday night. The police union ratified the contract Friday, according to Town Manager Richard Sartor. "This is a fair contract for both the town and the union," Sartor said of the new pact which is retroactive to July 1, 1980. Contract negotiations took nine months and the intervention of a state mediator before an agreement was reached. The new contract runs until June 30, 1983. The council approved a $29,000 transfer from the contingency fund to police salaries in the first year of the contract. The officers are members of the Connecticut Civil Service Employees Affiliates Inc. Talks with the union began in February. Sartor said the new pact also includes an increase in longevity pay to $10 per year in each grade. In the third year, officers will receive an additional holiday, Sartor said. He said the council made some minor language changes in the final contract.

South Windsor bloodmobile

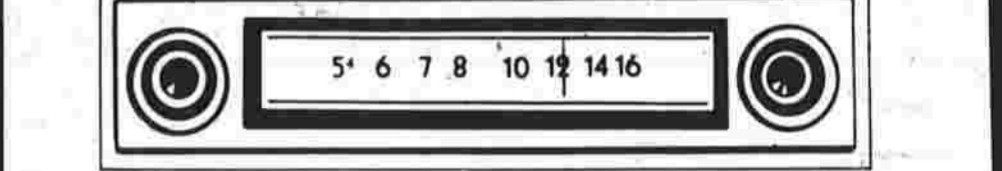

SOUTH WINDSOR — A community-wide Bloodmobile will be held Friday from 1 to 4 p.m. at the South Windsor Headquarters Fire Station, 1175 Ellington Road. Officials said that despite recent times to be in short supply but all types of blood are needed for use in major surgery and trauma cases. Officials said such cases have occurred in unusually large numbers in recent weeks. The Bloodmobile is staffed with experienced registered nurses and it takes about an hour of a person's time to donate. Officials said those who don't have time to wait would find it best to come between 2 and 4 p.m. The experienced staff will be assisted by local volunteers from the Knights of Columbus and the South Windsor Women's Club. Anyone age 17-65 is eligible to donate blood if in good health and weigh more than 110 pounds. Those age 17 require a parent's permission. If anyone wishes to make an appointment, they should call Dick Whalen, 644-6591 but walk-in donors will be welcome. Those needing a ride should call Whalen before Friday or on Friday call 644-8547.

Coventry school plan

COVENTRY — Students in the Robertson School are participating in the Connecticut Nutrition Education and Training Program this month in cooperation with the University of Connecticut Department of Nutritional Sciences. A mini-course of six lessons on foods and nutrition will be taught during the next month. Students will be learning about school lunch and the nutrients, vitamin A, vitamin C and calcium. As part of the lessons the children will be sampling food in the classroom and bringing home nutrition educational materials. Parents were urged to talk with their child about what he or she is learning in class and to include some of these foods in the family meals and snacks. At the same time the children are learning about nutrients in the classroom, the school lunch program will put special emphasis on them in the cafeteria.

Carter and Reagan: their last election

By HELEN THOMAS
By United Press International

It's the last hurrah for both President Carter and Ronald Reagan. It's doubtful that either candidate will ever run for public office again, no matter what the outcome of today's election.

It is clear that the presidential campaign has focused more on what was and what is rather than what can be.

Carter has spent weeks on the campaign trail defending his record and reminding voters of his past positions on war and peace and social programs.

Last week's debate between the two White House contenders brought into sharp focus the differences between them. Reagan has hammered away at the high cost of living and the long unemployment lines, laying those problems at the door of the Oval Office.

Carter has hung a "dangerous" and "belligerent" label on Reagan for his views in advocating the scrapping of the strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviets and in saying on Jan. 31, 1980, saying, "I just don't think that non-proliferation of nuclear weapons is our business."

Neither candidate has offered any short-term solutions for the future as the nations rolls into the '80s. Reagan is relying on more than 20 task forces that he hopes will come up with the answers to major problems if he is elected.

Carter is counting on his economic policies and the windfall profits tax to beat inflation, cut down on unemployment and put the country back on its feet.

Reagan wants to free Americans from government restraints that he said are causing inflation and joblessness. He winds up most of his campaign speeches with a promise that he will "get the government off the backs" of the people if he is elected.

Carter is proud that he has kept the nation out of war during his four years in office. Reagan has said that, having lived through four wars, he would use force only as a last resort.

As for the social programs, Carter likes to point out that Reagan has been against the minimum wage, unemployment com-ensation and Medicare, which Reagan used to dub "socialized medicine."

One observer has described the election as a choice between "misery and fright."

The major struggle between the two candidates now is for the minds and votes of the bloc of undecided voters, said to be in the range of 20 percent of the electorate.

Carter always runs a close race. In 1976, he had a large lead against President Gerald Ford and saw it melt down in the closing days of the campaign. But both he and Reagan will be campaigning until the last hours on election eve and neither feel confident to let up before then.

The stakes are high and for the voters there is a clear cut choice between the candidates.

Bolton charter panel ponders fire board

By DONNA HOLLAND
Herald Correspondent

BOLTON - The Charter Revision Commission, at a meeting Monday, was unable to reach a consensus as to whether the Board of Fire Commissioners should be retained or eliminated.

James Preuss, fire chief, said the board should be eliminated because it is just "another stepping stone in government" between the Bolton Volunteer Fire Department and the Board of Selectmen.

Reasons given by Preuss include the fact the selectmen sign all bills already signed by the fire commission; last year the commission didn't act on important matters, they were turned over to the selectmen for recommendation; the fire commission is not a department and the selectmen are.

Stanley Klekota, fire commission chairman, in a letter to the charter commission, said he was opposed to eliminating the fire commission and felt that would happen if that were done would be an increase of duties to the selectmen.

Hal Sanborn, charter commission member, said the commission was necessary but "I see no reason why most of the members shouldn't come from the fire department and the fire chief and assistant fire chief should automatically be members."

Now the charter allows two people from the fire department to serve on the fire commission. The two now serving are both inactive fire volunteers.

The contract between the town and the fire commission was described by Preuss as "just a piece of paper, it doesn't mean a lot."

Preuss said the charter commission members should ask the fire commission what policies it sets. He said, "They won't be able to give you an answer because they don't set policies."

Peter Massolini, fire marshal and fire commission member, said the fire commission should be retained because "You have to have a watchdog and it would be too much for the Board of Selectmen."

Norman Preuss, fire volunteer and former selectman, said the original intent of the five member board of selectmen was to have more members so they "could be greater watchdogs over the various departments."

James Preuss said, "The town views the department as responsible enough to take care of fire and medical emergencies but apparently not responsible in a good business sense."

Sanborn said, "How can the fire commissioners tell the fire department how to run a company, you wouldn't do that in business."

Richard Vizard, charter commission member, said at this time he wouldn't recommend the town having a public safety commission to oversee the fire and police services in town.

The Charter Revision Commission will invite the Board of Fire Commissioners and the Board of Selectmen to a special meeting Nov. 12 at 7 p.m. at the Community Hall to further discuss the matter.

Preuss said this morning, "There's no hard feelings between the commissioners and the fire department. We have a good working relationship."

He said, "But I think the operation could be run more efficiently between the firemen and the town because there are too many overlapping functions within the system between the commissioners, fire department and the town."

School roof work to start

BOLTON - Installation of the roof for the new Bolton Elementary School was scheduled to begin today.

General Roof and Sheet Metal of East Hartford was awarded a contract for $107,382 to get the job done.

The roof has been plagued with leaking problems since the school was built in 1969 and, apparently, the problems have been getting worse in the last few years.

School Supt. Raymond Allen said there has been one rather serious leak in the roof this school year and "it is most important and absolutely necessary that the roof be installed by winter."

The new roof will have a slight slope to it that should alleviate the leaking and puddling problems that have plagued the flat roof it is replacing.

Controversies between respective parties caused delays in deciding what type of roof would be best for the school. Because of those delays the roof was unable to be replaced during the summer when students and school staff members were out of the building.

The roof contractor said about 2,000 square feet of roof will be replaced each day. Classes normally in session under those areas will be moved to another part of the school until work is completed over their rooms.

Allen said, "No students or teachers will be in the rooms over the roof section being worked on."

The roof replacement will take about 15 working days and the contractor will complete as much work as possible on Saturdays when the building is not occupied.

Allen said the smell of tar can be irritating but will be kept at a minimum.

He said the staff and students will be required to deal with inconveniences, however, the end result is that "we will have a new roof, hopefully, no leaks at all."

Parents will be asked to provide cold lunches for their children on the two days the cafeteria section of the roof is being replaced.

The school staff will make sure students leave the school area at the close of the school day and parents are asked to be sure their children do not return to the school grounds in the late afternoon or evening.

Planning, zoning matter Bolton wants separate bodies

BOLTON - It was the general consensus of the Charter Revision Commission that the Planning Commission and the Zoning Commission should remain separate boards - they should not be combined.

Robert Gorton, Planning Commission chairman, said the only problem his commission has is finding alternates who are interested enough to show up at meetings.

He suggested having alternates who were appointed by the Board of Selectmen instead of elected as they are now.

Elaine Composeo, charter member, questioned whether it could be mandated that alternates attend all meetings. Gorton said, "You can't mandate to volunteers."

Richard Vizard, charter member, asked if a person appointed to a position could cost a ballot for a person who had been elected.

Gorton didn't see it as a problem but Ernest Shepherd, charter member, felt it was a legal question and should be ruled on by the town attorney.

Commission members seemed receptive to having appointed alternates if it was legal.

Agreement near on land deal

VERNON - During the past two years the town, Rockville General Hospital and the Rockville Baptist Church have been negotiating a three-way land exchange. Under the plan, the town would acquire a 10-acre parcel owned by the hospital. The hospital would acquire the church land, and the church, land owned by the town on Route 30.

The Town Council, quite some time ago agreed to the concept of the land swap and the hospital was willing but the church officials asked for a delay.

The land owned by the hospital is part of the town-owned Henry Park and the town has been using it for ball fields. The land was given to the hospital under the will of the late E. Henry Stevens and in the will it was stipulated that the land be used for construction of a new hospital.

Several months ago the courts removed a restriction in the will which prevented the hospital from disposing of the property.

Now the Board of Trustees of the hospital have agreed to pay $75,000 for the church property. This agreement paves the way for final negotiations.

Besides getting the $75,000 from the hospital, the church will also acquire the four-acre parcel owned by the town and the town will acquire the land in Henry Park.

Had the negotiations not gone through the hospital had planned to sell the land in Henry Park and the town had asked for first refusal money in the "Boys of Rockville Trust Fund" for that purpose.

Students split ticket

VERNON - Students and staff members voted 29-28 for Carter-Mondale. Of the students, 16 voted for Anderson, whereas 17 staff members did. The Citizens Party, and the Libertarians received very few votes from either group.

Both groups gave the most support to Christopher Dodd in his bid for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by Abraham Ribicoff. Students voted 48-40 for Dodd over Republican James Buckley and staff members, 55 for Dodd and 16 for Buckley.

Community action ballots mailed

VERNON - In order to involve as many low income people as possible in selecting representatives to the board of Directors of the Windham Area Community Action Program Inc. (WACAP) elections are being conducted by mail in Vernon and several other towns involved in WACAP.

Towns selected for this election procedure include those which are not represented by a low income group or which have a comparatively high percent of the population falling below poverty income levels.

WACAP, a private, nonprofit community action agency serving low income people in the 29 towns of Northeast Connecticut, is governed by a Board of Directors which includes up to 40 representatives, 30 from the low-income community, 16 from town governments and 12 from private organizations, proportionately divided between Windham and Tolland counties.

In order to be nominated, a person need not be low income, but must be over 18, reside in the town they would serve and be nominated on an official form requiring the signature of five low income members of the community.

The deadline for receiving nomination forms is noon on Nov. 14 at the WACAP office, 32 Broad St., Danielson.

New members will be placed on the board at the Dec. 11 meeting. For more information call Mary Carol MacKenzie at 774-0400 or toll free 1-800-962-0282.

Refugees settle in

VERNON - Members of Union Congregational Church are resting easier now. The church-sponsored refugee family has arrived safely and is now settled in an apartment in Rockville.

The family consists of mother, father and an 11-month-old child. On Oct. 23 Church World Service notified church officials that the Phetsarath family would be arriving in San Francisco, Calif. on Oct. 27 and would arrive at Bradley Airport in Connecticut on Oct. 31, and they did.

Church members have been gathering household goods, food and clothing to be ready when they arrived and church organizations have contributed financial support.

The Laotian family came from a refugee camp that held 46,000 people.

The Food Committee is still accepting food donations. Sweet rice is most loved by the Laotians and is used abundantly. The cost is about $50 for a 100-pound bag.

Other items still needed are Chinese tea, long grain rice, coffee, pepper, canned citrus fruit juices and Oriental specialty foods.

The monthly newsletter of the Vernon Historical Society contains some election trivia. Among the information given is the fact that William Henry Harrison was the oldest presidential candidate elected. Ronald Reagan is 69 so far...

is elected, that would break a record. One political observer came to the conclusion after the weekend that the last-minute political commercials on TV would clearly have an influence on undecided voters.

The repeated commercials, he concluded, would decide them not to vote. Glastonbury Board of Education member Michael Meotti commented during a discussion on a proposed review of the self-

Area church conference establishes seasonal goal

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA
Herald Reporter
The Manchester Area Conference of Churches has set a $6,500 goal for its seasonal sharing program, topping 1979's goal of $5,000 but lower than the amount finally collected last year - $8,453.

Mrs. Nancy Carr, MACC executive director, termed the program "a time of sharing to those who have had a good year with those who have not - not a charitable handout."

She said any surplus collected will be used to purchase meals and treat for holiday baskets for the poor hot meals and vouchers for their clothing.

"Any remaining funds will go to the completely depleted MACC Fuel Bank," Mrs. Carr said. This is the eighth year the interfaith agency in sponsoring a program of food, clothing and gifts for the poor, elderly and handicapped to help them celebrate Thanksgiving and Christmas.

A goal of 140 Thanksgiving baskets has been set with 65 pledged. The baskets are to include all the traditional fixings for a holiday meal and a week's supply of food for the family. Hot meals are provided to shut-ins through an arrangement with Manchester Memorial Hospital, being delivered by the drivers in the Meals-On-Wheels program.

Meal certificates for $4 will be provided to single people who do not have cooking facilities, from the town's Human Services Department. At Christmas, gifts are to be provided for each member of the 190 to 200 families who need Christmas baskets. "At this point, the Toys for Troops collection and distribution is shaky. Last year, some 5,000 new and used toys were collected," Mrs. Carr said.

Bankers cast doubts on releasing assets

By United Press-International
American banks and companies have cast doubt on releasing Iranian assets and canceling all law suits against the Middle East nation to free the hostages even if President Carter agrees to comply with Iran's ransom demands.

Some attorneys predict those two conditions for release of the 52 American hostages would spark massive legal complications and financial experts say banks could not release the billions of dollars in frozen assets without collateral for loans outstanding to the late Shah's government.

More than 200 lawsuits trying to win back Iranian assets have been filed by U.S. corporations and individuals who are owed money by the former regime. Two Dallas companies - SEDCO, an oil exploration company founded by Texas Gov. Bill Clements and Electronic Control Data Corp. - have claims pending. The oil firm's suit seeks $175 million in payment for property confiscated during the Iranian revolution. The computer company was awarded $19 million by a federal judge, but Iran is appealing the decision.

AT&T is owed more than $60 million and has sued to recover its assets. The Iranian parliament, however, has granted immunity from all pending suits in U.S. courts.

Whether President Carter has the legal right to that - cancel all claims, or not, I'm not sure," said Spencer Taylor, executive vice president of SEDCO. But I seriously doubt that the companies that are involved will just roll over and play dead."

"We all want the hostages to come home," said AT&T spokesman William Mullane. "But we're not quite sure what legal questions are raised by a shelter or release of assets without collateral for loans outstanding to the late Shah's government."

Meetings set

They have been a part of the town's educational program for several years.

Heritage bank buys property

MANCHESTER - Heritage Savings and Loan Association has bought the former Leclerc Funeral Home on the northeast corner of Hudson and Main streets and plans to convert it to a branch bank.

William Hale, president of Heritage, said today it would be cheaper to tear down the building and build a new one, but that's not really done. He said that you are talking about, he said with a laugh.

At 8 a.m. today Keene Street Savings and Loan Association has bought the former Leclerc Funeral Home on the northeast corner of Hudson and Main streets and plans to convert it to a branch bank.

Heritage does not now have a branch in the heart of the North End, but a number of other banks do. For many years the funeral home was operated by Walter N. Leclerc, who was active in Democratic politics, in civic life, and in the Eighth District ward.

Leclerc died in 1967. The house in which the funeral home was located had long been respected for its architectural appeal.

Speeding charge results in arrest

MANCHESTER - A 44-year-old driver was blinded by bright morning sunlight. Harvey Dupin, of 20 Hemlock St., was discharged yesterday from Manchester Memorial Hospital following treatment for contusion and lacerations to his left leg, a hospital spokesman said.

The accident occurred as a motorist was exiting from the Seven Eleven Food Store at 253 Main St. Police said. According to the accident report, Michael Diane, 21, of 71 Green Road, had his vision obscured by sunlight as he drove away from the store. Police said they took no action in the mishap.

Police today also reported the arrest of two men on drunken driving charges. Michael K. Stephens, 49, of 42 E. Center St., was arrested Monday and charged with driving while intoxicated, police said. He was released on his written promise to appear Nov. 15 in Manchester Superior Court.

Arrested in a separate incident was Donald Fitch, 49, of Rt. 65 in Bolton. Police early today charged Fitch with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol and operating while under suspension. Bond was set at $200, in lieu of a court appearance later this month, police said.

Question surrounds Manson appearance

VACAVILLE, Calif. (UPI) - The only real question about Charles Manson's parole hearing today was whether the bearded mad murderer would appear. Manson, a sex cult leader who has spent years in prison for the murders of actress Sharon Tate and eight other people in Los Angeles in 1969.

As if conceding that late, Manson scorned a meeting with hearing officers last year, calling them "a bunch of f---s." Manson, 45, has twice been rejected as unsuitable for parole, and no follower who was convicted of murder has been granted parole. Last month, parole officers denied early release dates to former Manson Family members Charles "Tex" Watson, Steve "Clem" Grogan and Robert Beausoleil. Earlier this year, parole also was denied Patricia Krenwinkel, Susan Atkins and Leslie Van Houten.

Celtics overlooked

Hard to Figure Department: How the National Basketball Association writers could overlook the great championship Boston Celtic club handed together over Coach Red Auerbach and not included in the top three clubs in the first 25 years of the circuit. Named to the top three spots, in that order, were the Philadelphia 76ers of 1966-67, the Minneapolis Lakers of 1971-72 and the New York Knicks of 1969-70. It's obvious that too many of the card-carrying writers come after Tom Heinsohn, Bill Russell, Bob Cousy, Bill Sharman, Kacey Jones, Sam Jones and Frank Ramsey performed their magic with the Celts.

Although finishing fifth in the recent New York Marathon, one report indicated Billy Rodgers picked up $12,000 for appearing. Rodgers was the biggest "name" among the 12,000 plus entrants.

Talhoed active

Mike Oviatt, who owns and operates the highly successful Talhoed golf course in Hebron, notes play picked up considerably this season after a slow start due to inclement weather. Talhoed will remain open until the snow flies, a tradition for years. A low handicap golfer for years, Oviatt reports he played only a dozen rounds this season, being too busy with his brother, Karney, handling the many details for the ever-expanding membership. The Talhoed Men's Club has more than 200 active members with Ken Comerford the lone scratch player. Blaz Simac sends word that Scott Goren, an eighth grader, established his record in the New York State Junior High Soccer scoring mark last week when he notched his 25th and 26th goals of the season against Kocuzian. Simac has a record previously with 24 goals during the 1969 campaign. # Browns' aerial show beats Bears

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Cleveland fans have known for a couple of seasons that quarterback Brian Sipe ranks among the best in the league for that position for the Browns, but Monday night it became official.

"This was one of my better games because I was wondering when I was ever going to break one. It was a long walk," Pruitt said.

After that, Chicago drove 70 yards in 10 plays and Evans threw a six-yard scoring pass to Robin Earl.

Both Evans and Chicago coach Neil Armstrong said Chicago had to give up the game to get to the end zone in the second half Monday night.

Armstrong had the right strategy, at least according to what Cleveland linebacker Clay Matthews said afterwards.

"We went into the game with the idea of taking the running game away," said Matthews. "We did that, but Evans threw better than we expected."

Bears' defensive tackle Alan Page was surprised at the amount of pressure Chicago's defensive line was able to put on Sipe.

"Nobody else has," he said. "I don't think they (Cleveland's offensive linemen) are as good as they look on film."

The Bears, 3-6, dropped to last place with the loss and safety Gary Fenwick isn't too hopeful the Bears can duplicate their miracle finish of last season, when they won seven of their last eight games to earn a playoff berth.

"Tonight was a must game for us and we failed," he said. "Now, our destiny is not in our hands."

"At this point, you have to be a dreamer to be optimistic."

Trouble lurking ahead for Pats

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — The New England Patriots are off to their best start in the history of the franchise, but coach Ron Erhardt still sees trouble lurking ahead on the NFL schedule.

The Patriots downed the New York Jets 34-21 Sunday to up their record to 7-2 and gain sole control of first place in the AFC East. But the Pats have a couple of character builders on the agenda Monday night in a Houston game followed by a home contest against the Los Angeles Rams.

"Our next two games are a real test because they're against Super Bowl playoff people," Erhardt said at his Monday press conference. "We're going into the hornet's nest (Houston) which is the toughest test you can get. We still have seven tough ones left and our work is cut out for us. We've got two good teams and then we're right back in our division."

The Patriots have lost their last three to Houston, including a playoff defeat in 1978 at Schaefer Stadium. The Oilers also have won their last five Monday night contests.

New England scored what in effect was an early road TD over the Jets, moving to a 24-lead early into the second quarter. The Jets' defense held the Pats to a field goal on New England's last play. But the Pats added an extra field goal and insurance touchdown to cement the win.

"Our front four played well. Our coverage was pretty good and the linebackers kept it tight," Erhardt said. "Richard Todd continued. Erhardt said, 'Physically, we came out and attacked them. Offensively we had little, little breakdowns, minor execution things you have to work on."

Comeback player award in AL to Matt Keough

NEW YORK (UPI) — In Matt Keough's eyes, the recent fortunes of the Oakland A's have been reflected in his own record.

It was the epitome of our ballclub the last two years," he said. "I was the prime example of the club being back last year and good this year."

Keough, victim of a 14-game losing streak one season ago while the A's had the worst record in baseball, Monday was named the UPI Comeback Player of the Year in the American League for 1980. The 25-year-old right-hander received 17 of 50 votes for rebounding from a disastrous 217 record to post a .613 season with a 2.92 ERA.

Oakland meanwhile under manager Billy Martin, impressed enough to win 83 games this year.

Martin's influence on Keough was obvious earlier in the pitcher's career. In 1978, when Martin was managing the New York Yankees and also managing the AL All-Star squad, the skipper named Keough to the All-Star team and the experience of playing in one game for Martin allowed Keough to pitch 20 shutouts in 32 starts. He also credited minor-league manager Rene Lachemann, his teammates and the fans in Oakland for his performance. He believes that, using what he has learned, "he can continue to pitch well. He feels certain he has put the

Japan home run king Oh decides to retire

TOKYO (UPI) — Sadaharu Oh, baseball's highest home run king, has decided to retire as an active player with the Yomiuri Giants, said a coaching position with the club that may lead to a managership, UPI has learned.

Oh, the most popular player ever to play in Japan, was to make the official announcement in Tokyo Tuesday.

The left-handed hitter, who slammed more than 850 home runs during his 21-year career in Japan, was well known for his distinctive batting style in which he raised his right foot high during the swing.

The soft-spoken Oh, who sought out to discourage comparisons with U.S. home run king Hank Aaron, was one of the first persons to send congratulations to the Atlanta Braves' slugger when he broke Babe Ruth's career home run record of 714 Aaron, who has conducted two exhibitions with Oh in Japan, finished his career with 755 homers.

Oh, 40, hit his 756th home run on Sept. 2, 1977, to break Aaron's record. He joined the Yomiuri Giants upon graduation from high school in Tokyo in 1959 and led Japanese professionals in homers from 1962-74.

Oh always had to live with comparisons with U.S. players, who perform in larger ball parks where the fences are farther from home plate. For example, the left and right field fences at Korakuen Stadium in Tokyo, home grounds of the Yomiuri Giants, are 265 feet and center field was the late Mel Oul, who lifted his front foot from the ground before swinging — although not as high.

The soft-spoken Oh, who sought out to discourage comparisons with U.S. home run king Hank Aaron, was one of the first persons to send congratulations to the Atlanta Braves' slugger when he broke Babe Ruth's between the two men, between their times, between their baseball. Oh said when he was still chasing Aaron's mark. "In that way, just as it is difficult to compare Ruth and Aaron fairly, so it is difficult, I think, to compare me in Japan with them in the U.S."

The most homers Oh ever hit in a single season was 55, but he played only a 140-game schedule. He hit 51 homers during one 131-game season.

Oh, who is Chinese on his father's side, still carries a Nationalist Chinese passport. His name also means "king."

He said several years ago that when he did decide to retire, it would be a clean break.

Sonics trounce Cavaliers

SEATTLE (UPI) — We couldn't hit the ocean if we wanted to, said Wilkens.

SuperSonics trounced the Cavaliers 118-83 Monday night.

Cleveland hit just 36 of 117 field goal attempts. Chief offense was forward Mike Mitchell, who entered the game with a 24.4 average but hit just five of 22 attempts for the evening.

On the Sonics side, Fred Brown and Jack Sikma had the right touch as they combined for 27 points in the third quarter to help Seattle open up an 87-63 lead. Brown ended the game with 24 points and Sikma contributed 23 while grabbing 13 rebounds.

Forward John Johnson criticized Mitchell's play, saying "Mitchell's a good player, but you're not entitled to 25 or 30 shots just because you're a top scorer for the team. If it's not working, you have to try something else."

Sonics Coach Lenny Wilkens pointed out the good defense James Bailey played on Mitchell. Jimmy

Irish pacing poll, 'Bama now sixth

NEW YORK (UPI) — In one of the wackiest college football weekends ever, Notre Dame escaped with a convincing victory to climb into the No. 1 rating following today's balloting by UPI's Board of Coaches.

With four of the nation's previously undefeated teams still reeling from upsets, including Alabama and UCLA 11, followed by No. 12 Michigan, up six notches, No. 13 South Carolina, North Carolina and Baylor recorded a 33-0 triumph over Navy to gain the top spot for the first time in the regular season since 1966, when they won a national championship.

Notre Dame, 7-1, was slumped by Mississippi State 6-3 and tumbled to No. 6 while UCLA, 6-1, lost to Arizona 23-17 and dropped to No. 9. North Carolina, 7-1, and Baylor, 7-1, and Miami, 7-1, followed by No. 14 and No. 15 Florida.

"I'm very happy for our team, coaches, student body and alumni," said Notre Dame coach Dan Devine, who also suffered losses with the Tar Heels falling to No. 14 and the Bears to No. 15.

In ballots cast by the 42 coaches — six from each geographical section of the country — who comprise UPI's Board of Coaches, Notre Dame, 7-1, collected 613 votes and 613 points, No. 2 Georgia, 8-0, in 1980.

"We're playing with tremendous enthusiasm and will continue to do so."

Pair of tough foes in Notre Dame path

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Notre Dame's ascension to the top spot in the UPI poll for the first time in Dan Devine's Irish tenure was tempered by a look at the upcoming schedule.

Devine said he appreciated the vote by the coaches but conceded his team has a long way to go before claiming a national championship. He eventually soundly upping freshman Blair Kiel at quarterback and Phil Carter and then Jim Stone at running back.

Devine said his club had a crack at being No. 1.

"I don't care what any coach tells you, but all 200 or so of them aim for No. 1 at the start of the season. We do, too," Devine noted. "I couldn't predict we'd get there but that's something that you always shoot for."

The Irish have won seven straight games without a loss this season, including last Saturday's shutout win over Navy. It is the best start since Notre Dame's undefeated season in 1973.

But that year, like Devine's national championship season in 1977, Notre Dame did not make it to the top until after the bowl games. It isn't the first time a Devine-coached team has reached No. 1 before the end of the season.

Devine's 1960 Missouri team was tops in the nation until it faced arch-rival Kansas in the final game of the season.

"We were No. 1 then and then lost that game, a game we eventually got awarded because Kansas had to forfeit," Devine recalled. "It was the kind of jinx we hope we don't face now."

Devine recalled Missouri won its Orange Bowl game against Navy that season but in those days, the national championship was determined before the postseason contests.

Alabama's 6-3 loss to Mississippi State Saturday that knocked the Crimson Tide from the top spot should help them in their game Nov. 15 against Notre Dame, Devine theorized.

"It's going to make them really hungry for us," Devine said. "But we can't afford to be worried about that now. We've got to play a good Georgia Tech team that will want to beat the No. 1 team in the country."

Bryant assumes blame

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Bear Bryant Monday took full responsibility for Alabama's 6-3 loss to Mississippi State, saying the Bulldogs' defense was in the trenches and shipped to win.

"Coach Bellard did a better job than I did, an excellent job," said Bryant. "State deserved to win. I wasted two time outs that we shouldn't have taken. That is my job."

Referring to the Tide's late drive when they threatened to score with seconds remaining, Bryant said he should have told quarterback Don Jacobs to throw the ball out of bounds and kick the clock.

"We could have called two punts in the huddle," he said. "That is my responsibility — not the quarterback's — and I didn't do it."

Bruins' GM cool despite record

BOSTON (UPI) — Harry Sinden is pursuing the cautious route and despite the adversity, that's the only way to go. Even though the Boston Bruins are playing their worst stretch of hockey since before the days of Bobby Orr, Sinden has no intention of dismantling the team.

Sure, the Bruins are off to a terrible start and haven't won since Oct. 12. And sure, with a little hustle here or a break there, they could have won a handful of games in the last eight.

But it's still too early to panic. Sinden doesn't want to trade anyone now because the Bruins are struggling now and that puts them in a vulnerable position. The general manager knows cool heads are best prevalent in hot situations.

"They are all waiting and hoping I will make a panic trade," Sinden said recently. "I won't. I could take one of our players and move him out, have him move his family to go through all that disruption and I'd only be getting a player who isn't a Bruin, one who may be just a fraction better, if at all. That isn't the answer."

Sinden is right on course.

For one thing, the Bruins compete in the National Hockey League, where almost every team makes the playoffs by default. Other established contenders such as Montreal and the New York Islanders are struggling, but still expected to be around come playoff time.

And once a team makes the playoffs, anything can happen.

Just take a look at the season the Islanders completed last year when they won the Stanley Cup. At that time last year they were struggling and there were calls for the scarp of the team until after the bowl games.

Devine's 1960 Missouri team was tops in the nation until it faced arch-rival Kansas in the final game of the season.

"We were No. 1 then and then lost that game, a game we eventually got awarded because Kansas had to forfeit," Devine recalled. "It was the kind of jinx we hope we don't face now."

Injured gridder praying

BY MILT RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — Steve Little does two things religiously every day.

He does his therapy and he prays. He prays to God for anything material, but for the strength to play the game he loves again — football.

The St. Louis Cardinals' 24-year-old former kicker believes in his heart he'll play again. He's positive of that. He has the will. All he needs now is the physical strength.

Considerable improvement already is noticeable. Little obviously isn't getting better because he has been after his wife, Cindy, for more than a week now to sit down and write a letter for him.

He'd do it himself if he could, but he can't.

Little was paralyzed from his neck down when he was struck by a car on John's Mercy Hospital in St. Louis after the small car he was driving hit a road sign on the highway during a blinding rainstorm on Oct. 17. A tracheotomy had to be done on him two days later to help his breathing. Since then, his condition has improved so that he can breathe by himself. He's still being kept in intensive care as a precaution, however.

The letter Little is so anxious for his wife to write to is George Brett of the Kansas City Royals, who was affected during the World Series when he read what happened to Little, even though he didn't know him personally.

Top ECAC players

CENTERVILLE, Mass. (UPI) — Quarterback Dave Boisture of Holy Cross and running back Barry McCarty of Temple, Jacobs knocked down a two-point conversion in a 17-16 win over Brown, while McCarty returned a fumble 45 yards for a TD in 17-12 win over Louisville.

Thompson top NBA star

NEW YORK (UPI) — Denver guard David Thompson, who scored 74 points in two victories over Seattle and Los Angeles, has been named the NBA's top player for the period ending Nov. 2.

Thompson scored 43 points in the Nuggets' win over Seattle, his highest point total since the final game of the 1978-79 season. Thompson then added 31 more points Sunday in a 123-121 victory over the Lakers, tying the game with a jumpshot with 30 seconds left and winning it with a pair of free throws.

Thompson averaged 30.7 points, 5.7 rebounds and five assists during the week.

Also considered for the honor were Julius Erving of Philadelphia, Marques Johnson of Milwaukee, Aris Gilmore of Chicago, Billy Knight of Indiana, Michael Ray Richardson of New York and Darrell Griffith of Utah.

Watches cards

Three TV sets have been set up in Little's room so he can watch the Cardinals play no matter which position he's in. He has watched seen them play every game since being admitted to the hospital.

Eric Williams, the Cardinals' fourth-year linebacker, came to the hospital to visit Little following Sunday's 27-24 loss to the Dallas Cowboys. The Cowboys won the game with less than a minute left and Williams was still disheartened over what had happened.

"You shouldn't feel down," said Little, who had seen all from his bed and was trying to comfort him.

"All you guys played a great game. They are going to get better, you'll be back soon."

Williams said the Cowboys had pulled the game out with what he called a "prayer" touchdown.

"I understand that's exactly what he's trying to use the same play himself."

Boxer dies

The cause of death was respiratory complications due to his prolonged coma," said Linda Roberts, spokeswoman for California Medical Center, where the unconscious Owen was rushed Sept. 19.

Girls' soccer making headway

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sports-writer

Girls' soccer at Manchester High School. It is a much discussed issue of late and one which will not subside quickly as many others have in the past. Girls' soccer on the scholastic level is growing by leaps and bounds. A year ago 20 schools had varsity teams. This year 38 field teams, enough for the CIAC to sponsor and run this season's tournament.

Last year's tourney, won by E.O. Smith was not CIAC sanctioned. The question seems to be when, not if, Manchester High acquires girls' soccer. But there are roadblocks, obstacles, headaches, before it is inaugurated.

"There are a lot of things to think about," began Manchester Athletic Director Dick Cobb. "You have to think about a coach, uniforms, transportation, officials. Also you have to have a place to practice and play."

"I will not be easy with the situation we have now. I will take some planning. But it can be done," he added.

The very successful Manchester Rec Department summer soccer program has grown tremendously to where a year ago 1,400 youngsters were involved. Of that number, about 300 to 400 are girls. I really don't know the exact figure," stated

Doug Pearson, director of the summer program and former varsity boys' assistant coach.

"It (girls' soccer) will come," Pearson believes. "Whenever the interest is there, it will come. There have been girls in the program for 8 to 9 years but there have been more lately. Most of the girls are in the 6-7-8-10 year old age group."

Crosstown East Catholic, somewhat surprisingly, has jumped the gun on Manchester High and already offers girls' soccer. "The girls wanted it," explained Tom Malin, East boys' soccer coach. "They saw me and we had an organizational meeting with about 60 girls."

"We went to Rev. (Robert) Saunders, (school principal), and as you know he's a big sports man. And we initiated it. The girls initiated it by making contact with me."

There have been one or two who've played on junior high squads, but none have carried through. That, however, is no longer the case as sophomore Shana Hopperstead went out for and made the jayvee squad.

And she played very well. More importantly, the youngster is very dedicated and sincere in her desire to see a team formed. She is fighting very hard for her goal.

"No one in the past has really thought of organizing it," Pearson assesses. "Many times kids won't express an interest until someone has started the ball rolling. Shana Hopperstead has started to do that. She's going out and trying to find how much interest there is."

Shana, younger sister of Sherrie Hopperstead who was instrumental in getting girls' swimming as a varsity sport back in 1979, and her mother have been making inquiries. A survey at Iling Junior High, with the question asked if a high school program developed how many would be interested in girls' soccer? drew the response of 32 eighth grade girls and 15 ninth graders.

Figures were supplied by Iling AD Tom Kelley, who also serves as the school's varsity soccer coach. He had two girls, Sue Brown and Lynn Boone, on his varsity squad a few years ago at the high school.

"I had two girls come out on this year," Kelley states. "One saw she was out of her league (physically) and the other went home and told her mother she was on an all boys team. That was the end of that."

Interest evident
Interest, however, does appear to be evident. In addition to the 42 who signed up at Iling, another 78 eighth and ninth grade girls at Bennett Junior High have expressed interest, according to Phyllis Hopperstead, Shana's mother.

Mrs. Hopperstead is also in the process of circulating a petition with the hope of gathering 500 signatures. She reports 400 have already been obtained.

"Shana also has a list of 20 girls at the high school who are interested and she has a friend who has another list. I anticipate there will be 150 girls who want to play soccer," Mrs. Hopperstead stated.

"Once we get the signatures (and list of names of interested girls) I'll call 'Supernatural' and Schools Dr. (James) Kennedy and make an appointment to make a presentation before the Board of Education."

"I want to do this the proper way," Mrs. Hopperstead states. "I don't know if it will work but I want girls to play against girls. I don't feel girls should have to participate on the high school level with boys. They should be able to play against other girls in order to improve their skills."

Shana, a determined young lady, admits it is getting harder—every day. "It's getting a lot harder. Endurance-wise," she admits. "The boys muscles are maturing so it's harder for me to keep up. It's getting harder for me to play now."

The high school administration does not seem against the prospects of girls' soccer. "When you call it take," Weid expressed interest from enough for a varsity and jayvee team," responded Jack Ludes, high school principal, who added he had preliminary talks with Dr. Kennedy on the subject. "There is also some interest in seeing girls' soccer start through the junior highs," he adds.

Starting there, however, could be a bigger problem than solution. "We may get a team but scheduling would be a problem," Bennett AD Dave Doonan states. "We find no other schools who play have teams. But other ADs I've talked to are interested in starting teams. There's not talk but that's as far as it's gone."

Foot(ball) control
With an opponent in control, Darby Barnes position to take ball away in recent match. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Beginning on the high school level and working down could be a more viable manner. There are 27 varsity teams in the state presently, including squads at East Catholic, Coventry, Rham, and Bolton, the smallest school in the state. All seven Central Valley Conference (CVC) schools offer girls' soccer including neighboring Rockville High, South Windsor High and Glastonbury High. The latter's team is in its first varsity campaign.

In addition CCIL members Simsbury, Wall, and Conard already field squads. Others, including Wettersfield High, may have teams as early as 1982.

"Many schools are going to girls' soccer," voice Glastonbury AD Davis Wiggins. "Everyone in the NCC has gone to soccer. Some have done away with field hockey."

Fields problem
The only real problem at the high school is finding fields, scheduling. There are things which have to be resolved but we spread the wealth around. I have made comments to people who are interested in field hockey that I wouldn't be at all surprised if we added another girls' sport—soccer, before funding hockey."

"I can't say it's inevitable. Field space is a problem. We don't have enough space right now. And there are only a certain number of girls interested in competitive sports," Faignant, looking at some of the problems, states.

"I would really like to see a girls' team started," a determined Shana Hopperstead voices. "If there isn't a girls' team, I'll go out for the boys' team."

"If it doesn't go through the first time, I'll keep at it. We'll keep pushing for it. With the ways we do get we do hope to get it started by next year. We want as many names as possible so they'll have to listen to us," Shana stated.

"We're trying," states Mrs. Hopperstead, who has received support from the Youth Commission, "I don't have all the answers but I feel things can be worked out."

"There are a lot of barriers which have to be crossed," Pearson opined. "First enough girls have to show interest. If they have the interest girls' soccer will come. AD Pearson stated.

"And it could be soon."

ATLANTA (UPI)—An angry Gale Yarborough called it the "worst piece of driving I've ever seen," setting the stage for a bitter duel for the NASCAR driving championship at Ontario, Calif., Nov. 16.

Yarborough had just pocketed $31,600 for winning Sunday's Atlanta Journal 500, but still seething, he unleashed a blast at current point leader Dale Earnhardt, for the side-by-side duel over the final two laps when Earnhardt was a lap behind.

MCC exhibition opening to feature puppet show

MANCHESTER — An unusual puppet show is the featured attraction for Friday night's opening of a new exhibition at the Stairwell Gallery of Manchester Community College. The show opens Friday at 8 p.m.

The exhibition will include fiber and mixed-media works by Irene Reed and a neon installation by Susan Calza.

The evening's program will begin at 8 o'clock with a performance by the Pandemonium Puppet Company from the University of Connecticut. The puppeteers work with life-size puppets and will present a potpourri of folklore tales from around the world.

After the performance there will be a reception with refreshments in the gallery. There is no admission charge and the public is invited.

Fiddown Ilous Man and other new works from the depression era" is the title of Ms. Reed's exhibit. Her new works are composed of seemingly disparate materials such as crocheted fiber,

The exhibition will remain on view until Nov. 26 with gallery hours 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays at MCC, 146 Hartford Road building in Manchester.

Having approached puppetry from technical theater, art, music, psychology, sociology and language backgrounds, members of the Pandemonium Puppet Company are completing undergraduate and graduate degrees at UConn. The puppeteers have been involved in full-stage puppet productions at UConn and have been primary forces in the establishment of the National Puppetry Institute on the Storrs campus.

The large, brightly colored puppets include hand pantomime, hand marionettes, shadow puppets, planchette puppets, puppet costumes and masks. Puppeteers for the Stairwell Gallery performance will be Jamie Keithline, and Bart and show at the Austin Art Center, Trinity College.

Wafer business grows

SMITHFIELD, R.I. (UPI) — Supplying the needs of a success and a family secret kept closer than a professional confidence.

Every week the firm ships out boxes marked "fragile" to Roman Catholic, Episcopal and Lutheran churches around the country and the world. They are filled with packages of smooth, milk-white wafers used in the nation's churches and 26 missionary countries.

The company also supplies water-cutting machines to help convents produce the milk-white, quarter-sized disks.

It is the blessing during the sacrament of communion which "makes the waters subtle spiritual food."

"After consecration, it would be a wholly different thing," Cavanaugh said.

The elder Cavanaugh patented a machine to seal edges of the quarter-sized disks, an innovation which made the business a success and a family secret kept closer than a professional confidence.

Business has doubled since 1970 and the company is planning its little factory.

It plans to spend $1 million to build a new plant two miles away in the village of Greenville. The site, complete with old oak trees and a moss-covered stone wall, is next to a Catholic school and rectory.

"The building will be consistent with our activity," said Cavanaugh, complete with skylights and heat received from the company ovens.

Cavanaugh said he was not worried about competition.

"We don't have any delusions about what we are giving to the world," Cavanaugh said. "The only materials we use are flour and water."

It is the blessing during the sacrament of communion which "makes the waters subtle spiritual food."

"After consecration, it would be a wholly different thing," Cavanaugh said.

We Haven't Forgotten

On November 4, 1979, America suffered an outrage. The American embassy in Iran was seized and more than two-score of our country-men were taken captive. As we watched the events of those days unfold, Americans of all backgrounds stood united in our concern for the hostages... and our pride in this great nation and all it stands for.

On November 4, 1980, 52 of our fellow Americans will have spent a full year in captivity. But time has not made us forget. We have kept the hostages, too, in our thoughts and in our prayers. Today we hope and pray that this unhappy anniversary marks the start of a new year for 52 Americans, safe in the arms of their loved ones again.

Abby

By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I almost always agree with you, but your reply to JEALOUS, who was upset because her policeman husband was working nights with a female officer, really lit my fuse.
My husband is a police officer (11 years), and I have lots of reasons for not wanting him to ride around with a "cute, single, bright and funny" woman all night.
In the police academy, they are taught that for every 1,000 hours of police work, there are 10 minutes of excitement. Just put a man and a "cute, single, bright, funny woman" in the same car for eight hours, and there's no action on the street, you can guess where the action will be.
Men will be men. And they all have their weaknesses. You wouldn't put an alcoholic in a bartender's job any more than you'd put a diabetic in a candy store. Knowing my husband as I do, I certainly wouldn't feel comfortable having him work with a cute lady.

DEAR ABBY: I know you won't like this, but there are some jobs women are just not suited for, and being out on patrol as a police officer is one of them.
I'm a police officer, and I'm scared to death to have a female with me. I am given unofficial orders to "take care of her," and see to it that she is safe. When we go to a violent scene, I have to handle myself and her. I will say, "Please sit in the car, and if I give you the signal, call in for help." At least she is good for that. There are other jobs they are good for, such as getting out on the street and pretending to be prostitutes and other such undercover work, but not police work. They are apt to end up killing someone, and I don't want it to be me.
I am not a woman-hater, Abby, but I have a family, and I'd like to stay alive.

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to JEALOUS. I don't blame her for being jealous. She has every right to be. I don't consider a woman in a police officer's uniform a cop. I see her as a woman wearing a man's uniform. Why do you suppose there are no lone women portraying Dirty Harry or Hopalong Katherine? Women just don't fit into that role. Does Barney Miller have a woman working with him? When he needs a woman for police work, he gets a man to impersonate a female.
I don't mind if women are truckers, mechanics, astronauts, politicians or even garbage collectors, but it would be nice if they left just one profession strictly for the men.

DEAR ABBY: You are sure bless-it with your answer to the jealous wife. There are many temptations thrown at police officers in the line of duty. No wonder the divorce rate among policemen is the highest of all professions.
Young women (and older ones, too) have been known to offer a policeman anything to avoid getting a ticket for speeding or running a red light.
Lackly, I've never had the worry of my man having a female companion officer, but I sure wouldn't want that as an added concern.
With all due respect to the facts you pointed out - that female officers are intelligent, courageous, hard-working and had to go through the same rigorous training as the men - familiarity does invite intimacy.

DEAR ABBY: It's obvious that you aren't married to a policeman. I was, but we're divorced now, and now I know why the divorce rate among policemen is the highest of any profession.
The temptations put in the average policeman's way are almost too much for any man to resist. And the way policemen cover up for each other is not to be believed. Because of the nature of their work, they can easily get "lost" for an hour or two, and they always have a buddy who will cover for them.
Abby, policemen can find enough women to fool around with their own without being assigned to men in the line of duty. Also, a policeman's chances for survival are a lot better if he has a 6 foot, 200-pound man as a back-up rather than a 5-2, 110-pound woman.
