Food co-ops help all

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Street vendor Yahya Abdur-Rahman browses every time he sees people cramming fresh fruits and vegetables into their shopping carts at the neighborhood grocery store.

He considers it a waste—for both the consumer and the small farmer. Abdur-Rahman, 28, sells jewelry and incense on the streets of Nashville to make a living. He is responsible for putting food on the table for his wife, his 3-year-old son, his 2-year-old daughter and his 2-month-old baby.

The rising cost of living forced him to cut corners. But the most important decision he made was to join a food co-op.

A member for only two months, Abdur-Rahman says he has realized savings of 50 to 65 percent by buying fruits, vegetables and dry goods from the neighborhood co-op based in his government-subsidized housing project.

"It's best for consumption and best for the pocketbook," he says. "It's costing us less and there's more available."

For his first $5 co-op "share," he took home three bags of fruits and vegetables; bags stuffed with oranges, apples, collard greens, spinach, cabbage and other foodstuffs.

"When you go to a grocery store with $5, you come out with a bag of onions and a bag of potatoes," he says. "That is the thing that kicked the co-op idea over with me."

The co-op was set up with the help of the Agricultural Marketing Project. The AMP was formed in 1974 by a group of Vanderbilt University students concerned about the decline in the number of small farms in the South.

As an example, the AMP says 65 percent of all grocery sales in metropolitan areas of the United States are by only clear grocery chains.

"Everything I'm hearing is that it's the worst it's been since the depression," Vleck says.

At the 94,000 farmers in Tennessee, 90 percent gross less than $20,000 in farm sales a year and many tell the AMP they cannot survive much longer unless something is done about high interest rates and competition from large farms.

Farmer Landon Hayes: "If we go broke, all the rest of the economy will collapse—just like a pile of dominoes. Don't kid yourselves. It will happen."

"If they just sit up there in Washington on their fannies," Hayes says, "the country's going to get in worse shape than Poland."

Instead of waiting for federal help, the AMP has set up open air farmers markets, wholesale cooperatives in which farmers sell to restaurants, hospitals and schools, and created co-ops to help farmers sell their produce to bargain-hunting consumers.

The farmer-to-consumer co-op is catching on in Nashville.

About 400 families have joined 10 consumer co-ops in Nashville since May. These co-ops buy directly from farmers and save their members up to 65 percent on their produce purchases.

Members pay $5 per week and the money is pooled to purchase large quantities of food at wholesale prices. Once a week, each member stops by a neighbor's house to pick up an allotment of the variety of foods distributed equally among members.

The middle man, the bonds between the farmer and consumer will get stronger. There will be less waste," says Abdur-Rahman.

The AMP's latest project is setting up wholesale cooperatives. Farmers are organized to sell their produce directly to restaurants, grocery store warehouses, hospitals, day care centers, and other businesses that consume large quantities of food.

Testing Nashville markets, AMP organized a wholesale cooperative of 35 farmers who found they could easily undercut higher wholesale prices traditionally quoted to restaurants. With more persistence, the farmers broke into the grocery store warehouse markets.

The wholesale co-op sold $30,000 to $40,000 worth of produce last year—enough to encourage participants to expand the project to Knoxville this year.

Wallace for Gulf Resources, Inc., in Dallas, also disposes of scrap rubber, which cannot be incinerated under Environmental Protection Agency regulations.

"It's really, as far as we have seen, the first synfuel process that is affordable, consumes garbage and does produce petroleum," Estalier said.

"It is the first of its kind that is a portable system, that can be moved to the raw material," he said. "It's a self-contained machine which means the pollution from the machine is almost nonexistent."

"The unit produces its own gas and runs on itself. Once the machine starts up, it runs on its own energy."

Money for sale ... cheap

New machine converts trash to petroleum

WHEATON, Ill. (UPI) — A savings and loan association promoting a new branch office decided to go directly to its customers and sell money at cut-rate prices.

Freedom Federal Savings & Loan Association—in the heart of conservative, Republican DuPage County—Thursday sold $100 bills for $90, $50 bills for $40, $20 bills for $16 and $10 bills for $8, to its first 200 customers.

About 250 people were in line when the savings and loan opened the doors of its new branch at 9 a.m. They had been lining up since 6:30 a.m. Harry and Jeanette Troy got up at 5 a.m. to be the first in line and each walked away with a crisp $100 bill for their effort.

Wallace said the process is fueled by catalytic action—substances that react with the refuse to produce the synthetic petroleum products.

"It's really, as far as we have seen, the first synfuel process that is affordable, consumes garbage and does produce petroleum," Estalier said.

"The unit produces its own gas and runs on itself. Once the machine starts up, it runs on its own energy."

Budget would hike tax $75 to $115

By Paul Hendrie Herald Reporter

Town spending will rise 10.33 percent and property tax increases will average $75 to $115 in the coming year, if the budget proposed Friday by General Manager Robert B. Weiss is approved.

However, Weiss described his proposal as conservative and said it would maintain current services, not provide for many new ones.

No layoffs of town personnel — which were feared earlier — were eliminated through attrition.

Weiss released his budget proposal, which now goes to the Board of Directors Budget Committee, at a press conference Friday in his bedroom, where he is confined with a back injury.

Weiss proposed a nearly one mill increase in a rate of $3.24 mills. However, this is the final year of the five-year phase-in of property revaluation. So, property this year will be taxed at its full 1976-77 assessed value, not the 80 percent it was taxed on last year.

Weiss said he was confident the taxpayers would understand why taxes would go up.

"I have yet to find anyone who says, 'Oh boy, my taxes are going up,'" said Weiss. "But I think you may have a reaction from the public that, in view of inflation, the cost of government goes up, too. The alternative is a decrease in services. There are so many fixed costs we can't control."

Weiss suggests revaluation

Property may be revalued for tax purposes again next year, General Manager Robert B. Weiss said Friday.

He stressed that he is not proposing a revaluation, at least for now, but he would like to see the Board of Directors consider the idea.

A revaluation could be calculated at virtually no cost to the town using the computer system, Weiss said.

This year is the final year of a five-year phase-in of the 1976-77 revaluation. That means property owners this year will pay 100 percent of the 1976-77 assessed value.

Another revaluation is not required by law for another five years, but Weiss said a total revaluation in 1987 "will place us in the same imbalance between residential and commercial/industrial property as existed in 1976, before the revaluation."

He said assessor's records show that Manchester residential property, based on 70 percent of the 1976-77 assessed value, is now assessed at 40 percent of the market value.

"I feel it (a mid-point revaluation) is not only more equitable in the long-run to keep property values current, but also avoids wide shifts in the revaluation year," Weiss said in his budget proposal.

If the Board of Directors decided to revalue property, that would be reflected in this October's grand list and July 1983 tax bills.

Condo freeze illegal, Bolton selectmen told

By Richard Cody Herald Reporter

BOLTON — The selectmen's attempted freeze on condominiums has been declared illegal by Town Attorney Vincent L. Diana.

In a letter to First Selectman Henry F. Ryba, Diana explained that state statute allows the zoning board to regulate zoning needs. Any interference from the selectmen he says, is illegal.

The selectmen, as of their meeting March 2, voted unanimously to impose a moratorium on construction of condominiums, and to have Diana write an ordinance enforcing it.

Meriden ordered to allow rally

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Warren W. Eginton Friday ordered the city of Meriden to allow the Ku Klux Klan to hold its "White Christian Solidarity Day" gathering on Saturday, despite fears of violence.

Eginton ruled the Klan rally in Meriden must be permitted, despite state and city officials' statements a "definite" possibility existed for violence between Klansmen and anti-Klan protesters.

However, the Klan agreed to cancel plans for a march through the city's downtown and said it would rally instead in front of city hall where police could provide better protection.

"We intend to give complete cooperation to the police, more than what is required of us," said Bill Wilkinson, Imperial Wizard of the Invisible Empire of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

Meriden ordered to allow rally

Judge William B. Ramsey granted a state request to allow police to confiscate any dangerous weapon brought within 200 yards of City Hall during the Klan gathering on Saturday.

Ramsey's order allows police to frisk people entering the designated area or search motor vehicles.

Eginton issued a temporary restraining order to prevent violence between Klansmen and anti-Klan protesters.

Meriden ordered to allow rally

Eginton made his ruling from the bench shortly after 3 p.m., about seven hours after he cleared the town calendar to hear the arguments.

Meriden ordered to allow rally

At present, Bolton's only multiple housing is apartments, with the largest complex on South Road.

Ryba said Friday he will be sending a letter to the zoning board letting its members know that his office is still concerned about the regulation.

At the March 2 meeting, Ryba recommended the moratorium to both give the town time to consider its first grapple with condominiums and to allow the zoning board opportunity to write some regulations that deal specifically with this type of multiple housing.

Budget in Coventry up by 15.4 percent

By Richard Cody Herald Reporter

COVENTRY — Your property taxes will go up more than 1.5 times if proposed 1983 expenses are approved this spring, figures from Charles F. McCarthy's proposed budget reveal.

The budget, McCarthy's first since coming to Coventry last fall, shows a 15.4 percent, $916,502, increase over current expenses. The proposed bottom line on expenses is $6,680,700, McCarthy, in his budget message to the Town Council, says 60 percent of the budget is school expenses. The school budget, as proposed by the Board of Education, shows a 16 percent increase.

Based on the total increase, and in keeping with the recent revaluation which hiked the average real estate assessment from $10,000 to $40,000, McCarthy estimates a 30-mill tax levy to cover all expenses. This will make the average property tax $1,495.

Other increases in the budget are found in the general administration category, which is up 10.5 percent, for $31,611. McCarthy said the increase here comes mainly from the hiring of a full-time planner, but he says the increase should be offset by the $1.4 million HUD grant the town received last fall.

Public safety increased 14.4 percent, $52,071, and McCarthy says this is caused mainly by the restoration of a full-time police officer, a position cut during last year's budget workings.

Last year's budget work, with two referendums and a lawsuit by some residents who are challenging state statute's domain over local government, resembled more a struggle between conservative and liberal groups than a mechanical operation. The budget still is still awaiting a judicial decision, something expected before the next town meeting.

Police back bill on rape testimony

HARTFORD (UPI) — The commanding officer of Connecticut state police, and three women legislators, endorsed a bill Friday to prohibit questioning a rape victim about her sexual past during a trial.

Col. Lester Forst said only one in 10 rapes is reported because women are afraid of the "re-victimization" they often go through during legal proceedings.

"The victim's knowledge that she may be called upon to relate her past sexual experiences in open court can be, and is, a deterrent to the victim's participation in the entire legal process," he said.

Reps. Pauline Keene, Plainville, Muriel Yacavone, D-East Hartford, and Naomi Otterness, D-Leedyard, said rape victims often are subjected to a worse ordeal in court than is the accused rapist.

The bill carries an amendment to allow the victim's past sexual conduct to be introduced as evidence under certain conditions, but only after it is ruled on by a judge in private.

Police crack down on drunk drivers

HARTFORD (UPI) — State police will step up patrols in seven southeast Connecticut communities beginning this month in the latest crackdown on drunk drivers, Gov. William O'Neill said Friday.

The special patrols in Clinton, Groton, New London, Norwich, Old Saybrook, Stonington and Waterford, on Friday and Saturday nights will be paid with $54,000 in federal highway safety grants.

"It is my hope that these patrols will assure a much greater degree of public safety on our roads," O'Neill said in a statement.

The other two phases were the start up of a selective enforcement campaign against drunk drivers on four highways in the Hartford area and the addition of new computerized breath-testing equipment at state police barracks.

Engineer union backs Bozotto

HARTFORD (UPI) — The International Union of Operating Engineers is supporting former state Sen. Richard Bozotto in the race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, it was announced Friday.

The union, which is located in Hamden, includes 3,000 construction workers and their families.

"We are convinced that Dick possesses the ability to provide Connecticut with the decisive, effective leadership it now lacks," Elwood Metz Jr., vice president of Local 478, said in a letter released by Bozotto.

Four indicted in gold theft

HARTFORD (UPI) — A federal grand jury has indicted four men on charges stemming from the theft of $5 million worth of gold powder from the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Group, U.S. Attorney Alan H. Nevas said Friday.

Named in the six-count indictment were Andrew Jackson Harris Jr., 26, of Middletown; Joseph B. Corley, 45, of the Kensington section of Berlin; Richard H. Sinibaldi, 42, of Eastford; and David Tenenbaum, 39, of New York City.

Harris and Sinibaldi are former employees at the Pratt & Whitney plant in East Hartford, from which the gold powder was allegedly stolen, Nevas said.

The jet engine manufacturer uses the powder in industrial operations.

The gold powder was taken from Pratt & Whitney at the rate of 25 to 50 trays ounces a week and shipped out of state and sold, Hartford Police Chief George Sicaras said last month in disclosing the breakup of the theft operation.

Nevas said Friday that Sicaras provided the FBI with the information that led to the joint federal, state and local investigation of the gold thefts.

The indictment alleged a conspiracy existed between Harris, Sinibaldi and Tenenbaum to transport stolen gold out of the state between September 1979 and last December, Nevas said.

Reporter secrets subject of ruling

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — The New Hampshire Supreme Court adopted rules Friday regarding what reporters can refuse in court to disclose confidential sources they used in their stories.

The ruling came in the complicated case of Barney Siel, who was convicted in June 1980 of first degree murder and sentenced to life in prison for the murder of Joseph Woodside in Durham.

The judgment was overturned four months later by Superior Court Judge Frederick Goode because of an erroneous jury charge. Goode ordered a new trial.

Siel claimed that a second trial would violate his protection against double jeopardy, but the high court dismissed the double jeopardy argument outright saying "it has no merit."

Siel further asked the court to order two reporters for a Durham newspaper to reveal sources they used to write stories about the Woodside murder. The reporters refused to disclose those sources at the trial.

In a unanimous decision, the justices said a "defendant may overcome a press privilege to withhold a confidential source of news only when he shows: That he attempted unsuccessfully to obtain the information by all reasonable alternatives; that the information would not be irrelevant to his defense; and that by a balance of probabilities, there is a reasonable possibility that the information sought as evidence would affect the verdict in his case."

The two reporters, citing confidential sources, wrote that Woodside may have been involved in drug dealing in the Durham area. Siel's lawyer said those witnesses should be identified because it would prove that persons other than Siel may have had a motive to kill Woodside.

But the justices said the lower court judge who allowed the sources to remain confidential had made a proper ruling. They said the information being sought by Siel's attorney would not affect the verdict.

"We appreciate the defendant's position, but while these statements do raise suspicion that the sources might have further information that would aid him, it does not rise to the level of certainty needed to overcome the reporters' privilege," the justice said.

The case was sent back to Stratford County Superior Court for a new trial.

Swallows back at Capistrano

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (UPI) — The mission bells rang as flocks of swallows returned to their home at the old Spanish church of San Juan Capistrano Friday as they have for centuries.

The official return of the swallows came at 9:32 a.m. PST, as about 3,500 tourists crowded around the mission—the oldest standing building in California.

"They've arrived here and they're flying all around," said Leon Rene, the official "Voice of the Mission" who wrote the 1939 hit love song, "When the Swallows Come Back to Capistrano."

"They're coming in also to the hills and surrounding places and towns around here," he said. "It's quite a thing to see."

"They don't come into exactly to the mission in flocks like they used to because the town has been built up so much," Rene said, noting that new housing developments had forced the swallows to find food in the hills.

The swallows leave their nests beneath the mission eaves each Oct. 23 and return on St. Joseph's Day, March 19. They spend the winter in Goya, Argentina, some 4,000 miles southeast of Capistrano. It takes the little fork-tailed birds many days to fly between their summer and winter homes.

The mission, built in 1776 by Father Junipero Serra, is one of 21 California missions that were built along what was then known as El Camino Real, or the King's Highway. Today the San Juan Capistrano mission serves as a model of Spanish architecture and a museum of early California history.

A town pageant celebrated the arrival of the swallows, featuring school children dressed as padres and Indians, bands and dancing.

Womah surrenders in custody lie

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — A Connecticut woman surrendered to authorities Friday on charges she lied about her educational credentials at a Westchester Family Court proceeding to help her daughter win custody of her young son.

Shirley Mullins Lund, 38, of Madison, Conn., pleaded innocent to a charge of first-degree perjury at her arraignment before City Court Judge John Holden, who released her without bail pending a hearing March 30.

According to District Attorney Carl Vergari, Mrs. Lund testified as a witness at a custody hearing in Westchester Family Court in White Plains in February 1981 that she held degrees in teaching, special education and family counseling.

She claimed she held doctorate degrees from Columbia University in New York City and McGill University in Montreal, and was licensed as a "master teacher" in the state of Connecticut.

However, an investigation by the district attorney's Fraud Bureau found no record of her having obtained degrees from the universities or a license in Connecticut, Vergari said.

Assistant District Attorney Frank Castaldi said the judge in the family court case awarded joint custody to the parents and included supervision by the county Department of Social Services in the decree.

Castaldi said he did not know if the alleged perjury might force a reopening of the family court case.

Mrs. Lund was released without bail, despite the fact that she lives in another state. She faces a maximum of seven years in prison if convicted.

Jury deliberates in tampon case

DENVER (UPI) — A federal court jury deliberated in its fourth day Friday in a college coed's $25 million suit alleging Procter & Gamble's Rely tampons caused her to get the rare disease toxic shock syndrome.

Jon Kidneigh, attorney for Delisha Dawn Lamphire, said he was encouraged by the length of deliberations of the jury and said he didn't expect a verdict from the panel until Saturday or Monday.

Kidneigh said he believed the jury, which received the case Tuesday, was "being much more detailed in their analysis than I expected them to be. And that tells me they're taking our argument seriously."

"Based on what they've done so far, I wouldn't expect a verdict until Saturday, if they deliberate then, or Monday," the jury had more than two weeks of deliberation, and sometimes conflicting testimony to consider the case. During the first three days of deliberation, they asked U.S. District Judge Sherman Finestiver for definitions of such words as "usable" and "soluble."

Miss Lamphire, now an 18-year-old freshman at the University of Denver, testified her life had changed drastically since she became ill in May 1980. She maintains she came down with toxic shock syndrome because she had used Rely tampons.

Procter & Gamble's attorneys said they believe Miss Lamphire had the flu, complicated by a urinary tract infection and possibly by a reaction to antibiotics.

At the time Miss Lamphire became ill, she was a high school class president and an active student with good grades.

She said since the illness she has been frequently depressed, has lost interest in outside activities and cannot do well in school.

Kidneigh told the jury in closing arguments that Procter & Gamble failed to adequately test the Rely tampons before making them available to the public.

Toxic shock syndrome has symptoms similar to the flu, with a fever, diarrhea, nausea and a sudden drop in blood pressure. A vast majority of the 1,000 cases reported since the disease was identified in 1978 has been in young, menstruating women, but there have been cases among men and children.

Bolton kindergarten to register next week

BOLTON — Kindergarten registration for the 1982-83 school year will be held next week starting Monday at the K-4 building from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Parents wishing to enroll their youngsters are asked to do so at this time. It is not necessary to bring the child.

A validated birth certificate is required, and the child must be aged 5 or on before Jan. 1, 1983.

A follow-up screening will be held May 11 and 12. This will allow for early identification of student educational needs. Appointment dates will be announced at the registration.

On May 5, the screening committee will meet with parents to review the process and answer any question. This will be held in the same building at 8 p.m.

For more information, call the school at 645-3411.

To Keeney students El Salvador is home of their friend, Jose

By Nancy Thompson
Herald Reporter
To students at Keeney Street School, El Salvador is more than just a name in the news. El Salvador is the home of their friend, Jose Lara.

Jose is a foster child who is being sponsored by the Keeney students. The first Wednesday of every month is "Foster Child Day" at the school. Each child brings in a nickel to contribute toward Jose's upbringing.

Sponsoring a foster child in a foreign country was the idea of Colleen Muirhead, a member of Keeney's Parent-Teacher Association. Mrs. Muirhead said she had sponsored a foster child when she was in high school, along with some friends, and it was such a good experience that she wanted to pass it along to the Keeney students.

"We're always discussing in the PTA what we can do with the children," Mrs. Muirhead said. "It's the way they can really learn about giving and sharing."

Keeney Principal Francis J. Amara said the sources to remain excited about sponsoring Jose. "There's a lot of spirit, all the kids pulling together," Amara said. "It's really an inspiring thing."

A BULLETIN board has been set up in the school library with maps of El Salvador and Jose's picture. Any letters the students receive from Jose will be kept in a book in the library. The classes will take turns writing to Jose.

"The librarian's going to order some Spanish dictionaries so we can write to him," Mrs. Muirhead said. "The kids are already planning all the gifts they want to send and the questions they want to ask."

Little town takes part in big call

DERBY LINE, Vt. — Tiny Derby Line, nestled on the Vermont-Canadian border, has little in common with places such as Paris, New York, Moscow, and Sydney, Australia.

But for about 30 minutes Saturday, it will call for peace in a voice equal to the large cosmopolitan cities.

At 5:56 p.m. — the precise moment springtime arrives in North America — the rural Vermont community will be linked via telephone with 14 cities around the world.

Rev. Brendan Hadasch, of the First Universalist Church, said the conference call is planned so that worldwide members of the World Citizens Assembly can share their concerns for world peace through telephone messages to each other.

Each city or town representative will have two minutes to voice his message.

"Basically, I think it's just keeping in touch with one another," said Hadasch.

He said the World Citizens Assembly is grass-roots organization dedicated to stopping the arms race and meeting basic human needs.

Your neighbor's views

What do you think is the best television network and why?

DARLENE VIERA, Manchester: "ABC. I like the cartoons on Saturday. And I like it for General Hospital."

MICHELE McQUEE, Manchester: "CBS. I like the World News — the meaningful shows on the air. I don't watch TV that often anyway."

JEFFREY SAULT, Tina Moriarty, Manchester: "CBS. I like the World News — the meaningful shows on the air. I don't watch TV that often anyway."

JERRY DESCHENES, Manchester: "ABC. I like the World News — the meaningful shows on the air. I don't watch TV that often anyway."

GLORIA DIETERLE, Mortimer Harlow, Mike Barrera, Manchester: "None. I think TV is terrible. I don't see anything educational or anything that's worth watching. I like Little House hooked up to cable and know when we're getting on the Prairie."

Non-sequiturs?

To students at Keeney Street School, El Salvador is more than just a name in the news. El Salvador is the home of their friend, Jose Lara.

Jose is a foster child who is being sponsored by the Keeney students. The first Wednesday of every month is "Foster Child Day" at the school. Each child brings in a nickel to contribute toward Jose's upbringing.

Sponsoring a foster child in a foreign country was the idea of Colleen Muirhead, a member of Keeney's Parent-Teacher Association. Mrs. Muirhead said she had sponsored a foster child when she was in high school, along with some friends, and it was such a good experience that she wanted to pass it along to the Keeney students.

"We're always discussing in the PTA what we can do with the children," Mrs. Muirhead said. "It's the way they can really learn about giving and sharing."

Trans-Atlantic tryouts

William Dunlop, of Machanic Falls, Maine, tries out the oars in a nine-foot boat he hopes to sail across the Atlantic Ocean this summer. This is actually the mold from which his small sailboat will be formed. Two years ago Dunlop, in 28 days, sailed his 35-foot sloop, "Enchantress", across the Atlantic landing in Falmouth, England. That trip was made without any form of modern communication equipment, but, this time he expects to be radio-equipped. Dunlop, will be leaving here, on what he hopes will be a 60-day crossing to Falmouth, and he expects to be capsize about a hundred times.

Vermont lawmaker backs rights of Klan

MONTEPELLIER, Vt. (UPI) — Standing up for constitutional rights of the Ku Klux Klan can be a lonely affair, Rep. Harold Billings learned Friday.

The Rutland Town Republican was one of two lawmakers heard to say "no" on a voice vote when the House considered a resolution telling the Klan its recruitment and cross-burning activities are not welcome in Vermont.

Billings' voice, unlike that of Rep. Mary Ashcroft, D-Roxbury, was loud enough to be heard by all and immediately after the vote some of Billings' colleagues joked he was the Klan's "Grand Dragon" in Rutland Town.

"I left my cape and staff outside,"

Billings laughed. Then he turned serious. "I hate what the Ku Klux Klan stands for. But the last thing you want to do for some irate group like this is to push them underground all the time," said Billings.

He referred to the constitutional hubbub surrounding a bill the House recently passed which allows the state to bar, without a court order, certain large public gatherings deemed to pose a danger to the public.

"We do have here a right to make sure that things are orderly. You don't shoot your neighbor," said Billings.

But, he added, the right to maintain order should not infringe on anyone's right to assemble peacefully or express their views.

The resolution, which had already been passed by the Senate, was prompted by reports that the Klan's Connecticut chapter is organizing a New England recruitment effort, expected to culminate with a cross-burning in Vermont.

Sen. William Doyle, R-Washington County, who wrote the resolution, said the Klan, widely known as a racist group that promotes hatred of minority groups, was alien to Vermont's tradition.

Doyle's resolution noted the Klan's right to assemble, but said it was not welcome in Vermont. But it strongly implied the Klan did not have the right to come to the

Police say Sterno can didn't start inn fire

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — If Luis Marin had an accident with a stereo can, as he has claimed, that "had nothing to do with" the fire that raged through the Stoffer's Inn conference center killing 26 people, a police investigator testified Friday.

Harrison Police Lt. Richard Riguzzi's testimony appeared to help set the stage for later prosecution expert witnesses who are expected to say that the blaze had to be fueled by a significant amount of a highly volatile substance such as gasoline, which would indicate the fire was deliberately set.

Marin and his defense lawyers have claimed that the fire was accidental and that it may have occurred when Marin, a coffee server at the Harrison, N.Y., hotel knocked over a stereo can.

Marin, in many statements to police, never admitted deliberately setting the fire, but said he "felt guilty" his accident with the stereo can could have started the blaze. He maintained however that he "stomped it out" immediately and that his accident took place at least 15 minutes before fire consumed the third floor conference center at about 10:30 a.m. on Dec. 4, 1980.

Twenty-six people died and Marin is charged with as many counts of murder and one count of arson. The dead included 13 executives of the Greenwich, Conn.-based Arrow Electronics Corp., 12 executives of the Nestle Co., of White Plains, N.Y., and a Canadian brewing consultant who was attending a seminar.

Riguzzi said he told Marin during a day-long interrogation session Jan. 16, 1981 that his accident with the stereo can "if it happened when he said it did... had nothing to do with the fire" that killed the 26 people.

He said authorities discovered a "circular burn pattern" on the carpet at the point where the fire is believed to have started at the intersection of two major corridors.

Lonely road not endless, says official on way to jail

BOSTON (UPI) — Former Massachusetts Transportation Secretary Barry M. Locke took the "lonely road" to prison Friday, beginning a 7-to-10 year term for bribery and larceny.

"This is not forever," Locke mused shortly after a state Supreme court Justice denied his request to remain free pending an appeal of his conviction. "Trouble is a tough and lonely road, but not an endless one. Locke, convicted Feb. 2 of conspiring to accept bribes and steal money as head of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority, walked into Walpole State Prison shortly after noon wearing a brown, corduroy three-piece suit.

The former member of Gov. Edward J. King's cabinet smiled and waved to reporters as two Suffolk County Sheriff's Department employees escorted him to a black station wagon for the trip to the prison, 17 miles south of Boston.

Justice Herbert P. Wilkins denied without comment around 2:30 a.m. Locke's request for a stay of his sentence. About one hour later, Suffolk Superior Court Judge Rudolph Pierce ordered Locke to begin serving his term.

"I have done nothing wrong," Locke said before receiving orders from Pierce. "However, a verdict has been rendered and I have no choice but to do the will of the court."

Locke stood impassively as a court clerk read the list of charges against him and Pierce formally lifted the temporary stay which had kept Locke out of prison since his sentencing Feb. 17.

Locke's attorney, David Mills, told Pierce there would be no appeal of Wilkins' decision.

Assistant Attorney General Stephen Delinsky, who prosecuted the case, expressed sympathy for Locke, but said he hoped the unusually harsh prison term would serve as a deterrent to other politicians.

"This is a sad day for the commonwealth and it is an especially sad day for Mr. Locke's family," he said. "I hope no other high public official will have to go through what Mr. Locke is about to go through."

During the trial, Delinsky said Locke was the "mastermind" in a dozen schemes involving the sale of state jobs and contracts which brought Locke and his co-conspirators more than $60,000 from between September 1980 and May 1981.

A spokesman for the Department of Correction said Locke would undergo the routine search, fingerprint and photograph procedure at Walpole and be placed in a segregated "new prisoners" section.

Locke will stay in the unit until a bed opens up at Concord State Prison, where he will undergo a screening process and officials will decide where he will serve out the rest of his time, spokesman Joseph Laddoli said.

The process could take several weeks, he said.

Advice

Doctor is double trouble

DEAR ABBY: Being married to a doctor is hard enough, but being married to a young, good-looking, successful one is double trouble. It's not his patients he gets involved with, it's his office help. After his first affair, I thought I was partly to blame, so I gave him all the attention he needed at home, in bed and elsewhere. But after his affair, I offered him a divorce. He says he really loved me and the last thing he wanted was a divorce. If it were not for my faith and my children, I would have ended my life. Why is he doing this to me? Why can't he fire his secretary? I have talked to her, but, of course, she's too much in love to listen to me. I don't know how much more of this I can take. Should I be doing something more? Marriage counseling might help, but he won't hear of it. Please advise me and pray for this. UNHAPPY DOCTOR'S WIFE

Lean can also suffer gout

DEAR DR. LAMB: About eight months ago my husband was diagnosed with blood tests as having gout. He was put on a special diet to limit his protein intake. The diet has helped to ease the pain but the stiffness and soreness remain. He certainly is not a prime candidate for gout. He is 28 years old, 5 feet 10 and weighs 150 pounds. He fits weights twice a week and plays tennis and racquetball regularly. Gout does not run in his family on either side for five generations, but he had an uncle who was crippled with arthritis by the age of 40. When my husband was 21 he had a vasectomy. Is it possible that those cells that are settling in his joints? Could the deposits in his joints be from the vasectomy rather than protein? I am worried about his future because of his youth; he has gout in all joints except his feet. There is no relationship between gouty arthritis and a vasectomy. The cells that are blocked from the vasectomy do not get loose in the body or settle in the joints. And more recent reports of population studies suggest that a vasectomy poses no important health hazard. You do not have to be fat or eat rich foods or drink to have gout either. Many gout victims, like my husband are even lean and active. Assuming your husband does have gout as a cause of his symptoms (but I am surprised because of the late onset escape involvement) he should be taking medicine to control his uric acid levels, such as Zyloricin. If his uric acid levels are adequately controlled he should be able to avoid most of the complications of gout. I am sending you The Health Letter number 10, Gout, The Uric Acid Disease, for more information. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of the newspaper, P.O. Box 181, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10109. DEAR DR. LAMB: Explain to me why Leechin capsules do help to reduce the fat in the body, turn it into liquid which later is eliminated through the urine? I am taking 200 mg every other day in hopes it will do that. Am I being misled?

Religion helps divorcees

DEAR DR. BLAKER: I am a divorced Catholic woman with two children. I believe religion helps a lot when people are really in trouble. Not long ago I came across these "Ten Commandments for the Formerly Married." I believe every other day I pass them on to my readers. They really helped me. 1. Thou shalt not live in the past. 2. Thou shalt be responsible for thy present and not blame thy past for it. 3. Thou shalt not feel sorry for thyself indefinitely. 4. Thou shalt assume thy just share for thy marriage's dissolution. 5. Thou shalt not try to reconcile thy past and reconstruct thy future by a quick new marriage. 6. Thou shalt not make thy children the victims of thy past mistakes. 7. Thou shalt not try to convince thy children of how terrible and evil the absent parent is. 8. Thou shalt learn all thou canst about being a one-parent family and get on with it. 9. Thou shalt ask others for help when thou needest it. 10. Thou shalt ask God for the wisdom to bury yesterday, create today and plan for tomorrow. DEAR READER: Thank you for the words of wisdom. If other readers have found solutions for dealing with it.

Conference planned

The Board of Christian Education of Trinity Covenant Church will sponsor a Christian Education day this Sunday with students from the Sunday Bible school classes participating in the 8 and 11 a.m. services as singers. An open house for classroom visitation, as well as a coffee time will be from 10:25 to 10:55 a.m. Refreshments will be served during this time. The day will be capped off with an "Old Fashioned Meeting" at 8:30 p.m. It will be an evening service of singing, special music, and testimony, led by Mitt Nilson, assistant pastor. On Tuesday Covenant Women will sponsor an Al Davis concert at 7:30 p.m. Davis, a former prison inmate, will be singing, playing piano and speaking. Everyone is welcome, free-will offering will be taken.

Wallocovering can insulate

BARRINGTON, Ill. (UPI)—A new type of wallcovering is said to have insulating properties. The product has a thin layer of thermo-reflective aluminum under a decorative surface. The combination reduces the heat loss through walls and recycles most of the radiant heat inside the room back into it, says a spokesman for Enertec Systems, Inc., the North American marketing arm of Barmantel, a West German manufacturer. In summer, the spokesman says, the reflective aluminum barrier turns back solar heat, to keep rooms cooler and save energy by allowing higher thermostat settings. The introductory line of ThermoDecor wallcoverings includes 47 designs and colors. They are pretrimmed, washable and stripable.

Ask Hilary

Erik, Olivia and others

Hilary Evans

DEAR HILARY: I'm a fan of Erik Estrada and thought he was terrific when he sang on 'CHIPS'...

DEAR HILARY: Erik has been scoring pilots at this time. He just has fun singing, and says if the 'CHIPS' producers want him to sing again, he'd love to do it.

DEAR PETE: Surprisingly, that was Nancy's first on-camera role. The 24-year-old actress, who received excellent reviews for her performance as a younger incarcerated in a mental institution...

DEAR HILARY: Please refresh my memory and tell me the name of the television series in which John Forster played a single father with three children.

DEAR FELICIA: That series, which was broadcast in 1969-1972, was 'To Rome with Love' and Forsythe played an Iowa college professor who moves to Rome with his three daughters.

DEAR HILARY: I recently heard someone on a radio show say Hal Linden is the only member of the original 'Barney Miller' cast still in the show.

DEAR HILARY: I heard Hilary was going to be made into a movie. Was this the case? When will he be aired? - Gerry Madison, Worcester.

DEAR ROBERT: I agree. He also helps to tell them what you'd like. So here are the addresses: ABC, 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019; NBC, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR HILARY: Does Olivia Newton-John have a sister and are either of them married? - Kris Krugman, Cottage Grove, Wis.

DEAR KRIS: Olivia has an older sister, Rona, whose rocky marriage to Paul McCartney resulted in her leaving her husband in 1967. Olivia is single but has been romantically involved with 25-year-old actor-dancer Matt Lattanzi. They met two and a half years ago at the White House.

DEAR HILARY: I recently saw the CBS movie, 'Marian Rose White,' and thought Nancy Cartwright was excellent. What else has she appeared on? - Pete Davenport, Thornton, Colo.

'Nova advances in NCAA

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Villanova has only had to play two games thus far in the NCAA tournament, but the Wildcats have needed four overtime periods to advance to Sunday's East Regional for the right to join college basketball's Final Four.

Villanova downed Memphis State 76-68 Friday night in overtime.

"These kids never quit," said Wildcat coach Rollie Massimino. "They just come on and keep going. They just feel like they can't lose."

Villanova, 24-7, downed Northeastern 76-72 in triple-overtime to advance to Raleigh. Regulation time ended Friday night with the score tied 63-62 when Memphis State senior Otis Jackson missed a 25-footer at the buzzer.

"I thought it was in..." said Jackson. He said Memphis State coach Dana Kirk had directed him to take the final shot.

"I was looking for a jump shot at the free-throw line. I did know how much time there was, so I shot," he said.

The ball entered the basket and rimmed out.

Memphis State had to play the overtime period and the final five minutes of regulation without freshman Keith Lee, who sat out with five fouls. Lee, who has been averaging 18.5 points per contest, finished Friday with 14 — high for Memphis State.

Villanova scored first in the overtime when John Pinone hit a basket with 4:05 remaining to put the Wildcats ahead 64-62. Phillip Haynes tied it with a basket at 3:40, but Aaron Howard again put Villanova in front 66-64 with 3:13 to go. Memphis State's Gary Taylor managed to tie the game at 66-66, but that was the beginning of the end for the Tigers. Pinone, who led the Villanova scoring with 19 points, hit both ends of a one-and-one combination with 26 seconds remaining to make it 68-66.

"I was pretty confident even though I had missed a few easy shots down the stretch," Pinone said. "I just wanted to get the first one in."

Memphis State turned the ball over when Haynes was called for traveling with 14 seconds left and

Big East quintets shine as BC tops Kansas State

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Freshman Michael Adams came off the bench to score 20 points to help Boston College continue its string of NCAA upsets with a 66-55 victory Friday night over No. 18 Kansas State in the Midwest Regional semifinals.

In the second game of the double-header, No. 5 Missouri faced Houston.

Adams scored 11 of his points in the second half and hit four free throws during a string of eight straight in the final minute by the Eagles that ended Kansas State's season at 23-8. Boston College knocked off San Francisco and No. 2 DePaul in the opening two rounds.

Boston College trailed by five points at the intermission and Kansas State forward Randy Reed

Shootout expected in Mideast match

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Low-scoring games have been the trend in the NCAA Tournament this year but 20th-ranked Louisville and upstart Alabama-Birmingham should put a stop to that in the Mideast Regional finals Saturday.

"It ought to be an up-and-down floor, interesting game to watch," said Louisville coach Denny Crum Friday before putting his Cardinals through a final practice session. "Talent-wise, I think we match up pretty well."

"We'll win Virginia, we had to prepare for Sampson," countered Alabama-Birmingham star guard Oliver Robinson. "But once we break their first line of defense, we're going to take it right to the basket."

Louisville (22-9) goes into the 11:40 a.m. CST nationally televised game playing its best ball in the season. After a 12-8 start, the Cardinals have won 10 of their 11 last 12 games with the only loss at Memphis State (73-62) in the finals of the Metro Conference Tournament.

Crum, who led the Cardinals to the NCAA title two years ago and to the Final Four three times in the last 18 years, said he was not about to give up after the disappointing start.

"I never thought our season was over," he insisted. "I felt with the schedule we played, if we won 18-9 games we'd get a bid."

Alabama-Birmingham Coach Gene Bartow, one victory away from becoming the first coach to lead three different schools to the scored 6 points during the opening 3 1/2 minutes of the second half to help the Wildcats maintain their cushion at 47-42. But two blocked shots by center John Garris and two press-induced turnovers allowed the Eagles to score eight straight points, including three by Jay Murphy, to take a 50-47 lead.

The score was tied on two more occasions, the final time on a 20-foot shot from the right corner by Tyrone Adams. But Tyrone Adams missed two shots from the same spot in the next two possessions and Murphy made the Wildcats pay for it with a basket and two free throws to give the Eagles the lead for good at 50-45.

Tim Jankovich drew Kansas State back to within 61-59 with 2:57 left and the Wildcats had a chance to tie the game after a turnover by Martin Clark. But Michael Adams felled a 3-on-1 fast break by stealing the ball from Ed Galvan and the Eagles were able to improve their record to 22-9 with the final string of free throws.

Kansas State trailed 87 with 24 seconds left, but converted two steals off its own full-court press into baskets by Tyrone Adams and

Celts win 76ers 112-95

BOSTON (UPI) — M.L. Carr's 20 points paced five Boston players in double figures and helped the Celtics to their 14th straight victory Friday night, a 112-95 triumph over the Indiana Pacers.

It was the seventh straight regular-season loss for Indiana in Philadelphia.

All-American guard Eric Floyd and Ewing scored 16 and 15 points respectively in Georgetown's win over Fresno State. Ewing came out in the second half with 12 points.

Miller said the difference between the teams is Ewing. "They have balance plus the big guy," Miller said. "Ewing probably moves better than any center we played this year."

Bullets 108-98

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Spencer Hayward and Rick Mahorn scored 19 points apiece Friday night to lead Washington to its 108-98 decision over the San Diego Clippers.

Washington led 75-69 early in the first period before a 12-4 streak put the Bullets in command 87-73 with 7:56 left. Ballard had six points and Jeff Rutland added a 3-point play during the surge.

Bob Steele who plugged the event recently and mentioned my name, readers have asked what the connection was, apparently having missed his explanation... John Garside has decided to retire from umpiring softball games and Jack Repass will be back calling the games after an abbreviated schedule last season... Candidates for the Greater Hartford Jaycee Connecticut Golf Hall of Fame for 1982 are Frank Sarro, Fred Kasz, Ernie Gerardi and Bob Kay. The latter gets my vote. He's a two-time winner of the Manchester Open plus a nice guy.

Tight race in hoop league

Talk about a close race. Only one and one-half games separate first and fourth place in the Recreation Department's Senior Basketball League standings.

One-half game is the distance between first and second place, and one game is the margin between first and third place in the four-team circuit.

It was the way the clubs stand in the home stretch: Sportsman's Cafe 7-4, Explorers 7-7, Fogarty's 6-7, Irish Gays 8-4.

Georgetown, OSU clash

Current teams set for Western final

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — The NCAA West Regional championship game Saturday between Georgetown and Oregon State features teams that epitomize the current trend in college basketball both favor strong defense and a conservative offense.

Fourth-ranked Oregon State prefers a controlled tempo and likes to spread into a four-corner game to protect a lead. The national scoring champion Georgetown likes to pace the game. The team averages 77.7 points per game, while Oregon State averages 77.7 points per game.

Georgetown uses its 7-foot freshman center Pat Ewing for the same purpose, seeking a mismatch under the basket or hoping opponents will double team him and leave the guards open for outside shots.

Both styles of play have contributed to cutting collegiate per-game scoring to its lowest point since 1952. The national scoring average this year, according to the NCAA, is slightly less than 137 combined points per game.

The trend continued through the first weekend of the 1982 playoffs, with tournament teams scoring just 132.7 points per game between them.

"If this keeps up it will also be the lowest scoring tournament in 30 years," the NCAA said.

West top seed Georgetown and Oregon State both helped keep the average down in the early rounds.

The seventh-ranked Hoyas beat Wyoming 51-43 on March 13 and whipped Fresno State 58-40 Thursday night, limiting combined scoring in each game to less than 100 points.

OSU did about the same, beating Pepperdine 70-51 on March 14 and No. 8 Idaho 60-42 Thursday night.

Turnbull, the No. 5 seed and the favorite in that the top four seeds have been eliminated, eliminated the popular King 6-4, 7-6, her first victory over the 38-year-old veteran in 10 meetings. The loss means King cannot qualify for next week's $300,000 championship in New York.

King, who first played in Boston in 1982, fought back from a one-set, 2-0 deficit to challenge the swift Australian. But she could not sustain her net play, one of her

TPC golf may be slowed by fog

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (UPI)—Hale Irwin, a two-time U.S. Open champ and the winner of last week's Inverrary Classic, shared the second-round lead Friday in the $500,000 Tournament Players Championship with four lesser-known golfers after play was halted for a day with 60 players still on the course.

Early-morning fog delayed the start of Friday's round for more than two hours and only two of the afternoon threesomes were able to finish before it became too dark to continue play.

USF accused of cover up

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—University of San Francisco officials Friday denied a San Jose Mercury News report that they tried to protect their star basketball player, Quintin Dalley, after he was charged with sexually assaulting a female student.

"We have not been able to make any comment because of the gag order," said USF spokesman Ron Brill. "We haven't even been able to defend ourselves. But the university has been insistent in maintaining that no improprieties took place in the handling of the Dalley case."

Within a week of the assault, sex crimes experts say it might have been possible to match blood type and body hair to her attacker. If the victim had been examined at a hospital immediately, there might have been corroborative evidence such as bruises on her throat and traces of semen.

"The victim's father said she returned to her Sacramento home for Christmas break and he could see the bruises, which she said she had shown campus police, on her shoulders, arms and neck."
