Beirut hills secure for talks start

By United Press International

Israeli troops, tanks and armored vehicles moved into the hills surrounding the Beirut suburb of Khalde today, securing the area for the opening round of Israeli-Lebanese talks set to begin Tuesday.

In Palma de Mallorca, Spain, a spokesman for Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky said he would meet later today with Palestine Liberation Organization chairman Yasser Arafat.

The meeting comes amid reports Kreisky was supervising the first direct talks between the PLO and Israel, dealing with prisoners of war captured in Lebanon.

The Kreisky spokesman refused to comment on the report in Newsweek magazine saying Israel and the PLO were negotiating in Austria on the release of eight Israeli soldiers captured by the PLO in return for the release of Palestinians held by the Israelis.

"The chancellor and Mr. Arafat will meet here this afternoon, that is all I can say," the Kreisky spokesman said. Arafat was scheduled to arrive in Mallorca later in the day from Algeria.

On Sunday, a PLO spokesman in Spain said only that the Arafat-Kreisky meeting would concern the Palestinian situation.

Both Lebanon and Israel confirmed Sunday they would begin talks Tuesday in Khalde on the withdrawal of 30,000 Israeli, 40,000 Syrian and 10,000 PLO troops from Lebanon.

In Khalde, Lebanese army officers at the hotel where the talks are to be held said the Israelis "have produced the necessary assurances" that the area will be safe for the talks.

"They control the region and have deployed more troops, tanks and armored cars on the hills overlooking the hotel," a Lebanese army officer who refused to be identified said.

A company of 100 Lebanese soldiers were also deployed near the hotel, the Lebanese officer said. Five artillery shells slammed into the coastal area of Khalde Sunday in a spillover from fighting between Christian and Moslem Druze militiamen in the Shouf mountains, state-run Beirut radio said.

The PLO, which announced the Kreisky-Arafat meeting, made no mention of direct talks between the organization and Israel.

Newsweek magazine said the direct talks are under way. They would be the first known direct contact between Israel and the PLO since Israel's founding in 1948.

Both Lebanon and Israel confirmed Sunday they would begin talks Tuesday in Khalde on the withdrawal of 30,000 Israeli, 40,000 Syrian and 10,000 PLO troops from Lebanon.

But in the Shouf mountains east of Beirut, artillery duels erupted between rival Christian and Druze militiamen in the villages of Fawara, Breeh, Wadi Alceet and Mtaileh, about 8 miles east of Beirut.

In Sidon, Lebanon's third city, unknown gunmen attacked the Israeli civil affairs building with rocket-propelled grenades and automatic rifles, killing four Israeli soldiers and wounding about six others, a security source said.

Israeli troops set up checkpoints on Sidon's main streets, imposing a curfew on the city 25 miles south of Beirut.

In Israel, a senior government official said, "There is confirmation the (withdrawal) negotiations will begin Tuesday."

Reagan heads to Phoenix

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan left the White House today, bound for Phoenix, after asking Americans to remember the struggle of the Afghan people and pledging "we will not grow weary or abandon them."

The president and Mrs. Reagan took off by helicopter for Andrews Air Force Base. They are flying to Phoenix, with daughter Patti Davis, to visit Mrs. Reagan's mother. The Reagans fly Tuesday to California, where they will remain through New Year's.

Air Force One was airborne at 9:58 a.m. EST for Phoenix.

On Sunday the president marked the third anniversary of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan by issuing a statement in which he reaffirmed U.S. support for a negotiated settlement that would return Afghanistan "to the ranks of independent, non-aligned nations."

"We in the United States," he said, "sincerely hope the new leadership of the Soviet Union will take advantage of the opportunities the new year will no doubt offer to achieve a solution for Afghanistan. The American people do not want to see the suffering and deprivation of the Afghan people continue. But we will not grow weary or abandon them and their cause of freedom."

In a joint statement issued last month, Reagan and visiting West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, a key U.S. ally, said Afghanistan "remains an acid test of Soviet readiness" to respect the non-alignment of Third World countries and "to exercise restraint in its international behavior."

Reagan called the plight of the Afghan people, especially the mujahedin freedom fighters who have battled Soviet troops for the last three years, "a sad but inspiring story."

"The United States does not intend to forget these brave people and their struggle," he pledged.

Three years after the Soviets entered Afghanistan to install a new leader of the Marxist regime that took power in 1978, the invasion "is not a success," Reagan said. He said the costs in lives, crops and property have been "immense" and reiterated a claim of "convincing proof" the Soviets have used chemical weapons against the Afghan people.

The president urged Americans to remember the continued fighting in Afghanistan as they celebrate the holiday season, "warmed and comforted by their family relationships and the blessings of this country."

"No matter how far removed from our daily lives, Afghanistan is a struggle we must not forget. ... If this aggression should succeed, it will have dangerous impact on the safety of free men everywhere," he said.

The Soviet invasion of Afghanistan was a major issue in the early stages of the 1980 campaign. Reagan was highly critical of the responses taken by the Carter administration, although the Soviet force in Afghanistan has continued to grow since he took office.

Is Worth's selling building?

Rumors circulated along Main Street this weekend that Worth's is planning to sell the building that houses its store on Main Street.

Late Thursday, Peter Trier, owner of Worth's, denied the rumor. It persists, nonetheless, and Joseph Bovino, owner of Carriage House

Hair Design at 18 Oak St., is reportedly the prospective buyer. Bovino declined to comment for publication today.

The building is owned by the 851 Main Street Corp., which has the same box office address as the headquarters of Worth's in Waterbury.

Worth's was one of the strongest supporters of the current plan to reconstruct Main Street. Several years ago it closed its store at the Parkade, but retained its Main Street location.

At an Oct. 6 hearing on the plan to reconstruct Main Street, Roger Jackson, vice-president of Worth's, drew a parallel between Manchester and Waterbury. Worth's headquarters. He said that in the 1960s Waterbury rejected federal money for downtown revitalization. He said the Naugatuck Valley Shopping Center came about as result and Waterbury became a place in which to shop from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Since that time it has become apparent the Manchester plan will not go through in its present form, with some of the trappings of a pedestrian mall and with moving vehicle traffic as well.

Besides Worth's, the building at Main Street and Purnell Place houses Harrison's Stationers at 849 Main St., Leaf, Stern and Root at 857 Main St., and Grames Printing and Advertising on Purnell Place.

A directory lists offices on the upper floor as those of Golas and Horvath, lawyers; LaBelle, Rothenberg and LaBelle, lawyers; Dr. R.M. Rayburn; Alice Clampet, real estate; M&M Oil Services; and Capitol Builders.

Tax increase eyed

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. William O'Neill said today he would support an increase in the tax employers pay into the state's unemployment compensation fund if needed to keep the financially strapped fund solvent.

O'Neill ruled out recommending any cut in benefits paid to jobless workers and also said he would not support a one-week waiting period before workers could collect compensation benefits.

State Labor Commissioner P. Joseph Peraro announced on Dec. 15 the state would have to borrow $104 million from the federal government next year to keep the fund solvent and provide benefits.

Peraro said rising unemployment will require the state to borrow $70 million to provide benefits for the first three months of next year and an additional $34 million for the remainder of the year.

The state Labor Department estimates unemployment in Connecticut at 7.4 percent and in mid-December said 15,000 to 16,000 more people were receiving benefits than the same time in 1981.

O'Neill, speaking with reporters

today, said the state was "going to have to take a serious look at the whole situation, the overall unemployment compensation fund."

"We're going to have to do something," he said. "The fund is based upon a solvency of 6 percent unemployment and of course we have reached over 6 percent unemployment ..."

O'Neill ruled out recommending a cut in unemployment benefits and a one-week waiting period before a worker could claim benefits as possible ways to keep the fund solvent.

Word due soon on who's 'in' with O'Neill

By Mark A. Dupuis
United Press International

HARTFORD (UPI) — At least eight already know they're out, some by choice, others not. At least three already know they're still in. The rest may find out this week.

Shortly after winning a full term in November, Gov. William O'Neill requested proforma letters of resignation from 134 people who work in state government at the pleasure of the governor.

O'Neill, who became governor two years ago this week when cancer forced the late Ella Grasso to resign, said he wanted to shape his own administration and would decide who would go and who would stay for his first term.

Since the post-election announcement, word has trickled out on the fate of this commissioner or that commissioner, but the fate of the bulk of the 134 appointees remains in question, at least to the public and news media.

O'Neill has said the bulk of agency heads and deputies not yet known to have been fired will stay. "The vast majority will remain and they will be informed first," he said in mid-December.

So far, it's known that O'Neill has eight top-level administration posts to fill, though one of the posts might be eliminated. The governor also will have at least an indirect say in filling another top-level job.

Commissioners' jobs are open either by the commissioner's own choice or the governor's edict in the departments of aging, agriculture, income maintenance, insurance, public safety and education.

A deputy commissioner's position also is open in the Department of Income Maintenance, the state's welfare agency, and a new chairman is needed for the Commission on Hospitals and Health Care.

The governor has indicated he may seek changes in the Department of Public Safety, where Commissioner Donald J. Long was relegated to administrative duties because of the way state police handled a 1981 Ku Klux Klan rally in Meriden.

Long announced his retirement shortly before this year's election and O'Neill said he didn't expect to name a successor immediately but would probably study possible changes in the administration of the department.

Aside from other agencies where he has the say on who gets what job, O'Neill also plans to have an indirect say in the appointment of a successor to Education Commissioner Mark R. Shedd.

Shedd, whose agency raised O'Neill's ire when mistakes were made involving millions of dollars in school aid grants to cities and towns, has asked not to be reappointed when his term ends in January.

The education commissioner is appointed by the State Board of Education and not the governor, and thus O'Neill's say in choosing a new successor will be through the board whose members are appointed by the governor.

O'Neill hasn't said exactly when he will announce his appointees for the jobs he will fill directly. At one point he said the announcements would come by Christmas, at another he said they would come by Inauguration Day.

With the pomp and pageantry of Inauguration Day a week from Wednesday, the speculation is that the announcements of new appointees will be made this

Man reunited with father, grandmother

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — David D. Jones thought his father died during World War II until Christmas Day, when he spotted a newspaper photograph of his father having a reunion with his grandmother who also was believed dead for years.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of marriages and divorces in this country continued to increase in 1981, preliminary government figures show.

Deaths rose slightly in number, but the death rate edged down, while the estimated life expectancy at birth rose to 74.1 years from 73.8 years, the center said.
