Beware of shady credit-card brokers

If you're one of the 30 million of 45 million Americans who, for some reason, cannot qualify for even a single credit card, you always must be careful to carry enough cash for restaurants and stores that do not accept personal checks, not to mention cash for emergencies. You find it virtually impossible to rent a car; you cannot order merchandise by mail without paying in advance or incurring heavy C.O.D. charges; and, of course, you cannot purchase anything you cannot pay for at that very moment by cash or check.

Under these circumstances, it is not surprising that despite the startling fact that some credit cards charge almost 22 percent interest combined with annual fees ranging from $20 to $75 per card, millions of you still clamor for the privilege of paying with plastic. But each year, millions of applicants for bank credit cards such as MasterCard or Visa, department store and oil company cards, or "travel and entertainment" charge cards such as American Express are denied credit because you have not established a history of responsible credit-

WHETHER BECAUSE of previous credit problems or simply because you have never before met the income, employment or age requirements imposed by most credit-card issuers, no one is willing to give you, a cardless consumer, credit. So you learn the Catch-22 of

You can't get a card unless you already have a card. If you have tried to obtain a card in the past, though, but have been turned down, you still have a way in, ac-

These brokers are financial agencies of various sizes newspaper and TV ads promise they'll get you major credit cards regardless of your income or previous credit experience. Many of these "brokers" are dowprofusely about the results they achieve before the police catch up with them and close them down. Others are fairly honest and well-established — they will get you certain cards if you're willing to pay the price, and they will tell you how much it will cost before you sign

Hope dwindling for trapped men

CAPE MAY, N.J. (UPI) - Coast vival was dwindling today for four men believed trapped inside a wrecked and partly submerged Colombian Air Force plane. A fifth man was presumed lost. Eight crewmen were rescued from the plane that was ditched Saturday in turbulent seas 180 miles from the New Jersey coast.

Heavy seas kept rescuers from reaching the plane Sunday and a search for survivors was to resume at dawn. But Robert Fullerton, a Coast Guard spokesman, said search planners would take a "very hard look" today at the value of continuing the hunt.

Given the wind and the circurnstances of the seas not diminishing. and add into the whole scenario the plane went down on Saturday - it lessens the chance of finding survivors," Fullerton

Five charged in Farmington bank seige

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) - Five New York men accused of breaking into a suburban Farmington bank and any questions at arraignment. olding police at bay for four hours faced a hearing . Nevas said the department suspected Russello was oday in U.S. District Court on larceny and conspiracy the suspects "bartered for their freedom" by threatening to blow up the Farmington Savings Bank with explosives, said Alonzo Lacey Jr., special agent in charge for the FBI in Connecticut.

He said the FBI was "hopeful" additional arrests would be made, but refused further comment. Arraigned Sunday were Joseph Russello, 56; William Bender, 41; Richard D. Spainhower, 42; William John Strawsacker, 28, all of New York City, and Joseph Anthony Valantino, 63, of Buffalo, N.Y. They were charged with intent to commit larceny and conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States and held in lieu of bonds ranging from $100,000 to U.S. ATTORNEY Alan H. Nevas said each man faced a maximum sentence of 25 years in prison and a $15,000 fine if convicted of both charges. Police had been tipped off about the plan and were waiting when the suspects arrived at the bank about 8 p.m. Saturday. Lacey said one member of the welldrilled team forced a window, bypassed the alarm system and unlocked a door to the one-story brick bank on Main Street in the quiet Hartford suburb. The suspects quickly carried in a staggering array of burglary tools, authorities said.

More than 30 local, state and federal officers cordoned off the area around the bank. Across the street is Miss Porter's School, an exclusive finishing school whose graduates include Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis. Farmington police said they provided "special

While police dressed flak jackets patrolled the street and diverted traffic, an FBI negotiator talked to four of the suspects by telephone. The fifth was arrested outside the bank in a van rented in New York.

LACEY SAID the men agreed to surrender about 9:40 p.m. but did not leave the bank until 12:15 a.m. Sunday after hours of tense negotiations and a warning to police they had explosives inside the bank. "They were evidently concerned about their safety." Lacey said. "We just indicated we were there and we

More samples to be taken at waste dump

WATERBURY (UPI) - Stanley Pac, commissioner of the state Department of Environmental Protection, said more samples will be taken today at the Environmental Waste Removal Co., accused of illegally dumping toxic wastes. Pac said he ordered the hazardous waste treatment plant Saturday to properly dispose of sludge which tests showed contained high levels of suspected cancercausing PCBs.

Also scheduled today is a Superior Court hearing on the city's effort to close the plant as a possible health hazard. A group of residents have been calling since January for the site to be shut down. The DEP's investigation began after former EWR employees made allegations the company had illegally dumped hazardous wastes in the ground and the Naugatuck River, and into the city sewer system. The former EWR workers also claimed the company was tipped off about upcoming state inspections, and the office of Chief State's Attorney Austin J. Building Department says it gets 10 to 15 phone calls a day from people asking about space heaters, particularly kerosene space heaters. The first question callers ask is, 'Are they legal in Manchester? The second question very often is. "Can I store the kerosene in the cellar?' That second question bothers the building staff. It indicates to them that many people really don't care about the answer to the first, which is "no." The heaters people are asking about are forbidden in two ways. The State Building Code, to which the town adheres.

prohibits fuel-burning space heaters that are not vented. A Manchester ordinance that the prohibitions apply only prohibits space heaters if they to filling the requirements for are portable and use solid, liquid, or gaseous fuel.

THE SUPPLY-SIDE theoretics didn't bring the promised prosperity, but, rather, caused the economy to plunge deeper into recession. the inflation rate has also slowed, it has been caused by a weakened economy, not by the healthy free market that Reagan envisioned. Our conservative president rejected the "countercyclical stabilization policies" that past presidents have used for 40 years to maintain high employment and keer prices stable. What this profound phrase means is that Reagan's predecessors managed the economy by manipulating fiscal and monetary levers.

Reagan disdained the monetary machinery and decided to let the marketplace take care of itself. His theory was that the economy would run more smoothly if the government's monkeywrenches were removed from the machinery But some of the wrenches, in turns out, were needed to repair the

Thank you Mr. Happywrench. It was very considerate of you, mechanic-at-the-service-station. I never even got your name, but I will always be grateful that you treated me like a person with a brain when I picked up my car last week. The reason I didn't catch your name was because I was concentrating hard on the story you were telling me. It was all about bolts for the catalytic converter and a pick-up coil and distributor and spark plugs. Then you threw in something about a rotor and how it could go any time and it wasn't just because this car was a lemon. I nodded intelligently the whole time, like I was engrossed in every word.

Part of my problem is that, as a woman, I hate to admit to a stereotype - that all men understand cars and all women don't.

known him a long time, was trying to make him feel a little better Sunday night after the Brewers handed his St. Louis Cardinals a 6-4 beating in Milwaukee to move out in front in the World Series, three games to two "You're going back home now, you'll be all right," the newsman tried to encourage him.

dunno," answered the Cardinals' manager candidly. "We gotta get some things straightened One of those things undoubtedly is how the Cardinals should pitch to Robin Yount, the Brewers' spectacular hitting and fielding shortstop who has Yount easily is the most dominant player on both sides; beyond queston he is the best ballplayer on Batting a cool .524 with 11 hits in 21 at-bats, he's only two hits shy of the record 13 hits in a World Series set by Bobby Richardson of the New York Yankees in 1964 and equaled by Lou Brock of the Cardinals in 1968. When he homered into the rightfield seats off loser Bob Forsch in the seventh inning Sunday to complete a perfect day in which he had a double and a pair of singles, the curly haired. 27-year-old Yount, who also had four hits in the Series opener, became the first player to have four hits in two games of the same World Series.

"We haven't pitched him too well," Herzog said. When we get the ball where we want we've been getting him out. But we just haven't been getting the ball where we want From the instant the ball left his bat, there was no question about his homer, a fastball which Forsch got up a little too much and Yount deposited in the right-field seats, 380 feet from the plate into

The way Yount is going against the Cardinals now, he's almost a cinch to wind up with the keys to that car they give to the Series' MVP. Anytime they ask him about that he says he doesn't care about it. Why should be when he already owns the keys to the kingdom in Milwaukee

He's a cinch to win the American League's MVP Award on the basis of what he did to help the Brewers win their first Eastern Division title and AL pennant. Yount wound up with the second-best batting average in the league, his .331 one point less then Kansas City's Willie Wilson's, and he had 114 are tops in my book."

RBI and 29 homers along with that. Late in the season, the fans in Milwaukee, shouted "MVP, MVP," every time Yount came to

He had no reaction to that but he did have a rather firm one when his teammates began saying the same thing to him in their jubilant clubhouse after they beat the Orioles for the division title on the final day of the regular season. Listening to them call him "MVP," he snapped

'Knock it off, knock it off." He meant it, too. "He's not hung up on himself," says Sal Bando the Brewers' former third baseman who now is one of their assistant general managers. "He's not worried about his ego or about any publicity. In fact, he doesn't want it. As a hitter he reminds me of Tony Oliva. No matter how you pitch him, he gets his hits." Yount's appearance at Milwaukee County Stadium Sunday was his last of the year, and the record 56,562 fans on hand showed how they felt about him when he acknowledged their tremendous cheers in a curtain call along with Manager Harvy Kuenn, winning pitcher Mike Caldwell and out-fielder Charlle Moore. "I've said it before and I'll say it again," Kuenn, an old shortstop himself, said about Yount. "He's the best overall shortstop I have ever seen play. Harry Dalton, the Brewers' general manager who spent 18 years in the Orioles' organization and was involved in four pennants and two championships with them, looks at Yount and is reminded of Baltimore's greatest performers. "I'd compare Robin to Brooks Robinson as both a person and a player," Dalton says. "Neither ever got highly angry or depressed when he was very young and neither has any peaks or valleys. Both
