Manchester senators size up chances

Fahey, Zinsser eye Cotter seat

By Paul Hendrie
Herald Reporter

Manchester's two state senators are considering making runs for the U.S. Congressional seat vacated last week by the death of William R. Cotter.

Both East Hartford Democrat Marcella C. Fahey, whose district includes much of Manchester, and Manchester Republican Carl A. Zinsser confirmed Tuesday they are sizing up their chances of going to Washington.

Zinsser stressed that he has made no decision yet, one way or the other, but he revealed he is toying with the idea.

"Let's face it, one of the things you have to do in politics is look ahead," said Zinsser. "You do it when the timing is right. Maybe the timing is right for a Republican from Manchester to represent the First District."

But maybe the timing is not right, either, Zinsser is quick to concede. "Any Republican who is going to run will have to overcome a tremendous disadvantage in Hartford," said Zinsser, pointing to the strong majority of Democratic voters there. "In Hartford and East Hartford, the Democrats could probably run a blank page in the ballot and they would probably win. So, you would have to take a look at the West Hartfords and the Bolton and the other suburbs."

Zinsser said he wouldn't want to run unless he could do it right. "You can't delude yourself," he said. "Any Republican is going to have an uphill battle. So, you have to ask, if you get the nomination, do you have the money to run a credible campaign?

"I wouldn't want to do it unless I could run a first class campaign. I've always insisted in any campaign that I've run in, in having people around me who are no-nonsense people, who are going to tell me when I make a mistake."

Mrs. Fahey said she too is taking a realistic look at her chances.

"I'm seriously considering it," said Mrs. Fahey. "I'm talking to a lot of people and a lot of people have been encouraging me to run. It's a wide open field right now and I think that's very healthy for the Democratic party, that so many people are interested. We all have to look at our viability, our fundraising ability and our strength with the delegates."

"I've been getting good feedback from a good number of people. The chairman east of the river are interested in getting a candidate from this side of the river. I think it would be good to have a candidate from east of the river."

But Mrs. Fahey is not the only interested contender east of the river. Fellow East Hartford Democrats Mayor George A. Dagon and Deputy Majority Leader Timothy J. Moynihan are also jockeying for support.

"I'm in the process of discussing the level of support with my party leaders in East Hartford and with other party leaders," said Moynihan. "I'm looking at support. That's all that counts."

Moynihan said he also is interested in sending a candidate from this side of the river to the Capitol. "One important note," he said. "If two or three candidates being discussed from East Hartford it becomes clear that one candidate will be favored over another, I would respect those wishes. Hopefully, it will be me and I would hope that George Dagon or Marcella Fahey would feel the same way. It would be foolish for three candidates from the same town to oppose each other."

Dagon was not available for comment Tuesday, but virtually every Democratic insider contacted said the East Hartford mayor is always mentioned prominently and is definitely interested.

Dagon is so popular in his hometown that the Republicans could not even come up with a candidate to oppose him in his reelection race this fall.

Here in Manchester, Democratic Chairman Theodore R. Cummings said the local party is just watching and listening for now. Cummings said he has heard from Mrs. Fahey, Secretary of State Barbara Kennedy and state Economic Development Commissioner Edward Stockton.

He said he has read about the interest of other possible contenders — including Dagon, Moynihan, State Sen. William E. Curry of Farmington, State Rep. Richard D. Tulisano of Rocky Hill and State

Sen. Clifton A. Leonhardt of Avon — but he has no new information.

Another local Democratic insider said the two most talked about names are Kennedy and Moynihan, though he said Dagon and Tulisano are also prominently mentioned.

Last week, this same source said Mrs. Kennedy, the daughter of the late state party chief John Bailey, could probably take the nomination with ease, if she wants it.

"But now I'm hearing just about as much for Moynihan as for Kennedy," he said, cautioning that it's still too early to predict the race, because many candidates are "still in a holding action."

"Mrs. Kennedy is interested in succeeding Mr. Cotter, but no final decision has yet been made," her aide Robert Croce said Tuesday. "I can tell you that she has received positive feedback and input from both political and nonpolitical people in the First District and she has contacted certain people in the district for their input. She's assessing those factors and her own strengths in the district."

As a former member of the Hartford City Council, she would have the advantage of being well known in Hartford.

Terrorists plant 2 more bombs

FRANKFURT, West Germany (UPI) — Terrorists planted two bombs today on a rail line supplying the U.S. Air Forces Rhein Main Air Base and the Bader Meinhof terror gang claimed responsibility for an assassination attempt on the commander of the U.S. Army in Europe.

West German officials said the two bombs, which were defused, were designed to disrupt rail transport to the American air base in a fifth attack against Americans or U.S. installations in Europe.

The Reagan administration is considering asking some striking air controllers to return to work if the move is approved by the non-striking controllers who stayed on the job following the Aug. 3 walkout. The Manchester Herald has learned.

The policy under study would allow controllers to be rehired on a selective basis following the expected decertification of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization. (Story on Page 3) Of all the actions under consideration, "it is at the top of the list," a key White House official said of the proposed plan.

since Aug. 31. The discovery of the bombs came one day after an attempt to kill Gen. Frederick J. Kroesen, the commander-in-chief of the U.S. Army in Europe.

The leftist Baader Meinhof gang's Red Army Faction claimed responsibility in a letter to a Frankfurt newspaper for ambushing Kroesen with an anti-tank grenade and small arms fire Tuesday as he drove to work in his armor plated sedan.

In an interview with NBC, Kroesen said he has not ordered special security measures because of the attack against him. "I think we have very good security measures already," he said.

The West German interior minister said terrorists have marked Americans as their main targets and security officials had expected the ambush of Kroesen to be followed by more attacks.

The bombs, with time fuses attached, were in 15-pound fire extinguishers placed on the tracks on a rail line about one mile from the American base, a West German justice spokesman said. They were discovered at 8 a.m. and disarmed about 30 minutes later.

Intelligence agencies have received reports terrorists were planning to disrupt the U.S. Army's two-week annual fall maneuver in Germany that began Monday.

Car flips, blacks out area

The driver of this car escaped serious injury about midnight Tuesday when the vehicle flipped over on Porter Street and skidded into a pole snapping it in half. Police said they have charged Thomas A. Topping, 22, of 2 Steephollow Lane, with driving under the influence of alcohol. He was treated at Manchester Memorial Hospital for a broken forearm. The accident caused a power outage on Porter Street and the surrounding area. Some customers were without electricity for over six hours.

$100 weekly prize

Response overwhelming to Herald Bingo game

The response to the Newspaper Bingo that will start Monday, Sept. 28, in The Manchester Herald has been overwhelming, Herald Publisher Richard M. Diamond said today.

Diamond said since the announcement of the Bingo games was made last week, hundreds of people have already stopped by The Herald office at 16 Brainard Place to pick up their strips of six Bingo cards.

There's no cost to enter and participants may win the weekly prize of $100 — or one of the runner-up prizes of $5.

Anyone wishing to play can pick up a strip at the office any day from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, or Saturday until noon.

The game is simple to play and participants can play it in the comfort of their own home. Each of the six cards on the strip is good for one game per week. Diamond said that over 15,000 strips have been printed and each one is different. One strip is allowed per family on a first-come basis.

On Saturday of each week at least one reader will have all 15 numbers on the card crossed off. Since numbers will be printed vertically each day in The Herald, the top winner will be determined according to the position of the last number he or she crosses off on the card, should there be a tie.

Just to make the game a little more interesting, there will be some skill involved; from time to time a player may have to solve a little problem to figure what some number is. These could be questions such as, "How many legs does an octopus have?" or "What is the square root of nine?"

Full contest rules are appearing daily in The Herald.

News Briefing

Flight successful

ROME, N.Y. (UPI) — A B52G Stratofortress bomber equipped with a maximum 12 cruise missiles performed well during its first flight test for the Strategic Air Command, say officials at Griffiss Air Force Base. A six-man crew from the 416th Bombardment Wing flew the craft to Kentucky and across to Nebraska, where it turned around for the return flight to Griffiss Tuesday afternoon. Lt. Michele Boyd said the 12 cruise missiles, containing a dummy payload, were loaded on the modified aircraft's two external pylons. In addition, eight short-range attack missiles for training were in the B52G's bomb bay. "This is the first flight ever with the twelve missiles," said Ms. Boyd. "There have been numerous test flights with one or two missiles on a pylon, but this is the first with the maximum." Griffiss is the base for the Strategic Air Command to get the cruise missile program, officials said. Ms. Boyd said the nine-hour test flight went "very well."

Union fights censor

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Solidarity demanded government officials today reverse their ban on publication of the union's dramatic call for free trade unions throughout the East Bloc. Tadeusz Mazowiecki, editor-in-chief of Solidarity's weekly "Solidarnosc," told UPI that censors had objected to two separate articles on the explosive proposal that has brought angry condemnations from Moscow. "If they don't change their decision by tomorrow morning, then we will stop the entire press run," he said Tuesday. Solidarnosc has a normal press run of 500,000 and no issue has been lost since its inception. A potential confrontation loomed also as a dispute over management of factories. A meeting Tuesday between union chief Lech Walesa and a parliamentary commission apparently failed to resolve their differences. The official news agency PAP said the commission passed a final version of a draft bill to send to parliament that retains the provision — opposed by Solidarity — that authorizes appoint factory directors. Solidarity wants a national referendum to choose between the government scheme and its own.

Just one vote away

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sandra Day O'Connor — who opposes school busing, favors capital punishment and views abortion as personally "repugnant" — is one vote and an oath away from becoming the Supreme Court's first woman justice. The Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday approved Mrs. O'Connor for confirmation, sending President Reagan's nomination of the 51-year-old conservative to the full Senate. Confirmation seems certain and a vote is expected Monday. She is likely to be sworn in before Oct. 5, the date the Supreme Court reconvenes from its summer recess. "I am very pleased the committee was able to reach a conclusion," Mrs. O'Connor said after the vote. David Gergen, White House director of communications, said Reagan was "delighted" and "is looking forward to a strong vote in the Senate" to confirm her nomination. The committee vote was 17-0 with Sen. Jeremiah Denton, R-R.I., voting "present" instead of "aye." Denton said he was unsatisfied that Mrs. O'Connor's declared personal opposition to abortion will be reflected in her future judicial decisions. Mrs. O'Connor was not forced to answer how she will decide court cases because doing so might disqualify her from acting on them. During a three-day hearing last week, Mrs. O'Connor said she would not have an abortion, but could not comment on those who do. And she said, although abortion is personally "repugnant" to her, she could not oppose it in certain instances, such as when the life of the mother is endangered. "For myself, it (abortion) is simply offensive," she said. "It is repugnant. It is something in which I would not engage."

Everett Raymond Kinstler says, "I feel like the Bert Parks of American portraiture." Kinstler, a New York artist best known for his portraits of the famous from Jimmy Cagney to Jerry Ford, currently is painting Elizabeth Ward, Miss America of 1982. "This is the fourth consecutive year I've done the official portrait," Kinstler told UPI. Kinstler paints the girls in tiara and evening gown — no bathing suits. "This is more a painting of Miss America, rather than a personal painting for the home," he said — sort of a beauty pageant version of a board-room portrait. No sooner does he finish a sitting with Miss Ward Sept. 17 than he's off for Grand Rapids, Mich., and the dedication of the Gerald Ford Presidential Museum. Kinstler did the portrait for that, too — his fifth of the former president.

"I can't do them both," she said while in New York for an appearance on "Good Morning America." America's French chef may be exact about recipes, but she's vague on the specifics of her new job. "We've only just signed the contract," she said. As for Parade's food coverage, she said, "They're beefing it up a lot — it's a lot fuller and more interesting than it used to be." She admitted, "I haven't really seen Parade a great deal. I don't see the Boston Sunday paper's in. We read The New York Times."

Goldwater miffed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Barry Goldwater, Crusty, profane, hobbled by an ailing hip, conservative guru to a generation of New Rightists. Without his failed ideological bid for the presidency in 1964, there might never have been a breeding ground for Ronald Reagan — or, for that matter, Jerry Falwell. Now Goldwater, 72 and miffed at his exclusion from the pathos of "New Right" leaders, is raising Cain with "political preachers" like Falwell. In a speech inserted into the Congressional Record Tuesday, and followed by a news conference, Goldwater, R-Ariz., denounced Moral Majority-style religious groups that inject themselves into politics. He called them "a very serious threat to our liberty." "I have spent quite a number of years carrying the flag of the 'old conservatism' and I can say with conviction that the religious issues of these groups have little or nothing to do with conservative or liberal politics," the Arizona senator said. On abortion, busing, prayer in schools and pornography, Goldwater lines up with the Moral Majority. But, he stressed, "they have no particular bearing upon the future of our country." Lawmakers should not be bothered by single-issue lobbies when national security and economic survival are at stake, he said. Diversity of opinion is what made America great, Goldwater said, unwittingly echoing a series of commercials made by liberal TV producer Norman Lear. Both extolled the Americanism of people linking their eggs cooked differently. "What apparently bothered Goldwater most was the Falwells of the New Right preempting the conservative mantle that Goldwater had to wear through some pretty chilly times after his losing presidential race 17 years ago.

Egypt-Soviet relations close to total break

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Egypt and the Soviet Union were close to a complete breakdown in relations today with the expulsion of the Soviet ambassador and six other Russian diplomats, but Cairo said it does not want to sever all ties. The Egyptian government, retreating against what it said was a Soviet plot against President Sadat, Tuesday ordered expelling expulsions of Soviet diplomats, journalists and technicians and sharply downgraded domestic relations. Egyptian officials said they did not want to break all lines of communication with the Kremlin, despite charges Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Polakov personally directed the plot against Sadat. The officials predicted Moscow would stop short of breaking diplomatic relations with Cairo because it is eager to keep Egypt as a listening post in the Middle East. Polakov and six members of his embassy staff were given 48 hours to leave the country Tuesday after being accused of fomenting civil and religious unrest and recruiting Egyptians as Soviet spies. "The aim was to implement a Soviet design against the regime and the national unity and social peace of the country," the Egyptian Cabinet said in a statement. The Cabinet also ordered the expulsion of a Hungarian Embassy official and two Soviet journalists and cancelled the contracts for all Russian technicians working in the country. In addition, Egypt abolished the military attaché in the embassies of both countries and ordered a cut-back of employees at the Soviet Embassy in Cairo to the same level as the Egyptian Embassy in Moscow. Relations between the Soviet Union and Egypt have been strained since Sadat unceremoniously expelled 17,000 Soviet military personnel in 1972 in anger over Soviet refusal to meet his arms requests. Four years later, he unilaterally revoked a friendship treaty with the Soviets because of their opposition

Castro raps Reagan; U.S. envoy walks out

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — Cuban President Fidel Castro assailed President Ronald Reagan as a "fascist" whose administration "bathed in blood" in a scathing attack that prompted an American diplomat to walk out of an international conference. Castro, in a two-hour speech Tuesday to the Inter-Parliamentary Union, also accused the United States of waging germ warfare against Cuba and strongly suggested the CIA caused an epidemic of "measles" that has killed 157 people. He said the CIA was behind the attack on the U.S. in the 1960s and that the CIA was behind the assassination of Robert Kennedy in 1968. Castro said 157 people, including 99 children — had died in Cuba in an epidemic of dengue fever, a tropical fever carried by mosquitoes. He strongly suggested the CIA was to blame. In calling Reagan a "fascist," Castro blamed Washington for deaths in Angola, El Salvador and Lebanon and said Reagan's administration was "bathed in blood." Castro also accused the Reagan administration of impoverishing the Third World with high interest rates by attracting foreign capital needed for development. "I've been attending these conferences for at least 10 years, and this was a unique, and for the United States delegation, very unpleasant experience," Stafford, the head of a three-man American delegation, said after the speech. Stafford is a member of the organization's decision-making body, sat at the presidential table on the stage of Havana's convention center main hall. He said he would have walked out with Smith if he had been on the floor.

Studio 54 reopens Poison to curtail hunting for ducks

YORK (UPI) — Studio 54, the famous and famous, reopened Tuesday with a lavish light show featuring lightning and thunder. It's a hot, great and crowded, said Mark Fleischman, one of the club's new owners. He and partner Jeffrey London sent 12,000 invitations for the reopening, but could admit only about 5,000 people. SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Seventeen states in the western half of the country may have to cancel or curtail this year's duck hunting season because waterfowl in Montana have become contaminated with the highly toxic insecticide endrin. Endrin in high concentrations has been fatal to humans. It causes damage to the central nervous system and brain. In low concentrations, it has caused birth defects in guinea pigs. Lonnie Schroeder, wildlife biologist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, said Tuesday fish and game officials in both the central and Pacific migratory flyways were awaiting the results of tests to determine the extent of the poisoning. These tests should be completed by Sept. 25 — eight days before the duck season is scheduled to open. Schroeder said endrin was sprayed over 125,000 acres of winter wheat near Miles City, Mont., that had been infested by army cutworms. When large numbers of fish began to die, officials became concerned the insecticide had contaminated wildlife. "The Environmental Protection Agency says it is safe to eat domestic birds with up to three parts per million of endrin," said Schroeder. "There are some species of ducks and geese that have been found to exceed this, in some cases considerably. The levels in some of the ducks were so high that a single serving to a 60-pound child could cause poison symptoms, including nausea, headache and convulsions," said Lou Johnson, regional toxicology program chief for the Environmental Protection Agency. Montana ducks normally migrate down the central flyway through Texas. But Schroeder said tests are under way to find out if similar contamination has occurred west of the Continental Divide in Montana — in which case they would be in the Pacific flyway. The two flyways cover the states of Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Arizona, Nevada, California, Idaho, Washington, Oregon. The season opens in both flyways Oct. 3. Al Regenthal, chief waterfowl biologist for the Utah Division of Wildlife Resources, said his office would wait for the results of the Montana study before acting. But he added, "If high levels are found in some birds, we'd have to think pretty seriously about closing the season."

PATCO faces hearing on decertification try

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization will have a chance today to tell the Federal Labor Relations Authority why it should not be decertified for conducting a strike against the government. The hearing before the three-member authority, which acts as arbitrator to the National Labor Relations Board and oversees enforcement of labor laws affecting federal workers, could be the last out-of-court move by PATCO. The authority has the power to revoke the union's certification as exclusive collective bargaining agent for air traffic controllers employed by the government if it determines that the union has conducted a strike barred by law. Authority administrative law judge John Penton, on Aug. 14, found that PATCO had engaged in an unfair labor practice when more than 11,000 of its members walked off the job Aug. 3 in a contract renegotiation dispute. Penton recommended the union's certification as bargaining agent be revoked. Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis and Federal Aviation Ad-

Needed: more facts and concessions

Our first few months in Manchester we lived in Millbridge Hollow, a delightful 86-unit condominium complex nestled along Route 94 and Prospect Street, a stone's throw from Cheney Hall.

This location afforded me the opportunity, at least twice daily, to familiarize myself with the various Cheney buildings. One day on the way to The Herald I would go down Hartford Road, the next Pine Street, the following day Elm, and so on.

So when all the largest buildings, the Clock Tower and the Weaving Mill, burst on the scene like a bombshell a month ago it was relatively easy for me to comprehend the size and scope of the undertaking.

I am fascinated with the possibilities. If the first two buildings are successfully converted into 350 rental apartments, it will only be a matter of time before another half-dozen buildings are also rehabilitated.

The end result would be a full-fledged historical restoration with an authentic turn-of-the-century flavor complete with apartments, charming shops, offices, restaurants, taverns and small parks.

It could rival Ghidardi Square in San Francisco or Mystic Village here in Connecticut and be a great source of pride to Manchester residents in addition to enlarging the town's tax base.

My enthusiasm for the project is enhanced by the track record of the private developers that are involved. In addition to the two building owners the co-venture includes Simon Konover & Associates, a major national developer, and the Cambridge, Mass., architectural firm of Galarain, Bruner & Cott, who conpleted the first mill conversion in the United States back in 1972. It takes this type of experience and expertise to transform a dream into a reality.

Town officials and members of the Cheney Mills National Historic District, elated by their ability to attract such "blue-plateau" investors, are being overly cautious in their dealings with this group for fear of scaring them away.

It is a two street, however, and the town is performing a vital service to the developers in helping them to finance the project.

Therefore, the town must require more than just the good faith of the developers before the electorate can vote intelligently on the bond referendum, approval of which will herald the implementation of the overall plan.

Despite all my excitement over what has to be a golden opportunity for Manchester, I cling to the position I expressed last week that more information is needed from the town and more concessions are needed from the developers.

For example, with regard to the $2-million bond issue, which will be on the ballot on Nov. 3, I have the following questions:

1. What investment firm will market the bonds? What rate of interest will the bonds carry? What will be the penalty to the town for early retirement of the bonds? (In today's chaotic bond market, new issues may require yields of 13 to 14 per cent so the town must protect itself with an early redemption clause.)
2. $1 million of the bond is for road improvements and acquisition of the "Great Lawn," the other $1 million is earmarked for restoration of Cheney Hall. While it is rumored that Cheney Hall may be donated to the town for the cost of restoration to a functional use, such as a center for the performing arts, could exceed $2 million.
3. Even non-functional restoration, for aesthetic and historic purposes, will probably cost $1 million, though no up-to-date engineering costs are available.
4. Are there any plans for the developers to contribute a portion of the $1 million restoration figure? Are there any plans to seek private donations? Are there any plans to set up a separate non-profit Cheney Hall commission? Are there any plans for requiring owners of the other Cheney buildings to contribute funding when, and if, they join the rehabilitation effort, thus in effect allowing the town and the present investors to recapture some of their investment in Cheney Hall?
5. The Internal Revenue requires the developer to offer 20 percent of the apartments at below prevailing market rents and the developer has indicated that the lowest rents will be $75 a month. Who determines that rental rate? What formula is used to compute below prevailing market values? Where are the eligibility requirements for tenants if any? Is the developer required to maintain lower rates for 20 per cent of the units for the 20 year life of the bonds?
6. It is possible that the rental apartments will be sold as condominiums in the next five years if there is sufficient profit for the developers to pay off their revenue bonds. In that case their obligation to offer 20 percent of the units under prevailing market rates will cease.
7. Is it not possible to reach a compromise that requires the developers, or the condominium converter, to continue to rent at least 10 per cent of the units under prevailing market rates for the full 20-year period?

I look forward to getting some of these answers before Nov. 3 and sharing them with you.

I would feel more comfortable about the entire project if these were some assurances that the developers would both share the cost of restoring Cheney Hall and extend protection to at least a small percentage of moderate-income renters.

David Barry: balance, courage

When former State Senator David Barry takes his place on the Superior Court bench Sept. 21, he will join a distinguished group of Manchester citizens who have served the judiciary.

The compassion, common sense, and courage which have marked Barry's career as a legislator will equip him to serve with the same distinction that has marked the careers of other Manchester persons who have served as judges.

The list includes such outstanding men as William Shea, Charles S. House, Jay E. Rubinow, Eugene T. Kelly, and James M. Higgins, who has moved from Manchester.

Manchester, it seems, has made a considerable contribution to the cause of justice and it can be proud to add Barry to the roster of jurists.

Barry was first selected to the state House of Representatives in 1958 at a time when Republicans had the numerical advantage over Democrats in town.

That feat required that he win the respect of Republicans and he has managed to continue winning respect throughout his legislative career.

Not that his career has been without its struggles. He has lost as well as won.

His one try for national office failed when Democrats in the First Congressional District became embroiled in an inter-party fight which gave the nomination to Jay Jackson on the 10th ballot.

Both Barry and the late William Cotter won enough votes to challenge Jackson in a primary. Barry decided ultimately not to do so. Cotter challenged and won the nomination and the election.

In still another campaign, this one successful, Barry became involved with what he regarded as unfair tactics by his opponent, and he made his feelings known publicly and pointedly.

Thus Barry is no softie.

He is, however, normally soft-spoken and has never been highly partisan.

Much of his legislative effort was aimed at social service legislation, including laws on juvenile justice, child custody, and psychiatric treatment of adolescents. Thus he is no flint-heart.

He comes to the bench with balance.

Reagan's 'troika' must go

Mark Shields

As they apparently must in all presidencies, bickering and backbiting within the Reagan Cabinet have gone public. Recently, some of the principals have made little effort to conceal from those outside the Cabinet their mutual disagreements and even their mutual disenchantment.

Reports abound that the secretary of State and the secretary of Defense will not be found on each other's dance card. The relentless budget director is now said to have separate and semi-serious differences with at least three other of his Cabinet colleagues — the secretaries of Health and Human Services, Energy, and Housing.

A President who seems able to get along with nearly anybody must find it perplexing to have a Cabinet whose members seem unable to get along with each other.

But beyond perplexing for the President must be the stories of discord from what had been up until now the administration's New Harmony, the White House staff. Backbiting and bickering are threatening the "troika" of presidential counselor Ed Meese, chief of staff Jim Baker, and deputy chief of White House staff Mike Deaver.

Some of Meese's people have been complaining that Baker is too close to the press, a charge that no one has lodged against Meese. Baker has received generally favorable press coverage with the notable exception of the Conservative Digest, a publication of the New Right. Regularly the Digest reminds its readers that Baker "directed the campaigns of Gerald Ford and George Bush."

By the lights and the litmus tests of that journal's writers and readers, those Baker credentials are only marginally preferred over convictions for grand theft auto and perjury.

Meese, too, has been criticized. The charges against him are that he has been too slow in getting the President to move on important defense and budget matters and that his own staff is not of adequate caliber. So far, Deaver has escaped much public censure. But almost surely, his turn will come.

THE REASON is quite simple. Nothing in anyone's experience has prepared any of us to believe that a "troika" of shared responsibility will work in the pressure cooker that is the contemporary White House. Even epigrams should have warned the President that such an arrangement was doomed; two heads (not three) are better than one; dilemmas have two horns; and there are two sides to every question, not three. Three, as all of us learned early, is a crowd and the wrong number for running anything.

It would have made little difference if the three individuals involved were Albert Schweitzer, St. Francis of Assisi and Sister Kenney. Three is an odd number, as anyone who has ever lived in or near a dormitory triple can testify.

The Three Musketeers is a fable, its troika (which has a distinctly un-Reaganian ring to it, anyway) could not succeed in the White House, where decisions must regularly be made under pressure, without either adequate information or full consultation. That's simply the nature of the place and the job.

In terms of a management technique, the troika is the rough equivalent of the now-forgotten "open marriage" of a few seasons back. It may appear in print, but it does not work in practice.

ALL THREE MEN involved have the ultimate in presidential confidence and access: each can walk, unannounced and uninvited, into the Oval Office. No others enjoy that privilege.

But now, Reagan, for his own good and that of his administration, must choose — and soon — among these three or some other. There must be, especially in an administration like the one Reagan leads, someone who is in charge. That is the only way that things will successfully work in the difficult months ahead.

If he fails to act now, the President is sentencing us, and much more importantly himself, to a diet of gossip and slander about how Meese or Baker or Deaver either intentionally or unintentionally let down the party or the President. The troika must go.

If it continues, it will mean that the White House staff will inevitably become a civil war in a leper colony. That is not what anyone voted for or what the nation needs. No more co-captains, Mr. Reagan. Please choose your captain.

Plan on jail crowding won't solve big problem

By Suzanne Trimmel
United Press International

HARTFORD — A state plan to reduce overcrowding at jails in Connecticut's three largest cities will mean more space for some inmates but won't solve the problem of an expanding jail population, officials say.

The plan was approved Tuesday by a federal judge who last year ruled overcrowding at the jails was cruel and unusual punishment and violated the constitutional rights of inmates.

Inmates would have the right to "cure-all" for overcrowding, Cabranes said.

State Corrections Commissioner John R. Manson said he expected the result would be immediate transfers for some inmates at the three jails, and would not solve the problem of an expanding prison population.

Manson said a new jail scheduled to open next March in Cheshire will provide an extra 300 beds, but added space will be filled in six to eight months as prison populations expand.

The plan will begin in 30 days at the Hartford jail and in 90 days at the two other jails. Most inmates at the three facilities are minorities awaiting trial and unable to post bond.

Under the plan, pretrial detainees can demand a single cell after 15 days. If none is available, they can ask to be transferred to another jail or agree to wait for space.

The plan also limits the number of double cells to no more than 15 out of 300 in Hartford. Where double cells exist, they must be located nearest to correction guards for increased supervision.

Several inmates testified before Cabranes Monday that placing two men in one cell and crowding inmates in recreation rooms lead to beatings, fights and other violence.

Attorney James Greene of the Connecticut Prison Association hailed the plan as one that will "endure for years to come."

Telephones must be available in each cell block area and prisoners must be allowed to use outdoor recreation yards at least a week for a minimum of 90 minutes in Hartford and five days in Bridgeport and New Haven.

Inmates, up to 40 at once, must be given access to day rooms five nights a week for reading or writing, a minimum of three hours.

The plan also prohibits the state from placing mattresses on cell floors for sleeping and from using day rooms to house prisoners.

The plan also requires that a new inmate be examined by a doctor for any communicable diseases within 48 hours after he arrived.

Rome files to run for governor

HARTFORD (UPI) — Lewis Rome, a former legislative leader who held the second spot on the disastrous 1978 Republican "Dream Ticket," has officially become a candidate for the party's 1982 gubernatorial nomination.

Rome, who celebrated his 48th birthday Saturday, filed papers Tuesday with the Secretary of the State's Office to establish a gubernatorial campaign committee in order to raise funds for his campaign.

Party leaders had persuaded Rome three years ago to step aside in his bid for the Republican gubernatorial nomination and run for lieutenant governor on a ticket headed by former Rep. Ronald Sarasin.

The Sarasin-Rome combination, which its creators dubbed the "Dream Ticket," was trampled by the late Gov. Ella Grasso and her Democratic counterpart.

Rome said Tuesday he's older and wiser today.

"I'm 48 and my skin is thicker," said the former Senate Republican leader. "I learned that I want to be master of my own fate."

Rome had said in April he wouldn't run for governor next year because of private responsibilities.

The Bloomfield lawyer is a partner in a Hartford law firm that includes former Democratic House Speaker James Kennedy and former Democratic Sen. Howard Klebanoff.

But Rome said he changed his mind because "it's just a very strong feeling that I have wanted to do this for so long and I would be very uncomfortable if I didn't carry out my wish, if not my dream."

The field of candidates for the GOP gubernatorial nomination is expected to include former Sen. Richard Bozatto of Watertown, Sen. Russell Post of Canton, Senate Minority Leader George Gunder of Stratford and Sen. Gerald Labriola of Naugatuck.

Navy, Electric Boat continue to patch up their difficulties

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The feuding between the Navy and Electric Boat, its prime builder, may be coming to an end.

For the second straight day, both sides announced an agreement that indicates they are moving toward a conciliation of some of their lingering disagreements.

Tuesday, the Navy and the shipbuilder agreed to move up by three to six months the delivery dates for the first eight Trident submarines.

EE also told Navy Secretary John Lehman Jr. it would drop any insurance claims on the construction of the nuclear-powered submarines through July 1981.

"I am very encouraged at a second day of good news from the Navy regarding progress which is being made with Electric Boat in resolving a wide range of differences," said Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I.

"This is further evidence that both Electric Boat and the Navy are working closely together, and I'm hopeful that all the remaining differences will be resolved," he said.

The agreement follows an announcement Monday that the Navy will negotiate the contract for the 9th Trident sub with Electric Boat, the only shipbuilder in the nation capable of building the $1.2 billion warship.

Gov. J. Joseph Garrahy expressed cautious optimism Tuesday that the bitter squabbling may be coming to an end.

"This relationship has been stormy, to say the least. Maybe this is a calming of the seas," Garrahy said at a Statehouse news conference.

However, the governor cautioned, efforts must continue to bring more defense contracts to the shipyard.

Electric Boat has laid off an estimated 1,000 workers this year because of a lack of Navy contracts. The firm has said continued employment for its more than 24,000 workers at plants in Groton, Conn., and Quonset Point, R.I., hinge on more Navy work.

NEW YORK (UPI) — United Technologies Corp., looking to the future expansion of certain telecommunications markets, has introduced a new electronic telephone system that simultaneously transmits voice sound and data.

UTC said the digital, fully integrated private automatic branch exchange, or PABX, developed by its Lexar Corp. subsidiary in Los Angeles was the most cost-effective product in the medium-size-system sector of the industry.

"In the past five years, pioneering telecommunications companies have succeeded in penetrating the PABX market, eroding AT&T's market share from 80 percent to roughly 50 percent," said Lexar President William L. Salway.

"Now United Technologies has the opportunity to capture a leading share of the non-Bell market by demonstrating that we have the best, most cost-effective product," he said Tuesday.

The system will be the most cost-effective for the segment of the PABX market, which includes users with 200 to 1,000 work stations, and which "is expected to double to $1.4 billion by 1988 and account for over one-third of the market," Salway said.

Hubert Faure, executive vice president of Connecticut-based UTC's New Building Systems Group established last April, said UTC planned to use the technological edge in telecommunications equipment provided by LEXAR "to achieve a significant presence in the market."

Salway said the LEXAR Business Exchange was the first simultaneous voice/data transmission without the use of costly outside modems or wiring.

He said the LEX system enabled users who decide to install data terminals to plug each terminal into the back of the telephone at each work station, without a separate wiring system.

The system uses a custom chip in each telephone to translate the analog signal of a phone conversa-

Professors plan boycott of convocation at UConn

STORRS (UPI) — Union professors at the University of Connecticut plan to mark the conclusion of the school's year-long centennial celebration with a protest over their lack of a new contract.

The American Association of Professors said Tuesday the 400 of its 1,500 members had pledged to join a protest boycott of a weekend convocation marking the end of the centennial celebration.

Peter Halvorsen, president of the AAUP chapter, said the professors, coaches, and researchers who had agreed to boycott the convocation also pledged to "attend a protest outside if they can."

Union officials predicted that the number of professors pledging to join the boycott could hit 650 after a meeting today to act on the union council's recommendation to reject the administration's latest contract offer.

Anthony DiBenedetto, the university's vice president for academic affairs, was critical of the planned boycott, saying "any faculty member boycotting the convocation is undermining this important to the university is an unfortunate thing."

The union, which represents 1,200 professors and 300 researchers and coaches, voted last month to stage a series of job actions that will culminate in a strike vote Nov. 1 if necessary.

Man held in slaying

HARTFORD (UPI) — A Naugatuck man was held on $200,000 bond today for murder in the August shooting of a man in a car at a traffic light.

Steven Boucino, 41, was arrested without incident Tuesday at his home on a court warrant charging him in the Aug. 3 slaying of George McNeil, 23, of Hartford.

Boucino was held at the Hartford Community Correctional Center in lieu of bond. He was scheduled to be arraigned today in Hartford Superior Court.

Authorities said the arrest followed an investigation conducted by Hartford police with coordination by the Hartford state's attorney's office and information from the Statewide Organized Crime Investigative Task Force.

Authorities McNeil was sitting in the passenger seat of a car that had stopped at a traffic light at an intersection near downtown Hartford when he was hit by gunfire from another car that had pulled alongside.

Action to allow bigger budget

Hospital will seek injunction

By Barbara Richmond
Herald Reporter
Manchester Memorial Hospital officials said today a court injunction will be sought that will allow them to implement their proposed $31-million budget for 1982.

til the time it went into formal session Tuesday, the final date of making decisions. Manchester Memorial is among 12 other hospitals in the state whose budgets were reduced by the commission.

Beck said, "It is our feeling that we can't run the hospital on the commission's granted budget without sacrificing quality and the level of care that the people of Manchester deserve."

Andrew Beck, public relations director for the hospital, said this morning this line of action was decided after hospital officials met with the state Commission on Hospitals and Health Care Tuesday to try and change the commission's decision to approve a $29.175,000 budget.

Beck said hospital officials negotiated with the commission until the time it went into formal session Tuesday, the final date of making decisions. Manchester Memorial is among 12 other hospitals in the state whose budgets were reduced by the commission.

Past challenges Tribe harriers

Manning the water cooler at an East Catholic High football practice session this week was one squad manager, Pam Soares. Water was most welcomed following hard drill.

Success breeds success. And figures do not lie. When George Sutor took over the Manchester High boys' cross country program in 1974, it was coming off a 2-10 season. That first season saw the Indian harriers erect an 84 mark and secure third place in the CCLL.

Those two schools figure to battle it out for 1981 honors. Silk Town squads have either won (1977, '79) or been runner-up (1980, '78, '75) in the state Class LL Meet the past five years. They also secured third placements in the State Open in 1977 and '79, finishing a disappointing seventh a year ago.

Response was immediate as East Catholic High announced Tuesday the appointment of Tom Malin as the new coach.

Malin, 34, is a 1965 graduate of Assumption College with a B.A. in history and taught for one year at East before serving in the Air Force for four years. He returned to the school in 1974. He teaches social studies.

In addition to his duties as athletic director, Malin also is beginning his eighth year as varsity soccer coach, has served for four years as assistant basketball coach and has been the golf coach for six years.

A lot of sports have been established here so I don't know what we can add. I just want to keep the tradition started by former basketball coach and the school's first coach, said Malin.

Malin and his wife, the former Barbara Frame, and their two children, Terri, 10, and Jeff, 8, reside in Vernon.

Malin's first task as athletic director was to find a replacement for himself. He has relinquished the golf coaching post, he announced, and will need to find a successor.

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson says he knows where the South African rugby team is planning to spend the next few days and he and his followers plan to drive the team "underground."

At this time there has been no communications nor reservations made by any party associated with the team," he said.

On arrival in Chicago Monday, the team took rooms at the Chicago Athletic Association, a private downtown club.

Seventeen protesters picketed the club Tuesday, chanting "Down with Springboks" and "White man's hands off black man's lands."

Bid time extended for MHS

The town Building Committee has extended the bidding period for general renovations to Manchester High School by one week in response to requests from potential bidders.

The bids will be opened Sept. 29. They had been scheduled for opening Sept. 22. The bids will be opened Sept. 29. Phillips said 12 general contractors have taken out plans for the project.

More than 75 sets of plans have been sent to subcontractors, he added. Phillips said he hopes the large number of contractors interested in bidding on the project will result in competitive, low-priced bids.

There is an unusually large number of potential bidders, he said, noting that only three contractors had submitted bids when renovations were done there.

The first phase of the renovation work, replacement of the roof, is underway. Bids on the roof came in $200,000 lower than estimated, Phillips noted.

Wreck could be Karen E

NEW LONDON (UPI) — The U.S. Coast Guard says there is an 80 percent chance an object lying 180 feet below the surface of Long Island Sound is the wreckage of a cabin cruiser that sank last month killing five people.

Coast Guard divers using sonar detected the object Tuesday about four miles off Old Saybrook and were scheduled to return to the area today to determine if it is the sunken Karen E.

The object was the most promising possibility located after five days of a renewed search for the wreckage, which the Coast Guard wants to examine for its inquiry into the Aug. 9 sinking where five West Hartford residents died.

But Smith said he has heard Fuscus "mentioned by a number of party workers. I think he might be an interesting candidate."

Of course, the local parties may decide not to back a specific candidate ahead of time, but instead choose a "favorite son."

A knowledgeable local Democrat said this is common tactic that gives the town committee flexibility and bargaining power at the special convention.

In fact, West Hartford's town Democratic Chairman John F. Droney Jr. told The Herald Tuesday that he will be his town's favorite son, carrying West Hartford's 35 votes — second in size to Hartford — to the nominating session.

But most town committees, including the local ones, seem content to play their cards close to the chest, at least for now.

College basketball coach appointed

Bernie Mulligan, former Tolland High basketball coach, has been appointed men's basketball coach at Manchester Community College.

He replaces Frank Kinel who resigned to accept the assistant varsity coaching assignment at Trinity College. Hartford Twilight League all-star baseball team included four members of Manchester's Moriarty's on the first team.

Manchester High player, is now in his 14th season as varsity soccer coach at Bloomfield High. Manchester Sports Hall of Fame banner has arrived and will be displayed for the first time at the dinner Friday night at the Army & Navy Club.

Manchester Recreation Department's fall and winter indoor programs at the East Side and West Side Rec and Y Centers will start Monday night. Carl Silver, program director for the Rec Department, reports a fall softball league has been formed on an experimental basis with games slated at Fitzgerald Field under the lights.

Applications for the Five Mile Road Race, Thanksgiving morning in Manchester have not been printed. When available the public will be informed.

Templeton in line-up and debuts with bang

By Fred McMane UPI Sports Writer
Garry Templeton apologized to the general public Monday for his obscene behavior last Aug. 26. On Tuesday night, he made up to his teammates in a different manner.

Templeton wasted no time in demonstrating his All-Star skills with the bat. He singled in the first off batter Bill Gulekison, 4-8, stole second and scored on Keith Hernandez' single. Then, in the sixth he hit the third of four singles and scored the Cardinals' second run on Dan Fong's single. Templeton capped his performance by singling home Gene Roof in the seventh.

In the eighth, errors by left fielder Gene Roof and shortstop Mike Ramsey enabled the Expos to score two runs in the fifth and salvage a split of their doubleheader.

The Expos were leading 2-1 in the nightcap when Tony Scott led off the fifth with a walk against starter Mark Littell, 1-2, who was making his first start since April 19, 1978. Andrew Dawson followed with a single and, when Roof failed to pick up the ball, Scott scored to make it 3-1. Dawson, who went to second on the error, stole third and scored when Ramsey booted Larry Parrish's grounder.

Bill Lee went seven innings for the Expos and raised his record to 3-4. Woodie Fryman pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the ninth by getting Steve Braun on a grounder to the mound for the final out to register his fifth save.

Elsewhere in the NL, Pittsburgh beat Chicago 8-2, Cincinnati defeated Houston 4-0, San Diego whipped Los Angeles 8-2 and San Francisco downed Atlanta 6-5. Philadelphia at New York was rained out.

Patrons 8, Cubs 2
At Chicago, Luis Tiant pitched a four-hitter and contributed a three-run double to help the Pirates to victory. Tiant, who walked only one batter and struck out eight, collected his first extra base hit and second in the National League in recording his second triumph against four losses. Omar Moreno and Dave Parker homered for Pittsburgh and Leon Durham hit a two-run homer for Chicago.

Reds 4, Astros 0
At Houston, Charlie Leibrandt tossed a five-hitter and George Sparker lined a pair of RBI singles in sparking the Reds to victory. Leibrandt, 1-0, struck out four and walked three en route to his first decision since being called up from Indianapolis where he won nine of his last 11 decisions. It was his third career shutout.

Padres 8, Dodgers 2
At San Diego, Terry Kennedy delivered a three-run double in the fifth — his seventh consecutive hit over a two-game span — to cap a four-run inning that led the Padres to victory. Winning pitcher Juan Eichelberger, 8-4, struck out 10 in eight innings and yielded seven hits and three walks before leaving for a pinch hitter in the eighth. Gary

Deja vu for Monge

By Logan Hobson UPI Sports Writer

To Cleveland reliever Sid Monge it was Deja vu and then some. "I batted twice against Monge last year in pinch hit roles and got my last hit of the season off him," said pinchhitter Benny Ayala after clouting a three-run homer off Monge in a four-run ninth inning Tuesday night to lead the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-6 victory over the Brewers.

"He's a fastball pitcher and I was looking for fastballs and he threw me an off-speed pitch," Ayala added. "I thought the ball would book out and that's why I was standing at the plate when it hit the foul pole. With two strikes on me I was swinging at anything close."

Held to four hits by rookie Tom Brennan over the first eight innings, the Orioles began their ninth-inning rally on a single by Terry Crowley, Mike Stanton, 3-3, then replaced Brennan and was greeted by a single by John Lowenstein and a game-tying double by Doug DeCinces. Stanton struck out pinch hitter Jose Morales and when Orioles manager Earl Weaver sent up left-handed batter Dan Graham to hit, Indians manager Dave Garcia sent for a left-handed pitcher. Weaver then removed Graham in favor of Ayala, who drilled a 1-2 pitch for his second homer of the year.

"I've been using Jose Morales and Benny Ayala as my pinch hitters regularly," said Weaver. "Morales failed to get his 10th career pinch hit so I used Ayala to bat for Dan Graham."

The four-run rally proved to be just enough as pinch hitter Dave Paget hit his first major league homer, a two-run shot in the ninth, for the Indians' final runs off starter Brewers.

'Threw me off-speed pitch'
Benny Ayala

Dennis Martinez, 13-4, who allowed a leadoff double that sparked a two-run third and Fingers held New York in check for the last two innings to record his major league-leading 25th save.

Nearly seven years have passed since the aging stars helped the Yankees carry their team to a crucial victory in the heat of the pennant race.

It was a different story for Bando. The 37-year-old Brewer captain was making his eighth start of what he says will be his last season. He helped starter Moose Haas, 9-6, to a 3-0 lead when he doubled to open the third inning. Bando went to third on Jim Gantner's bunt and scored on Robin Yount's sacrifice fly.

Paul Molitor followed with a walk off loser Rudy May, 6-10, and scored all the way from first when Cooper, the designated hitter, delivered a hit-and-run single.

The Yankees scored on Larry Milburn's triple and a groundout by Willie Randolph but could not save May, who gave up just five hits. Bando nearly retired before a season, but the Brewers persuaded him to stay because of Don Money's off-season knee surgery. Despite his heroics Tuesday, Bando said he will not reconsider his retirement plans.

"No chance," he said. "It's very difficult sitting on the bench and feeling like a part of the club when you're not playing. It's very frustrating."

Milwaukee manager Buck Rodgers said Bando could see more action during the Brewers' pennant drive.

"It's possible I'll use him down the stretch. It might be at first base. It might be at third and I might be at DH. I'd like to pick my spots," Rodgers said.

Bando, a third-baseman for most of his career, spelled Cecil Cooper at first, and he turned in a remarkable play in the fifth to thwart a Yankee rally.

New York had just scored, and Bobby Murcer on first base Dave Winfield ripped a shot down the first-base line. Bando stopped the ball, stepped on first and threw to second for an inning-ending double play.

"It hit me on the thigh. I had no choice but to step on it," Bando quipped. "If it had been hit a couple feet over, it would have been a different story."

Paul Molitor followed with a walk off loser Rudy May, 6-10, and scored all the way from first when Cooper, the designated hitter, delivered a hit-and-run single.

his third straight victory and the Blue Jays took advantage of three Minnesota errors to snap the Twins' seven-game winning streak. Lead, 7-10, gave up eight hits, struck out five and walked only one over seven innings before giving way to Joey Kneiblauch, who notched his seventh save.

Rangers 12, A's 2
At Arlington, Texas, Al Oliver had four hits, including a pair of doubles, and four RBI to spark a 18-hit attack that powered the Rangers. Bump Wills went 4-for-4 and scored four times and Mickey Rivers had 3-for-3 and three RBI for the Rangers.

Knuckleballer Charlie Hough, 1-1, held the A's to one unearned run in eight innings to get the victory.

Royals 3, Angels 2
At Anaheim, Calif., George Brett doubled in the first inning and scored another in the third on Willie Aikens' single to spark Kansas City. In winning for the seventh time in eight games, the Royals increased their lead in the American League.

West to three games over half-champion Oakland, California has dropped 10 of its last 11 games.

Martinez 8, Yankees 2-1
At Seattle, Bruce Bochte belted a tie-breaking solo homer to trigger a three-run seventh inning and Lemmy Ramirez hit a two-run triple to power a four-run eighth that carried Seattle.

Hans pitched well before tiring in the seventh, and Rodgers did not hesitate to call for his ace. Fingers surrendered a leadoff single to Murray and then retired the last six batters to run his string of scoreless innings at County Stadium to 21-13.

Among his victims was Reggie Jackson, who struck out three times. Rodgers said the Brewers would probably be behind last place Toronto without Fingers.

"When I put Fingers in, I just sit back and let Rolfe do his thing," Rodgers said. "I sit back and ask Sully (equipment manager Bob Sullivan) for a cup of coffee and relax."

At Caesars Palace, hasn't won 31 of 33 professional fights against the world's top contenders by running into things.

Leonard, the World Boxing Council welterweight champion, will come out slowly, trying to get a feel for the speed and movement of the taller, stronger Hearn. The first two rounds shouldn't produce much action. But by the third round, Hearn's, the World Welterweight champion, will have shown Leonard his entire arsenal, which consists of a powerful left jab and a wrecking ball of a right. And that's when Leonard will go to work.

Using lateral movement to keep Hearn's guessing and missing, Leonard will begin to come inside Hearn's crushing right hands, and Leonard won't do it all at once, but he'll begin to work on Hearn's body in spurs — slipping under and unleashing one of his lightning combinations and retreating.

By the sixth round, the tone of the fight should be set.

The unbeaten Hearn, with 30 knockouts in his 32 victories, will land an occasional jab and maybe even one or two of those monstrous rights.

At Caesars Palace, the darling of the 1976 Olympics, has been to war before. In two fights with Roberto Duran, he learned a lot. He learned how to punch his way out of minor trouble and either clinch or run his way out of serious trouble. Duran tagged Leonard with dozens of solid punches to those two bouts, but each time he survived. That's what will eventually demoralize Hearn.

But by the third round, Hearn's, the World Welterweight champion, will have shown Leonard

Richest fight set tonight

By Rich Tochesco UPI Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Sugar Ray Leonard's route to the World Boxing Council welterweight title came under the bright lights of Easzy Street.

Thomas Hearn traveled dark and unopposed rounds to the World Boxing Association welterweight crown.

The two were set to meet today at a noon EDT weigh-in for the final time before tonight's long-awaited, scheduled 15-rounder for the undisputed welterweight title. Neither fighter was expected to have any problem making the division's 147-pound limit.

With an expected closed circuit and pay television audience of 300 million, the fight, in a specially built, 25,000-seat outdoor arena at Caesars Palace will be the richest in the history of boxing. Leonard has been guaranteed $8 million and Hearn $5 million and promoters expected a gross approaching $40 million.

The attraction is in the contrasting backgrounds and fighting styles and the ring records of each.

Leonard, 30-1 with 21 knockouts, was the star of the 1976 Olympics and rose to almost immediate fame as television's golden boy. He won the WBC title by stopping Willie Best in 1979 then lost it last year to Roberto Duran in a grueling 15-round bout in Montreal. But Leonard regained the crown five months later when Duran turned in his infamous "no-nonsense" performance in New Orleans, quitting in the eighth round.

Hearn, 32-0 with 30 knockouts, rose through the ranks with little attention despite easily dispatching every opponent. He became well-known only when he won the WBA title by humiliating champion Pipino Cuevas with a second-round knockout in August, 1979.

Leonard relies on his enormous boxing skills. He is the classic boxer, using a flicking left jab to set up lightning combinations. Hearn has built his record and reputation on two simple weapons: a powerful jab and sledgehammer right hand. At 6-foot-1 with a 78-inch reach, he is a physical freak for the welterweight division. He's also the most devastating puncher in the division's history.

The oddsmakers haven't been able to determine a clear cut favorite. They've listed the fighters as dead even. Leonard, at 5-to-10, will have the advantage in mobility. He also has had more experience with the big fight atmosphere, having won an Olympic gold medal and having taken on Bestiz one and Duran twice in media carnival fights.

Hearn is the more imposing fighter physically. He will have a 3-inch height and 4-inch reach advantage. He is also a ferocious puncher and his 30 knockouts in 32 fights is the highest percentage of any welterweight champion in history. Leonard has referred to Hearn as a "robot," saying he's unable to adapt when his fight plan goes astray.

"He knows only one way to fight and I can adapt to different styles," Leonard said. "I go into each fight with a plan and I fight each fight differently. I'm not going to give away my fight plan but I plan to be a moving target. I'll be in front of him and then I won't be there. I will put pressure on him and make him miss. I will take away his leverage and punching power."

"Tommy Hearn is not an intelligent fighter. He comes in, I'll get him there — come out bombing. He throws a hundred punches and lands maybe 10. I'm going to make him think because when he has to question in my mind that I'll win, I may not be dispatching every punch he throws because every time he throws one, he's going to get hit."

"I'm going to beat him so badly that he's going to crawl into a shell and disappear," Leonard said.

Hearn, generally solemn, smiles when he hears Leonard talk. He said he's going to prove to his critics that he isn't a non-thinking brawler.

"People think I'm just a puncher because of all the knockouts," said Hearn. "But I consist myself a good boxer. I was always a good boxer throughout the amateurs. People think I just go out looking for knockouts. I think I have an excellent jab and hook. The knockouts come after I hurt people with the left hand."

Hearn said Leonard has always had trouble with taller opponents and can be intimidated by bigger men.

"Let's face it — Sugar Ray Leonard has never fought a man as tall as me and he won't be able to handle it. He has always been able to dictate the style of the fight. He's always been able to do whatever he wanted to do because he always had a physical advantage. He doesn't have that now. If he tries to run, sooner or later I'm going to get him. If he comes in, I'll get him there."

"I've been waiting a long time for this fight and I'll do whatever I need to do to win it. There is no question in my mind that I'll win. I may not be in five rounds or it may take 15 tough rounds but whatever, I will beat him."

Both fighters trained hard and appeared in excellent condition. Temperatures were expected to be in the 90s for the fight, making conditioning vital. They curtailed heavy training last Saturday

Leonard choice in this corner

By Rich Tochesco UPI Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The thinking among supporters of Thomas Hearn is that eventually Sugar Ray Leonard will run into one of Hearn's crushing right hands, and the referee will begin the count to 10.

But Leonard, who meets Hearn Wednesday night in a scheduled 15-round welterweight unification bout at Caesars Palace, hasn't won 31 of 33 professional fights against the world's top contenders by running into things.

Leonard, the World Boxing Council welterweight champion, will come out slowly, trying to get a feel for the speed and movement of the taller, stronger Hearn. The first two rounds shouldn't produce much action. But by the third round, Hearn's, the World Welterweight champion, will have shown Leonard his entire arsenal, which consists of a powerful left jab and a wrecking ball of a right. And that's when Leonard will go to work.

Using lateral movement to keep Hearn's guessing and missing, Leonard will begin to come inside Hearn's crushing right hands, and Leonard won't do it all at once, but he'll begin to work on Hearn's body in spurs — slipping under and unleashing one of his lightning combinations and retreating.

By the sixth round, the tone of the fight should be set.

The unbeaten Hearn, with 30 knockouts in his 32 victories, will land an occasional jab and maybe even one or two of those monstrous rights.

At Caesars Palace, the darling of the 1976 Olympics, has been to war before. In two fights with Roberto Duran, he learned a lot. He learned how to punch his way out of minor trouble and either clinch or run his way out of serious trouble. Duran tagged Leonard with dozens of solid punches to those two bouts, but each time he survived. That's what will eventually demoralize Hearn.

Hearn seen here as division champ

By Joe Carnicelli UPI Executive Sports Editor

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Thomas Hearn will become the world welterweight champion Wednesday night because of one reason — power. Sugar Ray Leonard is faster but the difference isn't as great as many people think.

Leonard has more experience against top competition. But Hearn has the physical tools to beat Leonard. Hearn's power is to hit-and-run. He'll probably try to resurrect Muhammad Ali's old "float like a butterfly, sting like a bee" technique. He'll try to anger Hearn and capture the crowd with eye-clinching antics.

Leonard will seek away from Hearn and look awkward, especially in the early rounds when both men are fresh.

In the 10th round, Leonard will try to tie up Hearn's long arms, deliver some body shot and then hit the road again.

It won't work. Hearn's reputation as a puncher. Hearn is an excellent boxer. He moves smoothly across the ring and he has the tools to keep Leonard under control. Leonard will come into these fights with a so-called "come forward" strategy. If he intends to win, Leonard must stand and fight. And that's when the physical disparity will come into play. Leonard will come out ahead in a toe-to-toe battle and sooner or later, they will have to face each other. Leonard will be the question of desire. Leonard hasn't really shown any in recent fights while Hearn has dedicated his career to his dream of winning titles in the welterweight, junior middleweight, middleweight and heavyweight divisions.

Leonard was intimidated by Roberto Duran in his first fight and was nearly knocked out in the second round. There are those who claim Leonard avenged the loss of the first two rounds should be fairly even, with a slight edge toward Leonard. Leonard will be slightly ahead in the sixth when Hearn finds the range and begins connecting. Leonard will be cut on the left side and badly swollen on the right side of his face and could go down for the first time in his pro career.

"The end will come for Leonard after the 10th round when trainer Angelo Dundee refuses to allow him to come out for further punishment in the 11th.

Veterans returning with Tech harriers

By Len Auster Herald Sports Writer

With four of the top five returning from a year ago, Cheney Tech will jump into its cross country schedule Friday afternoon against Norwich Tech in Norwich.

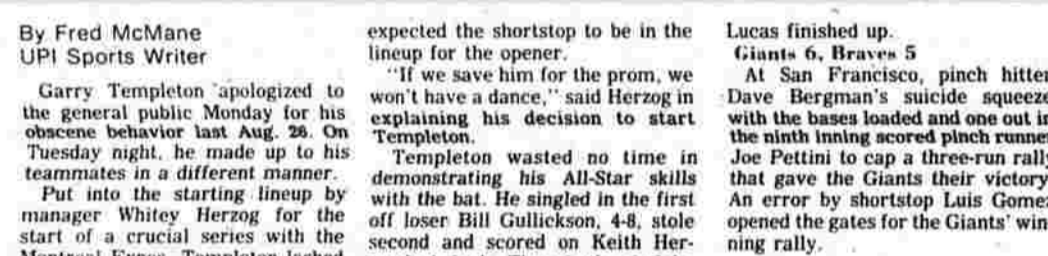

The Beaver harriers were 13-7 a year ago and qualified for the state Class M Meet, placing 15th place in that event.

Coch A Skinner has his premier third-year in senior Ron Scholz and sophomores Jim Munn, Luke Jansek and Nick Foran. He, however, is not one prone to predetermining, so is his physical condition. When you couple those two elements with that sledge hammer right hand of his, I intend to invite Brett to my next block party." Brett, who led the major league in batting last season with a .390 average and won the American League's Most Valuable Player Award, has been struggling to reach 300 this year and has had several temperamental outbursts.

Westphal 'colorful'

SEATTLE (UPI) — Free-agent Paul Westphal, nursing a broken bone in his right foot, found a new job with the Seattle SuperSonics Tuesday — he's going to be the "color commentator" on the club's cable television broadcasts as well as on television games carried by Seattle station KIRO.

Olympic flag steal real coup for Close

By Earl Vost Sports Editor

Although he failed to win either a gold, silver or bronze medal in the 1960 Summer Olympic Games in Rome, Pete Close of Manchester came home with a prized souvenir — the official Olympic flag from the center of the Olympic Village.

Close, who launched his successful track career while a student at Manchester High, later at St. John's University in Brooklyn, N.Y., and finally with the Marines and the U.S. Olympic squad, will be inducted into the Manchester Sports Hall of Fame Friday night at the Manchester Army & Navy Club.

Also scheduled to be honored as Hall of Famers will be Pete Wigen, who was Close's coach in high school, and the late Tom Kelley. Denny Carlin will step front and center to receive the Unusung Award for his contributions to local sports over the past two decades.

Back to Close and his bit of thievery 21 years ago. The Hartford native made Uncle Sam's track squad in the 1500 meters although he was a miler and cross country stickler while in high school and college.

That Olympic flag incident was a real coup. Close recalled that two English athletes tried to get the flag but were caught and sent home. The security was beefed up and the challenge was even greater. "Our basketball team had won the gold medal and it was friendly with Darrell Imhoff, who was 6'10", and

Brett's temper flares striking lady reporter

By ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Kansas City Royals' third baseman George Brett showed a woman reporter the face Tuesday night when she scuffled with another reporter who tried to come to the young woman's aid, witnesses said. The shoving match in the lobby of the Anaheim Inn Tuesday evening as Brett needed Kansas City Times' sports reporter Mike Fish.

Brett criticized Fish for writing a May 31 story about Brett demolishing the locker room toilets and a sink with his bat after a bad game against the Minnesota Twins.

Brett and Fish have not spoken to each other since.

Janis Carr, a former Los Angeles Times reporter who was with Fish during the melee, told Brett that if he wanted to be in the limelight, "he had to accept those kinds of things," said a witness, who asked that his name not be used.

At that point, Brett "forcefully pushed" Carr in the face with his fingers and Fish stepped in to prevent the Royals' star from striking her again, the witness said.

Piersall off air

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago White Sox announcer Jimmy Piersall, under suspension for comments he made about players' wives, will be kept off the air until the end of the season, team officials said Tuesday.

Piersall was suspended without pay last Wednesday by Sox owner Jerry Reinsdorf and team president Eddie Einhorn pending a further review.

Bowie sidelined

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Sam Bowie, Kentucky's leading scorer and rebounder last year, will be in a coach for about six weeks with a stress fracture in the left shinbone.

The injury was discovered last Friday, Hall said Bowie, a 7-foot-1 junior from Lebanon, Pa., apparently suffered the fracture sometime during the 1980-81 season.

ECHO Clinic

The Eastern Connecticut Hockey Organization (ECHO) will offer instructional skating clinics for youngsters age 5 thru 12 on Saturday, Sept. 19 and Saturday, Sept. 26 from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. at the Bolton Ice Palace. Registration is open to all youth.

The tipoff:

There's a chasm between the Pete Rose and Oakland versions of Snake Stabler's alleged association with a known gambler for a period of years while he quarterbacked the Raiders. It's hard to imagine that the NFL security people wouldn't have notified the commissioner of the reports from Oakland. The Raiders insist they had at least 25 direct contacts with Charles Jackson and current Director of Security Warren Welsh over the Stabler situation, including one a month ago.

Q: Has there ever been a welterweight champion as tall as Tommy Hoerns and with his overbearing reach? If so, who?

A: Tom Chandler, Corvallis, Ore. Hoerns is far and away the tallest litlefitter ever in that division. Officially, he's listed at 6-foot-1, but the people at Ring Magazine have him at 6-foot-2 1/2. The only welterweight champion who was even close were the original Kid McCoy (Norman Selby) and Sugar Ray Robinson, at 5-foot-11 and 5-foot-10 1/2, respectively. Hoerns' reach measures 78 inches, which puts him in the heavyweight class. But it's not a hopeless mismatch against Sugar Ray Leonard, who stands 5-foot-10 1/2, with a 74-inch reach.

Q: I saw Francis Taranton on the other day on a pro football telecast, and he had a bandage over his nose. Can you tell us what happened?

A: F.G. Pittsfield, Mass. Taranton, seldom injured during his 18 seasons as a pro quarterback, was suffering from a broken nose, incurred on a scramble down the stairs at his Atlanta home. Fran was carrying some luggage for a trip out of town when he tripped, missed six steps altogether and hit the hardwood floor at the landing's scissor first. That was more damage than Gino Marchetti and other punters were ever able to inflict.

National and Trendy

From deep in the heart of "Pumpkin Country" comes a selection of prize-winning pumpkin recipes to please tradition-lovers and trend-setters alike. They're gathered from the Pumpkin Cookery Contest, one of the highlights of a fall festival celebrating the pumpkin harvest in America's Midwest.

Each year as the contest judges taste, jot notes and deliberate over the mouth-watering array of pumpkin recipe entries, one unanimous agreement is reached—there's practically no end to the taste-tempting dishes that can be made with canned solid-pack pumpkin. This deliciously versatile vegetable, so rich in Vitamin A, also provides significant amounts of other vitamins and minerals like niacin and iron.

For fall-through-winter enjoyment, traditionalists will favor the FAMOUS PUMPKIN PIE, easily varied with a delectable new topping, ZESTY ORANGE GLAZE. Or savor Army Moulton's PUMPKIN TEA BREAD, studded with nuts and kept nicely moist with fresh grated zucchini. This special bread makes a fine "totable" gift as well, sliced and spread with a creamy cheese filling—all ready for holiday snacks. Linda Grimm shares her prize-winning recipe, PUMPKIN WAFER DESSERT, which pairs a fluffy pumpkin chiffon filling with crisp chocolate wafers, unusual sounding, but unusually good! Another trend-setter is PUMPKIN QUICHE. Ruth Kaiser's prize-winning entry for brunch or lunch. The delicate flavor of pumpkin is a subtle accent in the flavorful cheese-custard filling, with bits of crisp bacon and onion for zest.

Why not share in the pleasures of these delightful food ideas from "Pumpkin Country"? Although prizes may not come your way, praises surely will!

FAMOUS PUMPKIN PIE

2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 can (16 oz.) Libby's Solid Pack Pumpkin
3/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon

1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
1 can (12 fl. oz.) evaporated milk OR 1-2/3 cups milk half 'n' half
1 8" unbacked pie shell with high fluted edge or margarine

Preheat oven to 425°F. Combine filling ingredients in order given; pour into pie shell. Bake 15 minutes. Reduce temperature to 350° and bake an additional 45 minutes or until knife inserted near center of pie comes out clean. Cool; garnish, if desired, with whipped topping or the following glaze. Yields one 9-inch pie.

PUMPKIN TEA BREAD

1 cup Libby's Solid Pack Pumpkin
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
3/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
2 eggs
1/4 cup oil
1/2 cup chopped pecans or walnuts

Preheat oven to 350°F. In large bowl combine pumpkin, zucchini, sugar, eggs, oil and margarine; mix well. In separate bowl, combine flour, baking soda, baking powder, cinnamon and salt. Add dry ingredients to pumpkin mixture, mixing only until flour is moistened. Stir in nuts. Spoon into well greased 9 X 5 X 3-inch loaf pan. Bake 60 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes; remove from pan. Yields 1 loaf.

ZESTY ORANGE GLAZE

1/2 cup sugar
2 tablespoons corn starch

3/4 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons finely shredded orange peel

In saucepan, combine sugar and corn starch; mix well. Gradually add orange juice. Cook until clear and thickened, stirring occasionally. Add orange peel. Cool slightly. Spoon over cooled pie. Chill until serving time.

CREAMY CHEESE FILLING

1 package (3 oz.) cream cheese, softened
3 tablespoons margarine or butter, softened

Combine ingredients. Beat until light and fluffy, with wooden spoon or electric mixer at medium speed. Spread between slices of Pumpkin Tea Bread.

PUMPKIN WAFER DESSERT

1 can (16 oz.) Libby's Solid Pack Pumpkin
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
4 egg yolks
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1/2 teaspoon salt

1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
2/3 cup milk
2 cups whipping cream, whipped
1 package (8-1/2 oz.) crisp chocolate wafers

In large saucepan, combine pumpkin, sugar, egg yolks, gelatin, salt, cinnamon, ginger and nutmeg; mix well. Gradually add milk, stirring until blended. Cook over medium heat until mixture boils, stirring occasionally. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in whipped cream. Line bottom of lightly-oiled 9 X 13 X 1-1/2-inch pan with wafers. Pour 1/2 pumpkin mixture over wafers; repeat layers. Top with final layer of wafers. Chill until set. Cut into squares. Yields 12 servings.

David Garaventa, flips over a mouth-watering steak which is part of one of his favorite recipes. It's called Steak au Poivre and it's served with fried potatoes, water-cress and — of course — wine.

Your neighbor's kitchen

Accountant also a gourmet

By Barbara Richmond Herald Reporter

David Garaventa of Meadow Lane owns an accounting firm. But you can be sure a lot of his friends would rather have him spend all of his time cooking.

Garaventa, along with several other Manchester men, attended gourmet cooking classes taught by Mary Schubert in South Windsor. He has several favorite recipes but his very favorite one is "Steak au Poivre."

Garaventa said he had cooked for a couple of years before attending the gourmet classes. During the busy tax season he cooks just on Friday and Saturday nights. He said he and attorney Joel Janenda, another member of the class, put on a big meal one night for a group of friends and that was a huge success.

He said his interest in cooking started way back when the Manchester Herald published a cookbook. "The three most important people in my cooking are my wife, Marie, Mary Schubert, and Fred Lee, my butcher," he said.

His recipe for steak and the one for the torte are both ones he obtained from Mrs. Schubert during classes.

Steak au Poivre

This recipe is made to serve four people. 4 individual steaks (completely trimmed) 1/4 cup peppercorns 2/3 tablespoons oil 1/4 cup cognac 1/2 cup heavy cream salt watercress

Crush the peppercorns and place steaks on them, coating both sides. Cover bottom of saute pan with oil and heat. Sauté steak at medium-high heat until rare or medium-rare. Remove steak from pan and discard oil. Return steak to pan, add cognac and ignite. Allow to cook until flames cease. Remove steaks to serving platter and keep warm. Add cream to the pan and stir over high heat. Cream will boil and thicken. Add one teaspoon cognac and salt to taste. Spoon sauce over steak. (At medium-rare juice begins to puddle on top of beef.) Serve with fried potatoes and watercress.

"Gourmets tell me that the full flavor spectrum — from the steak to a full-bodied wine — to the watercress is a gourmet delight. I agree with them," Garaventa added.

Holiday Torte

The Holiday Torte made using a favorite recipe man chocolate cake filling it and topping it following: 8 oz. cream cheese 1 cup sour cream 1 cup sugar 1 teaspoon vanilla 1/2 cup chopped Maraschino cherries 1/4 cup chopped nuts 1/4 cup grated chocolate 1 1/2 cup heavy cream

To make cream: Beat cream cheese, sour cream, 2/3 cup sugar, vanilla and cinnamon until smooth. Fold in cherries, chocolate, and nuts. Beat heavy cream until thick with 1/2 cup sugar. Fold half the whipped cream into the sour cream mixture. To assemble: Split cake layers in half, crosswise, to make four layers. Fill and top with the confectionery cream. Frost sides with remaining whipped cream. Refrigerate.

Kugel is year-round favorite

Kugel often is thought of as a Jewish holiday dish. However, made with fruits or vegetables it is a year-round favorite in many homes. A dessert version is made with fresh plums and applesauce. Serve with heavy or whipped cream, if desired.

FLUM NOODLE KUGEL 6 ounces farfala (bow knots) or medium egg noodles (about 3 1/2 cups), uncooked 3 eggs 1 cup sugar 1 teaspoon cinnamon 3/4 cups (1 1/4 pounds) fresh California plums, quartered and pitted 1 cup applesauce 1 cup soft bread crumbs 1/2 cup chopped nuts 2 tablespoons melted butter 2 Cook noodles in boiling salted water until barely tender. Drain and rinse in cold water. Beat eggs. Add sugar and cinnamon; mix well. Toss noodles in egg mixture; stir in plums and applesauce. Pour into buttered 2-quart casserole. Combine bread crumbs, nuts and butter; sprinkle over top. Bake in 350-degree oven, 50 minutes, or until golden. Serve warm with heavy or whipped cream. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 to 8 servings.

Soviet weddings: no pomp — no champagne

MOSCOW (UPI) — An official confiscated the champagne, but otherwise Natasha and Pavel were married the way all Soviet couples are — with little pomp and a ceremony lasting less than nine minutes.

Soviet citizens marrying for the first time may choose to have the ceremony in a wedding palace, usually an ordinary-looking, office-type building found in every major town. The first was founded in 1969 in Leningrad in response to a demand to give a little more meaning to the occasion. All other marriages take place in registry offices.

Natasha and Pavel were married in Moscow's best wedding palace after waiting the standard three months. They arrived together in taxis decorated with colored ribbons and two joined circles symbolizing linked wedding rings. Their guests came with them. Their parents stayed home. It is a tradition, springing from weddings in the Russian Orthodox church, for parents not to attend.

The wedding party proceeded to a suite of ceremonial rooms. They checked their coats at the cloakroom on the way. The attendant confiscated the bottles of champagne. "That sort of thing is not allowed in here," she said. The rooms were large and impersonal. Somber colored heavy furniture, mirrored walls. There were wedding gowns everywhere — brides in long, white, lacy dresses, bashful grooms and guests carrying flowers.

Most brides spend a lot of money on their wedding gowns. "I spent a fortune on mine," said Natasha, 25. "130 rubles — that's almost a month's salary. I knew I would only wear it for one day and that it would not stand out from all the other brides at the palace. But I wanted to do it all to make the day special and meaningful."

Her friend Tanya had done the same. "We know the wedding ceremony is a bit laughable," she said, "but it's all we have and we want to make the most of it."

Double doors led to a spacious room. A five-man orchestra played the opening bars of Mendelssohn's wedding march. A wedding group proceeded through, fussed over by a matronly official. Ten minutes and it was repeated — doors opened, orchestra played, group entered, doors closed. Ten more minutes, and it was happening again.

Every day 40 to 50 couples are married in this palace. None can take more than 15 minutes. Soviets call it a "conveyor-belt wedding."

Supermarket Shopper

Resume battle against prices

By Martin Sloane

The summer is over, the children are back in school and everything is returning to "normal." Unfortunately, that means we must resume fighting the battle against rising food prices.

The manufacturers of the supermarket brands that you know so well — like Campbell's, Birds Eye and Maxwell House — will make more than 9,000 refund offers that can turn almost every box top and label in your kitchen into cash.

Beautifying public grounds boosts her spirits

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Ursula Winter grew up in Germany, where flowers and public gardens are a way of life. During 21 years in the United States, she never grew accustomed to blighted public areas.

Providence yard. Early in the morning and again in the evening, she is at the capitol's plaza, watering hundreds of flowers planted as part of a dream.

Rather than despair, she decided to do something about it. Since early August, Mrs. Winter has been sprucing up the grounds of the marble Statehouse with beds of marigolds raised in her North Providence yard.

She formed a group — Rhode Island Citizens Act Now, or RICAN — to help instill residents and government officials with a new spirit of pride in their public places.

It wasn't easy to get her green thumb in the door as it sounds. It took months to reach officials who could grant permission to a taxpayer who wanted to give — rather than get — something from government.

Finally, in August, she got the OK from general services chief Everett Trivisono to plant her beds of yellow, golden and orange blooms.

RICAN hopes to enlist garden clubs, historical and heritage societies, colleges and school districts in its work. Mrs. Winter said she wants to get permission from the city of Providence to gather leaves in large areas where they can compost through the winter and serve as fertilizer next year.

It's not official, but Mondale's running

When Walter Mondale was vice president under Jimmy Carter, many Democrats urged him to use his office to project himself as his own man. Mondale didn't. But that was a long time ago. The new Walter Mondale isn't like that at all.

Although he won't announce it for some time, Mondale is, indeed, running for president right now and will gladly take on Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in a primary-tomorrow-if-necessary.

For the record, Mondale can't say he's running because of campaign financing laws. Off the record, we can tell you that he is holding off on the record meetings with editorial boards across the country and is in constant touch with all Democratic state leaders.

He's starting out like Ronald Reagan did: just a steady diet of campaigning so he'll be a household name in short order, said a top Mondale supporter. "Mondale wants to drop his Mr. Nice Guy image and come up looking like the toughest opponent for Reagan."

It's all over between Rock and Tatum. Rex drew such raves in "Pirates" that he's been signed to do the movie version later this year in London. But his Broadway experience has what his appetite for more stage work. "It was terrific," he enthused. "Kevin Kline who was a Tony for his role as the pirate King and I became close friends. In fact, the entire cast was close. But the thing that really flipped me out was the interest people had in me. I'd wake up in the morning, read the paper and find out where I'd eaten the night before."

My husband and I just finished seeing Richard Harris locally in "Camelot." Could he tell us more about him? Is he married?—R.T., Summerfield, Ill.

Harris, a temperamental Irishman, and wife Ann Turkel have been on again, off again such a long time that, but were never in love, including them, seems to be able to say what the present status of their marriage is. We know that they were wed five years ago, but they often bicker, lead for the courts, patch things up and start all over again. Harris was married earlier to Elizabeth, the daughter of Lord and Lady Ogborne.

Nobody has been able to answer this: What TV series did Mike Connors star in before "Mannix"?—B.S., Jenneville, Wis. That was "Tight Rope" in 1959 and 1960, a 60-minute crime series aired on Tuesday nights over CBS-TV. Connors played Nick Stone.

Advice

Neighbors' garden big problem

DEAR ABBY: Recently our 12-year-old son was grounded by his father for calling the police to report that our neighbors had marijuana growing in their garden. I feel that this punishment was unjust since marijuana is illegal, and our son was only doing what he was instructed to do by the local police in lectures at his school. These neighbors are not into drugs. They are good friends and don't even smoke the stuff, but they were given the plants and were growing them just for the fun and novelty of it. Since the police confiscated only two dying plants, no charges were filed against our neighbors. They admitted it was a silly but dangerous thing to do. Regardless of the neighbors' intentions, I feel that our son's motives and his willingness to do what he thought was right were commendable, and he should not have been grounded. What do you say?
CONCERNED MOM

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren
I married the sweetest, best-natured man in town. Everyone envied me because he was such a swell guy, 40 and I'm 34. Before we were married we lived together for two years and got along like a pair of lovebirds, but as soon as we made it legal, our relationship started to go downhill. Now he finds fault with everything I do. He used to be a wonderful man, but he's smothering by the time I get into bed. He used to be tidy and neat. I now have a slob.

DEAR MOM: Knowing that these neighbors were "good friends" of yours, I'm wondering why your son didn't discuss his "marijuana find" with his parents before calling the police to report these friendly neighbors. Sorry, Mom, I can't agree that your son's motives were altogether commendable.

DEAR ABBY: You won't believe this, but I've been married only three months and I'm already halfway to the divorce court!

Connie snaps out of trauma

Goodbye, 'Dolly' Carol wants a new B'way hit

By Vernon Scott
UPI Hollywood Reporter
Miracle — the way she finally snapped out of the 7-year trauma she suffered after rape.
In November 1974 the dark-haired singer was raped in her motel room on Long Island after a performance at the Westbury Music Fair. The assault was to have far-reaching and devastating effect on Connie.

She was hit with deep depression that eventually led to a divorce from her husband, Joe Garzari. Connie became paranoid about appearing in public and was physically incapable of singing before an audience. There followed a lengthy, publicly humiliating court battle. Connie sued the Howard Johnson motel chain for damages and eventually collected $2.6 million. "I was physically and emotionally unable to go on with my career," she said.

She spoke to individuals and groups of women, from teenagers to older women who had survived similar experiences. "Three and a half years after the rape I tried to get my career going again," she said. "I went to England and did an awful live show. I didn't sound like myself. And I cut a couple of albums. It took me 20 takes per song whereas I used to click them right off. The albums were just fails."

She was the first time I'd ever cried about the rape, really let my feelings go. I also went about the trial, the operation and blame her. Statistics show that one out of every three marriages today ends in the divorce court. And if you live in California, it's one out of every two!

DEAR BLOOD: Once married, the spouse becomes a part of family history, so regardless of how long the marriage lasts, that part of history can't be denied by simply omitting the spouse from the portrait.

"I stopped the car and telephoned my father and my manager. I told my manager to book me back in the Westbury Music Fair. And he did. I'll be opening Nov. 12. It's my way of overcoming the fear of the rape. I know it's paranoid, but I'll have two bodyguards with me. And I'll drive home two hours every night rather than stay in a motel. But I'm really happy and relaxed. I can sing again. And I can work again!"

New art building Wednesday TV

STORRS — The University of Connecticut's new art building will be officially opened Sept. 27 as the culmination of a week-long celebration of the arts, climaxed with a parade, puppets and fireworks.

The festivities, called "Artscape '81," really began Sept. 20, and emphasize the visual arts, but music and drama will be featured as well. Additionally, there will be public tours of the building and fine arts complex each day of the celebration.

Actually, the School of Fine Arts has been using the building for a year. Ground was broken in the spring 1979 and the structure was completed two years later. It includes 15 studio-classrooms, three lecture rooms, two galleries, a slide library and offices, and features a solar heated hot water supply.

The program will include dance by Assoc. Prof. Jean Sabatine and the Jazz Dance Theater, and folk art by Robert McCreath, assistant professor and Jerry Krasser, associate professor and others. The art department will exhibit works of its art gallery building.

Yale Theater opens new season on Oct. 6
The plays selected thus far are as follows: "Uncle Vanya" by Anton Chekhov, opens the season, beginning Oct. 6 and running through Oct. 24. "Mrs. Warren's Profession" by George Bernard Shaw runs from Nov. 3 through Nov. 21.

PHOTOS SHOWN
Sylvan Ofara, associate professor of photography and director of the Picture Place at Manchester Community College has announced that a photographic exhibition of the works of Diana Chapman is being displayed at the Picture Place Sept. 16 through Oct. 9.

Auditions planned for scholarships

HARTFORD — Music scholarship auditions will be held Oct. 2 and 3 at the Hartford Conservatory, 334-46 Asylum Ave. The Beatrice Fox Auerbach Music Award represents a full scholarship to talented students under age 25 who expect to make a career in music. Applicants may audition on piano, string, or wind instruments. Also, special scholarship funds are available to Hartford residents to study at the Conservatory in all music and dance areas.

Wednesday TV

ABC-TV's explosive melodrama DYNASTY continues on Wednesday, September 16. In this week's episode Blake's fury at finding Steven (Al Corley, pictured) and Ted embracing in Steven's room erupts into deadly violence and ends in tragedy. Kristie takes drastic action against Blake after a bitter confrontation with him over the fake emerald necklace, and Claudia, shattered by the re-emergence of Ted into Steven's life, pleads with Matthew to move the family out of Denver.

NEW YORK — Who needs chief executives? Certainly not Alan Schonberg of Cleveland. Schonberg is an executive recruiter whose firm, Management Recruiters International, Inc., has more than 400 offices and does $100 million worth of business yearly without bothering with chairmen of corporate boards or company presidents.

"We stick to middle management administrators and professional sales and technical executives for an excellent reason," he said. "I don't know what the actual ratio is but there must be several hundred middle management sales and technical executive jobs to fill for every chairman or president. It's a huge market in which not many recruiters specialize."

Schonberg said, however, a number of recruiters who worked exclusively in the topmanagement field are beginning to turn to the middlemanagement area. He mentioned a survey by Korn-Perry, one of the biggest recruiting firms, showing that mergers are significantly reducing the opportunities in recruiting chief executives.

Many recruiters who are very active in middle management are narrow specialists, finding people with heavy experience in a single industry or a single professional field.

Even Schonberg is not above some specializing. Among his 400 offices, there are 102 in a division called sales consultants which finds sales staff for his clients who include many firms in the Fortune 500 list. He also has a firm called Office Mates, more like a traditional employment agency, recruiting and finding jobs for secretaries and office support personnel.

Schonberg offered a military analogy to explain his belief in the overriding importance of middle management: "It's a common saying that an army is run by the non-coms and junior officers," he said. "Generals don't count for much in peacetime. Most officers and enlisted men will tell you a good first sergeant is the most valuable man in uniform."

That Schonberg holds this view is not surprising. He is a self-educated man who acquired much of his business training in the army. A native of New York, he was a paratrooper in World War II. He was discharged at the end of the war in Europe. He went back to work for the Army running post exchanges.

When he did come home, he worked for a women's sportswear firm, then went into the employment agency field when he decided to go into business for himself.

Management Recruiters International has grown steadily from revenues of $800,000 in 1965. It has grown by merger and acquisition as well as by steady internal progress.

"We kept constantly upgrading our business and looking for bigger clients," he said, "meanwhile recruiting our own force of some 2,000 account executives. We raised our fees as we became more professional. They have gone up about three times with each doubling of the salary in a job we fill," he explained.

The company works on the usual contingent fee basis of about one-third of the annual salary of the job filled.

Schonberg said middle-management recruiting is very different from recruiting chief executives and chief operating officers.

"Recruiting good sales people, for example, is fascinating, with the requirements hard to explain. Often you can only go by the candidate's track record. Finding professional and technical people is simpler. In this field, personal traits and interaction with other people are less important; degrees and proven professional or technical accomplishment are all-important."

College aid to be based on need

Of all the federal programs to aid in financing college education that have been the targets of the Reagan administration's budget ax, the program hit hardest has been the widely used (and widely abused) Guaranteed Student Loan Program (GSL). And of all the parents or students who will feel the adverse impact, the hardest hit will be families earning more than $30,000 a year, particularly with children with only average scholastic grades.

It's entirely understandable, even if implications of the trend make you wince. In 1981 alone, this program has involved an estimated $7.2 billion of lending - far beyond the total of any of its ever contemplated. And the loan defaults in the GSL program have been inflicting. Starting last January, the interest rate for Guaranteed Student Loans was boosted from 7 percent to 9 percent. Now:

All those who receive loans must pay a 5 percent "origination fee." This fee, taken right off the top, cuts the amount of cash the borrower gets. In effect, the fee reduces a $2,500 loan (the maximum allowed for one year) to $2,375, although the borrower must pay interest on the entire $2,500.

As of Oct. 1, student loans will be based on family income, as loans were before 1978. If you're a family with earnings of more than $30,000 a year, you will have to meet a new requirement, a "need test," based on your

Your Money's Worth
Sylvia Porter

income, before your children can be considered for a loan. (If you're a family with earnings of less than $30,000, you still can borrow up to $2,500 a year for each undergraduate.)

Most affected by the new provisions of the GSL Program are students who expect to start college in fall, 1982.

"Students who are enrolled this fall will be largely unaffected by the need test," says Lawrence E. Gladieux, executive director of the College Board's Washington office, "because they will already have had their loans approved by Oct. 1."

While the details of the ("need test") for the 1982-83 school year have not been completely worked out, for the 1981-82 term the financial aid officer at your child's college can quickly determine whether you qualify for a GSL. The formula used takes into consideration family income, household size and number of children in college, then comes up with a number called "expected family contribution." This contribution, together with any other aid or benefits your child is receiving, is subtracted from the total college costs to determine the amount that can be borrowed through the Guaranteed Student Loan Program.)

If you borrow under the GSL Program to pay 1981-82 college bills, you'll probably have to seek other sources of funding next year, if your "expected family contribution" is higher than your child's college costs.

Here's an example of how the formula works: if your family's adjusted gross income (from line 31 of your income tax form 1040, or line 11 of form 1040A) is $35,000, and your child's total college costs are $7,000 per year, your eligibility for GSL would shape up this way for 1981-2:

Total college costs, $7,000; expected family contribution, $3,640.

Remaining demonstrated need: $3,360 other financial aid or benefits, $2,000.

Remaining need, $1,360. This portion of the expense can be borrowed through GSL.

"Federal costs of Guaranteed Student Loans have mushroomed since Congress opened the program to any student, regardless of income, in 1978," Gladieux stresses.

"This year's reforms return the program to the more traditional federal philosophy of basing assistance on financial need. The challenge is to reduce the burden on taxpayers without unfairly burdening needy students and families."

And the challenge to you, the parents and students? Start as fast as you read this, even if you're still a high school junior, to line up your sources of future financial aid. That involves working summers and vacations and investigating all possible aid packages that might be available through employers, unions, fraternal organizations, etc. The "dream" of an education for all America's young is a fading memory.
