Ex-director claims racism played role in CDBG vote. By PAUL HENDRIE, Herald Reporter. Former Manchester Town Director Betty Intagliata testified in U.S. District Court today that racism was a major factor in the movement opposing Manchester's participation in the federal Community Development Block Grant program. "I would have to say that based on public statements made throughout the controversy, it (racism) was one of the significant factors," said Mrs. Intagliata. Mrs. Intagliata was called as a plaintiff's witness in the federal discrimination lawsuit against the town. Although the plaintiffs earlier rested their case, defense attorneys agreed to allow the plaintiffs to call Mrs. Intagliata today because she had just returned from vacation. The federal government and three low-income Manchester residents charged the town withdrew from the CDBG program because of racial prejudice. AID helps make Egyptian fatcats fatter

WASHINGTON — Salah Tarouty is a prominent member of the Egyptian parliament, a wealthy lawyer and the owner of much valuable real estate. He is also recipient of a low-interest $30,000 loan from the U.S. Agency for International Development to buy equipment for a Wimpy fast-food restaurant he is building.

Katouh Hassan made a fortune as an Egyptian government contractor, and is now getting into the hotel business by building the luxury-class Uncle Sam Hotel. The name is appropriate: Hassan got a $1 million AID loan to buy elevators, furniture and other supplies for his hotel.

Kamal Hanna, a millionaire who owns 10 companies and part of two Egyptian banks, hid AID for a $1 million loan to buy construction equipment — most of which he resold to the Egyptian government at an undisclosed profit.

Why is a U.S. agency, whose purpose is to help the world's needy, laying out the American taxpayers' money for the benefit of Paroloukian fatcats along the Nile? The answer seems to be that this is the price successive administrations have felt they had to pay to "buy" peace between Israel and Egypt.

When Henry Kissinger sweetened the peace pot for Anwar Sadat in 1975 with a promise of U.S. aid, Kissinger promised $750 million a year to Egypt. How he came up with that amount is anyone's guess. A Senate source told my reporter John Dillon that the then-secretary of state pulled the $750 million figure "out of a hat."

Jack Anderson
Washington Merry-Go-Round

The result was that AID had to scramble to find ways to spend the money Egypt had been promised. "It was more money than they had projects down the line for," said the Senate insider.

In fact, the amount of economic assistance going to Egypt is now running over $1 billion a year. If the agency had used its usual criteria and getting only about $200 million a year. But because of the link between AID and the peace process, Egypt's AID program is not typical at all.

The commitment to peace is worthy undertaking, and certainly less costly than a resumption of hostilities between Israel and Egypt would be. But if the American taxpayers are bearing the cost of the peacekeeping effort, they are at least entitled to feel that their money is being properly spent.

Unfortunately, as my roving correspondent Peter Grant found during a month's investigation in Egypt, the AID program is floundering in a morass of waste, corruption and bureaucratic incompetence.

With American blessings, President Sadat has been trying to encourage a rebirth of private business, which all but died out during the socialist fervor of Gamal Abdel Nasser's regime. AID has been pumping hundreds of millions of dollars into this private sector renaissance.

"Only private businessmen can provide the investment and jobs Egypt so desperately needs," explained one U.S. embassy official, adding: "It also makes it harder to turn the clock back to socialism."

But Grant found that in practice, AID programs seem to be doing little more than making rich Egyptians richer. Many of the low-interest loans produced no new jobs, and most have gone to millionaires already well established in the Egyptian ruling elite.

For example, AID officials estimate that about 70 percent of the $100 million a year available for low-interest loans has gone to Egyptian importers. The agency explains that this helps the economy by making hard-to-get items available for Egyptian businessmen. But, in fact, Grant found, the goods were usually resold, not to other businessmen, but to the government, which already had access to the same goods. The importers, of course, made a fat profit on the resale.

While the corporate fatcats are getting fatter on AID's loan diet, the lean and hungry bureaucrats are also stealing a few scraps. Because the civil service is used as an unemployment cure, each government ministry has about five times as many employees as it really needs. Salaries are ridiculously low, and many officials make up for this with the time-honored extraction of

Start of a bitter campaign

WASHINGTON (NEA) — "Terry Dolan, you're a liar." That not-so-subtle message is at the heart of a series of campaign advertisements being aimed at voters in Maryland, Oklahoma and Massachusetts. The appearance of these ads a full year and a half before the 1982 congressional elections may well be a harbinger of the most vicious campaign in recent political history.

Who is Terry Dolan? An who is saying such nasty things about him? Dolan is the chairman of the 6-year-old National Conservative Political Action Committee, the principal New Right organization dedicated to defending liberal members of the House and Senate.

NCPAC (pronounced "nik-pak") was extremely effective in 1980, largely as a result of its massive advertising campaigns against certain liberal senators. Many of the conservative Republicans elected to the Senate last year were beneficiaries of campaigns financed and directed by NCPAC.

NCPAC is already at work on 1982, having so far targeted three Democratic legislators for defeat and launched advertising efforts against them. The three are Sen. Paul Sarbanes of Maryland, Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and Rep. Jim Jones of Oklahoma. The hard-hitting ads reflect the proven strategy of allowing Republican candidates to take the high road while the "independent" NCPAC does the mudslinging.

In 1979 and 1980, NCPAC's viciousness caught its opponents by surprise. But the time the Democrats say that they are prepared to fight fire with fire. Among the new groups that have already come out swinging are Democrats for the 80s which was launched by establishment Democrats such as former party Chairman Robert Strauss and PROPAC, and effort by members of liberal and labor groups.

It appears that part of the strategy of these groups is to make NCPAC and its chairman the issue. In radio spots and newspaper ads, both organizations have emphasized Dolan's statement that "a group like ours can lie through its teeth and the candidate it helps stays clean." The message to voters is clear: Don't believe what NCPAC says.

Take, for instance, the spot that Democrats for the 80s is running on radio stations all over Maryland. The ad was intended to counter a NCPAC spot labeling Sarbanes as the biggest spender in the Senate. "In the summer of 1979," begins the commercial, "an extremist right-wing organization calling itself NCPAC accused a United States senator of cotting to increase his own salary. In fact, he voted against it." The spot ends with the statement: "So, Terry Dolan, if you're listening... we're going to fight your lies and distortions with a political tactic that you will find amazing. It's called the truth."

As for Kennedy, Dolan says that the Massachusetts senator is the liberal that every conservative campaign is mandatory for any organization such as NCPAC.

An editorial Heavy tax burden just gets heavier

It should come as no surprise that the burden on American taxpayers continues to get heavier.

One yardstick is that the 1981 "Tax Freedom Day" (May 10) came six days later than last year.

This, according to the Tax Foundation, Washington-based research organization, means that the average taxpayer if he applied all earnings to fulfilling his federal-state-local tax obligation would have finished the task by the 10th of May.

And after that he could "start working for himself."

Tax Freedom Day has crept (sometimes galloped) deeper into the calendar during the past 50 years. The date was Feb 14 in 1930, said the Foundation; March 9, 1940; April 4, 1950; April 18, 1960; April 28, 1970; and May 4, 1980 (same as for 1979).

Rep. James M. Collins, R-Tex., had some things to say about "Tax servitude" in a short speech in Congress.

We remember with compassion the serfs of the Middle Ages," he said. "They had to serve their masters for three months out of each year, which represented slave taxation. The serf worked his servitude until March 31.

"How we wish (today) that our taxes were paid by March 31. An every year it gets worse...."

Another Tax Foundation study breaks down the "average eight-hour work day" into segments required to pay the various basic taxes:

Taxes, 2 hours 49 minutes; housing and household operations, 1 hour and 28 minutes; food and beverages, 1 hour and 4 minutes; transportation, 43 minutes; medical, 29 minutes; clothing 22 minutes; recreation, 19 minutes; all others, 46 minutes.

Any way you figure it, taxes and inflation are a difficult combination to handle. One serious part of the squeeze is that too little money is left for business and industry to provide capital for new machinery and expansion, so vital to generating jobs and payrolls.

Collins told U.S. representatives the average age of equipment in this country is 17 years, compared with only 10 year in Japan.

Economy, efficiency, and elimination of waste and duplication should be watchwords in holding in line the taxes, not only in the federal government but at state and local levels as well.

Setting the record straight

To the editor:

It is time to set the record straight! The need for this is apparent from the unprofessional remarks about "spoiled brats" made at the May 14 Coventry Town Council meeting.

Many sincere people are working hard to settle once and for all the legality of a referendum to decide the annual town budget. Out town charter, the laws which were chosen by the people of Coventry to govern their town, has no such provision. While the town attorney has given a different opinion, it is only his opinion and not the law.

The political leaders must understand and respect the laws and rules that govern all of us. In Coventry, it is our town charter and Robert's Rules of Order. No one is above the law. Rules must be followed.

even when an individual or group would prefer to see things done differently. When enough people want to do things differently, they will prevail by changing the law.

I resent the statement that those of us who care enough about this issue to see it resolved instead of continuing to fester, are acting like a bunch of "spoiled brats."

I especially resent this comment in light of the fact the man who made it did not attend the annual town meeting, a meeting which was conducted with the utmost dignity and according to the charter and Robert's Rules of Order. Nor, apparently, did he seek out any information from anyone directly involved in this endeavor so that he might clearly understand the motives and the issue.

I also take exception to comments that town meetings are dominated by a few very intelligent, vocal individuals. Are the persons implying that the people who choose not to attend or not to speak are not intelligent? Or are they implying that only unintelligent people should speak at the public meetings?

The fact is that all citizens have the right and responsibility to attend town meetings and to vote. They also have the right of free speech. Because no one can force anyone to be present at a meeting or in a booth, the voice of the majority is "present and voting" ultimately dominates.

That is what Democracy is all about.

Suzanne Johnson, Coventry.

Negative view greets newest revenue plan

HARTFORD (UPI) — A $2.98 billion spending program and accompanying $7.5 billion tax package for Connecticut's upcoming fiscal year has been met with quick and negative reaction.

O'Neill called the tax and spending bills he signed Monday "appropriate" and "proper," but argued that the tax package was "representing small businesses and the courts, a surcharge on motor vehicle violations and an adjustment to raise the corporation tax from 9.1 percent to 10 percent."

The tax bill will require thousands of merchants and professionals who gross at least $50,000 a year to pay a 5 percent tax on their net income for the state during fiscal 1981-82.

Leon Lemaire, president of the Connecticut Small Business Federation, said the governor had "a tiger by the tail and doesn't realize it" in approving the new taxes on businesses.

Lemaire predicted fierce reaction from the thousands of small businesses to be taxed, charging that lawmakers were unaware of what they had done.

He said the unincorporated business tax included in the plan was engineered by income tax proponents such as Sen. Audrey Beck, D-Mansfield, and Rep. Irving Slobberg, D-New Haven, and was the first step in that direction.

The 3,000-member Connecticut Society of Certified Public Accountants said the unincorporated business tax was an outright income tax "no matter what other title it may be given."

Society President Joseph Germain said the tax, designed to raise $40 million, was "totally discriminatory" and will be passed on to our citizens in the form of higher prices for goods and services.

Germain said many lawmakers failed to realize the "negative impact" of their action in approving the tax that goes into effect July 1.

He said thousands of small businesses were unaware they will be required to pay one half of what they will owe the state by July 15.

The tax will impose a 5 percent levy on net income of any business that grosses $50,000 or more. The first $15,000, or 50 percent, of net income, whichever is greater, would be exempt.

The package signed by O'Neill also called for raising $18 million by imposing a new incorporated business tax of 5 percent on 50 percent of net income, and on the salaries paid to corporate officers.

Also signed into law was an increase from 8 percent to 9 percent the gross earnings tax paid by telephone companies and cable television companies to raise $11.4 million.

Alfred Van Sinderen, president of Southern New England Telephone Co., called the increase a "hidden tax" which will have ratepayers facing higher telephone bills.

Van Sinderen said his firm was the most over-taxed company in Connecticut, but has put off "for now" a suit challenging the increase as unfair and unconstitutional.

Senate Minority Leader George Gunther, R-Stratford, said the signing of the spending program, which is 9 percent higher than the current year's budget, depicted "a failure of Democratic leadership."

Gunther said the new spending program and a

O'Neill signs budget into law

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. William O'Neill says the $7.2 billion tax package he approved to balance Connecticut's next budget will be the last dose of new taxes the state will have to swallow in 1981.

O'Neill, who signed the $2.98 billion budget and tax package for fiscal 1981-82 into law Monday, warned the state will face an "extremely difficult time in the fall" when the full impact of federal budget cuts are felt.

But he vowed the taxpayer wouldn't have to make up the difference.

"We shall not increase taxes" to compensate for the Reagan administration cuts, he said. "We will eliminate programs if the federal dollars are eliminated to the state of Connecticut."

O'Neill estimated the Legislature would have to trim some $80 million to $100 million in spending during a special legislative session expected to be called this fall to deal with the federal cuts.

The tax package signed Monday brought to about $115 million the total of new taxes and fees approved by the Legislature and signed by the governor this year. The levies range from increased tolls to higher corporation taxes and a tax on unincorporated firms.

O'Neill said the state managed "to hold the line" on spending, with the 1981-82 budget representing a 9 percent increase over the $2.7 billion budget for the current fiscal year.

O'Neill said the budget was "finely balanced, finely tuned."

Legislative Republicans, however, charged spending cuts made in the budget were "cosmetic" and that the Democratic governor and Democratic legislative leaders had failed to meet public demand for lower spending and taxes.

A $2.985 billion appropriations bill passed both chambers last month and arrived on O'Neill's desk last Tuesday. Under law, the governor has five working days to sign or veto the spending bill or it automatically goes into law.

Democratic leaders managed to push the $7.2 billion tax package through the Legislature last Wednesday after weeks of struggle and O'Neill's threat to veto the appropriations bill if there was not a tax package to balance the budget.

The compromise tax bill was hammered out by a six-member committee on conference called to break a House-Senate stalemate. The main concession to dissident House Democrats was an extra $20 million in cuts.

O'Neill said his administration would "do our best" to implement the extra cuts.

The cornerstone of the $7.2 billion tax package is a 5 percent tax on the net income of unincorporated businesses grossing more than $50,000, expected to raise $30 million.

O'Neill, who originally called for a 10 percent tax on unincorporated business, defended the tax, which many have called a selective income tax.

"I think it is appropriate. I think it is proper. I think it is right," he said.

Minority Republicans did not waste any time cutting into the budget.

Just Ask
Murray Olderman

Q. What are your feelings about so many spitballs being thrown? Is it true that almost every pitcher on the Oakland staff throws a spitball? Should it be outlawed? — Harry Silver, Alameda, Calif.

A. There would be naught to think that pitchers don't 'load' up occasionally. But the point everybody misses is that the man on the mound still has to get the ball over the plate with some velocity on it. I think the specter of the spitball is more effective than the actual delivery. Some batters get freaked out when they suspect a pitcher throwing it. It's almost impossible to keep a pitcher from getting moisture on the ball if he wants to. But let's not make it legal. And above all, prevent any scuffing of the ball, which I think is more heinous. Oh yes, Oakland — there's a wily pitching mentor named Art Fowler, who has been known to teach his staff a few tricks. But most of the A's hurlers have enough stuff to get by without doctoring the ball.
