

Taste Knock Out!

Latest research confirms MERIT delivers the taste of cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

One low tar cigarette consistently proves it can meet the taste demands of higher tar smokers.

The cigarette: 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT.

MERIT Taste Does It.

In impartial tests where brand identity was concealed, the overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands. Even brands with up to twice the tar.

Moreover, when tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

MERIT Taste Sparks Switch.

In a separate part of this extensive study, MERIT smokers report that taste is a major factor in completing their successful switch from higher tar brands.

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers say MERIT is an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

British losses 'tragic'

By United Press International

Britain's leaders, refusing to reveal the extent of "tragic" losses from an Argentine air attack, moved to quash speculation of a delay in the final British offensive by promising new "attacks" "very soon" to retake the Falkland Islands.

"You realize there'll be bad days and very difficult incidents," Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told reporters Thursday at the NATO summit in West Germany. "You know you have to go on to achieve your objective."

British officials said late Thursday they were still unsure how many servicemen died in Tuesday's Argentine air strikes against British landing forces and two supply ships at Fitz Roy Bay, but newspapers speculated it could be anywhere from 70 to 150.

The Defense Ministry refused to comment on the speculation, but Defense Minister John Nott acknowledged a small British landing craft was hit, apparently in another location, killing four Royal Marines and two sailors. The frigate HMS Plymouth also was reportedly hit, but Nott said damage was light.

However, Nott said plans to take Stanley, the Falklands capital guarded by an estimated 7,000 Argentine troops, have not been altered and Britain's 8,000 ground troops "will go forward to further victories very soon."

"All fights for peace with freedom and justice ... (are) always expensive," Mrs. Thatcher said, calling British losses "tragic."

"Our forefathers did it for us. We mustn't flinch from doing the same for the next generations."

In Buenos Aires, government officials prepared for the arrival today of Pope John Paul II, whose two-day visit was arranged to balance the pontiff's earlier trip to Britain.

Both President Leopoldo Galtieri's military regime and the opposition Peronist Party hope to reap political dividends from the visit. John Paul wants to promote peace, but church officials said he will not become involved in any mediation efforts.

The Defense Ministry said despite Tuesday's devastating Argentine attack, British troops secured a major new beachhead at Fitz Roy, 17 miles southwest of Stanley's estimated 7,000-man Argentine garrison.

Argentina at first said it had driven off the landing attempt but later said it was trying to determine if the British "may have succeeded in its attempt to disembark" to establish a beachhead at Agreeable Bay, next to Fitz Roy.

"With 25,000 in the Task Force and with well over 100 ships, it is remarkable that we have not received more casualties and sustained greater losses," Nott said.

Their government statements were clearly aimed at dampening London newspaper speculation that British losses might delay the final assault to retake Stanley.

Four years of work end for 283 ECHS graduates

Nancy Thompson Herald Reporter

Four years of "conscientious effort, dedication and hard work" for the East Catholic High School Class of 1982 came to an end Thursday in the splendor of the Cathedral of St. Joseph.

With the boys clad in blue caps and gowns and the girls in white carrying white roses, almost 300 graduates marched up to the altar to receive their diplomas from Archbishop John P. Whealon in commencement exercises at the Hartford cathedral.

"I hope this will be a commencement—and that you will go on to learn many things, either in the school of hard knocks or some other school," Whealon told the 283 graduating students.

"In your heart of hearts, I know you have a great deal of gratitude" to parents, teachers and spiritual leaders, Whealon said. "The only way to show that gratitude is by a good life in the years ahead."

"I hope your life will be virtuous, that you will be outstanding in making this world a better place to live."

Cease-fire doesn't last

By United Press International

Israeli warplanes and gunboats pounded Palestinian guerrilla positions on the outskirts of Beirut today just hours after Israel and Syria agreed to a cease-fire between their forces in Lebanon.

Israel, while agreeing to the cease-fire with Syria, had vowed to battle the Palestinian guerrillas until their military power is crushed. In Beirut, a ranking guerrilla leader said the cease-fire, declared by Israel and accepted by Syria, did not affect the Palestinians.

"The cease-fire decision does not concern us," said Salah Khalaf, second-in-command to Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat.

Three hours after the noon (local time) cease-fire, Israeli warplanes and naval artillery shelled guerrilla positions just south of Beirut and the nearby hills leading up to the Lebanese leftist stronghold of Aley, 12 miles inland, Palestinian officials said.

The Palestinians also reported clashes with the Israelis around several villages along Israel's border positions in the Lebanese mountains east of the capital.

The Israeli Cabinet, meeting one day after President Reagan demanded a cease-fire, said all its military goals had been achieved in the lightning assault across Lebanon and ordered the cease-fire.

"The government ordered the army in all its forces to cease fire at 12 noon," the announcement said. "Starting from that time, the Israeli troops will not fire unless fired upon."

Soon after Israel's dramatic declaration of a cease-fire, Damascus radio said "Syria has agreed to the cease-fire and gave orders to our troops to stop firing" at the same deadline. Later, the radio repeated Syrian President Hafez Assad's demand of Thursday that the cease-fire be accompanied by a complete Israeli withdrawal.

But it was likely fighting would continue between Israeli troops and the guerrillas of the Palestine Liberation Organization, pushed back into Beirut by the Israelis.

In a press conference in Jerusalem, Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon said the invasion forces achieved "all their objectives"—wiping out guerrilla bases in south Lebanon—but added that the cease-fire "will not allow the existence of the terrorist infrastructure."

Sharon said Israeli troops will eliminate "every ravine, every cave and underground structure" of the guerrillas.

"It (the fighting) will continue until the area is completely cleansed," Sharon said more than 100 Israeli soldiers died in the six days of fighting, "among them many commanders," in one of the Israeli army's "most glorious operations."

Sharon's statement indicated the Israelis had decided not to storm Beirut as they threatened Thursday in leaflets dropped on the city. In Berlin with Reagan, White House Spokesman Larry Speakes said the Israeli cease-fire is "a significant step toward the resumption of the previously existing cease fire," but added, "We still want a withdrawal" by Israel.

The killing continued up to the last minute, with Israeli warplanes pounding Beirut's Palestinian neighborhoods just before the cease-fire began with one of their most intense attacks of the invasion.

As Israel announced the cease-fire, its military command said 18 more Syrian combat planes had been shot down today over Lebanon, bringing to 79 the number of Syrian combat aircraft downed in six days.

"We hope there will be real peace between a free and independent Lebanon and the state of Israel," Cabinet secretary Dan Meridor said after the Cabinet ordered the cease-fire. U.S. special envoy Philip Habib was told of the decision Thursday night.

Israel warned Syria not to attempt to move new surface-to-air missiles into Lebanon to replace those already destroyed and said they would be destroyed "with no delay" by the victorious Israeli air force.

Wholesale inflation still zero

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices, adjusted for seasonal variations, remained unchanged in May. The Labor Department said today. It marked the third month in the last four that there was no inflation at the wholesale level.

The zero rate of change only enhanced what has been an extraordinarily low rate of increase for the Producer Price Index so far this year—an annual rate of climb of only 0.4 percent through the first five months, department analysts said.

The May stationary report was somewhat a gift of the government's data collection procedures, since it reflected now out-of-date April gasoline and fuel oil prices.

For that reason, analysts expect wholesale prices to show substantial increases in the next few months because of sharply rising food prices combined with stabilizing energy prices.

Before adjustment for recurring seasonal trends, the index rose 0.3 percent to 277.7. That meant the government's staple "market basket" of wholesale-level goods and services that cost $100 in 1967 cost $277.70 in May. The government's adjustment process anticipated an even greater increase, and as a result cancelled out the unadjusted change, keeping the May index steady.

Senate campaign to be lively

By Paul Hendrie Herald Reporter

Manchester's three-term Democratic Mayor Stephen P. Penny sharply criticized incumbent state Sen. Carl A. Zinsser Thursday night, as he kicked off what promises to be a lively campaign for that Senate seat.

Penny announced his candidacy for the Senate at a reception at the Chamber of Commerce's Hartford Road offices.

Penny's candidacy for the 4th District seat has been expected for months. Republican Zinsser, a Senate freshman, is expected to announce his bid for re-election later this month.

Penny said he sees "responsible cutback management" as the main issue in the campaign. He pledged to work for a "proper balance between the needs of all our citizens and the cost of government."

"The incumbent, on the other hand, does not share either by background or personal ideology, that Democratic tradition of service," charged Penny. "Rather, he shares the philosophy of a national administration which counts dollars well, allocates them poorly and knows people and their problems hardly at all."

Penny pledged to "campaign intensively" in all five towns in his Senate district. The district is composed of Manchester, Glastonbury, Columbia, Hebron and Bolton.

Penny told reporters afterwards that he is confident he can win even in Republican Glastonbury. He said he has many personal friends there, because his father was in business in Glastonbury for many years. He also has recruited two former Town Council members, Janet Maher and ex-Mayor Gus Constantine, to coordinate his Glastonbury campaign, he said.

Penny said he does not expect his controversial positions on town, Eighth Utilities District relations to hurt his chances of drawing votes from North Manchester. He said his positions on the district never hurt him in town elections.

Penny said he expects it will cost

$10,000 to $15,000 to run an effective campaign.

Penny said he expects an "intense debate" to develop with Zinsser. When Zinsser and Penny both were elected to the Board of Directors in 1979, the debate between the two often was heated. In that 13-person race, Penny finished first and Zinsser finished a close second.

Penny said he thinks, after five years on the Board of Directors, the time is right to move on. He said he thinks it would be healthy both for him and the town to focus his energies elsewhere.

However, Penny said he has no plans to step down from the board before the election. He said if he loses the election, he will serve out his term on the board.

News Briefing

Hinton: Salvador is like Vietnam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Deane Hinton, the U.S. ambassador to El Salvador, raised the possibility that without American aid the Central American nation could become like contemporary Vietnam — a Soviet-dominated communist state.

Hinton, now in Washington, referred to such a scenario during a closed meeting Thursday with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which recently reduced U.S. military aid to El Salvador by $100 million.

Hinton made clear later he was not predicting El Salvador would go communist and that, in fact, it probably will not, because he is convinced Congress will not cut U.S. aid to that country.

In a rare development, reporters were allowed to attend the closing minutes of the executive committee hearing when Hinton mentioned Vietnam. Asked afterward what he meant by that reference, Hinton told reporters: "I asked whether we meant to have in Central America a Vietnam like Vietnam is in 1982. We have a lot of Salvadorean fighting and dying to stop that from happening. I thought they deserve support."

Hinckley: Buying gun a coincidence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The day after President Reagan took office, John W. Hinckley Jr. bought a gun — but a psychiatrist says Hinckley swears it was "just a coincidence" and had nothing to do with Reagan.

Hinckley's lawyer suggested to a jury that the 27-year-old presidential assassin was obsessed at the time — not with Reagan — but with Mark Chapman, who killed Beate John Lennon on Dec. 8, 1980.

Prosecutors at Hinckley's trial on charges of shooting Reagan are expected to argue that purchase of the gun was just another step in the young lawyer's sharply conflicting interpretations of the same evidence in the trial — entering its 33rd day today — prosecutors began eliciting testimony from their second expert psychiatric witness.

Defense lawyers pressing Hinckley's insanity defense had sought unsuccessfully to bar testimony from Dr. Sally Johnson, a psychiatrist at the federal prison at Butner, N.C., who destroyed her rough notes of 55 interviews with Hinckley.

Church says nun to be exonerated

PICO RIGERA, Calif. (UPI) — There is no proof a "little old" nun punched an 8-year-old boy, pulled his hair and lifted him up by his cheeks as charged by prosecutors responding to a year-long series of parent complaints, Catholic school officials say.

"We have not been able to uncover evidence that might substantiate the charges," the Rev. John Mihan said Thursday. "If and when the teacher comes to trial, I am sure she will be vindicated."

Sister Louridine Sok, a third-grade teacher at St. Hilary's Elementary School, was charged with punching the 8-year-old boy, pulling his hair and lifting him off the ground by his cheeks in a disciplinary action. She was charged earlier this week with mistreating children for allegedly throwing a 9-year-old girl against a wall.

School officials said it would be the former "Rep. Lester Wolfe, archdiocese, which has over 300 schools, had been brought to court.

Unidentified sub in Swedish seas

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — Swedish naval helicopters today dropped depth charges in the area where an unidentified submarine was detected 32 miles east of here, defense staff spokesman Gunnilla Wunsche said.

It was the fifth sighting of an unidentified submarine in Swedish territorial waters in the past eight days and the second time the Swedish navy dropped depth charges.

The submarine was discovered by a Swedish naval patrol boat just outside the Stockholm archipelago. Depth charges were dropped to force the vessel outside Swedish waters or to the surface.

After the depth charges were dropped sonar contact with the vessel was lost. It was assumed the vessel switched off its engines and laid low, defense staff sources in Stockholm said.

Addiction rising as aid being cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Drug addiction is rising in America's big cities as federal treatment funds for the "shooting war" are being cut, and the result will be an increase in crime and wasted lives, a national group says.

The National Association for Drug Abuse and Alcohol Coordination said drug coordinators in 14 of 16 cities surveyed said addiction was up or holding steady in 1981 compared with 1980. The association estimated heroin addicts in those cities number 310,000.

Only 25 percent of addicts are now being treated, with waiting times of a week to 60 days to obtain treatment in six cities. Cuts in federal funds will force reductions in treatment slots in 14 cities of up to 50 percent, the survey said.

"There are many shooting wars around the world today, but no shooting war is more important to the people of this country than the so-called 'war on drugs,'" former Rep. Lester Wolfe, archdiocese chairman, told a news conference.

President greets pope in Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Pope John Paul II arrived in Argentina today and warned that conflicts such as the Falkland Islands war could lead to nuclear catastrophe.

The pope was met in rainy, cold weather at Ezeiza airport in Buenos Aires by Argentine President Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri.

Expressing the "fullest gratitude" to the Argentine people for receiving him on short notice, John Paul warned that conflicts such as those in the Falklands could lead the world to nuclear war.

Nancy K. cleared of assault charge

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — A judge, acquitting Nancy Kissinger of an assault charge, ruled she reacted in a "spontaneous, somewhat human" way by grabbing the neck of a pro-nuclear activist who snarled her husband.

The ruling by Municipal Judge Julio Puentes came Thursday following a two-hour trial in which Mrs. Kissinger, wife of the former secretary of state, admitted grabbing the activist, Ellen Kaplan of New York, by the throat.

"Her reaction was a spontaneous, somewhat human reaction to an offensive statement, as well as concern for her husband's condition," Puentes ruled, noting Kissinger was scheduled for heart surgery at the time.

"I'm glad it's finished and that it's over," Mrs. Kissinger said.

Hub firefighters go blaze to blaze

BOSTON (UPI) — Seven suspected arson fires — four of them multiple-alarm — broke out early today across the city within three hours, sending the city's firefighting force from blaze to blaze in one of its worst nights ever.

A police source said the fires may have been the work of "a group of persons intent on tying up the entire fire department."

Six fires were in unoccupied buildings — one in a giant Jamaica Plain warehouse that went to nine alarms.

Two people suffered minor injuries in the last fire of the night — which began in a dampener and jumped to a 2½-story Jamaica Plain building occupied by several people, officials said.

Shooting is under way in New York on a TV movie called "Charles and Diana: A Royal Romance."

But the real news is the actress chosen to play Lady Diana Spencer, now known as Princess Diana. She's Catherine Oxenberg, and besides being a Princess Di look-alike, she's got some royal blood of her own.

Miss Oxenberg is a cousin of Spain's Queen Sophia, a grandniece of Britain's late Princess Marina, duchess of Kent and the daughter of Princess Elizabeth of Yugoslavia, who gained some attention a few years ago with a romance with Richard Burton.

Prince Charles will be portrayed in the CBS movie by British stage actor Christopher Baines.

Flood damage estimated at $276.6 million in appeal for aid

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut sustained $276.6 million in damage from the once-in-a-century rainstorm that soaked the state last weekend and let loose flood waters that devastated some areas, Gov. William O'Neill says.

O'Neill released the damage estimate Thursday as he signed an appeal calling on President Reagan to declare the state a disaster area to make available federal aid to help meet the cost of repairing the damage.

The governor said damage from the three days of heavy rains and resulting flood was "of such severity and magnitude that effective response is beyond the capabilities of the state and local governments."

He also told reporters at a Capitol news conference he would call a special session of the Legislature for June 28 to decide how to help meet the cost of repairing the damage.

Of the state's eight counties, New Haven suffered the worst with an estimated $105.5 million in damages, O'Neill said. Middlesex County was next with $33 million and New London County suffered $20.4 million in damage.

The remaining five counties each reported damage ranging from $8.4 million down to $1.1 million, according to the figures provided by the Office of Civil Preparedness.

O'Neill said 10 people died as a result of the storm that dumped up to 11 inches of rain on parts of the state and forced 1,300 people from their homes. Forecasters said such a severe storm was likely only once in a century.

The rampaging waters destroyed 37 homes, severely damaged another 1,538 and affected another 15,874 residences, O'Neill said.

The special legislative session will consider bonding for the state and local government share of the recovery cost that may not be paid for by the federal government, O'Neill said.

He estimated the state would have to put up about $19 million after the federal government paid up to 75 percent of the $69.5 million in losses to local governments.

O'Neill said losses to private property and business totaled $204.6 million, with more than 600 businesses having suffered substantial damage that "will cause 1,000 people to be without jobs for an extended period of time."

The error was discovered by a special auditing branch created within the department as a result of the 1981 error.

The error involved counting all welfare children up to 21 in calculating the Guaranteed Tax Base grants to towns instead of only children 5 to 18.

O'Neill said Wednesday he was still upset over the latest error but added that Shedd's office is under control of the state board and it was the board's responsibility to deal with him.

The governor also indicated he would have done more than issue a reprimand if Shedd had been directly responsible to him.

Bozzuto called the reprimand of Shedd "an orchestrated political charade" and said O'Neill should direct the board, which he appointed, to remove Shedd.

Bozzuto, at a Capitol news conference, also proposed that the responsibility for handling the Guaranteed Tax Base formula, which determines payments to communities, be transferred from Shedd's department to the state Office of Policy and Management.

Van Norstrand said the formula was a complicated mess "that no one really understands" and which was providing education funds disproportionately to communities.

On Wednesday, two other Republican gubernatorial candidates attacked O'Neill on the issue.

Sen. Russell Post of Canton proposed what he called a simple "bottoms up" funding formula that would give the poorest towns the most state aid and the richest communities the least.

Sen. Gerald Labriola of Naugatuck suggested the office of state education commissioner be restructured to make the commissioner accountable to the governor.

Two full busloads of Manchester residents will go to New York Saturday for the rally in support of a nuclear arms freeze.

The rally will be staged in conjunction with the United Nations special session on disarmament.

Christine Joyer, coordinator of the Manchester Nuclear Arms Freeze Coalition, said the two full buses — each carrying 47 people — will leave Manchester at 7 a.m. Saturday. The cost for the bus trip is $12 round trip.

She said there is no more room on the Manchester buses, but she has been referring other Manchester people looking for transportation to New York to Hartford arms freeze organizers, who are running several buses.

The Manchester buses will arrive at Hunting Park Station in Queens and the group will ride public transportation to Grand Central Station.

There they will meet the rest of the Hartford area delegation. They will join the march, which will run past the United Nations building to Central Park, where there will be speakers and music.

The crowd is expected to number in the hundreds of thousands.

O'Neill urged to fire Shedd

HARTFORD (UPI) — Republicans continued their attack on Gov. William O'Neill for failing to order the removal of state Education Commissioner Mark Shedd.

It was the second day of growing criticism by Republicans against O'Neill, who is seeking election in his first term in November.

Republican gubernatorial candidate Richard Bozzuto and House Minority Leader Ralph E. Van Norstrand of Darien Thursday both called for Shedd's dismissal because of the latest error committed by his department in calculating state education grants to communities.

"They charged O'Neill was 'hiding behind' the state Board of Education, which reprimanded Shedd and his deputy, Theodore Sergi, for failing to report the error they at first described as 'an adjustment,'" Bozzuto said.

It was the second disciplining of Shedd and Sergi by the board. Last year, they were fined a portion of their salaries for a $29-million error in the awarding of education grants to towns.

Shedd had told the board he made a judgment error and was sorry for failing to tell board members in March there was an error in one part of the way school grants had been computed since 1977.

The error was discovered by a special auditing branch created within the department as a result of the 1981 error.

The error involved counting all welfare children up to 21 in calculating the Guaranteed Tax Base grants to towns instead of only children 5 to 18.

O'Neill said Wednesday he was still upset over the latest error but added that Shedd's office is under control of the state board and it was the board's responsibility to deal with him.

The governor also indicated he would have done more than issue a reprimand if Shedd had been directly responsible to him.

Bozzuto called the reprimand of Shedd "an orchestrated political charade" and said O'Neill should direct the board, which he appointed, to remove Shedd.

Bozzuto, at a Capitol news conference, also proposed that the responsibility for handling the Guaranteed Tax Base formula, which determines payments to communities, be transferred from Shedd's department to the state Office of Policy and Management.

Van Norstrand said the formula was a complicated mess "that no one really understands" and which was providing education funds disproportionately to communities.

On Wednesday, two other Republican gubernatorial candidates attacked O'Neill on the issue.

Sen. Russell Post of Canton proposed what he called a simple "bottoms up" funding formula that would give the poorest towns the most state aid and the richest communities the least.

Sen. Gerald Labriola of Naugatuck suggested the office of state education commissioner be restructured to make the commissioner accountable to the governor.

Windfall going to town

The extra $23,000 in state education grants due Manchester — because of the state's error in computing the Guaranteed Tax Base formula — will go to the town's general fund, not the Board of Education's coffers, General Manager Robert B. Weiss said Thursday.

The error, dating back to 1977, involved counting all welfare children up to age 21 when calculating the GTB distribution, instead of counting just children aged 5 to 18.

School Superintendent James P. Kennedy said this week that best estimates show the town will receive about $23,000 more in 1982-83 than originally anticipated.

Weiss said the schools will not see that money because the school budget already is set.

"The Board of Education budget is based pretty much on their need," said Weiss. He said the amount of money provided by the state does not determine the school budget.

"If we were to take that approach of passing the $23,000 on to the schools, then we would cut the money in their budget that was estimated for Project Concern," added Weiss.

Project Concern, a voluntary busing program which places inner-city Hartford children in suburban schools, is being phased out by Hartford. But money budgeted for the program by the town will remain in the Board of Education's budget.

Weiss was not certain where the $23,000 would be used. But he said it would come in handy in handling unanticipated costs that might arise over the course of the fiscal year.

Two full busloads of Manchester residents will go to New York Saturday for the rally in support of a nuclear arms freeze.

The rally will be staged in conjunction with the United Nations special session on disarmament.

Christine Joyer, coordinator of the Manchester Nuclear Arms Freeze Coalition, said the two full buses — each carrying 47 people — will leave Manchester at 7 a.m. Saturday. The cost for the bus trip is $12 round trip.

She said there is no more room on the Manchester buses, but she has been referring other Manchester people looking for transportation to New York to Hartford arms freeze organizers, who are running several buses.

The Manchester buses will arrive at Hunting Park Station in Queens and the group will ride public transportation to Grand Central Station.

There they will meet the rest of the Hartford area delegation. They will join the march, which will run past the United Nations building to Central Park, where there will be speakers and music.

The crowd is expected to number in the hundreds of thousands.

Accident aftermath

Police had no details this morning on an accident that occurred just after 9:30 a.m. at the corner of Charter Oak and Main streets. A Ford station wagon and a subcontract car were involved in the accident, witnesses said. One driver was taken to the hospital and the other apparently was uninjured, witnesses said. The accident also took down a street sign and a portion of chain link fencing.

Clergy more committed to n-freeze

HARTFORD (UPI) — Church leaders are far more committed to nuclear disarmament than average churchgoers, a Hartford Seminary survey indicates.

Despite the leadership of church groups in the nuclear disarmament movement, those who consider themselves religious were more likely to favor increased production of nuclear weapons in order to keep up with the Soviet Union than a unilateral nuclear arms freeze. The survey, released Thursday, shows that 53 percent of non-religious people were more likely to favor increased production of nuclear weapons in order to keep up with the Soviet Union than a unilateral nuclear arms freeze.

Dubiel wins trip drawing

Joseph J. Dubiel of 18 Saxa Drive was the winner of the Downtown Merchant's trip to Longwood Gardens outside Philadelphia. The drawing was held June 5 at the Heritage Savings and Loan Association.

The trip takes Dubiel into the heart of Pennsylvania bountiful country. The rolling farmland surrounding the gardens is cut by grass lanes used for fall and winter fox hunting.

The gardens themselves, founded by the Duponts, consist of acres of outdoor fountains, lawns, sculptured hedges and flowers. The Longwood greenhouses feature a bucolic indoor pond and brook as well as exhibits of plants from tropical to desert climates.

New York salvages series finale

BOSTON (UPI) — On a night when Dave Righetti flurried — and failed — with immortality, the Boston Red Sox let him off the hook by showing their own fallibility in the field for the first time this year. Righetti, the brilliant young Yankee southpaw, took a no-hitter into the seventh inning Thursday night, but he never made it to the eighth.

The Yankees averted a sweep, and a sixth straight loss, thanks to a combined four-hitter by Righetti and Rich Gossage. Righetti, 4-4, came within eight outs of pitching the first no-hitter in Fenway Park since 1955. He never made it, but he's just as happy the team won.

allowed two costly unearned runs in the seventh and another back-breaker in the eighth. All three runs came without a hit. In the seventh, the Yankees had two men on base when Dutch Hobson left a two-out fly to left center. Jim Rice finally reached the ball after a long run, but he didn't hold onto it. Two runs scored, and a 2-0 game turned into a 4-0 game.

Night Satchel was a no show

What difference did it make how old Satchel Paige was? He was a legend in his time. Reportedly, but not confirmed, Paige was 75 when he died Tuesday in Kansas City. Considered the greatest of all Negro pitchers, Paige was 41 when he finally got a chance to pitch in the major leagues and quickly distinguished himself as he did for a quarter century in the Negro National League.

During his baseball umpiring career one of the assignments was to work the plate for Hartford in an exhibition game against the St. Louis Browns. Despite his advanced age he was the biggest.

Paige never made it. The Browns came and had earlier looted for the New York Yankees. He was scheduled to pitch two or three innings at Bulkeley Stadium and an overflow crowd of better than 10,000 jammed into the Franklin Avenue park to watch the exhibition and to get a look at Paige. It was anxious to call his well-publicized "hesitation pitch."

Naturally, many of the fans were disappointed when Paige was a no show but few left or asked for their money back. Courtney's secret: The Browns' visit provided one of the funniest incidents in my ball and strike calling days.

The major leaguers got an early jump and after several innings held a 6-0 lead. The late Clint Courtney was catching. He was one of the first catchers to wear glasses and had earlier looted for the New York Yankees.

Curtis kept ball low in win over Astros

By Mike Tully
UPI Sports Writer
John Curtis turned in a real low-down performance. "I can count on one hand the number of pitches he threw above the waist," San Diego catcher Terry Kennedy said Thursday after Curtis fired a two-hitter to lead the Padres to a 5-0 victory over the Houston Astros.

"I hit three balls good and make out four in many games," anybody could've done it but I was up at the time. "I don't start thinking home run. I just go out and hit the ball and it goes out."

Answers due tonight on Gerry Cooney

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Today there are a lot of questions about Gerry Cooney. Tonight there will be a lot of answers. Cooney, the top-ranked contender, takes on scheduled 15-round title bout, Holmes, who is 39-0 with 29 knockouts, won the title four years ago and will be making his 12th title defense. And while Holmes has faced what might be considered tougher opposition, his title against Cooney in a parking lot at Caesars Palace probably will be one of his most memorable defenses.

"I don't think he deserves the No. 1 ranking, he hasn't fought anyone. He hasn't paid his dues... if he wasn't white do you think he'd be the No. 1 contender?" — Larry Holmes

Norton — came against "name" fighters but fighters considered past their prime. Cooney has fought only 86 rounds in his entire career. "The thing that bothers me about Gerry Cooney is that he stepped over a lot of people to get where he is," Holmes said. "I don't think he deserves the No. 1 ranking. He hasn't fought anyone. He hasn't paid his dues. I'm going to be called a racist but let's be realistic. If he wasn't white, do you think he'd be the No. 1 contender for beating Dino Dennis? There are a lot of guys out there like Greg Page and Michael Dokes who have fought better competition and deserve to be ranked ahead of him."

Weiss denies hiring bias

General Manager Robert B. Weiss has prepared a memorandum for the Board of Directors and the Human Relations Commission defending his administration from charges that it lacks a commitment to the spirit of affirmative action.

Weiss also said that members of the Human Relations Commission had found inaccuracies on the lists, that he would correct them, that he would be a better approach than publicly criticizing the administration.

Fisher criticized the emphasis on listing resumes as a "mechanical" approach to affirmative action. But Weiss said personal contact with all the resources is impossible.

Fisher charged that a copy of the job description was advertised without noting that commitment to equal opportunity hiring. He pointed to that as an example of his charge that the administration was not taking routine steps, on a day-to-day basis, to promote affirmative action hiring.

Weiss said Thursday that, in the future, all advertisements for the town jobs also will include a clause encouraging minorities, women and handicapped to apply. Weiss said the format for the assistant general manager's position was identical to the format the state uses to advertise its positions.

Fisher also criticized the administration for producing a list of resource people and organizations which the town contacts to find minority job applicants — which contained inaccuracies.

Smith may post bail; rape reports persist

A state police investigator said today that David Neil Smith, 30, of East Hartford, charged Thursday with attempted murder in the rape of a young woman in Bolton May 28, has the resources to post bail. As of late this morning he was still being held at the Hartford Correctional Center, an official said.

Party to benefit the Arts Council

The garden of Mr. and Mrs. Ludia Upenick, 20 Green Hill Drive in Bolton will be the setting Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. for an elegant cocktail party and craft exhibit to benefit the Manchester Arts Council.

Artist John Hull concentrates as he shapes a pot on a wheel.

Small perfume bottles to large sculpture forms. David Rachel, who calls his work "rotational forms in wood," will also exhibit, and Dabria Popovits will display woven jackets.

Uggams' return to Broadway disappointing

By Glenn Currie
UPI Lively Arts Editor
NEW YORK — Leslie Uggams returned to Broadway June 2 after an absence of 14 years in a damp squib of a cabaret show pretending to be a musical called "Blues in the Night."

News channel opens June 21

By Kenneth R. Clark
UPI TV Reporter
STAMFORD — Not even David Marriot said full dress rehearsal on Broadway a month before opening night, but then the people who will raise the curtain June 21 on the Satellite News Channel never expect their show to close.

Sunday Brunch At The Brewery
 • Our antique buffet abounds with fresh fruits, strawberries, Chantilly, and our pastry chef's creations — mud pie, doughnuts, and nut breads — still warm from the oven.
 • On the desert side you'll find cheesecake, chocolate mousse, napoleons, fresh cakes, and more — it's all included in the price of your brunch!
 • Treat yourself to our Brownstone Special — a tender filet topped with a poached egg, artichoke hearts, and smothered in a rich Bearnaise sauce — or try our thick cuts of French toast served with New Hampshire maple syrup — or select another one of our enticing entrees.
 • Your first Bloody Mary, Screwdriver, or glass of Champagne is on the house and all other brunch libations are Happy Hour priced! 11 am - 2 pm

'Elephants' exciting, classy

By Kenneth R. Clark
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK — I.H. Mauro once wrote "Women and elephants never forget an injury." Wednesday, CBS will prove his point—at least as to one peckish pachyderm that walked 50 miles with a contract on the life of veterinarian Ian Hoffman.

The vengeful behemoth, which looked Hoffmeier up and did everything she could to kill him weeks after he evicted her from her home, is one of several featured in a superb documentary titled "The Last Round-up of the Elephants."

"Round-up," which airs from 8-9 p.m., is more than just another sad tale of vanishing species. It is a graphic story of the heroic effort being made by the government of Sri Lanka to preserve the few Asian elephants that remain on earth. The days of the American west are charged, seemingly right down the camera lens.

Only 40,000 remain of the millions that once roamed from India to Malaysia.

SRI LANKA has set aside game preserves to protect them, but to get the elephants from farm lands, where farmers routinely pepper their hides and eyes with buckshot, to the preserves presents a massive logistical problem.

One does not simply put a leash on a wild elephant and lead him away, and in action-packed film footage shot by eminent wildlife photographer Dieter Plage, the rowdiest roundup since the days of the American west is chronicled.

The effort nearly cost Plage his life. Like the professional he is, he stood his ground until the last heart-stopping second as a 1-ton rogue bull—blinded by shotgun-wielding farmers on whose crops he had been dining—charged, seemingly right down the camera lens.

Plage—film still rolling—tumbled aside just in time.

Through Plage's camera, elephants are seen being captured and tamed by tribesmen who have made elephant-baiting their profession for generations.

THE DOCUMENTARY covers elephants at work, elephants at play and—through rare archival film footage from the turn of the century—elephants in arena battle for the amusement of majarajas who once trained them as engines of war.

Hoffmeier, the veterinarian who earned the cow elephant's wrath when he dropped her with a tranquilizer dart and hauled her—without her ailing calf—to the game preserve in a truck, is one of several experts engaged in Sri Lanka's effort to save at least a breeding token of the species.

"Last Round-up"—which carries an added note of class through narration by Jason Robards—is one of those rare gems that now and then surface on prime-time television.

U.S. executive debunks Japanese myths

By Philip Greer and Myron Kandel

William Sovey, president of AMF Inc., likes to tell the story of the 7-foot-tall Japanese jogger he and some of his fellow executives saw during a fact-finding trip to Japan last year. "If he were the first or only Japanese we'd seen, we might have thought all Japanese were giants," Sovey points out. "But instead, that experience underscored the importance of seeing lots of different people and different facilities first-hand in order to get a proper view of how Japanese industry really works."

Sovey says that story to make the point that some of the "myths" of Japanese industrial supremacy need to be put into better perspective before being accepted as gospel by American managers.

"Take the concept of so-called lifetime employment, for example," he says. "The idea that all Japanese workers are guaranteed jobs for life just isn't true. Sovey contends, noting that it only applies to about 25 percent of the Japanese work force, mainly at larger companies, and it generally doesn't include women. And except for senior managers, he adds, the mandatory retirement age is usually 55.

Another MYTH, Sovey told us, is the supposed widespread existence of workerless factories, where robots take over the functions of humans. In the plants of the four Japanese companies the AMF executive task force visited, he said he saw much use of automated materials-handling equipment. "But we saw only one real robot, and that was made by AMF about 10 years ago," he added.

However, Sovey did point out that Japanese industry is aggressively expanding the use of robots. "Of the 86,000 robots in operation in 1980, about 20,000 were built that year," he said, "and robot production is expected to grow by about 35 to 50 percent a year."

Despite his words of caution about accepting all the stories about the vaunted Japanese industrial system at face value, Sovey is full of admiration for many of its aspects. "The great loyalty between the Japanese employee and his employer is not a myth," he stresses, "and it does result in improved productivity and performance."

SOME JAPANESE managers describe it as the "Japanese soil," which enables concepts like quality control, dedication to the company's success and high productivity to be planted, grow and prosper, he adds.

ONE REASON JAPANESE managers can take a longer-term view, he told us, is because of their order of priorities. The companies his group visited, he said, made it clear that the interests of their employees came first. Next came their customers and, finally, their stockholders. That's in contrast to the American emphasis on trying to please the shareholders, which the Japanese say results in short-range thinking.

But Sovey points out that the shares of many big Japanese companies are primarily held by financial institutions and other large pension funds in this country.

In some two dozen trips to Japan, the AMF executive has also come to admire the Japanese emphasis on quality. "They do an incredibly good job in quality control," he says. "We try to inspect it in, but they try to design it in."

In addition to quality, Sovey says, Japanese products are designed to minimize manufacturing costs. American companies, he notes, should put some emphasis on getting the manufacturing engineer deeply involved in the design process well before the design of a product is frozen.

In a joint statement, Hartford National and Mattuck said they hoped the revised application would address concerns that prompted the Federal Reserve to reject their initial application in March.

"We feel that this revised agreement will help ensure its completion," said Joel B. Alford, president of Hartford National Corp., parent firm of Hartford National Bank.

A key point in the revised application deals with Hartford National's pending merger with Connecticut National Bank of Bridgeport, which has been put on hold by a suit brought by Hartford National shareholders.

N.H. bond problems unchanged

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Moody's Investment Services, which dropped New Hampshire's bond rating earlier this year, continues to be troubled about the state's finances, says a spokesman for the New York-based firm.

"I think there are disturbing things" in the state's fiscal situation, Claire Cohen said Thursday while emphasizing no new formal bond rating review has begun.

"We have of course been keeping up with things. It would appear to me that the problems are far from being resolved," she said, adding a new review could be done in mid-July when the state hopes to have another bond issue.

In early March, Moody's dropped New Hampshire's bond rating two notches from the top rank of AAA, citing the state's "lack of substantive action to solve the growing cash and financial problems."

Bond ratings give potential investors an indication of the state's financial situation. The higher the rating, the less the state pays in interest on those bonds.

Ms. Cohen noted a supplemental budget to address the problems raised when the bond rating was lowered has yet to be passed, although the House Wednesday adopted a new $50 million plan.

Hartford National is working to get its mergers going

HARTFORD (UPI) — Hartford National Corp. moved today to get its merger plans with two other banks back on track following the deal of one of the planned combinations in court and the other by a federal regulatory agency.

Hartford National announced Thursday a revised application would be filed with the Federal Reserve Board for approval of its planned acquisition of Mattuck Bank and Trust Co. of Waterbury.

In a joint statement, Hartford National and Mattuck said they hoped the revised application would address concerns that prompted the Federal Reserve to reject their initial application in March.

"We feel that this revised agreement will help ensure its completion," said Joel B. Alford, president of Hartford National Corp., parent firm of Hartford National Bank.

A key point in the revised application deals with Hartford National's pending merger with Connecticut National Bank of Bridgeport, which has been put on hold by a suit brought by Hartford National shareholders.

Realtors receive awards

The Realtor of the Year award was presented to two members of the Manchester Board of Realtors Inc. at a recent luncheon of the group at Manchester Country Club.

Lorraine B. Boutin was awarded the Professional Standards Committee award. Ms. Boutin is serving her second consecutive term as a state director and member of the Board of Directors of the Manchester board. She has also been active on several committees and is currently the treasurer of the local chapter of the Women's Council of Realtors.
