Mom goes on strike against her kids

SAN RAMON, Calif. (UPI) — For the fifth day, Mary Ellen Shaver was on strike Friday against her teen-age children.

The 40-year-old housewife says she won't return to her duties as a mother "until the kids come to me and say, 'Hey, Mom, you're giving it your best shot.'"

But that may not be soon because her children, Beth, 18, Meg, 15, John Jr., 11 and Pino Monterde, 18, an exchange student from Spain, say they are adjusting to living without her services.

For Pino, that means going without a ride home from school.

"I just have to ride the bus home," Pino said. "It's a big deal."

For son John Jr., it's making his own dinner.

Which he says is "OK, I guess."

For Beth, it's cleaning her room.

"When I saw myself on the television and they flashed my room and my closet, I said to myself, 'If this is the way the world is going to see my room, then I'm not going to worry about it.'"

Mrs. Shaver said she got the idea for a strike from a supermarket picket line.

"I saw the pickets, and, when I got home, it just hit me that I wanted to go on strike and write up a sign so that, when my children came home that day, they'd know I wasn't going to do these things," she said.

Mrs. Shaver said she decided to act because her children's slovenly habits pushed her to the point of "job burnout."

"Parents have some rights, too," she said.

"I cook for them, and they won't set the table. They have to be told to clean their bathroom. I'd have a peaceful day if they didn't have to be told things all the time."

Mrs. Shaver posted this sign Monday on the front door:

"Notice! This mother, maid, cook, driver, laundress, gofer, money-changer is on strike until further notice."

Her husband, John, a research scientist in the radiology department at the University of California, San Francisco, backs her up.

"We kind of feel now that our whole lives are dictated by the kids — almost everything we do," he said. "And it seems to us that it ought to be the other way around."

"Mary Ellen's whole schedule is dictated by them, and over time it just builds up. Finally, she just said, 'I've had it. No more.' And I agree with her."

Mrs. Shaver, a former elementary school teacher and librarian in Raleigh, N.C., is enjoying her newfound independence.

She said she felt "very relaxed and very enjoyable. I didn't feel like I was on any timetable."

For dinner, she and her husband have been going to restaurants. Her kids, she said, have been dining on fast foods and cooking for themselves.

Snowbound Gridiron

A little snow on the ground couldn't keep these Manchester youngsters from taking advantage of the day off from school Friday by getting out to play some football. Among those who joined the game at 9 Pioneer Circle were Rick McCormick, Richard Doyon, Larry Ash, Jeff McGowan, Lee McGowan and Ken Labbe.

Dr. Rubin urges action

By Scot French
Herald Reporter

At least 18 condominium associations in Manchester have failed to comply with a new state law on informational filings, but a tenant activist is seeking legal avenues to change that.

Dr. Ben Z. Rubin, former head of the Manchester Tenants Association, said Friday he plans to notify the town attorney's office that the associations have not yet complied with the new law.

Rubin, who is seeking information contained in the required documents, said he believes the town could seek a court injunction if the associations refuse to comply with the new law, which took effect on Oct. 1.

The law, Public Act 81-319, requires that each condominium association list the name and address of its insurance agents on a certificate to be filed with the town clerk's office in January.

It also stipulates that if the condominium instruments place a restraint on the transfer or lease of units, the association must file the names and addresses of its officers and the mailing address to which requests of approval may be sent.

A check of records at the town clerk's office Thursday showed that only eight condominium associations have complied with the law, and that three of those were filed after the January deadline.

The act has no clause for enforcement, however, and Rubin said the only method available is through a court injunction.

"The (condominium) statute is full of laws that can't be enforced," Rubin lamented.

Because the new documents must be filed with the town clerk, Rubin said the town has an interest in the non-compliance and could identify itself as an injured party in seeking court relief.

As a practical matter, Rubin said, the town would initially send out warnings to those who fail to comply.

But Town Attorney Kevin O'Brien said the condominium legislation now on the books specifically grants the power of enforcement to the state, not the town.

"I think a judge would throw out the case if the town brought it because of lack of standing," he said. An aggrieved condominium owner, however, might have that legal standing, he added.

O'Brien theorized that most of those associations now in apparent violation were probably unaware of the little-publicized act.

wants law enforced

That explanation was borne out by one local association officer, a contractor who asked not to be identified.

MHS senior hits lottery

Barbara Elliott, a Manchester High School senior who is student body president, is $3,000 richer, thanks to a lucky lottery ticket.

Her father, who gave her the unusual winning three-of-a-kind ticket as a present, said the money will come in handy.

"We're all so happy for Barbara," said Russell Elliott, a salesman for Crosby Hinds. "This will be a tremendous help with her college in the fall. Her brother is in his first year of medical school, so you can imagine how welcome these extra funds will be."

Of course, Elliott said his daughter should not use all her winnings to help pay for her education at Keene State College in New Hampshire, beginning in the fall. He said she should "blow a little of it on a new outfit."

Miss Elliott is on the MHS track team and is a member of the school's Round Table Singers.

It's not the first time lottery luck has hit close to home for the Elliotts. Last March, neighbors of theirs won $250,000 in the weekly Money Tree drawing.

Alternate budgets multiply

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Phil Gramm of Texas, the "Boll Weevil" who angered his fellow Democrats by co-sponsoring President Reagan's budget package last year, rejected the 1983 Reagan budget Friday and offered his own alternative.

It was at least the third alternative to Reagan's proposal since the president sent his spending plan to Congress Monday and the first by one of the "Boll Weevils" — the group of conservative Democrats who helped give Reagan his budget and tax victories last year in the Democratic-controlled House.

Many more alternatives are expected from both Republicans and Democrats.

The administration ruled out any lampering with the two areas most mentioned in Congress as prime targets to reduce Reagan's projected $91.5 billion budget deficit: military spending and the income tax cut.

White House chief of staff James Baker said Reagan is willing to discuss some changes to quiet the outcry that greeted his plan for $26 billion in domestic spending cuts and a $33 billion boost in defense spending.

But Baker said the defense budget and the income tax cuts slated for this July and July 1983 are "the heart and soul of the president's program."

"There's no running room as far as he's concerned on those two points," Baker said on ABC's "Good Morning America" show.

In a speech in Fort Worth, Texas, Gramm said Reagan's projected $91.5 billion deficit is "totally unacceptable." He offered an alternative to reduce the deficits by an additional $22.7 billion in fiscal 1983, $48.2 billion in 1984 and $61.5 billion in 1985, producing a near balanced budget that year.

The Gramm proposal would:

- Empower the president to sell $45 billion worth of "unused and dispensable" federal assets, mostly property, in the next three fiscal years — $10 billion next year, $15 billion in 1984 and $20 billion in 1985.
- Increase federal excise taxes on cigarettes and alcohol to the same percentage of retail prices that existed when taxes were last raised in 1953. A Gramm aide said this would roughly double current excise taxes on cigarettes to 16 cents a pack, on wine to 34 cents a gallon, and on liquor to $21 a 100-proof gallon. The savings for 1983 are projected at $9 billion.
- Limit tax deductions for consumer interest payments and business expenses, but maintain full deduction of mortgage interest and the first $1,000 of interest on auto loans. A savings of $3.6 billion in 1983.
- Limit nominal growth in defense spending authority to 14 percent per year, for a savings next year of $2.5 billion.
- Reduce non-military foreign aid by $1.2 billion in 1983.

Suspect nabbed in Enfield death

ENFIELD (UPI) — A young Enfield man charged with beating a neighbor to death with a shovel and assaulting her husband during an apparent burglary earlier this week was arrested Friday in Florida, police said.

Michael P. Clougherty, 18, and a boyhood friend from Enfield were arrested about 5 p.m. in Forest City, Fla., by officers from the Seminole County sheriff's department, Enfield police said.

At the time of their arrest, the two men were in a car stolen from the home of Susan and Charles Dart, the victims of the Tuesday night attack, an Enfield police spokesman said.

Clougherty's description had been broadcast to all states on the East Coast, and a description of the Dart's stolen car was sent to police departments nationwide.

Authorities said Clougherty and Daniel Ferguson, 17, were being held in Florida, and it was not immediately known when they would be returned to Connecticut.

Clougherty was charged with being a fugitive from justice and possession of a stolen motor vehicle. Ferguson, who police do not believe was involved in the assault, was charged with possession of a stolen motor vehicle.

Clougherty lived near the Darts and had done yard work for the couple. He was charged in a warrant issued Wednesday in connection with Mrs. Dart's death.

The 63-year-old retired school teacher died after she was beaten repeatedly with a blunt instrument which authorities have identified as a heavy shovel.

Authorities said Mrs. Dart's husband confronted a man who was burglarizing the couple's home, and was struck on the head and bound and gagged. He later freed himself and found his wife's body, authorities said.

OPINION

Reagan budget bad news for GOP

WASHINGTON — President's budgets are always political documents. But Ronald Reagan's budget for the next fiscal year may be the blueprint for a political debacle.

The president who promised a balanced budget by 1984, representing the political party historically committed to balanced budgets, has produced a spending plan with deficits totaling $345 billion for the four years of his term.

And that is "the best case" estimate at the moment. By Reagan's reckoning, another $239 billion would be added over the next three years — for a total of $584 billion — if his extravagant plans for realizing economies are not achieved.

That balanced budget, meanwhile, is somewhere off in the wild blue yonder. Publicly, Budget Director David Stockman is talking about "somewhere in the range beyond 1988." Privately, he has been saying a balance cannot be achieved until sometime after 1990 unless further and drastic measures are taken.

This is going to be an awkward position for Reagan to defend. And it is going to be even more awkward for those Republican senators who are facing an election that is now less than nine months away. Indeed, they are confronted with the prospect of the voters making their judgment on them just a month after the end of the current fiscal year that is likely to produce a $100-billion deficit.

Jack Germond and Jules Witcover
Syndicated columnists

REAGAN AND HIS spokesmen are taking great pains, predictably, to minimize the importance of the raw figures on the deficit. They are reminding us that it represents a smaller share of the gross national product than previous deficits. They are arguing that it springs from different, less threatening causes than past deficits. They are insisting it will have a lesser impact on the cost of private borrowing because their tax reduction program will increase the size of the pool capital available to borrowers. As theoretical matters at least, all of these arguments have some obvious validity. But in political terms, they are just the fine print. The bottom line, as Republicans like to say, is that this is a Republican president committed to fiscal prudence talking about debt figures that defy comprehension.

In the time-honored way, the president is also trying to place the blame on what he called a "legacy of past excesses" on the part of administration, most Democratic, that came before him. But politicians know that won't wash with the voters after an administration has been in office for a full year, let alone two or three years.

Like it or not, the economy right now is Reagan's economy.

and the deficits will be Reagan's deficits. That means, of course, that the president and his agents have no choice but to try to put the most attractive face possible on some very ugly numbers. It's not easy; it is probably impossible.

Thus, Stockman describes the deficit as "largely a product of transition," but Republicans running for re-election will want to know just how long the transition needs to be. And Treasury Secretary Donald Regan talks about the "short run," but politics is a short-run business. There is an election every two years.

Reagan himself is pleading for political statesmanship. In his message, he put it this way: "Our task is to persevere; to stay the course; to shun retreat; to weather the temporary dislocations and pressures that must inevitably accompany the restoration of national economic, fiscal and military health." But everyone knows that is easier for a politician to be a statesman in a year in which he isn't running.

MEANWHILE, REPUBLICANS will be facing two unsettling realities in the Reagan budget.

The North Vietnamese seemed duly impressed and treated American POWs with greater care thereafter. So all in all, considering that the only injury was a sprained ankle to the troops on the raid, it was a reasonable success. True, no one was rescued, but about 100 of the enemy were killed without a single loss on our side.

But Moore is a distinguished old soldier who does not like his secrets buried nor his judgments questioned. I had accused him of "insecure conduct," he gumped, on the word of some faceless source. The admiral flung down the gauntlet: Let me stand up like a man and produce the source "if there is such an individual."

This is an old ploy, often used by those who are stung by my reports. As the admiral knows, there are two kinds of sources: authorized sources who provide the official version of events, and unauthorized sources who are willing to tell the real story. The unauthorized version is almost always more accurate than the official line.

Of course, an unauthorized source, if identified, would not be around long to provide more inside information. So newsmen, who are not satisfied with government handouts, must seek confidential sources and protect their identities.

Rarely, a source will come in from the shadows and risk official displeasure. In this case, not one but three sources have stepped forward. (I never rely on a single informant.)

One is retired Gen. Donald D. Blackburn. Moore knows "there is such an individual," because Blackburn was his special assistant for counterinsurgency. As the general put it, he was the "chief planner" of the raid.

Said Blackburn: "We knew they (the POWs) had been moved, but we didn't want to give up the demonstration of power." The ultimate purpose of the raid, he said, was to show the North Vietnamese how vulnerable they were.

Told of the vehement denials of his old boss, Blackburn stuck to his guns. He made only one concession to Moore: It was "not 100 percent conclusive that some (POWs) were not still there," the general told my associates Don Goldberg and Dale Van Atta. This is a minimal concession; there are almost no 100 percent certainties in wartime intelligence.

Two other sources who have also agreed to be identified are Tom Hayward and Steven Kozovich. In the crucial months before the raid, they were members of the Air Force Security Services assigned to the 498th Security Squadron at Torii, Okinawa.

Their top-secret task was to monitor Hanoi's communications, decode messages and analyze raw intelligence. Their unit, having been alerted to the upcoming rescue mission, kept close watch on the Son Tay area. They discovered heavy air traffic around the POW camp and confirmed more than a dozen flights of Ilyushin-18 transport planes in and out of an airstrip near the camp.

One of the few white students at Weaver, and the only one we encountered, made the statement, "I don't see color." By the end of the day we were able to understand what he meant.

The anti-busing measure comes hard on the heels of the administration's mishandling of the whole issue of tax support for segregated private colleges. It follows the dismissal of U.S. Civil Rights Commission leadership which had endured through Republican and Democratic administrations alike. It is in company with legislation to weaken the Voting Rights Act. It comes after sharp cuts in the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission budget.

In the Senate, Weicker leads the resistance to this distressing trend. His has been a strong effort for a decent cause. He need feel no shame that it is a losing cause at this time.

Each Saturday the Manchester Herald reprints editorials from other New England publications. From The Herald, New Britain. The retreat from positive Civil Rights progress, as much as the incredible agony of Reaganomics, is the hallmark of the administration.

Last week's Senate vote severely restricting the federal judiciary's role in school busing is the latest case in point. Sen. Lowell Weicker's insistence that the action is unconstitutional — that it is improper for the Congress to so restrict the judiciary — is a point well taken. But even more than the legality is the morality. As an isolated issue, busing for the purpose of desegregating public schools has been a controversial, frequently disturbing process. In a calmer, less doctrinaire, more rational atmosphere, the basic objective of desegregating schools is certainly an appropriate subject for Congress to consider. This bill, however, is

Nationwide, the default rate is about 5 percent, adding up to approximately $1 billion. Lieberman said it was time the state started to pursue "freeloaders" more aggressively, and if the state wanted to show its "seriousness" in

Students and some adults went to work at noon Friday with chisels, hammers, saws and screwdrivers. A large snowblower was used to pile up the initial mound. BFA shop classes constructed a pipe, art students whipped up a hat and some home economics classes knitted a scarf emblazoned with their school's initials.

Team play big factor as Rebels stop East

By Len Auster Herald Sportswriter
Team versus individual play was the exhibition at the gym in Hartford and the result was obvious as home-standing South Catholic crushed dejected East Catholic, 65-69, in Hartford County Conference basketball play.

South had a 58-41 lead after three periods and a brief Eagle spur, led by Doug Bond and Theriault, brought East within 60-48 with 6:03 left. But two hoops by Mirabello cooled off any lingering Eagle hopes and the rest of the way resembled playground time.

'Totally disgusted'
Coach Penders
South was 36-for-57 from the field, many of its shots being high-quality, good percentage attempts. East was 23-for-68 from the field. Galligan, 11-for-22 from the floor with most of his "You can't take 63 shots and expect to win against South. You can't match basket for basket with them. They're too good a shooting team," Penders emphasized.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—Hollis Stacy tied the course record of the Pasadena Country Club Friday with a 64 on a par 36 to take a one-stroke lead over the first round of a $125,000 LPGA tourney.

Stacy, who won the opening event on the tour in a five-hole sudden death playoff over JoAnne Carner and tied for fifth last week, was in the morning field when the majority of the low scorers were carded. One shot back at 76 was second year player Patty Sheehan, who had nine of 30s, with five golfers tied another shot back at 4 under par 68. Tied were veterans Sandra Haynie and defending champion Carner, Beverly Klass, and second-year players Chris Johnson and Jeannette Kerr, both out of Arizona State.

Potter wins to advance on pro tour

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Barbara Potter steadily gained momentum after a slow start to eliminate Rosalyn Fairbank 1-4, 7-6, 6-1 Friday night in a quarterfinal match of the Kansas City stop of the professional women's tennis tour.

In later matches, top-seeded Martina Navratilova and Andrea Smith and the team of Navratilova and Rosie Casals met Potter and Sharon Walsh in a quarterfinal. Early in the first match, second-seeded Potter had trouble playing the level expected of a woman ranked No. 9 in the world. On her first serve she committed two double faults, the second to lose the game. She also double faulted away game 4 and double faulted three times in a four-deuce game she won to start the second. "I started off rhythm," Potter said, and called her first set "error ridden."

McEnroe recovers to defeat Tanner

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—John McEnroe was challenged early but recovered quickly and pulled off a 7-6, 6-1 victory Friday over Roscoe Tanner to advance to the semifinals of the $225,000 U.S. National Indoor tennis tournament.

Wassaja 25, Spinks

Wassaja, 25, will be making his American debut. He has fought almost exclusively in Copenhagen. "I'm going to box 15 rounds," said Wassaja. "I'm in good condition. I'll do the things I have to do. The only difference is being ready for 15 rounds." After winning the pre-Olympic tournament as a middleweight in 1978, Wassaja, along with other African athletes, was forced to withdraw from the Montreal Games because of the political climate at the time. It has cost him both recognition and experience.

Roy sets school mark Indian trackmen gain second spot

WOODSTOCK, Vt. (UPI)—A deep snow winter like this— with more on the way according to the meteorologists—understandably could lead many to forget about the value of snowmaking. But ski area operators, wary of past seasons and the flickle nature of New England weather, aren't taking chances.

In short, the snowmogs haven't been shelved until next year. That goes for ski areas throughout the region, from the major resorts such as Stowe, Sugarbush, Killington, Stratton, Waterville Valley and Sugarloaf to the medium-sized and smaller areas such as Suicide Six, Nashoba Valley and Ski Sundown. "The fact there's a lot of snow doesn't change the reason why we put in snowmaking in the first place—to produce snow," says Foster Chandler, vice president and director of marketing for Sherburne Corp. which owns Killington and Mt. Snow in Vermont. Killington, traditionally runs from October to at least mid-May because of its snowmaking plant.

Lopes' exit as Dodger emotional

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rick Monday, holding a glass of wine in his hand, walked over to the table where Davey Lopes was sitting with Ron Cey and Bill Russell.

"I don't think he was ever serving his best," said McEnroe. "I just didn't pick it up very well in the beginning." McEnroe said he was not satisfied with his serve, but felt his backcourt game was up to par. "I was hitting the ball pretty well in the backcourt, and felt comfortable back there," said McEnroe. Tanner said after losing the first set he could not get his game into gear. "On the second set, he got off to a good start, and I was still thinking about the mistakes I made in the tiebreaker," Tanner said.

Lopes and Cey playing together in the Dodgers' system of Spokane and Albuquerque before coming up to Los Angeles to stay in 1972. Although Lopes, who was from East Providence, R.I., and Cey, from Tacoma, Wash., didn't have a whole lot in common apart from the gritty, hard-nosed way both played, they grew close enough so that wherever you saw one, you generally could spot the other. "We discussed it a lot of times that we came from totally different backgrounds, yet it was interesting to see how we got along so well together," Cey said. "Parts of his personality are the same as mine. Sports was the thing that tied us together."

New England ski scene

Winter snowmaking pays big dividends in spring

There's always a problem with steep trails holding snow and the increase in skier traffic, especially in a winter like this when more skiers are out there, plus the new equipment which really chews through snow. It all comes out that we still need snowmaking. "And by making snow now, we're buying insurance. We've got over eight feet of snow made on the top of the mountain and we'll be able to push that around in the spring so our skiers can have their longest season," Latrop says. Adds Don O'Connor, marketing and sales director for Vermont's Stratton Mountain and Bromley Ski Area, which has 83 percent of its terrain covered by snowmaking. "We'll probably run out of skiers before we run out of snow again."

NASCAR on top thanks to Petty

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—With a goodwill ambassador such as Richard Petty, NASCAR racing is rapidly becoming a focal point in the minds of many American sports fans. Auto racing is one of the biggest attendance sports in the United States and Petty takes a pride in relating that stock car competition has induced the public to include NASCAR when people talk about great events in sports.

Petty, himself, is legendary in auto racing, having won the Grand National championship seven times and the Daytona 500 on seven occasions. "So where is NASCAR going? If we do a good enough job and get positive reactions from the fans, the only place we can go is up. But if we mess up like USA and CART did in their squabbles, then we're in trouble. We're getting national scope through television and that's what's just hit us in the face. We've heard tell of you and we've seen you on TV. That's the fans we're looking for." Petty bristles when asked if he isn't NASCAR purely a regional player, mostly limited to southern areas. "No way," he counters. "We're like baseball and 30 years ago when most of the teams were in the northeast. Was baseball considered regional? Heck, no! People in the south and the west coast know all about the major league teams. They know about us the same way. They kept baseball scores in North Carolina, Georgia, California and they didn't have any ball team within 500 miles of those places."

Staub Mets player-coach

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rusty Staub has been appointed player-coach of the New York Mets next season, the club announced Friday. Staub, a lifetime .280 hitter who is beginning his 20th major league season, will assist Mets' hitting instructor, Jim Feny, and will be involved in other coaching duties delegated by manager George Bamberger. Staub also will work with the Mets' instructional League camp in St. Petersburg, Fla. next fall. "I want to take advantage of Rusty's know-how," said Bamberger. "He knows the players on our team and the National League inside out. Now that he is a coach, it will be easier for him to express his opinions and make suggestions. He will sit next to me on the bench so I can hear his thoughts and ideas. I'm sure he will be a big plus."

Yankees satisfy Nelson

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—Gene Nelson, the rookie right hander who made the New York Yankee pitching staff last spring, agreed to terms Friday on a one-year, $250,000 contract. No salary was announced. Nelson made the team in spring training but was placed on the disabled list in late May when he injured his right arm in a trade with the Cincinnati Reds on Nov. 4. Checked into camp but did not work out. He is not scheduled to join the workouts until Wednesday. Nelson posted a 3-1 record with a 4.88 ERA. He is expected to battle for the Yankees' No. 5 starting spot.

Bumbry signs with Birds

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Outfielder Al Bumbry has signed a two-year contract with the Baltimore Orioles extending through the 1983 season. Bumbry, 34, battled .273 with one home run, 27 RBI and 22 stolen bases in 101 games last year. The three-year contract he signed in January 1979 expired after the 1981 season, and he was eligible to go to salary arbitration prior to the agreement.

Badminton exhibition set at Racquet Club

There will be a new "look" at the Racquet Club Sunday, Feb. 21 when badminton will be introduced with a two and one-half hour free clinic and demonstration. Rosemary McGuire, nationally ranked in both women's singles and doubles and reigning state and regional champion in both divisions, will head the session. Doug Coyle, Racquet Club manager, is anxious to see if there is enough interest to warrant including on the schedule badminton for members and guests. "While there is limited play, an facilities this side of the Connecticut River, a number of tennis players noted in a recent survey that they would like to try badminton." Assisting McGuire, varsity coach at Miss Porter's School in Farmington, will be Charlotte Ackerman of Granby, nationally ranked since 1974 and the 1981 Eastern women's doubles champion with her partner. Several other tourney tested players will take part. The session starts at noon and will conclude at 2:30. Spectators will be invited to participate. Coyle said two badminton courts will be installed on one tennis court surface. The lack of wind, lights, the surface and height will offer excellent conditions for skillful play.

Coe to run 5,000 meters to prepare for Olympics

NEW HAVEN (UPI) - A message to all runners who are setting their sights on the Olympic 5,000 meters in 1984: you will be joined by Sebastian Coe.

The incomparable British middle-distance star, apparently thinks he has accomplished all there is to do in the 800, 1,500 and mile - who is to say he hasn't? - and is devoting all his training for the next two years to the 5,000 meters at the Summer Games in Los Angeles.

"I want to get two good seasons of 5,000 running in before the Olympics," said Coe, speaking at Yale University, where he helped dedicate a new track and was named a Kipubth Fellow. "I've never run over 3,000 meters on the track, although I am scheduled to run a 3,000 in July."

Coe said he plans to make a 5,000 meter medal the last major achievement of his sporting life.

"I don't intend to go on racing a great deal longer in 1984," Coe said. "I'll be 29, and I started running when I was 11. If you do the arithmetic, that's a long time to be doing any one thing."

Over the past three years, Coe, 25, has ensured his place in history and is possibly the most versatile middle-distance runner of all time. In the 1980 Olympics, he won the 1,500 gold medal over arch-rival Steve Ovett and was runner-up to Ovett in the 800.

Outdoors, he holds the world record for the 800 (1:41.72), 1,000 (2:12.18) and the mile (3:47.33), and indoors he holds the best time for the 800 (1:46.0).

If there is any runner who has recently come close to Coe's success, it is Ovett, who owns the world 1,500 mark (3:31.96). The two have rarely faced each other, so a three-race challenge series which was set up for this year was greatly anticipated.

Ovett's status for the series - which includes duels at 800, 3,000 and the mile - was questioned after he suffered a leg injury in December, but Coe said he expects his No. 1 competitor to be ready. "If it comes off, it would be great," said Coe, who himself has been idled for three weeks by a strained arch in his left foot. "I have heard that Steve is going to be ready to run. In fact, I think he started up training a week ago."

Head-to-heads rarely come off for one reason or another, so I am looking forward to this. But it's not the only thing on my mind; the centerpiece of my season is still the European Championships."

On the commercialization of track and field, Coe said most promoters need fast times and world records "because the crowds are inclined to think in Europe that unless they see a world record, they've been cheated. It's a sad thing."

Ex-ABA players want their stats counted

NEW YORK (UPI) - For most people, the days of the American Basketball Association are a blurred memory of red, white and blue basketballs swishing through nets in incredibly high-scoring games.

The ABA ceased to exist in 1976, when four of its teams were admitted to the National Basketball Association as part of an expansion program. But the ex-ABA players who continue to shine in the NBA today - all 32 of them - don't want the memories to die just yet.

The players, led by Denver's Dan Issel, are putting together a campaign to get their ABA statistics recognized and, possibly, to be compensated financially for their ABA experience. They plan to submit a bill to the NBA that would ask for the ABA time to become part of their career figures, with pension adjustments. Negotiations are likely.

"Obviously, I'd like to see it," Issel says. "I have to think that in the last four or five years the ABA was playing as good basketball as the NBA was. The players who went on to the NBA proved that because they were successful. The merger proved that."

"I think this should have been decided at the time of the merger. Even if they don't count the stats, it still means a lot to me. I would feel somewhat slighted. A lot of players would, like my roommate in the ABA, Louie Dampier. I know it would be a great thrill for him."

Dampier, now retired, was the first master of the three-point field goal, a rule that the NBA adopted before the merger. "There's always a chance that it will be done. We're going to propose the bill, and if it goes through, we'll be successful. If it doesn't, we'll have to take our plans and go from there."

"I can't dictate at this time what the movement would be, but we would have to regroup and start again."

Lucas' teammate, Marvin Webster, who played for Denver in the ABA's last season, was optimistic, saying, "I'm not sure what will come out of it, but I think we'll get something."

Tomorrow's her 99th Valentine's

By Barbara Richmond
Herald Reporter

ALTHOUGH SHE MISSES being able to walk on Main Street, Mrs. Stevenson enjoys her new apartment. "I thought I died and went to heaven," she jokes to friends.

In the early 1920s, like most Manchester people then, Mrs. Stevenson worked at the Cheney Mills. She was a controller. It was her job to wind the silk thread from one big spool to another to check for flaws.

She was born in Portadown, County Armagh, Northern Ireland, one of seven children. She came to Manchester in 1920 when she started working at Cheney's. She married Harry Stevenson in 1922 at South United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Stevenson has one son, Norman Stevenson, of Manchester, and two grandchildren, Roger and Halley Stevenson. She's a member of First Assembly of God Church of East Hartford and had been going to church just about every Sunday but the recent cold snap has kept her home.

"I was very happy up there. All of my neighbors were nice and Hale employees gave a birthday party for her. This is a tradition they have continued for 10 years. And Mrs. Wickes said this year will be no exception."

They will be at her house Sunday, armed with food and Help her celebrate as they have done for the past 10 years.

Dear Valentine

Manchester residents are shy

Manchester residents are shy. It would appear to be a work saying, "I just wouldn't know what to say."

A pair of girls, giggled, cocked their heads in thought, smiling, then came out with a few sentences, after much studied consideration.

Another girl smiled shyly, and kicked some clods of frozen snow with her boot, obviously trying to avoid sharing her secret thoughts.

"Many more shyly declined, or said with a shrug that they didn't have a valentine."

Most of the world's troubles come when a country that doesn't have something it wants, sets out to get it at any cost. Poor nations are more of a problem for rich nations than other rich nations. Poverty in our cities is a problem for all of us, not just for the poor. People who don't have anything to lose are often very nice about how they set out to get something. "The hell with it," they say. "What have I got to lose?" And they go out and knock someone over the head and take their money.

WHEN ONE of the poor nations gets hold of the nuclear equivalent of a Saturday Night Special, it's apt to go out and knock the rest of the world over the head, and that could be the end.

There are some other wonderful possibilities for ending the world, of course. It may be a close race

Unimaginable is too real for him

I have never been able to realistically consider the possibility of my own death. The end of the world is even harder to imagine, but that's beginning to look as though both are a real possibility.

I was reminded of this by Adm. Hyman Rickover, who said at his going-away party in Congress last week that we'd probably destroy ourselves with nuclear weapons.

Adm. Rickover is not a far-out religious sect. He is not a man who pretends to be able to foresee events from the position of the stars. Adm. Rickover built our nuclear Navy and he's made his reputation with hard-headed thinking about practical problems. You can bet he wasn't kidding when he said we'd probably destroy the world with nuclear weapons.

The Manchester Herald will be publishing a special edition in April that will celebrate the ethnic diversity of the town. Called "Manchester, The Melting Pot," it will include residents and their roots, complete with photos and news coverage of culture, customs, foods, and memories of the "old country."

Anyone interested in participating in the collection of materials is welcome to call the Herald at 643-2711 in the afternoon. We are looking especially for three- and four-generation portraits, photos of native countries, recipes, costumes, and interesting stories of first- and second-generation immigrants.

Hospice nurse has lot of joy, she tells AARP

By Adele Angle Focus editor

Susan Keefe, R.N., hates the term "death and dying nurse." It's a phrase people often use to describe her profession, but she says she much prefers the term "hospice nurse."

"You may find this hard to believe, but in my work, I see a great deal of joy," she told some 200 persons gathered in South United Methodist Church Wednesday.

The occasion was the American Association of Retired Persons, Chapter 177's monthly meeting. Ms. Keefe, a Catholic nurse whose patients often call her "Sister Sue," is a member of the Manchester hospice team of the Visiting Nurse Association of Hartford.

The VNA organized a hospice team in Manchester last year. Its goal is to keep the terminally ill patient at home as long as possible. A team of professionals — including a clergyman, home health aides, social workers, and medical professionals — help the hospice nurse to help the family care for the dying at home.

"We're not out to sell a hospice program or a home care program. Not everybody can do it," she said. "But when the hospice idea is put into operation, the primary care giver is the family. We're there to provide professional help."

And the joy she sees, she said, is often the joy a husband and wife find in realizing they can spend their last months in the home they've created together, rather than in the hospital.

MANAGING PAIN is a large part of her job. About 90 percent of her patients are suffering from cancer. Only about half of all cancer patients suffer pain; the "pain" associated with death and dying extends to far more areas than simply prescribing the correct medication.

Social workers and members of the clergy are there to manage the psychological pain. After death has occurred, hospice professionals or volunteers keep in touch with the family, with periodic visits.

She says the VNA program attempts to keep costs down by allowing the patient's family to do as much of the primary care as possible.

When the family needs assistance, though, she says the hospice nurse is as near as the telephone.

"And we won't tell you to take two aspirin and call us in the morning," she said.

She recalled her student nursing days at Sloan Kettering Cancer Institute in New York City. It was often hard, she said, to send terminally ill patients home and never find out how they fared.

That's one of the reasons that she said she finds the hospice concept so satisfying.

There is joy to her job, there is sadness, too. Often, she said, she finds herself getting involved. "It gets real hard sometimes. We cry a lot, too," she said.

Do boys inherit superior math ability?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A panel of women researchers has disagreed sharply with a highly publicized report a year ago saying boys are better than girls in math reasoning and something more than social factors is responsible.

Camilla Benbow and Julian Stanley of Johns Hopkins University had reported in Science magazine that a study of aptitude test results raised and the boys they play with. "You can't brush the difference under the rug and ignore them," Ms. Benbow had said in an interview. "We've got to accept it and see what we can do to make the situation better."

But the panel at the recent annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, which was held in Washington, D.C., strongly disagreed that anything other than differences in teaching and other outside influences. "There is no way the genetic explanation could begin to explain the differences we find," said Elizabeth Fennema of the University of Wisconsin.

Anne C. Petersen of the Michael Reese Medical Center at the University of Chicago said researchers have been looking for genetic factors that would account for differences in mathematical ability between boys and girls "and none has been found."

Nancy Russo, of the American Psychological Association, said the report by the Johns Hopkins researchers represents a "10th century approach" to explaining the differences.

The prospective bridegroom is employed as a technical analyst at Stantec Inc. of Windsor, Conn. An October wedding is planned.

'Reds' is leading race for Oscars

By Vernon Scott UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD - Warren Beatty's epic "Reds" leads the Oscars race with a dozen Academy Award nominations, and "On Golden Pond" brought the ailing Henry Fonda his first best actor nomination in 45 years.

Fonda and Katherine Hepburn received best actor and actress nominations for their triumphs as an aging couple facing the husband's death in "On Golden Pond," which won 10 nominations that included a supporting actress nomination for Fonda's daughter, Jane.

Fonda's wife, Shirlee, said the 76-year-old actor "smiled and went back to sleep" when told of the nomination. Fonda, who never won a competitive Oscar but was presented with an honorary award last year, was last nominated in 1946 for "The Grapes of Wrath."

Beatty, who also never won a competitive Oscar, picked up a record-tying four nominations - for producer, best actor, best director and best original screenplay - for "Reds," the saga of the Russian Revolution.

The film, which took Beatty nearly three years and $40 million to produce, is up for 12 Oscars, including Best Actor for best actor, Maureen Stapleton for best supporting actress and Jack Nicholson for best supporting actor.

A spokesman said Beatty was "overjoyed" at the success of his film.

"Reds" and "Raiders of the Lost Ark," the year's biggest moneymaker, both collected eight nominations, followed by "Chariots of Fire" with seven.

In addition to "Reds" and "On Golden Pond," nominations for best picture went to an aging gangster who falls in love with a young woman, "Chariots of Fire," a story of heroism in the 1924 London Olympics; and "Raiders of the Lost Ark," a high-action opus on Hollywood's lost adventures.

Best actor nominations also went to Burt Lancaster for "Atlantic City," Dudley Moore for "Arthur," and Paul Newman for "Hombre," while Best actress nominations also went to Marsha Mason for "Only When I Laugh," Susan Sarandon for "Body and Soul," and Meryl Streep for "The French Lieutenant's Woman."

Beatty has been nominated 10 times in five different categories. He also received four nominations in 1978 for "Heaven Can Wait," a feat also matched only by Orson Welles.

Miss Hepburn is the only performer to win three Oscars for leading roles. Jane Fonda has done it twice, while Miss Keaton, Lancaster, Nicholson and Miss Streep have won one Oscar each. Moore and Miss Sarandon are the only first-time nominees.

Other nominees for best supporting actor are James Coco for "Only When I Laugh," John Gielgud for "Arthur," Ian Holm for "Chariots of Fire," and Howard E. Rollins Jr. for "Ragtime."

It was a surprise that James Cagney, a sentimental favorite for his role in "Ragtime," did not get a nomination.

'Reds' is leading race for Oscars

By Vernon Scott UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD - Warren Beatty's epic "Reds" leads the Oscars race with a dozen Academy Award nominations, and "On Golden Pond" brought the ailing Henry Fonda his first best actor nomination in 45 years.

Fonda and Katherine Hepburn received best actor and actress nominations for their triumphs as an aging couple facing the husband's death in "On Golden Pond," which won 10 nominations that included a supporting actress nomination for Fonda's daughter, Jane.

Fonda's wife, Shirlee, said the 76-year-old actor "smiled and went back to sleep" when told of the nomination. Fonda, who never won a competitive Oscar but was presented with an honorary award last year, was last nominated in 1946 for "The Grapes of Wrath."

Beatty, who also never won a competitive Oscar, picked up a record-tying four nominations - for producer, best actor, best director and best original screenplay - for "Reds," the saga of the Russian Revolution.

The film, which took Beatty nearly three years and $40 million to produce, is up for 12 Oscars, including Best Actor for best actor, Maureen Stapleton for best supporting actress and Jack Nicholson for best supporting actor.

A spokesman said Beatty was "overjoyed" at the success of his film.

"Reds" and "Raiders of the Lost Ark," the year's biggest moneymaker, both collected eight nominations, followed by "Chariots of Fire" with seven.

In addition to "Reds" and "On Golden Pond," nominations for best picture went to an aging gangster who falls in love with a young woman, "Chariots of Fire," a story of heroism in the 1924 London Olympics; and "Raiders of the Lost Ark," a high-action opus on Hollywood's lost adventures.

Best actor nominations also went to Burt Lancaster for "Atlantic City," Dudley Moore for "Arthur," and Paul Newman for "Hombre," while Best actress nominations also went to Marsha Mason for "Only When I Laugh," Susan Sarandon for "Body and Soul," and Meryl Streep for "The French Lieutenant's Woman."

Beatty has been nominated 10 times in five different categories. He also received four nominations in 1978 for "Heaven Can Wait," a feat also matched only by Orson Welles.

Miss Hepburn is the only performer to win three Oscars for leading roles. Jane Fonda has done it twice, while Miss Keaton, Lancaster, Nicholson and Miss Streep have won one Oscar each. Moore and Miss Sarandon are the only first-time nominees.

Other nominees for best supporting actor are James Coco for "Only When I Laugh," John Gielgud for "Arthur," Ian Holm for "Chariots of Fire," and Howard E. Rollins Jr. for "Ragtime."

It was a surprise that James Cagney, a sentimental favorite for his role in "Ragtime," did not get a nomination.

Other nominees for best supporting actress are Melinda Dillon for "Absence of Malice," Joan Hackett for "Only When I Laugh" and Elizabeth McGovern for "Ragtime."

Besides Beatty, nominations for best director went to Louis Malle for "Atlantic City," Hugh Hudson for "Chariots of Fire," Mark Rydell for "On Golden Pond," and Steven Spielberg for "Raiders of the Lost Ark."

Marriage licenses may fund shelters for abused women

By Vernon Scott UPI

MONTELEONE, Va. (UPI) - The cost of marriage licenses in Vermont would more than double with the money going to fund shelters for battered women, under a bill moving its way through the state Legislature.

The State Senate voted 25-4 Friday in favor of the measure which lacks $10 million to the current $6 license fee. The House passed it last year. If signed by the governor, it would raise $90,000 for such shelters.

"Why marriage licenses? Why not tax newborn babies?" asked Sen. David Gibson, R-Windham County. He would up voting for the bill anyway.

Supporters say it is a good way to improve the state's track record for helping victims of domestic violence.

Athenum matinees oriented to family

By Kathryn Andrews

EROL Flynn stars in "Robin Hood," a 1938 film classic at the Wadsworth Athenaeum March 6 and 7.

Trying to think of something to do with the kids this weekend? Hartford's Wadsworth Athenaeum Theater has a solution for this weekend and each one through April 1.

Robert E. Smith, the new manager of film programming and operations, has put together a series of family-oriented matinees being shown every Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m.

The program is designed to evoke the movie-going experience of Hollywood's golden age. Films range from fantasy and adventure to classic comedy and intimate drama.

One of the most classic adventure stories, "The Adventures of Robin Hood" (1938) will be shown March 6 and 7. The film was directed by Michael Curtiz and stars Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland and Basil Rathbone.

This was a Warner Brothers first color film and one of about 10 films Flynn and de Havilland made together.

According to Smith, swashbuckler Flynn was well-liked by everyone in Hollywood except Bette Davis. Davis hated the popular star, says Smith.

But Flynn just laughed about it.

And if you go to see "Duck Soup" (1936) on March 13 or 14, keep in mind that the film was parodied by the critics of the time because of its parody on militarism and patriotism.

"It was a great failure when it first came out," says Smith, "but ironically it is now considered the most successful of the Marx brothers' films."

Smith has other film series planned but says he is running out of ideas, March 9 through March 28 a series of films by Frank Capra will be shown. Immediately following that series, films starring Henry Fonda are planned, April 1 through April 18.

During the last part of April, Smith plans a short series of Carol Lombard films. "But after that," he says, "we're open to suggestions."

A schedule of the family matinees follows. Each will be shown at 2 p.m.

March 6 and 7: "The Adventures of Robin Hood" (1938) directed by Michael Curtiz, starring Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland and Basil Rathbone.

March 13 and 14: "Duck Soup" (1936) directed by Leo McCarey, starring Groucho Marx and Harpo Marx.

March 20 and 21: "The Little Prince" (1971) directed by Stanley Donen and starring Richard Gere, Steve Warner and Gene Wilder.

March 27 and 28: "Black Beauty" (1971) directed by James Clavell, starring Mark Lester and Walter Scott.

April 4 and 5: "The War of the Worlds" (1953) directed by Michael Curtiz, starring Richard Widmark and Jeanette Nolan.

April 11 and 12: "The Great Train Robbery" (1936) directed by Buster Keaton and starring Keaton and Marion Mack.
