

Landmark Smoker Study:

Merit Takes Taste Honors.

Former higher tar smokers acclaim MERIT "Best-tasting low tar I've tried."

The most rigorous MERIT research to date has just been completed.

Result: MERIT smokers confirm taste a major factor in completing their successful switch from higher tar cigarettes.

MERIT Taste Sparks Switch.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers are glad they switched from higher tar cigarettes. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

MERIT Beats Toughest Competitors.

In the second part of this study, new tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

Great Lawn sold; condos planned

Gryk, Lynch to split site

By Nancy Thompson
Herald Reporter

Two local men are buying an eight-acre piece of the Great Lawn, with plans to preserve half and build luxury condominiums on half.

Wesley Gryk, an attorney, and Michael Lynch, a car dealer, announced today that they have entered into a bond for deed to purchase the property for an undisclosed amount.

Both Lynch and Gryk live in former Cheney family mansions at the north edge of the Great Lawn and own portions of the lawn which stretches north from Hartford Road.

In a press release issued today, Lynch and Gryk said their motivation for buying the land was "to preserve the integrity of the neighborhood and to adjust their adjoining property lines."

Preservation of the Great Lawn was described as crucial to the restoration of the Cheney Brothers National Landmark Historic District in a 1979 report on restoring the Cheney mill area.

Earlier, the town and the Cheney Historic District Commission had negotiated with Robert Smith, owner of the central eight-acre portion of the lawn which Lynch and Gryk have purchased, to buy and preserve the lawn. Smith offered to sell the land to the town for $200,000.

A referendum asking for $2 million for improvements to the district in connection with developers' plans to convert two 1911 buildings into apartments, which would have included money to purchase the Great Lawn, was taken off the November election ballot because of public opposition. Most recently, town officials were considering raising money privately to purchase the land.

Gryk and Lynch said they felt "the public at large would prefer to see the property remain in private hands."

They added that development of the property was "inevitable" and they oppose constructing 16 houses, the maximum allowed under present zoning, on the entire parcel.

"It was decided that the reasonable solution would be to purchase the eight acres and to draw up a plan for ... the westerly three to four acres, which are presently screened from the remaining portion of the Great Lawn by trees," Gryk and Lynch said in their statement.

Development "would be in the form of luxury condominiums constructed to blend in and imitate the architecture of the mansions with careful placement of the units and careful landscaping."

Lynch said the pair had consulted their neighbors in the Cheney mansions along the Great Lawn, who approve of the solutions they propose, he said.

A mansion formerly stood on the spot where they plan to develop the condominiums, but burned down several years ago, Lynch said. The spot is shielded from Hartford Road and the surrounding homes by trees.

Phouthangleth Khamvongsa holds a plate for Manchester High School Principal Jacob Ludes III. Ludes carved the turkey at the Thanksgiving dinner Tuesday for MHS's foreign students.

Foreign students give thanks

By Nancy Thompson
Herald Reporter

When Manchester High School's "foreign family" gathered to celebrate their first Thanksgiving Tuesday, the only thing missing was Plymouth Rock.

In every other way, the students—immigrants from Southeast Asia, from Columbia and Costa Rica—created an authentic re-enactment of the Pilgrims' celebration of life in a new land.

There were "exotic" native foods—turkey and cranberry sauce, cornbread, sweet potatoes, mashed potatoes, gravy and more.

There were the "native" guests—MHS teachers, aides and administrators who discussed Thanksgiving traditions with the students and helped with the work of the dinner, passing cornbread and filling glasses with sweet cider and carving the turkey.

And there were the expressions of thanks, spoken in many languages. "I think it's exciting, everybody here for the same thing," Fanny Montero, an exchange student from Costa Rica, said in careful English. At home, she does not celebrate Thanksgiving.

Miss Montero made a rice dish for the supper, a common Costa Rican food—"but it was different."

"Rice and beans is a typical food in Costa Rica, but they told me to put in oregano!" she said, making a face.

Yanhousa Lo, a Laotian student who was busy mashing potatoes, has been in the United States long enough to celebrate other Thanksgivings—and to be accustomed to American cooking.

"I cook at home all the time," she said. "Matter of fact, we just had mashed potatoes yesterday."

Surveying the loaded table, Laotian Kellenky Rattanakoun commented, "Some of us made food at home—that's why it looks so funny."

Obviously the food tasted fine, however, as all conversation died down when the students started the serious business of eating the feast.

"I wonder if they fully understand about the Pilgrims?" aide Miss Sears wondered as she passed cornbread to the students.

Deirdre Shaw-Cruz, the students' English as a Second Language teacher who coordinated the meal, noted that the Thanksgiving dinner was the culmination of lessons on early American history.

Assistant Superintendent of Schools J. Gerald FitzGibbon summed up the atmosphere in his grace.

4,000 expected for road race

By Earl Yost
Sports Editor

The center of attention for road racing buffs in New England will be Manchester, Connecticut, Thanksgiving morning when more than 4,000 men, women and children in all sizes, age 14 to 70, will answer the starter's gun at 10:30 for the 45th Five Mile Road Race.

The weather forecast is clear and cold for the oldest five-mile race in the country.

A crowd of 25,000 is expected to rim the course with the majority at the starting and finishing area, Main Street, opposite St. James Church.

All eyes will be focused on the two-time Ireland Olympian, Earnom Coghlan, who is also the world's No. 1 miler. The Dublin native will be making his debut in Manchester and will head a group of top Irish runners including Olympians Mike O'Shea and Ray Treacy as well as Brendan Quinn.

The defending champion is Charlie Duggan of Tampa, Fla. Other former winners in the field, which boasts both quantity and quality, are nine-time winner Arby Burfoot, six-time champ Johnny Kelley, two-time winner Charlie Robbins, who runs barefooted, and John Vitale and Ray Crothers.

Sanctioned by The Athletics Congress, the holiday run is being promoted by Nulmeg Forest, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, with all proceeds entering the Muscular Dystrophy Research Fund, national objective of the Cedars. In addition, United Technologies Corp. has made a sizable contribution to help meet operating expenses.

Much interest will center around the appearance of Julia Chase Brand, the 18-year-old who back in 1961 successfully led the way for the then-sanctioning Amateur Athletic Union to allow females to compete in the same road races with men in the United States.

The sports spectacle is Manchester's biggest annual promotion. There will be some parking and driving restrictions posted before the start of the race at 10:30 a.m.

Beginning at 6 a.m. Thursday, Main Street will be posted as no parking on both the east and west sides from Center Street to Charter Oak Street.

At 9:30 a.m., southbound traffic on Main Street will be rerouted east on Russell Street and west on Locust Street.

Northbound traffic will be rerouted east and west on Charter Oak Street and Hartford Road.

Eastbound traffic on Park Street will be rerouted north on Church Street, while westbound vehicles on Oak Street will be prohibited beyond Cottage and Birch streets.

Bradlees will move into King's

By Scot French
Herald Reporter

Bradlees department store will become the new occupant of the vacant King's department store at the Manchester Parkade when a lease is officially signed on Dec. 5.

Michael Dworkin, a member of the Parkade Merchants Association, said King's officials told a meeting of the group two weeks ago that negotiations were "pretty well sewn up," and that Bradlees will move into the King's property.

Dwight S. Barrett, an assistant manager at King's Parkade store until he was transferred to West Hartford in January, said negotiations between the rival firms are "common knowledge" among King's employees, but that no official word has been released by top management.

"They're in negotiations about it and the last we heard that they (Bradlees) are going in," Barrett said.

Barrett said Bradlees has told King's employees, but that no official word has been released by top management.

FDA approves new era drug

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government today announced approval of the first drug specifically aimed at preventing deaths or second heart attacks among people who have survived initial heart attacks. It may save thousands of lives a year.

Dr. Arthur Hayes Jr., head of the Food and Drug Administration, said the drug timolol and others like it open a "new era in the treatment of heart disease, the nation's No. 1 killer."

Timolol, taken in tablet form twice a day, is one of a relatively new class of drugs known as "beta blockers" which calm the central nervous system and thus decrease the heart rate and the vigor of heart contractions. Hayes said they apparently ease the work load of damaged heart muscles.

People who have survived one heart attack are at high risk of sudden death or having another attack in the first weeks and months after the initial attack. Hayes said a major Norwegian study showed that timolol reduced the risk of death by about one-third.

About 350,000 Americans survive heart attacks annually, but studies show that 50,000 of them will die within two years.

Defense asks Hinckley move

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lawyers for John W. Hinckley Jr. want their client transferred to a mental institution, saying he needs psychiatric care to guard against a possible third suicide attempt.

The attorneys were to appear today before U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker on a request to transfer Hinckley from an Army stockade at Fort Meade, Md., to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, a psychiatric facility in Washington.

In making the request in legal papers filed Tuesday, the lawyers included statements by two psychiatrists who said there is a high risk that Hinckley, President Reagan's accused assassin, may again try to kill himself.

Hinckley made his second suicide attempt on Nov. 15 when he tried to hang himself in his cell at Fort Meade. Last May, he took an overdose of an aspirin substitute while at a federal correctional facility at Butler, N.C.

Dr. David Bear, who examined Hinckley after last week's suicide attempt, said in his statement:

"In addition to the legal issues now facing him, the upcoming holidays and the anniversary of significant events may exacerbate his depressive responses and increase the probability of self-destructive behavior."

On Nov. 25, 1963, President John F. Kennedy, assassinated in Dallas three days earlier, was buried in Arlington National Cemetery. The funeral cortege is seen crossing Memorial Bridge leading to the cemetery.

Ruling delays marathon bid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Mobil Corp. attorneys questioned the legality of a deal between Marathon Oil Co. and U.S. Steel and a federal judge temporarily blocked the steel company's $6.65 billion bid to take over Marathon.

The ruling Tuesday by U.S. District Judge Joseph Kinnear will prevent U.S. Steel from proceeding with its bid until Dec. 4.

The ruling came after Mobil attorneys challenged the legality of an agreement reached last week that granted U.S. Steel an exclusive option to purchase Marathon's interest in the rich Yates oil field in Texas for $2.8 billion if Marathon were taken over by a third party. The restraining order now prohibits transfer of the Yates interest.

Mobil, which had offered $85-a-share for Marathon stock, also charged the U.S. Steel agreement and its $125-a-share offer violated federal securities laws. The Ohio General Corporation Law and was a breach of fiduciary duty.

Democrats want prosecutor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group of 18 Senate Democrats, unhappy with the Justice Department's investigation of national security adviser Richard Allen, says it is time to name a special prosecutor.

In a letter Tuesday to Attorney General William French Smith, they said the 1978 Ethics in Government Act requires the appointment of a special prosecutor once substantial allegations surface against top federal officials.

"The need for a special prosecutor in this case — and the fact that the statute required it — has been clear virtually from the outset," the senators said.

"By their handling of the matter to date, the White House and the Justice Department have demonstrated once again why Congress felt the need to enact the special prosecutor legislation in the first place."

Union, Poland resume talks

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Solidarity and the government called new talks today to resume the Polish economy from a winter of hardships that already have caused the deaths of three people in angry outbursts over food shortages.

The discussions today between the free trade union and the communist government were a working-level session of negotiations begun last week.

Union chief Lech Walesa met Tuesday with Roman Catholic Archbishop Jozef Glemp and the Warsaw pact commander visited Poland for talks with state and Communist Party leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski on cooperation between their armies.

However, neither meeting appeared to have a direct bearing on the union-state talks in which Solidarity is pressing for a more direct role in decisions affecting Poland's economy and combatting winter hardships caused by severe shortages of food and coal.

However, neither meeting appeared to have a direct bearing on the union-state talks in which Solidarity is pressing for a more direct role in decisions affecting Poland's economy and combatting winter hardships caused by severe shortages of food and coal.

The reports of the violence were the first known instances in which people were killed because of long food lines in Poland since the end of the spring.

Talks were under way to guarantee protection of shopkeepers after they threatened to go on strike last week because of the attacks.

Defiant cleric warns Britain

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Defiant Protestant leader Rev. Ian Paisley threatened to go on strike with "bottled" results if it tries to prevent use of his vigilante army against the IRA in Northern Ireland.

Direct challenging Britain's ban on private armies, members of Paisley's "Third Force" said Tuesday they were ready at short notice to protect homes along the isolated border with the Irish republic.

"Guns will have to be used," one of the volunteers said, adding "These will be legally held firearms."

In a southern England prison, an Irish Republican Army bomber convicted of the bombing of a bar in Birmingham that killed 21 people was on hunger strike.

Patrick Hill, 32, serving 21 life sentences, has refused food for 21 days because he wants his case reopened, said the political wing of the IRA.

A show of strength by an estimated 20,000 Paisley vigilantes near Belfast Monday night — almost double the number of full-time British troops in Northern Ireland — brought a strong warning from Northern Ireland Secretary James Prior.

"The government will not allow private armies to take over the work of the police and the army," said Prior, Britain's top official in Northern Ireland.

Candidate Downey describes prison years

By Paul Hendrie
Herald Reporter

John Downey called the 20 years he spent in a Chinese prison "the period of my life I consider the least interesting," but the Kiwanis Club members who heard him speak Tuesday afternoon wanted to hear all about it.

Although Downey, 51, a Wallingford native, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Republican Lowell P. Weicker, he mostly steered clear of politics during his talk.

Instead, he talked about his "checkered career," as he put it, which began with his graduation from Yale in 1953 — during the Korean War — when he joined the CIA.

He said he was flying a mission over China, to pick up an agent for debriefing, when his plane was shot down and he was imprisoned.

Two years later he had a trial, he said, and was sentenced to life in prison.

John Downey

"It was a show trial," said Downey. "It was just kind of a TV spectacular. China really has an inquisitorial style of justice."

Downey said he was tightly confinied in a "good old-fashioned prison cell," sometimes with Chinese cellmates and sometimes by himself.

"But I had an unusual opportunity to learn something about China," he said. "Prison, itself, was a microcosm of their society. When these great political winds would sweep the country, it would be reflected in the prison."

"It was a time of great stress and great pressure, but also a time where you were compelled to reflect on who you are. During the 20 years, there was not a day that went by where I wasn't bombarded by propaganda that I was an enemy of the people."

Downey said he occasionally was brought out of prison for trips — in 1957 he was even taken on a tour around the country which took several years — so he said he got a good look at the Chinese lifestyle. Once in a while, he even was allowed to watch some television.

"I don't expect you to believe this," he quipped. "But their television is even worse than our TV."

Downey said he concluded that the social, artistic and intellectual life in China is a "wasteland."

"If there are any people I pity in China, it is the people who work with ideas, because they are compelled to adopt political and ideological blinders," he said. "There is no legitimate channel for dissent in China. They just don't know how to handle dissent."

Downey said his China experience strengthened his confidence in American society. He praised the "flexibility" of the American economy.

"When I came home in 1973, there were many changes in our country, some for the better and some not so good," he continued. "There has been the development of a great deal of uncertainty in America."

Despite his Chinese imprisonment, Downey said he favors improved relations with China, though he noted that he has a "vested interest," because the thawing of Sino-American relations that began under President Nixon led to his release.

Still, Downey said it makes political sense to work with China. He said the Chinese-Soviet split is "very real and very deep," while he said he does not believe China poses a military threat to the United States.

Downey said he believes Taiwan "is safer now than before" the United States resumed diplomatic relations with China, because he thinks China would be reluctant to destroy its relationship with America by attacking Taiwan.

Downey said eventually some solution to the split between Taiwan and the mainland will evolve "because, in many ways, nationalism is a more powerful force than ideology."

After returning from the 20 years he called "largely a waste of time for me," Downey went to Harvard Law School and graduated in 1976.

He ran without success in 1978 for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, but was appointed in July 1977 to the state Personnel Appeal Board. He was appointed in May 1979 to the Public Utilities Control Authority and later became chairman. He lives in New Haven and practices law.

Downey clearly faces an uphill battle in the race for the Senate. He will be opposed for the nomination by a popular four-term congressman, Toby Moffett, and the Republicans can choose between two term incumbent Weicker and the vice president's brother Prescott Bush.

Although he stressed his credentials as a Democrat, Downey criticized "big spenders" and said "we have come to realize we've got to be frugal as well as compassionate."

ANDOVER — A Manchester senior citizen suffered minor injuries in a one-car crash on Route 6 early Tuesday morning, police said, after he fell asleep at the wheel.

Police said Ernest L. Gardner, 65, of 428 West Middle Turnpike, went off the road at about 3 a.m. in his 1970 Olds Cutlass after falling asleep. They said the car had to be towed from the scene.

A Manchester Memorial Hospital spokesman said Tuesday Gardner was treated for facial lacerations and released.

ALCOHOL and DRUGS...can be fatal.

If you are taking any kind of a tranquilizer... such as VALIUM... LIBRIUM... LIBRAX... MEPROBAMATE... DALMANE (for sleep) SEAX... SINEQUAN... etc. DO NOT DRINK ALCOHOL. This can cause deep depression, and according to the quantity imbibed, can result in brain damage. Remember, some of these tranquilizers remain in your body for 2 to 3 days after the last dose. So don't think you are safe if you skip a day's use of them. With the holiday season coming we tend to forget.

Also... if you take High Blood Pressure medication... or Drugs for Diabetes... DO NOT DRINK ALCOHOL... since alcohol can make these drugs LESS EFFECTIVE.

Remember... a TURKEY dinner will make you very drowsy after dinner because of the high Tryptophane (amino acid) content. Along with a few drinks, this combination can be disastrous on a long trip home after Thanksgiving.

Platonic love

Eleanor Roosevelt had a "platonic, full-free love" for her doctor in the last 15 years of her life, according to a magazine article by the man's wife.

Edna P. Gurewitsch, writing in the current American Heritage, said that Mrs. Roosevelt's relationship with Dr. David Gurewitsch, 18 years her junior, made her "feel alive, womanly. She could love him because he could be trusted to keep within the bounds of idealized love. It was idealistic on both sides."

Mrs. Roosevelt and the Gurewitschs even bought a Manhattan townhouse where they lived together, "keeping separate apartments," Mrs. Gurewitsch said.

"Mrs. Roosevelt took great care that I was not given the feeling that I was a newcomer in an established relationship."

Future "delight"

Frederick Brisson, who was the husband of the late Rosalind Russell, is considering a new musical production of Robert Sherwood's play "Idiot's Delight" with books and lyrics by Alan Jay Lerner of "My Fair Lady" and "Camelot" fame, music by Charles Strouse.

James Coburn, Liz Robertson and Herbert Lorn are being considered for leading roles. Twyla Tharp would handle choreography and Calisto Tanzi would costume the cast.

Word is that the show might originate in London before coming to Broadway, with a target date during the summer of 1982.

Video get well card

Fred Saxon, the Hollywood reporter for Cable News Network, attended the Hollywood premiere of "On Golden Pond," starring Henry Fonda and Katharine Hepburn.

That's when he was inspired to work up a video get well card for the ailing Fonda.

He taped messages from Jane Fonda, Jimmy Stewart, Ruth Gordon, Fred Astaire, Jack Lemmon, Tom Bosley, Joel Gray and Richard Crenna, among others, and presented the results to Fonda's wife, Shirley.

Quote of the day

Singer-actor Jim Stafford hasn't come to terms with the unisex look, as he complained to variety show host Mike Douglas: "I've noticed fellows, myself included, who've had to have a purse for a girl. If you're going with someone, sooner or later you're going to have to end up holding that alien object for her. It's as though it emits radiation. You don't even know that size of your body where you're holding it. And heaven forbid you should lose the girl and have to walk around looking for her while holding her purse."

Glimpses

John Rubinstein is a leading contender for the title role in Don Gregory's musical "Chaplin," scheduled to open on Broadway in the spring.

Michael Tilson Thomas, a guest conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, plans a number of musical projects in the Los Angeles area to celebrate the city's Bicentennial.

The annual Carnegie Hall free children's concert this year will include works by Aaron Copland, Leonard Bernstein, John Philip Sousa and Jethro Williams, including the latter's music for "Star Wars."

O'Brian stars in a one-hour television drama, "Bush Doctor," syndicated by Liberty Mutual Insurance.

Howe: No harm in primary

By Paul Hendrie
Herald Reporter

Colleen Howe

HARTFORD Colleen Howe said her campaign to swipe the Republican nomination for the 1st District congressional seat from endorsed candidate Ann Uccello in a primary will not harm the party. "I do not believe it will be divisive," said Mrs. Howe Tuesday at a Capitol press conference to launch her primary campaign. "In fact, it should be a unifying force that can bring Republicans together to share in the best opportunity we've had in 20 years to win the seat."

Miss Uccello, the former Hartford mayor who won a first ballot endorsement at Monday night's Republican convention, "takes a different view."

"If a primary would be a disservice to the party and the people of the 1st District," Miss Uccello said Monday night. She repeated that view Tuesday when she ran into Mrs. Howe in the Capitol hallway.

vention, enough to challenge Miss Uccello in a primary. She was brimming with optimism Tuesday.

"Any polling we have done has led us to believe we are going in the right direction," she said. "A primary is just a natural course of events."

When told that Secretary of the State Barbara B. Kennedy, the Democratic nominee, planned to campaign for the Jan. 12 special election by giving out ice scrapers, Mrs. Howe glanced across the room at her husband and quipped, "we'll give out skates."

She said she will stress economic issues and she endorsed the Republican party line of reduced spending, a balanced budget and lower taxes.

"I am opposed to increasing taxes as a way to balance the budget," said Mrs. Howe.

While conceding that the holiday season will make a primary campaign difficult, she added, "it won't be easy for the voters as well. We can't let the timing affect us."

Mrs. Howe said she is "reaching out to party leaders around the district" and is forming a task force of local leaders to help in her campaign.

Locally, 11 of the 13 Manchester convention delegates backed Miss Uccello, while state Sen. Carl A. Zisser, R-Manchester, has been a

Group sets meeting

The Manchester Community Services Council will meet Dec. 3 at Emanuel Lutheran Church, 60 Church St.

The guest speaker will be William E. Fitzgerald, chairman of the Cheney Brothers National Landmark Historic District, who will discuss a proposal to convert two mill buildings into apartments.

A referendum asking the public to approve a $750,000 bond issue for public improvements in the area of the buildings will be on the ballot in the Jan. 12 special election to fill the 1st Congressional District seat formerly held by the late William R. Cotter.

The meeting will begin at noon. People who plan to attend should make reservations by Dec. 1 by calling the Human Services Department at 647-3092.

Health board backs quest for hairdressing licenses

The Advisory Board of Health agreed Tuesday to support a local beauty school's quest to have the state reinstate licensing and inspection procedures.

"We were very well regulated and they threw it all away," said Geraldine Prentiss, dean of the Creative School of Hairdressing at 808 Main St.

Mrs. Prentiss said the state stopped inspecting beauty shops and schools earlier this year and cut a number of exams for licenses because of a lack of funds.

The state will conduct an exam in mid-December, the first since June. In January the matter will go to the state legislature to address personnel and funding shortages that led to this year's problems.

The Advisory Board of Health agreed to write to area legislators supporting legislation to restore the funds for inspectors and examiners, after Mrs. Prentiss convinced the board that the hairdressers' problems are health-related.

"If there's no laws to govern it, that's what we're going to have — disease," Mrs. Prentiss said.

Students are trained to recognize health problems like head lice, ring worm, poison ivy and psoriasis, she said. If they are not aware of the diseases and do not follow proper procedures, they could spread them among clients, she added.

"The general public is going to suffer if the state stops inspections and licensing procedures," she said. "You'd much rather go to someone licensed or trained."

"There's going to be a loss of jobs because people will be able to do it cheaper in their kitchens."

She added, "I don't think the public is aware of all the caustic chemicals we use. Some things, we have to wear rubber gloves to use. If they aren't used properly, it could cause burns or hair loss."

OPINION / Commentary

Teamwork better than confrontation

Frank Smith, the black activist who, perhaps by default, seems to have become the chief spokesman for the Manchester black community, has been doing a lot of muscle flexing lately.

"If we don't get results in minority hiring, we could have some massive demonstrations by the summer, the likes of which the town has never seen," Smith was quoted as saying in a story that appeared in Monday's Herald.

Smith also credits pressure from the black community for the town's hiring of Jeanette Cave to head the Senior Citizens Center. "They just didn't hire that woman by chance," boasted Smith.

In making that statement Smith does a disservice to a highly qualified black by making her difficult job a little more difficult.

Prior to the appointment I had talked to Town Manager Bob Weiss, who told me, "We are considering hiring Cave for the position because she's the most qualified, but I regard to minority hiring on the Municipal level, unless there is pressure from the black community, the threat of a lawsuit, organized demonstrations or both."

WELL, I'M SORRY, gentlemen, I don't necessarily buy that here in Manchester. Pressure is one thing, but heavyhanded pressure, such as a "massive demonstration," will only interfere with positive actions now being taken to break down racial barriers.

Many white citizens were upset over some of the revelations in the

Such reverse discrimination, it was pointed out to me, is now considered illegal by the United States Justice Department. It is really a Catch 22 situation, because where the courts have found that such discrimination exists, as they did in Bridgeport, it has mandated preferential hiring. Apparently, judicial and legislative remedies are mutually exclusive.

Nevertheless, the town of Manchester and its Human Relations Commission are looking at other alternatives to attract and hire minority police officers when future openings occur. A pass-fail system is under consideration in which all qualified candidates, who pass the written examination, are eligible. However, as a practical matter, this eligibility might be limited to the top 25 candidates that the Board of Directors pass a resolution requiring preferential hiring of qualified black police candidates until minority policemen represent 15 percent of the total force.

It is not an easy task. In a column last month I mistakenly suggested that the Board of Directors pass a resolution requiring preferential hiring of qualified black police candidates until minority policemen represent 15 percent of the total force.

THERE WILL continue to be a problem in attracting highly qualified minority candidates who will test well in the written examination. Unfortunately Manchester, as a place to work, is not high on the list of those minority applicants who could qualify anywhere.

So it will take a combined effort to seek out and attract those candidates. I could never understand why Smith and several other blacks who objected vehemently when the town enlisted the aid of the Hartford chapter of the Urban League to locate and help prepare candidates. "The black community of Manchester can find its own qualified black applicants without help from the Urban League," Smith told me rather emphatically.

If Manchester is going to make meaningful progress in race relations it's going to take teamwork, not confrontation. People respond better to reason than fear, and gentle pressure is preferable to threats at every turn.

In Manchester

Five Miler: Big-time race

Like Topsy, the Five Mile Road Race in Manchester has had growing pains over the years. Only eight runners showed up for the inaugural race in 1927 and the same number toed the starting line in 1945 after a lapse of 10 years.

The field has grown to over 4,000, making it one of the biggest road races in the East.

One claim the Manchester Five Miler has is that it's the oldest sanctioned race over that distance in the country.

Tomorrow morning while Thanksgiving dinners are being prepared and the turkey in many households is in the oven, more than 4,000 men, women and children of all ages (14 the minimum with no maximum) in all shapes and colors will line up as they can on Main Street to start the exact 4.8-mile road through Manchester's paved streets.

The starting — and finishing — point will be on Main Street and an expected 25,000 onlookers are expected.

Meanwhile, Manchester's two high schools, East Catholic and Manchester High, both looking to salvage something from losing seasons, will tangle at Memorial Field for the town's schoolboy bragging rights.

Each team has won three of the six previous meetings, with the kickoff set at 10 a.m.

Back to the road race. While national, international and Olympic figures have graced the field, and often walked home with top honors (merchandise for this all-american event), the biggest winner will be the Muscular Dystrophy Research Fund, national objective of the sponsoring Nutmeg Forest. Tall Cedars of Lebanon.

All money collected, $3 from each official entrant plus every copper penny to paper money collected on race day on a pass-out that and hope-for-the-best return will enter the MD Fund, national objective of the Tall Cedars.

Judging by past times, shortly after — or before — 22 minutes have elapsed, the first runner should cross the finish line. The last will probably cover the course in just under one hour.

The race is Manchester's biggest sports spectacle, a position it has held since the late 1940s after word of mouth spread from early contestants.

The list of winners include big names in the track world. Manchester has long been a hot-bed for running, thanks to Pete Wigren, who developed many stars while coaching at Manchester High.

The race needed "local flavor" and it got just that in the early years. From Joe McCuskey, who went on to national fame. Then along came Charlie Robbins and later Pete Close.

Today, the race is big league by any measure. Chances are good that it will stay that way for years to come.

Weird plot to kill 'Baby Doc'

WASHINGTON—An incredible plot in the works to end the dictatorial regime of Haitian President Jean-Claude "Baby Doc" Duvalier. These are the bizarre ingredients: An American soldier of fortune, a handpicked team of international mercenaries, a group of Haitian exiles and some Italian businessmen looking for a fast buck.

Duvalier is known to be worried to the point of paranoia over the possibility that he will be assassinated. He has been publicly warned that there is a plot against him. In late October, three light planes flew over his unhappy country and dumped tons of literature proclaiming the dictator's imminent downfall.

Whether it was the Italo-American-Haitian plot that was the specific cause of Baby Doc's alarm is not clear. Maybe he doesn't even know about this one. But here's the story, as reported by my associate Dale Van Atta and Bob Sherman.

The soldier of fortune is John Dutcher, a rugged 40-year-old ex-Marine and self-proclaimed assassin who used to work for fugitive ex-CIA agent Edwin Wilson. I reported last August that Dutcher once identified himself as a "mercenary specializing in protection, training and hostage retrieval missions for foreign governments."

In mid-September, Dutcher was sent by Wilson to northern Italy to negotiate a Libyan construction contract with some Milan businessmen. While he was there, he met some Haitian exiles who want to get rid of Duvalier.

Dutcher agreed not only to recruit mercenaries in New Britain and South Africa but to purchase arms for the coup. The cost was calculated at $2 million, which the two Italian companies agreed to advance. A source close to the deal explained that the Italians had been successful Chilean governments have refused to give them back. Sources told my reporter Corky Johnson the current Chilean regime claims the seven ships are "missing."

In another case, Argentina was given $3 million worth of radar equipment, and has shown no inclination to return it.

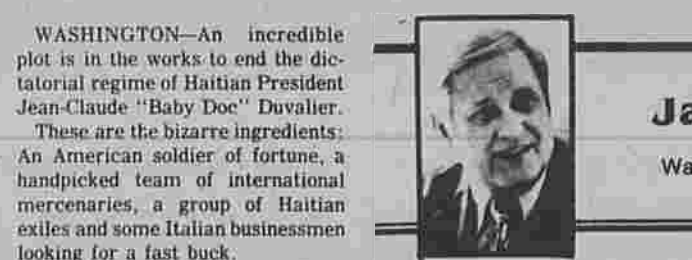

The State Department is reportedly reluctant to bring pressure on the freeloaders for fear they would turn to the Soviet Union for replacements if we demand the return of our material.

But some members of Congress are upset at these under-the-counter arms deals with governments of questionable human rights reputations. Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., has offered an amendment to the arms control act that would require presidential approval for military loans. Meanwhile, the secret traffic continues with little or no accounting to Congress.

SECRET ARMS DEALS: —The State Department has been secretly providing military equipment to foreign countries for more than 20 years in apparent violation of the Foreign Assistance and Arms Export Control Acts.

The boys in Foggy Bottom have been doing this by "lending" military hardware under long-term lease arrangements, without notifying Congress as the law requires. Countries that can't afford to pay are allowed to use U.S. equipment without payment, so the loans amount to donations.

Chile, for example, was supplied with seven military support ships in the 1960s. The vessels, worth some $14 million, were to have been returned by the mid-1970s, but

Unions will take revenge if pension benefits change

NEW BRITAIN (UPI) — A coalition of state employee unions is vowing to take revenge at the polls against lawmakers who support proposals to reduce state worker pension benefits to help balance the state's budget.

"It is fair to say any politician who attacks the rights of the elderly will face very severe political pressure," said Donald Pogue, counsel for the unions' Pension Coordinating Committee.

England Health Care Employees Union, issued a similar warning in a prepared statement circulated Tuesday by the coalition of six state employee unions.

"We'll do to any politician who plays around with our pension what we were going to do to the politicians who wanted to destroy Social Security," Brown said.

The coalition of unions representing 20,000 workers held a news conference in a New Britain hotel to criticize a proposal to decrease the retirement benefits already negotiated through collective bargaining.

The Connecticut Business and Industry Association has recommended that a law be passed to advance the retirement age for state workers from 55 to 65 and to reduce the benefits. The plan was endorsed by Republican leaders.

Rep. Gardner Wright, D-Bristol, is working on a bill to remove pensions from collective bargaining. He said the state could save $20 million to $40 million by changing the retirement plan.

A fact-finder's report on state pensions has recommended continuing the present retirement plan for current workers, but reducing benefits by an overall 20 percent for new employees with 100 percent funding by the state.

Pogue said it was inaccurate to use the fact-finder's report to justify a major overhaul of the pension system.

"We've got a collective bargaining law in the state to resolve issues in negotiations not in the legislature," he said. "Don't change the rules in the middle of the game."

Curry announces candidacy

NEW BRITAIN (UPI) — A two-term state lawmaker has become the first Democrat to formally announce his candidacy for the congressional seat being vacated by Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn.

In announcing his candidacy Tuesday, Sen. William Curry, D-Farmington, said Democrats had to hold fast to each seat in Congress against a Republican "assault of unprecedented intensity."

"The contest which looms is one among a handful of races across the country which will determine the political direction of this nation in the 1990's and beyond," Curry said.

Moffett has represented the 6th District for four terms but will be leaving it open to run for the U.S. Senate. He has announced plans to formally declare his Senate candidacy on Dec. 1.

Ho in a matchup on football field Schoolboys anxious to salvage long seasons

By Len Auster
Herald Sports Writer

When a 2-7 club clashes with a 1-8 outfit, how meaningful can the matchup be?

Very. Especially when it's the sixth annual Thanksgiving Day football clash between Manchester High and East Catholic. They've met 18 times and 18 Indians collide Thursday morning at Memorial Field at 10 o'clock with pride and salvation at stake.

"Any time you can win a rivalry like this it makes me feel like that much sweeter," slates Manchester Coach Mike Simmons. "It would make the seniors feel very good, in particular considering the year we've had they could remember the win a lot longer than the season."

The series stands even at 3-3 between the schools with Manchester shelving East a year ago by a 40-7 count on Paul McCuskey's six touchdown effort. That retraced the first Army & Navy Trophy, a three-time winner getting to retire a trophy.

The first meeting was opening day 1975 and didn't count towards the A&N Trophy. "It was an emotional game and very big game for the people of Manchester," seen East third-year Coach Jude Kelly. "For two years they (Manchester) have dominated us on the field and I feel they'll be ready. We have to motivate ourselves and get ready to play an emotional game Thursday."

See it as two evenly matched teams playing, especially on a day where emotion is so important in preparation and execution," Simmons remarks.

Kelly four weeks ago revamped his offense, particularly the line, and now goes with only two definite seniors starting. Otherwise, underclassmen dominate. That holds true defensively as well, with three of the 11 seniors.

Sophomore John Gilbert, with six touchdowns passes, starts at quarterback with sophomore Doug Post at tailback. The latter has scored four touchdowns. Either junior Rich Kuciskas or senior captain Emilio Gilbert is at fullback. Joe Palmer, Tim Feather and Joe Maningas are the receivers with Ray Jackson, Ken Boland, Todd Somerset, Dan Bennett and Kevin Lemery making up the front wall. Only Lemery and Somerset

Eagles-Indians series tied 3-3

are seniors. Maningas is the leading scorer with six TDs. "I feel we've made progress the last 4-5 weeks," states Kelly. "I feel disappointment the last month was the St. Paul game (26-10) and didn't play as well as we could through five games, was lost to a stress fracture. "The injuries haven't allowed us to solidify on offense or defense," voices Simmons. "It's hard to guess what the record would be because you know the ball takes strange bounces. We could be the same (record-wise) but I feel it would be different in a lot of games. We would have had a more respectable running game. That would have taken the pressure off the passing game."

"I feel both teams have good players but have struggled," cites Kelly. "We were embarrassed last year and want to do a better job. But we're not looking at this as getting back but what we have to do this year," he emphasizes.

At stake will be a leg up on the second Army & Navy Trophy and the lead in the series. The James Horvath Memorial Trophy, presented by the officials, also goes to the winner. Two trophies, donated by Merrill Whiston, president of Multi Circuits, are also presented to the top offensive and defensive players.

And to the winner goes some salvation to an otherwise forgettable campaign.

by the return of Scott Carone, who missed five games, and should be further aided by the return of linebacker Glen Chetelat, who missed the Pennecy encounter. "East obviously has scored 104 points and given up 174. It has over 100 first downs split to sport its 2-7 mark.

"I feel both teams have good players but have struggled," cites Kelly. "We were embarrassed last year and want to do a better job. But we're not looking at this as getting back but what we have to do this year," he emphasizes.

"It's hard to guess what the record would be because you know the ball takes strange bounces. We could be the same (record-wise) but I feel it would be different in a lot of games. We would have had a more respectable running game. That would have taken the pressure off the passing game."

Pitt and Penn State set for showdown

By United Press International

To hear Coach Jackie Sherrill, you'd figure he was reaching for the top instead of just trying to stay there.

To be honest with you, we don't have the same talent as Penn State," Sherrill said Tuesday in discussing this week's Pennsylvania showdown between his top-ranked Pitt Panthers and No. 9 Penn State Nittany Lions.

"I voted them No. 1 during the preseason, and even this past week I voted them very high," continued Sherrill. "We have some areas on the team where our talent is as good or better as theirs, but overall we're not as good."

This is the best football team, since I've been around, that Penn State has ever had."

The odds-makers make Pitt a one-touchdown favorite to win the 81st meeting between the clubs. With 17 straight victories, the Sugar Bowl-bound Panthers sport the longest winning streak among the nation's major colleges. It makes them an awfully inviting target for 82 Penn State.

It's easy to coach for this game at Penn State, Sherrill said. "You don't have to worry about motivating kids for this game. You don't have to worry about details. You've got guys playing against buddies and that type of emotional stuff.

"I really don't need to tell you this — you've heard it before. The aids motivate themselves for this kind of game. Still, it is easy to coach — I'm not saying it's easy to win — but it is easy to coach."

Last year Pitt defeated the Nittany Lions 14-0 en route to an 11-1 season and a No. 2 national ranking behind Georgia. Paterno believes the 1981 version may be even better.

"Pitt has a much better balanced running game than last year's, and they're much harder to predict on the passing game," said Paterno. "I'll be a much more difficult job defending them than last year."

No. 6 Texas, which meets Alabama in the Cotton Bowl on Jan. 1, faces Texas A&M Thursday and no doubt remembers last year's 24-14 loss to the Aggies. Texas A & M, 6-4, will face Oklahoma State in the Independence Bowl on Dec. 12.

Other games Saturday involve a number of sectional clashes, including Boston College vs. Holy Cross, Florida vs. Florida State, Tennessee vs. Vanderbilt, Virginia Tech vs. Virginia, Oklahoma vs. Oklahoma State, Houston vs. Rice, Tulane vs. Louisiana State and Arizona State vs. Arizona.

Thanksgiving foes Short work week for Lions, Chiefs

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — It's a short work week for the Detroit Lions and Kansas City Chiefs — but a lot shorter for the winner.

Detroit hosts Kansas City in its annual nationally televised Thanksgiving Day game as both the Lions and Chiefs start to feel the pressure of time, struggling to acquire enough wins to make the playoffs.

The loser has 10 long days to fret before it can do anything about restoring its position in the playoff hunt. The winner can relax during the weekend.

The Chiefs enter the game with an 8-4 record, good for a share of first place in the AFC West with the Denver Broncos. The two play at Denver soon and a Kansas City victory would put some limited pressure on the Broncos. The Lions are scrambling to come back from the near-dead and are hopeful of landing the conference's second wild-card berth. If not, the NFC Central Division champion Minnesota will be a full game with a home game yet to come against the Vikings.

"This game has a lot of tradition for us," Detroit coach Monte Clark said and this year it is important for everyone involved.

"Kansas City is having a great season," he said, "and we've got a shot at the playoffs. We'd like to make our last couple of games meaningful.

"It's brutal to get ready for the game," Clark said. "This is the world's shortest week. It's been done before. Everything becomes very abbreviated."

Two things that could get slightly abbreviated are Billy Sims' and Joe Delaney's rushing averages. The 100 yards in five of them, and in just one good carry — 15 yards — from a meaningless game.

After John Anderson scored an unassisted goal with a shot from the left circle at 10:14 bringing the Leafs to within 5-3, Froggy led the win with his 15th goal of the season and second of the game at 10:59.

"Philadelphia was hitting and they took us out of our play, made us make mistakes," said Toronto coach Mike Nykoluk, a former assistant coach in Philadelphia. "We haven't learned our lesson yet. We are in a rebuilding situation."

Ken Kerr put Philadelphia ahead at 1:45 of the first period by bouncing the puck off the pads of goalie Vince Terroneo. Toronto, winless in four games, tied tied at 1:08 of the second period when Rene Robert took a pass from Darryl Sittler from a face off and beat Flyers goalie Pete

49ers waiting for weekend and game against Giants

By United Press International

While most of the country enjoys its feast on Thursday, the San Francisco 49ers remain content to wait until the weekend.

The 49ers, once an albatross but now the surprise of the NFL, can become the first team to clinch a division title if they beat the New York Giants on Sunday. Coach Bill Walsh is already warning them against concentrating too much on last week's 33-31 victory over Los Angeles.

"There's no celebrating," said Walsh. "We're not so much improving to make in so many ways to be a bonafide champion contender."

Walsh's caution against the Giants seems justified. Virtually no one can figure the Giants, who have managed the difficult feat of losing twice to Green Bay and defeating Philadelphia in the same year.

Their victory over the Eagles gave them a 6-0 record and a shot at a wild card berth in the NFC. That could make them very ornery on their visit to the West Coast.

"I have to say that it's the best victory I've ever been associated with," said Giants coach Ray Perkins. "I think the team proved to themselves just what they are capable of. We showed what kind of character this team has."

Still, the 49ers show plenty of character too, having completed a 3-3 record that places them three games ahead of second-place Atlanta in the NFC West. They have plenty of weapons at their disposal and one of the most dangerous is the remarkable talent of kicker Ray Wersching.

"He's the greatest kicker in the history of the 49ers and perhaps the greatest in the game," Walsh said. "The number of clutch field goals he's kicked is just tremendous. How many times has he kicked a winning field goal for us? It seems to be time after time." Sunday he kicked a 37-yarder as the gun sounded to end the game and provide the winning margin.

"Every thought went into that kick," said Wersching, who also

When Coach Perkins told us before the game about either winning or playing for next year, man, that just went right through me," said seven-year pro George Martin. "I mean, I've been there. I don't want to think about another season like that."

In other games, Dallas meets Chicago and Kansas City faces Detroit on Thanksgiving Day. In Sunday games, Baltimore is at the New York Jets; Cincinnati at Cleveland; Green Bay at Minnesota; Los Angeles at Pittsburgh; St. Louis at New England; Washington at Buffalo; Tampa Bay at New Orleans; Atlanta at Houston; Denver at San Diego; and Oakland at Seattle.

On Monday night, Philadelphia is at Miami.

Mulligan, Hungerford MCC basketball coaches

Manchester Community College will have new coaches for both men's and women's basketball in 1981-82. Pat Mistretta announced that former Towson High Head Coach Bernie Mulligan will coach the Cougars men, while former Central Connecticut State College assistant Lanna Hungerford will coach the women.

Mulligan brings 13 years of varsity basketball experience at Towson High to MCC. During that time Mulligan won more than 100 games and was elected to Who's Who Among American High School Coaches in 1976. After looking over his potential team talents in early practice sessions, Mulligan feels the Cougars will be competitive in the College Connecticut Community will have new coaches for both men's and women's basketball in 1981-82. The Cougars open at home in the "Cougars Classic" late in December.

Hungerford played at Central Connecticut for four years. While at Central she received the McCord Award in recognition of her outstanding athletic and academic achievement, and the Bata Award as Most Outstanding Female Senior Student Athlete. Hungerford has been an assistant coach at Central since 1979.

All MCC women students interested in playing basketball should contact Hungerford at 321-2272, or stop by the athletic office on the main campus.

Construction whipped B.A. Club, 74-56, in exhibition basketball action last night at the Rams' Rose Hill Gym in New York.

Murphy, 6-foot-11 junior guard, was 5-of-10 from the floor and 1-of-1 from the foul line for 11 points in 20 minutes of playing time.

The former Eagle was Fordham's second-leading scorer a year ago, averaging 18.2 points, as the Rams posted a 19-9 campaign under Coach Jim Penzler.

Fordham opens its regular season, Friday and Saturday, competing in the Laphick Tournament against Detroit, Xavier and St. John's.

Murphy stands No. 6 on the East all-time scoring list.

Bart Starr's future as Packer at stake

By United Press International

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — The Green Bay Packers' 44-member board of directors may determine Coach Bart Starr's future with the Green Bay Packers in a Dec. 21 meeting.

The meeting comes one day after the struggling Packers wind up their seventh season under Starr by playing the New York Jets at Shea Stadium. Starr, who is in the final year of his contract, has compiled an overall record of 36-64-2 at Green Bay, including a 5-7 record thus far this year.

Before this season began, Starr said the Packers would have to have a winning record for him to keep his job.

Judge George Burns Jr. of Milwaukee, a board member, said he felt it was significant the meeting would take place after the season has ended.

"I think it would be unfair to talk about it before the season is over with," Burns said. "One of the agenda items has to be whether Starr is kept or not. That's a tough item to discuss four days before Christmas."

Fingers MVP in American League

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rollie Fingers, the Milwaukee Brewers' ace who already captured the American League Cy Young Award, has been named the league's most valuable player, narrowly edging Oakland outfielder Rickey Henderson.

Fingers, 35, became the first relief pitcher in league history to win the MVP and the first since Vida Blue to capture both the MVP and Cy Young honors in a single season. Blue accomplished the feat in 1971 with the Oakland A's.

The right-hander garnered 15 first-place votes from the 28-man panel and finished with a total of 312 points. Henderson, the only player other than Fingers to be named on all ballots, captured 12 first-place votes and 308 points. A first place vote for teammate Tony Armas probably cost Henderson the award.

The key to Fingers' value was the Brewers' belief that if they could lead a game in the seventh inning, they could call on Fingers to protect the margin.

Baltimore's Eddie Murray was both the Cy Young Award and the MVP. So he earned to be right.

Henderson, who will be 23 next month, excelled offensively and defensively in helping Oakland win the West Division title. He finished fourth in the league in batting with a .319 average and stole 56 bases to lead the league for the second straight season.

He played left field in an outfield that was described by one veteran scout as the best he had ever seen. Murray hit .294 with 22 homers and 78 RBI. His 22 home runs tied for the league lead and his RBI total was tops in the league. Murray also scored 57 runs.

Evans also had 22 homers, and his 71 runs batted in was fourth best in the AL. The right-hander hit .296 with 84 runs scored.

Armas, 28, represents one of the shrewder deals made by former Oakland owner Charlie Finley. Armas came to the A's from Pittsburgh with Rick Langford and Mitchell Page in 1977. He blossomed in 1980, hitting 35 home runs and driving in 109 runs. He continued to excel in 1981, tying for the league lead in homers with 22 and finishing second in RBI with 79. He also achieved an intimidating arm in demonstrating an intimidating arm shaded Cleveland 9-0. Washington blasted Detroit State 107-88, and Chicago defeated San Diego 109-101.

Pacers' 127, Knicks' 112. At Indianapolis, Johnny Davis scored 34 points and Luis Orr added 23. Davis picked up 18 points in the second half, hitting field goals at key spots to keep Indians ahead as New York attempted a comeback from a 66-53 halftime deficit.

At Atlanta, Dan Roundfield hit a seldom won anywhere, lost his 11th in a row, a 125-110 decision to the Los Angeles Lakers.

"This is the first game this year that we shot well," said New Jersey coach Larry Brown. "I was pleased with our overall team play tonight because we did some things that we wanted to do."

"We dropped off Moses Malone to stay out of foul trouble and we shot well. Our players are getting stronger after early season injuries. Ray Williams is playing much better now and Otis Birdsong had a subpar game."

Biring scored 21 points, and Buck Williams added 16. Malone led Houston with 24 points and 13 rebounds. The Rockets shot only 42 percent from the field and missed 13 free throws.

"The Nets took it to us tonight and won the ballgame," said Houston coach Del Harris. "They were a very good young team and will get better as time goes along."

"Missing free throws early in the game got our team down and led to Kaseem when we got in trouble," West, assistant to Coach Pat Riley. "We are late in the entire league in free throws this year after finishing fifth last year."

At San Diego, Reggie Theus scored 25 points and Artis Gilmore added 20. It was Chicago's first win on the road in six games while the Clippers have now lost five straight games. John Douglas and Freeman Williams each scored 16 points to lead San Diego, which is 2-9.

Columbia, Bolton end talks

By Richard Cody Herald Reporter

BOLTON — After receiving a letter from Windham High Schools' Board of Education which said sending students to Bolton High School might precipitate negotiations resulting in raising tuition, the Columbia board has cut off negotiations with Bolton. This town will not have Columbia students, as was hoped. Alan W. Baumert, the recently elected chairman of Columbia's board, said Tuesday the decision was based solely on money. "It had nothing to do with the educational quality of Bolton High School," he said. "The Windham board said they couldn't guarantee anything."

Bolton. If the Columbia board did send students to Bolton, and then Windham raised its tuition rates, it could mean a $42,000 increase in the total school board budget. This possibility, Baumert said, was why the Columbia board voted unanimously Monday at a special meeting to reject the Bolton offer.

He added that this decision also reflected feelings of the majority of residents in town. At a public hearing held two weeks ago in Columbia, residents showed by a 2-1 margin they were not in favor of sending kids to Bolton.

Bolton High School now has 239 students, and the building can handle 425. Bolton school officials said a maximum of 225 would be best to maintain curriculum. Officials are projecting an enrollment of about 280 in three years, with it then dropping to about 260.

Bolton began pursuing other towns' students three years ago when faced with a sharp decline in town student population. Bringing in students from other towns would strengthen the financial base of the high school, which has been criticized by some residents and officials as being too expensive for the town to operate.

Two years ago the board here secured students from Willington, and the school now has about 35 Willington students. Willington pays $1,550 per student this year, and will have to pay per-pupil cost next year, which school officials say will be about $2,800. This cost, they say, is expected to jump to about $3,100 in two years.

Some officials have said obtaining Columbia students is crucial to future planning of the school system, though Superintendent Raymond A. Allen said recently it is not "critical" that Bolton has Columbia students. The school board here recently reinstated a study committee to re-assess data found in a study done on the school system three years ago. The work is expected to be completed by January of 1983.

Part of the reason for setting up the committee was to let residents know that the school board and administration are studying options for the school system, so that the issue of whether or not to close the high school does not come up during the annual budget process. However, some officials have said they expect the issue to come up anyway, since budgeting will be tight.

Modern farmer doesn't fit myths

Mark each of the five statements below either true or false.

Large agricultural conglomerates are taking over the family farm, and the tradition of the family farm is rapidly disappearing in the United States.
Young people are leaving the farm as fast as they can get a college education and are moving into urban areas.
Due to the great risks and hardships in farming — weather on top of the general problems of interest rates, cost of living, etc. — a majority of farmers, if given a free choice, would move into other occupations.
Compared with the overall American population, farmers receive less formal education.
Most farmers gripe about politics and fear the American system is falling — but they don't bother to vote in presidential elections.
If you answered true to any of the above, you flunked. All are false statements, according to a comprehensive study of farmers' cost of coast, just conducted for Cotton Inc. by Research & Forecasts, an independent New York-based research firm. Yet, these are our strongly held beliefs about farmers. It's difficult to accept them as merely popular myths that we hand down from generation to generation. For instance, 91 percent of those farmers surveyed believe they face more risks than people in other occupations. An overwhelming majority (95 percent) said that, given a free choice, they would continue farming. Only 60 percent of the general public would continue in the occupations they now have. The sources of job satisfaction among the farming

Your Money's Worth

community also are extraordinary. A close family environment was cited by one-third of the respondents, while being your own boss (70 percent) and being outdoors were mentioned by substantial numbers. As an example of "stability," 80 percent of farmers believe that it is "very important" to do things together as against 74 percent of the public, and 65 percent of farmers would try to reconcile marital problems "at all costs" rather than seek divorce (48 percent of the public). A hidden shocker concerns education, for this survey stresses that today's farmer is more (rather than less) educated than other Americans. A full 45 percent of those surveyed had attended college, compared with 30 percent of the general public. (That I would not have guessed.) Furthermore, they used their education, becoming what the report calls "information activists." At least 80 percent of farmers use extension services, agribusiness literature and professional consultants in farm management programs. Farmers are informed and use the most modern equipment both in the fields and in offices where computer usage is becoming a trend. Many, in fact, consider themselves managers and businessmen, hardly just "old-fashioned farmers." Another startling finding concerns ownership of the surveyed farms (a full 50 cotton and non-cotton farmers all over the country, which is more than a fair sampling). Only 1 percent are not family-held operations and about 8 percent are family corporations formed mainly for tax reasons. There is a "fervent optimism" on the part of those surveyed that farming will continue as the focus of family tradition. On top of this, there is a "strong tendency," especially among young farmers, to encourage children to remain in farming and share the traditional farm ethic of their elders. And do they vote? In the last presidential election, 92 percent cast ballots while only 67 percent of the general public carried through to this traditional way to prove how they believe. So cast aside the old myths and look at the new profile of the American farmer. It speaks well for our future prosperity. ## Suit appeals excavation

By Richard Cody Herald Reporter

ANDOVER — A husband and wife who have consistently voiced public opposition to development proposals by Eugene Sammartino, owner of the firm FRI-Land Equities Inc., have filed suit in Rockville Superior Court against the town and the firm seeking a stop to excavation work on land near their home. Amade and Mary Boudreau are claiming, says their attorney David W. Keith, that the Planning and Zoning Commission acted improperly in the way it advertised the public hearing for the excavation permit issued to Sammartino. They also claim there should have been another public hearing before permission was granted, since there was a change in plans.

They are also seeking an injunction next week in court to stop the excavation until the appeal can be heard in a formal trial process, Keith said.

Keith said the nature of the suit is not to seek damages, but is an appeal of the recent PZC decision.

If their claims that the public hearings were not advertised properly according to state statute are upheld by the court, he said, the permit could face nullification.

up there, but in face of stiff opposition, he backed down.

This opposition was in a large part initiated by Mrs. Boudreau, who lives at Lindholms Corner. She and some other local residents circulated flyers and a questionnaire throughout town, which helped rouse support for a special meeting the PZC held a few weeks ago on housing needs in Andover. A great majority of the 70 residents there indicated they were not in favor of multi-family dwellings, with the chief reason being that it would change the character of the town.

Keith said the injunction is being sought to "attempt to keep the owner of the land from operating under the permit."

Scouts distribute booklets

J.A. goal set

HARTFORD — A goal of $275,000 has been set for the 1982 fund campaign of Junior Achievement of North Central Connecticut Inc., according to Don Lyons, vice president operations, power systems group, Combustion Engineering Inc., and campaign chairman.

"We feel the goal (which is about 10 percent above last year's) is a realistic and reasonable one," commented Lyons, "in view of the economy today. But, it also takes into account the need for growth in our J.A. programs and the heightened interest on the part of young people in economics and business."

J.A. is the nation's oldest economic education organization with programs geared to various age groups. The most well-known is the program for high school students in which they form and run their own miniature businesses under the guidance of adult advisers from the business community. Two 15-week cycles are run in conjunction with the school year.

New bill seeks to avoid battle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional Republican leaders, trying to avoid a repeat of this week's budget battle that partially shutdown the government, are working with the White House on a new spending bill.

"We need to get a package that will be acceptable to the administration and can get passed through Congress," Senate GOP Leader Howard Baker was quoted by an aide as saying Tuesday at a Capitol Hill strategy meeting.

A big problem in the last confrontation — which erupted Monday with President Reagan's first veto and a temporary suspension of "non-essential" government services — was conflicting White House and congressional figures.

"We're trying to get everybody up here using the same sheet, singing the same song," the Baker spokesman said.

Baker invited White House officials to Capitol Hill Tuesday to start working with House and Senate Republicans on a new spending bill.

Under the stopgap passed by Congress Monday after Reagan vetoed the previous one as too costly, federal funds will flow until Dec. 15. By that date, Congress hopes to have a new budget measure.

Presidential counselor Edwin Meese warned Reagan might again veto the next spending bill if it is not lean enough — and again will be prepared to shut down the government if necessary.

Workers paid for shutdown

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal employees who didn't work during Monday's partial government shutdown will be paid, the administration says, but officials have no idea how much their half-day rest cost taxpayers.

Officials also don't know exactly how many employees it furloughed during President Reagan's budget clash with Congress Monday, which temporarily left the government broke and forced the suspension of "non-essential" services.

Donald J. Devine, director of the Office of Personnel Management, estimates that less than 500,000 workers were furloughed. The Office of Management and Budget gave a rough estimate of 200,000.

Excluding members of the armed services and postal employees, all of whom worked Monday, there are 2.1 million federal employees — who have a daily payroll of $190 million.

Devine said the government doesn't know how much money it lost from work the furloughed employees didn't do. And the Office of Management and Budget said there is no way to calculate this.

But Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., maintained that the whole exercise cost $1 billion because bureaucrats were paid for "doing absolutely nothing."

The furloughed workers first were told they were being sent home without pay. But Devine said after consulting with Reagan and Congress the government decided all will be paid.

Legally this will be done by erasing the furloughs and listing the time off as administrative leave.

Next month the budget battle could resurface, and if employees are furloughed for an extended period, it may be a different story.

Schmidt sure on arms offer Brezhnev back in Moscow

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev convinced West Germany before his return to Moscow today that he seeks "substantial reductions" in nuclear missiles in Europe at next week's Geneva talks with the United States.

"We never wanted to be stronger than anyone else and we do not have that aim now," Soviet government spokesman Leonid Zamyatin quoted Brezhnev as telling West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt during talks Tuesday.

"We have no thought of attacking anyone," Zamyatin said, making a new offer to reduce any nuclear weapons system if the cut was matched by the United States. "We have no weapon we do not want to part with, if this were mutual."

In Washington, the State Department said Brezhnev's offer Monday to reduce "by hundreds rather than dozens" the number of Soviet missiles targeted on Western Europe "contains nothing that is significantly new."

"At the same time, we would hope that President Brezhnev's willingness to consider reductions is a sign that the Soviets are beginning to see the advantages of pursuing genuine arms reductions in this area," a statement said.

Schmidt said he emerged from the talks convinced Moscow wants to agree on "substantial reductions" in medium-range nuclear weapons in Europe at the Geneva negotiations starting Monday.

"It is clear the Soviet side has recognized the necessity of compromise," Schmidt said.

But U.S.-Soviet differences emerged on the missiles issue during the three days before Brezhnev's return to Moscow today. In making his offer, Brezhnev rejected the proposal Reagan made last week to reduce medium-range missiles to zero.

Brezhnev did not say if his offer, voiced at a dinner Monday, meant dismantling the missiles or merely moving them behind the Ural Mountains — where they could hit most of Western Europe.

He also did not say if it included SS-20 missiles whose deployment Washington says has swung the European balance of power in Moscow's favor. Brezhnev's proposal could apply to the older SS-4 and SS-5 weapons, defense experts said.

Tiny pilgrims enjoy an old-time feast

As Principal Walter Roth does the honors, Mark Levine of 22E Channing Dr. admires the bird.

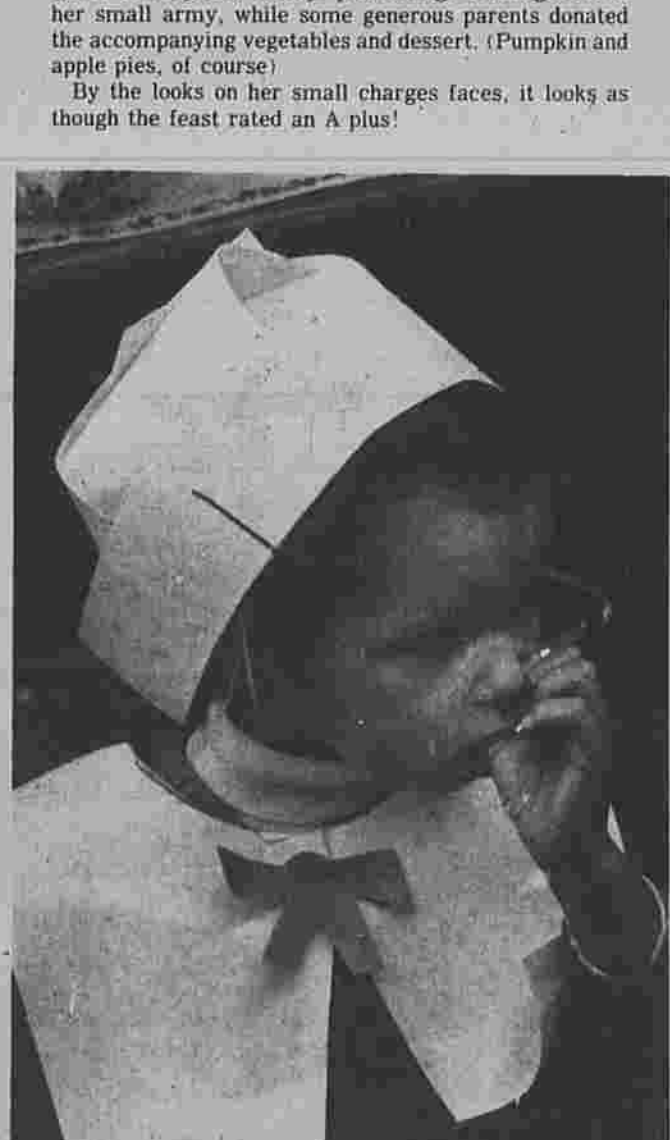

Verplanck School kindergarteners enjoyed a real old-fashioned Thanksgiving feast this week. While teacher Ruth M. Leeds baked a turkey and stuffing, parents donated the trimmings, including luscious pumpkin and apple pies for dessert.
