GLASTONBURY - The school administrators have been informed that a suit has been filed with the U.S. Office of Civil Rights. Officials said Thursday they don't know by wnom.

But they said they assume the complaint was filed as a result of a ruling passed in February by the U.S. Office of Civil Rights which requires all school districts in the state to pay the full cost of placing special education students in residential treatmen

Under the federal law school boards are required to pay the costs of educating handicapped students and then are reimbursed about 53 percent of the excess costs above the normal cost of educating a EHEA fights board child in the regular classroom.

The initial suit asked the town to remove a 14-acre parcel on Burnside Avenue and Hillside Street, owned by Ravalese, from the town's flood hazard zone maps. Ravalese's attorney claims that building requirements tied to the flood zone would prevent his client from developing his land.

Board cuts budget

VERNON - After a lengthy debate Thursday, the Budget Committee of the Board of Education cut $20,000 from the $184,000 budgeted for data processing in the coming year. Board member Robert Schwartz opted for a $40,-000 cut in that account and Dr. Bernard Sidman, superintendent of schools, said he didn't think more than $8,000 could be cut without risking shorting that budget. The $20,000 cut was a compromise. The school board and the town are buying new data processing equipment.

Charter panel eyes pay hike for directors

Herald Reporter MANCHESTER - The Charter Revision Commission last night considered raising Board of Directors salaries anywhere from 100 percent to 1,000 percent, but delayed reaching a decision until its next meeting.

The commission met at the Senior Citizens Center. Members of the Board of Directors presently receive $500 a year. The Charter Revision Commission unanimously agreed that $500 is inadequate. The $500 figure

Rut commission members debated whether membership on the board should continue to be considered a service, mandating a modest salary jump, or be recognized as a job, calling for a significant increase. "I think it should remain a service which is not appealing for salary member Vivian Ferguson. "But I still think the compensation should be raised. There are many responsibilities of a monetary nature that are a part of serving in public office.

Ferguson suggested that directors should receive $1,000 each year. She said the directors' compensation is really not a salary, but a stipend for expenses. Nathan Agostinelli suggested hefty raises for members of the Board of Directors. He suggested directors should make $5,000 a year, the secretary should get $6,500 and "I think that's a bargain for running what amounts to a $30 million corporation," he said.

"Maybe we should philosophically take the position that it's a salary job," suggested John Shea. "But if we go that route, we're making a philosophical change." Other commission members said the public is not ready to change its concept of local government as a service, not a job. They said it will be difficult enough to convince the $1,000. "I think we have to be realistic and come up with a figure that can be presented to the public in a positive

Agostinelli also suggested that the salary for directors be removed from the charter, which can only be changed by a Charter Revision Commission. He suggested th Board of Directors be given authority to set its own salaries adapt to inflation.

"The Board of Directors is directly answerable to the electorate anyway," he said. But other commission members said they believe the amount of compensation should remain in the charter. They said the public should be convinced the need for a salary in the $1,000 range.

Museum views its origins

STORRS- While the University of Connecticut's William Benton Museum of Art is given over to a celebration of UConn's Centennial the museum also is pausing to take a look at its own origins. This will be in the form of an exhibition of 14 American oil paintings from the era of the 1920s drawn from the original bequest of artwork to the University by one of its most illustrious presidents Charles Lewis Beach (1866-1933). The paintings will be displayed along the museum's upstairs balcony, as a complement to the main gallery exhibition, "The University of Connecticut: A Selective History in Photographs." The study lounge will hold additional material relating to Beach and Itis

The sad story of the putupou lass and the two men in her life is surely dated, but Polanski — and his superb cast — make it so lovely to look at that the long (nearly three hours) film seems to fly, GRADE: A

DOGS OF WAR, THE (R) — Christopher Walkes, Colin Blakely. (Action adventure) A first-rate version of Frederick Forsyth's thriller about the mercenaries who try to take over a corrupt Idi Amin-like African country. The scope of the lectures will range from contemporary revolt in American drama to a discussion of musicians of the Romantic Era, from painters in the Renaissance to film-makers of mid-20th century

Open to both women and men, the six-week series will begin April 1 with each lecture being offered twice - on Wednesday evening and again the following Thursday

On April 8 and 9 George C. White, founder and president of the Eugene O'Neill Memorial Theater Center, will look at "Evolution and Revolution of Contemporary

On April 15 and 16 Wendy Stedman Sheard, who served as curator of the "Antiquity and the Renaissance exhibit at the Smith College Museum of Art, will speak on "Could a Renaissance Artist Rebel?" Joseph W. Reed, professor of English at Wesleyan University, will be the lecturer on April 22 and 23 and his topic will be "John Ford: Unconventional Conventions. "Reethoven and Berling Revolt and Tradition in Romantic Music" will be the topic on April 29 and 30 when Leon Plantinga, chairman of the music department at Yale University, will be the lecturer. The final lecture will take place on May 6 and 7 when tenure as executive director of the Connecticut Commission on the Arts will speak on the topic "The Artist and Politics: What Happened to Revolt?' The lectures will all be held in the Auerbach Science Center on the Hartford College Campus and will be given at 8 p.m. Wednesdays and 10:30 a.m. Thursdays, except April 22 and 23 when a film will precede the lectures one hour earlier - at'7 p.m. and 9:30 a.m.

Senioritis is on the rampage

When students come to school one bright Monday morning with sunbronzed faces, wearing no jackets. and toting frisbees, you know that spring is really here. With the beginning of April, and the ending of the third quarter of the school year, that dreaded disease which has been lurking beneath the studious exterior of every senior is finally allowed to break through to the surface. A disease more widespread than the plague, and yet one that causes a very enjoyable sort of suffering, Senioritis is on the rampage.

What are the symptoms of Senioritis? Well, you see them every year. Shortening of attention span, ack of motivation to go to classes, and breaking out in a cold sweat at the thought of homework are only a few. Mathematical abilities are drastically reduced to being able to count only the days until graduation Sitting in the library becomes worse han being in a torture chamber when it is 70 degrees outside. Good bridge needs an ARCH comment on my play at trick one. Apart from the result, how had was my play?"

The answer is that your play lost against the actual distribution and would also have lost if West had led the top of three or four clubs. It would only have won for you if East held six clubs and the acc of spades. If you ducked and East gave his partner a ruff, he could only get in to give a second ruff if he held that spade entry.

In the acronym ARCH, A is Analyze the lead. You did that. R is Review the bidding. You failed to do that.

If you had, you would have If you had, you would have seen that East, who was not vulnerable, failed to bid two clubs when he had the chance. Give East six clubs to the king-queen and the ace of spades and he surely would have bid. Opening lead 中8 By Oswald Jacoby
