State Rep. Michael Heifgott

NEW HAVEN — "Adaptive Re-use: Opportunities for Housing," the subject of a June 25 conference at Yale University, New Haven, co-sponsored by the Connecticut Trust for Historic Preservation, Tri-State Regional Planning Commission, Connecticut Department of Housing and the Connecticut Historical Commission.

Experts from throughout the Northeast will examine the step-by-step process of initiating, planning and financing the re-use of older, underutilized buildings for new, economically viable uses.

Conference speaker Mel Gamzon, principal and urban real estate economist with Economics Research Associates, "Urban Focus" columnist for New England Real Estate Investor, and coauthor with the Urban Land Institute of a book entitled "Adaptive Use: Development Economics, Process and Profiles," will discuss market and site evaluations.

"For the development community," says Gamzon, "the rising costs of new construction, the decreasing availability of buildable sites, fewer and fewer large-scale development ventures in both urban and suburban markets and increased governmental constraints on new construction have really forced it to consider the built environment as a potential viable investment alternative. It is the developer who has imagination and courage who will reap the profits of rehabilitating older buildings in the future."

In the area of adaptive re-use, Gamzon has participated in studies to determine re-use potentials for the 150-acre Charlestown shipyard in Boston, and the 300,000 squarefoot, multi-story industrial complex in the Baltimore, Maryland, waterfront. Gamzon is currently serving as the development consultant for the re-use of the 17th century Cheney Mill complex in Manchester.

Israel rejects criticism

By United Press International
Israel today rejected President Reagan's charges that using U.S.-made aircraft to destroy Iraq's nuclear reactor violated an agreement they would be used only for self-defense, saying only Israel would decide how to defend their country.

Further cutoffs unlikely

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's surprise decision to withhold shipment of four F-16 fighter-bombers to Israel is unlikely to lead to a further cutoff of U.S. arms, administration sources say.

Beer shortage is possible

MANCHESTER — What began Wednesday morning as a strike at a Manchester beer distributor has now become, in effect, a lockout at five area beer distributors.

Reaction cautious to jet suspension

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On Capitol Hill, reaction to President Reagan's suspension of the delivery of F-16 fighters to Israel was measured as the administration's own delicate response to Israel's air strike against Iraq.

Union backing motorcycle unit

MANCHESTER — Without opposition from its disgruntled union, the Police Department in mid-August plans to begin a three-unit motorcycle patrol.

The town's decision to spend $15,500 in federal Revenue Sharing funds on the motorcycle unit appears to sit well with the union, perhaps because municipal tax dollars are not involved.

The union, Local 1495 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, last winter opposed large equipment purchases at a time when it claimed the Police Department was dangerously understaffed.

Strikeout victim

Only one pitch working

Campbell to rescue of Tanana for Sox

SEATTLE (UPI) — Boston reliever Bill Campbell had only one pitch working for him Wednesday night, but he couldn't have been happier. The pitch was a fastball, once the veteran right-hander's best pitch but which has faded him over the past three seasons because of arm woes. But with the fastball burning again, Campbell mailed home Frank Tanana's third victory in a row as the Red Sox beat the Seattle Mariners 4-2.

Palmer not ready for bullpen

NEW YORK (UPI) — Earl Weaver's voice generally rises when he talks about Jim Palmer. He gets a little emotional. More so than usual. "He's one of the best pitchers in the game today — still," the Baltimore manager says about his good-looking, 35-year-old three-time Cy Young Award winner, putting extra emphasis on the word "still."

Rose not worried about season ending

By Mike Tully
UPI Sports Writer

In a normal season, Pete Rose would need only a few more games to make it to the 3,000 hit mark, the most in the NL. Unfortunately, this is far from a normal season, and a strike could interrupt things after tonight's games. "I don't worry about it," Rose said Wednesday night after tying Musial's record at 3,630 with a single off Nolan Ryan in the first inning of the Philadelphia Phillies' 5-4 victory over the Houston Astros.

Jackson unused; Dank skein ends

CHICAGO (UPI) — In most seasons, Reggie Jackson would have been called upon to pinch hit in a game-winning situation for the New York Yankees, but 1981 is a different year.

Jackson, batting only 199, rode the bench in the ninth inning when the Yankees were rising up against the Chicago White Sox Wednesday night. That sour fell one run short as the White Sox held on for a 6-5 victory, snapping the Yankees' nine-game winning streak.

Not feeling for Carpenter

MONTREAL (UPI) — For Dale Hawerchuk, being selected first in the National Hockey League's entry draft was a dream come true, but for third pick Bobby Carpenter the draft was a rude awakening.

"It's been my dream all my life to get into pro hockey," he said. "I'm not thinking about returning to junior. I want to go to camp and meet the Jacks."

Hartford Whalers, who had the fourth pick. But the Washington Capitals swapped picks with Colorado, giving them the third pick instead of fifth, and they promptly made Carpenter the highest-picked American or high school player ever drafted.

Father stormed out of meeting

Carpenter said he was happy to be drafted by Winnipeg, but that he would have been equally satisfied no matter which team chose him.

Cooney was also named to the All-State team in Class LL in '81. Greg Shriver and Jeff Fields of the 19-6 golf squad received all-league honors along with Andy Brown in boys' tennis.

My one goal...give my all

Francis, a 5-foot-11 center, collected 60 points in 64 games with the Greyhounds last season. He was one of nine players drafted by the Whalers, who had been expected to take Bobby Carpenter, a center, at their No. 1 draft.

Finally sought out a clinic, turned through testing with electronic equipment. I didn't think I could concentrate and had mental fatigue when I went in, but after six sessions, I couldn't believe the results. Just to go through one day without a headache was a big accomplishment for me. I have tapes which teach me to control tension and relax it. Currently, I have gone 50 to 60 days without a headache," Turcotte said.

Explaining biofeedback, Richard Goldwasser, director of a biofeedback clinic in Manchester, said, "Biofeedback is based on the realization that 'feedback,' or information that enables each and everyone of us to learn to control our bodies. bio psychosomatic illnesses such as migraine headache, essential hypertension and a host of other stress-related problems.

Turcotte, who is employed in the Maintenance Department at the Manchester Post Office, is thoroughly convinced biofeedback helped him. "Even when I feel a headache coming on, I can listen to a tape, and at times, I've even talked myself out of one. For a while, I slacked off to see just what I could accomplish myself, and I've been pleased with the results," he said.

Another firm believer in the biofeedback method is Chris Cologne, a confidential secretary for the Associated Press in Hartford. "I was edgy, just couldn't seem to relax," she said. "Finally I started the series of sessions and have noticed a remarkable difference in my attitudes."

Summing up the program, Goldwasser said, "Biofeedback is by no means a cure-all but, if it is appropriate for your particular illness, you'll be able to measure positive changes within the first month of training."

Biofeedback: What is it? Does it help?

Roger Turcotte had been suffering with headaches for more than 10 years, off and on seven days a week. He had been using tranquilizers, had skull X-rays, and doctors could find nothing wrong. It was at the suggestion of his doctor that he turned to biofeedback.

Manchester High students Males complete nurses' aide program

By Nancy Thompson
Herald Reporter

Mike Makulis and Doug O'Brien weren't the only boys to show up last fall in Room 127 of Manchester High School, home of the nurses' aide training program.

They are the only ones who stayed.

The other boys were sent to Room 127 that first day of class by a scheduling error that mistakenly placed two classes in the same room at the same time. They left as soon as they learned the correct location.

Makulis and O'Brien came to the class because of their interest in the health care field, particularly nursing. They endured the early hours and earned the acceptance of their female colleagues to become the first males ever to complete the nurses' aide program at MHS.

"I can't say they made it easier, but they did make things more interesting and more fun," teacher, Marion Hill said of her first male students.

The class was also beneficial for the boys, in terms of school, work experience and future plans. Both have been hired by the hospital to work full-time after graduation and both plan to continue their schooling, eventually earning degrees in nursing and specializing within an area of nursing.

"It (the training program) is a lot like a test for the field," O'Brien said. "If I went to college for three years and then started working and didn't like it, it'd be three years wasted. This way I know already."

Both Makulis and O'Brien had an idea that they would like nursing work before they ever entered the nursing aide class. Both had worked part-time at Manchester Memorial Hospital at after-school jobs.

Makulis heard about the nurses' aide program at MHS through nurses he worked with at the hospital. He mentioned it to O'Brien, who agreed that it sounded interesting and like a good step into the health care field.

Makulis signed up for the aide training course with no problems, but O'Brien ran into a guidance counselor who thought his choice of classes was rather odd.

"My counselor was negative about it," O'Brien said. "She kept asking, 'Are you sure?' Have you talked this over with your parents?" She thought I was kind of strange.

As it happened, "My parents think it's neat," O'Brien said.

So the boys joined eight girls in Marion Hill's classroom for nurses' aide training. The first day of class, because of the mix-up in room assignments, most of the girls thought Makulis and O'Brien were just two more boys who wandered into the room by mistake.

"When they realized we were staying, they were in shock," O'Brien said.

"Their mouths kind of dropped to the floor," Makulis added.

They very quickly pulled themselves together and got down to business. Mrs. Hill added "I think the girls were very accepting once you got in there."

When classes started, the curriculum made no changes for the boys. "We've done everything we would have done if they hadn't been here," Mrs. Hill said. "If they're going to be nurses' aides, they have to learn all the same things. There's no difference from the girls."

The class, which is offered as part of the school's cooperative education (COEP) program, is a three-period block of time from 8 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. every morning. From September through October, the students learned basic hospital procedures, such as making beds, washing and feeding patients, taking blood pressure readings and temperatures, and other nursing skills. At the end of October, students went to Manchester Memorial Hospital, where they became familiar with the different departments.

From October through the end of the school year, the students settled into a schedule of working at the hospital from 7 to 9:30 a.m., then returning to school to review what happened and attend their other classes.

The only difference between the course for the girls and the boys was that the boys worked in the emergency room instead of maternity. "And if I had it to do again, I don't think I'd even do that," Mrs. Hill said.

Another difference was in uniforms. The hospital had to order special uniforms for O'Brien and Makulis because they weren't geared to male aides in training. They also had to create a special dressing room for the pair, "in the basement next to the laundry room."

O'Brien noted.

Most of the patients the boys worked with were male patients, they said, who had no objections to having male aides.

"One guy didn't want any other nurses' aide but me," O'Brien said.

"A lot of nurses were really happy to work with us," Makulis said. "I'd encourage more guys to get into the program because the hospital really needs them."

The most difficult part of the class, the boys agreed, was getting up in time to be at the hospital by 7 a.m. for work.

"It's a real sacrifice," Mrs. Hill added. "Most of the time it's dark and cold in the morning when they get up."

The class required other sacrifices from the boys. They had to buy white regulation shoes to wear with their uniforms and cut their hair. In addition, "You have to put a lot more time into it than any other class," O'Brien said.

But it was worth it, he added. Before entering the program, O'Brien planned to become a machinist. Now he wants to be a nurse. Unlike Makulis who plans to be a full-time student at Manchester Community College next year then transfer to a four-year college to get his degree, O'Brien plans to work for a year and take some courses at MCC that he didn't take in high school because, "I never thought I'd be going to college."

O'Brien, who has been in and out of hospitals since he was 6-years-old, said he used to hate hospitals. "It's a lot different being on the nursing side," he said. "I think I can help other patients be more comfortable."

Mrs. Hill commented, "I think it's a needed program. I think it serves a need for the hospital and for the students. I think the students get a good feeling about themselves from it."

The smiles on the boys' faces said it all.

Today's gas heating conserves energy.

To save fuel, modern gas heating systems are engineered with major improvements such as vent dampers and automatic pilotless ignition. In addition, new gas pulse combustion designed equipment can achieve an incredible efficiency rating of 91 to 94%! All these innovative features have made natural gas the most efficient and economical way to heat your home.

But you can be as energy efficient as your gas heating system. A good way to start is by winterizing your home right now, when the weather is warm. For instance, here are some easy but very effective ways to save yourself energy and money during the next heating season:

- Be sure to check and replace your gas furnace filters. Now and periodically during the winter.
- Properly insulate your home. Your gas furnace won't run as often and your energy bill won't be as much.
- Check for cracks around windows and between door frames and walls. Seal them with stripping, rope putty, or caulking.
- During the warm weather months is also the best time to have a CONN SAVE energy audit for only $10. The number to call is 1-800-842-7333.

You and natural gas heat. Just think of all the energy you can save together.

How about you?

MMH picked for program

Recognized for its sophisticated equipment and staff, Manchester Memorial Hospital has been selected by the American College of Sports Medicine as one of the teaching sites for the Northeast District Workshop and Certification Program for Exercise Test Technologists.

This program is being offered by the University of Connecticut School of Medicine in Farmington in conjunction with both Manchester Memorial Hospital and New Britain General Hospital.

According to Stephen Sinatra, M.D., a Manchester cardiologist and an assistant clinical professor at the University of Connecticut School of Medicine, "MMH has been acknowledged as being capable of hosting this workshop, and that is a high compliment to us. It means we have a sophisticated staff and equipment to meet the standards of the American College of Sports Medicine (ACSM)."

Dr. Sinatra, co-director of the workshop along with David H. Carnatione, Ph.D., an Exercise Physiologist and director of Sports and Leisure Studies at the University of Connecticut School of Medicine, contacted ACSM headquarters in Madison, Wisconsin, about the possibility of conducting a certification program in Connecticut. They were assisted in their planning by Gloria Thoresen, R.N., of the Cardiovascular Stress Testing Laboratory at Manchester Memorial Hospital and Linda Hansen, R.N., Assistant to Dr. Carnatione at the University of Connecticut.

After submitting an application, and assembling a teaching faculty of doctors and specialists from Manchester Memorial Hospital, New Britain General Hospital, Hartford Hospital, St. Francis Hospital and Mt. Sinai Hospital, the organizers received word that the ACSM agreed to recognize the certification course.

Being held now through June 19, the program, entitled "Preventive and Rehabilitative Exercise Test Technologist Workshop," includes daily lectures and laboratory practical sessions in Graded Exercise Testing, Physiology, Electrocardiography and Cardiology. Upon completion of the program, the successful in measuring the state of an individual's heart and his capacity for strenuous physical exertion.

In his role as a faculty member, Dr. Sinatra will be discussing risk factors in heart disease, particularly the effects of stress and tension as a coronary risk factor.

Deaf woman dumbfounded by mean con man's game

DEAR ABBY: Last September a man came to my door and asked me if I had anything that needed to be fixed, so I gave him my hearing aid. He said he would bring it back in three days in perfect condition if I would give him $25, so I gave him the cash. Well, I never saw him or my hearing aid after that, and my hearing aid cost me $398 new! I don't know what company he was with or what his name was, as I forgot to ask him. I know it was dumb of me, but he had the nicest smile.

I would like to get my hearing aid back. Answer soon because my husband is sick of yelling at me.

DEAF AS HELL IN INDIANA
DEAR DEAF: With no name, no company, no receipt and no clue as to who the man was, you are out of luck. But you, as an experienced person, might want to consider other trusting souls to check out such characters before handing over anything of value.

DEAR ABBY: Five years ago, I met you and your husband at a dinner party in Tulsa. I was 47, weighed 205 and smoked two packs a day. When I asked if you objected if I smoked during dinner, you said, "You'll do us both a favor if you don't."

I want you to know that I have reformed, but it took some bad news to do it. Two and a half years ago, my doctor found some cancerous tissue on my tongue and he ordered me to quit smoking, lose weight and shape up. Today I'm down to 170, don't smoke and I'm in great shape.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

How did I do it? I took up running. I've put together some suggestions for people who are considering running. You may want to pass them on to your readers:

1. Have a physical examination to see that everything is pumping all right.
2. Get a good pair of shoes. Otherwise, your feet will hate you. A common malady among runners is a black toe, which is caused by a blister developing beneath a toenail that rubs against a poorly fitting shoe.
3. Don't let a pair of cheap socks come between you and your shoes. Buy athletic socks with cushioned soles.
4. Start slowly and work your way up to longer distances.
5. Don't hop in the car and drive home immediately after completing your run. It's as important to warm down as it is to warm up. Walk around a while and do some leg-stretching exercises.

Most of all, don't get discouraged. Your muscles won't always hurt. Warm regards,
LINDSAY ALEXANDER

DEAR ABBY: You recently received a letter from a man who was troubled by being called "Reverend" (which also makes me cringe), and you indicated that his last name should be used with the title. That implies the addition of the last name would make everything fine? Ten lashes with an English grammar book?

Though it is the style among some Protestants to use the title as you say, the word is an adjective, not a noun. To say "Reverend Jones" is the equivalent of addressing a judge as "Honorable Smith." Either "Father" - if the man is a priest - or "Mister" - if a minister - is all that ought to be expected. I do not know what one should call the new Protestant Episcopal priestesses. How about "Mother"?

THE REV. FATHER ANDREW L. JAMES, ATHENS, OHIO
DEAR FATHER: I don't think it would play in Peoria.

School budget cuts set to begin tonight

By Richard Cody Herald Reporter

BOLTON - The Board of Education at a regular meeting tonight will be deciding where to cut almost $25,000 from its budget after receiving recommendations from the board's budget committee as to where the cuts can be made.

Committee member James Marshall said Tuesday that the committee has located areas of cuts. The largest $6,000 in the fuel category, and stressed that all the cuts recommended by the committee will not damage programs for students at any level.

The school board's budget for the fiscal year 1981-82 was approved at the annual town budget meeting May 11. The budget stands at about $1.8 million, a $35,000 reduction in the budget proposed by the administration. The Board of Finance recommended the $35,000 cut to the town meeting, which approved it.

The education board has since been targeting areas in their budget as to which areas may be more susceptible than others to cuts without damaging programs.

The board has anticipated about a $10,000 surplus at recent figuring, and at a meeting May 14 decided to expend part of the surplus, rather than returning it to the town at the end of the present fiscal year.

Last year, the board returned $8,891 to the town as a surplus, but this year's figure is destined to be lower, if not non-existent, depending upon what is left from this year's school board budget on June 30 after the board has adjusted the budget to compensate for the $35,000 cut.

With the surplus, the board purchased a rebuilt lawnmower for $4,700, new spelling and history texts for about $2,000, a piano for $2,000 and two 16 mm projectors costing $1,400. Total expenditures were $13,550, leaving $24,950 to be either made up in surplus or time cuts in the budget. Due to an increase in health insurance, the bottom line the board had to make up was $38,500, rather than the $35,000 cut by the town meeting.

Marshall said the board may consider expanding more of the surplus, and added that the recommended cut in the fuel account is based on belief that oil prices will not rise as much as expected when the budget was originally formulated. This assumption, he said, may be risky.

"We are going to gamble on that area," he said, citing that when the board originally drew up the fuel account, its members expected a more accelerated price escalation on the general oil outlook than is now being predicted by national experts.

Marshall said that, besides the recommended fuel cut, the other large cut proposed is to scrap the in-school suspension program. This high school program provides students who have been suspended with the chance to keep up with their class. The structure of the program is that when a student is expelled, he is brought into school by a staff member while separated from his classmates.

Marshall added that other recommendations generally do not exceed the $500 level, and some facilities the board planned on purchasing may be held off a year.

He explained that "the budget committee has not touched programs (running) for the entire 180 day school year. We made cuts in areas where kids will not get hurt."

The contract will specify that the town will require in the pick-up service, and the contract the selectmen worked on was based on Manchester's contract, Bergen said.

Woodworking class likely

BOLTON - A summer program is being offered in woodworking by staff at the center school, but its existence is pending response from interested parents.

The program is in its preliminary stage, and if response is good, the summer will see its first woodworking program. If the program is successful this summer and is able to fund itself, school officials said the program may be in part funded next year by the Board of Education.

Letters have been distributed to the students to bring home to parents, and their return is requested by officials to see what the interest is on the tuition based plan. Teacher Tom Smith has offered the program at the Grade 5 through 8 level.

Bolton board accepts low floor work bid

BOLTON - The Board of Selectmen last night decided to accept the lower of two bids to refurbish the floor in the Herrick Park Building.

The town recently received two bids for the project, both from Manchester flooring firms. With one bid about half the estimate of the other.

The board decided to accept the bid from John's Floor Covering Inc., and rejected the one from DmC Construction Company Inc. John's Floor Covering said it could accomplish the job for $1,900, while DmC said the job would cost $3,570. The town has been allocating funds for refurbishing the floor since 1978. In 1978, the town allocated $370 for the project, $1,200 in May of 1980 and recently an additional $415 went to the project bringing the total to $1,985.

The floor of the building is 30 feet by 60 feet, and according to the specs of the bid, the rooms where the floor needs to be replaced are main hall, the lavatories and kitchen. The town requested that the floor be covered with 12-inch square tile, either neutral or tan color. The exact color will be decided when the project begins.

The board chose the bid on the lowside pickup contract that will be put out to bid upon completion. Administrator Alan Bergen told the board last night that the contract, when completed by the selectmen, must be approved by the State Department of Environmental Protection before being sent out to bid.

The contract will specify that the town will require in the pick-up service, and the contract the selectmen worked on was based on Manchester's contract, Bergen said.

ANDOVER - June is dog registration month, and licenses can be obtained from the town clerk at the town office building Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Monday evenings from 6 to 8 p.m.

All dogs six months or older must either register or re-register during June in order to avoid a penalty beginning in July.

Licenses for spayed females and neutered males are $3.50, 7.70 for unspayed females and non-neutered males.

Vanderbilt Cup play
By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag
The 1932 Vanderbilt Cup was won by the team of P. Hal Sims, Willard Karn, Harold S. Vanderbilt and Waldemar von Zedwitz.

Waldy, who is now 85 and won the event in 1930, is one of the four of five greatest players of all time. His eyes have made it impossible for him to play serious bridge now. His last great success came in 1970 when he won the world's mixed pair championship with Barbara Brier.

Here is the most important hand in the 1932 Vanderbilt. The other table had finished some time back and it was known to the other players and the press that the Sims team was 310 points behind coming to that board. Sims and Karn had picked up 100 points by beating a four-spade contract two tricks, but Vanderbilt and Zedwitz had to bid and make a game to win the match. They did both.

West led the king of hearts and shifted to a low spade. A trump shift would have cooked Waldy's goose. He played dummy's jack. East took his ace and fed a trump. Waldy thought several minutes and finally won in his hand. He ruffed a heart, played dummy's ace of clubs, ruffed a club, ruffed another heart with dummy's king of trumps, ruffed another club back to his hand, cashed his long trump, and finished dummy with the king of spades and made the final two tricks with dummy's remaining club.
