Dozier: trial small sacrifice

VICENZA, Italy (UPI) — Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier gave his wife a belated Christmas gift Friday, thanked the world for its prayers and said his 42-day ordeal as a prisoner of the Red Brigades was "my small sacrifice on behalf of freedom."

Dozier, clean-shaven again, wearing his dress uniform and flanked by his wife and daughter, read a brief statement to reporters at the U.S. Army base in Vicenza where he is still under medical observation.

The 50-year-old one-star general would not answer questions about his captivity, explaining he had yet to be debriefed and to brief Italian and U.S. authorities.

However, Col. Thomas Barham, the Vicenza base commander, said Dozier told him the terrorists treated him well, allowing him enough food and sleep.

He added that the first meal Dozier requested after his dramatic rescue Thursday morning was an American hamburger and french fries, washed down with Coca-Cola.

In Verona, the northern Italian city where Dozier was kidnapped Dec. 17, police sources said the tip that led them to the Padua apartment where Dozier was held probably came from a young drug addict with Red Brigades connections.

The sources said the youth, arrested during the manhunt for Dozier, told investigators of a Red Brigades hideout in Padua.

Police refused to confirm the that tip came from the youth, but police sources indicated his information put them on the right track.

Standing ramrod straight and sporting a new crew cut, Dozier surprised his wife Judith by presenting her with a belated Christmas gift he bought before he was kidnapped from his Verona apartment.

Mrs. Dozier, 47, broke into tears as her husband placed a gold chain with a NATO medallion around her neck and the couple held each other in a long embrace.

Dozier recalled that during his service in Vietnam he saw a poster that read: "Those who have never been required to make sacrifices for freedom don't know the true value of freedom."

Dozier said, "The events of the past six weeks or so were just my one small sacrifice on behalf of freedom. These sacrifices continue."

Robert Mattel, left, and John Carangelo of the East Coast Environmental Service vacuum up the chemical tri-ethane which leaked from a tanker truck, on the right in the background, and

Roosevelt is remembered

HYDE PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — Memories of a jaunty cigarette holder and echoes of "we have nothing to fear, but fear itself" will dominate ceremonies today marking the 100th anniversary of the birth of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

A day-long series of events was planned at the family estate to pay homage to the man who overcame the crippling handicap of polio to lead the nation through the Great Depression and most of World War II as the 32nd president of the United States.

Dignitaries ranging from Roosevelt's family to New York Gov. Hugh Carey have been invited to the centennial celebration at the Hyde Park estate on the banks of the Hudson River about 75 miles north of New York City.

The National Park Service, which now controls the sprawling estate that includes the FDR Library and Museum, slated a wreath laying ceremony in the ornate Rose Garden, to be followed by a tour led by Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr.

Ironically, one section of the main house was hit by fire a week ago, but officials said it did not upset plans for the open house in the park that also contains the Vanderbilt Mansion and the historic site dedicated to Roosevelt's wife, Eleanor.

Carey was to give an informal address and a first-day-of-issue commemorative stamp was to be unveiled.

Although Roosevelt is remembered primarily as the author of the "New Deal," and a wartime leader who galvanized a nation shocked after Pearl Harbor, his political career began long before 1932, when he was elected to his first of an unprecedented four terms as president.

That career in public service, a tradition in the Roosevelt family that included the presidency of distant cousin Theodore Roosevelt, was brutally interrupted in 1921 when the then 39-year-old Roosevelt was crippled by polio.

John Carangelo of the East Coast Environmental Service cleans up after a chemical spill on Tolland Turnpike Friday. State Department of Environmental Protection officials said most of the spill was vacuumed up and should cause no problems.

Toxic chemical spills, but is vacuumed up

A tanker truck on a run from Bayonne, N.J. to Framingham, Mass., sprang a leak Friday afternoon and spilled 1,000 gallons of the toxic chemical tri-ethane on Tolland Turnpike.

Town firefighters shoveled gravel into makeshift dikes to keep the liquid from draining into storm sewers, then into Union Pond.

A cleanup crew was called in from East Coast Environmental Service Inc. of New Haven and General Chemical Inc. of Framingham, Mass. — which owns the leaking truck — also sent help.

Officials from the state Department of Environmental Protection were on hand at the scene and an engineer for the agency, Charles Zieminski, said that by 5:30 p.m. Friday most of the spill had been cleaned up.

The cleanup method involves vacuuming the chemical from the road surface.

Zieminski said officials were certain that "98 to 99 percent" of the chemical, described in a manufacturer's brochure as a skin and eye irritant, had been cleaned up.

"There should be no material seeping in. Perhaps a slight residual. But nothing to cause any environment or health problems," Zieminski said.

Zieminski said a few gallons of the chemical tri-ethane — a trade name for trichloroethane — had spilled into a storm basin which leads to Union Pond.

But, Zieminski added, the basin was frozen and all the chemical was sucked out of the basin by a vacuum before any of it had a chance of flowing to the pond.

Zieminski said the DEP will return to the spill site today to take water samples from nearby storm basins.

The spill site was barricaded and covered with sand, according to Town Deputy Fire Chief W.Roy Stratton.

The brochure said the chemical's vapors are "heavier than air" and will "collect in low areas." It is not soluble in water.

Although non-flammable, the brochure said, the chemical can form toxic and corrosive acid fumes if its vapors come in contact with hot, glowing surfaces, flames or electrical arcs.

"Do you want to cough and clean out your lungs?" quipped Dan Kent, the driver of the truck.

Kent said he was driving east on Interstate 86 when he noticed the leak and pulled off the highway.

Stratton said Kent immediately called both his company and the fire department.

There were no injuries reported and police blocked that portion of Tolland Turnpike, near Union Pond, to most traffic.

The area of the leak is near where a new industrial park is planned. State Department of Environmental Protection official Brian Coas kept onlookers away from the leak, as he supervised the clean-up.

Coventry school referendum fails

By Richard Cody
Herald Reporter

COVENTRY — In a very small turnout voters Friday narrowly turned down the town's $4.6 million plan to renovate the four school buildings, a proposal that was the biggest bond issue to ever come before voters here.

But saying that the margin of 18 votes is hardly clear cut, Town Council Chairwoman Joan Lewis and Vice Chairman Frank M. Dunn Jr. say they will send the plan — maybe not even changed — back to voters shortly and try harder to bring "the vote out."

Only 1,022 of the town's more than 4,500 eligible voters turned out in the two voting districts, with the first district voting overwhelmingly against the plan and the second in favor of it. The final tally was 570 to 552. The first district voted 233 to 326 against, and the second 319 to 244 in favor.

"It was a very, very bad turnout," one registrar said after the results came in. "It's the worst one I've ever seen."

The project proposed to rejuvenate the decaying condition of all of the town's buildings. It also planned to bring the schools into compliance with state regulations for the handicapped, and to make the buildings more energy efficient.

The state had agreed to fund about 70 percent of eligible costs, meaning the town would have had to chip in $1.8 million, which would have been spread over a 20-year period.

The most expensive part of the plan was installing three new roofs. Mrs. Lewis said she was disappointed with the turnout and the result, especially since she and other council members spent the day telephoning people to encourage turnout.

"To lose by only 18 votes makes you just feel pretty bad that you could have found 18 votes to take it the other way. It was so close," she said.

The town must approve the plan, she said, by June. Otherwise, state funding will be gone. "The problems still exist. The schools are just too vital to the town, and certainly to the young people to just drop it."

The council had been selling the plan with the pitch that it would save the town's major assets: the school buildings.

"We're just going to have to keep trying to reach the people. Hopefully they will realize the necessity. With a little more work we can get the project approved," she said. "Certainly 18 votes is not an ultimatum."

Mrs. Lewis said the next step will

Way cleared for R.I. trial

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — A crucial ruling Friday — the third in as many days favoring the state — will allow prosecutors to introduce medical evidence they say will help prove jet-setter Claus von Bulow twice tried to kill his wealthy wife with insulin overdoses.

It cleared the way for the opening next week of the trial when the jury will view the alleged "scene of the crime" — the ocean-side mansion Clarendon Court on Newport's "Millionaire's Row."

Judge Thomas H. Needham rejected Friday a defense motion to exclude from the attempted murder trial all medical data on Martha "Sunny" von Bulow, 50, who has been in an irreversible coma since the second alleged attack.

The defense wanted the evidence barred under an obscure state law forbidding release of such material without patient permission. Needham ruled because the patient is also an alleged victim, "no privilege against disclosure exists."

Ritual hinted in slaying

ATLANTA (UPI) — Two witnesses Friday placed accused killer Wayne Williams with Billy Barrett, the 27th of 28 young blacks abducted and murdered in Atlanta, and a medical examiner said a ritual may have been performed over Barrett's body.

The testimony of a mother and son, relatives of the 17-year-old Barrett, made Barrett the sixth victim to be linked through testimony with Williams — who is charged with only two murders.

Williams is on trial for the slayings of Nathaniel Carter, the last victim, and Jimmy Ray Payne, the 20th.

Barrett's was the last of the "independent offenses" the defense is presenting to the jury to try to show a "pattern," on the part of the squat, 23-year-old black photographer. It appeared the prosecution's case, which entered its second month Friday, may be rested next week.

DeKalb County Medical Examiner Joseph Burton testified that Barrett, who disappeared May 11 and was found strangled the next day, had been marked after the body, he testified, showed two stab wounds in the abdomen, inflicted after death and superficial at any rate — surrounded by a circle of five "pricks in the skin."

Storm aims at Midlands

By United Press International

A fast-moving winter storm dumped more than a foot of snow on the southern Rocky Mountains Friday and took aim at the Midwest. Frigid temperatures replaced a short-lived January thaw in the northern states.

The National Weather Service posted a long list of winter storm advisories throughout the southern Plains, warning of potentially heavy snowfall from Kansas to Indiana.

The storm, which developed over southern Nevada, spread foot-deep snows in the mountains of Utah, Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado. It was expected to push into the Midlands late Friday and Saturday.

Ahead of the storm, freezing rain, sleet and snow fell over parts of southeastern Nebraska and southern Iowa.

In York County, Neb., a car slid into the path of a school bus and burst into flames, killing the car's driver, Robert C. Brozek, 25, of Aurora. No students on the bus were hurt in the early morning accident.

Jacob: Reagan worries blacks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The new head of the National Urban League told President Reagan to his face Friday that minorities are worried his programs are being carried out at the expense of black and poor people.

"I think it's fair to say that the effects of what has taken place in the last nine months has had a grossly negative impact on black people," National Urban League president John Jacob told reporters after his Oval Office meeting with the president.

It was one of the harshest direct criticisms Reagan has had concerning blacks, although the media has frequently reported the president's image among minorities was becoming lattered.

"Would you trust Ronald Reagan?" a reporter asked Jacob. "I trust my mother," he replied.

Jacob, who succeeded Vernon Jordan as league president, said the president was "very gracious" and expressed hope there would be more such meetings. Ironically, it was Jordan who greeted President Jimmy Carter to office with an even tougher dressing down.

Suspect may face death

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The prosecution of a teenage Armenian arrested for the assassination of the Turkish consul general will be handled by the county district attorney to insure the death penalty will apply in the case, officials said Friday.

Al Albargate, a spokesman for the district attorney's office, said although murdering a foreign diplomat is a violation of federal law, the case will be handled by a county prosecutor — not the Justice Department.

"We could have a death penalty case here," Albargate said. "The sentence for violating the federal statute is only life in prison."

Prosecutors must file formal charges against Sassounian within 48 hours — not counting the weekend — or release him from custody. Albargate said "probably nothing will happen until Monday."

Condemned man gets stay

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Convicted cop killer Anthony Antone, one of two men scheduled to die Tuesday in Florida's electric chair, won a temporary stay Friday pending an appeal to the 11th Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta.

The other condemned man, Ernest John Dobbert, went before a federal judge in Jacksonville Friday afternoon seeking a similar stay.

The two were scheduled to be put to death at Florida's Raiford State Prison, beginning 7 a.m. Tuesday.

Antone, 64, is the oldest man under the death penalty in Florida. The 49-year-old Dobbert, convicted of killing his own child and despoised by many of his fellow inmates because of it, has been described as the most hated man on the death row.

U.S. District Judge George C. Carr initially refused a stay for Antone Friday, saying he was sure the appeals court in Atlanta would stay the execution.

But when told by defense attorneys the death warrant could be carried out anytime after noon Friday, Carr granted a temporary stay until noon Monday.

"The 11th circuit will act on this before then," he said. He did not elaborate on his prediction.

Antone was sentenced to die for the 1975 contract murder of former Tampa police vice squad Sgt. Richard Cloud. Dobbert was sentenced to die in 1974 for the torture murder of his 9-year-old daughter Kelly Ann in Jacksonville in 1971 or 1972.

Samarin claims Soviet smear

MILFORD (UPI) — A former Yale University language instructor the Justice Department wants to deport for writing Nazi propaganda 40 years ago says he is the victim of a Soviet smear campaign.

Vladimir Sokolov Samarin, 68, is accused by the Justice Department of writing and editing anti-Semitic articles in Nazi-occupied Russia during the war, advocating the annihilation of Jews.

Samarin — who has a cardiac condition and has been in seclusion in his Milford home — claims the Soviet Union leaked articles he wrote during World War II to the west in an effort to use "liberals" in the United States to discredit him.

Samarin came to the U.S. in 1951, became a citizen in 1957 and a Yale assist-

Haig meets Thatcher

LONDON (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig, winding up a tour of the Middle East and Europe, conferred with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher Friday and said the NATO allies were now united in their approach to confronting the Polish crisis.

But Haig, who briefed Mrs. Thatcher both on his talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and with Israeli and Egyptian leaders, conceded earlier that his efforts to resolve the Palestinian autonomy negotiations still have a long way to go.

The allies had been split over the Polish crisis with West Germany, among other West European nations, strongly opposed to President Reagan's Soviet sanctions.

But Haig, leaving No. 10 Downing Street after a 90-minute working lunch with Mrs. Thatcher, said he thought the allies had forged a "strong united front."

"I have been very much encouraged by Western unity and by the action taken in Europe, both among the Ten (the European Common Market nations) and unilaterally," Haig said.

"We have kept a strong united front, as was clear in my discussions with the prime minister. I was also satisfied by the recent NATO ministerial meeting in Brussels" and by the actions taken subsequently," he said.

This was a reference to NATO's decision to end government-guaranteed bank credits to Poland except for food, not to continue talks on rescheduling Poland's foreign debts and to send no more subsidized food shipments to Poland.

World pilot got reports

BOSTON (UPI) — The final weather report received by the pilot of a World Airways jet that skidded into Boston Harbor trying to land in fog and sleet was prepared 45 minutes before the accident, federal authorities said Friday.

The jet skidded off the end of runway 15 into Boston Harbor and split apart Saturday night, sending 39 people to hospital and leaving 12 passengers missing and feared drowned. A four-day search has failed to turn up any trace of the missing people.

National Transportation Safety Board spokesman Patricia Goldman said the final report was radioed to the plane 37 minutes prior to the crash, about the time another pilot reported "fair to poor" braking conditions.

However, the report did not contain information from a Delta Airlines pilot who said braking conditions were "poor to nil" on runway 15.

She did not specify what was in the weather report, but emphasized that the pilot has the final decision on whether to land.

Today is Saturday, Jan. 30, the 30th day of 1982 with 335 to follow.

The moon is moving toward its first quarter. The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury and Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, 32nd president of the United States, was born Jan. 30, 1882.

On this date in history:

In 1835, a deranged painter, Richard Lawrence, fired two shots at President Andrew Jackson but missed.

In 1933, Adolf Hitler, destined to become the all-powerful dictator of World War II, was named chancellor of the Third Reich.

In 1948, Indian leader Mohandas Gandhi was assassinated by a Hindu extremist — plunging India's millions into mourning.

In 1979, the Iranian government authorized the return of Ayatollah Khomeini. The United States ordered evacuation of all its dependents.

A thought for the day: President Franklin D. Roosevelt said, "The truth is found when men are free to pursue it."

Weaver students visit MHS

Exchange shows teen-agers' similarities

By Nancy Thompson Herald Reporter

Manchester High School and Hartford's Weaver High School are as different as day and night — right? Not according to students from the two schools who spent the day together Friday.

True, Weaver is a predominantly black, inner city school and MHS is largely white and suburban.

And yes, there are differences in the way students dress, the discipline codes, and the course requirements the students attend.

But as far as differences among the students go, they say there aren't any.

"That doesn't mean they didn't expect any."

"They are different from what people tell you," said MHS senior Manny Johnson of his peers from Weaver. "They tell they're loud and rowdy. I thought they would be real, rowdy and destructive. They're not."

"You always have this prejudice about inner city high schools," said MHS student David Brennan. "This way you get to meet the students and find out what they're like."

And that's the point of Friday's get-together, which was an exchange between the two schools. Thirty-eight Weaver students came to MHS for the day, where they were paired with host students who took them to classes and showed them the school. Students from MHS made a similar visit to Weaver in November.

"I think it is a good idea because each of us will get a better idea of what school life is like for the others," said Weaver student Tyrone Leggett. "They have a stereotype about Weaver, but it's different after they visit."

Leggett, who is black, said he didn't feel out of place in the mainly-white school.

"Here I didn't even notice my color," he said.

Some of the MHS students said it was different when they went to Weaver.

"When we were over there, I felt like we really stuck out. Everybody noticed we were there," one white MHS student felt.

"Now you know how we feel," a black MHS student responded.

The students agreed that the exchanges are a good idea because they give them a chance to see what different schools and students are like.

"Instead of being all with one race, everybody can get together," MHS student Troy Brown commented.

"You get to meet different people and exchange ideas," said Andrea White, a Weaver student.

Cheryl Craddock, an MHS student, said she liked the Weaver students better than some of her classmates at MHS. "I think they're better," she said. "They're not as rude as some people who go here."

Andrey McFarlane, a Weaver student, noted that people at MHS don't seem to be in a much of a hurry as at Weaver. MHS students don't talk as much as Weaver students, she added.

"Classes are quieter, boring, she said. "The don't have as much work to do."

MHS student Desiree Pina agreed. "Academically, (Weaver) it's fantastic," she said. "It's a beautiful school. The people are so friendly."

"I like the way the teachers teach here," said Weaver student Treda Collier. "People are very nice. A lot of people my host introduced me to started conversations."

"The teachers are a better than Weaver," she added.

Weaver student Glynis Roberts said, "I like the way the students behave in class. When the teacher's teaching, it's quiet."

Students noted differences in the dress code — "The boys at Weaver are up more," said Weaver student Jerome Cooper, — the open campus privileges available at MHS but not at Weaver, and in the amount of homework given (Weaver students said they get more).

The exchange is sponsored by the Connection Club at MHS and the Human Relations Club and Honors Club at Weaver. The sponsors and advisors said they hope it's only the beginning of interaction between the two schools. Future ideas include small get-togethers on weekends, joint sponsorship of a youth conference this spring, and joint participation in a leadership conference at Weaver.

"I hope you look at this as a beginning," he told the Weaver students. "You've been a delight to have at our school and you're welcome back any time."

Zinsser criticizes special legislative session

State Sen. Carl A. Zinsser

Politics cannot continue to be, for many, a spectator sport. One good feature of the UBT was its ability to motivate and activate thousands of small business and professional concerns across the state. It is a united voice that for far too long has been silent. We welcome that involvement. We need it. And, more importantly, you need it.

Just as there are problems, I believe there are solutions. For example, last session, with help from the Connecticut Public Expenditure Council, I submitted to the General Assembly a bill to change the GTE formula for funding education. Basically, this legislation addresses the need to bring the state into compliance with the desires of the court in the Horton-Meskil decision.

The legislation would have 1) capped with dollar amount at $276,000,000, thereby saving the state some $70 million dollars over what the governor had requested. 2) Phased out of the formula the property-rich towns and increased the funds to the property poor towns. 3) Making it mandatory to spend the AFDC component.

Not only would we have saved millions of taxpayers' dollars, but towns like Glastonbury would have benefited. Glastonbury, under my proposal, would have realized an additional $289 thousand dollars. For not only do we have a constitutional responsibility to education, but a moral obligation to the taxpayers, who must pay the bill.

Although I lost the bill in the education committee last year, I will re-introduce it this year.

I do not believe government, at a national, state or local level, has any god-given right to claim more and more of the income of Americans. I do believe that government has the responsibility to spend your money wisely and, like any business, provide service to the taxpayers at a reasonable cost.

In your business you cannot indefinitely run in the red. In your family, you cannot indefinitely spend money that you don't have. I wonder why state government is so different. It is not in session and your lives and property are safe, for the moment. But, don't get too relaxed, because Wednesday we are back in business at the State Capitol and anything is possible.

Politically, we are asking or rather we are telling the Public Utilities Control Authority. That is just another tax on consumers, whether they be businesses or individuals.

BUT, I DON'T WANT to give you the impression that the legislature wasn't thinking of business during the regular session. We approved a budget of nearly $3 billion. We added $42.8 million in new corporate business taxes. We added $30-plus million from the new unincorporated business taxes. We added $11.4 million in new telephone and cable television taxes. As the commercial interest us "reach out and touch someone," the legislature reached out and touched as many as they could.

In both the regular and special session, the operating rule that prevailed was 23-13. There are 23 Democrat senators, 13 Republicans. Decisions are generally made, not on the basis of merit, but on the party affiliation of the introducer of the legislation.

No wonder there is a growing lack of confidence in the ability of our government to govern. A recent survey conducted by the Connecticut Mutual Insurance Co. came up with following conclusions: 51 percent of all Americans do not believe that the legislature adjusted the schedule of estimated payments on the corporation business tax from the current formula 50 percent-20 percent-30 percent to 60 percent-20 percent-20 percent. This gives the government spending apparatus another "quick fix" revenue.

We also passed a so-called "doubling bill" to ensure that Connecticut business and industry does not take advantage of recent federal depreciation benefits. Additionally, we are asking or rather we are telling the Public Utilities Control Authority. That is just another tax on consumers, whether they be businesses or individuals.

BUT, I DON'T WANT to give you the impression that the legislature wasn't thinking of business during the regular session. We approved a budget of nearly $3 billion. We added $42.8 million in new corporate business taxes. We added $30-plus million from the new unincorporated business taxes. We added $11.4 million in new telephone and cable television taxes. As the commercial interest us "reach out and touch someone," the legislature reached out and touched as many as they could.

In both the regular and special session, the operating rule that prevailed was 23-13. There are 23 Democrat senators, 13 Republicans. Decisions are generally made, not on the basis of merit, but on the party affiliation of the introducer of the legislation.

No wonder there is a growing lack of confidence in the ability of our government to govern. A recent survey conducted by the Connecticut Mutual Insurance Co. came up with following conclusions: 51 percent of all Americans do not believe that the legislature adjusted the schedule of estimated payments on the corporation business tax from the current formula 50 percent-20 percent-30 percent to 60 percent-20 percent-20 percent. This gives the government spending apparatus another "quick fix" revenue.

We also passed a so-called "doubling bill" to ensure that Connecticut business and industry does not take advantage of recent federal depreciation benefits. Additionally, we are asking or rather we are telling the Public Utilities Control Authority. That is just another tax on consumers, whether they be businesses or individuals.

Republican purge raises new questions

Fair is fair, Republican town Chairman Curtis M. Smith says. In his view, moderates took full control of the Republican Town Committee at last week's party caucuses and booted out the pesky right wing simply because that faction couldn't bring out the votes. That's democracy, Smith would tell you.

Manchester Spotlight

By Paul Hendrie - Herald Reporter

It was all a conspiracy, some of the conservatives say. In their view, a vindictive Smith—who wanted unilateral control of the party, free from criticism—trotted out novice candidates to unseat experienced town committee members.

Others, HOWEVER, are crying foul. They include former District 2 Chairman Robert S. Smith and former District 3 Chairwoman Karin VonDeck.

Smith did work to bring out his voters. He played hard, but — he says — by the rules. His philosophy, clearly, is that politics is hardball and that those who wish to play should be willing to play hardball.

Some moderate Republicans blamed this right-wing group — said to be especially strong east of the river — for the helping to defeat moderate politicians like state Rep. J. Peter Fuscas, R-Marlborough, who failed last fall in his bid for the Republican 1st District Congressional nomination.

CURTIS SMITH ...played hardball

Smith has agreed that the Republicans have to stand out as something different from the Democrats, but he doesn't think the right wing's alternative is the answer. He maintains that Manchester is a moderate town and always has been.

It will be interesting to see if the Manchester GOP can establish itself as a viable alternative to the Democrats, now that Smith has removed the conservative thorn from his side.

Thoughtlessness in wintertime

Editor's note: The following anonymous essay was sent to the Manchester Herald this week.

Winter storms are lovely to look at, good for skiing, skating, sliding, making snow men, and having snow ball fights.

Remember the peep holes? Yes, there are those that will make the peep holes and proceed to take a 20-mile trip. You or I may just be the unfortunate person to be following Mr. or Ms. Citizen. As he or she decides to break the sound barrier, on these still icy roads, the lovely white snow with a bit of crust blows ever so gracefully and lands with a thud on your windshield (five car lengths behind) and causes you or I to swerve, losing control for a moment or, more seriously, have an accident.

Another option is to have the owner, who has nothing else to do, promptly run out and remove it before any of these hazards occur.

How about Mr. and Ms. Citizen who have managed to make a peep hole through the snow in their windshield and the back window. They decide they must get out of the station that has just been plowed. While waiting for the attendant to fill their tank, they proceed to fill the

It is unscientific to reject creationism

Editor's note: The following was written by Phillip Audibert, a retired physics teacher from Rockville.

The debate going on about teaching creationism in the science class is a debate between atheists and theists. It's a religious debate.

Science is systematized knowledge derived from observation, study and experimentation. Facts are objective. They exist whether they are studied or not. For us to know what they are we have to observe and study.

Evolutionists say it happened by chance. Creationists say that because there is order and organization in the universe and there is a systematized progression of plants and animals on earth (evolution), the universe is under the control of a Being superior to man in intelligence and power.

When a judge makes a law he violates a scientific principle that we, in a democracy, believe in. That is, in a controversy a majority is more apt to reach a better decision.

Roosevelt, a founding father

WASHINGTON — "The only limit to our realization of tomorrow will be our doubts of today. Let us move forward with strong and active faith."

President Franklin Delano Roosevelt prepared those words for a speech to be broadcast on April 13, 1945. But on April 12, some 80 days into his fourth term of office, America's great wartime leader collapsed and died at Warm Springs, Ga.

Reagan no help on local level

ORLANDO, Fla. — At the Southern Republican Leadership Conference here the other day, political agents of the White House were quietly advising candidates that perhaps it might be wise to put a little distance between themselves and the Reagan administration in their campaigns this fall.

Edward J. Rollins, the new chief political operative in the White House, was blunt about it. The Republicans have a chance, he told us, to knock off 10 to 15 of those House Democrats who are most vulnerable.

THEY, ALTHOUGH Democrats may be lacking an identity on national questions that is attractive to the voters, the Republicans are suffering a similar lack at the state and local levels in many states.

WHAT IS MORE fundamental, however, is the recognition, particularly among astute Southern politicians, that the issues that have put Ronald Reagan in the White House — and given Republicans big votes in presidential elections in the South — are not necessarily issues that will help them build their party from the grass roots.

Education panel proposals draw fire

HARTFORD (UPI) — A blue-ribbon panel's recommendations on how to improve Connecticut's way of life through a better higher education system drew fire Friday from the state's top labor leader.

John F. Driscoll, president of the Connecticut State Labor Council AFL-CIO, opposed a number of the major proposals expected to be made public next week in a final report by the Governor's Blue Ribbon Commission on Higher Education and Economy.

The veteran labor leader said he was opposed to proposals calling for more scholarship aid to private institutions and a dual admission system that would favor private schools over public institutions. He said he was unable to meet admission criteria but, have potential for academic achievement.

Driscoll is among the 16 persons appointed by Gov. William O'Neill last July to seek ways to "improve economic, educational and social health of our state through the more effective and responsive use of public and private institutions of higher education."

The commission, chaired by Dr. Roy C. Thomas, president of the Hartford Insurance Group, met Friday to go over a draft of the final report. It was expected to be released next week after it is sent to the governor.

Driscoll submitted a number of motions to amend the draft, but they were rejected by the panel made up of other labor representatives, business executives, lawyers and school and urban leaders.

The panel has proposed an all-encompassing 11-member Board of Governors that would be the central policy making center for the entire public higher education system.

Driscoll said he opposed the proposal that would allow O'Neill to name the members, who must then be approved by the Legislature. Driscoll said six of the nominees should be candidates elected from each of the state's six congressional districts.

Driscoll said private institutions should not be given more scholarship funds by the state unless the Legislature is ready to come up with the money specifically for that purpose.

Thomas said it was not the purpose of the commission "to tell the governor how to manage his finances."

He said the proposed increase of about $1 million to private institutions was "a one-shot deal" to "give them a chance for parity with the public schools."

The proposal to set up a dual system that would allow talented students to bypass admission requirements would create "class distinction," that would mostly harm inner city students, Driscoll said.

Driscoll's call to retain current admission requirements was rebuffed by Dr. Arthur C. Banks Jr., president of the Greater Hartford Community College.

Banks said Driscoll's position would lead to "a sub-class that some labor leaders would like to perpetuate."

He said he was opposed to the creation of an office of minority affairs and open admissions at community colleges but he favored higher admission and exit standards.

Faucher Better

Robert Faucher, the chairman of the Human Relations Commission seriously injured in a car accident Jan. 20, continues to improve, according to his brother, Stephen Faucher.

Stephen Faucher said doctors at Hartford Hospital, where his brother was transferred the day after the accident, from Manchester Memorial Hospital, plan to do a tracheotomy on his brother today.

Doctors will place a respirator in Faucher's trachea, allowing the injured man to talk.

Stephen Faucher said his brother continues to recognize friends and relatives, though doctors are still keeping him sedated.

to send the project back where it came from, the school building committee, for re-evaluation. The plan will go back to voters before the deadline on the state reimbursement is up in June, she said.

Dunn said "I'm not satisfied that (the result) is the real feeling of the people." He said he will recommend sending the plan back to voters, perhaps unchanged if it is possible. "We'll try harder next time," he said.

He said some people "just plain forgot" to vote, which may have made the difference.

Exhibitionist is sought

HEBRON — Bus drivers and state police have been alerted to watch for a man who allegedly exposed himself to a 5-year-old girl after she left her school bus last week.

School officials have asked that all parents take extra safeguards regarding strangers after the Jan. 18 incident.

They reported that a man driving a dark-colored, vinyl-topped, jeep-type of vehicle exposed himself to the girl as she walked up the driveway to her home after school.

MACC news

'81 was difficult year

This column is prepared by the Manchester Area Conference of Churches with publication each week in the Manchester Herald.

By Nancy Carr, Executive Director

Conference of Churches

(I would like to share with you part of my report to the MACC churches to be shared at the annual meeting on February 5.)

In many ways 1981 was the most difficult year we have faced since an economic, organizational and political decisions combined to force a growing number of persons on fixed and low incomes over the substance level into crisis. Since the churches who form MACC have always prioritized the meeting of essential human needs, our resources have increasingly been channeled into the Department of Human Needs.

The plan to consolidate all our Human Needs Services in the old Senior Citizen Center along with the Manchester Departments of Human Services and Health was lost in the appeal brought against the town by neighbors. Other attempts to find space for consolidated programming were unsuccessful.

An additional blow fell when federal funding cutbacks drastically reduced the CETA program resulting in the loss of five staff positions. Four of our CETA staff were assigned to the Department of Human Needs.

Requests for assistance tripled in 1981. Such a dramatic increase in calls for help and a loss of one half of our staff set a grim scenario indeed.

Fortunately, commitment to helping the poor by the community and particularly by the churches runs deep and strong. In spite of economic pressures, contributions to all MACC human needs programs rose approximately 15 percent in 1981.

Since need was so great our monthly financial reports often showed deficits in the Human Needs Fund and Fuel Bank. This reflected increased assistance, not decreased giving.

The United Way of Manchester has become a significant and welcome partner in our attempt to provide basic material needs. Unfortunately, the United Way grant does not fully cover the administrative costs of the directors and assistant.

Volunteers
The state policy of deinstitutionalization which has emptied 80 percent of the beds in Connecticut's mental health institutions over the past 10 years, poses a serious and potentially tragic problem to both individuals and community. The loss of staff has been partially offset by the dedication of two volunteers working with Re-entry and Genesis.

The decision by the Town Department of Social Services to assign work relief hours has been of considerable assistance in maintaining our Clothing Bank. The new Volunteer Action Center Restitution Program instituted by the Courts (see Furniture Bank) is an additional source of man/woman power.

Fuel Bank

The following most generous contributors to the MACC Fuel Bank have brought contributions up to $1,785 in our effort to match the $2,000 given by the Savings Bank of Manchester and the Robert J. Smith Insurance Company:

J.A. DeQuattro, William and Jean Johnson, Leon A. Rubin, Mrs. Mary R. Arpin, Viola Kress, Mrs. G. Marcoux, Erwin and Eleanor Beyer, Fellowship Fund/Community Baptist, Florence F. Conant, Fellowship Club/Community Baptist, Donald and Eunice Culver, Dorothy Williams, Rose A. Sisti, Theodore and Robert Pastra, Nancy W. Akin, Minnie W. Cluow.

Eagles finish fast, top Xavier, 49-46

Cheney Tech's Isaac Williamson lets go with righthanded shot over Rocky Hill's Mark Wright (14) as Beaver teammate Lou Governale (32) looks on in COC action last night.

Trailing by five points entering the final period, East Catholic High regrouped and played its best basketball over the final eight minutes and the result last night in Middletown was a thrilling 49-46 decision over Xavier High.

The success was the fifth straight for the high-flying Eagles, who appear to be over the hump after a disastrous start and the record is now pegged at 3-2 in the Hartford County Conference and 7-5 overall.

Over the 500 mark, Coach Jim Penders lauded the down-the-wire shooting, especially at the 15-foot line with veteran Brian Galligan leading the way. Galligan pumped in nine of his game-high 24 points in the final canto as the Eagles arrested the lead from the Falcons.

Up by just one point with a minute left, Dave Hintz dropped in a single-pointer and John Askintowicz added a final free throw for the three-point margin.

The latter was a terror off the board, pulling down 10 rebounds. "We played good, smart basketball," Penders said. "Galligan was excellent in the final period with nine points, on four hoops and a foul. Xavier threw a lot of defenses at us but the team battled all the way and played with a lot of poise."

The clubs were deadlocked at the first break, 10-10, East moved out front at halftime, 24-22, but trailed three quarters, 36-31.

The winners committed only seven turnovers with ballhandling outstanding.

"We really worked hard and the win resulted. We played excellent defense," Penders added.

Galligan and Dog Bond were the only Eagles in twin digits, the latter dropping in 16, the twosome combining for 39 of the Eagles' 49 points.

Xavier slipped to 1-2 in the HCC and 3-7 overall. Tom Patton led the scoring parade with 14 points and teammates Jeff Billings and Mike Muzzo chipped in with 12 and 10 points.

The home team held a 20-18 advantage from the floor and hit six of 14 free throws. East came up with 13 hoops and 13 of 23 foul tries.

Tuesday night the Eagles trek to Bristol to face St. Paul.

Foul line margin in Cheney loss

By Len Auster

Foul shooting turned out to be the difference as Rocky Hill outlasted

Cheney Tech, 64-56, in overtime in a foul-infested, turnover-plagued Charter Oak Conference basketball clash last night at the Beavers' gym.

The quintets were deadlocked at 53-all after regulation with the Terriers coming 9-for-10 from the charity stripe in the extra session while the Beavers were 1-for-5.

Over Rocky Hill was a stizzling 30-for-36 from the 15-foot foul line while Cheney was a woeful 12-for-29. There were 44 fouls whistled with five players, three from Cheney, fouling out.

The triumph moves the Terriers to 4-5 in the conference and 5-5 overall while the loss drops Cheney to 4-5 in the COC and 3-5 overall.

After a 24-all deadlock at the intermission, Cheney took a 40 lead going into the final eight minutes of play behind Tom Eaton and Paul Nowak. Eaton had 7 points and Nowak 5 in the third stanza to help push Cheney in front.

The Techmen had a 38-30 bulge with 2:57 left but some sloppy play near the end of the stanza enabled the Terriers to draw closer.

The fourth stanza saw the lead see-saw with a Mark Wright hook shot and free throw giving Rocky Hill a 49-46 lead before two free throws by Lou Governale pushed Cheney ahead once again.

Wright and Cal Gotthberg exchanged hoops before a Connie Winanski follow off his own miss made it 53-52 Rocky Hill with 1:08 left. Cheney drew even 10 seconds later as Gotthberg made the second of a two-shot for stripe before fouling out for the Terriers.

Isaac Williamson and Gotthberg were 18 and 16 points respectively for the Techmen, who were guilty of some poor shot selection in the stretch run when it really counted.

Cheney's next outing is Tuesday night against Portland High in Portland at 8 o'clock.

Rocky Hill also took the jayvee tilt, 59-50. Kevin Burnham had 14 points and Bob Elliott 10 for the young 5-5 Beavers.

How Richard landed with Canadiens

Old timers like to tell the story about a young Maurice Richard who was later to be more affectionally known in Canada as around the National Hockey League as "The Rocket."

Just before World War II, a 20-year-old Richard knocked on the door of the Montreal Canadiens' office and the tall, dark-haired lad gave his name and said he was hired by Jacques Fontaine.

"What for?" the Canadian office man asked.

"To play hockey," Richard answered.

Richard was given a tryout and the rest is history. The Rocket is still held by many as the greatest hockey player of all-time.

Why did Richard show up at the Canadiens' office?

Five years previous to Richard's joining the Canadiens, Fontaine, then a 16-year-old manager of a youngsters' hockey team from the other side of the tracks, appealed to the Montreal club for money to help outfit the team.

The Canadiens answered the request and shipped off some old but still usable hockey equipment.

Richard was the No. 1 sports hero in Canada.

Once when he was suspended for several days and not permitted to play, it so enraged the workers on the committee which was 30,000 riotous and went on a seven-hour rampage through the streets which produced the wildest mob scene ever in Canada.

The Rocket made his first Hartford appearance earlier this week to referee the Old Timers game between the Canadiens and Whalers.

Although his playing days are now only memories, he was nevertheless the main attraction among the Montrealers in the eyes of the media.

No longer a fiery-tempered man, Richard has mellowed over the years and he spun stories for hours during a postgame gathering at the new Hilton Hotel.

Notes off the cuff

Hartford Twilight League Baseball's Hall of Fame will get off the ground May 2 at Valle's with the first induction scheduled. It's the brainchild of Jack Repass, former Manchester resident, and baseball historian. Complete list of finalists in the Five Mile Road Race last Thanksgiving morning in Manchester has been computerized and has been made available. Times and placements are scheduled to be forwarded to all registered runners. But Meiner, one of the workers on the committee which operated the race for the Tall Cedars, reported flaws in the computer resulting in the two-month delay in compiling an accurate list. Ernie Whipple reports the Joe LaVea Industrial Bowling League will assist in raising money for a $500 scholarship for junior bowlers in the Central Connecticut area. The league rolls at the Parkade Lanes. Have a nice weekend.

Hoops even but fouls give Indian five edge

Both teams played solid defense and pressed all night but it was foul shooting in the fourth quarter which made the difference as Manchester High downed troublesome East Hartford High, 48-37, in CCLL basketball action last night at Clarke Arena.

The win moves the Indians to 6-4 in the league and 7-5 overall while the loss sends the Hornets to 2-8 in CCLL play and 3-10 overall.

Manchester's next tilt is Tuesday night against Simsbury High at Clarke Arena at 8 o'clock.

"The win moves the Indians to 6-4 in the league and 7-5 overall while the loss sends the Hornets to 2-8 in CCLL play and 3-10 overall."

Manchester's next tilt is Tuesday night against Simsbury High at Clarke Arena at 8 o'clock.

"Both teams played very intense defense," voiced Manchester Coach Doug Pearson, "East Hartford played a solid game but I felt we played well, very well. They were making it tough to score but our defense was outstanding especially after the first quarter."

"We were a little tight the first quarter but came on strong after that," Pearson added.

"The Hornets had a 15-13 lead at the turn but Manchester rebounded for a 21-20 lead at the intermission and 30-20 advantage after three stanzas.

The Hornets were forced to foul in the stretch run with Mark Mistretta and Myles McCurry each a perfect 4-for-4 from the 15-foot line in the fourth quarter as the Indians were on target. Each side tossed in 16 bullets, the difference at the line.

"We didn't shoot particularly well but that was because of their defense," Pearson stated.

Mistretta had 14 points and Joe Maher 13 along with handling superbly the Hornet pressure. Heather Hohenbhal had a game-high 15 points for the Hornets, who were 16-for-34, 47.1 percent, from the field.

"The key was we limited their shots and made them work for them," Pearson stated. "We got quite a few turnovers and pressed all night. Both teams pressed and it was a low scoring game because both teams hustled so much."

Manchester took the Jayvee contest, 63-50, with Dave Dougan (24) and Ken Willis (12) leading the young Indians.

Trade on hold

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The trade sending former Baltimore third baseman Doug DeCinces and pitcher Jeff Schneider to the California Angels for outfielder Dan Ford is on hold until Ford agrees to move, an Orle official said Friday.

"The deal cannot be completed until Ford gives his consent in writing to the California club."

Bennet girls up standard

Bennet girls' basketball team brought its record back to the 500 level with a 31-29 triumph yesterday over the RHAM High Jayvees.

Heather Hohenbhal's jumper tied it at 29-all and Gina Fleming's hoop with four seconds left gave the Bears their fourth win in eight tries. Hohenbhal had 19 points and 15 rebounds, Kris Craft 8 points and 5 steals and Teri Callahan 6 points for Bennet. Fleming and Betty Maher starred defensively.

It was bound to happen soon or later.

After absorbing nine straight defeats, seven in Charter Oak Conference play, Bolton High came out to a winner last night against Vinal Tech of Middletown, 66-54.

Playing before a home crowd, the Bulldogs started colder than the morning temperature and trailed 6-0 before finding the hoop. Once even at 8-8, Bolton took a 6-0 conference standard and 1-0 in all games.

Bright spots for the losers were Brian McCarthy, Keith Perra and Eric Winter with 16, 12 and 11 points respectively.

Surprise! Bolton wins first game of season

Bolton basketball as the Jayvees also took a victory for the first time. Alex Zorba tossing in 17 points to lead the way.

There could be little time for rejoicing for Tuesday night the Bulldogs took to RHAM High in Hallow. Meanwhile, it will be a weekend to relish that first victory of the season.

Bolton led at all period breaks, 12-10, 30-16 and 53-32. The Bulldogs' record stands at 1-7 in the COC and 1-9 while Vinal has a 0-9 conference standard and 1-9 in all games.

Bright spots for the losers were Brian McCarthy, Keith Perra and Eric Winter with 16, 12 and 11 points respectively.

It was a big night all around for 29 of 58 basket tries, a fine 50.0 average.

Carpenter and Peterson hauled down 11 and nine rebounds respectively and Ferguson doled out nine assists as the home fans went home happy for the first time all season.

Bolton led at all period breaks, 12-10, 30-16 and 53-32. The Bulldogs' record stands at 1-7 in the COC and 1-9 while Vinal has a 0-9 conference standard and 1-9 in all games.

Stacy uses birdies to forge into lead

DEERFIELD BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Hollis Stacy rallied with birdies on two of her last three holes Friday to salvage a wind-blown 2-under-par 70 and hang on to a one-shot lead after two rounds of the LPGA's $125,000 championship of Deer Creek.

Coupled with her 67 in the opening round of the first stop on the 1982 tour, the score gave Stacy a 7-under-par 137, one shot ahead of Lynn Adams, who fashioned a 69 while playing in an intermittent morning rain.

Another two shots back at 140 was Mary Dwyer, who managed a 69 Friday over the par-72, 6,079-yard Deer Creek Country Club course. Holly Hartley carved out the best score of the day in winds gusting over 20 mph a 69 that put her alone in fourth place, four shots off the lead at 141. Nancy Lopez-Melton, only two shots back Thursday, skied to a 77-146.

"I'm tired," sighed Stacy after her round. "All this wind just beat my brains out."

She went into the final three holes a stroke behind Adams for the lead, but she laid a 7 from two feet from the hole and sank the birdie put for a 3 and then on her final hole to take the lead.

"Those two birdies helped a lot — that's an understatement," she said. "The 27-year-old Hilton Head, S.C., resident won eight tournaments in eight years on the tour and says she probably plays more aggressively with the lead."

"I remind myself that the people behind me are swinging from their shoelaces and that makes me more aggressive," she said.

Adams had an erratic round which included an eagle, four birdies and three bogeys and changed her putting style on the 14th hole.

She said she has been putting crosshanded because, "I can keep the ball on line longer and it gives me the opportunity to get the ball to the hole. I had a tendency to keep them short and 100 percent of short puts don't go in."

But it's a stroke to stroke thing, she said. "I played about last four holes conventional and I put all my four or fivefooters conventional."

She also said she was putting out of her bag only about seven times because the change seems to help.

Adams, 31, started out as a tennis instructor and taught high school and coached before deciding to take up golf.

"I lived in Kingsville (Texas) the first 25 years of my life before I got out into the big world," she said. "I guess I'm just a little ole Kingsville girl."

Walker, 49, was with the team for four seasons, including the Super Bowl years of 1978 and 1979. He came to the Steelers from the New England Patriots.

Dungy, 26, played with the Steelers during the 1977 and 1978 campaigns. He returned to the Steelers last year as a defensive assistant.

Reds' manager boosts baseball

NEW YORK (UPI) — His name is McNamara, and being the leader of his own band, he isn't going to listen to a lot of blarney from another one, even a fellow Irishman like Bill Walsh.

Johnny McNamara, the manager of the Cincinnati Reds, has no beef with the affable, always-step-ahead coach of the new world champion San Francisco 49ers, he simply wants to set him straight on which sport is really the national pastime.

Walsh said football, not baseball, was, after his 68ers picked apart the Cincinnati Bengals 28-21, in Super Bowl XVI.

"With all due respect, I think Mr. Walsh is dead wrong," said McNamara. "I got to know him a little when he was offensive coordinator for the Chargers and I was managing San Diego and he is a very congenial man, but I have to disagree with him on his statement. Baseball is the No. 1 sport in the country. Our game is settled over the course of 162 contests and not by turnovers or fumbles in a one-shot championship."

"Bill Walsh is entitled to his opinion. I'll still stick with baseball and I think most people feel the same way. I watched the Bengals play the Chargers in that final playoff game in Cincinnati and darn near froze to death."

McNamara was talking from Lexington, Ky., getting ready to move on Thursday to Huntington, W. Va., and Columbus, Ohio, with the Reds' winter caravan. Also on the caravan, which made stops at three children's hospitals as well as media centers, were outfielders Cesar Cedeno and Paul Householder, second baseman Ron Oester, pitcher Bruce Berenyi and Reds' broadcasters Joe Nuxhall and Marty Brennaman.

Sports Parade

Milt Richman

"We had a lotta fun needing each other going to six different cities," said the Reds manager. "It was one laugh after another. You didn't turn your back when you got on the bus or someone would harpoon you."

On a more serious note, McNamara said he had gotten over his anger at what happened last season when the Reds finished with the best overall record but still failed to make the playoffs due to the system adopted for determining winners after the strike.

"That's water under the bridge," he said. "It's just like losing a tough game during the season. You have to put it behind you and play the next game. That's what we intend doing and what I'll tell our players when they assemble in Tampa, March."

McNamara spoke about the players he had with him on the caravan, particularly Cedeno, whom the Reds got over the winter from the Astros for third baseman Ray Knight.

Reagan plans to take part

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan agreed Friday to take part in the opening ceremonies at the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

Reagan was invited to participate in a brief meeting at the White House with Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee, and Peter V. Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee.

"He talked about all matters — about the games," said Ueberroth. "Most important is the president's agreement to come to opening ceremonies."

O'Brien sees 'BA' growing stronger

CHICAGO (UPI) — Larry O'Brien recalls how surprised even he was when officials of the National Basketball Association approached him back in 1975.

O'Brien had spent nearly his entire life in the political arena and while he had a deep love for basketball, few people outside his circle of friends were aware of it.

Yet the NBA was in need of a commissioner — a man of stature and prestige — and O'Brien was the man.

O'Brien perhaps is best remembered for the two jobs he held before becoming NBA commissioner.

He was postmaster general in the Kennedy administration in the early 1960s and was chairman of the Democratic National Committee at the time of the infamous Watergate break-in.

Much has happened since that night in June 1972 and O'Brien recalls most of his past 10 years in terms of the NBA.

"I remember when I took over that things weren't exactly rosy," O'Brien said. "We had some teams in trouble, there were some legal matters pending and I knew I was in for a challenge."

O'Brien said his first concern was to change arenas from basketball back to politics.

"Maybe moving from Washington to New York was the big difference," O'Brien said. "No, I don't think about going back in and no, I don't miss it."

O'Brien said his first concern was the status of some floundering franchises. Houston was in trouble and Indiana, New Jersey, Atlanta and Cleveland all would follow. Yet under his leadership, all the teams remained in business — although under different ownership — and remain part of the league, although even O'Brien concedes the NBA is still having growing pains.

"There are still some critics of the eventual outcome of that case which allows teams to sign free agents from other teams without losing players from their own roster."

"I know there are some people who criticize it but the teams losing players can still match the offers from other clubs and not lose anyone," O'Brien said. "They don't have to lose the players."

The case also, in effect, eliminated the hardship rule in the NBA whereby undergratuates could declare themselves eligible for the NBA draft if they could prove financial need.

O'Brien said any undergratuates can apply now 45 days prior to the draft but he has some personal opinions on the subject.

"Frankly, and this is my opinion, I wouldn't like to see anyone leave college early," O'Brien said. "I realize some of the problems involved."

O'Brien said college and pro basketball can not only co-exist but work together. He challenges those who are criticizing the pro game as not being as exciting as college.

"I've never been able to understand why college basketball officials criticize the NBA," O'Brien said. "This is America's game. Basketball has never been more popular. There is room for both."

League has stability now possible loss of exposure from the network airwaves.

O'Brien was instrumental in negotiating the latest contract with CBS for four more years of national television NBA games.

O'Brien said the contract is an embarrassing situation for the league by insisting that championship playoff games be televised in prime time rather than on tape delay.

"Yes, that was an embarrassment for the league last year," O'Brien said. "We knew it. We also know how important national television exposure is for the league."

O'Brien also pointed to the negotiations with cable television as proving the NBA is the pacesetter in realizing the impact in terms of exposure and revenue for cable TV.

Now you know
The world's most expensive real estate lies in central Tokyo, where about 1 square yard at a shopping center is worth an estimated $50,000.

In 1845, Southern Baptists withdrew from the General Missionary Convention over the question of slavery and other matters. They formed the Southern Baptist Convention, the largest of Baptist bodies.

Wedding

Klar-Curtis

Susan Leslie Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Curtis of Sudbury, Mass., and Dr. Walter Hughes Klar, son of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Klar of 21 Converse Road, Bolton, were married Dec. 27 in Martha's Vineyard, Mass.

The Rev. Stanley G. Russell of Memorial Congregational Church of Sudbury performed the double ring service. Mrs. Richard Knapp of Hingham, Mass., was soloist. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Mrs. Harvey Albert of Burlington, Mass., was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Arnold Bishop, East Lyme, Mrs. James W. Klar, Framingham, Mass., and Mrs. James Rayner, Norfolk, Mass.

James A. Klar of Framingham was best man. Ushers were Casimer Lapata, Cambridge, Mass., Dr. Rene LeBlanc, Lancaster, Mass., and James W. Klar of Framingham, Mass.

Following the reception at Village Hall in Framingham, the couple left on a trip to Vermont and New Hampshire. They will make their home in Southborough, Mass.

The bride is a graduate of Framingham State College and is currently in a master's program in counseling at Tufts University, Medford, Mass. The groom is a graduate of American International College and the University of Connecticut. He is an associate professor of education at Framingham State College.

Advice

Pupil already knows what professor wants to teach

DEAR ABBY: When I was 16 the man I loved was killed in a boating accident. He was 21, and we were going to be married on my 17th birthday. Six months later I married his 29-year-old brother. I was his fourth wife. I had the marriage annulled when I discovered he was only interested in my money and his sex. (I think he was crazy.)

I'm now going to a junior college. The very first day one of my professors asked me to stay after class. Then he told me he wanted to go to bed with me. At least he was up-front about it, but I was hurt and disappointed. Even though I'm not a virgin, I don't want to go to bed with a guy unless he knows me and likes me as a person. This man didn't even know me. He just liked what he saw. (I'm 28-29.)

I had coffee with him a few times, and he's still trying to talk me into going to bed with him. He's a very persuasive talker. I can't come up with a really good reason why I don't want to give in, and I'm afraid I'll weaken. Can you help me? He calls me...

DOLLY NO. 2

DEAR DOLLY: Your judgment is sound. Use the same words with him that you used in your letter to me. Decline the coffee dates and tell him if he doesn't quit hassling you, you will report him to the college dean. That should cool him off.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Besides having a great personality, my 24-year-old daughter is exceptionally beautiful and has always had a figure like a beauty contest winner. She has dated many men, but now she is engaged to marry a great guy. He's a big man, 6 foot 6, and weighs 240. He loves to eat. The problem is that he is constantly encouraging my daughter to eat. He always brings her chocolates, which she rarely ate before, and together they can consume a 2-pound box in one evening!

Needless to say, my daughter is losing her beautiful figure fast. She has gained 30 pounds since her engagement three months ago! For a girl who has always been proud of her figure, it doesn't seem to bother her much, but it's upsetting me. I hate to see her let herself go and get really fat now that she's got her man. I'm desperate for some advice on what I should say or do.

N.Y. MOM

DEAR MOM: You shouldn't say or do anything. She's a big girl now, and if she chooses to let herself go, much as you hate to see it, Mom, hold your tongue.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 16-year-old girl who loves to talk on the phone. Unfortunately, we have only one phone in our house and it's in the kitchen. Out of consideration to other members of my family, I limit my calls to only an hour, but I'm constantly being told to get off the phone.

Abby, I want a phone of my own. I can earn enough money to have one installed and pay the monthly bills, but my parents won't hear of it.

I promised I wouldn't talk at unreasonable hours or neglect my studies, but they still won't hear of it. I've begged and begged, but it hasn't done any good. Why do you think they refuse to let me have my own phone, and how can I convince my parents to change their minds?

MOTOR MOUTH

DEAR MOTOR MOUTH: Quit nagging! It's immature. Your parents probably fear that if you have your own phone you will be spending too much time on it. (Anyone who spends only 20 hours a week can't really talk for two hours, given the chance.)

When you can prove that you aren't addicted to the phone, your folks may let you have your own. And not until.

Do you have questions about sex, love, drugs and the pain of growing up? Get Abby's new booklet: "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cent), self-addressed envelope for Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38823, Hollywood, Calif. 90008.

Greenpeace: environmental crusaders

Headline-grabbing raised to a fine art

By Deb van der Gracht
United Press International

VANCOUVER, British Columbia — Ten years ago, a ragtag crew of 12 men set out on an aging halibut seiner to stop the United States from blowing up the tiny Aleutian island of Amchitka off Alaska.

The unusual mix of scientists, artists, a doctor, activists and seafarers never got bad. Bad weather in the Bering Sea forced the "Don't Make a Wave Committee" to turn the Phyllis Cormack around. The five-megaton bomb went off as planned.

The Warriors of the Rainbow, as they had dubbed themselves, sailed home to Vancouver with heavy hearts at what they perceived as a failure to remind the world of the horrors of nuclear holocaust.

On arrival, though, they discovered they had set the world's attention. In the process, they founded an organization that must be counted as one of Vancouver's best known and most controversial offspring: Greenpeace.

In the ensuing 10 years, the organization which now claims a 44 million annual cash flow and more than 250,000 members worldwide, has never been far from the center of controversies on environmental issues.

It is an insight into the love-hate relationship the world has with Greenpeace that Vancouver Mayor Mike Harcourt, in declaring Oct. 18, 1981, Greenpeace Day, felt it necessary to include a disclaimer in this statement:

"Whatever each of us may think of them, there is no doubt that Greenpeace has grown into one of the largest and most influential ecological organizations across Canada and around the world."

Greenpeace Canada director Patrick Moore calls it, "peaceful political action." He says it is to "polarize public opinion around an issue."

To this end, he says, "We've placed ourselves at the site of nuclear tests, between the harpoon and the whale, between the harpoon and the seal, underneath barrels of nuclear waste being dumped into the sea, between the rifle and the big game they were hunting for trophies, between the aerial spraying of pesticides and the forests — those are the kinds of tactics we've developed."

Greenpeace has been called everything from mad fools to public muckrakers to planetary saviors for their headline-grabbing campaigns.

In 1972, the year the organization officially adopted the name Greenpeace — onetime Vancouverite David McTaggart, now chairman of Greenpeace's international council, set sail from Australia for the French strait of Munnia in an unsuccessful bid to stop an atmospheric nuclear test.

A repeat performance the following year netted McTaggart a serious beating from French commandos. His boat was rammed by a French navy destroyer.

In 1973, Greenpeace confronted the Russian whaling fleet for the first time and claimed the saving of a dozen whales through interference with the harpoon ships.

There were repeated forays to the ice floes off Newfoundland to stop the annual seal hunt in the late 1970s.

Greenpeace's trademark became a heart-shaped portrait of a baby seal.

EACH EXPEDITION was laddled by some, castigated by others. Celebrities and ordinary folk all over the world voiced their support with words and donations.

A campaign this year to disrupt supertanker maneuverability tests in the Strait of Juan de Fuca brought accolades from those who viewed them as prelude to increased tanker traffic down the B.C. and Washington coasts.

Others said Greenpeace's protest would harm legitimate efforts to gather data on how supertankers behaved in coastal waters which could someday prevent an environmental catastrophe.

Said Vancouver's mayor when he honored the group with Greenpeace Day:

"Whatever our opinion might be on a specific environmental issue, there is no question that Greenpeace has made us think about such concerns as saving the whales and the spread of nuclear power and, in making us think, has made us more informed citizens of the planet."

IN THE NEXT decade, Greenpeace will concentrate its protest efforts on the nuclear industry — the issue on which it cut its teeth, says Moore.

The nuclear issue is going to be the major one in the next 10 years," he predicts, "right from the issue of nuclear testing, to the issue of uranium mining — all down the line it's going to be necessary for people to become more aware and educated."

Then there is the second man, whom I have known for 10 years but have never really dated. He was in-laws in the past, but I've always turned away from his advances.

Now he promises when we talk to get back to me and ask me out, but then I don't hear from him for weeks.

What do you think?

DEAR READER: These two men don't really offer much of a choice.

Synthetics add foot problems

NEW YORK (UPI) — The widespread use of synthetic, or man-made, shoe materials is increasing the number of foot problems, says Hada de Sloos of Cornell University's Cooperative Extension service.

Mrs. De Sloos says synthetics in soles and entire shoes and increased use of man-made, molded plastic footwear and badly shaped shoes contribute to the problems.

Doc's answer unsatisfactory about trouble passing water

DEAR DR. LAMB: — About three or four years ago I had my prostate gland removed. It was the usual about three months ago, I couldn't pass very much water. I went to my doctor and he said I had a mild infection. He gave me sulfa tablets. I went back in two weeks and he said the infection had cleared up and that my prostate was fine. But I still pass very little urine. I have to go down and can't pass urine standing up.

My doctor said at my age, 64, my bladder is weak. He didn't give me a satisfactory answer. I am worried and need your opinion.

DEAR READER: Possibly your doctor does not want you to have another operation because of your medical condition. However, I would ask him to refer you to a urologist if he is not one himself.

Your first operation probably removed enough of your prostate gland to relieve your obstruction. Since then you may have had enough continued enlargement to again cause an obstruction, but your bladder before that diagnosis can be made.

Your Health

testing to see. The size of the gland as felt on rectal examination doesn't always tell you if it is causing an obstruction or not. What counts is how much it is squeezing down on the urethra just outside the bladder.

Your doctor was correct to treat an inflammation of your prostate if you had that problem. Inflammation can cause the prostate to swell, squeezing down on the urethra as it passes through the prostate. But if that was your problem and the first operation probably removed enough of your prostate gland to relieve your obstruction.

It is true you could have bladder failure but you need to have a measurement of pressure inside your bladder before that diagnosis can be made.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I read your column about varicose veins. I have a different problem called left varicocele. This bothers me at warm temperatures. It also bothers me when I am lifting or walking. I use a support or tight jockey shorts. What can be done about it? It is very aggravating and makes me nervous. My doctor says nothing can be done.

DEAR READER: — A varicocele is just a dilated or carotene vein in the cord going to the testicle. It is not dangerous. It can cause aching and discomfort but often produces no symptoms at all.

Lifting or any straining increases the pressure inside the abdomen and can make it more difficult for the dilated veins to drain. I'm sure you have noticed that in the morning before you get out of bed you do not notice the dilated veins that feel like a bag of worms.

The only treatment is surgical removal of the dilated veins. This is done in severe cases or if there is any discomfort or sperm count. A varicocele can interfere with the normal cooling mechanism of the testicles and cause infertility. Correcting a varicocele in that case may result in an infertile couple to have a child.

Ex-husband or second man: It's not much of a choice

DEAR DR. BLAKER: I am trying to choose between two men, and I need your help.

The first one is my ex-husband. We were married for 20 years and have been divorced for 10. I still have terribly negative feelings about him, but he is interested in dating me. The problem with him is that I could never love him again.

Then there is the second man, whom I have known for 10 years but have never really dated. He was in-laws in the past, but I've always turned away from his advances.

Now he promises when we talk to get back to me and ask me out, but then I don't hear from him for weeks.

What do you think?

DEAR READER: These two men don't really offer much of a choice.

Ask Dr. Blaker

you are crazy to want a commitment, but I would wonder what has happened lately to cause this change in your feelings.

Perhaps you are getting pressure from some relatives or maybe you are feeling more insecure in the relationship for some reason. Could it be that the children are interfering with your relationship?

P.S. I am assuming he does not want to get married. If he does, what's the problem?

DEAR DR. BLAKER: I have been living with a man for 15 years. We have two children but were never married. I have a different problem called left varicocele. This bothers me at warm temperatures. It also bothers me when I am lifting or walking. I use a support or tight jockey shorts. What can be done about it? It is very aggravating and makes me nervous. My doctor says nothing can be done.

DEAR READER: After 15 years of what you describe as a happy and content common-law marriage, I wouldn't say

News for senior citizens

Glaucoma screening test

This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Senior Center. It appears on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

By Joe Diminico
Activities Specialist
Senior Citizen Center

Just a reminder about the glaucoma screening sponsored by the Connecticut Society to Prevent Blindness scheduled here at the center on Monday from 9 to 1:30 a.m. This screening is free of charge so make a point to stop by if you have not had your eyes examined. Remember, early detection is the most important factor in treating this disease.

Concerning our show, Roger and Marcel Negro have informed me that there will be additional trouts on Sunday at 2 p.m. so if any of your friends have any talent, don't be bashful. Stop by. Remember, we are always looking for new talent. This year's show is entitled "Strike up the Band."

We have also devised a method where we can get an accurate count of the total number of seniors who participate in senior center activities. We are asking each senior to fill out a participant fact sheet which includes necessary information such as name, address, phone number and whom to notify in case of emergency.

Also questioned is your level of participation at the center.

If you have not already done so, please stop by the office and fill one out. By doing so, you may provide us with accurate information for expanded programs and statistics necessary for grant writing for additional funding for the center.

Also, on March 25, we will be having Irish Day. Again, anyone with ideas or wishing to participate, please contact myself at the center and I will be glad to sit down and discuss it with you.

We still have a few omelettes for the basket pinocle games: Grace Windsor, 624; Vincent Borello, 614; Henry Poppi, 609; Carl Popple, 602; Nadine Malcolm, 601; Sam Scharrs, 594; Arvid Peterson, 587; Marge Reed, 585; Helen Gaville, 585; Grace Gibbs, 584; John Gally, 582.

High scores for the bridge games were: Ed Hindle, 4,160; D. McCarthy, 3,890; Kay Nutter, 3,740; Sol Cohen, 3,470; Rene Maire, 3,460; Rae Olsen, 3,150; Annette Hillery, 3,150.

We will also be developing a discouragement class. When all the details are worked out, I will announce a date in the column so you can keep your eye on the column.

THE FOLLOWING are the top three finishers in our eight ball tournament last week: Earl Johnston; 1 p.m. Monday; Turkey rice soup, tuna salad sandwich, pudding, beverage.

WEDNESDAY: shells with meat sauce, Italian bread and butter, apple crisp, beverage.

THURSDAY: Italian style pork chops, whipped potatoes, buttered broccoli, pound cake, beverage.

FRIDAY: baked corned beef hash, buttered vegetables, bread and butter, dessert, beverage.

SCHEDULE FOR WEEK Monday: 9 a.m. kitchen

BIRTHDAY ALMANAC

Compiled by the editors of The World Almanac; Book of 50

Jan. 31 — Zane Grey (1875-1939), the author of 54 Western novels, most of which were best sellers. His books, filled with action and adventure, greatly influenced subsequent popular treatments of the West in literature, films and television.

Feb. 1 — John Ford (1893-1973), the film maker who won five Academy Awards as best director for "The Informer," "The Grapes of Wrath," "The Long Voyage Home," "How Green Was My Valley," and "The Quiet Man."

Feb. 2 — James Joyce (1882-1941), the Irish author who wrote "Ulysses." The novel uses interior monologue and explores the stream of consciousness of a few Dubliners during a 24-hour period. It is regarded as a masterpiece of world literature.

Feb. 3 — Fran Tarkenton (1930-), the television personality and former National Football League quarterback who passed for more than 47,000 yards during his career. He is currently coach of the "Tut's Incredible" TV show.

Feb. 4 — Charles A. Lindbergh (1892-1974), the aviator who made the world's first solo non-stop transatlantic flight in 1927. In 1954 he was awarded a Pulitzer Prize for his autobiography, "The Spirit of St. Louis."

Feb. 5 — Henry Aaron (1912-), the Hall of Famer who holds many baseball records, including the most major-league career home runs (755) and RBIs (2,297).

Feb. 6 — Ronald Reagan (1911-), the 40th president of the United States. Following a long career as a film actor, he was elected governor of California in 1966. He was elected president in 1980.

Oscar at 20 - what next?

Timothy Hutton moves carefully

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) - Having won an Oscar in 1973, Hutton was only 21 when his father - actor Jim Hutton - was killed in a plane crash...

Timothy Hutton, 21, is very serious about his career and chooses his roles with extreme care. He says he has never given his father's name any specific advice...

He never finished high school. Instead, he began acting. First, there was a part in something he's not particularly proud of - a TV movie called "Zuma Beach" - but then he was in the highly-praised "Friendly Fire"...

Liturgical drama to be performed at Center Church

A liturgical drama, "God's Trombones," will be performed Ash Wednesday, Feb. 24, at 8 p.m. at Center Congregational Church by the Connecticut Public Theater Corporation.

The drama is based on James Weldon's "God's Trombones: Seven Negro Sermons in Verse." In his sermons, Johnson attempted to preserve a fast-disappearing style of Negro preaching and turn-of-the-century evangelism. Using five of the sermons, the performers amalgamated them with songs such as "Amazing Grace," "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," and "There is a Balm in Gilead."

Members of the cast are —

- Carolyn Dixon, a music teacher in Windsor public schools. She has performed in "South Pacific," "Kiss Me, Kate," and "Christ in the Concrete City."
- Jackie Foster, a music teacher in Hartford public schools. She has performed in concert and will take part this year in the Metropolitan Drama Opera Association auditions.
- Doris Turner, director of music for Simsbury public schools. She is a pianist in classical to jazz repertoires.
- Paul Pelletier, a member of the board of directors and co-founder of CPTC. He has performed in "She Loves Me," "Man of LaMancha," "1776," "Shenandoah," "Kiss Me, Kate," and "South Pacific."
- Martin Bush, a member of the board of directors and general manager of CPTC. He has directed with the Windsor Jesters, Podium Players, the West End Players and CPTC. He has performed in "The Good Doctor" for Little Theater of Manchester. He is also appearing in "Electra," "Christ in the Concrete City," and "The Gay 90's." "God's Trombones," "An Evening of Classical Works."

CPTC is a community theater group dedicated to producing classical and liturgical drama.

The public is invited to the Feb. 24 performance.

Astro-graph

January 31, 1982

Good beginnings are important to happy endings. You've had a brilliant idea for strengthening your business. You've built on it and now you're ready to go. The only trouble is the year ahead.

FORWARD (Jan. 26-Feb. 19) If you want others to follow your lead today, it's very important to lead by example. Merely telling others what you expect of them won't cut it. Predictions tell what's in store for you in each season. Following your own date and where your luck and opportunities lie are a sure way to get what you want.

LEAD (Jan. 26-Aug. 28) You are likely to perform better today if you act independently. However, in the process you're not set to pick up a supporter who may help you along.

WIND (Aug. 29-Mar. 25) It's a good idea to get your feet set today for the future you can act independently. However, in the process you're not set to pick up a supporter who may help you along.

The squeeze finesse

He hid the hand in typical rubber bridge. To other players, he looked at his own nine top tricks and was confident to find that his partner held two aces and a king. That gave him 15 tricks off the top and on the generally effective theory that you will find a 13th one, he would have 28 tricks. The 13th trick was there based on a play sometimes called a squeeze finesse. West's king of clubs lead marked him with the queen of hearts. West also held the queen of diamonds he would be the victim of a simple squeeze, but West did not hold that queen.

Full spades, all eight spades while discarding two hearts. Now Phil knew that it was held the queen of hearts it would drop so that he simply took dummy's 9 and he had been dealt just two hearts so his queen had to drop. It was a grand slam we see him in a rubber bridge game.

THE SPEAKS BY Eugene Brewer

From an unknown source comes this jewel of wisdom:

"Some people have only twice occasions for using their brains — when they are hatched, matched, and dispatched." It should, of course, be their "hatchings," marriage, and death.

Upon this practice I can only draw remarks, they may as well remain as they are then, too. Any act called "hatching" which is imposed upon one is a fraud, any ceremony that seeks to give a religious aura to one's otherwise irreligious life is a farce. And any attempt at a spiritual send off to one whose life was singularly unspiritual is a mockery.

Christian conduct is of one's own free choice at an age when such a possibility exists. The Christian living is more than some meaningless rituals; it is abiding in Christ's word, which is His life. And because Jesus is the result of being for Him. 1 Thee. 1:13-14.
