Gift taxes due

HARTFORD - United States citizens and residents who have made taxable gifts of more than $25,000 in the calendar quarter ending March 31, 1981, must file from 709, "United States Gift Tax Return," by May 15, 1981. Nonresident aliens must file by the same date if the gifts they made exceed $12,500, and the property is situated within the United States, the Internal Revenue Service said. The tax is imposed on any gift of property, and is usually paid by the person making the gift. The first $3,000 in gifts made to any one person during the met, when calculating the amount of the gifts. Married couples may choose to split a gift, that is, elect to treat each spouse as making one-half of the gift. This allows each spouse to use a separate $3, 000 exclusion, and lower gift tax brackets. There are gift tax marital and charitable deductions allowable. Once the tax is computed, the giver receives a tax credit of $47,000. This credit is less for gifts made before 1981. The amount of credit must be reduced by allowable credits for all preceding quarters. A gift tax return must be filed by the 15th day of the second month after the end of the quarter when the gifts for the calendar year total more than $25. 000 ($12,500 for nonresident aliens). If gifts over $3, 000 were made to one person during the year, bu not enough to require filing a gift tax return for the first three calendar quarters, a Form 709 must be filed by April 15 of the toltowing year, even if gifts have not exceeded $25,000

Brady satisfactory

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The complication that forced White House press secretary James Brady to undergo a second major operation may be linked to the fact the bullet that ripped through his skull was an exploding slug, doctors say

Brady, 40, who underwent five hours of delicate surgery Wednesday to relieve potentially damaging pressure on the brain, was listed in satisfactory condition today at George Washington University Medical.

Doctors were watching cautiously for possible infection or further complications with the press secretary, who was gunned down in the March 30 assassination attempt against President Reagan. Brady's first operation, mmediately after he was shot, was a six-hour ordeal that removed a portion of his brain. The second operation closed up a passageway

Short always backed Martin

NEW YORK (UPI) - The man who had faith in Billy Martin above all others, and backed it up more than once by putting his money where his mouth was, says the race in the American League West could be all over in another two weeks

Bob Short always did feel Martin was "the best baseball manager in the whole universe." In light of the job Martin has been doing with the Oakland A's, winners of 14 of their first 15. Short is more positive than ever

"If he continues the way he has been going catch him," says Short, who had Martin as his manager once when he owned the Texas Rangers, "Right now, he's 14-1 and he's going to Seattle for a series with a club the A's have beaten three out of four. Oakland then comes back for a long home stay beginning with California whom they've knocked off four out of four. The A's conceivably could be 30-1 and if they ever get any kind of lead like that, it'll be all over. I know Billy Martin. He won't let Short, the head of his own trucking business in Minneapolis, knows Martin better than anyone else in baseball. Until Charlie Finley hired Martin to pilot the A's last year after George Steinbrenner discharged him for the second time. Short was the only owner Martin ever worked for who didn't fire him.

says Short, "the first thing I'd do is try to get Billy as my manager again. There's nobody else in the world like him. Look, he may be miserable to get along with, but you don't hire him to teach Sunday school, paint you a picture or be a babysitter for your kids. You hire him for the two most important things a manager can do for you - win ballgames and put people in the seats - and he does that better than anyone I've ever known in the history of the game. Nobody is any happier over the job he's doing with Oakland now than

Short should be He's the one who persuaded Finley to hire Martin in the first place. He's also the one who first suggested George Steinbrenner hire Martin after the Rangers fired him in the middle of the 1975 season. Short has a good recollection of both circumstances

"Brad Corbett, who had the Texas Rangers at the time, called me one day during the 1975 season and told me be couldn't take it anymore with Martin and he was going to fire him. Short recalls "I said to him. don't do it, you're crazy. You don't put your finger in he machine when it's running and making

"I thought I had convinced him, but later hat same day, he called me again and said, 'I did it. I fired Martin. I told him that was the most idiotic thing I ever heard of ' Short took that call in his office in Sports Parade Milt Minneapolis. Gabe Paul, then president of the Yankees, happened to be in the office with Short when Corbett called to say he had fired Martin. The Yankees were in town for a series with the Twins. "When Gabe heard Martin had been fired, he said, 'that's the end of Billy Martin. He's been fired by the Twins, Tigers and Rangers and no one else will ever hire him now, Short remembers Paul telling him.

"I said, 'you gotta be kidding," Short goes on. "I told Gabe there'll always be someone in this game to hire a manager like Martin He insisted there was no way in the world anybody would hire him again and I said I'd bet him $500 Martin would be hired by some major-league club within the next 10 days. He jumped at that and we bet $500. 'Gabe and I are very close friends," Short explains. "I have a lot of respect for him and trades. I've learned a lot about baseball from him, but I knew in my heart he was dead wrong about Martin. I told him not only would Billy have another major-league job inside of 10 days, but if he wanted to make another bet Paul pressed him and Short said the next team that would hire Martin would be the "Gabe said I was crazy," Short laughs. "I asked him why he said that and he said because I know Steinbrenner a lot better than you do and he'd never have Martin as his Short proposed another bet. He'd take 10-toodds $5,000 to $500, that Martin would be

Paul said it was a bet. That very same evening, Steinbrenner called Short at home and asked him what he thought about Martin as a manager. Short told Steinbrenner exactly what he thought that Martin was the best manager in the game and he'd be a natural for the Yankees. steinbrenner then signed Martin as his manager nine days later but Short never collected his bet from Paul.

Curiously, Martin didn't jump at the prospect of managing the Yankees. He still vas crushed over being fired by the Rangers. That was when Short got on the phone and talked to him.

"You've dreamed of managing the Yankees all your life," he said to Martin. 'Now you have your chance and you mean to tell me you're going to pass it up. Don't be a

Martin finally agreed and then went through his five-year, on-again, off-again trauma with Steinbrenner. After he left the Yankees for the second time at the end of 1979. Martin was in no hurry to manage again. His $150,000-a-year contract still had two years to run and he could take it easy if But Finley was looking for a new manager at Oakland. "He thought he could get Martin cheap, for maybe $40,000 a year, and that Steinbrenner would pay the rest, but I knew he had no chance of doing that," Short says, "Finley talked to Martin's agent, Doug Newton, and then Newton called me. He said, 'it looks like the whole thing is off. Finley isn't willing to pay Martin's full salary and Steinbrenner won't let Billy go unless Finley does."

Short got on the phone again, this time with "I said to Finley, 'I happen to know that nobody in baseball likes you, particularly Steinbrenner," Short remembers his conversation. "'He doesn't like you for what you did o him with Dick Williams. There's no way teinbrenner will ever pay part of Martin's

Q.Could you please tell me how many different uniforms the Pittsburgh Pirates have and how they decide which to wear for each game? — Kevin Todd, Hanover, Ind.
The Pirates have three complete sets of uniforms — one in jersey and pants interchangeably, which gives them nine pos-sible color combinations, and they have used them all. The only restriction is that the white jerseys are used only for home games, in which they also use gold and black jerseys when the whim dictates. The decision on which color combo they'll use on any given day is made, according to Pirates'

LTM presents O'Neill play

by BETTY RYDER
Focus Editor
"A Touch of the Poet," the last full-length play Eugene O'Neill wrote before his death and intended to be part of a cycle (trilogy), will be presented May 2, 8 and 9 at 8:30 p.m. at East presented by the Little Theatre of Manchester, May 2, 8, and 9 at 8:30 p.m. at East Catholic High School in Manchester. It takes place in New England in 1828 and is rich in the warmth and reality of the Irish-American character and culture of that time. The director, Betty Spalla, has chosen an "open set" and innovative staging to provide mood for the play's evocative images and style. Opening night is the culmination of several weeks of casting, rehearsals, set design and construction costume design, set decor, lights

Enthusiastic slam bidding

♦ KQ15 ♦ Q1083

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Cavendish Club rubber game are life masters or national champions. We doubt if Larry Rochlin and Eric Spector have ever played any duplicate at all much less any tournament

Not all the players in that bridge.

Larry lives in Paris, but business brings him to New York several times a year and when in New York he is at the club every afternoon and any evening he can get a game. seem to care whether or not they make — he just bids them and hopes for the best.

Larry's preempt is typical of the game. Everyone preempts with any excuse and Eric looked at his three aces and bid the slam. Larry ducked the first diamond and won the continua-tion. Then he cashed dummy's ace of hearts and ran off trumps.

The three-card ending found Larry with K 10 of hearts and deuce of clubs while dummy held the 10 of diamonds and A 7 of clubs.

West held two clubs and the West held two clubs and the high diamond while East held QJ of hearts and a club. Now Larry cashed his king of hearts to squeeze West out of one of his clubs. East had already been forced to come down to one club so Larry discarded dummy's 10 of diamonds and made his slam with dummy's ace and seven of clubs.
