Baseball faithful say welcome back

By Logan Hobson
UPI Sports Writer
Most baseball fans around the country gleefully embraced their summer pastime, but some, who turned in their season tickets, argued others to do likewise.

Thoughts aplenty

Lon Auster,
Herald Sportswriter
The system is being introduced for the betterment of the owners and players. They know full well without fans would stay away from the ballpark.

Voting questioned

There was many a grumble when Reggie Jackson (190) and Dave Lopes (160) were voted as starters to the All-Star Classic. But that voting was done by the fans.

Reaction Interesting

What also was interesting was fan reaction. They, when the National League was being introduced, properly booed. And somewhat surprisingly when the American League stars were announced they cheered.

'Baseball still best bargain'

Another Expo fan said there was nothing like baseball. "I'm glad to have baseball back," said Dain of Montreal, having baseball back after the 50-day strike was like being reunited with a summer sweetheart.

At Yankee Stadium, there was not one hint of dissent as a crowd of 40,778 turned out for the Yankees-Texas game. In fact, some fans signaled their mood before the game by surging through a subway station on route to the ballpark chanting, "Yankees, Yankees, Yankees."

'Valentine's Day' leads Mets to win

CHICAGO (UPI) - It may have been the second "opening day" of the strike-torn major-league baseball season but for the New York Mets, who suddenly find themselves sharing first place, it was "Valentine's Day."

Ellis Valentine, acquired by the Mets before the start of baseball's 86-day strike, stroked a one-out single that snapped a 2-5 tie and helped carry the Mets to a 7-5, 13-inning triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

For New York, the win meant it shared first place after leaving the first half of the season trailing Philadelphia by 15 games. For Chicago, it was another loss and a position in the basement — the same spot it had occupied all year long.

The Mets took a 4-1 lead in the 11th on former Cub Dave Kingman's long three-run homer, his 15th of the season, tops in the National League.

At San Diego, Ruffino Linares' sacrifice fly in the top of the ninth inning scored Bruce Benedict with two runs.

At Los Angeles, Jerry Reuss buried six shutout innings and the Dodgers struck for four runs in the second inning en route to the victory.

Lot of fresh starts for Zimmer

NEW YORK (UPI) - Some baseball people will tell you this new split season is for the birds. They're not too happy about having to start all over again because they were doing fine before the strike. So was Don Zimmer with his Texas Rangers, only you'll never hear a peep out of him for a perfectly good reason.

Back in 1983, when he was a struggling young infielder in the Brooklyn Dodgers system, his skull was fractured by a pitch and the doctors told him to forget about baseball.

He worked his heart out trying to bring Boston a winner as manager of the Red Sox and he was fired last season. That meant he had to start all over again with the Rangers in 1986. He had them up in the Western Division when the players went out on strike last June 12, and would've preferred seeing the season continue as it was instead of being split. But do you hear him complaining? Never.

Fresh back from the All-Star Game in Cleveland where he served as one of the American League's coaches, Zimmer was on hand at Yankee Stadium Monday night, as optimistic as ever over his Rangers' chances for a second half of the season.

"This is twice now we've opened with the Yankees," he said, laughing over the coincidence. "What luck, isn't it? Beautiful."

The young has discovered that dancing cheek-to-cheek can indeed be heavenly, and many feel there's no better music to sway to than the big band sound of the '30s and '40s. The big band sound is making another comeback and the youngsters "love it," says Ernie Hecker, pictured leading his band at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco. (UPI photo)

Dancing cheek-to-cheek can indeed be heavenly

By Jim Novelle
United Press International

High-pitched trumpet tunes soar to the ceilings of America's ballrooms and concert halls, joined by trombones, saxophones and clarinets.

Down front, couples swing hand-in-hand to the boogie-woogie beat bouncing from the piano and drums as the rest of the throng sways in tempo.

It's 1981, not '41. The dancers are in their 20s and 30s, not 50s or 60s. The music is a resurgence in a sense that the rest of the business is not showing a growth pattern the way we are, said Hutchinson. "Rock and roll is not that healthy except for a half-dozen acts," Bourgeois said. "I don't know if it's a resurgence or rather a continuation."

"Sure there are young people. At the Rainbow Room, you'll find a cross-section of high school and college kids, the Beatles are dancing to Benny Goodman, Glenn Miller and Kay Kyser and his College of Musical Knowledge.

Thanks to disco, the young have discovered that dancing cheek-to-cheek can indeed be heavenly and many feel there's no better music to sway to than the big band sound of the '30s and '40s."

"Thanks to the late Stan Kenton and his high school stage band clinics, the resurgence may have to stay."

"There's something infectious about it and the youngsters have not been exposed to it, but when they hear it, they love it," says Ernie Hecker of the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco, one of the last hotel bastions of the big band. Hecker, Wayne Hutchinson of the Willard Alexander Agency in New York, Charles Bourgeois of the Newport Jazz Festival and others all agree — the big band sound is making another comeback and their bookings reflect it.

"We get more calls for big one-nighters than ever before," said Hecker, whose hotel operates a house band. "We do one every year for the Seattle Symphony and go to Los Angeles a half dozen times a year. People are just starved for it."

Hutchinson said his company takes bookings up to a year ahead of time and some of their acts, especially Count Basie, are scheduled that far ahead.

"It's a resurgence in a sense that the rest of the business is not showing a growth pattern the way we are, said Hutchinson. "Rock and roll is not that healthy except for a half-dozen acts," Bourgeois said. "I don't know if it's a resurgence or rather a continuation."

Marco Polo comes back after nearly 700 years

PEKING (UPI) — It took nearly 700 years but Marco Polo is back. The original Marco Polo was a 17-year-old Italian from Venice who left home in 1271 with his merchant father and uncle on a 24-year journey to China and other parts of the world that were virtually unknown to Europeans at the time.

The 20th century Marco Polo is 28-year-old American actor Ken Marshall, who stars in a $30 million movie now being filmed in China.

"Marco Polo" is the result of an international project that includes Italian, American, Chinese and Japanese participants. Italian director Giuliano Mantalò requires teams of translators to communicate his instructions.

Italy's RAI-TV is filming the eight-hour movie but American audiences will see it in four installments on NBC in May 1982.

The Chinese film co-production company is providing sets, Chinese actors and other essential help in what is believed to be the first large-scale commercial film project in China.

Some financing for the project comes from Japan's Denzai company, but 90 percent is being provided by the Procter and Gamble Co.

Marshall was a relative unknown to American audiences before being chosen for the leading part in "Marco Polo," which also features Bert Lancaster, Ann Bancro, Leonard Nimoy and John Hougen in supporting roles.

In that respect, the production is similar to "Sopranos," where an unknown, Christopher Reeves, played the star role with backup from superstar Marlon Brando.

But sponsors of "Marco" are clearly hoping the film will follow in the footsteps of another made-for-television extravaganza, "Shogun."

The 13th century Marco Polo made no mention of the Great Wall in his memoirs, but his negligence is more than compensated for by Marshall's enthusiasm after shooting atop the wall. "I just couldn't believe it," said Marshall, a native of St. Joseph, Mich., and a graduate of the University of Michigan.

"We were up on the wall at one point with ponies riding through the archedways. It was just incredible. I couldn't believe those guys carried all those stoness up there."

Marshall, whose blood had blue eyes like his the-all-American look if not the all-Italian look, starred as Tony in the Broadway revival of "West Side Story" and also starred with Anthony Hopkins in the Broadway version of "Shakespeare: The Tempest."

Marshall is good-natured about the fact his name is not exactly a household word — "I'm no Charlton Heston," he jokes.

Patience attention to detail and elaborate costuming promise to make "Marco Polo" a visual spectacle if nothing else. Costume designer Enrico Sabbatini has created 4,000 costumes to cover the gamut of Marco Polo's stops in Persia, Turkey, the Holy Land, India, Tibet, China and Mongolia.

The costume for Kublai Khan, played by 52-year-old Chinese actor Yang Ruoqing, is worth $100,000 because it is embroidered with real gold fibers, Sabbatini said.

Production of "Marco" started in November 1980 in Venice and soon shifted to Morocco. Although Marco Polo did not pass through Morocco, its geography was judged similar to the Middle East countries where the Italian merchant did travel. Today, however, those countries are too politically un-

Recording club specializes in obscure music

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you were looking for recordings of operas by Gabriel vonWAYLICH, America's most ignored major composer of the 20th century, where would you be most likely to find them?

In the catalog of the Musical Heritage Society, an independent recording club that in 20 years has focused the annually reissues obscure as well as familiar classical music.

The listings are recordings of Von Waylisch's "The Hippolytus" by the Budapest National Opera and "Les Indes Noires" by the San Diego Symphony, two of the 14 operas composed by the Hungarian-born New Yorker before his death at 30 in 1909. These are recordings of concert performances because only one of Von Waylisch's complex-scored operas requiring over-size orchestras ever has been staged.

Such rarities are common among the 2,500 listings in the catalog. The club is regarded as the bible of the nation's hard-core classical music lovers. MHS operates as a club with no dues and no annual minimum order requirement. It mails its members two or three new recordings every three weeks unless the member opts not to accept certain issues in advance.

The membership price for these LP stereo disks is $4.45 and stereo cassettes are available for $4.95, less than the non-membership price. Membership fluctuates between 70,000 and 100,000 according to Albert Nisman, who bought the Tinton Falls, N.J., organization five years ago.

"In spite of the escalation of all costs involved in producing records — including the cost of raw materials — we are able to offer a low cost product mainly because of computer technology," Nisman said. "We even design our record jackets and catalog in house. It makes it possible to keep a low price."

Nisman is the co-founder of International Computer Sciences Inc., which had MIS as one of its clients. The Society was founded in 1960 by Dr. Mischa Wald, a former Westminister Records executive, as a baroque music club. When Naida, who was not a businessman, died, Nisman took over the operation.

"I had no formal background in music, but I wanted to preserve the broad-cast catalog Dr. Naida had built up," said Nisman over lunch with his son, Jeffrey, during a business trip to Manhattan.

"We spent three years updating the catalog, getting rid of vanity recordings and recordings that seemed dated. We reduced the listings from 3,000 to 2,500 and now generally have an inventory of 700,000 records in the warehouse."

Jeffrey, a professional guitarist and graduate of New York University, is Nisman's director of production. The club's offices are in Manhattan. Nisman is general manager of the organization in charge of advertising and promotion.

"My other handles royalties. MHS grossed $4.3 million last year."

"Quality control is our major concern," Jeffrey explained. "We've gone through about every recording plant in the country and now about 90 percent of our titles are done at small plant in New Jersey."

"We listen to one out of every 100 records pressed to be sure that the quality is not diminishing. You can only make a certain amount of copies out of one cast because the stamper has a limited life. We won't use a stamper for more than 2,000 records."

"The Nismans recently went into the retail market catalog. The 'Fairly Queen' recorded by the New York Ensemble for early tenors. Schumann's 'Spanish Love Song' recorded by the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center, and 'The Great Rivals: Mozart and Salieri' recorded by the Austrian Tonkünstler Orchestra in Vienna."

"I feel very strongly that we should record as many fine American artists as possible, but we are not tapes from all over the world and my father and I go to England, France and Germany about three times a year to look for new material," said Jeffrey. "American artists are in a 'Catch 22' situation because no major record company will record them unless they already have been recorded."

About 25 percent of MHS recordings are originated by the club and most of these are by American music organizations and artists, including those sponsored by the Young Concert Artists organization. The Nismans have an agreement to record the Naumburg Music Award winners, such as that of Carol Wincant and Philip Muller, who had an exclusive contract with the Lincoln Center chamber group.

Macau (our spelling is Macao, pronounced 'Macow'), has recently issued its 100 pataca gold piece for the Chinese Lunar Year of the Monkey. It is the 100th issue of the Macao gold piece series. The book "Modern Gold Coins," received last week from the Gold Institute at Washington, D.C., indicates that there were only six countries that had legal tender gold coins. This went up to 46 countries with 94 issues in 1977, and 21 countries with 170 issues in 1980. Are we eventually getting back to a world-wide gold standard? The institute is plugging for something like that.

The leader in the number of different pieces in 1980 was the Isle of Man with 18, followed by Equatorial Guinea and France with 13 and 10 respectively. The grand total of pieces minted was just over 6 million. South Africa issued 3.67 million, Canada 1.32, and Mexico 0.74.

The star of the gold bullion coins, according to the Institute, was Canada's "Maple Leaf." Canada had increased the mintage over the previous year. Another coin mentioned as among the most popular was the 3000 Australian that showed a koi on a lily of a eucalyptus tree. The study does not mention gold medals such as our Grand and Martin Anderson — only denominated currencies.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Everyone has seen his face, but no one remembers it. They don't remember his name either, and that's just fine with James B. Sikking.

"I avoid the high profile by not soliciting it," he said. "I think you can solicit it or not solicit it. You can solicit it by speaking to the right restaurants, by speaking very loudly — and by hiring a press agent."

The man who has been in more movies and television programs than a satellite has transponder was sitting in a New York restaurant, sipping very softly. The only press agent nearby was a gentleman from NBC, and he was there on behalf of Sikking's latest vehicle, not Sikking himself.

"The vehicle is 'Hill Street Blues,'" the critically acclaimed cop show that Peter Onorati personally rescued from the Nielsen maelstrom before signing his own swan song at NBC.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Everyone has seen his face, but no one remembers it. They don't remember his name either, and that's just fine with James B. Sikking.

"I avoid the high profile by not soliciting it," he said. "I think you can solicit it or not solicit it. You can solicit it by speaking to the right restaurants, by speaking very loudly — and by hiring a press agent."

The man who has been in more movies and television programs than a satellite has transponder was sitting in a New York restaurant, sipping very softly. The only press agent nearby was a gentleman from NBC, and he was there on behalf of Sikking's latest vehicle, not Sikking himself.

"The vehicle is 'Hill Street Blues,'" the critically acclaimed cop show that Peter Onorati personally rescued from the Nielsen maelstrom before signing his own swan song at NBC.

Everybody sees him - nobody knows him

The wisdom of the rescue was proved last week when the show raked up 21 Emmy nominations. Sikking serves the "Hill Street" precinct as Lt. Howard Hunter — the demented and dangerously sincere SWAT team leader — and he's grateful to Silverman because of a career of playing heavies, he finds Howard a delight.

"Howard walks a very fine line and I'm on the thin edge of the wedge," he said. "It's a very difficult and challenging character to play because if I step too much to one side he becomes a buffoon. If I step too much to the other side, he becomes almost a Gestapo officer — a very definite kick-type."

"I like Howard in all of it," Howard, of course, is but he is latest in a long line of roles for Sikking.

He was one of the four vocal Las Vegas singers from whom Robert Redford stole the station in "The Electric Cowboy." He was Donald Sutherland's business partner in "Ordinary People."

He blew up in "Outland," assassinated doves of people in "Point Blank," was a captured cavalry officer in "The Magnificent Seven" and the head of the vice squad in "The New Centurions" and "A Time and Place." He's been dozens of other people in dozens of guest spots on prime-time shows ranging from "Charlie's Angels" to "M.A.S.H."

"I've always played the bad guys," he said with a slight that somehow failed to register as witty: "A dark and lonely job, but somebody has to do it."

Sikking's penchant for going about incognito scarcely matches the image of ego generally applied to the actor, but he said it is precisely because he is an actor that he does not wish to be recognized by fans.

"I wouldn't want to give up my anonymity because it's terrific to be in your car or a restaurant and be an 'observer,'" he said. "That's the real responsibility of an actor."

"But an actor who really, honestly, does not hunger after fame and fortune? The question brought a chuckle.

"I don't bother me that people haven't seen my clothes off," he said. "I don't want it because I've been with people who've had the money and it's a horrible way to live."

"In this business," said Sikking, "you're the worst person, but you don't take yourself seriously — it's important to be committed to what you do. It bothers me when people say, 'take the money and run.' Don't do that folks — it's not good for you."

"All we have to do certain parts of our jobs that we don't like to do, but most of the job is just doing it for the bucks, you're in the wrong job."

Fifteen bottles unsold in glass works project

Fifteen of the reproductions of the Pitkin swirl bottle manufactured in a fundraising project last year remain unsold, a recent inventory has revealed.

In September of last year the Pitkin Glass Works Inc. executive committee voted to have a limited edition flask, a reproduction of the bank made during the early 19th century in Pitkin, Glass Works manufactured to raise money. Proceeds from the sales will be used for the preservation of the Glass Works site at Parker and Putnam streets.

The "Pairpoint Glass Co. of Saguamora, Mass., manufactured the bottles by hand using a dip mold."

Although it was first thought that all the reproductions had been sold within a month after their release, a recent inventory has found there are 15 bottles left. Already collector's items, the bottles will be sold to the first buyers at $25 apiece.

Those interested in purchasing a bottle should contact Richard Carter of the Savings Bank of Manchester.

Administration considering use of preventive jail terms

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Attorney General William French Smith says the White House is considering escalating the war on crime by developing more lenient evidence rules and by permitting the jailing of some suspects before trial.

Both measures, unveiled by Smith Monday in addressing the annual convention of the American Bar Association, would surely draw cries of protest from civil libertarians.

Today, the convention was to hear speeches from Secretary of State Alexander Haig, White House top aide Edwin Meese III and Senate Republican leader Howard Baker of Tennessee.

Each day's activities will include songs, games, crafts, discussions, bible study and refreshments. There will be a special offering each day to help Heifer Project International an organization that gifts developing nations with animals.

Smith said the task force also may propose "an effort in the courts and Congress to modify the exclusionary rule in a landmark legal principle that prevents prosecutors from using evidence against a suspect that was seized illegally.

List planned of disabled

COVENTRY — The human services office is compiling a list of disabled persons who may require assistance in emergency situations. The list will be used by the police and fire departments, along with the civil preparedness director. For example, if the fire department receives a call from someone who lost their home in a disaster where it becomes necessary to move to a safer area.

Rail quality report
HARTFORD (UPI) — The state Department of Environmental Protection forecast unhealthy air quality for today in Bridgeport, Greenwich, Groton, Madison, New Haven and Stratford and moderate air quality for the rest of Connecticut.

Victim named

WORCESTER, Mass. (UPI) — Police Monday released the name of a woman who doused herself with gasoline then set herself afire on a city beach over the weekend.

Heavenly shower visible in region

By United Press International
Astronomers say this week will be a bonanza for stargazers as a meteor shower which, weather permitting, should be visible throughout New England skies the next three nights.

Your Birthdays

Through social contacts, you could be exposed to ideas and concepts which will have a positive effect on your lifestyle in the year following your birthday. However, take care this doesn't turn into all play and no work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your ideas and ideas will be quite imaginative and productive today, but you may not give them a chance to work properly. The patient, stick to the script. Find out more of what is ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail #1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 499, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) You have a good head on your shoulders today and you should come up with several clever ideas on ways to make other money. Unless you wear a patient, however, nothing will come of the SAURITARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) There may be a ton of interesting things to do today. Unfortunately, many will cost money. If you don't have the funds, don't get involved to begin with.

Don't be too cautious!

Here is a hand for our old friend Penultimate Pete, who wears both suspenders and a belt and carries safety pins to be really protected.
