Word processing - the exploding career

If you are a young man or woman seeking a career in a field certain to boom, to give you a dynamic future and already one of the fastest growing, exciting careers available, the job is...

Word processor operator.

There's a definite shortage of workers today — and youngsters who get in on the ground floor now will be the ones to move up as this technological revolution demands new services in every conceivable way.

Word processing may, in fact, be your survival kit by the year 1990 — only eight years from now. "The profession of new technology that's either here or on the drawing board will change the way we work," says William Orlson, chief executive officer of the company bearing his name and a leader in the word processing field.

"By the year 2010 there will be no video display terminal (VDT) for every office employee," predicts Bernard Schwartz, director of communications for the International Information/Word Processing Association, a professional association in the field.

There are more than a million word-processing systems already installed in offices across the country. Connie Taylor, president of the word-processing association, tells of a typical example of a woman who was selected several years ago from a secretarial pool and offered a chance to learn the electronic equipment her company installed.

about being replaced by machines (as in today's movies). But on the contrary, word-processing systems will liberate the office worker by mechanizing routine office operations and helping you to work more efficiently, at a higher level.

By definition, word processing is the use of electronic equipment to type, edit, print and permanently store information for future use. Once typed into the word-processing system, the information can be revised and reprinted at any time in the future.

To start, your first step will be preparing yourself for an initial job as a word-processor trainee. In this job, your functions will include: routine transcription and manipulation of text from various types of source information (dictation or handwriting). You also will proofread and maintain production records. You need adequate typing skills (45 words a minute), and a good knowledge of grammar, punctuation, spelling and the English language; ability to use dictionaries, handbooks, other reference materials; good reading comprehension; willingness to work; a desire for accuracy; curiosity about the new machines; an orientation toward teamwork.

There's nothing in the above that wouldn't apply to any good office worker. Once trained and experienced, you move into a job as a word-processor operator. For this, you will have the added responsibility of handling special documents; using all of a machine's text editing functions; learning your company's practices and department's terminology.

The entire field of "information specialists" will now be open to you and your career advancement — and this covers an enormous variety of individual jobs. Top information managers in charge of the entire range of sophisticated corporate communications earn up to $50,000 a year.

The rate of pay at various levels varies according to your region. A 1982 word-processing association survey put average weekly salaries of beginners at $212.90. The high was set at $482. The average hourly pay ranged from $5 to $12 per hour.

You can find a wide range of training programs; college and private school courses, some leading to associate or even bachelor degrees; community colleges offering non-degree programs running two or three semesters; even high schools. It's all there — eagerly looking for you.

Fare hike eyed

HARTFORD — Greyhound Bus Line Inc. is proposing a 20 percent fare increase, blaming higher costs for labor, materials, supplies and equipment, the state Department of Transportation said Friday.

DOT Commissioner J. William Burns said Greyhound, which provides service throughout the state, said it had increased operating expenses in a real threat to maintaining the bus industry in Connecticut.

Greyhound was granted an average 12 percent fare hike and a reorganized rate structure in November 1981.

Under the proposed rates, for example, the fare for Hartford to Greenwich would increase from $6.60 to $7.90. The New Britain to Bridgeport ride would increase from $3.70 to $4.45, and Greenwich to New Haven — $3.55 to $4.25.

A hearing on the fare increase will be held Thursday at the DOT building in Wethersfield.

Closings likely

CONCORD, N.H. — Already involved in a labor dispute which may force some New Hampshire state liquor stores to close Sundays, the Liquor Commission said Friday that six stores may close for the year Sept. 1 due to budget woes.

Liquor Commissioner Lyle Heronson said the commission has asked for a waiver of the 5 percent cut in personnel expenses mandated of all state agencies in the supplemental budget that took effect July 1.

Without a waiver, Heronson said the 5 percent cut would cost the commission about $400,000 and force some state liquor stores to close.

In addition to closing the stores, Heronson said the commission would fire 15 employees. He said the closings and firings and a reduction in hours other stores are open on Sundays and holidays would cover the 5 percent cut in personnel costs.

Sale planned

HARTFORD — A major New York banking firm has submitted a plan outlining a way for the city to sell the Civic Center coliseum and exhibition hall and use some of the proceeds to improve roads, schools and bridges.

Salomon Brothers Inc. is the only company to submit a proposal so far to the City Council, which is looking for a way to take advantage of loopholes in the 1981 Federal Tax Act.

The company recommended the city make a decision by Sept. 15 because the loopholes that make such a transaction possible are likely to be changed by January 1983.

The City Council will meet Monday night, and the plan probably will be referred for discussion to the council's Operations and Budget Committee, said Majority Leader Antoinette L. Leone.

Air raids threatening evacuation

By Mona A. Zide United Press International

Israeli warplanes bombed Palestinian artillery positions east of Beirut today, threatening U.S.-led efforts to arrange the peaceful evacuation of the guerrillas from the Lebanese capital.

The air raids were ordered in retaliation for shelling from Palestinian positions that caused Israeli casualties in the Beirut area, an Israeli military spokesman in Tel Aviv said.

"The terrorist cannot make these attacks were sited in the alignment of Syrian forces east of Beirut," the Israeli spokesman said.

In Beirut, Lebanese security officials said the Israeli planes struck at Syrian artillery positions in Bwarej, the Kneish mountain region and the village of Tarshish 25 miles northeast of the capital.

The warplanes scored direct hits on the Syrian positions during the 20-minute air raid, but casualty figures and losses were not immediately known, the Lebanese sources said.

Earlier, artillery and mortar duels erupted between Israeli forces and Palestinian guerrillas in Beirut. Shells hit residential neighborhoods in both the eastern and western sectors.

The renewed fighting came as U.S. envoy Philip Habib, buoyed by a major Israeli concession, held talks with U.S. and French army officials on their planned roles in evacuating the 8,000 Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas from west Beirut.

In Jerusalem, a senior official said Israel now believes, as does the United States, the PLO is in fact willing to leave Lebanon.

"If they (the Americans) still need some time to find places for the rest of them, they can have it," the official said. "Our condition is that we are willing to wait as long as there is a timetable."

Concern deadline Thursday

By Nancy Thompson Herald Reporter

Time will run out Thursday on efforts to save the entire Project Concern bus program, a Manchester school official said today.

The Hartford Board of Education is scheduled to meet Thursday with representatives of suburban school districts, including Manchester, to offer a new proposal for financing the program, according to Wilson E. Deakin Jr., Manchester's assistant superintendent of schools for administration and personnel.

Deakin said lawyers for the Hartford board and the state Department of Education are studying the proposal, which would replace a state-sponsored plan to split the costs of the students' transportation among Hartford and the suburban districts.

Deakin said that original state plan — which would cost Manchester about $20,000 for its contribution to busing inner-city students to schools in town — is not acceptable to Manchester officials because the money would have to be taken out of the current year's budget, which is already set.

Deakin said, however, that the Hartford board is exploring something now that may get us out of pulling money out of our budget."

He declined to reveal details of the plan before Thursday's meeting.

THAT MEETING will be the last chance for an agreement to preserve the entire program, Deakin said, because school begins in three weeks and students have to be notified of their status and scheduled into classes.

If a potential settlement comes out of the Thursday meeting, Deakin said, the Manchester Board of Education will hold a special meeting before the next scheduled meeting on Aug. 30. Deakin said he has discussed the details of the Hartford proposal with board Chairman Leonard E. Seader.

Drug bust in Bolton

By Richard Cody Herald Reporter

Lawrence Pesce, 30, of 115 Brandy St., Boy Scout Troop 78 master, was expected to turn himself in late this morning to State Police, Sgt. William Buchert of the Statewide Narcotics Task Force said today.

Arrested during the 7 p.m. raid was Walter Bavier, 35, of the same address.

They said this raid and the subsequent arrests solve a three-month investigation into the heart of the drug dealing in this area.

Buchert said police found in the home one pound of hashish with a street value of $3,300, one-half ounce of cocaine worth $1,000 and two pounds of marijuana, worth $1,000.

He said they confiscated a considerable amount of paraphernalia, Buchert said.

Buchert said police at this time have made no connection between the two men's alleged drug dealings and the Boy Scout troop members.

But he said the raid plunged a knife into the heart of the major distribution of these types of drugs in and around the Bolton area.

Bavier was released on a $2,000 non-surety bond with a Tolland County Superior Court date of Aug. 23. Police are seeking a $5,000 bond on Pesce with a similar court date, Buchert said.

The investigation was carried out by the eastern division of the Statewide Narcotics Task Force with the help of Troop K of the State Police in Colchester.

It'll be 'cops and robbers' with satellite TV

Editor's note: This story, about the "boom" of cable television, is the first in a four-part series on the future of the medium. Others in the series, to be published this week, cover the network vs. cable battle, the opportunities for the home viewer, and forecasts of cable TV fare this century.

Only technicians call the things "parabolic antennas." The television industry calls them "earth stations" or "downlinks" or, more simply, "dishes," but call them what you will, they are becoming the electronic pickpockets of the space age.

A three-meter dish, aimed at a communications satellite in geosynchronous orbit 25,000 miles high, can read any unscrubbed message it carries — and that includes fare produced by PolyGram, Home Box Office, Showtime and a growing host of other cable television producers with signals for sale.

There was a time when such dishes were the exclusive property of people in the high-tech communications industry. Since no one had to worry much about piracy, nobody bothered to scramble, or encode, their signals.

Now, however, anyone with roughly $5,000 to spare and space to park an earth station dish can have one of his very own. About 15,000 of them now squat in back yards or perch on rooftops across the nation, siphoning signals from satellites for people who aren't paying a dime for the view.

When the dish was strictly a rich man's toy, cable operators and producers like Horowitz struggled and looked the other way, but as demand grows and the price comes down, the struggling has stopped.

Without footpads scrambling, producers stand to lose their royalties and programmers stand to lose paying customers — all to the potential tune of millions of dollars a year.

"There will be one massive electronic decode," Horowitz said of an immediate future in which anyone with a signal worth hearing up to the satellite will be forced to scramble it first.

"It will be like cops and robbers," he said. "The cops are going to be those people who introduce technology to prevent people from taking a signal without paying for it."

"The robbers will be those with the technology that will say to you, 'Hey, listen — why say those turkeys 20 bucks a month? I'll sell you a decoding device that will be unscramble it for a one-time charge of $100.'"

"It will be a constant technological battle between the guys who are sending the signal and the guys who want to rip it off."

Robbin Ahrold of Home Box Office — which serves up pay-TV plays and movies for more than 9 million subscribers in more than 3,600 communities — was in accord.

He said HBO — now easily commandeered by anyone with a backyard dish — will start scrambling its signal early next year, but he holds no contempt for the skill of those sky pirates who are bound to take up the challenge.

"Our technical people say anything that can be devised by man in the way of a code can be broken by another man, given enough resources and enough time."

To preclude that possibility, HBO — backed by the financial resources

News Briefing

Ankara death toll increased to nine

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — Police searched today for accomplices of the Armenians who exploded a bomb and sprayed machine-gun fire in an airport massacre that killed nine people, including an American woman, and wounded 74 others.

The death toll in Saturday's bombing and two-hour shootout at Ankara International Airport rose to nine Sunday when airport manager Erdogan Batisaner died of wounds suffered in the assault.

A group claiming to be the Armenian Secret Army for the Liberation of Armenia tossed a bomb in an airport lounge and then opened fire with machine guns.

Security forces shot and killed one of the gunmen, who had traveled to Turkey on a forged Turkish passport, and wounded the other, a French national identified as Levan Ekmelekian, 25.

The terrorists entered the country on separate commercial flights from Syria to Istanbul, where they met and planned the attack, police said.

Terrorists strike outside synagogue

PARIS (UPI) — Four gunmen fired automatic pistols into a kosher restaurant and a crowd outside a synagogue today, killing up to six people and wounding 12 others in what police called France's worst terror attack ever against Jews.

"This was a deliberate anti-Semitic attack," a police officer said.

Firing their pistols wildly, the gunmen fled into the maze of narrow streets of the old Marais quarter, a centuries-old Jewish district near the Notre Dame Cathedral. Police said they killed several people in their escape.

"They were shooting blindly in all directions," a witness said.

Police said it was unclear how many people were killed or wounded in the attack because some died on their way to surgery rooms, while others were dead by the time emergency Red Cross teams pushed their way through the mid-day traffic to the blood-spattered sidewalk.

But they said between three and six people were killed and a dozen were wounded. A police spokesman said the four gunmen stepped into the famous Goldenberg's restaurant on the narrow Rue des Rosiers, sprayed bullets at the lunchtime crowd and fired into people outside the nearby synagogue as they fled.

Gangs, police clash in Ulster

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Roving gangs clashed with police, that robbing and set bonfires today on the 11th anniversary of detention without trial.

Four policemen were injured and 40 people were arrested in Belfast. Crowd violence was reported in Belfast, Londonderry, Cookstown and Armagh.

Police said in each town several groups of 10 to 20 people took part in the disturbances, throwing stones and building bonfires between midnight at 2 a.m. before police regained control.

Police said the disturbances were less serious than in previous years marking the anniversary of Britain's introduction of regulations allowing detention of terrorist suspects without formal trial.

In a separate incident, police said a man was taken to a hospital in the Catholic Lower Falls area of Belfast early today with a gunshot wound in his ankle. The attack reportedly was an Irish Republican Army punishment shooting.

Today in history

On Aug. 9, 1974 President Nixon's resignation became effective at noon and Vice President Gerald Ford was sworn in as the nation's 38th chief executive. Chief Justice Warren Burger administers the oath.

USAir narrowly avoided strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — USAir narrowly avoided a strike at midnight Sunday that would have affected its flights in 38 cities when it agreed tentatively with airline mechanics and machinists on a new contract.

A spokesman for Robert Harris, chairman of the National Mediation Board, declined to disclose terms of the pact.

Nearly 2,000 members of Local 1976 of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers were poised to walk off their jobs at 12:01 a.m. Monday if they had no new contract by then.

Airline management and union representatives held talks Sunday under auspices of the National Mediation Board.

Had the talks failed and the strike gone through, the airline was ready to operate at 30 percent of its normal schedule, with supervisory employees taking over jobs, according to USAir spokesman Jack King.

Local 1976 negotiator Victor Mazzocco Saturday said the main stumbling blocks in negotiations were "primarily wages and a couple of concessions the company seeks that don't go over well with the membership."

Civil Air Patrol hunts for plane

DANBURY (UPI) — The Civil Air Patrol searched today for a small plane that changed course and then disappeared from radar monitors in bad weather.

The plane, a Cessna 310 with only the pilot aboard, had left Suffolk Airport on Long Island for Teterboro, N.J., but was instructed to land at Danbury due to bad weather about 2 a.m.

Name of the pilot was not immediately disclosed.

Crews searched by ground today for the plane. Heavy rain kept Air Force from sending aircraft to assist in the search.

Air Patrol spokesman Charles Perrault said no signals from an emergency locator transmitter had been detected. Aircraft are required to carry the transmitters, which are designed to emit signals if a plane crashes.

Boss's daughter

At Playboy, the boss's daughter has become the boss. She is Christie Hefner, 29, slim, brunette and the youngest of Playboy founder Hugh Hefner.

According to an article in Fortune magazine, she could put the floundering Playboy empire back on track.

According to Fortune, she was a brilliant student at Brandeis University, graduating summa cum laude in 1974. She has plenty of drive, organizational skill and — unlike her father — she likes balance sheets, daytime business hours and exercising authority on a day-to-day basis.

She has no formal business education and a sometimes brusque manner, but she also can be friendly and funny, including making cracks about some of her father's former girlfriends. What's Pop doing these days? He's concentrating on Playboy's cable TV show and playing his favorite video game, Donkey Kong.

Toto goes on

For Bobby Kimball, lead vocalist of the pop group Toto, the show really must go on.

Kimball tripped over a monitor speaker onstage during the last song of a Nashville concert on Toto's current tour. He tore a ligament in his knee and was scheduled for surgery at nearby Baptist hospital to reattach the ligament to the bone.

But the night before the operation, Kimball insisted on checking out and traveling to Chattanooga, where he performed sitting behind a keyboard to hide his grossly swollen knee.

Then back to the hospital, surgery the next morning and 48 hours later he resumed the tour in

Economics cost Reagan support

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A lack of confidence in President Reagan's economic program has resulted in the defection of more than a third of the voters who backed him in 1980, a poll shows.

A Los Angeles Times poll published Sunday indicated that 40 percent said they wanted him renominated by the Republican Party in 1984, a total of 35 percent said they wanted the GOP to dump him.

The remainder refused to respond, saying they were too uninformed to have an opinion or had not yet decided. The poll's margin of error was plus or minus 3 percent.

The survey — taken among Republicans, Democrats and independents — was based on 1,102 telephone interviews conducted nationwide during five days ending July 7 in which respondents were asked, "Whom would you like to see the Republicans nominate for President in 1984?"

The findings, according to the poll, suggest a new political alignment may be developing, with many members of the Democratic coalition who drifted to the Republican Party in 1980 now drifting again. Disturbed by difficult economic conditions, their votes are up for grabs and a mass defection could cost the Republicans the presidency in 1984.

Convict intends to die Tuesday

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Convicted murderer Frank Coppola stood firm on his wish to die in the electric chair and prayers were offered for him at Catholic churches despite his refusal to meet with a priest.

Coppola, 38, a former police officer convicted of beating a woman to death during a robbery, will be executed at 11 p.m. Tuesday barring a last-minute commutation or legal intervention.

Coppola says he would rather die than live on Death Row. He has refused visits from clergy for months and fired his lawyers in April after years of failed appeals.

Coppola has asked state officials not to disclose the identity of his final visitors, a spokesman said late Sunday.

"He has requested privacy and we have honored that," state Corrections Department spokesman Wayne Farrar said. "We think he is entitled to that."

Joe Ingle, director of the Southern Coalition on Prisons and Jails in Nashville, Tenn., who has tried to dissuade Coppola from going ahead with the execution, was to speak to the convicts man again today.

Coppola said he wanted a summer execution so that his two sons — Frank, 14, and Anthony, 13 — would not be harassed by schoolmates.

Hunger striker tricked into meal

MOSCOW (UPI) — Yuri Balovlenkov today accepted food for the first time in 36 days because his American wife falsely told him he would be given an exit visa to join her in the United States after his health returned, Elena Balovlenkov said.

Mrs. Balovlenkov, 25, said she told her husband an "untruth" in order to get him to eat for the first time since May 9.

"I've never lied to my husband before, but lying is a lot nicer than watching him die. I'll tell him the truth before I leave," the nurse from Baltimore said.

She said he accepted 30 cc of a liquid diet she brought with her from home.

Balovlenkov, 33, was on hunger strike to win an exit visa to join his wife and 2-year-old daughter in the United States.

Mrs. Balovlenkov said what she told her husband was only "stretching" what actually occurred at an interview with a Soviet visa official.

Debra Winger stars with Richard Gere in the movie "An Officer and a Gentleman," but she also is associated with this summer's blockbuster, "E.T." She is the voice of the extra-terrestrial.

It's an unusual voice that has given her trouble since she was a child, as she discussed with Bill Diehl on ABC Radio.

"I remember the last doctor my mother took me to said, 'She'll grow into it,' Miss Winger said. "I'd have to be 80 to grow into this voice. Then when I got into the business, it worked really against me because I had this all-American face. I wanted to do commercials, and then I talked like a truck driver, you know."

Workers strike British hospitals

LONDON (UPI) — A five-day strike beginning today by 12 million hospital workers demanding pay hikes from the government forced the postponement of 60,000 medical operations, a minister announced today.

Social Services Secretary Norman Fowler, who also said Sunday that hospital appointments were cancelled or postponed for 75,000 outpatients, again flatly rejected demands for a 12 percent pay increase.

"I think the figures show that industrial action is unquestionably affecting patients," he said.

Rodney Bickerstaffe, general secretary of the National Union of Public Employees, the largest in the dispute, said if Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government did not yield, other British unions would be asked to join a massive industrial action.

"If the dispute goes on, we shall be asking for the full support of the whole (British labor) movement," said Bickerstaffe. He said he would ask support from the power, transport and communications unions at its meeting next month.

As with the other limited hospital strikes staged periodically over the past three months, the government ordered troops, police and volunteers to handle emergency health care including ambulances calls in the walkout, which strikers said would last five days.

Rhode Islanders marking 'VJ Day'

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Today was a legal holiday in Rhode Island to commemorate "VJ Day" and the only state that still officially marks America's World War II victory over Japan was having trouble stirring up interest.

By law, the state celebrates the holiday on the second Monday of each August, with the closing of banks, state and local government offices, liquor stores and most industries. But a number of veterans groups don't agree on the date.

Water pressure too high on Porter Street

By Alex Girrell
 Herald City Editor

The Manchester Water Department, plagued with complaints of too little water pressure in some parts of town, apparently is going to have to face up to the problem of too much pressure around Porter Street.

"Things were popping on Porter Street and Kensington Street last week. A toilet tank float broke off at the root in one house, for instance, and while the occupants were out, the tank overflowed, flooding the cellar and damaging a carpet there."

The seams opened up on a water tank. A leak developed in the main pipe to a house. A shut-off broke off in the hands of a householder who tried to turn it when he found a leak. In a couple of cases garden hoses burst open in the hands of people trying to water their lawns.

"It was a comedy of errors" around here, said Mrs. Edward Mortuary of 27 Kensington St.

Several householders contacted by the Manchester Herald this morning told about the problems, but no one was highly critical of the water department. Some said they were notified of a changeover in the system but not notified if another change took place that precipitated the problem.

Frank Jodaitis, water department superintendent, returned from vacation this morning and said he had not yet been briefed on the events. He set out to learn what had been happening. The question is how extensive and expensive the modifications would be.

At the Joseph Chemistrick house at 205 Porter St., the water has been shut off. It was there that the toilet float broke off.

At the Alfred Steels house at 199

Porter, a new water tank already has been installed to replace the one with a burst seam.

At the Richard Carlson house at 302 Porter, the water had to be shut off outdoors when the indoor shutoff broke off. Carlson attempted to use it when he detected a leak in the piping.

This morning Mrs. Edward Mortuary was waiting for a call from an excavator. The water leaks in the main pipe on the Mortuary property and the leak cannot be located without excavation.

Meanwhile the water is still turned on and it's "like the boy holding his finger in dyke."

The Manchester Water Department, plagued with complaints of too little water pressure in some parts of town, apparently is going to have to face up to the problem of too much pressure around Porter Street.

"Things were popping on Porter Street and Kensington Street last week. A toilet tank float broke off at the root in one house, for instance, and while the occupants were out, the tank overflowed, flooding the cellar and damaging a carpet there."

Joblessness: multi-edged, painful sword

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nearly one of every 10 Americans are unemployed — a condition that often breeds crime and despair, rips apart families and cuts U.S. Treasury receipts.

Joblessness is a multi-edged sword and when raised high, as it is today — to a 15-year high of 8.4 percent — it can also cause anxiety about job security among those working.

Dr. M. Harvey Brenner, a researcher at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, conducted an unemployment study based on data from 1960 to 1970. He found that when unemployment rises one percent:

- State prison populations climb 4 percent.
- 4.3 percent more men and 2.3 percent more women enter mental hospitals;
- Suicides increase by 4.1 percent.

The study also found that when unemployment rose 1 percent, and remained there for a six-year period, 1.9 percent more people died from cirrhosis, heart disease and other ailments.

"THE IMPLICATIONS for high unemployment rates go far beyond the individuals themselves," said Brenner. "It has a great deal to do with work stress, and stress on the family."

"As the recession progresses, and things become more difficult, people become personally concerned about their economic survival," he said. "They bring these things home with them. There is great anxiety, hostility and anger."

And there also is the financial impact on Uncle Sam. Government fiscal experts, estimating the 1983 budget, project that for every one percent increase in unemployment next year federal receipts will drop by $28 billion.

About $17 billion of this would be through lost revenue, via income tax receipts, while the other $11 billion would be paid out in benefits, such as food stamps and medical care and unemployment compensation.

One of every five Americans were unemployed at some time during 1981 bringing the total to 23.4 million — 2 million more than the previous year. Nearly 3 million were unemployed for the entire year.

BRENNER SAID the person likely to be most affected by loss of a job is a middle-income, skilled or highly skilled professional — particularly if he is out of work for a long time.

He said if the worker is middle-age or older, it is likely he will not find comparable new employment and a downward mental and physical slide can begin.

"To the extent that a person is bound up in a self-expressive job that cannot easily be replaced, the impact is profound," he said.

When a person loses a job, the first reaction usually is shock, Brenner said.

In some cases, however, there actually may be relief that the worry about the job is over. But, Brenner said, more often than not this emotion is followed by anger.

AS THE ANGER dissipates, the jobless worker generally gets busy trying to find another employment. Brenner says unemployed job seekers start out enthusiastically, but if the search goes on a long time unsuccessfully, many are discouraged, and find it more difficult to approach prospective employers.

The Labor Department says that in June there were a record 1.5 million people too discouraged to look for work.

Brenner said the unemployed person often becomes isolated.

It's time for fall crops

WARMINSTER, Pa. (UPI) — Mid-to late summer, meaning August in most of the United States, is the time to plant fall crops in home gardens, says Dr. Torrey, vegetable research manager for a major seedman.

Varieties that produce good fall crops include lettuce, endive, radishes and spinach. "In mild sections with nearly frost-free winters, planting can continue into autumn," he adds.

President meeting lawmakers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, warned that his economic program is jeopardized by a split among fellow Republicans, faced a new round of lobbying today in a stepped-up drive for passage of a $8.9 billion tax hike.

Reagan unveiled an undisclosed number of lawmakers to the White House in what was described as a "full court press" for the tax increase, expected to emerge from a House-Senate conference committee later this week.

The two meetings follow a series of similar sessions last week and warnings by GOP leaders that Reagan risked a defeat with serious political and economic ramifications by not taking a stronger personal role in the tax fight.

There also were indications Reagan would be forced to deal with House Democratic leaders he successfully bypassed in the tax and budget fights last year through direct appeals to conservative Democrats.

"Last year he had the Bill Wexlers to carry him through," said a source close to the Senate Republican leadership. "This time, there's no buffer. The opposition is coming from his own base of support — the right wing."

John Hinckley's insanity hearing today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government prosecutors who unsuccessfully tried to prove John W. Hinckley Jr. was sane when he shot President Reagan had to show today that Hinckley was and still is insane enough to stay hospitalized.

A federal jury acquitted Hinckley by reason of insanity and he was sent to St. Elizabeths mental hospital 50 days ago. Under law, Hinckley is entitled to ask to be released 50 days after his commitment was violated.

Evidence submitted under seal to Parker by doctors last week is not expected to be presented.

Hinckley was acquitted by reason of insanity of the March 30, 1981, shooting of Reagan, his press secretary James Brady, U.S. Secret Service Agent Timothy McCarthy and former

Protest goes to Bush home

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (UPI) — Carrying messages of peace, about 400 people crowded in front of the summer residence of Vice President George Bush and released hundreds of white balloons into the air in memory of those killed by atomic bombs.

"I'm here because I want to live and I want my children to be able to enjoy the full long life that they deserve," Mary Ames, 31, of Portland, a mother of two children, said Sunday. "We've got to let these people, these so-called representatives of you and I, know that we are not going to sit back and let them destroy our world."

Peace marchers ranging from small children to grey-haired senior citizens met at Dock Square and walked about four miles to the Bush summer retreat at Walkers Point, observers said.

There were no incidents and no arrests were made during the march that was organized by the Kennebec Forum and the York County Concerned Citizens.

At the Bush property, no one was visible as the marchers stopped at the end of the driveway.

However, Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., has led charges by conservatives who argue the increase — far from being essential to recovery — is inconsistent with last year's tax cut and the theory of "supply-side economics" Reagan embraces.

With no sign that Kemp will relent, White House aides and GOP leaders have come to regard the tax bill as a major threat to Reagan's economic program and his clout on Capitol Hill.

"This may be the toughest couple of weeks of this president's term. This could decide whether his entire program stays on course."

The president views the tax increase as a necessary evil. His failure to pass, he warns, would add $100 billion to deficits through 1985 and cripple efforts to bring down high interest rates standing in the way of economic recovery.

gathered at Point Julia on the Kitsap Peninsula near Seattle Sunday to protest the existence of nuclear arms and the arrival of the Trident submarine USS Ohio, expected to dock at its home port at Bangor this month.

"Anti-nuke groups planned a 25-boat 'peace blockade' in an attempt to halt the giant, 18,700-ton Ohio when it enters Puget Sound. The Federal Aviation Administration closed airspace at 12:01 a.m. Sunday over the waters and violations of restricted zones could result in 10-year jail terms and $10,000 fines, officials said.

Nuclear disarmament activists in Atlanta said they will camp in fallout shelters beginning today until they are either arrested or until the city rejects government claims that millions could survive a nuclear attack.

The demonstrators intend to enter the shelters beginning at 11:02 a.m. — the time of the Nagasaki bombing.

"The participants in this action... feel that this type of irresponsible planning only gives a false sense of security that a nuclear war would be survivable, thus making a nuclear war more probable," the group said.

Deputies in Picketon, Ohio, today were prepared to "take whatever action is necessary" against demonstrators at a Goodyear atomium enrichment plant.

Ten anti-nuclear protesters gathered Sunday outside the plant said they planned to end a four-day fast and vigil there with an act of civil disobedience today.

Anti-nuclear groups gear up for confrontation

By Dana Walker United Press International

Five days of anti-nuclear demonstrations culminated on the 37th anniversary of the bombing of Nagasaki today and thousands of protesters gathered to confront authorities on land and sea to block the docking of the Trident submarine USS Ohio near Seattle.

Several hundred people were arrested nationwide in protests that began Thursday, the eve of the 37th anniversary of the nuclear bombing by the United States of Hiroshima, Japan, during World War II.

Emotional rallies, sit-ins, marches, prayer vigils and commemorations have been held across the country most of them peaceful and several groups planned civil disobedience today.

Japan wanted to hit U.S. with rats

TOKYO (UPI) — A former army doctor revealed on his deathbed that Japan considered sending balloons carrying rats infested with plague-spreading fleas over the United States during World War II, a news report said.

"I was engaged in a medical science designed to kill people," the physician, who until his death at the age of 71 ran a clinic in Chiba Province south of Tokyo, was quoted as saying Sunday by the Kyodo News Service.

The Japanese doctor, whose identity was withheld, disclosed the bizarre plot before his death in late January in a confession to a Catholic missionary friend, the report said.

The Imperial army reportedly launched some 8-300 explosive-laden balloons across the Pacific during the war. Some reportedly landed on the West Coast of North America, causing minor forest fires in the United States and Canada.

The report said the physician was a member of the Imperial Japanese Army's notorious Unit 731, which used humans at its research center in northeastern China in the development of chemical and biological weapons.

In June, the government confirmed the existence of the unit, which was headed by the late Lt. Gen. Shiro Ishii.

The unit reportedly killed more than 3,000 prisoners of war, including 604 gassed to death in the final days of the war to keep the research program a secret.

Former Unit 731 members have testified the victims — Chinese, Koreans, Mongolians, Russians, and possibly some Americans — were injected with typhus, cholera and other germs.

Many others were dismembered while alive or frozen to death in endurance tests.

State's conservatives draft DiFazio to run for Senate

By Jacqueline Huard United Press International

HARTFORD — A Wethersfield lawyer and two-time unsuccessful candidate for Congress has been drafted by Connecticut conservatives to give them a voice in the U.S. Senate campaign.

But the nominee, Lucien DiFazio, 42, was pessimistic Sunday night about his chances of collecting the 13,861 petition signatures he needs by Aug. 24 to qualify for a spot on the ballot.

"We, in all candor, reserve the right to be re-faced that we might not be able to logistically succeed," DiFazio said in a telephone interview from the Fairfield home where the conservatives' meeting took place.

The third party bid would be an alternative to the two endorsed Senate candidates — incumbent Republican Sen. Lowell Weicker and Democratic Rep. Toby Moffett.

Conservatives were upset when Prescott Bush, a Greenwich insurance executive and brother of Vice President George Bush, decided against a primary after losing the Republican State Convention endorsement to Weicker.

"Everyone in attendance was unanimous in the conviction Lowell Weicker and Toby Moffett are not giving voters in Connecticut a choice," said David J. Ordway, chairman of the Connecticut Political Action Committee.

The group of disenchanted Republicans and others backed by the National Conservative Political Action Committee met for six hours in the home of Harry Seggerman, one of several other candidates mentioned as nominees.

The other four considered for the third party bid were "Happy Hooker" author Robin Moore of Westport; Margaret Dolan of Fairfield, the mother of NCPAC's founder; Priscilla Buckley, sister of former Sen. James Buckley, R-N.Y., now U.S. undersecretary of state, and William Lee Hanley Jr. of Glastonbury, state chairman for President Reagan's 1980 primary in Connecticut.

Terry Dolan, chairman of the Alexandria, Va.-based NCPAC, has pledged to solicit $100,000 for the third party campaign. Others who offered their help were conservative columnist William F. Buckley Jr. and Richard Viguerie, who runs the conservatives' successful direct

Weicker says his third term likely his last

By Mark A. Dupuis United Press International

HARTFORD — Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., says the third term he is seeking in the Senate this year would probably be his last and the end of the political career he started 20 years ago.

Weicker said he was unsure he would be able to keep up with the style he has maintained in his Senate work for more than another six-year term and didn't want to give the people of Connecticut less than his full efforts.

Weicker, elected to the Senate in 1970, is being challenged in his latest reelection bid by Rep. Toby Moffett, a liberal Democrat who has represented the 6th District in Congress since 1974.

Weicker, 51, noted he would be a "relatively young man" at the completion of a third term but he didn't know if he would be able to keep up with the physical demands of his style of work in the Senate.

"This is it," he said in an interview with UPI last week. "My style is that I throw my whole body and soul into what I'm doing in the ring. I don't go at anything half way. I do it with enthusiasm. I do it with idealism."

"I don't want to do it any other way than being 100 percent idealistic, 100 percent enthusiastic and 100 percent of all of my energies into it," Weicker said.

"I want to be honest with the people that I represent. They deserve a whole product out there. They can get it for another six years) but after that I don't want to give them a 90 percent product or an 80 percent product they want the whole thing," he said.

Weicker said there was always a "1 percent chance" he would seek a fourth term but said it was "highly unlikely," especially considering he has served in elective office since 1962.

"I think that, you know, there's a great big world out there. I have a great deal of confidence in myself. There's a lot of things, I love professional sports, I love marine research, and there are other things that I'd like to go ahead and do."

Among the possibilities for his future plans, Weicker said, were management work in professional sports or involvement in marine research, an area where he believes some of his accomplishments in the Senate have been made.

One thing he won't do is run for president again, said Weicker, who made a brief run for the office in 1980.

He said he didn't regret his brief presidential candidacy, but thought it would be unfair to the people of Connecticut for him to take the time for another run.

He also said he thought "the Republican Party nationally is just too conservative for Lowell Weicker and Lowell Weicker is too liberal for them."

Despite his differences with his party, Weicker said he would not tailor his comments during his Senate campaign or sway from his past view or positions to win votes. He also will stick with the bluntness for which he is known.

"Would you rather me fog around the place?" he asked. "Why not state what you think? We can save ourselves a lot of time and really get to the heart of the matter."

Weicker said his political friends and the news media after were shocked by what they considered his "maverick" views but the man on the street took his views as mere logic.

Weicker was challenged for this year's GOP Senate nomination by Prescott Bush Jr. of Greenwich, who faulted Weicker for failing to vote with President Reagan more of the time.

Although disagreeing with some Reagan policies, Weicker offered high regard for the president on a personal level.

"Good, nice man, good man," he said when asked to describe Reagan. "A real patriot, a real belief in his conservative principles. A very decent man and an honest man."

"He's no phony. He is no phony," Weicker repeated. "I mean I disagree with him but I think that makes the disagreement all the sharper because he's not a phony and I'm not a phony."

Weicker said he and Reagan have talked from time to time and the president tried "to impress me with his views," but Weicker said he wasn't about to yield and change his mind.

"I don't see why it would make anybody happier if I caved in," he said. "It shouldn't make anybody happier. The only time you ever get into trouble in this country is when everybody is in agreement with everybody else and then all hell breaks loose."

Reagan unveiled an undisclosed number of lawmakers to the White House in what was described as a "full court press" for the tax increase, expected to emerge from a House-Senate conference committee later this week.

The two meetings follow a series of similar sessions last week and warnings by GOP leaders that Reagan risked a defeat with serious political and economic ramifications by not taking a stronger personal role in the tax fight.

There also were indications Reagan would be forced to deal with House Democratic leaders he successfully bypassed in the tax and budget fights last year through direct appeals to conservative Democrats.

"Last year he had the Bill Wexlers to carry him through," said a source close to the Senate Republican leadership. "This time, there's no buffer. The opposition is coming from his own base of support — the right wing."

John Hinckley's insanity hearing today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government prosecutors who unsuccessfully tried to prove John W. Hinckley Jr. was sane when he shot President Reagan had to show today that Hinckley was and still is insane enough to stay hospitalized.

A federal jury acquitted Hinckley by reason of insanity and he was sent to St. Elizabeths mental hospital 50 days ago. Under law, Hinckley is entitled to ask to be released 50 days after his commitment was violated.

Evidence submitted under seal to Parker by doctors last week is not expected to be presented.

Hinckley was acquitted by reason of insanity of the March 30, 1981, shooting of Reagan, his press secretary James Brady, U.S. Secret Service Agent Timothy McCarthy and former

Japan wanted to hit U.S. with rats

TOKYO (UPI) — A former army doctor revealed on his deathbed that Japan considered sending balloons carrying rats infested with plague-spreading fleas over the United States during World War II, a news report said.

"I was engaged in a medical science designed to kill people," the physician, who until his death at the age of 71 ran a clinic in Chiba Province south of Tokyo, was quoted as saying Sunday by the Kyodo News Service.

The Japanese doctor, whose identity was withheld, disclosed the bizarre plot before his death in late January in a confession to a Catholic missionary friend, the report said.

The Imperial army reportedly launched some 8-300 explosive-laden balloons across the Pacific during the war. Some reportedly landed on the West Coast of North America, causing minor forest fires in the United States and Canada.

The report said the physician was a member of the Imperial Japanese Army's notorious Unit 731, which used humans at its research center in northeastern China in the development of chemical and biological weapons.

In June, the government confirmed the existence of the unit, which was headed by the late Lt. Gen. Shiro Ishii.

The unit reportedly killed more than 3,000 prisoners of war, including 604 gassed to death in the final days of the war to keep the research program a secret.

Former Unit 731 members have testified the victims — Chinese, Koreans, Mongolians, Russians, and possibly some Americans — were injected with typhus, cholera and other germs.

Many others were dismembered while alive or frozen to death in endurance tests.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, warned that his economic program is jeopardized by a split among fellow Republicans, faced a new round of lobbying today in a stepped-up drive for passage of a $8.9 billion tax hike.

Reagan unveiled an undisclosed number of lawmakers to the White House in what was described as a "full court press" for the tax increase, expected to emerge from a House-Senate conference committee later this week.

The two meetings follow a series of similar sessions last week and warnings by GOP leaders that Reagan risked a defeat with serious political and economic ramifications by not taking a stronger personal role in the tax fight.

Red tape delays money

HARTFORD (UPI) — Army National Guard officials say red tape has kept them from coming up with money promised to new recruits to help pay off student loans.

The National Guard offered Connecticut secret money to help pay off the loans during an enlistment campaign. The guard agreed to pay $500 or 15 percent, whichever was greater, enlistment unpaid student loans for each year they remained members in good standing.

Area man charges brutality by police

By Richard Cody
Herald Reporter

COVENTRY — A local man plans to file a federal lawsuit this week charging an officer of the Williamstown Police Department with brutality.

The suit stems from an incident

Foul play suspected

WETHERSFIELD (UPI) — Police suspect foul play in the death of an unidentified woman whose naked body was found in a wooded area by a newspaper carrier.

Police said the woman, between 20 and 40 years old, was found Sunday lying in a small clearing along Folly Brook. An autopsy was to be performed today at the state medical examiner's office.

Richard Walsh would not say if the woman had any visible wounds. But he said her death would be considered a homicide unless the autopsy proves otherwise.

Police were being assisted by the state police major crime squad and the Hartford County State's Attorney's office.

HARTFORD (UPI) — The city of Hartford has been labeled one of the country's eight most "distressed" and "declining" major cities, in a study released by the Washington-based Brookings Institution.

Hartford's seven companions in urban decay, the study said, are Atlanta, Boston, Cleveland, Dayton, Philadelphia, Trenton and Newark.

The eight cities are those with over 100,000 population the Brookings Institution found had high unemployment and violent crime; a high percentage of residents below the poverty line; older housing stock; and a high tax rate when compared with surrounding cities and towns.

Man is charged in kidnap, rape

BRANFORD (UPI) — A man charged with kidnaping and raping a 16-year-old local girl was held by state police today on a $100,000 bond.

Troopers said William Schreff, 24, of New Haven was arrested Sunday, shortly after the girl escaped and called for help.

Police said Schreff stopped his van in Milford and abducted the girl. He drove to a rest stop where the assault allegedly took place, officials said.

The girl escaped from the van and called police from the rest stop restaurant. She led troopers to the van, where Schreff was arrested.

Concern deadline near

Last Year, 80 Hartford students were bused to Manchester under the Project Concern program. The Hartford Board of Education voted earlier this year to continue the program for high school students — of which Manchester has 20 — but to discontinue it in grades one through nine.

Manchester offered elementary students the option of continuing in the school system tuition-free, stipulating that students would have to provide their own transportation. Eighteen of 60 elementary school Project Concern students have accepted the Manchester board's offer.

UNDER THE PLAN proposed by the state — which apparently may be modified Thursday — Hartford and the suburban towns would split evenly the costs of transportation, while the suburban towns would receive $250 per student tuition payments from the state and credit for one-half of the Project Concern students in calculating state aid funds.

Manchester, therefore, would receive approximately $500 for each student. That money, however, would be paid into the town general fund, rather than the school fund. The state aid money would not be received for two years. Money for transportation would come out of the school budget.

Deakin noted that the money received in state aid and tuition payments would not actually be a bonus because, in making up the budget, the town administration figured in about $38,000 in tuition payments from the state and credit for one-half of the Project Concern students. That money would not be received under either the state-proposed plan or the Manchester board's plan to waive tuition.

Deakin said that it costs the schools approximately $57 per elementary student and $100 per high school student in the Project Concern program for supplies and out-of-pocket expenses.

Few Haitians are expected to receive political asylum

MIAMI (UPI) — When Joseph Augustin was little, he would go down to the wharves of his Haitian hometown and look at the American tour ships.

"They were very big ships," he said. "Sometimes they would leave tourists on the docks for awhile. I always dreamed to come to the United States because I thought I would be welcome with open arms."

"I thought I could do anything there. In Haiti I cannot do anything. I can't even speak freely."

Now, at 52, Augustin is finally in the land of his dreams — but probably not for very long. Augustin, and thousands of other Haitians who have fled to the United States in search of a better life, will likely lose their requests for political asylum. It will come as a grim shock for many of the more than 1,800 Haitians who are being freed from detention camps under court order. They think they have already won the battle.

Attorneys fear that gaining political asylum in America will be tougher than the 600-mile trek from Haiti and the long court battle to get out of the detention camps.

Of 93 cases decided since 1980, only nine have been approved. For the 84 Haitians denied, rejection meant a one-way plane ride back to Haiti.

"I think they have the feeling they will be allowed to stay in the United States," says the Rev. Tom Wenski, a Creole-speaking priest who says mass for refugees at the Haitian Catholic Center. "They could not have endured a year in the camp without that faith."

"They burned a lot of bridges when they left home."

Under the provisions of their release ordered last month by U.S. District Judge Eugene Spellman, they are required to report weekly to their sponsors. Before they left the Krone detention camp, the Haitians were given a 28-hour orientation program that included a warning not to become illegal aliens.

But ironically, those who follow the rules may be the ones most likely to be sent back. In the last decade as many as 50,000 Haitians may have entered the country illegally. Since 1977, nearly 28,000 have been apprehended by immigration authorities.

Police arrested a 16-year-old Manchester girl on a warrant Thursday charging her in connection with the July 5 burglary of a home at 27 Huntington St.

Athena M. Pappas of 19 Wadsworth St. is charged with second-degree burglary, third degree criminal mischief and fourth degree larceny. She was released on a $250 non-surety bond pending a court appearance on Aug. 16.

Bates said Lathrop was arrested at Mr. Lucky's cafe at about 3 a.m. by Officer Warren Winkler while a fight between two other men was being broken up.

Bates said Lathrop became involved in the altercation when he said something to Winkler about allegedly excessive use of force during the arrest of one of the alleged fighters.

Bates said Winkler then brought Lathrop to the ground. He said his client received a cut on the scalp when Winkler used the blackjack.

Bates said Lathrop was charged with interfering with an officer and two other charges, all but one of which were dropped. Bates said he has a "dozen witnesses" to the incident, and said the suit charges Winkler with using excessive force.

Lathrop, he said, received five stitches in the scalp.

Art only for a moment

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — More than 100 sand artists armed with shovels and buckets turned a beach into a parade of monsters, animals, nudes and outer space creatures in a sand sculpting contest won by an image of "E.T."

The artists came from as far as Massachusetts to compete in the contest, sponsored by the Golden Nugget Hotel-Casino. Entrants ranged in age from 5 to "retired."

Just inches from the water, which would eventually destroy the product of the day's work, were sand sculptures of monsters, nudes, turtles, snails, steamships, King Neptune, and — perhaps inevitably — the movie character E.T.

A sculpture of E.T. and a boy, created by a team headed by Brad Soltoff of Cherry Hill, won the overall first prize. The Soltoff entry will probably be on the front of the T-shirts for next year's contest.

Nathan Weiss, a retired plumber who makes a hobby of woodcarving, came from Philadelphia for the contest.

"I always do a sculpture when I'm on the beach," Weiss said. The practice paid off — he took first prize in the over-18 division for his reclining nudes.

Dazzling deputy duds

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Internationally famous fashion designers Bill Bliss and Halston may be the state's two best known gifts to the world of clothes, but this year the Marion County Sheriff's Department runs a close third.

The department recently voted the best dressed county police force in the nation for 1982 by the National Nugget Hotel-Casino. Entrants ranged in age from 5 to "retired."

The association chose the department's dazzling deputy duds from more than 30 entries in an annual nationwide contest.

"I am very pleased to accept this excellent award on behalf of our department. I am proud of the uniform, and our officers show their pride by wearing it with dignity and professionalism," said James L. Wells, Marion County sheriff.

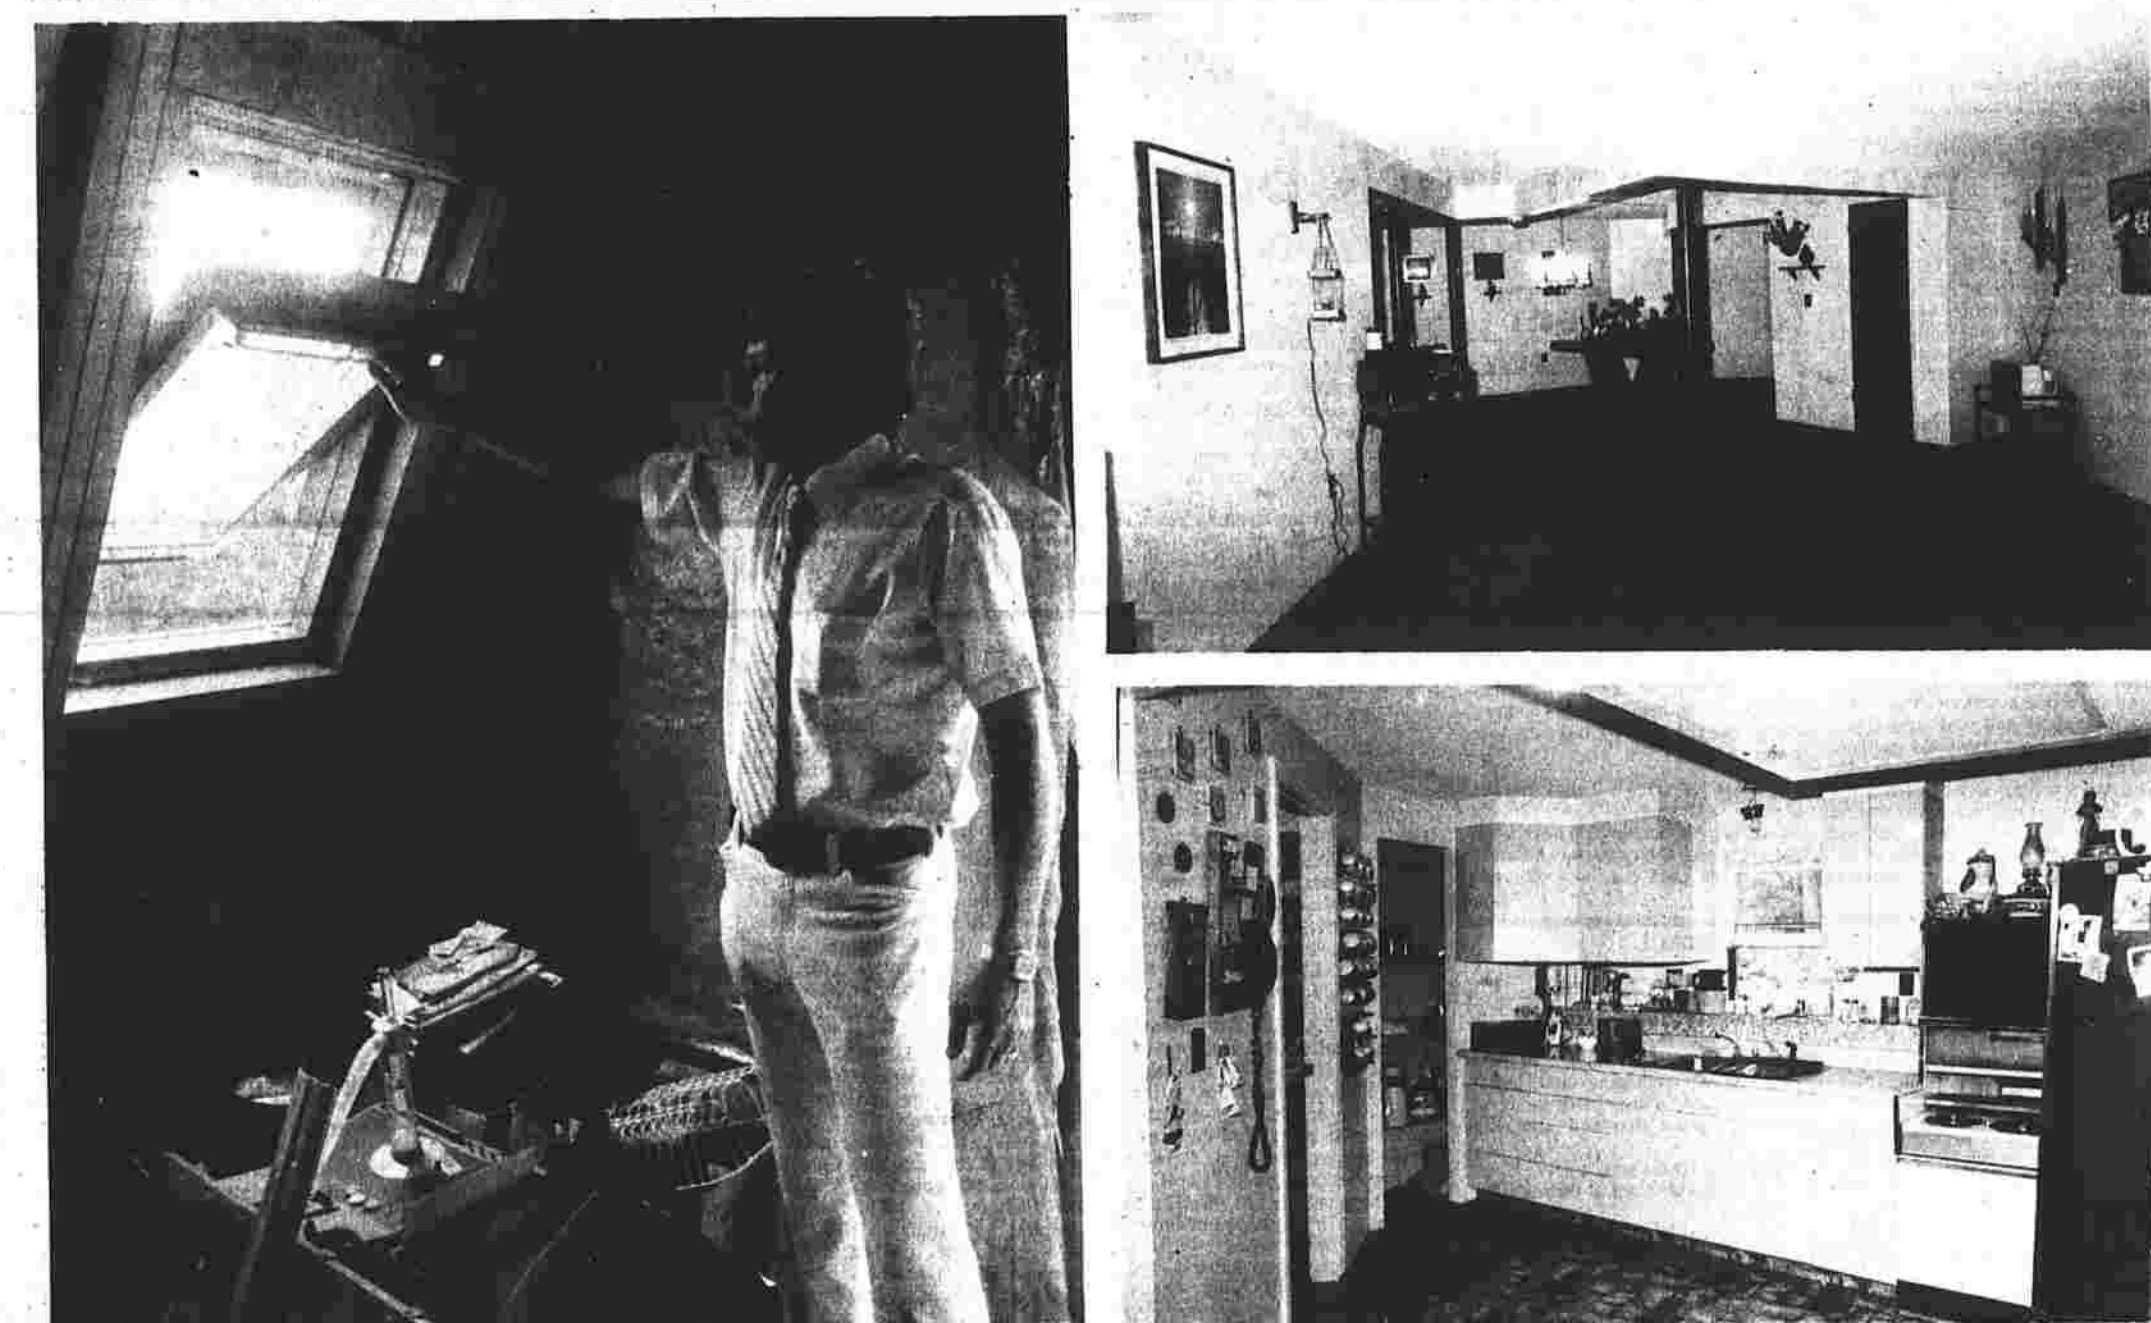

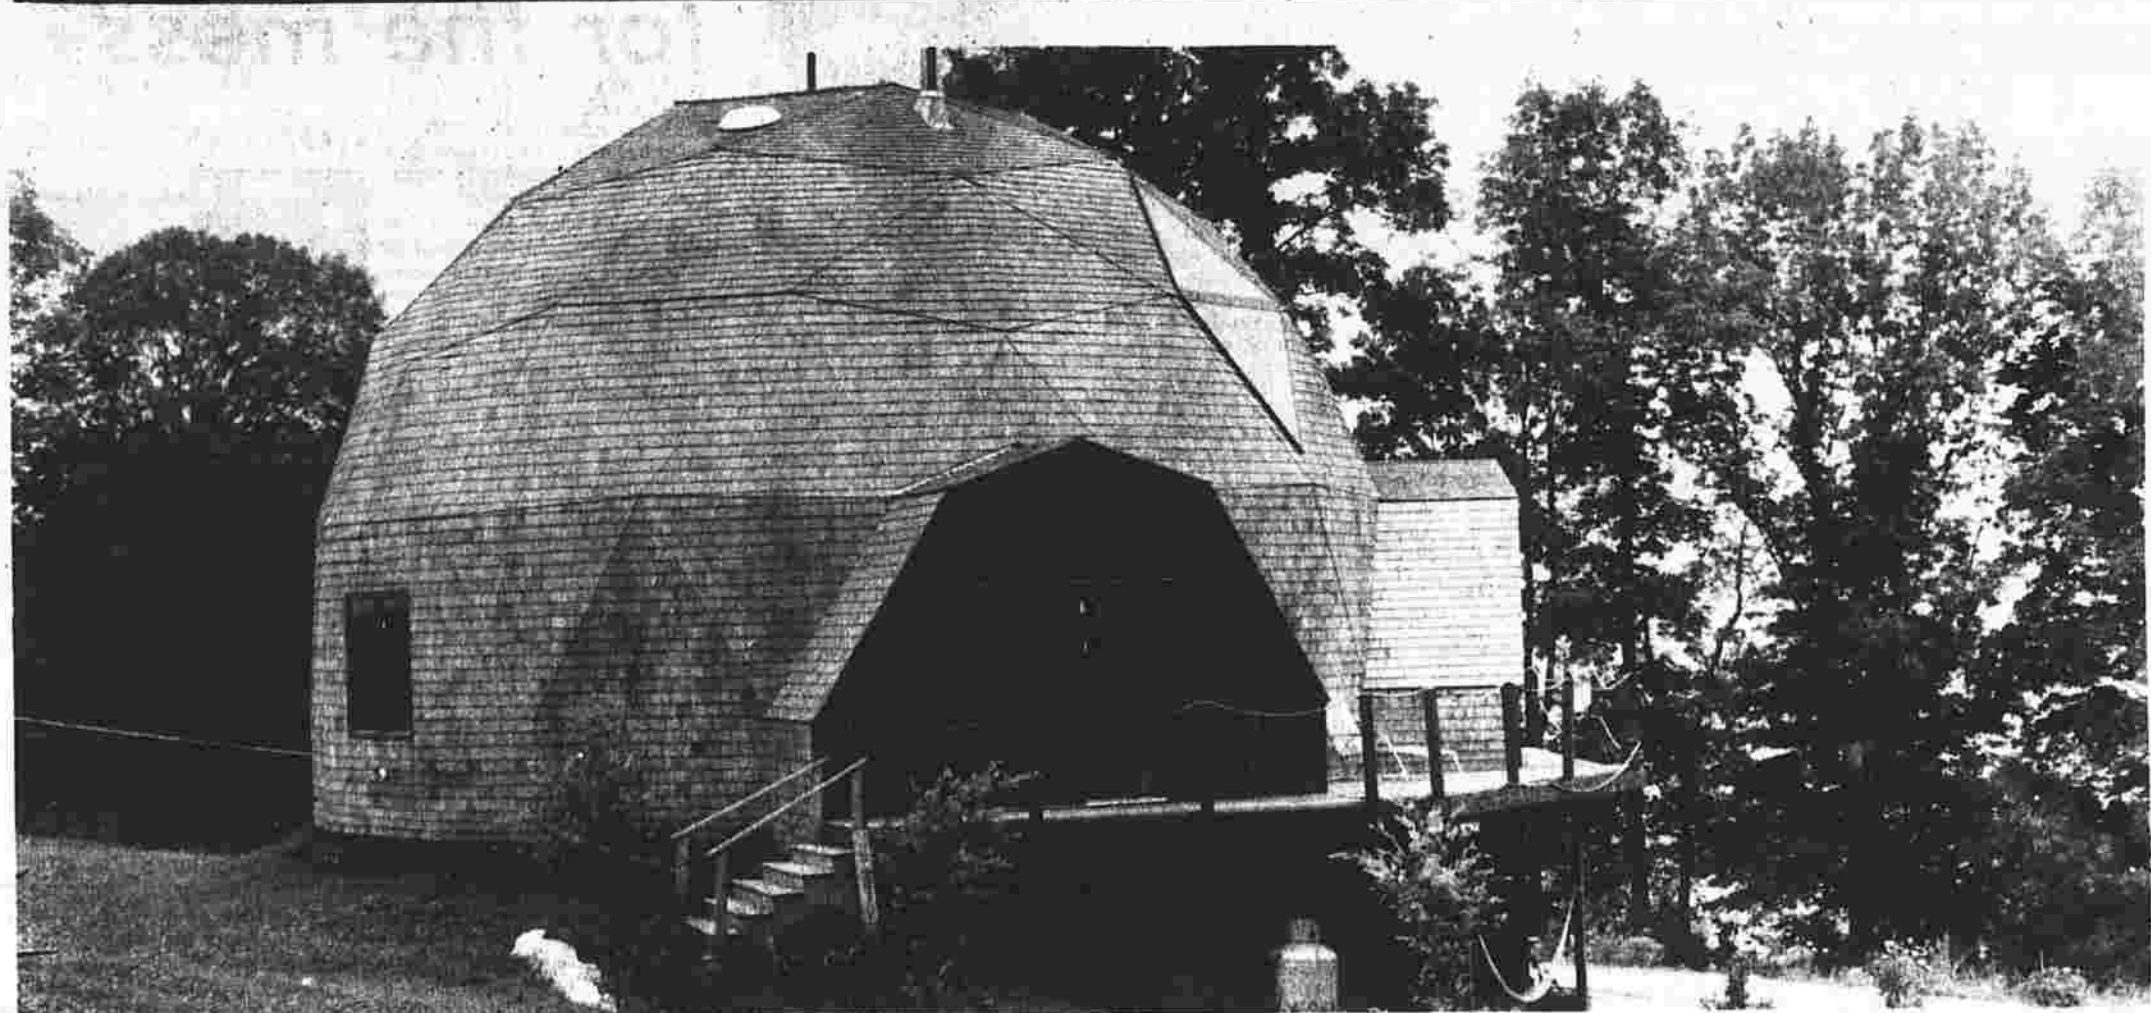

In addition to the award, the August issue of Law and Order Magazine contains a photographic essay featuring the award-winning county cop clothing.

Geodesic This Coventry home would make Buckminster Fuller proud

By Barbara Richmond
Herald Reporter

Dennis MacPherson of Coventry did a lot of research on geodesic dome houses before he settled on the Monterey model he built on a hillside on Flinders Road in Coventry two years ago. The house is for sale.

MacPherson and his wife, Eileen, had all intentions of keeping the house. But due to a death in the family and the necessity to take over a family business, they're now forced to sell it.

"The Welles Agency of Coventry has the house on the market," MacPherson and Thomas Welles Jr. of the Welles Agency led the Manchester Herald on a tour of the house recently.

MacPherson says he decided on the Monterey model because he feels it's the best. The designer was the noted architect-philosopher R. Buckminster Fuller. He designed this type of house back in the 1950s as a "futuristic" house. The Monterey model is especially popular in California.

MacPherson started to build the geodesic dome house offers. This type of house has a personality all its own and the finishing and decorating possibilities are almost limitless.

"The house is two and one-half times stronger than most houses and the concept of the walls, giving continuous airflow, is a prime energy feature of the house," MacPherson explains.

The shingles alone cost more than $8,000. They're all hand cut.

Thomas Welles Jr.

At the buyer's taste. "It could be made basically livable for another $10,000 to $15,000 Welles says. How much more would depend on the type of finish.

And oh, the many possibilities this geodesic dome house offers. This type of house has a personality all its own and the finishing and decorating possibilities are almost limitless.

"The house is two and one-half times stronger than most houses and the concept of the walls, giving continuous airflow, is a prime energy feature of the house," MacPherson explains.

all sorts of possibilities. It could be separate quarters for the children of the family, for live-in help, or for visiting friends and relatives.

On the next floor is another huge "great room" that sweeps around more than half the house. There is also a kitchen. There are three full bathrooms in the house also.

Wrapped around this main floor is a deck, and from it one can see a sweeping view of the valley. Here, too, sliding doors go out onto the deck.

ON THE THIRD FLOOR a balcony wraps around a large master bedroom and bathroom. There is an area for a study just under the solar panel. The master bedroom has a large walk-in cedar closet plus "his" and "her" closets with sliding doors.

more rooms if the owner wishes. The lot hasn't been landscaped yet but it has many possibilities as it has plenty of trees in the rear.

MacPherson says there is a foundation in the basement for a central chimney. There's also provision for either wood or coal as another means of heating.

MacPherson says the house is definitely energy efficient. They lived in the basement last winter, and claim they were very comfortable.

One thing is for sure: the future buyer will be able to see just how well the house is insulated and built because nothing is covered up on the top two floors.

Mazzilli coming 'home'

NEW YORK (UPI) - Lee Mazzilli extended one of his arms.

"Look," he said. "I got goosebumps."

They were there, right, and even had them but not been, it wouldn't have mattered much because the excitement in his eyes and the flush in his face clearly conveyed all the joy in his heart.

Brooklyn-born Lee Mazzilli looked as if he had just hit the lottery.

He hadn't.

All that had happened was that he had learned for the first time he was being traded to the New York Yankees. He was coming "home" again after being away four months, leaving the Texas Rangers in a deal sending them Bucky Dent, the Yankees' golden boy of 1978.

"It's like a dream," bubbled the deeply sun-tanned, good-looking designated hitter-outfielder who once was a golden boy himself with the Mets before they gave up on him and traded him to the Rangers for two of their minor-league pitchers last April.

"This is as good as gold," Mazzilli said, closing his eyes as if to give thanks. "Better in fact. I'm so happy I can't think. I have nothing but good things to say about this. It was a little longer for me that I couldn't help the Rangers more because of my injuries."

Used primarily as a DH by the Rangers, Mazzilli didn't even get to bat 200 times officially with them. His batting average was only .241 and he shows but 4 home runs and 21 RBI.

"I never wanted to leave New York," he muttered. "I always thought I had a chance to come back here with the Yankees after I was traded by the Mets. I was never sure, but somehow, somehow, I thought I had a chance. I can hardly believe it. Wait'll my family hear about it. They'll probably all cry for joy."

This was in the Rangers' clubhouse Saturday following the original report an agreement had been reached for the Mazzilli-Dent swap.

There was a little smokescreen after that in the form of some explanation by George Steinbrenner before Sunday's double-header with the Rangers that such a trade "might be made" but hadn't been yet, and the deal ultimately was announced following the two games.

"It's great to come back," said Mazzilli. "Bucky was loved here. This is his ballpark. The fans hopefully will be glad I'm back in New York but I know Bucky had a lot of fans too."

He had said quite a bit earlier, talking of how he felt about Bucky Dent and George Steinbrenner.

"I like them both," said the 27-year-old Mazzilli, who was believed to be the young player who was going to lead the Mets off the wilderness after he hit .303 for them in 1979 and had 79 RBI and 15 homers.

"I know how Bucky feels," said Mazzilli. "I know because I've talked to him. He feels like I felt when the Mets traded me. I'll never forget that day. I'll never forget it because George Steinbrenner went out his way to do something for me that he never had to do if he didn't want."

Sports Parade

Who Am I?

"The day I was traded by the Mets, we were playing the Yankees an exhibition game in New Orleans and he came over to me in the hotel lobby. I didn't really know George Steinbrenner too well although I had met him a few times at some baseball dinners and banquets. He saw how down I was and he said to me, 'This is probably the best thing that can happen to you.' He said, 'You're a good ballplayer, so you go out now and show the people what you can do. I wanna wish you all the luck in the world.'"

Mazzilli thought back a moment.

"You have no idea how much of a lift that gave me," he said. "It came when I was very low."

The switch-hitting Mazzilli says the Rangers' fans will like a player like Dent, who undoubtedly will take over Texas' regular shortstop job with Mark Wagner, on the disabled list. Wayne Tolleson, brought up from the minors, has been filling in for the Rangers.

"The people in Texas are gonna appreciate Bucky," said Mazzilli.

The Yankees appreciated Dent, too.

Especially for what he did for them in 1978 when he hit that three-run homer off Mike Torrez in Fenway Park to beat the Red Sox in the Eastern Division playoff game and then was the World Series MVP with his .417 figure against the Dodgers.

Lately, the 30-year-old Dent hadn't been playing regularly for the Yankees. He didn't play in either of Sunday's two games. He was deeply unhappy over losing his regular job and had asked to be traded. When the Yankees wouldn't trade him, he wasn't at all eager to leave.

Some of the fans at Yankee Stadium set up a chant of "We want Bucky, we want Bucky" at the end of Sunday's night game. It didn't do much good. Bucky already was gone.
