

John Belushi buried; cocaine likely cause

CHILMARK, Mass. (UPI) — Actor John Belushi, the anti-hero who soared to stardom on a string of zany movies and TV routines, was buried in a windswept island cemetery amid reports he accidentally ended his life with an injection of cocaine.

Members of the Belushi family leave the West Tisbury, Mass., Congregational Church following funeral services Tuesday for comedian John Belushi.

family and dozens of friends and colleagues gathered to pay their final respects to the 33-year-old comedian.

Sidickick Dan Aykroyd — wearing a stars and stripes bandana and leather jacket — jumped on a roaring motorcycle to lead the 4-mile funeral procession to the cemetery, located not far from Belushi's $400,000 oceanfront estate on the resort island of Martha's Vineyard.

The station said Belushi's body had a number of needle marks, all "inflicted within 12 to 24 hours" before he died Friday in a rented hotel bungalow in Hollywood.

Belushi's doctor, however, told UPI late Tuesday the white powder KABC said was found at Belushi's bedside may be the antibiotic powder he prescribed for a severe ear infection.

The Beverly Hills specialist, who asked not to be identified, said he had given Belushi a blood test the week before he died and had prescribed Chloramphenicol — a white powder similar in appearance to cocaine.

The doctor also said Belushi was allergic to novocaine, and would likely have been allergic to cocaine.

The Los Angeles County Medical Examiner's office refused comment on the reports, saying it would be "several days" before test results from an autopsy are available.

Belushi's wife Judith, his parents, two brothers and sisters filed into the Congregational Church in West Tisbury for a noon funeral mass.

They were joined by comedian Bill Murray, actor Treat Williams, and actress Cathryn Walker, who co-starred in Belushi's final movie, "Neighbors."

Belushi's mother, Agnes, was helped from the white-steeped church weeping and clutching a gold cross to her chest.

The Rev. Ila Katre, one of two Albanian Orthodox priests who performed the service, borrowed one of Belushi's wisecracking favorites to close the eulogy, saying, "We can hear the call of the solitary warbling. 'Wise up.'"

Guatemalan National and city police, some with bullet-proof vests and helmets, stand with carbines ready as they clear Guatemala City's Central Plaza of civilians late Tuesday before a political rally protesting alleged fraud in the country's elections.

Guatemalan authorities smash election protest

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — Police and soldiers firing automatic weapons attacked a peaceful protest against alleged fraud in Guatemala's presidential election Tuesday, wounding several people and beating or detaining eight foreign journalists, including a U.S. television reporter.

"It was a brutal repression of a peaceful demonstration," said a journalist at the demonstration late Tuesday.

A hospital spokesman said a woman shot in the arm during the attack was admitted, and a Catholic priest said he saw two men lying in the street, apparently wounded in the shooting. The hospital spokesman said "numerous" people were treated because they had been severely beaten or inhaled tear gas.

Television reports showed police fired automatic weapons and pistols toward the protesters as they approached the capital's central plaza for a planned rally. It was not clear if the shots were intended to go over their heads.

The three losing candidates, who accused the government of voting fraud, were detained about four hours by police but released late Tuesday, said Antonio de Sandoval, cousin of opposition candidate Mario Sandoval Alarcon.

Witnesses, including a UPI reporter, said as many as 100 of the 1,000-2,000 demonstrators were arrested. It was not known where they were taken.

A journalist at the scene said police and soldiers pummeled ABC reporter Geraldo Rivera, three members of his crew, an unidentified American reporter and a Spaniard, a French and a Finnish cameraman.

Rivera was hit by a 46 pistol and he has a slight wound on the left temple, said ABC producer Hanani Rapoport. Another journalist said Hader also was slightly injured.

All the newsmen were whisked away in a police van but were released about a half hour later, Rapoport said.

In a separate incident, a UPI reporter was pinned down by gunfire outside the headquarters of the opposition National Liberation Movement. No one was reported injured. Party officials said plainclothes police did the shooting.

The demonstration started after rightist Gen. Anibal Guevara, the candidate backed by the army and President Romeo Lucas Garcia, claimed victory in Sunday's presidential election.

With more than 80 percent of ballots counted late Tuesday, Guevara held an 87,000 vote lead, losing he would finish in first place, election officials said.

The opposition candidates — Sandoval Alarcon, of the far-right National Liberation Movement; Alejandro Maldonado Aguirre, of the National Renovation Party and the Christian Democrats; and Gustavo Anzures Vietnam, of the Authentic National Central Party — met late Tuesday to map new strategy to force the government to nullify the elections, party officials said.

The paramilitary force would operate out of commando camps spread along the Nicaragua-Honduras border. Neither CIA spokesman Dale Peterson nor the White House would comment on the report.

"It's not our policy to comment on such allegations," Peterson said late Tuesday. A White House spokesman said she did not "know anything about it. I would suspect we would have no comment."

The Post said the force is not yet in place and quoted an official as saying there is no set timetable for its operation.

As part of the covert plan, the commandos would attempt to destroy Nicaraguan targets such as power plants and bridges, the Post reported, assuming such action would slow the movement of arms to El Salvador and disrupt what CIA strategists say is a Soviet and Cuban-controlled government in Nicaragua.

The 500-member force could be increased if necessary, the newspaper quoted officials as saying.

The driver of the car, Hiroko H. Rock, 52, of Rockville, received bruises to her elbow and left leg in the accident and was treated and released at Manchester Hospital.

Police cited Mrs. Rock for driving unreasonably fast under extremely slippery road conditions.

Rescue operations were hampered by heavy traffic, road conditions and similar accidents within six minutes across town, police said.

Man held in row

A Park Street man faces breach of peace charges following a domestic disturbance in which he allegedly slammed his girlfriend's head against a wall and dragged her across the room by her hair, police said.

Leo C. Bushey Jr., 29, of 189 Paris St., was arrested early Saturday morning after Carol Owens, of the same address, fled the apartment and called for help, according to police.

Miss Owens and two friends had returned to the apartment and were talking in the kitchen when the incident occurred, police said.

Bushey reportedly awakened and went to the kitchen table, accusing Miss Owens of seeing other men, police said. He allegedly smashed a wine glass on the table with his fist, then grabbed the woman and slammed her head against the wall, according to the police report.

He hit her several times and dragged her across the floor by her hair before she fled, according to police. Bushey is scheduled to appear in court March 22.

Sleeper arrested in house

A man found sleeping inside a condemned building at 8-7 Ford St. was arrested early Monday morning and charged with third degree criminal trespass, according to police.

Raymond E. Myette, 55, of no certain address, was found sleeping in a chair in the front room of the duplex house at about 3 a.m. after police received a report of a trespasser on the premises, police said.

Myette was arrested and brought to police headquarters, where he was held in lieu of $100 bond. He reportedly told police he had been sleeping in the building now and then and did not realize he was trespassing, police said.

The building is scheduled for demolition by the state to make way for the proposed Main Street realignment project.

Town Fire Chief John Rivosa has complained that the building is a potential fire hazard and should be torn down as soon as possible. Rivosa blamed a November mattress fire in the building on trespassers.

Myette is scheduled to appear in court on March 22.

Woman injured in mishap

A Rockville woman was listed in satisfactory condition at Manchester Memorial Hospital this morning after suffering head injuries in a one-car accident Monday morning.

Lillian Kerrig, 48, of Rockville, was a passenger in a 1973 Toyota Corona travelling west on Tolland Turnpike when the car struck a patch of ice and slid into a telephone pole, police said.

The driver of the car, Hiroko H. Rock, 52, of Rockville, received bruises to her elbow and left leg in the accident and was treated and released at Manchester Hospital.

Police cited Mrs. Rock for driving unreasonably fast under extremely slippery road conditions.

Rescue operations were hampered by heavy traffic, road conditions and similar accidents within six minutes across town, police said.

3,748 pounds found Feds sieze cocaine

MIAMI (UPI) — The cardboard boxes in the airport warehouse were labeled "blue jeans" but the customs inspector who opened them found 3,748 pounds of Columbia cocaine worth up to $925 million — the largest amount ever seized by U.S. authorities.

When he opened the first box, all he saw was white, said a federal officer. Agents had been tipped the boxes might contain drugs.

One pound of pure cocaine, after being cut, is sold illegally at retail on the street for $250,000 a pound, federal authorities said. At that rate, Tuesday's seizure would be worth about $925 million.

Previous record seizures amounted to 625 pounds confiscated by the Drug Enforcement Administration in Miami last year and 614 pounds seized by U.S. Customs from a private plane chased to Tennessee in March 1980.

"There's been nothing of this magnitude ever confiscated before," said one federal law enforcement spokesman.

The first news of the seizure came late Tuesday in a brief announcement from the Washington office of Vice President George Bush, head of the newly formed President's South Florida Task Force to combat drug smuggling and crime.

A Bush spokesman said the cocaine was contained in 21 boxes intermingled with clothing that had arrived on a Boeing 707 air-cargo plane from Colombia.

DEA spokesman Robert Feldkamp in Washington later disclosed other details of the seizure. "It was a customs' seizure at Miami International Airport, based on information supplied from DEA," Feldkamp said. "The investigation, which has been under way for a couple of weeks, is still going on."

"The cocaine was in cardboard boxes, marked blue jeans. We had reason to believe it was not blue jeans," he said. "The gross weight was 3,748 pounds, including the cardboard."

CIA moves into Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan has authorized a $19 million CIA plan to destroy power plants and bridges in Nicaragua in covert operations aimed at slowing the movement of arms to El Salvador, it was reported today.

The Washington Post said in today's edition the president has ruled out the use of U.S. military forces in anti-Nicaraguan operations.

But the covert plan directs the CIA to begin to build and fund a paramilitary force of up to 500 Latin Americans, the newspaper said.

Rebels fighting the U.S.-supported ruling junta warned of stepped-up attacks but a 1,500-man army offensive against the guerrillas entered its third day today in the province of Morazan.

At the site of two guerrilla assaults this week, searchers Tuesday found the corpses of 24 men and women, including that of a male rebel showing signs of torture.

The clandestine guerrilla Radio Venceremos issued a call "to the citizens of all the nation to maintain the alert, to continue the preparations for future battles at an accelerated rhythm."

The guerrilla broadcast Tuesday stopped short of calling the stepped-up activity a "final" or all-out offensive, but the attacks apparently are intended to disrupt March 28 constituent assembly elections.

Washington hopes the vote will move the strife-torn Central American nation of 4.8 million toward democracy and cripple support for guerrillas.

A 1,500-man army offensive against guerrilla positions in the northeastern province of Morazan entered its third day today but little information was available because of poor communications to the area.

Medics better, study says

A paramedic service in Manchester would save about five more heart-attack victims a year than the existing emergency system, a health department study released today reports.

A paramedics system would also enhance emergency techniques for other illnesses, according to the report.

Grading begins

Street looking north will be site of the main entrance to the plant. By separating the contracts for preliminary work, the town hopes to save some money in the tight budget for water improvements.

Probe begins
ELLINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service agents say an investigation has begun to find out how a decomposing tiger carcass ended up in a landfill area.

The study contends that with an EMS system, emergency technicians are better equipped to provide life-saving techniques at the scene that now can only be done at a hospital.

While research has not documented the effect of paramedics on citizen behavior and the resulting change in outcomes to emergency events, several experts in the EMS field believe this side effect to be very important, the report states.

Windham nips Tribe to gain season edge

By Len Auster
Herald Sports Writer

There wasn't much difference between Manchester High and Windham High the first two times they met.

Windham had a 53-51 overtime win over Manchester in Willimantic and fell, 67-66, to the Indians at Clark Arena earlier in the campaign.

Manchester's Joe Maher mistimed on a 12-footer with five seconds left with Windham's Stan Harris fouled on the rebound. The latter missed the one-and-one foul try but by the time Maher crossed mid-court and hanked home a 30-footer off the glass the final horn had long since sounded.

Polly's kitchen pointers: Don't throw any food away

By Polly Fisher and Polly Gramer

The best way to get the most out of your food dollar is to use every bit of food you buy. These storage hints may enable you never to have to throw good food away again.

Frozen bread often becomes damp and soggy while thawing. To prevent this problem, open the bag when you take the bread from the freezer and insert a heavy paper towel. Close the bag and allow the towel to draw as usual. The towel absorbs the excess moisture, and the bread will be fresh and firm.

Stale bread makes excellent croutons. Simply cube the bread and toast it in the oven for 30 minutes or more until it is dry and lightly browned. The croutons will keep for many weeks if stored in a freezer wrap before covering jar.

Keep cake fresh and moist by placing a slice of fresh bread with the cake, then wrapping the whole thing with food wrap. The cake stays fresh, while the bread gets stale and dries out.

Small families can keep their cake and eat it too. After preparing a regular-size cake, cut it into quarters or other suitable portions. Place each piece on a paper plate, freeze in a firm, then wrap securely. Thaw and use one piece at a time.

Lettuce cake or cookies can be turned into crumbs to make a delicious pie shell similar to a graham-cracker crust. Mix crumbs with just enough melted butter or margarine to hold together, then press the mixture into the bottom and sides of a pie plate. Chill for two hours.

In humid weather, cookies and crackers can quickly become soggy. Store such products in the oven if it has a pilot light. They will always be crisp.

Cheese can be frozen, cube the bread and toast it in the oven for 30 minutes or more until it is dry and lightly browned. The croutons will keep for many weeks if stored in a freezer wrap before covering jar.

Frozen hard cheeses tend to be crumbly if they are used immediately after thawing. Leave in the refrigerator for a couple of days after removing from the freezer for a more natural texture.

Many recipes call for egg whites or egg about right for a cup of coffee. Milk tends to get watery after freezing, but whole milk will seem less so than skim or low-fat milk.

Remove frankfurters from the package and freeze separately, wrapping in aluminum foil or heavy-duty plastic wrap.

Four leftover gravy or meat juices into ice-cube trays and use them to make your own frozen TV dinners out of leftovers. Just heat in a 400-degree oven for 30 minutes or so. To make larger, longer-lasting ice cubes, put the water in muffin tins instead of conventional ice-cube trays. These cubes are nice to use in punch bowls or ice chests.

Freeze leftover coffee in ice-cube trays. Use the cubes in iced coffee; they will not dilute the coffee like regular ice cubes.

'instant' gravy or enriching soups and stews for use in any recipe requiring a meat broth.

Save aluminum freezer-dinner trays and use them to make your own frozen TV dinners out of leftovers. Just heat in a 400-degree oven for 30 minutes or so. To make larger, longer-

Vitamins noted in lunch menus

In conjunction with National Nutrition Month, this month the Manchester school lunch menus have symbols printed next to the foods which are high in vitamins A and C.

A lesson plan involving the two vitamins has been developed by Peggy Grogan, nutrition consultant for the school lunch program, and will be used in the elementary classrooms.

School officials said the project will also aid the general public in identifying those foods through the same vitamin symbols printed in The Herald next to the menu items.

Menus

Where can one buy persimmon fudge?

Writer seeks out genuine American food

By Jeanne Lesom
UPI Family Editor

You may have heard of home gardeners who join seed exchanges in an effort to save endangered plant varieties.

Raymond Sokolov has a goal something like that. "I'm trying to find out what's left of traditional regional food and culture in this country," Sokolov says.

He's looking for "foods that haven't made it in the supermarket world — things like wild persimmons and Olympia oysters."

USDA extension service people.

The postoffice is another great source of information for locating regional food sources in rural America, he said. "I've never been in the real deep south. I want to see what people are really doing."

Sokolov is not optimistic about halting the disappearance of toadstuffs and traditions.

"I really don't think the overall trend can possibly change. We're not going to march every city dweller back to the land and force him to farm by 19th century methods."

In Owensboro, Ky., he said, the old, traditional Catholic church barbecues used to feature wild meat.

They stopped, he said, because game isn't federally inspected, so it cannot be sold legally.

Kentuckians resourcefully substituted old ewes, Sokolov said, and today there are 16 million barbecue restaurants in that town of 50,000 population.

He would like to see some of the energy reformists spend touting natural foods channeled instead into saving regional foodstuffs that cannot be mass produced.

He said he'd also like to see a creative system of food inspection to permit such people to sell outside their geographic area, he said.

Sokolov's recipe for ham biscuits:

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
Pinch of salt
1/2 cup ground Smithfield ham
2 tablespoons shortening
3/4 cup milk

Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Stir flour and salt and ham. Cut in shortening with knife until mixture has consistency of meal. Add milk, handling dough as little as possible. Pat out with hands or roll on floured board. Cut out and bake on greased cookie sheet until brown. Makes about 12.

School budget set at $737,382

By Richard Cody Herald Reporter ANDOVER - The Board of Education Tuesday set a bottom line of $737,382 for its proposed 1982-83 budget, which will be presented to the finance board Thursday.

The board's proposed budget includes a 10 percent increase in the salary, bringing it to $30,656. Mrs. Kowalski said the final figure may not be the 10 percent increase, but added that it would not be more.

Computers help diabetic children

FARMINGTON (UPI) - Children with diabetes will have some fun this year when they try to beat computer games designed to help them learn how to control their disease.

There are a lot of diabetes camps around, but this is an opportunity to allow these kids a chance to be exposed to computers, just like other kids are, Dr. David W. Rowe, a pediatrician at the University of Connecticut's John N. Dempsey Hospital in Farmington, said Tuesday.

Southern lumber arrives

The first shipment of live oak into the Mystic area since the turn of the century arrived this past week from southern Georgia.

There are now over 1,000 children with diabetes in Connecticut, Rowe said. "It is one of the most chronic diseases of childhood, and it is life long."
