Postal Service delays zip plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Postal Service, which had planned to begin using the nine-digit zip code next month, said Friday it plans to delay the plan until June. Postmaster General William F. Bolger said the four month delay will be used to better inform the public about the controversial plan, which has drawn criticism from Congress and industry groups.

"This is consistent with the proposed congressional amendment that was dropped in the waning hours of the recent session, which stated that appropriated funds should not be used to implement the nine-digit zip code before June 1, to assure that we exercise all due caution in instituting this important and far-reaching development," Bolger said. Although the amendment did not become law, Bolger said the Postal Service plans to continue the developme work that it had encouraged. "As a result, I think we will have a better program and greater acceptance." Bolger said. The Postal Service has estimated that use of the ninedigit zip will save the government approximately $800 new zip, which will add four digits to an existing code and there will be no penalty for non-users. Current plans call for notifying all households of their zip code add-on numbers next October.

Test suggested to reduce illness

BOSTON (UPI) — Doctors now believe they can hel reduce the number of cases of cystic fibrosis, a cripplin hereditary disease which kills thousands of children each

Writing in the New England Journal of Medicin-Thursday, the team of physcians at Children's Hospital in Boston said a new test can identify genes in prospective parents, alerting them to the danger their offspring might face. It is estimated one out of 20 Americans are carriers o the cystic fibrosis gene, but both parents must carry th trait for a child to be born with the disease. Cystic fibrosis, which fills the lungs with fluid and also attacks the pancreas and other organs, is found in one out of every 1,600 live births and is the most common genetic disease among whites.

Victims rarely live beyond the age of 19.

The researchers said the new test involves treating samples of skin cells with the drug ouabin. In normal persons, sodium levels in the cells were signifcantly elevated by the drug. But doctors said the cells of parents of CF victims showed little change. In addition to alerting CF carriers, the article said the test may also give doctors a better understanding of the abnormal operation of the lungs and digestive tract in CF fort that encourages truly restful sleep.

Years of sleeping in the aume, familiar bed often prevents people from recognising that the bed is wearing out. If you're not sure whether you are getting proper support, pay a visit to a bedding store and test the feel of a new mattrem. If you feel a difference, its probably time to replace "old faithful."
To learn more about

MATTRESS QUALITY Take your mattress seriously. A lumpy or a worn-out mattress that does not give proper support can make it impossible for your aleep to be restful. Get into the habit of periodic mattress inspection. Be sure that your mattress gives proper support to your shoulders, hips, and lower back. If you sink down into the mattress, it's probably not giving you the proper support and optimum com-fort that encourages truly restful sleep.

You're not crary, though maybe your friends are. DEAR ARBY: What does a person do when she comes face to face for the first time with a friend (or acquaintance) who has had cosmetic surgery — like a nose job or a face-lift? I recently ran into a woman who had just had a face-lift, and with absolute sincerity, I said, "Your recent surgery has ute sincerity, I said, "Your recent surgery has mproved your appearance 100 percenti".

She gave me an icy stare and walked away without even

She gave me an icy stare and walked away without even saying thank you. I felt like 2 cents.

Another time, I pretended I didn't notice that a friend had recently had a nose job. It was obvious, but I said nothing. Finally, she said, "Don't you notice anything different about me?" I felt foolish. Of course I'd noticed, but after having learned my lesson with the face-lift lady, I didn't want to mention it.

people to have commetic surgery, to ignore it would be unkind. But to comment too enthusiastically may give unaind. But to comment too enthusiastically may give the impression that her (or his) former appearance was dreadful, which is worse.

If the improvement is conspicuous, say, "You look great!" They'll get the message without having to 'decode it.

DEAR STUMPED: Since vanity prompts most

DEAR ABBY: While our 29-year-old daughter is no raving beauty, she is better looking than most of the girls whose pictures you see in bridal veils in the Sunday papers. She is lligent and has lots of dates, and I know she has urned down several good marriage proposals.

When I ask her what she is waiting for, she says, "Don't rush me, Mom."

Is there any way I can get her to hurry up and think

Is there any way I can get her to hurry up and think seriously of marrying and settling down? I am 55 years old and would like to see a few grandchildren before I leave this IMPATIENT IN ILLINOIS

DEAR IMPATIENT: Many moms who have rushed their daughters into marriage see more of their grandchildren than they expected to — they're raising them because the marriage didn't work out. If you're eager to see things hatch, raise chickens.

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letters from readers who insisted that dogs could "heal" wounds (theirs and others) by licking. As a veterinarian, I can tell you that dogs The skin serves as one of the most important components of the immune system by providing a physical barrier to disease-causing organisms. When the skin is broken and the nimal licks the open wound, it literally seeds the wound with potentially dangerous organisms from the animal's mouth. Thus, the healing process is interrupted and the wound is contaminated.

It has long been assumed that wounds on animals have healed because of the licking, but our profession in general feels that wounds heal in spite of the licking.

what you should do at trick
one.

A subject the lead

one.

A — Analyze the lead. As declarer this should enable you to get some immediate idea of how the 25 cards you aren't looking at are likely to be divided.

R — Review the bidding. If your opponents have bid, work out what their bids meant. If they haven't bid you may also be able to get ideas.

C — Count winners and losers. Check on which tricks are surely yours and which tricks are surely yours and which tricks are resurely theirs and see what you can do about the doubtful ones.

H — How can I make my contract? This is the major problem. Overtricks are fine, but the nitty gritty is the contract itself. The ARC are all guides to the final H.

As declarer, you will also have two defenders working against you. Their "H" is "How can I defeat this
