WATERBURY (UPI) — A defense attorney says he may drop efforts to bar the press and public from pretrial hearings for a suspect in the bloody 1979 robbery of a Purulor Security garage if the case is heard in another area.

Attorney John R. Williams said a closed pretrial hearing may not be needed if Superior Court Judge T. Clark Hull agrees to an accompanying request for a change of venue in the trial of Donald Couture of Wallingford.

Couture is one of four persons facing murder and robbery charges in the April 1979 robbery of Purulor's Waterbury garage in which three guards were slain and nearly $1.9 million stolen.

Williams went before Hull at a hearing Tuesday on the request to close the hearings on a dozen defense motions to suppress certain evidence gathered by law enforcement officials during the robbery investigation.

Williams said news coverage of the hearings might generate prejudicial publicity for Couture, he said. Eugene Martin, assistant publisher of the Waterbury Republican and American, said the Purotorator case had received attention nationally and probably internationally.

Hull also said the request for a change of venue was relevant to Williams' request to close the pretrial hearings. Hull, who lives in Danbury, recessed the hearing until today. He indicated representatives of the New York Times and The Advocate of Stamford would be called to testify on the amount of news coverage the Purotorator case received in southwest Connecticut. Representatives of WPOP radio in Hartford, The Hartford Courant, WFBS-TV in Hartford and The New Britain Register also were called to testify on Williams' motions.

Ralph Elliott, an attorney representing The Courant, also urged Hull to keep the pretrial hearings open to the public. He said alternatives were available to the court and the defense to ensure a fair trial without closing the pretrial hearings, citing a change of venue or a delay in the start of Couture's trial.

Republicans say vote is evidence of waste

HARTFORD (UPI) — A legislative committee has voted to cover $5 million in overspending by state agencies in a move described by Republicans as evidence of wasteful spending by agency heads.

The 18-18 vote Tuesday by the Appropriations Committee will add $5 million to the projected $45 million deficit in the state budget for the current fiscal year which ends June 30.

Committee co-chairman Rep. Gardner Wright, D-Bristol, said most of the overspending was for salaries and services for federally mandated programs in Medicaid, general health care and mental health services.

But Rep. Yorkie Allen, R-New Canaan, said he was "appalled at the overrun. Private businesses with larger budgets simply would not tolerate anything like this."

As an example, Allen attacked as "sloppy management and unduly lax controls" a request by the Corrections Department for an additional $1.8 million to go partly toward paying bills from previous years.

The approved increase stemmed from a deficiency budget of $31.5 million presented to the committee by the Legislature's Office of Fiscal Analysis.

Agency deficit not tolerated

Wright said the actual amount of new money to cover overspending by the agencies amounted to about $5 million.

A deficiency is caused when a state agency spends more than was budgeted. However, an set figure to cover the overruns is made in the general fund budget.

A motion by Rep. Christopher Shays, R-Stamford, to adopt the lower OPM figure was defeated on a 19-16 vote.

"Here we are asking the state to reward state agencies for overspending and yet we have asked municipalities to take cuts in the money we had already promised them," Shays said.

"It certainly is one of the major cases that I can recall in my 22 years," said Eugene Martin, assistant publisher of the Waterbury Republican and American.

Martin said the Purotorator case had received attention nationally and probably internationally.

Acknowledges thaw O'Neill to back tax and toll hikes

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. William O'Neill, acknowledging the thaw between himself and legislative leaders, says he support lifting the corporate income tax and highway tolls and changes in his proposed unincorporated business tax.

O'Neill repeated Tuesday that he wouldn't endorse a state income tax, a half percent increase in the 7.5 percent sales tax or a new 1 percent tax on real estate sales.

The governor said he wasn't enthusiastic about taxing meals under $1 and hadn't decided whether he'd support increasing the gasoline tax from 11 cents a gallon to 12 cents, as legislative leaders are talking about.

There has been a breakthrough in the scenario of seemingly endless closed door meetings and fluctuating budget proposals, O'Neill said, because he and legislative leaders were discussing the issues.

"We are talking, which we were not," he said. "I think we are coming closer together all the time."

O'Neill denied the stalemate was ended by a worried Democratic State Chairman James Fitzgerald who was fretting about the party's appearance in light of next year's elections.

Changing the tax to a percentage would mean the levy would automatically increase each time the price of gas increases. It would raise an estimated $15 million to $20 million.

Already on the books is an added $35 surcharge for trucks to raise $2.7 million. The former registration fee was $5.

Also under consideration are eliminating the sales tax exemption for meals under $1, which would generate an estimated $13 million; adding a $10 fine for traffic violations, $5 million; and increasing a variety of fees, $12 million.

Still alive and part of the proposed package was O'Neill's proposed 10 percent tax on unincorporated businesses although Schneller said it was being changed to a flat fee instead of a percentage of income.

The governor's original proposal would impose the tax on unincorporated businesses that gross more than $100,000 a year to generate some $113 million in revenue. Schneller said the new tax would raise $10 million to $20 million.

"It's his (O'Neill's) tax," Schneller said. "We modified it considerably... but I think we're coming to a meeting of the minds on it."

Other parts of the "package" would involve increasing the effective rate of the corporations tax to 10 percent to raise $27 million and increasing tolls from 25 cents to 35 cents, which would generate an estimated $15 million.

Under the bill, the state would collect higher taxes from companies that were not domiciled in Connecticut or that had significant sales in the state but little or no payroll or capital.

Supporters said firms with relatively significant payroll and capital in Connecticut and sales outside the state would benefit most from the changes.

Wayne Tyson, director of urban affairs for Stamford-based Clair Inc., said the proposal offered "strong encouragement for the re-industrialization of Connecticut."

He said changes that would bring Connecticut tax incentives in line with New York and Massachusetts would have a "counter-cyclical" effect on the business exodus to the Sunbelt.

House soundly defeats bottle law repeal effort

HARTFORD (UPI) — The latest effort in what looks to become an annual battle to do away with Connecticut's year-old bottle law has gone down to a sound defeat in the House.

The lower chamber voted 114-53 Tuesday to reject an amendment to repeal the law which requires a minimum 5-cent deposit on all soda and malt beverage containers after.

The amendment, which prompted a reshuffling of the same arguments heard in past years on the law, was added to a bill which was approved and would eliminate a special fund for people put out of work by the law.

Proponents of the main bill said the Employment Dislocation Allowance Fund was being "abused" and estimated elimination would save $300,000 for this fiscal year.

The bill was sent to the Senate on a 130-9 vote after defeat of the effort to repeal the bottle law through the amendment introduced by Rep. John Savage, R-Eastford.

"If we must save money, let's do away with the whole thing," said Savage, who said glass container workers in his area were now feeling the full effects of the law.

Rep. Emil Benvenuto, R-Eastford, called the amendment "absolutely foolish."

In other action, the House also postponed action on a bill to plug loopholes in the state corporation tax. Majority Democrats wrapped up the day in a caucus on proposed tax increases to plug state budget deficits.

The House also passed a bill which would prevent the Division of Special Revenue from spending about $13,000 left in its $300,000 advertising budget for this fiscal year.

—passed a bill which would require school districts to provide at least 900 hours of actual school work each academic year for grades one through 12 and half that for kindergarten, starting in the 1982-83 school year. The bill goes to the Senate.

—passed and sent the Senate a bill strengthening the law which prohibits discrimination in rental housing against families with minor children. The bill would allow aggressive families to complain to the state Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities instead of going to court.

Rep. Rufus Allen, D-Mystic, said he was sick and tired of one group — the liquor industry — "hammering away" at the bottle bill. He said a poll of his constituents showed 89 percent favored the law.

Rep. Mary Mushinsky, D-Eastford, said she was "appalled at the overrun. Private businesses with larger budgets simply would not tolerate anything like this."

Lobby favors change in tax

HARTFORD (UPI) — Proposed changes in the Connecticut's corporation business tax to aid state companies and take a larger tax bite from out-of-state firms has won key business lobby support.

The bill is designed to benefit Connecticut-based companies and to encourage others to build facilities or expand payrolls here, said John Rathgeber of the Connecticut Business and Industry Association, the state's largest business lobby.

The measure before the Legislature's Finance, Revenue and Bonding Committee Tuesday would amend the complex formula that calculates a company's tax liability in accordance with the 10 percent corporation business tax.

"This bill directly benefits manufacturing companies which have significant investments in plant and equipment within the state," said John P. Callahan of The Stanley Works, a New Britain-based company employing 5,000.

"Such investments provide the manufacturing jobs so desperately needed by low- and middle-income families in the state," he said.

Solomon Karam, head of the legal division for the state Department of Revenue Services, also supported the bill. He agreed with Rathgeber that the changes would result in a net gain of $4 million to $5 million to the state treasury.

Wayne Tyson, director of urban affairs for Stamford-based Clair Inc., said the proposal offered "strong encouragement for the re-industrialization of Connecticut."

He said changes that would bring Connecticut tax incentives in line with New York and Massachusetts would have a "counter-cyclical" effect on the business exodus to the Sunbelt.

Hispanic group sues over bias

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — A Hispanic community group has filed suit in U.S. District Court charging the state Department of Education with discriminating against Spanish-speaking students seeking vocational education.

The suit filed Tuesday by the Spanish-American Coalition claimed the state had failed to comply with federal law guaranteeing equal educational opportunities for Spanish-speaking students.

The suit sought bilingual and bi-cultural counseling for Spanish-speaking students interested in vocational instruction and an undetermined amount of money for 12 Puerto Rican students allegedly denied admission to Bridgeport's Bullard-Havens Regional Vocational-Technical School because of biased policies.

It also claimed the Connecticut Vocational Technical School Basic Skill Inventory, an aptitude test applicants must take, discriminated against Spanish-speaking students because it was only offered in English.

A hearing on the suit has been scheduled for May 4 before U.S. District Judge Ellen Burns.

The coalition began monitoring Bullard-Havens a year ago and met with state officials to discuss the school's admissions policies and Hispanic enrollment.

Lebanon war subsides

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Fighting between Syrian troops and Christian Phalangists subsided today in Beirut and Zahle under the 18th truce of the 9-day-old conflict and the United States stepped up diplomatic efforts to end the factional warfare.

The toll in the fighting, which erupted April 1, stands at 220 dead and 550 wounded in the worst outbreak of hostilities since the 1975-1976 civil war in Lebanon. That war took an estimated 60,000 lives.

Red Cross medical teams entered the besieged city of Zahle today to evacuate the casualties of a Syrian artillery, rocket and tank assault Wednesday on the Phalangist-held city. The city has been without electricity since the start of the fighting and is suffering acute shortages of food and medicine.

"We have to wait for them (the medical teams) to come out of the city before we have a clear picture of the situation there," the Phalangist voice of Lebanon said.

A cease-fire, reached by warring Christian Phalangists and Syrian troops Wednesday, was marred only by sporadic gunfire in Zahle and Beirut.

U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Morris Draper met Wednesday with Lebanese President Elias Sarkis and said the United States was "most concerned about the crisis in Lebanon that could entail dangerous repercussions in the entire area," a government official reported.

The United States, which initiated "urgent and high-level" consultations on the conflict, has warned of possible military intervention by Israel on behalf of the Christian Phalangist militia.

IRA leader eyes death

BELFAST (UPI) — Bobby Sands, an IRA leader in the 40th day of a prison hunger strike, appealed for Roman Catholic votes today to elect him to Parliament even though he says he will be dead in two weeks.

The play to increase pressure on the British government to give political status to Irish Republican Army prisoners led Sands against a Protestant candidate in balloting expected to split along religious lines.

Sands, leading the Maze Prison, lost out to Catholics voting in today's Fermanagh-South Tyrone constituency special election. "If elected I will be MP for only two weeks."

Sand's election agent, Owen Curran, said Wednesday, Sands — a 27-year-old IRA member serving a 14-year term for firearms possession — explained, "I won't live for more than two weeks."

Sands, elected leader of the prison's IRA prisoners, started the fast March 1 to press demands for political status for IRA prisoners in Northern Ireland. He has been joined by three other IRA prisoners.

His opponent in a straight fight to fill the vacancy created by the death of the independent Catholic member is Harry West, 44, Protestant former leader of the pro-British Unionists and a hard-line anti-republican figure.

The constituency is evenly divided between Roman Catholic and Protestant voters and past winners usually were elected because of a split ticket on the other side.

IRA supporter Bernadette Devlin McAliskey told Catholics in Coalisland Wednesday to vote for Sands, because his life was in their hands.

Press denounced

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — El Salvador's defense minister denounced foreign newsmen for depicting government troops as "cannibals" and vowed the U.S.-backed military would crush a leftist insurrection in the tiny Central American nation.

Defense Minister Col. Jose Guillermo Garcia attacked Wednesday against foreign newsmen following the slaying of 24 civilians in San Salvador by the nation's feared Treasury police in what witnesses said was a mass execution.

The defense ministry claimed the 24, who were shot through the head and included six victims whose thumbs were tied behind their back, were killed in an armed confrontation with police Tuesday.

Macon, Ga., police officers tries to coax a man identified as Willie C. Norman to surrender Wednesday. Norman, who had robbed a Macon jewelry store a block away, was chased and fired at by the store owner, Norman fired back and then was surrounded by police. Placing the gun at his forehead, Norman had a stand-off with police for 40 minutes, then gave up. No one was hurt. (Photo copyright 1981, Randy Plick, The Macon Telegraph, Via UPI)

SEC raps fund change

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Securities and Exchange Commission says a congressional proposal to restrict money-market funds primarily would hurt small investors who are trying to earn more interest on their savings.

Money-market funds currently yield from 14 to 17 percent "interest" — actually dividends on shares — to persons investing as little as several hundred dollars.

In contrast, passbook savings accounts yield only 5 1/2 percent interest at banks and 5/8 percent interest at savings and loan associations.

But money-market funds are not insured by the federal government, as are bank certificates that can yield 12 to 14 percent interest — but only in denominations of $10,000.

SEC member John R. Evans told the House banking subcommittee Wednesday proposed restrictive legislation would have "a negative impact" on the "millions of people who invest in money-market funds."

Evans said the funds "offer smaller investors an opportunity previously enjoyed only by the wealthy and by institutional investors — easy access to high-yield investments."

Evans defended the funds — expanding by $3 billion to $4 billion a week — as "a product responsive to the needs and demands of investors."

But American Bankers Association President Lee Gundersen testified "as far as bankers are concerned, the status quo is not an option."

The testimony mirrored the already furious lobbying battle on Capitol Hill that intensified earlier this year when the funds' assets passed the $100 billion mark, much of which the banks contend has been withdrawn from their vaults.

Police follow new lead

ATLANTA (UPI) — A friend who saw Atlanta's latest missing black youth riding in an old green station wagon on the day he vanished says he felt something was wrong because he "was sitting so stiff and didn't wave at me."

Larry Rogers, a mentally retarded 21-year-old who looks much younger, this week became the 25th victim in the city's string of missing and murdered children. Twenty-two of those young blacks have been found dead and three are still missing.

The witness told police he was outside his northwest Atlanta home March 30 when he heard a car door slam and turned to see Rogers sitting in the station wagon with a black man.

"He didn't move or nothing," the witness said. "He didn't talk."

The witness, a neighbor and friend of Rogers, told police the car drove down the street twice before leaving the vicinity. He said he was concerned "because he (Rogers) was sitting so stiff and didn't wave at me."

A composite drawing of the light-skinned black man, who was said to be about 50 to 55 years old, and a partial tag number with the first letter R and the first digit 5 were termed "important" developments Wednesday by police.

The drawing depicts a man with long, graying black hair, a thick mustache, heavy eyebrows and horn-rimmed glasses. Police said the man was described as being between 50 and 55 years old.

"We do not give out a lot of composites," Public Safety Commissioner Lee P. Brown said during a news conference. "We have some confidence in the validity of what we've put out here."

Victim holds no grudge

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Francis Hemauser is a free man today, and says he wants to forgive the mistake that led him to prison eight years ago for a rape he did not commit.

"I am overwhelmed at just being turned free. I can't find the words to say much more," he said.

A circuit court judge said Wednesday he was convinced Hemauser did not rape and assault an 18-year-old woman in 1969 because of recently developed tests that showed the attacker had type B blood. Hemauser has type A blood.

Hemauser, 60, put his head down and sobbed for several moments after the judge announced his verdict. Relatives, friends and others wept and applauded.

An attorney who got the case reopened called it "a tragic case of mistaken identity."

E.H. officers joined in talks

MANCHESTER — Three East Hartford police officers, who had recent contact with the woman who barricaded herself in the Essex Motor Inn with a rifle and threatened to kill herself and others, joined local police negotiators last night in trying to talk her out of the building.

East Hartford officers John Shannon, Joseph Troiano and Lt. Joseph LeMay responded to a call for help by Manchester Police.

Local police said the woman, 25-year-old Janet Adams, specifically asked to talk to Shannon, who had assisted her earlier in the week.

East Hartford Police said Ms. Adams had filed a criminal complaint in East Hartford earlier this week. Shannon and Troiano were the officers investigating her complaint. East Hartford police declined to disclose the nature of Ms. Adams' complaint, which is still under investigation.

Manchester police said the East Hartford force responded immediately to their call for assistance.

"We had tremendous cooperation," said Manchester Detective Captain Joseph Brooks. Shannon, Troiano and LeMay reported to Manchester police headquarters. They were in telephone contact with Ms. Adams on several occasions, police said.

The three out-of-town officers remained throughout the night to help local police maintain conversation with Ms. Adams.

East Hartford police said Shannon is a Manchester resident and was off-duty when he got the call for help.

Cafe patrons become captives of motel incident

By FRANK BURBANK

MANCHESTER — Although there were no hostages officially involved in the shooting incident early this morning at the Essex Motor Inn, there were several persons who considered themselves captives.

Their captivity, however, was not without its rewards as they were being detained in Carrie Nation's Cafe on East Center Street.

The incident which began at about 1:30 a.m. nearly coincided with the drinking establishment's closing time and patrons of the cafe found themselves cut off from their vehicles when they attempted to leave.

Police officers and cruisers were stationed at the intersection of East Center, Main and Center streets, to prevent curious onlookers and innocent pedestrians from wandering into the field of fire near the motel.

Several of the patrons had parked their vehicles along East Center Street earlier in the evening and when it came time to go home, their vehicles were inaccessible because they were in the restricted area.

Employees of the cafe managed to keep the patrons inside and police officers at the scene did allow those patrons who did not have to enter the dangerous area to leave the cafe.

There were however, about 25 persons who were detained in the establishment from shortly after the 1 a.m. closing time to 6:30 a.m. when the incident ended with the capture of the gun-wielding woman.

Two of the patrons did get belligerent with police officers and ended up being arrested when they ignored orders not to attempt to reach their vehicles along East Center Street.

Employees of the cafe allowed patrons who did not have their autos parked in the restricted area to leave, two at a time. The motorists were asked to leave the area without using headlights to avoid drawing attention to the vehicles.

At various times during the early morning hours when the exact situation at the motel was unknown, some of the patrons ventured out on the sidewalk and conversed with the police officers and newsmen.

During one such incident, patrons, police officers and a photographer quickly dispersed in several directions at the same time when the unmistakable crack of a high-powered rifle was heard.

One of the detained bar patrons was heard to comment after the shot was fired, "If you can hear it, you ain't hit."

As the hours dragged on, one of the patrons who had a bicycle parked near the front door of Carrie Nation's made trips to a doughnut shop on Center Street to provide coffee and pastry for the then-weary cafe employees and detained patrons.

Among those detained in the cafe were members of a band who were playing Wednesday night. The band members joined the detained bar patrons when it was realized their truck was parked in the restricted area and they could not remove themselves or their equipment.

A cafe employee said during the detention period, "Things are going pretty good, the band members are inside taking pictures of the clock."

When it was announced the incident was over, a very audible sign of relief was heard from several of the patrons.

"Well, I can't say it wasn't fun," one patron said as she finally was allowed to leave the area. "I think I would like to do it again in about five years."

Control of education is debated

By PAUL HENDRIE
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Is the state, locality or federal government in charge of education? Does binding arbitration settlements with teacher unions weaken local control over education? Does tenure provide for teacher security or educational stagnation? Do parents have enough input into local education?

These questions were asked and the answers to them debated at last night's Board of Education forum "Who Controls Education?" Approximately 20 people attended the forum in Manchester High School's library.

Members of the panel said the State Supreme Court decision in the Horton versus Meskill case — which said the state should strive to equalize education funding in school districts statewide — thrust the state into local education.

"I think where the state intervened is when the state realized some of the schools couldn't make it alone," said panelist Tom Mondani, executive director of the Connecticut Education Association. "I use the example that the American dream says anyone can grow up to own a car company, but Henry Ford got the jump on all of us. So, if we say to children you really should have an opportunity to give them the chance for that opportunity."

But panelist Russell Post, state senator from Canton, said the effect of the state system of redistributing education funds is to limit spending by front-running school systems so poorer school districts can catch up.

"The horror of the court decision is that it tries to hold back towns that are trying to improve education," said Post. "There is a rush today to try to say money means educational opportunity."

Panelist Amy Burns, co-chairwoman of the PTA council, pointed out that richer school districts spend more than twice as much on education as poorer districts.

"I think it sounds great to say you can't quantify opportunity, but when you're dealing in practical terms, you have to realize that the disparities are great," said Burns. "I think it is important to remember that the state has an obligation to enter in when the needs affect a broader area than the local community. Education is one of those needs."

Mondani added, "I don't think the court decision holds back any school districts. The state Legislature hasn't made the equalization work because of its unwillingness to put in enough money."

Post said he believes the biggest intrusion into local control of education comes from binding arbitration settlements with teacher unions.

"I think the point that is sometimes missed is whether the binding arbitration law is good for education," said Post. "I think binding arbitration creates an agreement over the objection of townspeople. There is no constitutional requirement that says if two parties can't agree someone must come in and write the agreement."

Post said there are three ways to settle collective bargaining disputes with teachers. One way is the old method, where local Boards of Education could impose their will over teachers' objections. The second way is the teachers' right to strike, which is presently illegal. The final method is binding arbitration.

Post said he preferred the old method, but he would even favor the right to strike over binding arbitration. Mondani pointed out that teachers now have only one option: binding arbitration. He said binding arbitration works.

"I have yet to see any thing that has worked against education because of binding arbitration," he said. Betty Sadowski suggested that teachers give up tenure if they retain the right to go to binding arbitration.

Plan mandates house numbers in Manchester

MANCHESTER — You'll have to have numbers on your house that are easy to read in a hurry if the Board of Directors passes an ordinance that has been proposed by one its subcommittees.

The ordinance is designed to make it possible for policemen and other emergency personnel to find a house or a commercial building quickly and save valuable time. The ordinance will provide that the street numbers be at least three inches high, that they be a color contrasting to the background color, that they be at least four feet from the ground but not higher than 12 feet from the ground.

Chairmen named for cancer drive

MANCHESTER — Attorney Leonard Horvath, Manchester Unit crusade chairman of the American Cancer Society's annual April Crusade, has announced that Thomas Tierney will serve as Manchester town crusade chairman.

Other town crusade chairmen are Bolton, Donald Carpenter; Ellington, Ellen Maletsky; Stafford Springs, Anthony Guglielmo; South Windsor, Ernest Hintz and Donald Schneider; and Tolland, Inga Swannack.

This year the Manchester Unit of the American Cancer Society hopes to raise $5,000, an increase of $5,000 over last year's figure. The weekend of April 25 will find over 600 volunteers canvassing Manchester neighborhoods for donations. "Nearly 20 cents of every $1 contributed is spent on approved cancer research, public and professional education and cancer patient services and rehabilitation," said Tierney.

Tierney, a native of Manchester, served as American Cancer Society Crusade Chairman in 1977 and is a past treasurer of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches, chairman of the annual Cops and Robbers Basketball game and is a member of the Jaycees. A graduate of East Catholic High School he attended St. Bonaventure College and is president of the John Tierney Funeral Home in Manchester. He is married and has two children.

On Thursday, April 9 at 7:30 p.m. there will be a training session at the Manchester Country Club for area captains. If anyone is interested in being a volunteer, please phone Tierney at the Tierney Funeral Home 643-1222 or the American Cancer Society office at 643-2168.

"Volunteers make a tremendous difference in the fight against cancer and the American Cancer Society needs more of them," declared Tierney.

Church of Christ sets Bible class

MANCHESTER — The Church of Christ, 394 Lydell St. (at Vernon Street) will host a series of Bible lessons in both the Lao and Hmong languages beginning tonight at 6:30. The series, which will run through Saturday, will be conducted by Loma Lorber, a Laotian who works for the State of Connecticut helping fellow countrymen find jobs and settle into a new culture.

Lorber and his wife, Aly, were converted to Christianity in Laos before the communist take-over of that country in 1975. Although his family is mainly Buddhist, Lorber proudly states that after a few studies from the Bible he was able to see the differences between Christianity and Buddhism and choose the former.

The Lorbers fled to Thailand with their one child. He studied the Bible in Laos for one year before fleeing and he then resumed his studies in Thailand for another year before coming to the United States. The family settled first in Carbondale, Ill. where he studied English and social studies at Southern Illinois University. He speaks five languages. In 1978 the Lorbers moved to Manchester to join Lorber's brother. The couple now has three children.

Lorber has conducted evangelistic series for Laotians in Ft. Worth, Texas, Nashville and Memphis, Tenn. He teaches a weekly Bible class for Laotians each Sunday at 9 a.m. at the Church of Christ.

Tonight's lesson will focus on the Hmong language. The schedule for the rest of the series includes: Friday, 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., Lao language; April 11, 10 a.m. to noon, Hmong and Lao together, noon to 1 p.m., lunch consisting of Hmong and Lao foods, and 1 to 3 p.m., preaching. A staffed nursery will be provide at all services and the public is invited.

Duffy presents paper

MANCHESTER — Joseph W. Duffy, a teacher at East Catholic High School, presented a paper recently before the American Catholic Historical Association meeting at Boston College.

The paper dealt with anti-Irish feeling in Connecticut of the 1890's. Duffy is also a member of both the Connecticut Center for Independent Historians and the Connecticut Council for Social Studies.

Trooper blames KKK for bloodshed

HARTFORD (UPI) — Ku Klux Klan members deliberately sparked a violent clash with anti-Klan protesters in Meriden last month by refusing to take off their white hoods and robes, says the second ranking state trooper.

State Police Lt. Col. James Rice told lawmakers Wednesday the Klan could have avoided bloodshed if they had removed the robes and allowed police to escort them inconspicuously from Meriden City Hall.

The strategy of firm discipline and patience by Meriden police was working and the Klan "recognized this and deliberately precipitated a confrontation that quickly led to violence," Rice said. He testified more than two hours before the Public Safety Committee examining why back up state troopers were not dispatched to the bloody March 21 demonstration.

Press fights closed Purolator trial

WATERBURY (UPI) — At least two news organizations may appeal a judge's order barring reporters and the public from a pre-trial hearing for two men charged in the bloody 1979 robbery of a Purolator Security Inc. garage.

Lawyers for the Waterbury American and Republican and The Hartford Courant joined state prosecutors in arguing against the order issued Wednesday by Superior Court Judge T. Clark Hull.

Hull said he made the final decision in the absence of Public Safety Committee member Donald Long, who was out of state visiting his son, but with his consent. Long's absence has drawn criticism from Gov. William O'Neill, among others, and the governor ordered a separate probe by the State Police Advisory Committee.

Building work at a standstill

HARTFORD (UPI) — Work remained at a standstill today at construction sites across Connecticut as a contractors' group and a union representing striking laborers continued to trade accusations in a dispute over wages.

The dispute between the union and the Connecticut Construction Industries Association heated up Wednesday when the CCIA ordered the 50 contractors affected by the strike to lock out workers.

State man jailed in kidnap-murder

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — A Naugatuck man has been sentenced to 20 years in prison for his role in a kidnap-murder plot in which one man died and another was shot and dumped in New York's East River.

Scott Douglas, 22, who originally was charged with two counts of kidnaping and one count of conspiracy to commit kidnaping, was sentenced on reduced charges Wednesday by U.S. District Court Judge Ellen Burns.

Douglas, who still faces murder and attempted murder charges in New York, was one of 10 people charged in the kidnappings last Labor Day of John Senior, 20, and Joseph Vilela, 22, of Middletown.

The two victims were taken to a garage in the Bronx, N.Y., where Senior was shot in the chest three times, his hands tied behind his back and his body dumped in the East River.

Vilela was shot in the face, rolled in a rug and dumped in the East River. He had swum to escape and swim to safety despite a hail of gunfire from his assailants.

Last week four other men were found guilty of kidnaping and conspiracy in the case. Prosecutors claimed one of the men, Lester Bellin, 48, of Middletown, organized plots to kill Senior and Vilela and two women who had threatened the cover he had created for confidence gamblers and drug deals.

Bills hike road tolls, firm taxes

HARTFORD (UPI) — Highway tolls would be raised to 35 cents and corporate taxes would be hiked to 10 percent under bills approved by the Connecticut House.

House OKs proposals

House Republicans, who have consistently decried the increased taxes and fees, unveiled a "Democratic Taxometer" — a thermometer which measures the revenue increases supported by the majority this year.

The red paint creeping up the "Taxometer" reached $43.7 million by day's end. Much of the House debate centered on the bill to increase the effective rate of the corporation tax from 9.1 percent to 10 percent, which would raise $2.5 million this fiscal year and $27 million next year.

The toll hikes would apply on the Merritt and Wilbur Cross parkways, the Connecticut Turnpike and three toll bridges in the greater Hartford area.

Senators sacrifice cruisers

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut State Police may have to wait until next year to get 150 new cruisers as a result of one sacrifice eyed by lawmakers to cut away at a state budget deficit projected to top $45 million.

The Senate unanimously approved and sent to the House Wednesday a bill which would defer the planned purchase of the vehicles until the 1982 fiscal year to save the state $1.1 million this fiscal year.

The proposal was part of a package drawn up by Democratic legislative leaders to bridge the budget deficit which has been projected at $45 million to $52 million for the fiscal year ending June 30.

Another money saving proposal, however, was dealt what could be a death blow by the upper chamber when it was sent back to the Appropriations Committee for further consideration.

Ten of the Senate's 23 Democrats joined the 13 Republican members in voting to recommit to the committee the plan to have the state take over the state veterans' Institutional General Welfare Fund.

The fund held by the state Veterans Home and Hospital in Rocky Hill is made up of money that veterans, who receive free medical care, bequeath to the state upon their death.

Big oil gets off the hook for overcharging

WASHINGTON — President Reagan not only has deregulated the oil industry, in effect, he has also granted oil companies amnesty for their illegal price gouges. This will save the companies a staggering sum, estimated between $1 billion and $15 billion, on top of the enormous profits that already are overwhelming their corporate coffers.

Apparently the president didn't intend to dump all this additional here, like manna from Washington, on the oil profiteers. But under price controls, the major oil companies overcharged consumers by billions of dollars. Now Reagan's budget cutters are about to let some of the biggest offenders off the hook.

The budget slashers have exacerbated the Energy Department's enforcement office, which has already identified billions in overcharges that should be repaid by the greedy oil producers.

The prospect of a toothless government watchdog nipping at its heels has already had a predictable effect on Big Oil. Texaco and Champion have harked out of negotiations for settling their overcharges. Union, Shell and Farmland, which orally agreed to settle, are now holding back on signing agreements. There are still $7.5 billion in unsettled civil claims against Exxon, Gulf, Arco, Mobil, Texaco, Conoco and other major oil companies.

The budget people, apparently so obsessed with saving a few million dollars before their eyes that they are blind to the billions of dollars that will be lost, have cut the enforcement office's budget from $44 million to $6 million.

This doesn't make sense even if the only objective were to balance the government's books. For one of the major beneficiaries of the compliance program has been the U.S. government, itself a big oil user. According to an internal study, the enforcement section has already retrieved $300 million to the Treasury, another $325 million could be expected by 1982—if the enforcement budget is kept intact.

Shouldn't it be obvious that it would pay to spend $44 million to retrieve $325 million for the government, let alone the billions that the defrauded consumers would collect? This was pointed out to budget boss David Stockman by lawyers for the Shell and Farmland, which orally clients are entitled to $5 billion to $8 billion in overcharges, which the enforcement office will now be powerless to collect.

But the frustrated lawyers came away convinced that Stockman is putting ideology above common sense. Sources told my reporter check the recklessly greedy oilmen. DIPLOMATIC DIGEST: Good news from Central America, for a change: While most of the region is experiencing economic woes and civil strife, Panama is rising phoenix-like from the ashes of hard times. Strongman Omar Torrijos and President Aristides Royo have succeeded in getting businessmen, unions and the government to cooperate and Panama has experienced a 7 percent economic growth rate since 1978.

Right-wing Salvadoran extremist Roberto D'Aubuisson's statement that the Reagan administration would support a rightist coup in El Salvador was based, he said, on conversations with Lt. Gen. Daniel Graham, former head of the Defense Intelligence Agency and a former Reagan transition team member. Graham is furious, not because he doesn't share some of D'Aubuisson's views on communism, but because he never promised Reagan's support and saying so publicly would put the president in a bind. And that, said the general, would be foolish. "I don't mind being called a hard-liner or right-wing," grumbled Graham.

This raises another multibillion-dollar question: How are the oil tycoons spending their fabulous profits? Remember their anguished testimony a couple of years ago when they pleaded for deregulation? Take off the federal shackles, they said, and we'll produce rivers of petroleum. But the only rivers have been created by the incoming flood of money, not the outgrowing flow of oil. Instead of sinking their tremendous profits into oil exploration as they had promised, the oil companies have been investing billions in deals that have nothing to do with drilling oil or producing energy.

I have decried government red-tape and over-regulation as stridently as Ronald Reagan has. But some people simply have to be regulated; there seems to be no other way to

Haig accuses Soviets of intimidating Poland

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig accused the Soviet Union today of intimidating Poland and said it could seriously damage East-West relations.

Haig, in Spain for talks following a Middle East tour, his aides said, issued a statement on Poland after a breakfast with U.S. Ambassador Terence Todman and Max Kampelmann, head of the U.S. delegation at the European Security Conference now under way in Madrid.

Without naming Poland, Haig said "current intimidation of a sovereign country participating in the security conference could have serious consequences on the progress of this conference and East-West relations in general."

Spanish officials said during the subsequent meeting between Haig and his Spanish counterpart Jose Perez-Llorca the defense treaty giving the United States four describing the 18-hour failed military putsch on Feb. 23 as an "internal matter" for Spain.

The remark aroused a political furor with critics saying the Reagan administration was interested only in governments that would support it against the Soviet Union and was not encouraging democratic regimes.

Although the State Department later issued a strong message of support for Spanish democracy, observers said irritation over Haig's spontaneous words still lingers in Spain.

"These occurrences provoked bad feelings in the Spanish administration," the influential El Pais newspaper said Wednesday. Originally, Haig's staff planned that Spain would only be a refueling stop on his European tour, but the political controversy changed the schedule so that Haig will spend 22 hours before going on to Britain, France and West Germany.

In meetings with King Juan Carlos, opposition leader Felipe Gonzalez and Prime Minister Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo, Haig obviously will try to put to rest charges of U.S. indifference to Spain's young democracy.

U.S. officials aboard Haig's plane said he was at the center of a series of intensive diplomatic efforts that they believed brought about a ceasefire between Syrian troops and Christian militiamen in Lebanon.

Otherwise, Haig's just completed four-country tour of the Middle East failed to gain general acceptance of his "strategic consensus," a loose anti-Soviet alliance made up of nations friendly to the United States but not all friendly to each other.

Egypt and Israel agreed with the concept. Jordan did not. Saudi Arabia welcomed the new assertive American role but said again Israel was the main threat to Middle East peace.

In Madrid, where he arrived after a 2 1/2-hour stop in Rome to meet Italian Foreign Minister Emilio Colombo, the controversial Haig was stepping into another delicate situation occasioned by his spontaneous remarks more than a month ago

Manchester police show preparedness

"Be prepared!"

The motto of the Boy Scouts of America has proven true in relation to the Town of Manchester during the past two nights.

The town's method of being prepared, or in these particular instances, the Police Department's method of preparedness was the formation of a SWAT team within the Manchester Police Department.

SWAT (Special Weapons and Tactics) teams, due to glorified depictions in television dramas and motion pictures, brings to mind swarms of men dressed in military-type fatigue uniforms utilizing weapons with extremely heavy firepower.

This is true — in part.

Dramatizations of SWAT teams however are just that, dramatizations with a very heavy emphasis on the drama.

When the Manchester Police SWAT team was formed within the past year, there were undercurrents of objections to the formation of such a unit. These objections were apparently based on the glorified dramatizations familiar to the public.

As a result of incidents which were extremely dangerous and could have been catastrophic, we feel these objections have no basis.

While incidents involving persons with firearms certainly can be considered dramatic, the reaction of the Manchester SWAT unit resulted in these incidents causing no deaths or

Cuts needed, not new taxes

To the editor:

It would appear that the tax doctors in the Democrat-controlled General Assembly are operating again with their tax increase syndrome.

This syndrome manifests itself by afflicting these tax proponents with give awayitis all at the expense of the taxpayer patients, and I for one am sick of budget remedy prescriptions which call for over-increasing doses of my hard-earned money, and administered with little or no accountability.

While we are trying to cure our inflation the witch doctors in Hartford are attempting to infect us with "taxflation."

It is an evasion of responsibility by those Democrat leaders to the office for which they were elected, by attempting new tax schemes as opposed to spending accountability regarding the monies we send them.

In a recent report authored by Superior Court Judge Roman Lexton, he charged the state welfare department with improper over-payments of more than $8 million to nursing homes. The State Department of Education admitted to a $10 million "mistake."

The explanation was to blame administrative oversight. A poor teller in any bank would be severely reprimanded if she was off only $10. Why not look at the state's telephone bill of approximately $13 million for the executive branch of government.

Almost half of which is generated by long distance calling. This does not include the phone bills for the judicial or legislative branches. It should be clear to us all that the problem does not alone lie in the development of a more equitable tax system, or necessarily in imposition of an income tax, but rather in determining just where the tax dollars are going today, and how many more of these dollars are we willing to pay in increased taxes.

There can be no case whatsoever for new taxes, certainly not on the grounds that it would be more equitable, or that the state needs the money, unless and until an element of thrift and economy has been established within state government.

An income tax is no cureall for the state problems, and to say that an income tax would ease the intolerable burden now borne by the property owners or businesses, or that the income tax would be more equitable by taxing the rich more and the middle class less is just not true.

Both the governor and the general assembly abdicated their responsibility to make state spending more accountable during the last session, and it appears it will require a miracle or active middle class intervention before the trend changes in this assembly.

I do not believe the Democrat leaders truly represent the middle class Democrats who voted them into office.

U.S. still an active trader

There's more to being on a government mailing list than a mailbox overflowing with material you don't have time to read on subjects of minimal interest.

Occasionally an item in the inflow can be unexpectedly enlightening, such as the current Special Report No. 74 issued by the U.S. State Department's Bureau of Public Affairs.

Tersely titled "Trade Patterns of the West, 1979", this document lays out the exchanges of goods and services of the United States and 23 of its principal economic associates with each other and the rest of the world in 14 pages of mind-numbing tables and charts. Fortunately, an introductory summary in perfectly comprehensible English came to the rescue with an overview making some interesting points.

One is the increasing importance of trade with Western Europe. We are on the receiving end of a flood of goods from the Europeans, right? Right. The statistics prove it. But they also show that the Europeans are better customers of the United States than we are of them.

In the year under study, 29.5 percent of all American exports went to Western Europe but only 5.3 percent of Europe's exports reached the United States. In dollar terms — the only ones, after all, that are bankable — U.S. sales to Europe totaled $53.6 billion. Purchases from Europe came to $42 billion, a U.S. trade surplus of $11.6 billion.

That was, of course, more than offset by deficits in two other key markets — OPEC, from whose oil producers we bought $27 billion more than we sold, and Japan, where the imbalance was $9 billion in Japan's favor. These were the most massive contributions to the American global trade deficit of $25.3 billion for the year.

That is certainly bad news, of a type to which we have unfortunately grown too accustomed to. But it disguises somewhat better words.

The State department study is in line with the trend in which foreign trade, once a relatively minor factor in the U.S. economy as a whole, is playing an increasing and increasingly profitable role. Purchases and sales abroad now account for approximately a quarter of the gross national product, twice the comparable proportion in 1970 and almost three times that of 1960.

SWAT team acts, ends standoff

Wethersfield woman captured uninjured

Gen. Omar Nelson Bradley, the last of America's five-star generals and the first chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, died late Wednesday of cardiac arrest. He was 85. Bradley is shown here in 1951 when he posed for a photo for his book, "A Soldier's Story." At the time he consented to don his wartime four stars in keeping with the setting of the book. (From the dust jacket of "A Soldier's Story" by Gen. Omar Bradley, copyright Karst, Ottawa, W. OPI)

The scene, said the woman appeared intoxicated and lethargic after a brief scuffle with police.
Officer Thomas Pascantelli functioned as chief negotiator and at one point reported the woman upset with a "red flashing light" outside her room which bordered East Center and Madison streets. Police said a traffic light at the intersection had been shot at, and we're hoping this morning to recover one bullet in its metal casing.

Another bullet pierced a window of the Andrews Building, directly across from the Essex — entering the empty law office of Dominic J. Squatrito. No one was injured, and police hoped this morning to find the bullet lodged in an office wall.
A third shot was believed embedded in the door frame and police this morning had no immediate plans for extracting it.
The fourth shot remains a mystery, but officers theorize it was fired randomly out the second floor window, perhaps glancing the steel plate of the Center Congregational Church, at the intersection of Main and Center streets.

The SWAT team members took position across from the Essex, on the rooftop of Cavey's Restaurant and Lounge, 45 Center St. Armed with binoculars, weapons and communication equipment, the officers moved to the third floor of the Andrews Building. Police this morning speculated that while two shots may have been randomly fired, at least two were probably aimed in their direction.
Police blocked off the entire area, warning residents and patrons in the nearby Carry Nation's Cafe to remain inside the building. Police were forced to telephone a woman resident living at a home at the intersection of Madison and East Center streets — instructing her to seek cover in the basement of her home.

The incident — which began in thick darkness early this morning — ended in bright sunshine when at 6:31 a.m. Capt. Minor radioed to 21 units. "The situation has been neutralized and everything is copacetic."
Police Chief Robert Lannan said between 20 and 25 persons were on the scene, including "two entire squads" of detectives and uniformed police.
Aside from bullet holes which damaged three windows, a manager at the Essex this morning said the 42-unit complex sustained little damage. Police praised a night manager at the motel — who failed to remain unidentified — for his cooperation throughout the siege.
One source was said to believe Ms. Adams had previously looked into the Essex. The morning manager today said police had taken room files, and could not verify if an $52.50-a-night room had been charged to her.
From her vantage in her room which contained three windows and a television, Adams had a clear view of about 300 degrees, a tactical rifle which kept police moving gingerly about the scene throughout the night.
Chief Lannan reminded this was the second siege in which the tactical SWAT team had been called in 48 hours. In an earlier incident, a suicide was averted on Bush Hill Road when the SWAT team disarmed a man in a basement.

'GI's general' is dead at 88

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gen. Omar Nelson Bradley, the last of America's five-star generals and a World War II hero so loved by his troops they called him the "GI's General," died Wednesday night of cardiac arrest. He was 85.
Bradley, in New York City for an Army dinner, collapsed at the 21 Club while dining with his wife and three aides, who rushed him by private car to St. Luke-Roosevelt Hospital. Twenty minutes later, doctors pronounced him dead of cardiac arrest.

Teacher union raps fund cuts

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state's largest teachers' organization today charged that proposed state and federal cuts in education "could spell the end of free public education in Connecticut."
The Connecticut Education Association charged that state and federal officials have "turned their backs on public education" in their efforts to roll back spending.
Robert Chase, president of the 28,000-member teachers group, said the cuts will mean "the loss of hundreds of teachers and hundreds of education programs for children."
He said the Reagan administration today proposed that proposed state and federal cuts in education "could spell the end of free public education as we know it today."
CEA executive secretary Thomas Mondant accused the Connecticut Legislature with "closing its eyes to the plight of local communities who have worked hard to build and cherish a quality school system."

An Army spokesman said burial for the general, who was retired but still officially on active duty, will be at Arlington National Cemetery, with details to be announced.
In Washington, Army Secretary John Marsh Jr. mourned Bradley's death as "a loss not only for this nation but for all freedom-loving people of the world."
"He takes his place in history as a great patriot, a peerless military leader and an individual dedicated to the cause of peace in the world," Marsh said.

Rockville rally tops Eagles

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sports writer
What had been a stellar relief performance soared in the ninth inning as Rockville High rallied for two runs to top East Catholic, 4-3, in non-conference baseball action yesterday at the Rams' wind-swept diamond.
Sophomore Mike Byam, in his first varsity performance, retired the first 14 of 15 faced with the lone exception reaching on an error. In the ninth, however, matters came unraveled with one out, as Chris Green reached on an infield hit to deep short to ignite the Ram uprising. He swiped second and took third on Jeff Anderson's rubber down the third base line which went for a single.

Anderson broke for second with East catcher Steve Byrne in a bid to nail him. Shortstop Brad Cabral faked cutting the peg off behind the mound. "That throw was going all the way through. And we had him," intoned East Coach Jim Penders.
The peg, however, bounced off second baseman Tom Furlong's glove toward the shortstop hole with Chris Green reaching on an infield equalizer. After the inning's second out, Jim Moore ripped a single to center with Anderson wisely directed to stop at third.

Centerfielder Kyle Ayer, in the third inning gunned down Keith Schmelzer by 10 feet at the plate, trying to score on a Ron Hegan single.
But the reprise was momentary as Jeff Baker drilled a single to right off Green's mitt. Both scored as Penders retired 2-0.
"Mike deserved a better fate," Penders remarked, "but we left a

New winners likely
The major league baseball season opened Wednesday with the defending World Series champion Philadelphia Phillies visiting the Cincinnati Reds.
Don't expect either to be in the '81 World Series.
It appears there will be new winners emerging with as many as three of the four divisions having new leaders.
Do not expect the New York Yankees to repeat. Don't look for Kansas City or Philadelphia, either. The lone exception could be Houston, but remember the Astros took the National League West in a one-game playoff a year ago.
They are far from a sure bet.

By MIKE TULLY

A historic team achievement and a remarkable individual performance highlighted the opening night of the Stanley Cup playoffs.
The Minnesota North Stars, who had not won a game in Boston Garden in 35 previous attempts, used a deflection by Steve Payne 3:34 into overtime Wednesday night to score a 2-1 victory over the Bruins for a 10 lead in the best-of-five preliminary series.
In Montreal, Wayne "The Great" Gretzky continued the pattern of his record-setting regular season by notching an NHL record five assists to lead the Edmonton Oilers to a 6-3 victory of the Canadiens.
Adding Dave Kingman and Rusty Staub to the everyday line-up adds some needed punch for the Mighty Houston is pitching rich but power-poor. Its lone shortcoming is the punch needed to break open a close contest. The Astros, significantly, are minus J.R. Richard and who can expect Joe Niekro to be a repeat 20-game winner.
The Dodgers will remain a contender. But watch out for the vastly improved Atlanta Braves, who will not control the rebound and Young swiped a backhander past Vachon and off the shaft of Payne's 3-2 tie.
The Washington, D.C., papers are calling the Orioles a super team. No one, however, should claim a team is super with John Lowenstein in left field and a shortstop who has a .200 batting average.
The Boston Red Sox will be fighting to stay out of the East cellar, which for the moment belongs to Toronto. How the mighty have fallen. Just shows what management can do to a club.

Pushing across four runs in the fourth inning, to snap a 3-3 tie, Manchester Community College, 9-3, in collegiate baseball action yesterday at the Cougar Field.
The Cougars, 5-2, resume play today against defending New England champ Massachusetts Community College in the Bay State at 3:30.
MCC took advantage of some crucial Becker errors and received a game-winning triple from team-leader Dwight Craig in the fourth inning that put the Cougars ahead to stay.
Craig, swinging a 417 strike, tripled in Willie Gonzalez, another hot-hitting Cougar at .391, who had doubled on the frame to start off the winning rally.
Dave Frusciano, 2-0, was the winning pitcher with no-hit relief before the third before MCC tallied a single marker in the home third.

Ray Floyd favorite because of streak

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — The smart money seldom bets against a hot streak, so Ray Floyd has got to be the favorite to win the Masters. Floyd, an acknowledged streak player, has been burning up the links this spring. He won the Doran Open and Tournament Players Championship on consecutive weekends. He was second at San Diego, and won a shopping $20,000 — including a $250,000 bonus for those back-to-back victories.
With that kind of record, the 38-year-old North Carolinian is hard to ignore.
"Ray has always been a good player but when he's on a streak he's a great player," says five-time Masters champion Jack Nicklaus. "I have a great respect for his ability as a golfer."
The hefty Floyd has won the Masters only once, in 1976. But when he did, he did it in style — starting out 65-68 and tying Nicklaus 17-under-par, 71 record for an 18-stroke margin.

Eight runs in the third inning powered South Catholic past East Catholic, 9-2, in HCC girls' softball action yesterday at Hartford's Hyland Park.
The Eagles, 1-1 overall and 0-1 in the HCC, return to the diamond today against non-conference foe Hartford Public at Robertson Park at 3 o'clock.
South, 2-0, scored once in the opening frame and then sent 12 batters to the plate in its big explosion. The Reds had only four hits in the frame but were aided by three walks and three East miscues.
East scored one run in the third. Kathy Skehan, Denise Boutiller and Lynne Cully stroked consecutive singles for the marker. The Eagles tied their other marker in the fourth. Beth Frazier walked, moved to third and scored on the front end of a double steal with Michelle Freibert.
Laci Harst took the loss with Mimi Laneri bringing in relief. Skehan, Cully, Freibert and Fiona Campbell led East offensively.

Doctor advises parents

NEW YORK (NEA) — No one in his right mind drinks Mr. Clean or Chanel No. 5.

No adult, that is. Toddlers do, because they don't know any better and because anything within reach and easy to open ends up in their mouths.

So small kids consume all kinds of things: wrinkle cream, glue, shoe polish, tranquilizers. And when they do, they poison themselves — sometimes to death. They even do this with things that are basically good for people.

"From 1971 to 1979 in Salt Lake City, two children died because of an overdose of adult-strength iron supplement tablets," says Dr. Anthony Temple, president of the American Association of Poison Control Centers and Philadelphia pediatrician and medical toxicologist.

Dr. Anthony Temple, president of the American Association of Poison Control Centers, says, "Poison is any foreign substance that produces toxic symptoms, and if you take enough of anything, it can be poison."

And people tend to think of iron as a relatively benign substance and not particularly harmful to kids, but if enough is absorbed into the body, iron can cause shock and heart failure. So it should be stored away from children, in containers with safety closures.

"Even children's chewable vitamins with iron should be kept out of reach," he says, "and more-is-always-better, you may end up poisoning the child yourself."

Dr. Temple says, "For years, over 50 aspirin accounted for about 20 percent of that child poisonings. Since child-resistant closures on aspirin bottles were introduced in 1973, however, there's been a decrease."

Nevertheless, between 1977 and 1978, nearly half the cases of children hospitalized for aspirin poisoning in Salt Lake City and Boston were due to therapeutic or chronic overdose, not accidental ingestion. In other words, the parent was giving the drug too often or too much, for too long a time, and aspirin accumulates in the body. Parents must learn to follow directions.

Parents must also learn, he says, that "poison is any foreign substance that produces toxic symptoms, and if you take enough of anything, it can be poison."

The question then becomes, unless you see it happen, how do you know your child has swallowed, say, five anti-depressant pills, when even in that small number, can cause chest distress, rapid or irregular heart rate?

"Also," says Dr. Temple, "be sure to keep a bottle of ipecac in the house. You can buy a one-ounce bottle at any pharmacy, without a prescription, for about $1. It induces vomiting so you can get an immediate start on getting toxic material out of the child. But," he warns, "do not use ipecac until you're told to. There are reasons not to make someone vomit." For instance, ipecac, which burns its way down, will burn its way up again.

One more thing. In addition to making it impossible for children to reach or open household products, medicines, cosmetics, insecticides, etc., make sure the containers intended to hold these things, do indeed hold these things.

Some years ago, Dr. Temple recalls, in Salt Lake City, a teenager found a bottle of apple cider in the garage. He transferred the contents to a scotch bottle, let them ferment, then brought the bottle to a party. Two days later, a 5-year-old who'd managed to consume a quantity of the "cider" was dead of kidney failure.

"We had to diagnose the case based on the symptoms," he says. "It took 24 to 48 hours for the child to die and 48 hours for us to get the real story. Evidently, the teenager's parent had drained the anti-freeze from the radiator — into an old, empty cider bottle."

For a list of poison control centers, write to: American Association of Poison Control Centers, c/o San Diego Poison Control Center, University of California San Diego Medical Center, San Diego, CA 92161.

Instead of waiting until you need the number of the nearest poison control center (usually affiliated with a major medical center), get it now, he says, and post it by your door.

Manchester Hospital featured in magazine

MANCHESTER — Manchester Memorial Hospital's pioneering Family-Centered Childbirth program is featured in the April 7 issue of Woman's Day magazine in an article entitled, "Where Should Baby Be Born — A guide to Today's Options in Childbirth."

According to the article, by authors Geraldine and Sharon Youcha, "the idea that birth procedures should be tailored to meet varied needs has stimulated the development of new programs. So has the increasing number of mothers, and fathers too, who want to participate as fully as possible in the birth of their babies."

The authors indicate that the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists recently endorsed innovative in-hospital birth facilities. They said that the number of home-style birthing rooms in American hospitals has grown from one in 1980 to more than 1,000 today. The one birthing room referred to is the one established in 1969 at Manchester Memorial Hospital.

The authors said that the birth setting has a significant effect on how a woman and her baby experience childbirth. Hospital birthing rooms are designed to be as homelike as possible with equipment kept hidden or in the background.

With its current expansion program, Manchester Memorial will increase the number of birthing rooms from three to six.

"At Manchester Memorial Hospital the rooms are equipped with stemmed glasses for labor, an instant camera, a radio and a telephone so parents can announce the event," the authors said.

The article covers a variety of childbirth options, ranging from traditional in-hospital deliveries to home births, exploring the advantages and disadvantages of each. "Every mother-to-be must weigh the advantages and disadvantages of the various possibilities in light of her own needs and preferences," the authors said.

Appeal raises funds

HARTFORD — The Human Needs Appeal of the Archdiocese of Hartford has raised $1.1 million or 75 percent of its goal of $1.5 million. Funds will finance more than 40 agencies and programs for the afflicted and needy in 82 towns and cities in the archdiocese. The human needs appeal is being conducted entirely by mail. Members are asked for their support through pledges.

Seniors to meet

COVENTRY — The Coventry Senior Citizens will meet April 15 at 1 p.m. at the Northend Community House. There will be a luncheon at noon but reservations are closed. The meeting at 1 p.m. will include the installation of officers. Money for the Coachlight Dinner Theater trip must be in by April 15.

First prize winners

MANCHESTER — Jason Ramos and Luis Mendona were the first prize winners in a "Darth Vader" contest during a family night program at the Free Stages of Hartford. The event was sponsored by the Manchester Recreation Department.

Emanuel preacher

MANCHESTER — The Rev. C. Henry Anderson will be the preacher at this evening's Lenten service at Emanuel Lutheran Church at 7:30 p.m. After serving the congregation for 21 years, Pastor Anderson upon his retirement in 1976, he still serves the parish as a visitation pastor. The public is invited.

MCC schedules poetry reading

MANCHESTER — Linda Pastan, whose poems have appeared in Ms. magazine, The Atlantic, Harpers, The New Yorker, The American Poetry Review, and other periodicals, will read from her work tonight at 8:30 in the Student Center Dining Room at Manchester High School. The public is invited to attend this free reading sponsored by the Cultural Programs Committee in conjunction with the Connecticut Poetry Circuit.

Mrs. Pastan grew up in New York City, graduated from Radcliffe College in 1954, and received her MA from Brandeis University in 1957. She lives in Potomac, Md., with her husband and three children and is currently teaching at American University in Washington, D.C.

Her books of poems include: A Perfect Circle (Sun 1971), On the Way to the Zoo (1975), Aspects of 1976, The Free Stages of Hartford (1978) and the latest Waiting for My Life (1981), plus two chapbooks, Setting the Table and Even as We Sleep.

Bolton voters approve curbside waste pickup

Board of Finance member Morris Silverstein was caught voting Wednesday at the referendum. Silverstein, an official who advocated the transfer station, attended the reading of the results after the polls closed at 8 p.m. "Wow," he said, as the results displayed an overwhelming defeat of the transfer station by over a 2-1 margin. ## Officials' feeling mixed after choice of pickup

BOLTON — Town officials had mixed feelings Wednesday night, after learning voters had approved curbside waste pickup over the alternative for construction of a transfer station.

Voters approved curbside pickup by over a 2-1 margin, and though many officials were in favor of a transfer station, not many were surprised with the outcome.

First Selectman Henry Ryba, an advocate of the transfer station, said he was "not surprised" by the outcome, adding that the selection would immediately begin work on a contract and an ordinance mandating the decision, before putting the work out to bid.

The selection will also be investigating possible means of recycling, he said.

Selectman Aloysius Ahearn, who was also in favor of the transfer station, said that he was "not too surprised" that townwide pickup won.

The Board of Finance Chairman Raymond Urbin said "I'm very much surprised," and "I thought it would be closer," but that "townwide pickup would prevail."

He said the people "elected to put in the higher of the two, and that's the one that's in the projected budget."

The Board of Finance, he said elected to put the alternative that would "cost less in the long run."

Republican Town Chairman William Fehling, an official who advocated townwide pickup, said, "I feel very good. I'm very happy to hear that townwide pickup won. He was "a little surprised" that the pickup option won "by that big a margin, adding that he "thought the transfer station had more support" than townwide pickup.

The selectmen will also be investigating possible means of recycling, he said.

Bolton will end contract for Andover dump use

ANDOVER — The town of Bolton will end its use of the town dump, now that voters in Bolton have voted in favor of a townwide curbside pickup as the method to remove its solid waste.

Bolton presently has a contract with Andover in which Bolton residents can bring their refuse to the dump in Andover.

Bolton presently pays the town of Andover $55,000 annually for the use of the dump, a figure that will rise to $60,000 for the next fiscal year.

Bolton voters approved townwide pickup Wednesday at a referendum by more than a 2-1 margin. The other alternative on the ticket was the installation of a transfer station.

Bolton officials had planned to present Andover officials with a plan to build a transfer station at the Andover dump site, but Andover selectmen wished to hold off on negotiations until after the referendum, to see if Bolton wished to go the transfer station route.

Bolton has signed a contract binding the town to the Windham refuse project. According to the guidelines of the contract, the town must find a method to bring its refuse to the plant in Windham, for recycling, once the plant is completed.

The plant is scheduled for opening in August.

Area crash kills woman

COVENTRY — Kathy J. Butch, 24, of Baycrest Drive, Granby, died Wednesday afternoon after the car she was driving collided head-on with a dump truck on Route 275, police said.

Police said the crash happened at 4:41 p.m. when the car, traveling west, collided with a heavy duty dump truck, traveling east, about a tenth of a mile west of School Street.

Ms. Butch was pronounced dead at Windham Community Memorial Hospital in Williamamit at 5:50 p.m., police said.

Police said the truck driver, whose name was not released, was admitted to the hospital, treated for shock and released.

Renegade cans found close to Legislature

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut lawmakers who reaffirmed support for the state's bottle return law earlier this week didn't have to go far Wednesday to find out that not everyone is abiding by the statute.

Soda cans with the removable flip-tops banned under the bottle law were found by lawmakers in a soda machine within a stone's throw of the Hall of the House.

The renegade cans appeared less than 24 hours after the House soundly defeated an attempt to repeal the minimum deposit beverage container law which changed most consumers' beer and soda drinking habits.

BOLTON — Voters overwhelmingly approved curbside townwide pickup at the referendum Wednesday, defeating the alternative for solid waste removal, a transfer station, by more than a 2-1 margin.

Ballot number one, the transfer station, received 443 "no" votes and 176 "yes" votes, out of a total voter turnout of 641. Townwide pickup received 444 "yes" votes and 186 "no" votes.

The "yes" votes for townwide pickup represent 69 percent of the total vote.

The referendum decision ends a three-month debate over what method the town should incorporate to remove its solid waste. In December, the town signed a contract with Windham binding the town to providing the Windham operation with its refuse. The Windham plant is scheduled to open for a trial run in July, and may be in full operation by August.

The town presently has a contract with Andover, through which residents can bring their refuse to the dump in Andover.

Bolton presently pays $55,000 for the use of the dump, and the figure will become $60,000 for the next fiscal year. The town can pull out of Andover and have quarterly payments returned with a 30-day notice.

According to figures derived by the selectmen, townwide pickup will cost the town between $90,000 and $110,000 annually.

Eight hundred residents, almost two-thirds of Bolton's residents, have already hired a private contractor to pick up their refuse. This represents an expenditure of approximately $40,000.

Townwide pickup received approval from over two-thirds of the total vote at the referendum.

First Selectman Henry Ryba said Wednesday that the selectmen will begin work on drawing up a contract and an ordinance mandating the decision. He added that there will be hearings on the contract and the ordinance, before the contract goes out for bid.

Board of Finance Chairman Raymond Urbin said Wednesday that the decision will not affect the figures in the projected budget for the 1981-82 fiscal year.

Abby

By Abigan van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You recently replied to a young man who had contacted me by Simplex 2 infection from a sexual encounter. Your answer was brief and offered valuable information. However, I was disappointed that you did not react to his statement, "I have not had relations with anyone since - except prostitutes, which is all I deserve." Apparently this young man has a conscience so finely honed that he is "ashamed to be in his mother's house" yet thinking of sharing his affliction with another unsuspecting human being. The old double standard rears its ugly head.

Well, perhaps his letter did some good. Some unfortunate prostitute may read his letter and decide she no longer wishes to be an "expedient commodity."

NURSE HATH

DEAR NURSE HATH: The young man's insensitivity did not escape my notice, but you are right, I should not have let it go without comment.

Perhaps Simplex 2 was not the best choice. I have read, has assumed educated proportions, no I believe readers who want free, up-to-date information on this disease to write: Help, Box 100, Palo Alto, Calif. 94302. Please include a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

I am informed that since that item hit print, the organization has been inundated with mail. It's still pouring in! Every request will be honored as soon as possible.

DEAR ABBY: I am planning to marry this summer. My parents are divorced and my mother remarried. I have my heart set on having a traditional church wedding. Who should give me away, my father or my stepfather? Both consider me their daughter, and I love them equally.

My mother says the one who pays for the wedding should give me away. (Probably hoping as a wedding I have to an altar.) I've even considered giving as a witness. I have a choice, but I really do want a church wedding. I have a 21-year-old brother who could walk me down the aisle, but he says he'd rather be an usher.

Please tell me what to do. I don't want any hard feelings on my wedding day.

LISA

DEAR ABBY: Both your father and stepfather could walk you down the aisle and jointly give you away. Perhaps an uncle or your brother could walk with a lady named Jean. I understand that my former mother-in-law is now calling Jean, "Joan, WHO ANSWERS TO SUE."

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are the only jobs, paying your way. This is your chance to be a professional writer. Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 Booklet, 132 Luskys Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Your Birthday
 April 10, 1981

Ample opportunities are likely to come your way this coming year. There is a possibility you will not recognize them in your true nature. To profit from their true value, you must be alert to their signs and take plenty of time to study the possibilities.

ARIES (Mar. 21-April 19)
 Don't bring up issues today which could lead you to cross swords with your male superior. Romance, travel, differences can be blown out of proportion. Romance, travel, differences can be blown out of proportion. Romance, travel, differences can be blown out of proportion.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 Don't miss this opportunity to see yourself in a new light. Free estimates!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 You desire to be helpful today, but you must be careful not to make a big thing of small favors. Do good deeds, but minimize your acts instead of exaggerating them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 Things may not come out exactly the way you hoped they would today, but they will not make excuses if you fall. No one expects you to win every race, you're in.
