Israel may delay Sinai withdrawal

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel may delay its final withdrawal from the Sinai Desert unless Egypt agrees to reaffirm in writing the provisions for Palestinian autonomy in the Camp David accords. The official said Israel asked Egyptian Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali for "assurances in writing in some form or another but in writing, reaffirming Egypt's commitment to the Camp David accords. This is what we asked."

The Israeli official said that the written reaffirmation to the Palestinian autonomy provisions could be in the form of a letter from Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak to Prime Minister Menachem Begin, or could take some other written form. The provisions for Palestinian autonomy were outlined in the Camp David accords of 1978 and were to be filled in by negotiations, but the three-year talks between Egypt and Israel have languished and produced few results. Die-hard squatters ordered evicted from the Sinai won a day's reprieve today because of nationwide memorials for the six million Jews killed during the Nazi occupation of Europe. Egyptian Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali met twice with Begin in Jerusalem Tuesday and said before taking a message from the Israeli prime minister back to President Hosni Mubarak in Cairo, the pullback would take place on time. He said "new ideas" emerged in his talks with Begin, Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Defense Minister Ariel Sharon. The state-run radio said one idea concerned an exchange of messages

Who gets to tax project?

The final site plan for Oakland Heights low and moderate-cost housing off Oakland Street was approved Monday night by the Planning and Zoning Commission, but the file on the application leaves open the question of who will collect the about $400,000 in the one-time sewer connection fees.

The question lies in a letter from Frank Jodanis, water and sewer administrator for the town. He says in the letter that the Eighth Utilities District has exceeded the 500,000 gallons per day of sewage it is entitled to put into the town's disposal plant under terms of a town/district agreement. Normally the district would be able to collect the fees. But its having exceeded capacity, if Jodanis is correct, leaves in air the question of who will collect the sewer connection fees from that part of the housing project that lies in the district's present service area. Some of the project lies within the area now being serviced by the town.

Acting Assistant General Manager Steven R. Werbner said today he has not read the letter from Jodanis and said the question of outlet charges has not been discussed. He said he has scheduled a meeting for this afternoon on the subject. Mayor Stephen T. Penny was not aware of the letter and referred a reporter to the town administration. Town Planner Alan Lamson said his understanding is that some of the project is within and some outside the district's present service area, but he did not know the proportions. Gordon Lassow, president of the district, said his understanding was that there is no limit on sewage it can contribute to the town system. The charge involved is one that is normally levied to pay for the capacity built in to a treatment plant to accommodate future growth. The town charge is $400 per housing unit.

Arnold Lawrence, architect of the housing, told the commission Monday that construction could start as early as late June.

Haig back in U.S.; Britain offers plans

By United Press International Secretary of State Alexander Haig returned to Washington today from "arduous" bargaining with Argentina. Britain said its proposals for averting war over the Falkland Islands appeared unworkable but it would send Foreign Secretary Francis Pym to the United States with new proposals. Haig told newsmen at Andrews Air Force Base he would report to President Reagan on the latest peace proposals which he described as "a compilation of Argentina's attitudes on the crisis by the British government."

OAS meeting today on Argentina claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Organization of American States called a special meeting of its foreign ministers today to hear Argentina's charge that Great Britain is endangering hemispheric peace as a result of the Falklands dispute. The conference was requested Monday by Argentina under the 1947 Rio Treaty on mutual hemispheric defense after Secretary of State Alexander Haig left Buenos Aires for Washington. An earlier Argentine request for a Rio Treaty conference was withdrawn last week to give Haig an chance to succeed in his 2-week-old effort to find a peaceful settlement. Today's OAS meeting could shift

Message spreading Arms debate: peace drive of the 1980s

By Thomas Ferraro United Press International Ground Zero Week is only in its third day but its anti-nuclear message is quickly spreading and may evolve into the biggest peace movement of the 1980s. As activities mounted Monday from Boston to San Francisco, Assistant Senate Democratic leader Alan Cranston said the nuclear arms race debate will be the key issue in political campaigns this fall and the 1984 presidential race. In Des Moines, Iowa, the state senate urged President Reagan to consider "a halt to the nuclear arms race." Similar action was taken earlier by Massachusetts, Oregon, Connecticut, Maine, Vermont, Minnesota and Wisconsin. In Pittsburgh, the City Council adopted a resolution calling for a "mutual and immediate freeze" by the United States, the Soviet Union and other nuclear powers on the development of nuclear weapons "for the future of mankind."

Freeze not issue here yet

While a nuclear arms freeze resolution will go before the voters in Bolton May 10, the issue has not formally surfaced in Manchester, despite the existence of anti-nuclear activists. The Bolton Town Democratic Committee decided Friday by a nearly unanimous vote to support the nuclear arms freeze resolution that will go before the voters at the annual town meeting. Committee Chairman Aloysius J. Ahern said Monday only one person voted against the endorsement and about 20 voted in favor of it. The resolution was approved by the selectmen Wednesday. It was brought up by Selectman Noreen B. Carpenter. In Manchester, town officials said the issue of a nuclear arms freeze has not been brought to the Board of Directors. Dr. Francis Helfrick, a local anti-nuclear activist, said today, he knows of no plans to sponsor such a resolution locally. However, Pat Egan of 50 Marion Drive has said he hopes to get the directors to vote support of the freeze. He said he was also considering petitioning for a townwide referendum on the ques-

Salvador massacre reports probed

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Spokesmen for the U.S. Embassy said they are investigating charges Salvadoran soldiers executed 40 peasants, about half of them women and children.

"We're looking into it, as we're required to do," a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy said Monday, noting a congressional rule requiring U.S. officials to monitor human rights in El Salvador.

Asking for anonymity, the spokesman said the mission had received journalists' reports of the alleged army massacre and will try to check the validity of the charges with peasants who witnessed the slaying.

President Reagan wants to aid the El Salvador regime against Marxist-led rebels but faces congressional opposition to backing a regime accused of massive human rights violations.

Two peasants who said they fled the village of El Estero about 100 miles east of San Salvador in war-torn Morazan province, told foreign journalists visiting the area that army troops Sunday morning killed 40 residents of the village.

Guatemalan rebels say hundreds killed

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — An ousted government official took refuge in the Brazilian Embassy to hide from police and leftist rebels charged the Guatemalan army has massacred hundreds of Indian peasants in the past month.

Former Agriculture Minister Francisco Bobadilla Monday fled to the Brazilian Embassy in Guatemala City only hours after a criminal complaint was filed charging he missed public funds, a government spokesman said.

The spokesman said Bobadilla diverted funds to the campaign of official candidate Amal Guerrero, who won the March 7 presidential election that later was overturned by a military coup.

Leaflet reports Polish strikes

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — An underground leaflet reported there were strikes or demonstrations "all over the country" last week and that dissenters plan an expansion of a clandestine "Radio Solidarity" network.

A military official said today Poles must be taught the basics of Communism in order to avoid dissent and to this end, schooling will be stepped up and Poland will publish a 55-volume edition of Lenin's works.

On the day marking four months of martial law (April 13), strikes lasting from five to 30 minutes took place all over the country," said the April 18 edition of the underground leaflet Druk.

"In some big factories in Warsaw, Solidarity flags were hung and many leaflets were planted up on walls. At the ZWAR radar equipment factory, workers gathered for a few minutes at the main gate for a silent commemorative rally," it said.

The reports of widespread strikes could not be confirmed independently. Druk said it had received unconfirmed reports that there had been "Radio Solidarity" broadcasts similar to the landmark secret broadcast last week in Warsaw in two other cities "and there will be similar broadcasts in Gdansk and Poznan."

Community college employees approve pact

By Nancy Thompson
Herald Reporter

Employees of the state's 12 community colleges, including Manchester Community College, overwhelmingly approved a contract settlement Monday giving them a 9 percent pay hike this year and a bit more than that next year.

Steve Thornton, a staff organizer for the Congress of Community College Employees, said the contract was approved by 90 percent of the approximately 350 union members who attended a meeting Monday at Greater Hartford Community College.

"We're very pleased," Thornton said.

William E. Vincent, president of MCC and a negotiator for the administration in the contract talks, echoed Thornton's belief.

"They approved other higher education contracts so there's no reason they should reject us," he said.

The contract addresses job security and workload issues, which were the main concerns of the union. Stalled talks on those issues led to job actions at several colleges, including a one-day sickout at MCC.

The contract provides 12-month termination notice for staff in case of financial problems, job descriptions for faculty that clearly outline duties, and objective evaluations for non-teaching staff.

The contract also provides average pay increases of 9 percent in 1982-83 and slightly more in 1983-84.

Vincent cited as a victory for the administration a clause which says that teachers will provide the equivalent of 20 percent of their time in non-teaching duties. The clause will allow the schools to administer the faculty more efficiently, he said.

Condo developer has new setback

Developer Barney Peterman, impatient to start construction of condominiums east of Summit Street, met a setback Monday night when the Planning and Zoning Commission found itself unable to approve his final site plan.

The latest snag, apparently coming after a series of delays, is that his plans call for encroaching a bit on the floodway of Bigelow Brook.

The town has been informed that it permits the encroachment but will jeopardize the rights of property owners later on to get federally backed flood insurance when the town adopts a flood plain plan in August.

The commission members appeared to be satisfied with the plan Monday, provided some conditions it had previously set are met in the latest drawings submitted at the meeting. But the possibility that the town's flood insurance position might be jeopardized legally blocked them from acting.

The problem could be solved in two ways. Peterman could avoid filling any part of the floodway of the Brook.

in developments where the PZC gave its approval without reducing the volume of water.

He vetoed with other commission members, however, in favor of the reduction in units.

Commission members agreed the change from Residence A to Planned Residence Development Zone was appropriate, but were clearly opposed to the high density planned and to the closeness of some of the units to neighboring houses.

At the public hearing on the plan April 5, about 50 residents opposed the change, arguing it would create traffic problems and bring a large population suddenly in their back yards.

Some of the residents were represented by Hartford attorney Jeffrey Martin.

The hearing on the excavation permit was one of three held by the commission Monday night.

After the other two, in which no opposition was expressed, it approved a two-year extension of Robert Kierman's permit to operate a bicycle track at the former Nike site and a subdivision into two lots and a parcel of land owned by Marilyn C. Erison on Olcott Street.

A new arraignment date of April 26 has been set for Arthur L. Green, executive director of the state Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities, who was charged with shoplifting deodorant at a supermarket.

Green, a Manchester resident, was to have been presented in Superior Court on Manchester Monday, but the continuance was set after a discussion between Green's lawyer, Philip Steele, and Assistant State's Attorney Cornelius Shea.

Shea said Steele asked about the possibility of dropping the charge and Shea refused.

Steele then asked for the continuance in order to consider options in the case.

One of those options would be to ask for accelerated rehabilitation, a proceeding which first offenders can serve a period of probation after which the charges are dropped.

Any first offender can ask for accelerated rehabilitation, but the court makes the decision.

Manchester police arrested Green April 9 after security guards at Stop & Shop supermarket on West Middle Turnpike told police they saw him put two bottles of deodorant under his coat and attempt to leave the store without paying for them.

Directors see ways to save

By Nancy Thompson
Herald Reporter

Members of the Board of Directors Monday suggested increased cooperation between the senior citizens' center and the Recreation Department as a way to save money.

The directors reviewed the budgets for the Human Services Department, which includes the senior citizens' center, and the Recreation Department at a workshop Monday night.

Director Stephen T. Cassano noted that the budget includes $2,900 for instructors' fees and classes previously coordinated by a part-time activities specialist whose position is being dropped. The person in the position will retire in May.

Cassano said the money budgeted for the instructors' fees will actually be used to put on classes which are similar to some offered by the Recreation Department.

"It seems like a foolish duplication," Cassano said. "We ought to get our act together and combine some of these things."

ROBERT S. Thomson, head of the Recreation Department, said his department has a half-time person to coordinate the cultural arts program. That person is responsible for finding instructors to teach the department's classes. Thomson said that person is now busy all the time.

"We don't have any staff who could go to the senior center and teach," Mayor Stephen T. Penny asked.

"It would be very difficult," Thomson responded.

Thomson said the Recreation Department's coordinator has referred instructors to the senior citizens' center.

Cassano suggested that senior citizens could be transported to recreation centers for the classes.

Hanna Marcus, director of Human Services, said many people come to the center specifically for those activities. People might not participate if they had to go to another site for the programs, she said.

In the past year, Cassano said, the youth counseling agency has taken steps to meet the stipulations set down by the Board of Directors. The agency has raised some of its own funds, cut service to people over 18, and increased visibility in the schools, all actions requested by the Board of Directors.

Since the agency has met the board's conditions, the board should consider restoring funds, Cassano said.

Mrs. Marcus said the total requests for funds from community agencies "far exceed" the 5 percent increase in funds mandated by the town manager.

at the allocation for each agency since some agencies were cut last year and told to make specific changes in their operations in order to qualify for funds this year. He specifically cited Crossroads, which was cut by $20,000 last year.

Director Stephen T. Cassano noted that the budget includes $2,900 for instructors' fees and classes previously coordinated by a part-time activities specialist whose position is being dropped. The person in the position will retire in May.

Cassano said the money budgeted for the instructors' fees will actually be used to put on classes which are similar to some offered by the Recreation Department.

"It seems like a foolish duplication," Cassano said. "We ought to get our act together and combine some of these things."

ROBERT S. Thomson, head of the Recreation Department, said his department has a half-time person to coordinate the cultural arts program. That person is responsible for finding instructors to teach the department's classes. Thomson said that person is now busy all the time.

"We don't have any staff who could go to the senior center and teach," Mayor Stephen T. Penny asked.

"It would be very difficult," Thomson responded.

Thomson said the Recreation Department's coordinator has referred instructors to the senior citizens' center.

Cassano suggested that senior citizens could be transported to recreation centers for the classes.

Hanna Marcus, director of Human Services, said many people come to the center specifically for those activities. People might not participate if they had to go to another site for the programs, she said.

Letter angers Eighth District

A letter from Deputy Mayor Barbara Weinberg to Eighth District Director Gordon Lassow, asking him for information on a reputed campaign among Bryan Farms area residents to have their area annexed by the district, provoked angry denunciations of town officials at the district's Monday night meeting.

Budget negotiators hope for accord today

By Robert Mackay
United Press International

WASHINGTON — By the end of today, budget negotiators hope to have a bipartisan spending plan acceptable to both President Reagan and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker warned if there is no agreement this week, Congress would begin writing its own budget resolution — a move that could lead to chaotic debate in both chambers.

Budget negotiators, who began their talks three weeks ago, planned their final meeting today. House Budget Committee Chairman James Jones, D-Okla., had mixed feelings.

"I don't think there's going to be much trouble for the Republican and Democratic negotiators to agree, but we don't have any way of judging what the president will do," said Jones, one of the negotiators. Senate Finance Committee Chairman Bob Dole, R-Kan., another negotiator, added, "The chances for the success of a compromise package are still 50-50: 50 percent Reagan and 50 percent O'Neill."

White House counselor Edwin Meese said late Monday, "We'll know in the next 48 hours whether a deal has been made on a budget compromise."

"By that time we'll have a general feel if it's going to happen," he told reporters at a state dinner for Queen Beatrix of the Netherlands.

The negotiators include congressional Republican and Democratic leaders and White House chief of staff James Baker. They arranged a final meeting today to try to complete a bipartisan budget compromise that would keep the 1983 deficit, now forecast at $101.9 billion, below $100 billion.

Jones, in an interview Monday on Tulsa radio station KRMG, said, "I hope that certainly by mid-week... 'How could our GOP strategists have gotten themselves into such an incredible pickle?' It asked in its current issue. It said Reagan should decide what he wants, then force the Democrats to accept it, as he did last year."

Baker said the main sticking points in the budget talks are proposals to repeal the third year (1983) of the individual tax cut, reduce Reagan's proposed level of military spending, and to reduce the growth of entitlement programs such as Social Security.

1980 CENSUS FINDINGS

HOUSEHOLD INCOME

Median household income was $16,830 in 1979. Alaska had the highest income at $25,109 and Arkansas had the smallest at $12,156.

EDUCATION

For the first time, more than half the adults over 25 (66.3%) graduated from high school and 17% went to college for at least 4 years.

HOUSING

Costs for all types of housing more than doubled between 1970 and 1980.

LANGUAGE

One American in 10 over the age of 5 spoke a language other than English at home. 48% of them spoke Spanish at home.

Census 'snapshot'

We're richer, smarter

By Elliot Brenner
United Press International

WASHINGTON — During the 1970s, Americans became richer and smarter while the costs of their homes skyrocketed and more women went to work, a Census Bureau "snapshot of the country" shows.

Additionally, the number of one-parent families rose from 12 percent to 19 percent and the number of persons living alone or with someone other than a relative rose from 13 percent to 22.7 percent.

The profile was developed by analyzing 3.5 million of the Census Bureau long forms that were filled out by a sampling of Americans during the 1980 head count.

Among the findings were:

- Median household income was $16,830 for 1979, up 98 percent in a decade but not much different than 1969 when adjusted for inflation. Real per capita income rose 18 percent to $7,313, an increase due to smaller households.
- For the first time, more than half the adults over 25 — 66.3 percent — graduated from high school, and 17 percent went to college for at least four years.
- The number of women in the workforce rose by 46 percent to 44.6 million. The percentage of women in the civilian workforce climbed from 38.1 to 42.7 percent.
- Costs for all types of housing more than doubled between 1970 and 1980.
- Use of electricity for home heating increased markedly, and 225 percent more homes had central air conditioning in 1980 than had it in 1970.
- One American in 10 over the age of five spoke a language other than English at home, and 48 percent of them spoke Spanish at home.
- Public transportation use for commuting to and from work declined.
- Asian families had the highest family incomes and the highest percentage of those graduating from high school.
- "What it is is a snapshot of the country," said Census Bureau Director Bruce Chapman. "A cornucopia of data is coming forth."
- Chapman told a news conference that the data confirms trends signaled in other government surveys.
- During the 1980 census, one household in every five nationwide was asked to fill out a special long form that included dozens of social and economic questions. The findings released Monday was based on the first sampling of the long forms.

Among the states, Alaska had the highest median household income, $25,109, while Arkansas had the smallest, $12,156.

The bureau defines a household as all the people living in a housing unit. Its figures for families, on the other hand, includes only people related by blood, adoption or marriage.

Significant family income differences appear when the data is broken down by race. The median family income nationwide was $19,908. For Asians and Pacific Islanders it was $22,075 (perhaps, analysts noted, because of more workers in a family and a higher than average education level).

For white families, the figure was $20,940, while for families of Spanish origin it was $14,711 and for black families it was $12,618.

In 1979, the report said, 27.5 million Americans were at or below the official poverty line of a cash income of $7,414 or a non-farm family of four. It said that amounted to 12.5 percent of the population compared to 13.7 percent in 1969.

Report says vaccinations may cause brain damage

By Michael J. Conlon
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Hundreds of American children may be left brain damaged and retarded each year by a common vaccination many states require, a year-long investigation concluded.

The "DPT shot" — which protects children against diphtheria, pertussis (whooping cough) and tetanus — may be dangerous because the whooping cough component is of poor quality, according to the report, which was prepared by the report, prepared by NBC-owned WRC-TV in Washington.

The Department of Health and Human Services had no immediate comment.

John Robbins of the Food and Drug Administration's Bureau of Biologics, was quoted in the report as saying the risk of whooping cough still outweighs any side effects the vaccine may have.

Most states require DPT shots be administered, beginning as early as two months of age, as a prerequisite for admitting children to school.

However 20 states now offer parents the option of skipping the vaccination.

The report said a little-noticed 197 government-funded study by the UCLA Medical Center found one in every 700 children suffer a convulsion or go into shock following the vaccination — an indication of probable brain damage.

As many as one in every 13 children may suffer lesser reactions, it added.

In Britain, where the DPT shot is no longer mandatory, a compensation program has been set up to provide financial assistance to children disabled by the vaccine.

Reporter Lea Thompson who authored the report said, based on the numbers of British children eligible for compensation, there are, probably, 272 American children left severely disabled and retarded by the vaccine each year.

Gordon Stewart, an epidemiologist at the University of Glasgow, was quoted as saying the whooping cough component of the vaccine is a "crude brew" on which no improvement has been made in at least 40 years.

And Robert Mendelsohn, former head of the pediatric department at the University of Illinois Medical School, added, the vaccine is "probably the poorest and most dangerous vaccine we now have...."

"The statistics of this country are wrong, and the danger is far greater than any doctors here have ever been willing to admit," he said.

Whooping cough itself is a killer.

Mrs. Thompson said the investigation found many doctors and nurses misinformed about the vaccine's risks and most adverse reactions not being reported.

Actress accepts cancer, wants to keep working

INGRID BERGMAN... accepted her fate

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cancer has made actress Ingrid Bergman too weak to perform on stage anymore, but she says she still wants to make movies.

The three-time Academy Award winner and star of the classic "Casablanca" recently finished a film in which she plays former Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir and hopes to make other movies.

In an interview published in the May issue of McCall's magazine she says she's accepted her disease and wants to get the most out of the rest of her life.

"Time is shortening," she said, "but every day that I challenge this cancer and survive is a victory for me and I am thankful for it."

Miss Bergman, 66, has had two radical mastectomies, other surgery and radiotherapy to combat the cancer.

"I have accepted it," she said, "and will make the most of what's left of my life while I can. Cancer victims who don't accept their fate, who don't learn to live with it, will only destroy what little time they have left."

"Six months ago I announced my retirement," Miss Bergman said. "I thought my acting days were over. But just look — I've completed a strenuous four-hour film that has been an acting challenge from beginning to end."

"I honestly didn't think I had it in me," Miss Bergman said. "But it has been a wonderful experience, as an actress and as a human being who is getting more out of life than expected."

Miss Bergman won Oscars for best actress for her performances in "Gaslight" in 1944 and for "Anastasia" in 1956. She won another Academy Award for best supporting actress in 1974 for "Murder on the Orient Express."

U.S. neutrality on Falklands upsets Britons

LONDON (UPI) — Britons, noting their solid support from European allies, say the U.S. failure to condemn the Argentine invasion of the Falkland Islands raises questions about Washington's reliability in future crises.

"Principle dictates that America should support Britain," said Monday's Daily Telegraph. "The leader of the free world cannot equivocate about the rights and wrongs of unprovoked aggression."

But "to date," commentator Peregrine Worsthorne said with British understatement, "the Reagan administration has not reacted as helpfully to the British cause as might have been expected from an ally."

In conversation, in newspaper editorials, in letters to the editor, in radio and television commentaries, the theme is universal — Americans don't seem to know who their real friends are.

"How can the president refer to the parties as his two friends?" asked Charles T. Harris of Ramsgate.

Monday's Daily Mirror covered two pages with American press comment on the theme. The sharp contrast between American neutrality and solid European Common Market support caused deeper worries.

"Reagan's attitude raises the question of how much we can depend on the United States' active support when the chips are down," said S.J. Laven of Sandhurst.

"If the Americans fail to support their allies in the face of Argentine aggression," said John Power of Mystole, "how can the North Atlantic Alliance have confidence in their performance in the event of some more serious aggression?"

The normally jingoistic Daily Express tried to reassure Britons. Washington "has been leaning on (Argentina with all the weight of diplomatic arm twisting (it) can put together."

British marines 'want to go back' Officer: Men ready to die

LONDON (UPI) — The commander of the 22-man British marine detachment captured when Argentine forces invaded the Falklands said he believes they killed 103 Argentines and wounded at least 20 in the fighting.

"All my men were prepared to die and did not want to surrender," Lt. Keith Mills said. "I only decided to call it a day while all were still alive and vastly outnumbered. All want to go back."

He said his men damaged an Argentine warship and downed one military helicopter, while only one British marine was wounded. The Argentines have admitted three of their men were killed in the fighting April 3 on South Georgia, a dependency of the Falklands.

Mills, 22, told a news conference: "We were up against two Argentine warships, three helicopters and hundreds of Argentine marines. My opinion is we killed at least 10-15 and injured at least 20. One of our men suffered two wounds in his upper arm. That was our only casualty."

Mills said the British marines were taken aboard the Argentine naval auxiliary Bahia Paraiso to Puerto Belgrano — a 10-day trip. Later they were flown to Montevideo, Uruguay and returned to Brize Norton air base near Oxford early today.

Mills, sun-tanned and slender, wearing a khaki sweater and trousers and a green Royal Marine commando beret, said the battle started when an Argentine corvette steamed into Grytviken bay on South Georgia and called on the marines to surrender, while a French-built Alouette helicopter flew overhead.

"We took cover in a position I had chosen about 100 meters (110 yards) off the beach," Mills said. "We came under fire and I gave orders to engage. Another helicopter came down trailing smoke and no one landed from it."

Mills said the corvette and Alouette helicopter returned.

"We engaged the corvette with antitank rockets. One struck it below the waterline, damaging it badly," he said.

"The ship headed out to sea again and we engaged it with everything we had," Mills said. "Later we were told we scored 1,275 hits. The fight continued another 15 minutes. When I saw our retreat was cut off and I saw our men being hit, I decided I would withdraw without incurring heavy casualties."

Captured Hungarian spy no threat to James Bond

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Attila the spy, says the FBI, would not have won the James Bond seal of good espionage, burdened as he was with a password that made no sense and the name of his control on a piece of paper in his pocket.

But clumsy work was no what brought the Hungarian Military Intelligence Service to grief under the Confederate War Memorial in Augusta. It was doomed by a U.S. soldier by the name of Janos Szmolka.

It was typified by the password Gilbert had to use to identify himself to Szmolka Saturday.

He had to walk up to the soldier — who was in civilian dress — under the monument and say in his heavy accent: "Where is the Peachtree Plaza Hotel? I am out of town; I am from Lincolnton." Little was known about Gilbert, whose name apparently was Anglicized from Gyepes. His court-appointed attorney said he became an American citizen in 1952. He told the court he was divorced, received his mail at his sister's house in Forest Hills, N.Y., and hadn't had a job since he worked at a Manhattan business supply firm in 1960. But he admitted he traveled extensively in the United States and abroad.

Gilbert stood quietly with his shoulders slumped and his hands clasped behind him as U.S. Magistrate John Dunsmore told him he would not be allowed back because espionage is "the most serious crime a person can be charged with besides murder."

If convicted of the charges, he could be sentenced to life in prison, or death.

Nixon never drunk, Kissinger responds

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon was never drunk while facing crucial decisions, former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said in response to a report in The Atlantic magazine.

In an interview Monday, Kissinger also said Secretary of State Alexander Haig has "done a heroic job trying to avoid war" in mediating the Falkland Islands crisis.

During a taping of the "Phil Donahue Show," Kissinger, the secretary of state under Nixon and Gerald Ford, related charges published in the May issue of The Atlantic that Nixon was frequently drunk at critical times.

During the hour-long interview, the Nobel Peace Prize winner talked of his newest book, "Years of Upheaval" about Nixon's second term in office.

"The point of the book, he said, was 'we went to Vietnam with good motives, but overestimated our resources and stayed more than our political situation could bear.'

"We tore our country apart," he said, adding the peace movement in this country "shared responsibility" with the government for the schism.

Protein drink may control cholesterol

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A soy protein drink can lower high cholesterol levels and provide an easy, low-risk treatment for cholesterol buildup — a major factor in heart disease, a new study shows.

In research at the University of Western Ontario, the soy drink — substituted for milk — significantly lowered high blood cholesterol levels in five people. Dr. Nina Mercer said Monday.

Dr. Mercer presented the test results at a meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

Although she stressed the need for further study, Dr. Mercer said the drink may provide a convenient treatment for high cholesterol levels, which have been identified as a major factor in the development of heart disease.

Coronary heart disease is the leading cause of death in the United States and Canada.

"It's relatively risk-free and it's simple," she said. "If it isn't simple, the individual usually will not stick with it."

"It wasn't a hard change for most people to make. The soy drink is not an unpleasant product. Its palatability is good and you can treat it just like you treat milk."

During the study, the soy protein drink was substituted for cow's milk. Half the study group was given the protein drink and half was given milk. After two weeks, the groups switched drinks.

There was no significant difference in the cholesterol levels of the study group taken as a whole, Mercer said. But people who began the study with "very high" cholesterol counts showed a 15 to 18 percent reduction.

"In the future, I think it could be a promising treatment," she said, "but I have to reserve judgment until we study it in a clinical situation."

The fact that the soy drink did not decrease cholesterol in people with normal levels was not surprising, Mercer said, because drastic dietary changes are required to drop normal cholesterol counts.

The study was funded by the Canadian Heart Foundation and the Ontario Human Nutrition Research Council.

Now boss knows why sales rose

MANCHESTER, Mo. (UPI) — An 18-year-old salesman impressed his bosses with high sales figures but police determined he had been buying his own merchandise with proceeds from robberies.

Brian Collar of Florissant, Mo., was charged with first-degree robbery and held Monday in lieu of $30,000 bond at the St. Louis County Jail in Clayton. Other warrants were being sought.

Police said Collar bought his own products as a way to boost his commission and impress his boss.

"He told us whenever he had a bad day, he would buy the products himself," Detective Sgt. Russell Schnarr said.

Michael Owens, Collar's supervisor at Wholesale Dynamics of suburban Hazelwood, which markets a wide variety of products, including luggage, dishes, and toys and games, said the youth was "a shy young guy" and a good worker.

Winter storms won't give up

By Dana Walker
United Press International

The calendar said April but a near-blizzard left the Northern Plains under almost a foot of snow today, prompting a round of Christmas carols from spring vacationers in Minnesota.

Thunderstorms, tornadoes and baseball-size hail tossed mobile homes and caused the collapse of a department-store roof in 13 South.

The National Weather Service dubbed Monday's snow, whipping winds, hail, thunderstorms and rains "a not uncommon springtime surprise" but the assessment didn't make conditions any more bearable for people weary of the wintertime weather.

The Northern Plains was hit again with near-blizzard conditions that struck the Dakotas with 10 inches of snow, parts of the upper Midwest with nearly a foot and coated roads in Wyoming and North Dakota with ice.

Forecasters said the persistent winter weather would spread southward, plunging Missouri and Kansas into icy cold today.

Silver Bay in northeast Minnesota reported 9 1/2 inches of snow and there were 8 inches at Two Harbors. More snow was reported on the way by nightfall.

A choir group from Spring Lake Park High School staying at a Lutsen, Minn. lodge for a spring vacation retreat sat around a fireplace singing, "It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas" and managers of the resort turned on Christmas trees lights to get people in the holiday mood.

"Most everybody stayed put," Silver Bay Police Chief Don Sues said. "We got about 12 inches. It's a real bummer."

Light snow was forecast for Chicago and a travelers advisory for eastern Wisconsin and much of upper Michigan.

Thunderstorms and high winds swirled through the mid-South from central and northeast Texas to Mississippi Monday, spreading heavy rain and hail. Tornadoes were spotted in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi, but no major damage or injuries were reported.

Thunderstorms that dumped up to 2 1/2 inches of rain on the southern part of Nacogdoches County, Texas, in a period of a half an hour caused street flooding in Nacogdoches, Douglas and Woden.

Flash-flood watches were in effect over parts of north Texas, Mississippi and Louisiana.

The roof of a Tuscaloosa, Ala., department store collapsed under heavy rain just minutes after the store had closed Monday night.

None of the employees still inside was hurt, but the second floor was flooded, officials said.

"The store closes at 9 (p.m.) so all the shoppers were out," said Pam Mayhew, member of the Civil Defense search and rescue team.

"The employees were still in there but no on got hurt," said Pam Mayhew. Baseball-sized hail fell near Dallas and in Mississippi high winds blew down power lines and knocked trailer homes from their blocks.

Winds gusting to 40 mph and 10 inches of heavy, blowing snow created near-blizzard conditions in Kildare, N.D. A half-foot of snow covered Regard and Mott and 5 inches fell at Dickinson.

State police said temperatures dropped to 2 degrees at Meacham, Ore., early Monday and Portland reported a low of 21, breaking the record low for the date, set in 1966, by one degree.

The latest snowfall sealed Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.'s all-time record for April snow, bringing to 24.1 inches the month's total. The previous record was 19.2 inches set in April 1979.

Democrats delay party lever vote

HARTFORD (UPI) — Democratic leaders in the Senate succeeded in postponing action to eliminate party levers on voting machines after it appeared the measure might pass.

The Senate voted 16-15 Monday to amend the resolution to cover voting machines in all elections, not just statewide races.

When Democratic leaders saw that count, they moved to postpone a vote on the whole bill. Several Democrats were absent from the chamber at the time. The motion to postpone the vote passed 17-14.

Party levers favor the majority party in a state — in Connecticut's case Democrats — because voters tend to vote for a party's entire slate in using the lever.

Paramedics topic for MMH auxiliary

The proposed paramedics program for the town will be the topic of discussion at the annual meeting of the Manchester Memorial Hospital Auxiliary, Monday at noon at Glastonbury Hills Country Club.

Ronald Kraatz, deputy director of the Manchester Health Department, and Irene Smith, staff nurse in the emergency room at Manchester Memorial, will be the guest speakers.

They will address such questions concerning the paramedics program as: Why do we need it when we are so close to the emergency room? What costs and service options are there? and What about 911, the present EMS, and the proposed paramedics program?

Kraatz has been with the town's health department for 10 years and recently was selected, as one of 24 people nationwide, for the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Inter-government Management Program. He received his master's degree in public administration from the Washington Public Affairs Center in Washington, D.C.

Senate OKs 'right to die'; measure heads to House

HARTFORD (UPI) — Terminally ill patients could refuse treatment to prolong their lives by artificial means under a "right to die" bill approved by the state Senate.

"This bill is a simple recognition of the human condition that there is a time to be born and a time to die," said Sen. William Rogers, R-Southbury, who has introduced the measure, which in past years has failed to win approval from both houses of the Legislature, cleared the Senate Monday on a 27-7 vote and was sent on to the House.

State Sen. Carl A. Zinsser, Manchester, voted favor of the "right to die" measure.

The House also passed and sent to the Senate a bill that would require motorists to use car seats for all children under the age of 4. Violation would be an infraction punishable by a maximum $50 fine.

Sen. Regina Smith, D-North Branford, the Legislature's most vocal anti-abortion advocate, said the "right to die" bill was unnecessary because patients already can refuse treatment.

She said people might abuse a patient's "living will."

"Flags, so to speak, are being pulled in hospitals every single day," Mrs. Smith said.

Sen. Eugene Skowronski, D-Derby, said she had a 100-year-old uncle now confined to a nursing home who had a pacemaker implanted when he suffered a heart attack two years ago.

"In his most lucid moments, he asks: 'Why did the doctors do this to me?'"

Under the bill, a will directing doctors not to apply artificial life-sustaining treatment would have to be witnessed by two people who know the person but are not related, wouldn't inherit anything in case the person dies and are not responsible for the person's medical bills.

The proposal would require a doctor who refuses to go along with the patient's wishes to turn the case over to another physician. For insurance purposes, the right-to-die would not be considered suicide.

After the bill was passed, an unidentified woman seated in the Senate gallery shouted that it would lead to the death of the mentally ill and mentally retarded. Capitol security guards escorted the woman out of the chamber.

The child-restraint proposal, if approved by the House, would make Connecticut the 10th state in the country to adopt such a law. The Senate approved it 31-4 over the objections of opponents who said it went too far.

"What we're trying to do here is legislate parental common sense," said Sen. Eugene Skowronski, D-Derby.

Police quiz slaying suspect
FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — New York police and the FBI rumbled Kentucky today to question a man who was arrested in a van believed to be the getaway vehicle in the slayings of a federal witness and three CBS employees trying to save her.

Police refused to say whether Donald Nash of Keansburg, N.J., was a suspect in the slayings. He was arrested Monday when Kentucky authorities learned he was wanted in New York for failing to appear April 13 on a forgery charge.

New York police said Nash was being held in the Franklin County Jail in Frankfort on a fugitive warrant, while authorities from New York tried to extradite him today.

A statement by New York City police said detectives and the FBI would travel to Kentucky to investigate any possible connection between Donald Nash, also known as Bowers, the vehicle he was driving, and the CBS murder case.

Margolis, in turn, claimed Miss Barbera had taken $1 million in gems from the company safe, and demanded $100,000 for their return.

Decision due on complaint at Meadows

An arbitrator's judgment on a sexual harassment complaint against an employee at Meadows Convalescent Home is expected by Friday, a union official said today.

Wayne DeCapua, an organizer for District 1190 of the New England Health Care Employees Union, swears a hearing on the complaint filed by female employee of the home took place Monday afternoon.

DeCapua said the hearing began at 3:20 p.m. and ended at 9:30 p.m. The union presented nine witnesses to testify that Charles Blanchard, a supervisor, sexually harassed them.

At a press conference last week, female employees of the home charged that Blanchard followed them around at work and made lewd comments.

DeCapua said Blanchard testified in his own defense. Blanchard was the only witness for the defense, DeCapua said.

Blanchard was suspended from his job several weeks ago after the women filed the complaint. He was briefly reinstated, then suspended again last week after the women made their complaint public.

DeCapua said the union and the home's management agreed to abide by the decision of the arbitrator, Wendy Susco of the University of Connecticut Law School.

Philip Viner, chief administrator for the home, could not be reached to confirm that agreement today.

DeCapua said Ms. Susco promised to have the decision written by Wednesday and mailed to both sides. DeCapua said he expects to know Ms. Susco's recommendation on whether Blanchard should be fired by Friday morning.

"Even if the recommendation doesn't make us happy, we will follow it," he said. "We feel very confident that it will go in our favor."

"We're pleased that Meadows is cooperating and doing everything in their power to resolve this."

Police, bus, pothole
Second place man offset obstacles
BOSTON (UPI) — When Minnesota Dickie Beardsley decided to train for the grueling Boston Marathon by running over the hot hills of Georgia, he figured that would be enough to overcome any adversity on the 26.2 mile course.

Beardsley didn't count on accidentally being knocked over by a police officer, getting brushed by a bus, pulling a hamstring near the finish or stepping in one of the city's infamous potholes.

But the thin man, 5-11 and 128 pounds, overcame that and the warm spring day Monday to finish second, two seconds behind world record holder Alberto Salazar of Maryland, Mass., and Eugene Ore. Beardsley ran 2:08:33, enough to push Salazar to a record, beating Yoshihiko Seko's 2:09:26 a year ago.

Beardsley's time was the fifth best ever recorded in the world.

"I wanted to win really bad, but there will be another time," Beardsley said shortly after almost chasing Salazar down. "We both went at it head to head from the start to the end."

Less than a mile from the finish, Beardsley said he pulled a hamstring in his leg and "it hurt like hell." That's when Salazar pulled away by 15 yards.

But not much farther ahead, Beardsley stepped into a pothole and he said "that stretched my leg out," and he picked up his pace to finish three minutes ahead of his marathon time of a year ago.

Krafter's meet
Koffee Krafter of the Nutmeg Branch of the YWCA will meet Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to noon at 78 N. Main St. Projects will be completed and new projects will be displayed.

Hostesses will be Gladys Harrington and Gertrude Johnson. Babynitting is available for those who call the office at 647-1437 in advance.

The group is open to anyone interested in making crafts. Participants must be members of the YWCA and the Koffee Krafter.

To pay respects
Members of the Manchester WATERS will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St. to pay respects to the late Helen Lynch, whose granddaughter is a member of the club.

Strong relief pitching key in Eagles' victory
Strong relief pitching from Tim Kiro and six Bulkeley errors provided East Catholic with a 6-3 win over the Bulldogs in non-conference baseball action yesterday at Hartford's Colt Park.

The Eagles, 2-1, were to resume play this morning at 11 o'clock with a make-up tilt against Bloomfield High at Eagle Field.

Kiro, junior right-hander, has relieved in East's first three starts and has a win, loss and save. He relieved starter and winner Mike Byam, 1-0, in the fifth inning with two outs with the tying and go-ahead runs at second and third.

The Eagle twirler fanned Bulkeley's Tommy Gonzalez to maintain the East lead and hurled hitless ball the final two stanzas to preserve the triumph.

"I had to give Kiro credit," remarked East Coach Jim Penders, who noted the youngster wasn't figured prominently in the pre-season pitching plans.

"It was his third appearance in three games and he looked impressive."

East scored in four of the seven innings and Bulkeley miscues were contributing factors in each stanza.

The Eagles tallied their first run in the third. Tom Furlong laced a two-out single, stole second and scored on Doug Bond's RBI single up the middle. Bond stole second, the second of seven East stolen bases, and took third on the throw into centerfield. He had to hold at third as Paul Roy's vicious shot up the middle struck the umpire. Roy was credited with a single but the run did not score.

Bulkeley had a big threat in the second when Kiro took East out of the field as Paul Roy's vicious shot up the middle struck the umpire. Roy was credited with a single but the run did not score.

Bulkeley tallied twice in the fifth but Kiro took East out of further danger. He walked two and banded three in his 2 1/3-inning stint. Byam worked 4 2/3 innings and yielded all four Bulldog safeties. He walked four and fanned one.

"Byam pitched better this outing but he's still struggling. He's behind hitters and that's not him," Penders remarked.

East had five hits opposite for Bulkeley. The wins was blowing it. It was the complete opposite of Saturday. It was a tough day to hit," Penders noted.

Baseball lost top-grade scout

All too few men are engaged in professions today that they really don't like.

One man who loved every minute of his work and achieved a lifetime ambition to be in major league baseball, in any capacity, was Porter Blinn.

The South Windsor native died last Saturday from a short illness at the age of 62.

Blinn, a graduate of Manchester Trade School, where he started with the baseball team as a catcher, was the New England supervisor of scouting for the Cincinnati Reds of the National League. His territory also included southeastern Canada.

For nearly a dozen years, Blinn was with the Cincinnati organization, not as merely a "bird-dog" or part-time scout but on the payroll as a 12-month employee.

It was a routine year for Blinn to travel 50,000 miles looking at talent in the United States, college and minor league talent or conducting tryout camps.

When the Reds were enjoying their championship and near-championship seasons during the period of 1972 thru 1981 with five first place finishes, five second place finishes and one third, Blinn spent the last month of each season scouting the possible American League World Series foe.

"It's a great life," he told me one day at Fenway Park in Boston.

"I wouldn't trade this job for anything in the world," Blinn told me one day when our paths crossed in Cincinnati.

After one year with Philadelphia, Joe Bowen, director of scouting for the Phillies, having met Blinn in his travels, asked the one-time tobacco farmer and later oil dealer if he would be interested in a fulltime job with the Reds.

"The rest is history."

"This job was really a dream that came true," Blinn said. "Two of the big pluses are spring training in March and the World Series in October."

One of Blinn's finds is Paul Houserholder, a manager of the outfield and one of the National League's brightest rookies.

"(Dan) Driessman was watching us work with a number of young players at a tryout camp in Dorra, Pa., when he came down out of the stands and asked if he could hit a few balls. Wow, did he ever open our eyes. We signed him on the spot," Blinn told me before his illness.

Ken Griffey was signed to a contract that cost the Reds only $24,000, was car fare.

Blinn has a gifted eye for talent and nothing pleased him more than to see his "finds" making good in the big show with the Redlegs.

Men like Porter Blinn don't come down the path everyday.

He was the type man you treasured as a friend.

Salazar appreciated Beardsley's efforts

BOSTON (UPI) — After 26 miles, it all came down to a glance over the shoulder.

It was a gesture of praise from Alberto Salazar, one that told Dick Beardsley he appreciated the noble effort.

But it was also a signal from Salazar that his body was about to go into overdrive, a look which told Beardsley that, while he ran well for 26-plus miles, the final 200 yards would not belong to him.

Grimacing with every step down the stretch and later to need three intravenous feedings due to heat loss, Salazar had the kick down the stretch when it counted. Beardsley, the blistering pace-setter who had been stalked by Salazar the last eight miles, did not.

What is most remarkable about Monday's 86th running of the Boston Marathon is that these two runners, on a day decidedly unfavorable for such achievement, ran the fourth and fifth fastest marathons of all time and shattered (by 35 and 33 seconds) the previous best mark in the race's storied history.

What also is startling is that the third-place finisher, John Lodwick, was never in contention the whole race and finished a shade more than three minutes (or about 1-1/2 mile) behind the top two.

Salazar, the 28-year-old who is rapidly becoming the most versatile and gifted road runner in the world, finished in 2 hours, 8 minutes and 51 seconds. Beardsley, who lives in a 100-year-old log cabin in Rush City, Minn., but had trained for Boston in Georgia, finished in 2:09:26.

The two-second differential tied the closest finish in the race's history. Blinn had had Salazar and Lodwick, but he had Salazar and Lodwick.

"I would have caught a 2:08 through 20 miles, especially today," said Salazar's father, Jose, who had said earlier his son's temperature had dropped to 88 degrees. "He said he suffered more today than ever before. But he never thought of quitting."

The women's division produced an unexpected champion in West German's Charlotte Teske, who, like Salazar, had stalked the leader through 20 miles. But the leader in this case, Norway's Grete Waitz, never made it to the finish. She developed muscle cramps, dropped out at the 22-mile mark.

His body temperature rose that time, some said, to 108 degrees. It looked so bleak the last rites were read. But even that could not compare to Monday.

"He told me that never in his life had he made an effort like today," said Salazar's father, Jose, who had said earlier his son's temperature had dropped to 88 degrees. "He said he suffered more today than ever before. But he never thought of quitting."

Hawks' Denis Soward flying

By Roberto Dias
UPI Sports Writer

Time flies and so does Denis Soward. The speedy Chicago center probably isn't an expert on his team's playoff history and doesn't really remember the last time a Black Hawk player scored a hat trick in a post-season game—he was but 12 years old then. Nine years have passed since Pat Martin scored three times as Chicago nevertheless lost to Pittsburgh in a 1973 playoff game. But Monday night, Soward scored three times and his Black Hawk teammates rallied from a two-goal deficit to post a 7-4 victory over the visiting St. Louis Blues, giving the Windy City contingent a commanding 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven quarterfinal series. Chicago will advance to the semifinals should the Black Hawks triumph in Game 5 of the series, to be played Wednesday night in the St. Louis Checkerdome. Undoubtedly, that's just what Soward wants.

Getting the hat trick won't mean as much to him as getting (in-to) the Stanley Cup finals," commented Soward, who leads the Hawks with six playoff goals as he scored two in the opening period and added another during the final-period rally. But St. Louis Coach-General Manager Emile Francis credited Tom Lysiak, Soward's linemate, as being the significant difference in the game. "He's the key to their power play, and again tonight we didn't do well on our power play," Francis said. "Lysiak hit Soward where he can shoot."

The Hawks have won all the playoff games this season in which they have been outshot, but Chicago scored the game's last five goals, proving "how much character we have," according to Bailey. "When we got down 4-2 (in the second period), we didn't give up, and we showed a lot of character," Bailey said. "On my first goal, they were really jammed in there and I was pretty lucky to get it in."

Denis Soward's first goal in the Rangers game since last October 14, but suffered a leg injury and was replaced in the second period by Steve Weeks with the Rangers' second goal at 17:59. "We're not out of this yet," said the Blues' Larry Patey said. "All it means is that we have to win a game here and win the two back home."

In other NHL playoff games, the New York Islanders defeated the New York Rangers 5-3, the Quebec Nordiques blasted the Boston Bruins 7-2 and Vancouver downed Los Angeles 5-4.

At New York, Duane Sutter sniped a 3-2 tie with a goal at 12:27 of the third period and Butch Goring added an empty net score with 35 seconds left to win the game. The Islanders now have a 2-1 lead in games in the quarterfinals series with the Rangers and can advance with a victory Wednesday night at the Nassau Coliseum in Uniondale, N.Y. John Davidson made his first start in the Rangers game since last October 14, but suffered a leg injury and was replaced in the second period by Steve Weeks with the Rangers' second goal at 17:59.

The Canucks can clinch the Smythe Division championship series with a victory in Game 5 Wednesday in Vancouver. The Kings' Richard Brodeur, who entered the game having allowed only eight goals in the first three games of the series, scored two goals and broke the Bruins' 2-0 lead with a goal at 1:05. The series will continue at Boston Garden for Game 5 Wednesday and will return to Quebec for Game 6 Friday.

Goulet scored back-to-back goals — one short-handed — during a two-minute span of the second period to power Quebec to a 5-0 lead. At Inglewood, Calif., Ivan Boldirev scored two goals and added an assist and Vancouver held off a Los Angeles comeback bid to down the Kings, giving the Canucks a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven playoff series.

The Canucks can clinch the Smythe Division championship series with a victory in Game 5 Wednesday in Vancouver. The series will continue at Boston Garden for Game 5 Wednesday and will return to Quebec for Game 6 Friday.

At Montreal, Gary Matthews and Bo Diaz had run-producing singles in the second inning to back the third-pitching Larry Christenson and the Philadelphia Flyers to a 2-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in a 6-5 loss for the Philadelphia Phillies.

What's focusing more attention on this decidedly uncharacteristic calamity is that the Phils rewarded him with a rich new contract last week making him one of those elite million-dollar-a-year ballplayers. That was done only a day or so before he turned 41.

You can debate all you like over whether any ballplayer is worth that kind of money, but nobody can argue that Pete Rose is being overpaid. They can't argue with me, anyway. And I don't care what he's hitting. How about what he has hit for the past 19 years? Or how much he has given all during that time every single day he has put on the uniform? How do you put a price on that?

Although he's always worrying about it, Rose isn't minding himself to death over his average, simply because he's a prime believer in the work ethic, he works on his hitting harder and more diligently than any man this side of Ty Cobb, and he has complete confidence in his ability to get himself straightened out sooner or later.

Two years ago is a good sense of self-pity. "It's possible I can hit .210. Anything's possible. But if that happens, I can assure you it won't be because of my age. I feel no different today than I did 10 years ago and that's the God's truth. You know that injury I got playing tennis just before spring training started? They tried to say that had something to do with my age. It had nothing to do with my age at all. I had been hitting the ball for an hour when it happened. It was the second set I had played that day and I'm at the net where I make a quick move and pull a muscle. I guarantee you the same thing might've happened to anyone on this ballclub and I don't care how young or how good a condition he's in."

Cougar buried by Rhody nine

By Bob Papet

Pummeling two pitchers for 17 hits, the Community College of Rhode Island dominated the Manchester Community College, 13-1, yesterday at Cougar Field. Joe Zalobowski had the big hit in the contest when his inside-the-park grand slam homer gave the visitors a 5-0 lead in the second inning. The most crucial blow of the day, however, came before the first pitch was thrown when Rhode Island's lefthanded hitting John Jackson pulled a batting practice offering into the sugar dugout and off of the kneecap of scheduled starting pitcher Ken Hill.

Hill suffered a bone bruise and had to be scratched from the lineup, forcing Cougar Coach Gene Spaziani to start Alan Tager on the mound. Tager, working on only one day's rest, lasted four innings in dropping his first decision after three previous triumphs. The loss gave the Cougars a 7-5 mark while Rhode Island stands 2-2. It was MCC's eighth contest in five days. MCC hopes to rebound today in Waterbury when it takes on Post Junior College in a 3 o'clock match-up.

The Cougars garnered only four hits off Rhode Island hurler Jeff Francis. Two were off the stick of centerfielder Ken D'Attilio, who leads the Cougars with a .372 batting average. Francis walked two, fanned two and hit three batters. MCC plated its lone run in the seventh as Bob Desaulniers tripled with two outs and scored on an outfield fly.

NBA playoffs starting tonight

By Jeff Hassen
UPI Sports Writer

Perhaps the only words recorded more than "mini-series" by an NBA coach is "pink slip."

Last year, the Houston Rockets stunned Los Angeles on their way to the championship series and the defeat probably meant the beginning of the end for Laker Coach Paul Westhead.

The Denver Nuggets, whose early-season woes made their playoff hopes all but a fairy tale, hope to fit into this year's Cinderella slipper. "Phoenix is a tough team for us to play," said Denver Coach Doug Moe as his team prepared to fly west to the Suns tonight in Game 1 of a Western Conference mini-series. "But we're thrilled to be playing them. They're a very good team, and they'll be tough no matter what. As far as I'm concerned, it comes down to how well we hold our own on the boards."

Dan Issel and forwards Alex English and Kiki Vandeweghe each averaged more than 20 points during the season and as a team the Nuggets averaged 125.5 points, the highest since Philadelphia averaged 125.1 points in 1982.

With the three guards they've got (Kyle Macy, Dennis Johnson and Walter Davis), defense will probably be one of their priorities. "Dan Issel. 'It will come down to how well we do defensively,'" Phoenix Coach John MacLeod thinks the series will be intense. "We're playing a team that hasn't been in the playoffs in three years."

Dent or Smalley eyed Angels need shortstop with Burleson ailing

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) -

Scotching reports that the California Angels are trying to get either Bucky Dent or Roy Smalley from the New York Yankees because Burleson has been sidelined for the rest of the season, Angels Executive Vice President Buzzie Bavasi said Monday he is satisfied "Tim Foli can be our regular shortstop."

Burleson, a four-time American League All-Star, was placed on the disabled list Sunday after tearing the rotator cuff in his right shoulder in a Saturday night game against the Minnesota Twins. A team orthopedist said the 30-year-old, nine-year veteran would likely enter the hospital within a week for reconstructive surgery and Bavasi confirmed Monday that the shortstop is out for the year.

Pressed as to whether there were any talks with the Yankees concerning one or both of their shortstops, Bavasi admitted the two teams had been talking but refused to go into any details for fear of tampering charges. "If the Yankees are interested in making a deal for any players, I'd be willing to listen," Bavasi said, "but I'm not about to single out any one player because the Commissioner wouldn't like it."

Before Burleson got hurt, there had been reports of a deal that would have sent both Dent and Smalley to the Angels for Burleson but Bavasi denied it at the time, saying the Angels were very happy with Burleson and the Angels shortage was a no-trade clause in his contract.

It is known that the Angels had extensive talks with the Twins about Smalley, who is a nephew of manager Gene Mauch and played for him with the Twins, before Smalley was dealt to the Yankees April 10.

Bavasi said he had ample confidence in Foli, acquired last December from the Pittsburgh Pirates, to handle the regular shortstop job. "What's all this talk about us looking for a replacement for Burleson?" he asked. "We've got Tim Foli and he can be our regular shortstop. I'm a Foli man. What we're looking for now is a replacement for Foli."

It's becoming a familiar refrain: A new manager takes over, stresses fundamentals, instills a winning philosophy and, presto, the team comes loose — one run game at a time.

Every player in San Diego's starting lineup, except winning pitcher Juan Eichelberger, 2-2, got at least one hit. He's got us going. He makes us do the job. ## WHO AM I?

Call me Harold. That's my real name. Fans didn't know me at first, but now they know me as the 'Who Am I?' mascot. I was tough. I was tough. I was tough.

ADDRESS ON THIS LETTER MADE A MANCHESTER RESIDENT'S DAY
... dated 1873, it was signed by author Herbert Spencer

Alert collector finds rare Spencer letter

This arrangement was chosen to emphasize an address that caused a Manchester collector of Herbert Spencer material to just about jump out of his skin. The "38 Queen's Gardens" was first seen peeping from a bush or so of better-sketched papers on a table in the back room of an Edinburgh bookstore. It is on a short letter, the inside page is positioned here to show the signature.

Queen's Gardens was one of the many places Spencer had lived - all memorized by the collector before he took off on the overseas book-and-autograph hunt.

The part of the letter not visible reads: "I ought before now to have acknowledged with thanks, as I now do, the receipt of your cheque for 14.10 for the concluding article of the series in the Contemporary.

"I AM PROPOSING shortly to publish a volume of Essays, in which I should like to include the signatures of many of the one written by me..." (for...) (The book of essays came out in 1874 with the Martinian piece daily reprinted.)

The collector was overjoyed to find that he had discovered an unknown letter from his cherished author that gave real information - and was on sale for pennies.

Herbert Spencer (1820-1903), was an English writer in the early days of "evolution." Of all the thousands of words in his multi-volumed "Synthetic Philosophy" and other works, the catchy phrase "the survival of the fittest" stands out.

Somewhat attributed to Darwin but Spencer said it first.

Jerry Patterson's book, "Autographs" (1978), states that the bottom of that field is collecting baseball players' signatures and smears away the nuisance hate; the top, according to Patterson, is a Martinian piece daily reprinted.)

About books Truman find a delight

By Carol Felsenthal American Library Assn.

HARRY S. TRUMAN

In 1977, two members of the Truman Library staff set about inventorying the contents of the former president's office. They found a treasure trove of a desk crammed full of unmailed letters. "Strictly Personal and Confidential," the letters Harry Truman Never Mailed" (Little, Brown, 210 pages, $10.95) is a collection of 140 of those angry, vituperative "spams," as Truman called them.

Among the recipients were Dwight Eisenhower. In a "congratulatory" letter upon his reelection, Truman told like he was sure he'd succeed in wrecking the TVA, giving away the balance of our natural resources. "Completely ruining our foreign policy and setting the country back to 1896 and 1929."

Truman's letters to his friends and advisers are chock full of attacks on every agreement reached at Potsdam. "And I liked the little son of a bitch. He was a good 6 inches shorter than I am."

Richard Nixon is "a squirrel head." Soviet strongman Stalin is an "unconscionable Russian dictator" who broke nearly every agreement reached at Potsdam. "And I liked the little son of a bitch. He was a good 6 inches shorter than I am."

Truman complained, "The attached is most interesting - the Kremlin. I'd like very much to have the same information about the Soviets. Will you please publish that information? The CIA doesn't seem able to get it. Since you've given the Soviets our proposed strength and organization, maybe you can give me theirs."

Truman became especially defensive when questioned about his decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima. In a letter to Harvard Professor Herbert Feis, Truman wrote the decision "ended the Japanese war."

Tickets will be available at the door or through any member of the Sisterhood. Donation is $4.50.

National Volunteers Week

Woman helps raise hefty sum for MMH

Editor's note: This week is National Volunteers Week. Each day this week in the Manchester Herald's Focus, a volunteer will be profiled.

By Adele Angio Focus Editor

Shirley McCray, RN, of 280 E. Middle Turnpike calls herself "a working volunteer."

"My number one rule is I never ask anyone to do anything I won't do myself," says Manchester Memorial Hospital's co-chairman of the Special Gifts Campaign.

And she puts her money where her mouth is. She recently led a team of 14 volunteers raising money for the hospital's building program. As part of her volunteer work, she went on several of the fund raising campaigns.

Raising money in a pinched economy is no small task. It takes patience, organization, and a lot of spirit. Mrs. McCray has all three qualities in abundance. She also has a keen sense of humor.

"What's difficult about fund raising?" she asks the question someone has just posed to her. "Are you kidding? In this economy? You can always get people to volunteer. But when it comes to asking for money," she says, pausing a moment. "It's out there. You just have to be patient."

Mrs. McCray and her fellow volunteers were patient, all right. They came up with a total of $74,083 for the hospital during the recent push to raise funds.

WHERE DOES A mother with four school-age children and a part time job as a registered nurse find the time to spearhead a fund raising campaign?

With regrets, she adds, "That was fun. Really fun," she says. "Meeting all those people. Everybody's waiting for you. It's a nice feeling," she says.

SHE GROWS suddenly serious. Someone asks if taking the doughnut and coffee cart around a hospital isn't a bit below the skills level of a registered nurse. Nonsense, she says. "It's so sad that people think that way," she says. "We can all do whatever we want to do."

That, she adds, is one of the joys of volunteer work. Volunteers can try out new jobs. And they can take jobs that are completely different from the ones they get paid for.

Is there any volunteer work she hasn't done yet? The former president of the Manchester Memorial Hospital's Auxiliary thinks a moment.

"That I haven't done," she says, making a mental list. "Maybe I would say I'd like to be involved in the new mental health wing. Especially with the new geriatric section," she says.

Trout fever broken by season opening

Fishing season, 1982, opened last Saturday at 6 a.m. and all the pent up trout fever that has been building up in anglers around the state finally broke, and temperatures became normal once again.

Joe's World
Joe Garman

As usual, I didn't go out for opening day, and, as usual, the reports getting back to me were the same. Herds of anglers out, a few foolish fishermen losing things up the river. The usual lawbreakers taking more than their share of fish. The usual lawbreakers taking more than their share of fish. The usual lawbreakers taking more than their share of fish.

Picture a hatchery reared trout recently released in a stream. He has just become slightly acclimated to his new environment, has just found his way toward the "kill" areas, and is just beginning to become adjusted to this strange world where he has to fend for himself.

Picture a hatchery reared trout recently released in a stream. He has just become slightly acclimated to his new environment, has just found his way toward the "kill" areas, and is just beginning to become adjusted to this strange world where he has to fend for himself.

The water above him has started to lighten up as it becomes pierced by the beginning of a rising sun, and he settles down to catch whatever insect life starts drift his way. Suddenly there is a flash past his nose going the wrong way in the current. Then a whole lot of wiggly worms almost hit him on the head with a huge piece of lead holding

That's the way it was for anglers Sunday morning when I hit the water. It was a whole lot quieter. When the back room gang arrived at our favorite stream at 7 a.m. there was only one other angler in the water on the stretch of river we like to fish. The water was high, fast and cold from the big rain the night before.

AS I slid into the water and felt the current pulse and push against me it felt like a million dollars. The first communion with the water, and then the first cast, resulting in a fish. We fished hard until noon, and everyone in the party caught a minimum of one fish and a maximum of four. You, except one person... Yup, you guessed it. Yours truly went fishless. Had four good fish, struck out for the day. Want to know why? I think the fish I described above decided to teach the so-called "expert" a lesson. And they did. I won't hear the end of this for a long, long time.

Well, 1982 season, you're through, he and his remaining brethren become more and more wary. This is the way I imagine it must seem to be from the eyes of a trout, "expert" as I'm not too far off base.

About Town

Beta Sigma Phi meets

The Xi Gamma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will meet tonight at 8 at the home of Shari Wurzulis, 47 Maple St. in Ellington.

Before the business meeting, Attorney Brenda Draghi Goodwin and Dolan in Ellington will speak on wills.

Obedience classes set

The Connecticut Humane Society will sponsor dog obedience classes beginning next Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. and April 28 at 6:45 p.m. at the society on 701 Russell Road in East Windsor.

Both afternoon and evening classes will meet for seven consecutive weeks and are open to adults. All dogs must be at least six months old and must have a choke collar and a six-foot training leash.

Advance registration may be made between 10 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. during the week of April 19. For additional information, call 666-3337.

Foster parents sought

The State Department of Children and Youth Services is looking for foster parents for teenagers as well as homes for handicapped children, many of whom will become available for adoption.

An information meeting is scheduled for Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the South United Methodist Church, 1226 Main St. For additional information, call 1800-842-6348.

YWCA plans workshops

The Hartford Region YWCA will sponsor a series of career and personal growth workshops in April and May at the 135 Broad St., Hartford building.

Yankee Traveler

(Editor's Note: Another in a series of weekly features written for UP1 by the ALA Auto and Travel Club aimed at providing New Englanders with fuel-conserving, close-to-home leisure trips.)

The International House fair will be on the Meehan Auditorium, corner of Hope Street and Lloyd Avenue from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

WELLESLEY, Mass. — For the weekend of April 23-25, the ALA Auto and Travel Club suggests you stick close to the city center. To help a city celebrate its birthday, head for New Haven, Conn. For a taste of how people in other countries live, go to Brown University in Providence, R.I. And for some fine exhibits of contemporary art, try the Institute of Contemporary Art in Boston.

It's New Haven's 344th birthday and you are all invited to attend. Yale University, the lovely Ivy League school that winds its way through New Haven, will keep town-gown relations good by sponsoring an open house and fair at the Inter-national Center. There will also be parades and guided tours of many of New Haven's historic landmarks.

For more information, call Barbara Oliver at the New Haven Convention and Visitors Bureau at (603) 777-4205.

For those who want to see a little bit of the world without leaving New England, Brown University in Providence, R.I., is the place to be on April 21 and 25.

The Institute of Contemporary Art in Boston has embarked on an exciting journey for the spring. It is a film festival called "Autobiographical Impulses," and will continue until May 14.

The weekend of April 23-25 marks the last three days of performances by the Cranberry Puppets of Mary Church. The puppets will perform both familiar fairy tales and original stories twice daily, at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

MAPEX '82 Stamp Show at Liling Junior High School on Saturday and Sunday, April 24 and 25, 10 to 5 Saturday, 11 to 5 Sunday. Admission is free.

For the weekend of April 23-25, two films will be shown. "Family Portrait" by Alfred Guezetti, will be shown Sunday, April 25 at 4 p.m. "Film Portrait" by Jerome Hill, will be shown Friday, April 23, at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, April 25 at 6 p.m.

Guezetti interviews many family members and encourages them to give the viewer insights into the man behind the camera, while Hill uses animation, photographs and home movies to aid in his recollections about his past.

Admission for the films is $2.50 for members and $3 for non-members. Also at the institute of Contemporary Art is "Cloning for a New Society," a special installation by Craig Langager, and "Journey to the Surface of the Earth," an exhibit of Earth Art by British artists Mark Boyle and Tom Hills.

SPRINGFIELD, III. (UPI) — Cliches may teach the virtues of goodness through cleanliness, optimism via silver linings and equality among geese and geanders, but a group of eighth graders says today's world deserves some new sayings.

The eighth-graders at Washington Middle School — being to be the apple of teacher Richard Howard's eye — added some spice to some old sayings for an English assignment Monday, addressing such contemporary problems as corruption, nuclear disarmament and the video craze.

Here are some examples: • Too many parents spoil the party. • Currency is the source of corruption (ask any politician). • An idiot and his dough are easily separated. • An orange a day keeps the Tang away. • Don't count on breakfast before the milkman comes.

• Every watermelon has a million seeds (great spitting ammunition on a hot summer day). • An onion a day keeps everyone away. • Don't put your dreams behind closed doors. • One acquired his worth too promiscuously. • A moving Pac-Man does not get eaten (and saves video game fans valuable allowance). • Don't put all your money in one hand. • Every chicken has a silver egg. • Don't put all your chickens in one basket (or you'll have more eggs than you know what to do with). • Too many cooks spoil the eggs. • Too many dogs spoil the tree (and the bush and the flower and the garden...).

Plan goes to voters Saturday

Andover budget has 7-mill hike

By Richard Cody
Herald Reporter

ANDOVER — Board of Finance members agreed Monday to take a $1.9 million 1982-83 budget, and a seven-mill tax increase, into the annual town meeting May 1 after doing just about everything residents asked for at the public hearing Thursday.

What the proposed increase means is that if you have a home assessed at $15,000, you'll be paying about $18 more in property taxes next year. If the budget is approved by voters at the Saturday night meeting.

Action last night that brought the previously proposed $3 million budget, and corresponding 10-mill increase, down, was the deferment of $30,000 from the Hendee Road Bridge project and the wiping out of $40,000 from the equipment funds. The board stayed away from the school budget, as the residents had asked, and decided not to cut the town crew by a man.

As in prior years, the finance board had been proposing putting considerable sums of money into the various equipment funds. This year's total of the four funds, the fire engine fund, the town equipment fund, the school bus fund and capital reserve fund, was $67,000, or approximately four mills in revenue.

The board also brought to the hearing a proposal to pay the entire town share of the new bridge, $167,000, in one year. The state will pick up another 80 percent of the project.

BUT RESIDENTS at the hearing Thursday night lambasted the proposal to pay for the bridge in one year, and suggested that it be spread over five years, regardless of the bonding costs. They said it would make a tax increase seem more manageable to the average taxpayer this way.

The residents also said there was already enough money in the equipment funds to pay for any unexpected expense, and the board should hold off for one year before adding any money to it.

First Selectman Jean S. Gasper said Monday at the meeting there is $75,000 in the fire engine fund at present, $121,000 in the town equipment fund, and $43,000 in the school bus fund.

Board members voiced reluctance to cut the funds, because, they said, this way of financing eases in the long run the burden of a large equipment expenditure.

Board member Susan Loeve said she didn't feel the residents fully understood the methods of financing, suggesting that the board should stick with the full $67,000 proposed as an addition to the funds next year. She said the input from Thursday's meeting "wasn't a sensible or fair expression of opinion. Only the people in this room fully understand... but I think they'll ask to decrease it at the town meeting."

Chairman John Yeomans said, "There was quite a bit of sentiment there about this. We could go along with it the way it is. But if it stays in, there's always the chance it would be knocked out."

"I think you're right," Mrs. Loeve

"I think the meeting is going to reduce the budget."

The board considered cutting the entire $67,000 out, but in the end left $5,000 in each account.

A CONSIDERABLE amount of discussion revolved around the Hendee Road Bridge and how to finance it in light of the input from Thursday's meeting. Board members also attributed the large expenditure for the bridge as a major reason for the large proposed tax increase.

The only reason we're having a problem is because of the bridge," board member Valdis Vinkals said.

Board member John L. Kostic said he had been confronting the same evening by a petitioner calling for the scrapping of the project. The town has already allocated about $20,000 for the bridge. Officials have said this money would be lost if the town pulled out of the project.

The final proposal was to put off $50,000 until fiscal year 1983-1984, and instead of paying $167,000, pay $117,000 next year.

CAPITOL WORKER PREPARES BILLS FOR COMMITTEE... clerks type bills, help schedule meetings

It takes flexibility, humor Legislature workers make Capitol go round

By Jacqueline Huard
United Press International

HARTFORD — "The thing that's most important here is flexibility and a sense of humor," says Mary Polci, taking a rare break from the mounds of paper on her desk.

While she chatted with both arms hooked tiredly over the sides of her chair, a staff assistant walked over and asked her to fill in at a meeting for a state senator on her committee.

"Where's the meeting? What's it about?" she asked with a laugh. "See?"

Mrs. Polci is one of an army of 400 employees at the Legislature who make the Capitol go round. They research, analyze and draft the bills; type, collate and distribute them; help schedule committee meetings, hearings, and session days, and then process the bills all over again if they become law.

"They are the ones who really have to do the meat of the work that ends up being considered on the floor," said David Ogle, executive director of the Office of Legislative Management.

Mrs. Polci's post is the Finance, Revenue and Bonding Committee, which handles all tax, fee, and bonding bills.

Because it handles politically loaded legislation, a lot of muscle finds its way in and around the committee's offices, which are located at a structurally old building between the fourth and fifth floors of the towering Capitol.

The pressure inside Rooms 407-409A builds quickly.

"Sometimes you get blamed for something you have absolutely no control over," said the 40-year-old Mrs. Polci. "But then, sometimes you get credit for something you had nothing to do with. It kind of washes out in the end."

BOLTON — The finance board cut salaries, money for the town plan, a new center school roof and $25,000 from the school budget, and added a new dump truck, money to the road repair account, and the pony football program Monday as it finished its work on the proposed 1982-83 budget.

Neither a bottom line figure nor a proposed mill rate is available yet, but board Chairman Michael J. Walsh said today a "ballpark guess" would be that both will be lower than what the board proposed at the hearing. The proposed mill rate was 29.3, and the total budget was $3,199,150.

Working past midnight, Walsh said, the board spent more than an hour discussing cuts to the school budget, and after member Morris Silverstein suggested a $350,000 cut with the intent he said today of "getting out of the high school business," the board settled on the $25,000 cut.

Walsh said the cut includes the $15,000 already proposed by his board at the hearing. This money was intended by his board to come out of amnestie repay at all the schools.

School board Chairman Joseph J. Haloburdo Jr. said today his board will meet after the May 10 town meeting before deciding from which accounts to take the money. He said "historically" the $25,000 does represent an average surplus from his board's budget that comes mostly from teacher turnover. "Typically, that's what happens," he said.

Walsh said his board scrapped the idea of putting a new roof on the center school building, a project that was estimated at $109,000. He said the budget includes $40,000 for it, and the remainder of the roof money will go for a new $65,000 dump truck for the town.

He said his board also turned down the Planning Commission's request for money for the printing of the town plan, because a majority of the members felt the plan wasn't done because it doesn't include input from the school system.

Walsh said because residents at the April 5 public hearing voiced support for restoring some money in the road repair account, his board decided to back off on its original proposal to drop the selectmen's proposed $80,000 for this account to $55,000. Walsh said the board still felt $80,000 was too high, and suggested a $65,000 figure.

"That was a half-way compromise," he said.

Input at the hearing, he said, also led to a decision to level the level recommended by Recreation Director Richard B. Gowen, $1,558. Walsh said the Bolton Football Association, which had been criticized as showing a lack of parental interest, apparently re-grouped when faced with losing its top program. "I think the Board of Selectmen and Board of Finance sent them a message and they received it," he said about the two boards' past proposals to cut the program out.

Walsh said the salaries for the selectmen, as proposed by the selectmen, were cut. They had asked for a raise for each selectman from $600 to $1,000, and one for the First Selectman from $5,000 to $7,500. Walsh said the board granted a raise of $650 and $5,400 respectively, and not higher, partially because the board has a full-time assistant.

URSIN SAID the reason the school budget wasn't cut more was because "so far the public has indicated they want to maintain a school system, so I feel it's our job to recognize that." He also said he felt the school budget committee "did a top-notch job in preparing their budget. Anything more than that (the $25,000) would cripple it."

So far the townspeople want to support the high school, and I feel we should support it."

Silverstein said the reason for his suggested cut was that "there is an alternative, and as a member of the Board of Finance, it's my job to look at financial alternatives."

"My suggestion is getting out of the high school business," to rid the town of some of the fixed costs, he said.

Walsh said his board is planning to meet again Monday to vote on a mill rate and a bottom line to send to the town meeting.

EAST HARTFORD — Francis Mazziolo, 76, of West Hartford, former treasurer of the Teamsters Retirees Association, was arrested Saturday by East Hartford Police.

Mazziolo was arrested at his home, where he is allegedly bedridden with terminal cancer. He was charged with first-degree larceny by embezzlement and is scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court on May 3.

Sewage alert coming

SOUTH WINDSOR — Fred Shaw, the town's pollution control superintendent, said there are plans to install a new alarm system in a malfunctioning pump station.

The pump has been dumping raw sewage into the Overbrook Drive area of Vernon. The defective pumping station is on Aherm Drive, near the Vernon town line.

South Windsor pollution control officials will ask Vernon officials for permission to connect an emergency bypass line to the Vernon sewer lines in the Overbrook Drive area to take in any future overflows and allow South Windsor more time to correct the problem.

Commuter lot planned

VERNON — A new 300-car commuter parking lot will be built at Vernon Circle. It will cost $400,000 and is scheduled to be completed by November.

The federal government will provide 90 percent of the funding and the state the remaining 10 percent. The lot will be located between Routes 83 and 30, off Green Circle Road. The lot is being built and the "circle" will be removed as part of the widening of Interstate 86.

Vernon has one commuter lot located on Route 30 and that lot, according to officials at the Department of Transportation, is usually filled to capacity.

Sky diving illegal

ELLINGTON — Town Attorney Martin Burke, in a letter to First Selectman Marty Miller, said parachuting at Ellington Airport is not permitted under the town zoning laws.

The town's zoning regulations specifically provides that all uses (airport activities) not specifically permitted, are prohibited.

The airport is being used by Connecticut Parachute Inc., a private club. Burke said a 1969 decision by the Board of Selectmen, to allow limited parachuting at the airport, was "ineffective for several reasons."

He claims this was a decision that only the Planning and Zoning Commission was empowered to make.

Income growth rate slows here

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The median income of Connecticut households remained among the highest in the nation through the 1970s, but grew at one of the country's slowest rates, U.S. Census Bureau figures show.

The figures, culled from the 1980 census, also showed a growing population of those considered poor. Connecticut's population living in poverty increased at the nation's fourth fastest rate.

Connecticut's poverty rate was still 47th nationwide. The government poverty line was defined in 1979 as an annual income of $7,412 for a family of four.

The census statistics released Monday showed a median income of $23,028 for Connecticut families, trailing only Alaska and Hawaii in the category. The U.S. median was $19,908.

But financial advantage of state families diminished over the past decade. Only per capita income figures in Massachusetts and New York grew at a slower rate.

Of Connecticut's 1.1 million households, there were 103,447 reporting incomes below $5,000 in 1979. Another 67,881 reported earnings of less than $7,500.

There were 72,166 households with incomes above $50,000.

Connecticut continued to have one of the best educated populations in the country, with 21.2 percent holding college degrees. Only Colorado and Alaska had a higher proportion.

More tests slated in Beckwith death

HAUPPAUGE, N.Y. (UPI) — Authorities say additional tests may disclose the cause of death of New London, Conn., Water Commissioner Gordon Beckwith, found in Long Island Sound.

Dr. Sidney Weinberg, the Suffolk County Medical Examiner, said that a Monday autopsy had been inconclusive. "It is sometimes very difficult to determine if death was due to drowning or some other cause," he said.

He said he hopes chemical studies and tissue analysis, as well as further examination of Beckwith, will determine the cause of death. That work will take at least two weeks.

"Another big thing is trying to trace his movements prior to the time he went into the water," Weinberg said.

There were some bruises on Beckwith's face, Weinberg said, but they could have been caused by contact with "floaties and a net" in the water.

Beckwith's body was discovered Saturday morning off Fisher's Island, six days after he disappeared from the New London railroad station, where he had taken his daughter, Lynn, to get a train for Boston.

Taste Marvel!

Latest research confirms MERIT delivers the taste of cigarettes having up to twice the tar

Many low tar cigarettes make taste promises. But only 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT offers proof not promises. Proof through extensive smoker taste tests.

MERIT Taste Does It. In impartial new tests where brand identity was concealed, the overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands. Even brands with up to twice the tar.

Moreover, when tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

MERIT Taste Sparks Switch.

In a separate part of this extensive new study, MERIT smokers report that taste is a major factor in completing their successful switch from higher tar brands.

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers say MERIT is an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

UNITED TECHNOLOGIES CORP. BOARD OF DIRECTORS at UTC's annual shareholders' meeting Monday at the Hartford Civic Center

P&WA expects continuing decline

By Raymond T. DeMeo
Herald Reporter

The Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Group's sales of jet engines and commercial aircraft parts were down by 4 percent last year from 1980, a decline that's expected to continue through this year, Harry J. Gray, chairman and chief executive officer of United Technologies Corp., said at the company's annual meeting Monday.

Pratt's total sales of engines and parts amounted to $2,050,000 last year, compared with $2,142,000 in 1980. In 1979, Pratt and Whitney sold $1,708,000 worth of engines and parts.

Employment at Pratt and Whitney also declined dramatically during 1981. On Dec. 31, 1980, Pratt employed 39,600 persons; at the end of 1981, the total was 33,900.

Gray attributed Pratt's sales decline to a slackening in orders from commercial airlines. "The depressed condition of the world's airline industry will continue to affect aircraft engine sales through 1983," he said.

The air traffic controller's strike also had an adverse effect on Pratt's sales by cutting the number of commercial airline flights and consequently reducing demand for spare parts.

Pratt and Whitney's sales of engines and parts for military purposes fared better than those for its commercial sector last year. Military sales increased from $1,804,000 in 1980 to $2,493,000.

Gray predicted 1982 will be a "challenging year" for Pratt. He pointed to an auspicious start in the first quarter, when Singapore Airlines placed a $120 million order for Pratt's JT9D engines to power eight Boeing 747s it is purchasing. Also in the first quarter, Pratt received a $100 million order of JT9Ds from VASP of Brazil to power a new fleet of jets the airline purchased.

Gray also said Pratt is considering working with Japanese engineers and Rolls Royce of England to develop a new engine for a proposed 150-seat commercial airliner. By joining with its competitors, Gray said, Pratt would insure itself a share of revenue from the engine's projected sales to British and Japanese commercial air carriers, with whom the competitors do most of their business.

While Pratt and Whitney's 1981 performance was among the worst of all United Technologies' divisions, the corporation's overall picture was mixed at best. UTC's sales were down during the first quarter of 1982 by four percent, to $3.2 million, from the first quarter of 1981. Dividend for the quarter was 60 cents, the same as it was throughout 1981.

UTC reported net income of $182.1 million for the first quarter of 1982, compared with $113.5 million during the first quarter last year. But the 1981 figure was inflated by an accounting change, whereby the company accelerated its deductions for plant and equipment investments all at once, instead of pro-rating them over several years.

Without the accounting change, UTC's net income for the quarter would have been $66 million less, or 16 percent less than the income reported for the first quarter of 1981.

Electric Boat receives $239.9 million order

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp. has received a $239.9 million contract to build one of two 688-class nuclear-powered submarines included in the federal budget for the 1983 fiscal year.

The Defense Department said Monday the contract went to EB's division at Groton, Conn., and Quonset Point, R.I., for one of the Los Angeles class subs. Another contract worth $236.3 million went to Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. of Newport News, Va., for the second of the two fast-attack submarines.

Thirty-four of 59 of the boats previously authorized have already been delivered. The contract was for EB's 22nd sub of the 688 class.

Under President Reagan's five-year defense expansion, another 17 fast-attack submarines are to be built between fiscal 1983 and fiscal 1987. Rep. Sam Gejdenson, D-Conn., said the contract award to Electric Boat demonstrated "the continuing improvement in relations" between the shipyard and the Navy, which have been at odds in the past.

"The Navy is obviously trying to work better with both of its major contractors and this more reasonable approach no doubt will result in more work for EB in the long run," Gejdenson said.

Sen. John H. Chafee, R-R.I., said the contract "shows that Electric Boat is back in business, full-speed ahead once again. This was a competitive bid, and it shows that Electric Boat can go head to head with Newport News and I am confident that they will continue to do that."

Chafee, a former Navy secretary, said the award will help ensure "steady" employment at Electric Boat, which is the largest private employer in Rhode Island and the second-largest private employer in Connecticut.

The General Dynamics Corp. subsidiary employs 19,000 people at the Groton main yard and 4,200 at the automated hull welding facility at Quonset Point.

The new 688s are being outfitted with 12 vertical tubes to launch Tomahawk cruise missiles, which can be equipped with either nuclear or conventional warheads.

Secretaries want cash, not flowers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — National Secretaries Week often means lunch with the boss and some flowers, but what women employees really need is more money, according to an office workers union.

Releasing a 13-page report on the opening of the annual secretaries week observance, the union said women are "underpaid, undervalued and underemployed" — making just 58.6 cents for each dollar that men earn.

"Most clerical workers are women, and women workers earn less today relative to men than they did 25 years ago," said Karen Nussbaum, president of District 925 of the Service Employees Union, an offshoot of the "9 to 5" labor group made famous by the Dolly Parton record and movie.

Ms. Nussbaum, who also serves as executive director of Working Women, a national association of office workers, said the report "is just one more indication that clerical workers must organize if they are to get decent pay and rights and respect on the job."

Women in clerical jobs today are at about the same position as women workers in general, it showed, saying they make $5.84 less per year than men. Clerical workers represented by unions earned 30 percent more than non-unionized clericals in 1980, it added.

"National Secretaries Week is usually a time for office workers to receive a free lunch or a flower," Ms. Nussbaum said. "Our report, however, shows that what we need is more money — and a rose cannot make up the difference."

The report indicated office workers face low pay, poor career opportunities, health hazards, and sexual harassment.

In 1955, women earned 63.9 cents for every dollar earned by men," the report said. "Today, women in year-round, full-time jobs are paid only 58.6 cents for every dollar men are paid."

By the mid-1980s, more than 40 percent of the U.S. workforce will be employed in jobs related to information processing, the report said, noting that between 7 million and 10 million workers already are involved with video display terminals.

By 1990, it added, over 52 million women will be working, accounting for more than 70 percent of all women between ages of 25 and 54.

Africa's Cape of Good Hope was settled by the Dutch, beginning in the 17th century.
