Weather is not the only pitfall in ordering fancy fruits. Mail-order fruit stands such as Harry & David bill themselves as "gift-quality" outfits, meaning you can order a fruit ensemble for a friend across the country without worrying that you'll make an enemy when he or she opens up a box of rotting produce. This means, too, however, that you're paying for a guarantee of uniform quality rather than for any particular difference between fancy fruits and grocery store items.

Apples, as an illustration, aren't grown by Harry & David farmers but are instead chosen by company managers from among reliable orchards. Could you choose an apple from the bin at your neighborhood market? "Probably," a spokesman for Harry & David admits, "but you'd probably find only one apple in a bin as good as each one of ours." Since large Delicious apples currently cost about 89 cents a pound and Harry & David apples cost more than three times that (when they are offered), it might be worthwhile to spend the time looking through the bin. In fact, many of the fruits offered by Harry & David are sold only because the company offers a "fruit of the the calendar. #### Moffett writes Jewish leaders to offset 'smear'

HARTFORD (UPI) — Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., has sent a letter to 600 Jewish leaders in the state to counteract a "sleazy" campaign portraying him as an Arab sympathizer.

Moffett, of Lebanese descent, said the campaign is

Moffett campaign manager Jeffrey Leichtman said letters distorting Moffett's position in the Arab-Israeli 'conflict have been sent to Jewish leaders and organizations outside Connecticut by Morris J. Amitay, Washington lawyer and former director of the American-Israeli Political Action Committee. Leichtman claimed the "smear campaign" is being carried out with the "consent of the Weicker people."

But Weicker's press secretary, Martin Moore, said Amitay had done nothing more than cite "Moffett's public record on Israel."

"The senator stands by Morris Amitay," Moore In his mailings, Amitay has attacked Moffett for In his mailings, Amitay has attacked Moffett for voting against some arms sales to Israel, for meeting with Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat and for co-hosting a 1980 meeting in Washington with Arab mayors expelled from the West Bank.

Leichtman countered that Moffett voted against some foreign aid packages, not because they benefited Israel, but because they included assistance to countries with poor human rights records. He said Moffett's meeting with Arafat during a 1980 pressure to end violence. And Moffett met briefly with the Arab mayors to urge them to condemn the PLO.

"Let's be fair," said Leichtman. To counter Amitay's claims, the Moffett campaign sent the letter to Jewish leaders in Connecticut touting Moffett as a "solid and dependable friend of Israel" who will "never allow the security of Israel to be enangered."
The letter, which doubles as an invitation to a fund-

Sometimes, simplest ideas are best

Every now and then someone comes up with a startlingly simple solution to a problem.

One that comes to mind was proposed recently by Alan F. Lamson, town planner. A developer needed to provide a second access to his development so emergency vehicles could get there in a hurry.

But neighbors, who did not particularly object to the develop ment, did object to that road. I would create traffic in a bad place, they said, because it would get frequent use.

Lamson suggested an access that was a clear passage, not paved, and closed off with a gate at one end. Fire apparatus could use it when necessary. You might call it a road that is not a road. A more recently simple proposal is one you might describe as an encroachment on the floodway of a brook that is

The main influx of baby big-leaguers came during World War II when the desthe leap directly to the big leagues. There are several seasons of apprenticeship in the minors that must be the minors that must be spent to hone the finer points of the game.

It was not always thus. The all-time baseball registry is dotted with teen-age stars, such as Mel Ott, Jimmy Foxx, Harmon Killebrew, Phil Cavarretta, Ty Cobb, Freddy Lindstrom, Hal Newhouser, Bob Feller and Don Gullett.
