GOP faction forms political committee

By Paul Hendrie
Herald Reporter

A group of conservative Republicans, critics of party Chairman Curtis M. Smith who was eliminated from the town committee in last month's caucuses, today announced the formation of a political action committee.

The committee will call itself the Presidential Republicans Political Action Committee.

Its chairwoman will be Karin VonDeck, of 25 Ellen Lane, the former District 3 leader who unsuccessfully challenged last November for the party chairman's job.

The committee vice chairman will be Robert J. Smith, of 43 Harvard primaries, she quickly added that the committee will not be a negative force and may endorse town committee candidates with whom it agrees.

The committee will call itself the Presidential Republicans Political Action Committee.

Its chairwoman will be Karin VonDeck, of 25 Ellen Lane, the former District 3 leader who unsuccessfully challenged last November for the party chairman's job.

The committee vice chairman will be Robert J. Smith, of 43 Harvard

Road, the former District 2 leader who unsuccessfully challenged Curtis Smith last year for the vice chairman's job.

Mrs. Starkey, of 117 Grissom Road, will serve as executive director and her husband, Noah H. Starkey, will serve as treasurer.

Curtis Smith had little to say when told this morning about the new committee.

"It doesn't really make much difference," he said. "It was fully anticipated. I don't think they'll have any more impact than they had before. They will probably have the same element gravitate toward them."

Mrs. Starkey said talk of a third party is apparently dead. That idea was promoted primarily by John A. Tucci, another ousted town committee member.

"Third parties never were too successful," Mrs. Starkey said. "Tucci is not involved extensively in the Presidential Republicans PAC, because he is already active in the Connecticut Conservative Political Action Committee, Mrs. Starkey said.

"But we all talk to each other, she added."

Mrs. Starkey said in a statement that her group will have three goals:

to analyze issues and programs, to promote "political principles and programs which reflect the best traditions of the Republican Party," and to support and encourage candidates "who share our philosophy and vision of government."

She said the group will be a "positive force, a supplement or complement to the existing party structure."

"As a PAC, we will be able to commit our resources in a selective manner for maximum political impact," she said. "We will, of course, necessarily focus our attention on behalf of those candidates who support President Reagan's philosophy of government. We aren't looking for mere "rubber stamps" but for persons genuinely committed to a coherent set of fundamental political principles."

Mrs. Starkey said the committee has few members now.

"Right now, we're just starting out," she said. "But as things develop, we hope to get more people involved."

The group will file papers with the secretary of the state after the Lincoln and Washington holidays. The group said its organization was timed to coincide with Lincoln's birthday.

Portugal to lead criticism

MAHRAKESH, Morocco (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig arrived for a one-day visit in Morocco today from Lisbon, where he persuaded Portugal to use the European Security Conference to lead the Western attack on martial law in Poland.

He was met at the airport by Prime Minister Maati Bouabid, Foreign Minister Mohamed Bousetta and Ahmed Guedira, counselor to King Hassan II.

In talks with leaders in Lisbon, Haig indicated Portugal would use its role as chair of the European Security Conference in Madrid to orchestrate an attack on martial law in Poland. He hoped to reverse the tables on the Soviet Bloc's attempt Wednesday to stifle criticism.

At a press conference before leaving Lisbon, Haig said he did not expect an uprising in Syria to hinder the Middle East peace process and expressed optimism over negotiations for the independence of South African-administered Namibia.

Asked what effect the rebellion in Syria by Sunni Muslims opposed to President Hafes Assad might have on peace in the Middle East, Haig said, "I frankly don't know and don't anticipate it will have an impact. (It's) too early to say."

Haig was optimistic that a peaceful solution ending the 15-year bush war in Namibia was rapidly approaching.

He said the United States and the Western contact group had a "special responsibility" to "establish early progress, hopefully in 1982, for an (independence) schedule. We continue to work this problem, and have made substantial progress in the last month."

He said talks with South Africa, the South West African Peoples Organization guerrilla movement and the African front-line states were currently focused on "a sort of constitutional principles" for the mineral-rich territory.

"In the near future," he said, he hoped this aspect would be finalized, allowing discussions to center on creating a U.N. presence in Namibia and the withdrawal of South African troops from the territory.

Town educators disagree

Junior highs better than middle schools?

By Nancy Thompson
Herald Reporter

The choice between middle schools and junior high schools is a choice between a good system and a better one, said Wednesday.

The question is which system is better.

And the answer is where the creators — Parent-Teacher Association President James D. Harvey, a former teacher, and Bennett Junior High School Principal Thomas M. Meisner — disagree.

The two took opposite positions on the answer at a discussion Wednesday at a special meeting of the Keeney Street School PTA.

Harvey, a former high school teacher, spoke in favor of junior high schools and Meisner spoke for middle schools.

Meisner said the middle school, follows the same philosophy as the original junior high school. The middle school works with children who are literally in the middle between being treated as children in elementary school and being treated as young adults in high school.

"THE BOYS AND GIRLS who are in the middle need special attention," Meisner said. "You do not need teachers who are specialists in English. You need teachers who work with boys and girls and teach English."

Meisner said that young adolescents are growing physically, emotionally and socially.

"When junior high schools came into being, it was recognized that kids in grades seven, eight and nine were the kids in the middle," he said. "The boys and girls in seven, eight and nine are not the kids who were in seven, eight and nine in the 1900s."

"The boys and girls are different. They have changed. Puberty is occurring earlier, whether we like it or not."

Meisner said that ninth graders are more like tenth graders than like eighth graders. Sixth graders, he added, are more like seventh graders than fifth graders, the central idea behind the school administration's proposal to create grade six-seven-eight middle schools.

Harvey who spoke in favor of a seven-eight arrangement favored by the PTA with the sixth graders kept in the elementary schools, said the seven-eight junior high schools make more sense in terms of money, social interaction and other reasons.

EDUCATIONALLY, Harvey said, there is no clear winner between the two concepts, with benefits to each. A middle school offers new subjects to sixth graders — like band or foreign languages — but has disadvantages.

"Socially, Harvey said, there is a wide variety of maturity between sixth graders and eighth graders, which could cause discipline problems.

"There's a certain kind of forced maturation that takes place when you put sixth graders with seventh and eighth graders," he said. "I'm not so sure that pre-adolescence is a good time for forced maturation."

Monetarily, middle schools would be more expensive, Harvey said, because additional busing would be necessary to transport the students who walk to their elementary schools.

Middle school programming costs more, Harvey said, noting that approximately $200 more is spent on each junior high student than each elementary student.

He also said that buildings will be under utilized and operating well below capacity if the district operates two middle schools instead of one junior high.

HARVEY ALSO NOTED that the Board of Education will have to decide whether to close a junior high school, if they go with the seven-eight arrangement, or up to two elementary schools, if the sixth graders move to the middle schools.

"You're not choosing between a system that is bad and a system that is good," Meisner said. "They're both pretty good and there may be differing opinions on which is better."

"You're going to have the same teachers, the same buildings, give or take a few. You're going to have the same ingredients that made Manchester a strong school system, whichever way you go."

Takes some getting used to Shantel Dube is less than enthusiastic about the lima beans served at Waddell School Wednesday as part of the school system's sampling program. The goal of the sampling program is to expose students to foods they would not normally eat.

Nuns taken to garrison before deaths

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Six Salvadoran soldiers accused in the 1980 slaying of four American missionaries took the women to a national guard garrison before shooting them dead on a country road, Junta President Jose Napoleón Duarte said.

But Duarte, in a 20-minute television and radio address Wednesday, stuck by previous government accounts that the Dec. 2, 1980, slaying of the four American women was an act of random violence and not premeditated.

Relatives of the slain missionaries and U.S. Catholic Church sources have told UPI there is evidence the killings could have been ordered by a wealthy Salvadoran rightist who considered the women "subversives."

Duarte said a "profoundly authentic and just investigation" by Salvadorans and FBI officials indicated "these (six) guardsmen are the only ones that were involved."

He gave a detailed account of the killings, saying the three nuns and a lay social worker fell under National Guard suspicion at El Salvador's international airport because "they carried handbags that could conceal arms."

The guardsmen followed Maryknoll Sisters Ita Ford and Maura Clark, Sister Dorothy Kazel and lay worker Jean Donovan of the Cleveland-based Ursuline order when they drove from the airport in a van, Duarte said.

The men overtook the van on the road to San Salvador and drove the women to San Pedro Nonualco, where Sgt. Luis Antonio Colindres Aleman "ordered the others to sexually abuse some of the religious ... and to shoot them to death," Duarte said.

Before the murders, the accused visited a guard garrison in the town of Rosario de la Paz and called the airport to ask for another vehicle because of mechanical trouble with a jeep they used to overtake the women, Duarte said.

The men drove from the murder scene in a pickup truck and the women's van, which they overturned and burned on the Pacific coast highway southeast of the capital, Duarte said.

A court hearing continued into the night for Colindres Aleman and the other five accused guardsmen, Pvt. Jose Roberto Moreno Canjuras, Daniel Canales Ramirez, Francisco Orlando Contreras Recinos, Carlos Joaquin Contreras Palacios and Salvador Rivera Franco.

Judge Bernardo Rauda Murcia presided over the arraignment, which included about three hours of testimony by each defendant. Prosecuting attorneys, court clerks and security guards were the only people permitted inside.

Witnesses said National Guard Maj. Miguel Cruz, chief of security, frequently interrupted proceedings to tell the judge in what order the prisoners, handcuffed and dressed in civilian clothes, would be questioned.

Judge Rauda Murcia, described by court sources as "secular," has until Saturday to decide whether further investigations are necessary. One court observer said it could take "weeks or months" before indictments are handed down.

Congress OKs aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress, moving with unusual speed, has come to the aid of the elderly and the jobless — with money.

With a minimum of opposition, Congress Wednesday approved additional aid for the unemployed thrown out of work by the recession and the poor and elderly who cannot pay their fuel bills in the century's coldest winter.

Congress voted $2.3 billion to provide states with money for additional extended unemployment benefits and $123 million for fuel assistance programs.

"I say to you these people can't wait," said Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., urging approval of the fuel assistance. "The people are freezing now, the winter is now."

The Senate approved, 95-0, and sent to the White House the emergency jobless benefits bill. It was approved by the House Tuesday.

The Senate added the emergency fuel-assistance money, $50 million, as a rider to a bill providing additional money for the Commodity Credit Corporation.

The bill, with the rider attached, was approved by the House, 264-52, and sent to President Reagan.

Mrs. Cheryl Edwards, a lab technician at Newport (R.I.) Hospital, tells a Superior Court jury that a crucial insulin test was done on Martha von Bulow's blood immediately after she reached the hospital Dec. 21, 1980. The testimony contradicts a major contention of the defense in the Claus von Bulow trial.

Drift disputed

ATLANTA (UPI) — The man on the witness stand belonged to a world of darkness, silence and danger and his terse, simple testimony struck hard at the state's case against accused killer Wayne Williams.

Williams, 23, is on trial for the murders of Nathaniel Cater and Jimmy Ray Payne, two of the 26 young blacks abducted and murdered in Atlanta.

Michael Gurley was the strongest witness the defense has yet presented in its attack on the state's claim Cater was killed sometime after 9:30 p.m. on May 21, then dumped off the Jackson Parkway Bridge into the Chattahoochee River at 3 a.m.

He said Cater's body was found too far downstream too soon to have drifted from that bridge.

Gurley, who leads the Fulton County Underwater Rescue team estimated he, personally, has recovered about 45 bodies from rivers and lakes.

Gurley was asked about a conversation he had with attorneys from the district attorney's office, and he reluctantly admitted they asked him whether it was likely that Cater's body would have traveled so far downstream in two days if it had been thrown off the Jackson Parkway Bridge.

"In my opinion it was a long way to go in two days, he said. Defense attorney Mary Welton continued to press him, and he said it was "out of the bounds of my likelihood."

New storms hit

By United Press International

A flash freeze shattered 20th-century temperature records for the second time this year in the Midwest. Pounding rain soaked Southern California, unleashing floodwaters that swept away an elderly woman and stranded hundreds.

A heavy snow warning was posted today over the Colorado mountains, where a churning storm could dump as much as a foot of snow. Snow and fog made travel perilous in the mountains of Utah and Arizona.

At least 17 people have died in snow and rain storms during this week of record cold.

A new wave of bitter cold Wednesday dropped temperatures to history-making levels throughout the Midwest. The mercury plunged to 21-below in Indianapolis Wednesday — the lowest ever for a February day — breaking a record set Feb. 10, 1899.

St. Louis broke a 97-year-old record Wednesday with a 9-below-zero reading and temperatures at Bismarck, N.D., dropped below zero for the 45th consecutive day, surpassing the old 44-day mark set from Dec. 29, 1938, through Feb. 10, 1937.

Blood fight still on

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — The women medical technicians who worked on Sunny von Bulow's blood in Newport Hospital have something remarkable in common. When Dr. Gerhard Constanine Meier says jump, they leap.

Meier, German-born and educated, guttural-voiced, handsome with an elegantly cut black beard, is the man who barked an order to test Mrs. von Bulow's blood for insulin level. The test results put Claus von Bulow, the husband, on trial charged with attempted murder.

The state was deep today in medical testimony in its effort to prove that the Danish aristocrat tried twice to kill his wife by injecting insulin.

Laboratory technicians from Newport, Boston and Van Nuys, Calif., were on call to testify about the high insulin level in the blood of the alleged victim, and the tinge of insulin on a hypodermic needle found in von Bulow's little black leather bag.

Their testimony began Wednesday with the recounting of Sunny's arrival at the hospital in what Meier said was the worst coma he had ever seen. That was 11:45 a.m. on Dec. 21, 1980.

Debra Azvedo, the technologist, testified she was working in the laboratory on a toxicological test of Mrs. von Bulow's blood when she got a message that "Dr. Meier wanted an insulin level test and wanted it immediately."

"Is he a demanding person?" asked prosecutor Stephen R. Farnigietti.

"Did you follow his instructions?"

"Yes."

The person who had brought the message was Mrs. Cheryl A. Edwards, 25, a phlebotomist who draws blood from patients. She said the doctor, wearing Sunny as she ran into the emergency room. The run "took 10 seconds."

"He told me to draw blood immediately, draw what I needed and draw extra."

Kissinger OK

BOSTON (UPI) — Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was reported in "excellent" condition today following a 4½-hour operation to bypass damaged arteries feeding his heart.

Doctors said the 58-year-old Kissinger would remain at Massachusetts General Hospital for 10 days to two weeks and would have to spend another six weeks recuperating.

Reagan sets rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is serving notice that in the game of "put up or shut up," he makes the rules.

Speaking in the Midwest this week, the president challenged political critics to either come up with an acceptable alternative to his record $757.8 billion budget or quiet down.

Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., the ranking Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee immediately rose to the bait, ran out a proposal, and saw it handled with disdain Wednesday by the White House.

Next came a letter from Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd, asking Reagan to withdraw the entire 1983 budget proposal. Byrd said he has appointed 18 Democratic senators to "formulate alternatives."

Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the White House had no comment.

The fiscal 1983 budget submitted by Reagan is a massive document, 2 inches thick, and contains government spending down to the penny. Speakes did not say Democrats had to be that exact, but did tell reporters the administration still awaits serious alternative proposals. He said that at the moment, Reagan has "no plans to compromise."

Hollings proposed much of the federal budget be frozen at current levels for a year, and the Defense Department be held to 3 percent "real growth" in 1984. Reagan seeks a 10 percent "real increase" that would hike the Pentagon's total budget authority to $258 billion.

Pollution researched

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration is relying on intensified research and negotiations with Canada to solve a growing problem of damage to lakes and streams by acid rain believed to come from U.S. industries.

Kathleen Bennett, an assistant EPA administrator, defended the policy Wednesday before a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee after other witnesses charged delay in combating the problem is hurting U.S.-Canadian relations.

"The American people have a right to expect that the government will not impose an additional multibillion-dollar pollution program without first getting some assurance that the intended environmental benefits will be achieved," Ms. Bennett said.

Thomas Niles of the State Department added: "I believe negotiations are going well. We intend to push ahead as fast as the degree of our scientific understanding of the problem will allow."

But Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., led a procession of witnesses who warned the threat of wind-borne emissions from U.S. industrial plants of lakes and streams across the border is creating bad feeling among Canadians.

"They view the United States as pouring poison into their lakes and (Washington) does not give a damn," Moynihan said.

The National Academy of Sciences says overwhelming evidence links acid rain to emissions from industrial smokestacks in the mid-U.S.

Speakersman for the National Wildlife Federation, the Isaac Walton League and Environmental Media said acid rain can kill all life in lakes and streams and ultimately reduce timberland to barren rocks.

MX plan scrapped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration, in a second major adjustment of its plans for a new generation of nuclear missiles, has decided against placing 40 new MX missiles in super-hardened existing silos, an official said today.

The administration official, who requested anonymity, confirmed a report that first appeared in the Washington Post that the administration is abandoning the "interim" deployment plan announced in October.

Under that $19 billion plan the MX — a new-generation intercontinental ballistic missile, each capable of carrying 10 nuclear warheads — was to be placed in silos that no house older, less powerful missile.

The administration official said the plan was dropped in part because of restrictions Congress placed on MX-related expenditures. Critics have said the proposal would not achieve the enhanced survivability the MX will require in the face of increasingly accurate Soviet missiles.

Come off it, George

The judge didn't believe San Francisco police Lt. George LaBrash's claim that "The Curse of King Tut" caused his stroke, and denied him an $18,400 disability payment.

LaBrash, 56, says he was a victim of the legendary curse while guarding the King Tut traveling exhibition two years ago.

"I firmly believe that King Tut's curse is as good an explanation for what happened to me as any," LaBrash told Superior Court Judge Richard P. Figone, to support his claim his minor stroke constituted a job-related injury. His lawyer says they'll appeal.

Do as I did

"Miss Lillian" Carter, who served as a Peace Corps volunteer in India at 67, says everyone should try it.

The mother of former President Jimmy Carter, now 83, told David Hartman on ABC's "Good Morning America." "I think it would be a good thing for two years after a young person finished high school to go into something like the Peace Corps, go somewhere to see how the other half lives, so they'll have a better idea of how well off we are here. I was 67 and I had no idea I was living a life of luxury. I thought at times we were poor."

Work is progressing on the new Board of Directors hearing room in Lincoln Center, where the Sheltered Workshop used to be, but General Manager Robert B. Weiss said rising costs mean the Lincoln Center project will cost $100,000 to $200,000 more than anticipated.

Lincoln Center renovation job is over budget

The Lincoln Center renovation will cost the town $10,000 to $20,000 more than has been budgeted, General Manager Robert B. Weiss has told the Board of Directors.

Meanwhile, construction of a new hearing room in Lincoln Center for the Board of Directors and other town commissions has begun, Weiss said.

The Board of Directors allocated $2.9 million in August for the conversion work at Lincoln Center. But Weiss said rising costs for such things as furniture for the

'Greenbelt' concept dead

By Scot French Herald Reporter

The "greenbelt" concept is dead. Long live development incentives.

That was the consensus reached Wednesday night between the Planning Department and the Planning and Zoning Commission on how best to preserve the town's open space.

The two groups met to hash out any differences on the direction of the new Comprehensive Plan of Development for the town, which the Planning Department is currently updating for consideration by the PZC.

With open space guidelines for wetlands, aquifers and ground water, surface water, stream belts and floodplains all but formalized, Town Planner Alan F. Lamson described the session as "the end of the diving board before we take the final plunge."

The two groups agreed that the greenbelt concept for preserving open space is too inflexible, cordoning off areas which might well be suitable for development.

"If you just draw a ring around the town, that doesn't seem feasible to me," said PZC member Theodore Brindamour. Lamson agreed that the town has "always had problems" with the greenbelt concept.

Paul Sebestyen, the Planning Department aide coordinating the project, said the town could place its emphasis on development incentives to preserve specific areas rather than a blanket greenbelt plan.

Some of those incentives are now in place, Lamson said, such as the rule which permits developers to count wetland for square footage requirements but not to build on them.

Those rules could be tightened, he added, with the town perhaps allowing developers to count the land only if the town is granted an easement for recreation purposes.

MUCH OF the Planning Department's report closely paralleled an earlier report released in October by the citizen's advisory subcommittee on open space, which will also be considered by the PZC.

The main difference appears to be in style of presentation, with the Planning Department report much more formal in design than that of the advisory group.

Each subcategory is broken down into several phases of study: Definition of issues, statement of goals, implementation strategies and specific recommendations.

Only the specific recommendations remain to be worked out for the final draft report on open space, Sebestyen said. With little dissent from PZC members at Wednesday's meeting, he added, "I think we're on the right track."

A SIMILAR MEETING on the issue of housing will probably be held by the end of this month or in early March, Sebestyen said. Although the two groups meet regularly at PZC meetings, sub agendas have made it difficult to take up the Comprehensive Plan, he said, thereby forcing the special meetings.

The Planning Department is expected to present a complete report on the Comprehensive Plan by June, with recommendations on utilities, economic development, community facilities and transportation, as well as open space and housing.

Planning study suggests linear park expansion

The town should consider spending money and accepting gifts of land through easements to expand the proposed Hockanum River linear park, according to a Planning Department report released Wednesday.

The report, which outlined suggestions for the use of open land in the town's new Comprehensive Plan of Development, met with general approval from members of the Planning and Zoning Commission who gathered Wednesday night to hear the proposals.

The proposed Hockanum River linear park meets the "need for active and passive recreation areas" in the northern part of town, said Paul Sebestyen, the Planning Department aide coordinating the report.

The town should look to expand the proposed park where possible and establish controls on the types of activities allowed within it, the report said.

A study released in August by the state Department of Environmental Protection recommended the development of the linear park along the 20 miles of the Hockanum River which runs from Ellington, through Vernon and Manchester, and into the Connecticut River in East Hartford.

The study called for the towns along the river to acquire 256 acres of park and trail land, developing that property into 12 new parks, 25.8 miles of walk and nature trails, 20.8 miles of bicycle trails and 25.3 miles of bicycle lanes and routes.

Three of the 12 parks would be in Manchester, according to the study. They would include the expansion of Robertson Park at Union Pond to include an additional 40 acres of land.

Police recruits finish training

By Lisa Zowada Herald Reporter

Two police recruits who will soon be part of the Manchester police force graduated this morning from the Municipal Police Training Academy in Meriden.

Steven M. Kearns, 22, of East Hartford and Stephen Wengloski, 21, of Lebanon successfully completed the 400-hour training course at the academy which they began Nov. 30.

The recruits will soon begin 80 hours of on-the-job training at the Manchester police department immediately after their swearing in by Chief Robert D. Lannan Tuesday at 9 a.m. at the station.

The two must complete on-the-job training before their names will be sent to the Municipal Police Training Council for certification.

Kearns and Wengloski were among four recruits hired at the end of November to fill vacancies in the patrol division.

The other two recruits, Robert J. Scarchuk of Coventry and Richard K. White of Vernon, were sworn in on Dec. 7 by Lannan.

The two had already received academy training at the time of their hiring and were able to begin on-the-job training immediately.

Alarm ordinance seen as a model

It took months to work out all the bugs in an ordinance to hold burglar alarm owners responsible for false alarms, but now that the Board of Directors has finally approved it, its sponsor, Democratic Director Stephen T. Cassano, thinks it will be a model for other towns.

Once the ordinance takes effect May 1, owners of alarms which turn in five false alarms this year or three in any following year will be fined. The sliding scale of fines will range from $25 — for the first two offenses — to $60 thereafter to a high of $1,000 for defective alarms that go unrepaired.

All alarms must be registered each year with the Police Department, for a $2 fee.

Cassano, the ordinance's sponsor, said the police lose about $20,000 in manpower hours each year by answering false alarms. In addition, he said chronic false alarms are dangerous, because an officer who has become used to answering false alarms at an address may be less alert.

The ordinance was unveiled last September, but alarm owners complained that some sections were vague and could leave them responsible for false alarms beyond their control.

So, the board sent the ordinance back to the drawing board and Cassano met with alarm users, banks, the police and alarm manufacturers and installers.

"This ordinance probably has received more scrutiny than anything we have done this year," said Cassano. "We have met all the concerns of the critics."

He said the final version of the ordinance is clear, because there are 2½ pages of specific definitions now.

In addition, someone who installs a new system now will have a 30-day grace period, before being held responsible for false alarms.

If an unregistered alarm sounds, the owner would not be fined, but he would have to register his alarm within seven days.

Originally, Cassano had proposed that police be allowed — at the chief's discretion — to ignore alarms from habitual abusers. But Cassano said police could not conscientiously ignore alarms, so he said chronic abusers would be threatened with license revocation and hit with heavy fines.

"It would then behave that person to get the alarm fixed," Cassano added.

Beating trial delayed

The manslaughter trial of Steven Wilson, the man accused of fatally beating a 13-month-old Manchester girl, has been recessed until Feb. 23, court officials said today. Wilson, a recently discharged Army private, faces first degree manslaughter charges in the death of Amy Crouse, who died in March 1980 of a cerebral hemorrhage attributed to child abuse. The trial of Wilson, 28, began Monday in Hartford Superior Court, with Assistant State's Attorney Edward Spinella calling several witnesses to testify at the events leading up to the death. Wilson had been visiting the child's mother, Patricia Crouse, at her parents' Williams Street home, when she died. Prosecutors charge that Wilson abused both Amy and her sister, four-year-old Christine, and that the beating of the younger child led to her death. Defense Attorney Michael Graham contends that Wilson did not deliver the fatal blow. Wilson is being held on $50,000 bond at Hartford State Jail. Mrs. Crouse, who now lives in E. Hartford, may appear as a state's witness against Wilson. She faces a lesser charge of risking injury to a minor and is free on $10,000 bond.

Housing panel loses fight over use of vinyl siding

The Manchester Housing Authority appears to have lost its fight for permission to use vinyl siding — rather than the more expensive paint — on a School Street house it wants to buy and rehabilitate. The Connecticut Historical Society has blocked the vinyl siding, because the house is within the Cheney Historic District. The state society apparently feels the historical character of the home would be ruined by vinyl siding. The MHA, Board of Directors and town administration all disagree, but General Manager Robert B. Weiss said they have been unable to persuade state officials to yield. "The facts have never allowed an exception on an appeal, as far as we could find out," Weiss told the Herald reporter. He said the building would crumble before and appeal was heard. Meanwhile, the housing would be lost, he said. Weiss asked the board to formalize its earlier stand that it would approve the purchase of paint for the house, if attempts to convince Peter P. DiRosa Jr. questioned the housing authority's success in carrying out this scattered-site housing program. The program involves using federal money to buy and renovate duplexes around town, to be rented to low and moderate-income tenants. "If someone gave me $1 million and said buy houses in town, I think it would take me 10 days," said DiRosa. But Democratic Director James R. McCannagh said things are not so simple. He said the housing authority's hands are tied by federal restrictions. Democratic Director Stephen T. Cassano agreed, noting that few homeowners are willing to pull their homes off the market while they wait for federal approval of the sale to the housing authority.

Northwest 69 East Catholic 56 St. John's 93 UConn 82 Coventry 78 Bolton 43

St. John's center Bill Wennington (23) sets pick for Billy Goodwin to dribble around Corry Thompson in last night's Big East basketball game at the Hartford Civic Center. Capacity crowd saw Redmen win.

Streaking Northwest tacks loss on Eagles

With a six-point spurt out of the gate giving it a quick lead, streaking Northwest Catholic never looked back as it soundly thrashed East Catholic, 69-56, in Hartford County Conference (HCC) basketball action last night in West Hartford. The triumph was the fifth straight for the Indians and improves their conference mark to 3-3 and overall record to 10-4. It also averaged an earlier 49-46 setback to the Eagles at the Saunders' Gymnasium. East, losing its second in a row, now stands 6-4 in HCC play and 8-8 overall. The Eagles are in danger of not qualifying for the HCC Playoff, although they still lead Xavier, 3-4, in the standings for the fourth and final placement. "Right now we don't belong in the playoffs," candidly remarked Coach Jim Penders. "We're in a tough tight right now. We have to beat either South (Catholic) or Xavier to get in. And they're both playing well and we have to play better basketball. We have to fight ourselves." Penders would rather not linger on the memory of the second Northwest meeting. "The quicker we forget this the better. They (Northwest) are playing excellent basketball right now. They're won five straight and we didn't win the same court with them. The final score didn't really indicate the game; they could have blown us out," he admits. Northwest had a 14-7 lead at the turn and slender 30-26 bulge at the half before moving to a 48-36 lead after three periods. The Indians, when not moving the basketball around smartly, were crashing the boards and dominating that department. Doug Bond had 25 points and Chris Brumore 4 corners to pace East's "woeful" effort. "It was a woeful performance rebounding," Penders stated. "If they missed a shot they definitely would get the rebound and put it in. We had a very poor performance on the defensive boards." The Indian quickness also proved to be a factor, a telling factor in the last two East reversals. The first was to Aquinas, also noted for its quickness. "They made us come out of our zone and just had too much quickness and ballhandling ability for us," Penders stated. The Eagle coach was also disturbed by his team's apparent lack of desire to make a comeback. "It seems unfortunately if we're not ahead we don't have the same kind of emotion. We don't seem to play the intense defense to come from behind and then tend to go into individual roles," Penders cited. "We need someone to pick us up when we're behind, not just when we're ahead." East's next assignment is Friday night against HCC arch-rival, South at the South gym in Hartford at 8 o'clock. Jamie Cosgrove had 26 points, Charlie Simmons 16 and Ed Connors 12 to pace Northwest. Brian Galligan had 23 markers and Doug Bond 13 to lead East. Northwest Catholic (69) — Simmons 22-12, Cosgrove 9-10-26, McKenney 0-0-0, Turner 3-3-9, Connors 5-2-12, Billington 3-0-6, Wright 0-0-0, Lisiecki 0-0-0, Bolden 0-0-0, Fiskerick 0-0-0. UConn's stumble to St. John's in OT

By Hal Auster
Herald Sports Writer

Once it climbed the hill, UConn couldn't find solid footing on the plateau and stumbled, 93-82, to St. John's in overtime in Big East Conference basketball action last night at the Hartford Civic Center before a sellout crowd of 15,482. The Redmen victory leapfrogged idle Georgetown atop the Big East standings at 6-3 with Villanova a notch below at 5-3. UConn, which had the lead, slipped into a third place deadlock with St. John's at 6-3 each. St. John's colorful Coach Lou Carnesecca was more than thrilled with the win, giving his Redmen a season sweep over Connecticut. He called the victory "a great win. This was the best we've played. My bird dogs got their first bird," he opened, taking a seat before the gathered media. UConn led only once, 50-48, on a slam dunk by Norman Bailey with 12:36 left in regulation. But St. John's Billy Goodwin leapt quickly with a baseline jumper and the Redmen proceeded on a 14-7 tear in a five-minute span in which the Huskies went without a field goal. Down by seven, 70-63, with just under five minutes left the Huskies came back and finally drew even at 74-74. UConn returned to a 78-74 lead with a three-point shot by Steve Gatzos. St. John's then took quick control in the overtime with six unanswered points, four by leaping David Russell on free throws and an opening hoop by Jeff Allen on an offensive tap. "In overtime we caused them to miss a shot but they came up with the rebound," UConn Coach Don Perno remarked. St. John's had a 30-25 edge in the rebounding department. "Good coaching," quipped Carnesecca. "The ball bounced and we got some good bounces tonight." "I'm pleased with our guys because maybe we shouldn't have with a Goodwin jumper with two seconds to go off the iron. President's corner

She still gets butterflies

Editor's note: President's corner is a new column which will appear on Thursdays. By Adele Angio Focus Editor

Christina B. Edelwich says she still gets the butterflies when she has to give a speech, "but at least they line up a little more orderly." Ms. Edelwich, 34, of Andover is the president of the Nathan Hale Chapter of Toastmasters International, the organization whose purpose is to improve speaking, thinking and listening powers. On the first and third Tuesdays of every month, her group meets from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in Emmanuel Lutheran Church at 64 Church St.

NEW MEMBERS are welcome. In fact, says Ms. Edelwich, one of her goals as recently installed president is to beef up the membership a little. There are 15 members attending meetings; she says she'd like to see that number go up to about 25. "I think we have a strong club with people committed to their own growth - as well as to the growth of others," she says. "But getting more members would make programming a little easier."

Ms. Edelwich, a senior planning analyst in the state's Office of Policy and Management, joined the club three and a half years ago. ON A TYPICAL evening the group will appoint someone to come up with what the club calls "table topics" - a short, two-minute speech, which is carefully timed and evaluated. Longer, seven-minute speeches on serious or humorous topics are also assigned, with more time for preparation beforehand.

The Nathan Hale chapter will celebrate its fifth anniversary in June. It was started by two Manchester residents, Donald Mackenzie of 24 Hunter Road, a Pratt and Whitney engineer, and Ray Keith, a retired school bus driver who lives at 22 Hollister St. Ms. Edelwich likes Toastmasters, she says, because of the wide range of people who belong. In the Nathan Hale chapter there's a hospital administrator, retired persons, Pratt and Whitney engineers, and someone in data processing. Ages differ widely, too, from mid-20s to mid-60s. The Nathan Hale chapter is an "open" club. That means it is not sponsored by a company or organization, and anyone can join. "I think that's one of the advantages of our club," says Ms. Edelwich. "Anybody with an interest in public speaking who is willing to come and participate is welcome."

Advice

Drug-plagued teen needs father's love

DEAR ABBY: I received a telephone call at 2:30 in the morning from the emergency room at one of our hospitals. My 18-year-old daughter had been injured in an auto accident.

Dear Abby Abigail Van Buren

I rushed there and found her covered with blood and so drunk (or stoned) they had to tie her down to sew up her face! There was little they could do about her teeth. They were back at the scene of the accident.

Now she is trying to recover. Within 48 hours, her "friends" arrived. Their biggest concern seemed to be what type of drugs she was getting "for free" in the hospital.

DEAR DAMNED: My heart aches for you, but the "words" your daughter needs to hear right now will mean nothing coming from me. She needs to hear from her father, say.

DEAR ABBY: You asked why it is considered bad to lack to sit at 13 in a table. It's very likely because there were 13 people at the Last Supper, and you know what happened then. If you use this letter, please don't use my name. I am now retired, but when I was an active bishop living in New York about a dozen years ago, you printed a letter I had written saying that Jesus had turned water into wine, and it took me three months to answer all the complaints I received from people in the Bible Belt who said, "If Jesus had turned water into wine, he should not have done so!"

DEAR SIR: Right on, Right Reverend! Enjoy your retirement in peace. You've earned it.

DEAR ABBY: I found this in the "AORN Journal" - a publication put out by the Association of Operating Nurses: "The Chickening of Women - Women are frequently referred to as poultry. We chuck at hen parties. When we aren't henpecking men, we are egging them on. In youth we are chicks. Mothers watch over their broods. Later we are old hens with an empty nest syndrome. Is it just a coincidence that so many women's wages are chicken feed?"

DEAR ANN: No. And ain't it fowl?

Bulk, liquids help end harmful laxative habit

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 20-year-old female who has been taking laxatives for the last two years. I started taking them because I was having a problem with constipation, but that was nothing compared to the problem now.

Your Health Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My husband is taking Coumadin for a heart condition. His doctor prescribed it after he recovered from a heart attack. I know quite a few people who also take this medicine. What does it do for your heart? Will he have to take it the rest of his life? Are there any dangers in taking it?

DEAR READER: Coumadin, also known as warfarin sodium, is an anticoagulant. Many people call these medicines blood thinners but they do not thin your blood. They just interfere with the normal clotting process.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 20-year-old female who has been taking laxatives for the last two years. I started taking them because I was having a problem with constipation, but that was nothing compared to the problem now.

DEAR READER: Your story is typical of why I do not recommend the frequent use of laxatives. Bulk-producing substances are a different matter but the chemical laxatives that stimulate your bowel to contract and empty can cause a person to develop a bad habit.

Wife's ties to her mom threaten her marriage

DEAR DR. BLAKER: My wife and I have been happily married for five years. Although I never liked the close relationship she had with her mother during that time, I accepted it, thinking it would only be a matter of time before it changed.

Ask Blaker Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER: My wife and I have been happily married for five years. Although I never liked the close relationship she had with her mother during that time, I accepted it, thinking it would only be a matter of time before it changed.

DEAR READER: Changing one's primary role from that of a daughter (or son) to spouse is a difficult transition and takes a long time. Some people never successfully make the step but that does not necessarily mean they can't have a happy marriage.
