Court rejects abortion bid

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (UPI) — An attorney's bid to secure a change of custody or obtain a court-ordered abortion for a sexually abused 11-year-old girl was rejected Friday by a Kalamazoo County circuit judge.

Judge John Fitzgerald upheld a juvenile court ruling and refused to grant temporary custody of the girl to her father, who would have permitted the abortion.

The girl's mother is opposed to the abortion, but neither parent has legal custody of the girl, who was declared a ward of the court Sept. 23.

A man who lived with the girl, her sister and mother allegedly had relations with the girl. He is being held in the county jail on first-degree criminal sexual conduct charges.

Nelson Peletier, the girl's court-appointed attorney, said he probably will not appeal the decision. He said any further court action will not be quick enough to allow the girl, who is 23 weeks pregnant, to have an abortion before the legal limit of 24 weeks.

"I will probably do nothing, and I say that after some thought," Peletier said. "It's not week or never, and I don't know of any remedy that quickly. In theory, I could continue, but I see no fruitfulness in that for my client... it would be meaningless to my client."

Old philosophy in Washington

SMITHFIELD, R.I. (UPI) — Political activist and former New York Rep. Bella Abzug says the Reagan administration budget reflects his belief in the 19th century "economic philosophy" of survival of the fittest.

"Those with the most wealth and the most political power are trying to get more wealth and more political power. I think that is the objective of this administration," Mrs. Abzug said.

It is a return to the philosophy of the 19th century and social Darwinism — the survival of the fittest and unrestrained accumulation of wealth, she said.

Mrs. Abzug 61 made the comments at Bryant College Thursday, telling about 300 people what she believed were the Reagan administration's pluses and minuses.

She was elected to Congress as a Democrat in 1976 and served six years as a vocal and outspoken supporter of civil rights, the Equal Rights Amendment and opponent of the Vietnam War. In 1979 she was named chairwoman of the President's National Advisory Committee for Women but was fired by President Carter over a budget disagreement.

What she tried to point out is the budget of a nation is its value system. Federal policies in its way kept up with the changing needs of women or recognized they were the majority of the population," she said.

She had similar complaints about Reagan's budget priorities.

Reagan's solution to economic problems deserves a great deal of criticism. It can't possibly work," Mrs. Abzug said.

Baptists allow performance

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — The oldest Baptist organization in the South refused Friday to cancel an evening performance of an all-white boys choir from South Africa and black leaders organized a protest against apartheid outside the church.

"We do not perceive grade school boys who come from South Africa and who happen to have excellent voices as a hot political issue," said the Rev. David Newton, assistant pastor of First Baptist Church. "We're going ahead with it."

Its performance at Augusta, Ga., Wednesday night drew about 200 demonstrators. An appearance in a Raleigh, N.C., church whose membership includes Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., attracted about 30.

A protest by students at the University of Georgia in Athens led officials to cancel the choir's scheduled concert there.

Bush warns Cuban leader

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — Vice President George Bush warned Cuban leader Fidel Castro Friday that it was no longer safe for him "to meddle" in the affairs of other Latin American countries.

"We free countries must stand up against this," Bush told a meeting of editors and publishers from the InterAmerican Press Association.

Speaking of Castro, Bush told the Latin American journalists "as long as he (Castro) thought the United States and others of us in this hemisphere who stand for freedom didn't want to get involved, or weren't going to speak out, he knew it was safe to meddle. But it is no longer safe."

In his address, Bush repeated that Washington has "overwhelming evidence" that Cuba is funneling Soviet arms into Central America via Nicaragua, saying "we must find ways to stop this insidious export."

Unusual rainfall causes evacuation in Texas

SHERMAN, Texas (UPI) — A night of torrential, hard-driving rain forced more than 500 people — including the residents of a nursing home — to flee to higher ground Friday.

Several days of unusually heavy rains across north and central Texas already had been blamed for six deaths and Friday's storm covered much of the farmland from Dallas north to Sherman — a distance of some 60 miles — with several inches of water.

The National Weather Service warned Friday's storm had become nearly stationary and advised as much as 4 additional inches of rainfall could be expected throughout the area.

Sheriff's officials said two cars were swept off the road early Friday by raging floodwaters, but sheriff's deputies plucked the four motorists from trees and a creek, frightened but unharmed.

Close and cars that had been picked up by the water and scattered like toys lay on sidewalks and in flooded areas. An asphalt parking lot was ripped apart by the force of the floodwaters, which also frequently disrupted phone service.

The rain, which totaled more than 7 inches from midnight to dawn in Sherman, washed two already swollen creeks out of their banks and into an apartment complex and the Chapel of Care nursing home.

Despite some close calls when two boats overturned, no deaths were reported in Sherman.

"I'm so tired I'm blank," said nursing home administrator Louise Langford, who dressed in knee boots with her pants rolled up, was directing cleanup efforts. "We've got so much to do yet. But thank God nobody got hurt. The building damage — that's minor. Thank God nobody got hurt."

Water from Post Oak Creek seeped into the building, leaving a high water mark several feet deep.

located near a bend of Sandy Creek. Usually only a few feet wide, Sandy Creek stretched more than 100 yards before daylight. At midday, it stretched back a fast-moving river more than 30 feet wide but the water was slowly receding.

Mark Grams, who lived in one of the apartments farthest from the creek, still had 2 feet of water in the living area of his residence. Looking at the soggy, muddy carpet, Grams said: "We're going to plant crops now."

Dodd says peace talks possible in El Salvador

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., said Friday that El Salvador's leftist guerrillas and the ruling Christian Democratic party are prepared to begin an informal dialogue to seek a solution to the country's political violence.

WASHINGTON — Sen. Christopher Dodd, Democrat, returned from a two-and-one-half day trip to El Salvador with a "commitment" from the ruling government there and from opposing leftist guerrillas to begin a "dialogue" on resolving the internal strife that has killed thousands.

Dodd, acting on his own, spent the earlier part of the week in San Salvador meeting clandestinely with "officials high up within the guerrilla movement" and openly with President Napoleon Duarte, a Christian-Democrat, along with religious leaders, U.S. military advisers in El Salvador and officials in the Salvadoran military.

assistance and by encouraging popular elections.

"For the first time, officials on both sides (Christian-Democrats and leftists) have expressed a desire to have a dialogue without pre-conditions," said Dodd, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Dodd noted that neither side is winning the war in a military or popular sense.

Dodd also said that the names of the people who killed the four American nuns in El Salvador last December were known by "high up officials 24 hours after it happened," and that the American embassy also now knows who killed the women. But legal technicalities, said Dodd, make it impossible to publicly expose the murderers.

Budget cuts in trouble

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republican leaders Friday sent President Reagan word his spending cuts will be achieved this year, but they will try to reach his budget-balancing goal over three years.

Appropriations Committee chairman Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., described efforts to pin down the cuts as sort of a "floating crap game" with an ultimate goal of balancing the budget in fiscal 1982.

Afterward, Hatfield told reporters he suggested a $4 billion defense cut as part of his committee's share of the proposed cuts, but the White House team stood by its original proposal for only $2 billion in cuts.

Stockman also said the administration still hopes for the $16 billion it proposed last month in additional spending reductions for fiscal 1982.

Tennessee said, "We support the president's call for $10 billion over three years... We support the totality of the president's request."

Baker would not say whether the group supported or thought it could reach Reagan's target of $16 billion in 1982 cuts.

But Hatfield said his panel could only come up with $5 billion or $6 billion of the $14 billion that has been asked to find. He said the $16 billion might be achieved through actions by other committees, but it did not appear the other chairmen offered plans to make up the difference.

FICA earnings limit up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The earnings limit for Social Security taxes — the point at which the government stops taking money out of your paycheck for the retirement fund — will rise to $22,600 in 1982, the government said Friday.

That is an increase of $2,700 from this year's limit of $19,900.

And Americans paying the top rate will shell out $100 more next year, since the maximum tax will rise from $1,975 to $2,170.

Under a law passed in 1977 to bail out the retirement system, the Social Security tax rate rises next January from 6.5 percent of earnings to 6.7 percent. Employers' contributions rise by the same amount.

tax of $3,029.40, up $267.30 over this year, the government said. The earnings limit for self-employed people also rises to $25,400 annually.

Several other Social Security changes also will take effect Jan. 1, the government noted Friday. They include:

— The maximum amount of earnings a beneficiary under age 65 can earn in a year without losing Social Security benefits will rise from $4,980 in 1981 to $4,440 in 1982.

— Beneficiaries ages 65 to 72 may earn $6,000 in 1982, up from this year's $5,500, before losing benefits.

— A worker must earn $340 next year, up from $310 this year, to be eligible for a quarter of coverage under Social Security.

Candidates should pick delegates

On July 8, 1972, a 727 jetliner, chartered by the Massachusetts state Democratic committee, departed Boston for Miami. On board was most of the state's delegation to the 1972 national convention - which was the first of its kind to require all state delegations to include minorities, women and youth "in reasonable relation to the group's population in the state."

Men of guns and a man of peace

When he stood in front of the Knesset that day and addressed Israel's parliament, he was speaking to the ruling body of a people he had been at war with only five years before. He was speaking to former soldiers, tank drivers, fighter pilots. He was speaking to the Egyptian people to the Israeli people. And he was widely applauded. But Anwar Sadat was speaking for a lot more than that. Anwar Sadat seemed to be one same man standing up and speaking in a world populated by insane men who wanted only to destroy each other. He was speaking for reason and sanity in this day and age when a single bomb can wipe out hundreds of people, a day and age when the warheads unleashed from a single missile can strike a dozen different targets with unthinkable results. Egypt has not lost Anwar Sadat. The entire world has lost Anwar Sadat. A man like that comes along maybe once every quarter-century and with the world in the situation it is today, the loss of an Anwar Sadat cannot be calculated. We can only hope and pray the next man destined to be an Anwar Sadat surfaces quickly.

Politics, paramedics don't mix

To the Editor: How much is your life worth? If you or your loved ones have a medical emergency, do you want basic medical care or advanced medical care? You will decide on Nov. 3 when you vote on a paramedic program to be implemented in the town of Manchester. The only available emergency medical services in this town right now is basic life-supporting procedures. I have been an Emergency Medical Technician for over 6 years. I work for the Ambulance Service of Manchester and I feel that the EMTs in this town are doing a great job for what they have been trained.

dividual decision that only you can make. Do you know what within 4 to 6 minutes after your heart stops beating, irreversible brain damage is present? Do you really think someone could get you to the hospital within 5 minutes? If someone with you dials 911 and help arrives in 5 minutes, you have one minute left. Then what? One minute isn't much time to get anyone out of a house or car, into an ambulance and arrive at the hospital. Be realistic! Bring the emergency room to you by way of a paramedic. The paramedic is actually an extension of the doctor in the emergency room. Manchester is in an unusual situation where the 8th District is at all affiliated with the town fire department. I have attended every EMS council meeting since it was formed in July, 1980. The only negative comments I've heard are from people in the 8th District fire department.

It will not be so clearly stated as to be flexibility. White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters they will never see a foreign policy address by Reagan per se. He indicated that the building blocks are speeches by Secretary of State Alexander Haig before the United Nations, and Reagan's address to the International Monetary Fund, a broad brush exhortation to the undeveloped nations to put their houses in order and to return to a heavier reliance on free enterprise. But other than laying down a hard line against the Soviet Union, with ample threats to boot, Reagan's foreign policy in many areas of the world has yet to be articulated. It is negative and offers no new roads to life and improving the quality of life in many areas.

The congressman's "main objection to the proposal" to cut the questionable drugs of Uncle Sam's subsidy list, according to a Billy spokesman, was that the cutoff was put into the budget package without his knowledge - a curious assertion considering the confusion that surrounded the last-minute drafting of the budget legislation. Billy feels that the largest and to the drug subsidy violates the "due process rights of manufacturers" waiting to have their side of the story told to the FDA. He also feels that "most of the drugs (on the list) are effective," his spokesman said. This puts the freshman congressman in direct opposition to the

He came under intense criticism in 1973 when as defense minister, he was one of those blamed for Israel's surprise at the Arab attack that launched the Yom Kippur war — a conflict that ironically helped pave the way for Sadat's 1977 peace initiative.

Dayan participated in that campaign too, helping to negotiate the Camp David accords as foreign minister in Prime Minister Menachem Begin's first cabinet.

When he was appointed to that post after defecting from the Labor Party, parents of soldiers killed in the 1973 war took to the streets in protest, claiming he was not fit to serve.

But to most Israelis — and more so to the world — Moshe Dayan and his distinctive eye patch continued to represent the spirit of the repatriated Jewish people — defiant, proud and straight-talking.

Naphthalie Lavie, Israeli consul general in New York, called Dayan a man who was at once "pessimistic but realistic" and always "very humane."

Lavie, a close friend for 30 years, said Dayan once told him that "when the time comes" he would like to be buried at the kibbutz in northern Israel where he was born and where his parents are buried.

A protégé of David Ben-Gurion, Israel's first prime minister, Dayan entered politics as a Labor Party member of parliament in 1959 and became minister of agriculture and then defense.

When Labor passed him over as a candidate for prime minister in 1977, he joined Begin's Likud coalition as foreign minister. But he was a political wanderer at heart and he quit Begin's government in October, 1979, to protest its hardline policies towards the 1.2 million Palestinians of the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Despite deteriorating health, he formed his own party, Telem. But he won only two seats in general elections in June on a platform advocating unilateral autonomy for the Palestinians.

"It is a loss," said Elias Fretj, the moderate Palestinian mayor of Bethlehem in the West Bank, of Dayan's passing.

"He was practical in his dealings and he had a personal style. He could have achieved something with the Arabs."

Dayan was born a native Palestinian in May, 1915 — the first child at Kibbutz Degania, first of the communal farms that pioneered modern Jewish settlements in what was then part of the Ottoman Turkish Empire.

His childhood friends included Arabs from nearby Bedouin tribes, some of whom he later met in jail when he was imprisoned by the British for illegal arms possession.

Dayan praised as soldier and peacemaker

By United Press International

Moshe Dayan was eulogized Friday by Israel, Egypt and U.S. President Ronald Reagan as a great soldier, a great statesman, a man of war, a man of peace.

Egypt praised him as a man who believed that peaceful coexistence between Israel and the Palestinian people is possible.

Dayan played an important role in the negotiations between Egypt and Israel that led to a 1979 peace treaty, said Boutros Ghali, State Minister for Foreign Affairs.

Dayan still represented the first generation of those who fought for and built up the state of Israel, said Uri Parash, a spokesman for Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Dayan provided his nation with military leadership that was the envy of the world, said Reagan.

"His bold strategies brought him victory on the battle field and respect from friend and foe alike.

"His service as a statesman was no less distinguished. He demonstrated those inner qualities of good will and integrity that are essential for peace and security.

"Soldiers do a foreign general and a statesman receive such admiration from Americans as did Moshe Dayan. His image became to many the symbol of Israeli resolve — the resolve of a great people to be free and independent, and a resolve shared by the people of the United States.

In Beirut, editors of the Daily An Nahar said: "For the Arabs for a long time, Dayan was a symbol of aggression. But since the coming of Begin and Shimon to power, Dayan appeared to be much more of a pragmatist. Since his resignation as foreign minister in 1979, he has had no impact."

"Personally he was our enemy. I am happy," said a middle ranked information official of the Palestinian Liberation Organization. "But since he died of natural causes, it is less important than if he had died in an accident or by assassination. It will make no difference. Israeli policy will not change."

In Paris, French Defense Minister Charles Hernu said he was "extremely moved" by the death of Dayan.

"I have known him for many years," said Hernu, who added that he was paying tribute in his private capacity to the late Israeli defense minister, and was not doing it in his official capacity.

Israel's consul-general in New York, Naphthalie Lavie, described the Jewish state's former foreign and defense minister as "very humane, sometimes pessimistic but very realistic."

"He once told me that he was loved and hated by the people but he hoped that when he died people would remember his contribution to the modern history of the State of Israel," he said.

Lavie, who went with Dayan during the Yom Kippur War across the Egyptian Suez Canal several

Jews join in eulogy

Manchester's Jewish community has joined world leaders in eulogizing Friday's death of Moshe Dayan.

"His death is lamented by all Israel and many people all over the world," Rabbi Emeritus Leon Wind of the Temple Beth Shalom said Friday. "He was a great man. He was chief of staff during the several wars of the independence and survival of Israel and he was mainly responsible for the victory in the Six Day War in 1967 that saved Israel."

Rabbi Wind said no plans for local memorials have been made yet.

"It was so sudden and so soon that we haven't had time to plan anything yet," he said. "But I'm sure Rabbi [Richard] Plavin of Temple Beth Shalom and some other people will be planning something, or else we may join in a statewide memorial. But something will be mentioned in the next few days, I'm sure."

times, said in a recent interview that he asked Dayan why he placed himself in such dangerous positions during enemy attack.

Dayan told him he would never send his own men where where he would not go himself, Lavie said.

Former U.S. President Gerald Ford said: "An old friend and outstanding leader, Moshe Dayan, was badly missed as we move forward with the peace process in the Middle East."

In New York, Howard M. Sussman, chairman of the Conference of Presidents of major American Jewish organizations said: "Moshe Dayan was a hero of war and a hero of peace, a gallant officer who led his nation's defense against Arab aggression and a creative architect of the Camp David accords and the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty."

In the hearts of his countrymen and of Jews everywhere, Moshe Dayan will live on as a soldier and statesman who served the cause of peace on the battlefield and in the negotiating table.

Director candidates clash on paramedics

Board of Directors candidates Arnold Wilson, Klein Schmidt and Edward J. Wilson took opposite sides of the fence this week in position papers addressing the issue of paramedics.

Klein Schmidt, an incumbent Democrat who serves as liaison to the Emergency Medical Services council, said he strongly favors such a program, while Wilson, an independent, said important questions about it have been left unanswered.

Voters will decide for themselves whether the town should spend up to $360,000 annually for a paramedic program in an advisory referendum question which will appear on the Nov. 3 ballot.

"Such a program can greatly improve the emergency medical care available to all residents of Manchester," said Klein Schmidt. "The rate of death in towns that have paramedics is far less than in towns that do not have these trained professionals."

Klein Schmidt quoted a study conducted this year in Seattle, Wash., which showed that 60 percent of all cardiac-related deaths occurred outside the hospital, and that 94 percent of all victims treated by paramedics can be brought to the hospital in a stabilized condition.

"Not only are cardiac arrest victims more likely to survive, but patients with all cardiac conditions exhibited two-fold improvement in the odds of survival," according to Klein Schmidt.

Wilson charged, however, that the paramedic program "would seem to be a costly duplication of services now efficiently handled by the Eight Utilities District emergency medical technicians."

Klein Schmidt countered that while EMTs can perform such basic tasks as controlling severe bleeding and performing cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, "the paramedic will respond to all life-threatening emergencies."

He said paramedics can also administer medications, start intravenous fluids, electrically stimulate the heart and stabilize the patient at the scene of the emergency, before and during transport to the hospital.

Wilson questioned whether the paramedic program would create a new town department or sub-department for billing, hiring and administrative overhead, adding to increased taxes. "I called for further examination of a hospital-administered program, rejected earlier this year by the EMS council in favor of one run by the town."

Klein Schmidt said the Board of Directors would be able to monitor the budget of a town-administered plan. "If other plans were used," he said, "they would have no control over budget costs."

Wilson argued that the per capita cost of the program does not include the cost of commercial ambulance transport to the hospital. There are no calling hours. Memorial donations may be made to the charity of the donor's choice.

Dr. Robert Butterfield, Richard Caron and Irene Smith will provide information on the proposed paramedic team and its relation to needs in the community.

Because of the Thanksgiving holiday, the Council's November meeting will be on Dec. 3.

At the last meeting of the Council's executive committee, Clara J. Silvia, assistant director of Manchester Memorial Hospital, announced his resignation as Council president.

In his letter of resignation, Silvia cited time constraints as his reason for leaving the post.

"It has become apparent in over the past six months that I do not have the time to serve effectively as president of the council," he said. "In order to provide the leadership and guidance considerably more time is needed than I am able to provide."

No successor has been named.

Gas tax hike one option

HARTFORD (UPI) — One of the options the O'Neill administration will look at to cover a $65 million deficit and federal cuts is raising the 11-cent gasoline tax, a state budget official said Friday.

Anthony Milano, secretary of the Office of Policy and Management, said the gas tax increase is only one of as many as 50 options he will present to the governor to consider before the special session in November.

"There are 40 or 50 (alternatives) and none of them are attractive," Milano said during a taped interview on WFSB-TV's Face the State, which will be aired this weekend.

The governor is planning to recall the Legislature into special session in November to attempt to dissolve a $65 million deficit and federal funding losses, which will amount to an estimated $45 million to $60 million.

Besides the gas tax, which Milano said was suggested by legislators and is being examined by OPM, the list will include familiar standbys from previous sessions. They include taxing meals more heavily and taxing clothing for children under 10.

He said another option that has been suggested would be to return to Gov. William O'Neill's original proposal on the unincorporated business tax, which was a 10 percent levy on companies grossing $100,000 and more.

The existing tax, which was instituted this year, is a 5 percent tax on $50,000 gross.

Edward Balda, chief of economic and revenue forecasting for OPM, said increasing the motor fuels tax, which includes gas, diesel, and the motor carrier tax, would bring in an estimated $13.7 million.

Milano said his office also is preparing a range of possible cuts.

Winner Steve Kittredge, Second Peter Murphy, Third Gary Gates, Fourth John Rowe

Catholic halts Indian streak

With Steve Kittredge only five seconds off the course record, East Catholic knocked Manchester High out of the unbeaten ranks by a 23-36 count in boys' cross country action yesterday at Wickham Park.

The victory lifts the Eagles to 7-1 while the loss was the first for the Silk Towers after nine triumphs. The setback also snapped a three-year, 30-meet win skid held by the Indians. Their last loss in dual meet competition was to Xavier High in 1979.

Kittredge turned in a 14:18 clocking over the 2.8 mile course to run away with top honors for East. Manchester's Peter Murphy and Gary Gates followed in 14:56 and 14:57 respectively but the Eagles took the next four placements.

John Rowe was fourth in 15:11.

Ron Adams fifth in 15:16. Steve Matteo sixth in 15:18 and Vinnie White seventh in 15:24 for East.

"We ran a very intelligent race from a team standpoint. Our strategy was to let Manchester dictate the initial pace which they did," offered East Coach Jack Hull. "The course distance is somewhat deceiving and the last half one-half mile from the finish is where most close races are won or lost.

"I was cautiously optimistic before the race started and felt the top 4.5 and 5 runners would determine the outcome. Putting five runners in before Manchester's third runner was the difference," Hull continued.

"East ran a super race. Steve (Kittredge) waited until the last hill to let it go. Fast beat us over the last mile," commented Manchester Coach George Suitor. "Our kids ran poorly. We went out too fast which is my fault. I had them geared to running the first mile too fast. We fell apart in the last mile." Suitor added.

"Steve ran extremely well not breaking away from the field until the last hill and setting a blistering pace over the last three-quarters of a mile. The rest of the squad that determined the score ran very well. Steve Matteo had an exceptional day," Hull cited.

Results: 1. Kittredge (EC) 14:18 for 2.8 miles; 2. Murphy (M), 3. Gates (M); 4. Rowe (EC); 5. Adams (EC); 6. Matteo (EC); 7. White (EC); 8. Dussault (M); 9. Hebert (EC); 10. Fitzgerald (EC).

Eagle girls outrun Tribe, 15-50

Sweeping the top seven placements, East Catholic girls' cross country team applied the whitewash brush to crosstown Manchester High, 15-50, yesterday at Wickham Park.

The unbeaten Eaglettes also whitewashed Bulkeley High, 15-50, while the Indian girls bested Bulkeley by a 20-35 count.

The two wins lifts the Eaglettes to 8-0 for the season while the split leaves the Indians 5-5.

"The girls ran very well," underderstated East Coach Sal Mangialici. "Our depth is beginning to show. I feel that our team as a whole is performing better as of late."

East's Linda Reddy took individual honors with a 15:22 clocking.

First Manchester finisher was Maureen Lacey in eighth place with a 16:44 clocking. Alice Charest and Kathy Evans closed out the top 10 for East.

Sue Donnelly was 12th for Manchester with a 17:47 clocking.

Results: 1. Reddy (EC) 15:22 for

2.6 miles; 2. Kittredge (EC); 3. Kaminski (EC); 4. Byrne (EC); 5. E. Evans (EC); 6. Colilton (EC); 7. Falkowski (EC); 8. Lacey (M); 9. Charest (EC); 10. K. Evans (EC).

Fourth loss in row

Cheney kickers continue slide

By Len Auster Herald Sportswriter

When things start to go bad, everything seems to mount.

That has to be the sentiment for Cheney Tech as the listless Beavers dropped their fourth in a row, 2-1, to East Hampton High in COC soccer action yesterday at the Beavers' field.

The Beallings scored two second-half goals in a three-minute span to register the come-from-behind victory.

"I have nothing good to say," voiced a disgruntled Tech Coach Paul Sosey, walking back to his team's bench.

The loss drops the Beavers to 14-3 in the COC and 4-4-2 overall while the win lifts East Hampton to 3-3-1 in the conference and 3-4-2 overall.

Cheney will try to get back on the right track Tuesday afternoon when it hosts Coventry High at 3:15.

The Beavers played a lethargic first half but nevertheless came away with a 1-0 advantage. Tom Eaton slid a pass through a defender's legs and Paul Nowak out-legged Beallinger keeper Brian Melio to the ball. Nowak pulled it to the right and sliced his sixth goal of the season into the far corner at the 22nd mark.

East Hampton, with a 13-8 edge in shots in the second half, dominated play and it was almost inevitable that a score would come. It did on a Cheney mistake. Roy Nules' corner kick flew towards the goal with a Tech defender swinging and missing — ala the Milwaukee Brewers against Ron Davis' and Rich Gossage's fastballs — with the ball setting in the cage at 36:30.

At the 39:22 mark the Beallings got the game winner on a scramble in front. The Tech defense couldn't clear it from the dangerous area and after Todd Sexton swung and missed, Todd Russell sent a left-footed dribbler which found its way to the cage.

The Beallings outshot Cheney, 20-7, with Tech keeper Lou Gouvanale busy with 11 saves. Melio had to make seven stops.

Manchester freshman 11 outscorers Eagles, 44-20

Manchester freshman football team outdistanced crosstown East Catholic, 44-20, yesterday at Memorial Field.

Greg Turner rushed for 173 yards and three TDs and a two-point conversion to pace Manchester. Eli McCoy added a pair of touchdowns and two conversions while Ed Jarvis contributed a 15-yard TD on a pass from Jim Fogarty. Sean Piendel added a conversion for Manchester.

Ken Modean, Emil and Dan Adabbo, Pat Cooney, Jhr Kennard and Neil Ramsey offensively and Brendan McCarthy, John Tracy, Fogarty, McCoy and Dave Mazotta defensively played well for Manchester.

Mike McCaffrey scored on a 2-yard run and John Soares added a pair of touchdowns for East.

South gridders outclass East, 30-10

By Len Auster
Herald Sports Writer

When push came to shove it was no contest as South Catholic ran roughshod over East Catholic in erecting a 30-10 win in HCC football action last night at Mt. Nebo.

"I really don't remember when we stopped them," voiced a sulen East Coach, Jude Kelly. "I'm not talking about the team but I personally feel embarrassed." was Kelly's initial reaction afterwards.

South's offense was a 15-yard holding penalty pushed it back. The Rebels, winners of three straight to go to 3-2 overall and 1-1 in the HCC, ran 60 offensive plays, all on the ground, for 286 yards. It had 15 first downs. Matt Cirullo had 130 carries and three TDs on 20 carries.

Montreal second baseman Rodney Scott leaps high over head of Roy Coyle of Los Angeles after getting first half of completed doubleplay during second inning last night in Montreal.

Expos 4, Dodgers 1; White HR decides

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Expos, riding a winning streak, defeated the New York Mets on the last weekend of the regular season to virtually assure the Expos of the second-half title and then outplayed Philadelphia's Steve Carlton twice in the playoffs, did not appear to have his best stuff.

With the count 2-and-1, White, a switch-hitter batting right-handed against the left-handed Reuss, hit a shot on a line toward the left-field wall. Baker turned his back to the infield and raced toward the wall, seventh and the ball disappeared for a three-run homer and a 4-1 lead.

East tops RHAM, 3-0

Registering its third straight shutout East Catholic girls soccer team applied the whitewash brush to RHAM High 3-0 yesterday at Hlang Junior High's field.

Rogers upped his October record to 4-0 with a seven-inning and White backed him with a three-run shot that capped a four-run sixth inning and left the Expos in the position of needing just one victory in the next two games to capture the best-of-five series.

Hotels in the city were booked solid. Large TV screens went up in bars throughout the city and at the stadium some 200,000 bottles of beer and about 200,000 hotdogs were stocked for the three games that will be played in Montreal.

Rookie overtakes Watson

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI) — Rookie Fred Couples grabbed the second-round lead of the $200,000 Pensacola Open Friday with a 7-under-par 65 and veteran Tom Watson, the opening day leader, struggled to a 76 to fall well off the pace.

Don Fay remarked, "This is our third shutout in as many games. RHAM came on strong the first 20 minutes of the second half but then the momentum shifted to our side." "Once again everyone contributed to the cause," Fay added.

Triple cross country triumph for Iling

Iling girls' cross country team took three of four decisions yesterday at the Rams' course. The Rams topped East Hampton, 27-29, St. Thomas Junior High of Southampton, 19-42, and Assumption, 17-44, and won by a 20-foot putt then collected his only bogey of the day on the 13th when he hit his tee shot on the par-3 hole into a trap. His finishing time was 1:40.

Midfielders Liz Palmer, Donna Revellese and Darby Barnes played well as did sweeper Denise White. Netminder Martha Barnes had four saves in netting the shutout. East outshot RHAM, 26-10.

Early showdown set in NFL

By Ira Kaufman
UPI Sports Writer

An early-season showdown in the AFC West is one of the highlights of this week's NFL schedule, but who could have predicted neither the San Diego Chargers nor the Super Bowl champion Oakland Raiders would be involved?

The Denver Broncos, led by the individual success story of 1981, and the Kansas City Chiefs—a pair of 8-8 clubs only a year ago—clash in Arrowhead Stadium Sunday and both clubs have been major surprises.

Loose and easy

The Manchester Sportsmen's Association skeet field is open to the public on Wednesday evenings and Sundays. Sunday we shoot from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. On Wednesdays we shoot under lights from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., and then retire to the clubhouse for dinner and general club sessions.

We have a group of regulars who show up most Wednesday nights, and this group includes club members and non-members. They are a neat group, and the ranks have grown, and waned and grown once again, so that when we sit down to eat, there are generally eight to 10 of us sitting around the table.

The meals are generally pretty darn good, and after coming off the skeet field at 8, just plain hot dogs and beans taste pretty terrific.

We take turns cooking, and as a matter of fact, everyone pitches in helping with the meal, and cleaning up afterward. Whatever the cost of the dinner, it is divided among the "troops," and we come off with some really great suppers for little money. Last Wednesday night, we had seven members, sautéed onions, green peas, salad, bread and butter for $2 a man. You can't beat that when you're a spectator, especially when most of us ate three chops apiece.

What's so nice about this gang is that we all loose and easy, and go along so well together. Not only around the dinner table, but up on the skeet field too.

I find it very interesting to see how club members react when invited to shoot for the first time. Their reaction is always the same. First it's astonishment at the ribbing and riddling that goes on, and then it's outright hilarity, and then the newcomers start to relax themselves. You can't help but do that with the fun banter of shooters we have out there. Let me give you an example.

Last night when one of the men we like to sit, stepped up to number 6 station and called for the high house bird, I chuckled in to hold it.

As he turned, and stepped off the station after unlodging his shotgun, I stepped forward and dusted off the station with my hat. He moved back on the station after muttering

SPORTS TALK: BOWIE KUHN

Interviewed by Warner Fassel

Bowie Kuhn, 54, was elected commissioner of baseball in February 1969. He replaced Gen. William Eckert to become baseball's fifth chief executive since 1920.

How do you think 10 or 20 years from now history will record the 1981 baseball season?

I think they'll record it as bizarre, and in many ways I wish it could be forgotten, the whole season. I don't say the split season because I think it has worked reasonably well. But overall I think the strike was a nightmare for everybody that was involved and for the fans. So that part will not be remembered happily.

And yet it will be one of the most memorable seasons baseball has ever had.

Is baseball so resilient that it can always bounce back from things like this?

I think it will bounce back all right from this. I don't say there are not some scars and that it may not take some time before those scars are gone, but I think basically the resiliency of the game is enormous.

In the over 100 years of the professional game, it's gone through all kinds of problems and has bounced back. So I'm quite optimistic. But we have to face up to the fact we've got more work to do as we head into 1982 to be sure that such scars as there are as promptly eliminated as possible.

Do you feel that the press has been fair to baseball administration?

I think the press has difficulty sometimes understanding the problems that administration is faced with. And I think sometimes people maybe don't do their homework and jump to some conclusions. For instance, there was criticism that the split season was merely done to generate television revenue. Well, I can tell you the television revenue is not going to be of a dimension to make it any kind of major goal. The goal was to create some excitement and some fun for the fans.

What about three-divisional play?

We're not going to have three-divisional play next year. We do have a three-divisional play committee, and it's quite seriously taking a look at the whole subject. I think the extra tier of playoffs this year will give us some useful information on what is the potential of three-division play.

How many years away do you feel expansion is?

I don't look for it in the American League. The National League will have two less teams in where you would have to look for expansion. But my feeling right now is that the National League is not all that enthusiastic about expansion.

Can you be the commissioner of baseball and still be a baseball fan?

The answer is yes, but it's got to be sort of a qualified yes. One of the things I miss desperately as commissioner is rooting for a team. I really enjoy the guys who go out and live and die with a team.

I used to do that when I was a youngster in Washington after afterwards. Rooting for the Washington Senators took a special breed of fan, because the Senators weren't doing very well. But I lived and died with them. As commissioner, obviously, there's no team that you can root for and I miss that a lot.

Finally, the spotlight will be on you, during the World Series. Do you have your World Series wardrobe selected?

(Laughing softly) Well, you know we're going to play the World Series a little later this year. Some of my friends in the press are already having a little fun needing me about it. I'm going to be wearing my heavy, woolen robes. We'll have to wait and see where we go.

But if you look back at the history of weather in October, basically it's a pretty good month. The Indians gave us India, a summer and fortunately that shines on the World Series. I think we'll be in good shape. But you may be sure I will be ready for whatever weather comes.

What TV does best

Television is at its best with death.

The violent end of the great Anwar Sadat provided television with another opportunity to do what it does best, record for all time an event that will materially affect the history of man.

If the Romans had had television, we'd all know exactly how Caesar was stabbed at the Senate. In our own time, the assassination of President John Kennedy and the subsequent murder of his assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald, have added specific and incontrovertible detail to the story of mankind.

It is frustrating to contemplate all that has gone before that is lost forever. There are tens of thousands of likenesses of Jesus Christ, but they are all different because no one has the vaguest notion what Christ looked like. Too bad.

It's small consolation for his death, but we're lucky to know Sadat was alive.

We in America would not have known this good man had he done his work in Egypt 100 years ago. Civilization, present and future, knew exactly what kind of a man Sadat was. CBS News broadcast an hour special on the evening of Sadat's death that was a classic among television obituaries.

We should all be so lucky as to have our lives caught, as Sadat's was, on film and tape for all time. In a sense, he will never die. We can always push a button and see him as he was alive.

TELEVISION IS SO GOOD at doing obituaries that sometimes it takes the opportunity to do one when passing mention on the Evening News would suffice.

The fine American actor, Melvyn Douglas, died a short time ago and his passing was noted at length on television news broadcasts. In all likelihood Melvyn Douglas was given more time than his importance to the world called for. That's a mean thing to say about such an outstanding actor but I hope he'd agree with me.

The fact is that the networks all had a lot of footage of Mr. Douglas that they could easily excerpt from old movies, various award ceremonies and talk shows that he'd appeared on and his obituary in pictures made fascinating viewing.

My complaint is that television news seldom reports the demise of a prominent world figure in more than a few words unless that figure is an outstanding entertainer or government official about whom ample footage exists in film libraries. I don't begrudge Melvyn Douglas the time he was given because he was picking on him as so specific an example, but I do think it's an illustration of television covering a story in detail because it has good pictures.

WHEN BING Crosby died, it was important. He was a unique figure and the significance of his life exceeded his ability as pure entertainer. He was a true American folk hero. The three networks each did long stories eulogizing Bing by excerpting outstanding performances from many of his films and television broadcasts. It was great television and Bing deserved it.

Had someone else died that day, however, who was as important to mankind in the field of science, medicine or law but whose life had not been chronicled in film as Bing's had, the scientist, the doctor or the lawyer would have been dismissed with a line by an anchorman.

Take, as two examples, Margaret Mead and John Wayne. They died within a year of each other. Margaret Mead was as important to anthropology as John Wayne was to motion pictures, but her passing was only briefly noted because she made the mistake of doing most of her great work "off camera." One network, on the other hand, did a two-hour special on John Wayne.

Elvis Presley was one of the most popular entertainers of all time but the world isn't much different for his having lived here and probably no any better at all. Anyone would think, from the television coverage of his death, that his work eclipsed Einstein's.

"If anyone sees Mike Boguslawski on the streets of Manchester, come up and pat him on the back and say hello," So invites Mike Boguslawski, who speaks of himself that way, in the third person. Such an objective attitude is not out of place in an individual who has made himself into an institution as consumer advocate of television station WTNH, Channel 8 in New Haven.

His program on the nightly news, which closes with him smashing his fist toward the camera and shouting, "I'm in YOUR corner!"; draws, he says, between 500 and 600 letters each day and he reads them, and keeps him working 15 hours daily.

Seeing Boguslawski in town, many Manchester residents have asked, "Are you here to investigate something?" The truth is that he lives in Manchester in a pretty house on a side street at an address he doesn't want to disclose "because of the dignitars."

"I'm not a typical television celebrity. That word celebrity kills me. I'm not a television star. I'm Mike Boguslawski. I don't get paid. I sit around and play with my kids. I don't live in Glastonbury in a $400,000 home. I live in Manchester. And I'm very happy to be here. I go to St. Bridget's. My kids go to public schools. I don't send them away to California."

HOW DOES a New Haven television star, a personality to happen to live in Manchester?

Four years ago Boguslawski did a consumer report on WTNH radio with Brad Davis. One listener who called in was Jan Collins, a recent divorcee, who wanted compensation for a label that moving men had damaged. Boguslawski, who was himself recently divorced, never did get the compensation for a label which he had a complaint, contact me.

He recalls now, "I had no authority. I was just a reporter who answers personally with the help only of one secretary, Viola Skinner. Boguslawski reads off the top of a channel 8 and asked to go that station. "They were leery at first, but you can't imagine the call-ins."

Hundreds catch 'refund fever' at convention

By Martin Sloane
From the moment Judy Caruso came down with "refund fever" two years ago she dreamed of holding a refund convention in her hometown of Rochester, N.Y.
To turn her dream into a reality, she put an advertisement in the paper to find other refunders in her area. Eight people responded and showed up at the first meeting of her coupon club. All eight pitched in to help with her refunding convention.

What is a refund convention like?
Can you imagine 250 people spending the weekend trading refund forms and coupons as well as all kinds of box tops and labels?
The convention was held at a large downtown hotel. The action began on Friday evening with dinner and a trading session that continued into the wee hours with only a short break for watching television coverage of the gathering.
The trading resumed Saturday at 8 a.m. Most of the conventioners brought photo albums full of forms to trade. They moved around the large meeting room, looking through one another's albums for the forms that would turn forms of their box tops and labels into refund cash.
"I never would have believed all this could happen," said Meri Buskey, a new recruit from Glenfield, N.Y.
"There are more refund forms here than I have seen in my whole life," Nick Giacomola, a purchasing agent for a large restaurant, was one of several men who attended the convention. The Rochester resident told me that he sends for more than 30 refunds a month. Refund's and coupons enable him to save more than $75 a month feeding a family of four.
It took the attraction of a luncheon buffet that stretched more than 50 feet to drag the conventioners away from their trading.

The luncheon speakers were Marlene Cummins, customer relations manager for R.T. French, and yours truly. The R.T. French Co. as well as Nesco, Kodak and the makers of Sano Spaghetti Sauce provided gifts, recipe booklets, samples and coupons for the convention.
After lunch, Linda Lee

received a prize for submitting the oldest coupon, a 1960 coupon for Heinz baby food. A drawing was held for a gift basket. Dale Cavanaugh was crowned "queen" of the convention for producing four register tapes showing an $77.52 coupon cost of only $27.52 for purchases worth $102.52.
The afternoon trading session exploded with a final frenzied effort to find that last special refund form that each conventioneer was looking for. "Did I see your album?" "Did I see your album?" "Did I see your album?" she asked a refund on my left.
"Let me look through your forms. One more time," said another on my right.
I pulled Suzanne McCarthy away from her trading to ask how an attractive, single, 29-year-old school teacher had become a confirmed refund trader and couponer.
"No one in my home used coupons and I just think that it's the smart thing to do," she told me that she started a coupon exchange box in the faculty lunch room just before double coupons first hit Rochester. "Within a week," she said, "each teacher was hooked." We finished the school year trading coupons with 80 teachers in three schools." When the last refund finally left the hotel, Judy Caruso and her committee members smiled wearily. It has really been a dream come true for all of them.
Refund of the Day
Write to the following address to obtain the form required by this refund offer worth 75 cents to $1.50: PhiloDerm Cash Refund, Consumer Products Division, Winthrop Laboratories, 90 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request. This offer expires Dec. 31, 1981.

Advice

Drugs data could be life-or-death matter

DEAR ABBY: You have consistently urged parents to respect their children's privacy and refrain from reading their diaries and letters and from listening in on their telephone conversations. But now that so many young kids are doing drugs, has your viewpoint changed?
If a parent suspects that his teenager is into drugs, doesn't the parent have the right to violate the child's privacy to find out for sure whether his suspicions are warranted or not? And when the parent confronts the child and it becomes obvious that the child's privacy has been violated, then what?
Please comment, Abby. There are a lot of worried parents who need to know.

CONCERNED IN AMARILLO
dear concerned. There is a vast difference between invading a teenager's privacy in order to read his mail or diary and attempting to learn whether or not a child is involved with drugs.
Involvement with drugs can make the difference between life and death, and parents have an obligation to learn as much as they can by whatever means possible. God will forgive them. And so will the children, eventually.
DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that I am sure is common to many parents across the entire nation. My youngest daughter, age 22, a recent graduate from Michigan State University, is living with her finiance, who is also a graduate of M.S.U.

What do I tell all my friends when they ask me how my daughter is doing? I'm so embarrassed to say that she is living with a man without being married.
NAMELESS, NATURALLY
dear Nameless. When you're asked how your daughter is doing, say, "She's fine, thank you." It's not necessary to disclose your lifestyle.
DEAR ABBY: I am the 23-year-old mother of a beautiful baby boy born out of wedlock. I dated the baby's father only a short time. (I call him Glen.) I was in love. Glen was in lust.
The baby's nearly a year old now and Glen has never seen him (his choice). My family has stood by me and I am grateful for their love and understanding. Glen's family does not know me or the situation. They live in another state.
I would like my son to know all his family. Apparently Glen doesn't want his family to know, but I think they have a right to.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

RAISING A CHILD ALONE
DEAR RAISING: When your baby is old enough to ask, tell him his father disappeared from your life shortly after the boy was born. (That will be no lie!) And, if you seriously do not want to "make trouble" let that be the story's end.
DEAR ABBY: Do you have to show your driver's license to engage in sex in the state of California?
I am a girl, 19 years old, and I met a very handsome fellow who liked me as much as I liked him. On our very first date we felt as though we had known each other all our lives. We admitted a mutual desire to become intimate, but he asked to see my driver's license first. Why? This never happened to me in Nebraska or any other state.
WONDERING IN W. HOLLYWOOD
DEAR WONDERING: He's no dummy. He wanted to be sure you were at least 18 years old, which is the legal age in California.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that I am sure is common to many parents across the entire nation. My youngest daughter, age 22, a recent graduate from Michigan State University, is living with her

Peyronie's may 'cure' itself

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a condition called Peyronie's disease, a gristle-like growth on my penis. I've been to two different doctors. Both tell me there isn't much they can do for me and that it will go away in time. I've had it for three years and I'm 44 years old. I've taken vitamin E three times a day but that seemed to make it more tender. I was taking vitamin E before this developed, then stopped and started it again when the doctor suggested it. I am not taking any now but I am not improving either. Is there anything you can tell me that will help?

DEAR READER — I used to think this was a rare condition but the large number of letters I get asking about this problem suggests that it is actually rather common. Doctors do not know what causes it. The problem is essentially as you describe it. It causes a crooked organ during erection and it can be so severe that it is painful and prevents sexual relations. It is more common in middle-aged and older men but can occur earlier, as your case suggests.

The area may resemble low-grade inflammation. Vitamin E has been used for it with variable, but often unsatisfactory, results. The area often clears spontaneously with or without medicine, which causes me to sometimes say a person recovered in spite of the doctor and not because of it. They are several treatments available and I think you should see a urologist who may be familiar with those discussed in that issue.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551,

I have heard The National Center for Stuttering, 200 E. 33 St., New York, N.Y. 10017. I hope others can change their own lives as dramatically as I did. Thank you again.
You can save a life with help from Dr. Blaker's newsletter "When a Loved One Threatens Suicide." Send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. The volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

Teen-ager finds security with religious cult members

DEAR DR. BLAKER + My niece saw her parents killed in a tragic car accident near their home two years ago. At that time she didn't seem very upset, but now she is having a lot of trouble. She is 16.

The main problem is her lack of attachment to a pseudo-religious group (I won't name any names) and what I perceive as her brainwashing.

She speaks their language, using the words they use and she says she is very happy even though she looks depressed to me w/fe and me. We are now her legal guardians.
She is living with this group in a nearby city and although we forced her to come home again, she only ran away and made her way back to them.

Why is she doing this to us? DEAR READER + It sounds as though your niece never did accept her parents' deaths and is being searched during the past two years, and perhaps finally found, substitute caretakers.
For 40 years I had been through all forms of therapy and remained such a bad stutterer that I became depressed, took to drinking and developed very high blood pressure. Well, I went to Dr. Schwartz's workshop in Los Angeles and in two days I could speak normally. I can order food in a restaurant, call on the telephone and read my little girl bedtime stories. It is a miracle.

For 40 years I had been through all forms of therapy and remained such a bad stutterer that I became depressed, took to drinking and

DEAR DR. BLAKER + An article you wrote over a year ago has saved my life. It was about Dr. Martin Schwartz and his program to stop stuttering.
That year and your wife were not able to satisfy her longings to be taken care of does not surprise me, nor should it make you feel guilty.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I see in her arteries. The penis is really a large blood vessel so that isn't too surprising. In persistent cases surgery has been reported to be successful in some, cutting out the plaque and mending the area.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you tell me anything about "what is love" fever? I hear it attacks the lungs and sometimes can be taken care of by surgery.

DEAR READER — You probably mean coccidiodomycosis, also called San Joaquin Valley fever because it is so common in that location. It is a fungus disease and the fungal spores are inhaled. It can be spread from man to man. You get it from the soil and air.

At first it appears as a respiratory illness. It may be mild and many people do not know they even have it. Most recover without future problems. A few have a spread of the fungus infection through the lungs and even to other areas. Yes, local spots are sometimes cut out. And in other cases a local spot in the lungs from the fungus infection cannot be separated from cancer by X-rays and must be cut out. But if needed there are good medicines that can be used to control the disease that has spread. Amphotericin B, an antifungal agent, is often used in these cases.

Singles celebrate

BOLTON — The "SOS" Serving our Singles group celebrated its first anniversary this week with a Vespers service and surprise party in honor of program director the Rev. J. Stanley Hegelund.

Mr. Hegelund, who formed the group to meet the spiritual, psychological and social needs of single adults of all faiths, holds a master's of divinity degree from Princeton Seminary and two masters degrees from Rider College, both in New Jersey.

He was honored for his year of "unselfish dedication and community outreach" by New Jersey minister Kenneth L. Maxwell, one of the spiritual founders of Manchester's Community Baptist Church.

"Rev. Hegelund has been a good Christian in the truest sense of the word," Maxwell said.

SOS meets every Sunday at 7 p.m. at Saint Elizabeth's Methodist Church and sponsors a variety of programs. The next meeting is on the first Saturday of each month at 6 p.m.

Diversity characterizes Dr. Bowen's educational background. Following a bachelor's degree in history and English, he received two masters degrees — one in New Testament studies and another in philosophy. His doctorate, from Michigan State University, is in philosophy and religion.

The public is invited to hear this speaker at 10 a.m. worship. Eugene Brewer, minister to the church, will direct congregational singing. A staffed nursery is provided.

LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE SOLUTION

- ANSWERS TO LAST WEEK'S PRIZEWEEK PUZZLE
- CLUES ACROSS:
 4. BLOCK not clock. As the clue implies, a BLOCK of offices is designed as such, however, one may doze off this true office sloo.
 7. CATCHER not watcher. Since the watcher may well be at a safe distance, the clue implies learn something from a toy. It is the child that learns, rather than the toy that teaches.
 8. WAITING not wanting. People "waiting around" would appear (i.e., suddenly) to be WAITING, "waiting" is less directly apt in this context.
 10. TEARS not fears. There's "may well be" TEARS, if people are apt to show their emotions, but there can't hardly fail to be fears.
 12. BOY not toy. A BOY might "teach" - a younger child in a direct sense. Although a child may learn something from a toy, it is the child that learns, rather than the toy that teaches.
 13. RINK not ring. Tentativeness in boating does not necessarily relate to a ring. A RINK, a skating rink, is a matter of moving around the rink.
 15. NOT not get or put. The idea of "respect" from a noble animal causing you not to get or put POT one, is quite apt, but ordinarily fear would presumably be the inhibiting factor in the case of pet or pet.
 16. NEW not fear. It is because offspring lack of talents, rather than because of the nature of the talents they lack, that men may find few love jobs.
 20. PACKET not rock. A tennis PACKET may "be thrown into the air" when a tournament winner flings it aloft in triumph. The clue's informal turn of phrase hardly suits the majestic lift-off of a space rocket.
 22. HUG not fear. A "warm feeling" is characteristically emotional, favoring
- CLUES DOWN:
 1. BAKERS not bakery. As an establishment, a bakery hardly stands to suffer "regrets".
 2. SCARE not score. As the clue implies, a really bad SCARE is sweltering. A score, however bad, may be taken lightly in some cases.
 5. LETTER not letter. The idea of leaving it "behind" hardly suits inter, in any case, a picture thoughtless enough to leave litter will not be thoughtful enough to feel embarrassed about it afterwards, as one might feel embarrassed about a (possibly) compromising, etc.) LETTER.
 6. HOLE not hole. An actor doesn't play a whole series of roles as a "beginner". A novice golfer plays all the HOLES ("wary" one offering more than one hole).
 11. STARCH not stocks. One doesn't normally display complete stocks as the word "starch" does not imply relate to visible anger.
 15. HUSH not hush. As you cry "HUSH!" at a dog you wish to be quiet, there is a theoretical possibility that it may do so though it is "harshly likely". It is simply not wise to say to an ordinary dog to respond to the antic command to "mush".

Financial decision needs right data

By the Connecticut Society of Certified Public Accountants

Who makes the financial decisions for your family? You, or the economy itself? What you decide depends on the condition of the economy—and you can't do much to change that—but there are still options open to you, if you know how to take advantage of them, according to the Connecticut Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Making financial decisions is easier if you set goals for your life and subscribe to sufficient "hazard insurance" so sickness or fire, for instance, cannot wipe you out.

Before you make decisions, you need to gather certain data. CPAs advise you to arrange your finances so you can identify patterns and then draw up an effective plan for spending, saving, and investing to achieve goals—both long-term and immediate. Realistically consider your earning potential, then think ahead to where you will be in five or 10 years.

If you know your net worth, understand cash flow and tax planning, and can function within a workable budget, you should have no trouble making wise decisions. Assuming that "needs" such as retirement and college planning are taken care of, but you want to learn to make better use of whatever is left over after the necessities, all of your decisions would have to be based on your goals and your tax bracket.

Once your financial picture emerges clearly, you need to know how to "read" key economic indicators, such as the Dow Jones Average and the Consumer Price Index. Most economic indicators hint that inflation is here to stay, but don't really answer such questions as how fast inflation will rise, or how it affects interest rates, the stock market, the number of homes to be built or unemployment rates.

Even though inflation pushes up prices, it has some advantages. For instance, borrowing often makes sense during inflation because it gives you leverage and allows you to pay back with cheaper dollars. Commodities, collectibles and metals may be wise investments in periods of inflation. You might decide to borrow to invest, because the time to incur long-term debt—so long as you can afford it—is when you anticipate an accelerating inflation rate.

On the other hand, the richest stock market rewards may occur just before an inflation rate starts to decline, so that may lead you to a decision to invest in stock or mutual funds.

There are many decisions you need to make about your cash management during inflation. Leaving cash in a checking and savings account may not be wise, when you can "lend" your money out at high interest rates. Emergency funds are better off in a day-of-deposit-today-of-withdrawal account, or a money market fund with check-writing privileges. If you worry about checks bouncing, protect yourself by applying for overdraft privileges. Now is the time to apply for a line of credit at your bank so when you need to borrow to take advantage of acquiring an appreciating asset, you can do so promptly.

Keeping aware of developments affecting the economy is the only way a family can learn when to make financial decisions so that they can not only keep up with inflation but manage to get ahead. For instance, when interest rates fall, the stock market usually accelerating inflation rate.

Lydall reports record earnings

By Lisa Zowada Herald Reporter

Thanks to its "strategy of optimizing assets," Lydall Inc. of Manchester had record third quarter 1981 earnings that exceeded 1980 earnings by more than 30 percent, Lydall reported today.

The "dramatic results" of the policy added up to a record third quarter earnings of $1.2 million on sales of $28 million. And on a per-share basis, Lydall earned 63 cents, a 215 percent increase over the 20 cents earned in the 1980 third quarter.

The record earnings total was just one of the good news Lydall President Millard H. Pryor Jr. offered to the Hartford Stockbrokers Club at a presentation in Hartford Friday.

Pryor told the units are turned strategy Lydall has been following since he took over in 1972, which involves the acquisition of a company and its consolidation, has caused a turnaround which is dramatic.

Pryor said that in the past nine years earnings have increased more than three times. He said the average yearly growth rate since 1972 has been 21.5 percent, making Lydall second in major area companies only to Colt Industries and ahead of United Technologies Corp. in that department.

After Lydall has made an acquisition, Pryor said, the new company is reviewed and consolidated. "Underperforming units are turned around through improvements in operations, the imposition of sound financial controls, and the development of new products in growing markets," he explained.

The acquisition of Logistics Industries Corp. is the "best example," Pryor said, of how well the "asset-optimization strategy" works.

Four years ago, Lydall purchased Logistics for $9.4 million in cash and stocks. Today, only three of that company's seven operating units remain part of Lydall and one is scheduled for sale next week.

Millard H. Pryor Jr.

At the close of that transaction, Pryor said, Lydall will have recovered $18 million in cash from the single $9.4 million investment. The two units that will remain have assets totaling $3 million.

Hartford stockbrokers seemed impressed with Lydall's record earnings and consistent success as well as with Pryor.

"I like Mr. Pryor and Lydall's very good," said Greg O'Brien of Burgess and Leitch of East Hartford, one of the original underwriters of Lydall, after the presentation. "I think he's done a hell of a job and I'm very interested in the company. It's definitely a growing company," said Irving Knight of the Hartford firm, Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. "It's not a blue chip, but for a local company its very good."

Lydall's success, Pryor said, is also due in part to a number of "exciting products" which have come out of "potentially mundane businesses."

These products include "Tanera," a leather substitute used in safety and sport equipment, and lip balms and lipsticks, of which markets Lydall supplies 50 percent.

Other Lydall products also include "Ly-pak," a laminated paperboard slip sheet, and "Ecoshot," a non-toxic sheet shot used in place of lead shot for hunting waterfowl. Pryor said that more ducks die each year from eating lead shot than they do from being shot, and "Ecoshot" is therefore, "environmentally superior."

Pryor was particularly excited about three new products, "Lydar," "Lypore," and "Lytherm," which he said, "illustrate Lydall's ability to align a traditional product line with growing markets."

"Lydar" is used in air filters in operating rooms and high technology areas such as pharmaceutical, nuclear reactors and computer manufacturing.

"Lypore" is a nonwoven filter material used to filter blood during surgical procedures.

From the third product, "Lytherm," Pryor said he anticipates "dynamic growth," since the product serves as an asbestos substitute. As the cost of law suits and settling claims increases for company using asbestos, the market for "Lytherm," Pryor said, should increase.

Pryor told the stockbrokers that his company will continue to focus its efforts on "creating asset value."

"Today the fundamental value is on a par with the market," he said. "Lydall's assets have been greater earning potential than they have yet demonstrated."
