Congress may give wonderful 'gift' to some

CAPITAL GAINS REMAIN A PRIME TAX SHELTER FOR MILLIONS There is still more than a whisper of a chance that Congress, in these closing days of the session, will slip through a law slashing the holding period for long-term capital gains and losses by 50 percent - from more than year to more than six months. This magnificent gift" to millions of Americans - the wealthy particularly - is not a casualty of congressional infighting yet; not by any means. So be on guard during these next few weeks for what could be completely unexpected action by Congress, affecting the millions of you who sell securities, real escollectibles, etc. Good or bad for you, look out. The maximum tax on long-term capital gains is only 20 percent if you're in the top 50 percent tax bracket and huge numbers of you are). Only 40 percent of the profit on a sale is subject to tax; 60 percent is tax-free. Long-term capital gain is still a great tax-slasher. Before Congress went on its Labor Day holiday, the enate version of the new tax law would have cut the olding period for long-term capital gains and losses point, a net long-term loss is much less valuable than a Ot ESTION: Can you sell the stock and then buy rom more than one year to more than six months for net short-term loss

UAW considers Chrysler offer

DETROIT (UPI) - With less than two full days of talks left before the current contract runs out. round-the-clock negotiations are set between the United Auto Workers and Chrysler Corp., which has made the union an offer on wages and benefits. UAW President Douglas Fraser said Chrysler's bid Sunday is far less than the union hoped to get in negotiations to replace the pact expiring at 12:01

Fraser said the contract will not be extended past the deadline unless the two sides were within "a 'We've said this many times - it wouldn't serve any purpose extending the agreement," he said. "If we're far apart, we're just delaying the inevitable and you're fooling people."

Chrysler's offer — its first money bid in about two months of talks - broke a stalemate and followed a contention by Fraser that negotiations were deadlocked because of Chrysler's silence. The union has been seeking a pay hike and the restoration of cost-of-living allowances to make up for concessions it made last year in the No. 3

Fraser said the offer did not include either a wage increase or a cost-of-living allowances but he would not elaborate. It was likely Chrysler offered a flat wage increase since company officials have blamed COLA as one of the reasons for soaring "It's meager." Fraser told an evening briefing. O'Neill also indicated he thought Rome's statemen that he would support elimination of tolls on state

The employee, Edward Fijol, designed a sewer system for a McDonald's restaurant in Vernon. The system is tied to a highway reconstruction plan which Labriola claimed needed DOT approval. But DOT spokesman William Keish said DOT Commissioner J. William Burns found no conflict of interest because the sewer plan is reviewed by the sewer authority in Vernon and not the DOT.

Keish said the DOT reviewed the proposed rearrangement of a traffic pattern, which was presented to the DOT by McDonald's and later approved after changes sought by the agency were incorporated. "This is nothing different than we do in communitie throughout the state every day working with local businesses on various transportation matters," Keish

But Labriola claimed the DOT was "out of control" and said Gov. William O'Neill failed to live up to a pledge to clean up the agency. He said Burns should do all he could to prevent even the appearance of any conflict of interest, especially in light of a one-man grand jury investigation of alleged corruption in the DOT.

the investigation has resulted in a half dozen arrests including that of former DOT Commissioner Arthur B. Labriola said O'Neill had pledged to clean up the DOT and eliminate conflicts of interest after the investigation began. He said the situation with Fijol showed the governor had failed to carry out his pledge.
"What's even more disturbing is Gov. O'Neill said

Beating victim buried: no clues yet

NEW BRITAIN (UPI) - Police say they have no suspects in the brutal slaying of 27-year-old Beata Galon, who has been buried following a dispute over whether the ceremony could be conducted in a Roman Catholic Church.

About 175 mourners gathered at Holy Cross Church for the funeral Monday, many of them angry over the refusal of a priest at another church to conduct the Mrs. Galon's partially clad body was found Wednesday in the first floor of a vellow two-family home where she lived with her husband. Police said a woman living upstairs, and other neighbors, heard Mrs. Galon scream late Tuesday night but The victim, who emigrated about a year ago, was alone at the time of the attack. Her husband, Czeslaw Galon, was visiting provisions be put in town zoning laws for relatives in Poland. The funeral services were held at Holy Cross Church after the priest at the church Mrs. Galon often attended refused to have he service in his church.

The Rev. Paul P. Wysocki, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, reportedly based his decision on the fact Mrs. Galon was not a church member and was not married in a Roman Catholic Church, Because Mr. Galon was previously married and divorced, the couple was wed in a civil ceremony conducted by a justice of the peace in New Britain July, 1981.

John P. Wordarski, pastor of Holy Cross Church, said he agreed to hold the funeral because he felt it was "the right thing" to Archbishop John Whealon of Hartford said he had not talked to Wysocki about his refusal to conduct a full funeral service, saying he trusted the judgment of his priests based on individual circumstances

About the differing opinions from two priests in one city, Whealon said: "The church is really not a monolith and diocese differs from diocese ... but they are all in agreement with Christ, and that's what

The state medical examiner's office in Farmington said Mrs. Galon's death was due to massive head trauma, or extensive injuries to the head inflicted by a blunt in

Princess Grace 'suffering greatly'

MANCHESTER HERALD, Tues., Sept. 14, 1982 - 9

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) - Princess Grace of Monaco was "suffering greatly" today from multiple fractures she received when her car lost its brakes, plunged off a winding road and crashed in flames. A palace spokesman said Grace, wife of the ruler of Monaco, Prince Rainier III, was under strict observation at a hospital and added that the former American movie star had spent a restless night and was in pain.

"She is suffering greatly," the spokesman said: Grace's 17-year-old daughter Princess Stephanie, who was a passenger in the car when it left the road Monday: also was under hospital surveillance, but the bruises she received were described as superficial by the spokesman.

The former American movie star's British-made Rover 3500 missed a turn on the snaking road in the Maritime Alps and plunged down a tree-filled hill, flipping over and bursting into flames in a nursery garden 45 feet below.

Sesto Lequio, 62, the owner of the nursery, rushed to the garden, extinguished a fire in the motor, dragged Princess Stephanie from the car and called emergency aid to rescue Princess Grace. Grace, 52, was trapped behind the driver's wheel with multiple injuries and a bloodcovered face. A royal spokesman in Monaco said the former Grace Kelly of Philadelphia, who gave up a brilliant career in Hollywood to marry Prince Ranier III in 1956, suffered a fractured right thighbone, a broken rib and a shattered

He said the brakes failed and the car slid off the road. Stephanie, 17, the younger of the royal couple's two daughters, was bruised and taken to the hospital with Military spending too high?

The United States will be spending more than $175 billion this year on weapons, soldiers, sailors, ships, airplanes and all the paperwork it takes to prepare to fight a war. In 1984, we'll be spending $247 billion. I don't know what a fiscal year is, let alone how much money $247 billion is. I know it's a lot, though, and so do other Americans.

Last week, many congressmen returned to Washington after a summer vacation and said there were people back home who didn't like the idea of all this increased spending on the military. It's tough for any of us to figure out what we ought to be for or against when it comes to military spending. For one thing, we know so little about what's in the minds of our potential enemies. We don't even know whether they're enemies or not. We don't know for sure whether they're any more apt to drop a bomb first than our own generals are.

I often wrestle with the problem in my own mind and what follows are some random arguments. I've presented myself with in relation to President Reagan's big military

The 39-year-old former psychotherapist came upon his first carousel horses in 1975, a pair from the estate of the famed Ringling brothers.

He bought them for $165 each and took them to the antique store he owned with his wife, Carla. "We put them in our shop and they started growing on me," Sorenson said. "I sold them both within a month so I went looking for an en-
