

Wild, woolly '83 stock market seen

If you're a stock market roller, get ready for one of those wild-and-woolly roller-coaster rides in '83. Here's the choppy and violent scenario as laid out for me by Wall Street kingpin Merrill Lynch.

Dan Dorfman
Syndicated Columnist

NOW TO THE thinking behind these projected moves, as well as the firm's best stock bets, as spelled out in an interview with Richard Hoffman, ML's 42-year-old chief investment strategist.

— given an economic recovery — of a legitimate reason to be bearish. And so, he sees the market benefiting strongly from (1) heavy covering by the short sellers (those that have been betting on lower stock prices); (2) a big switch on the part of many institutional investors from bonds to stocks on the theory that the total returns on equities will be much greater than those on bonds; and (3) brisk movement of sizable sideline cash into stocks.

HOWEVER, HOFFMAN believes the crisis of supposedly rising rates will be resolved favorably, leading to the entry of the third leg of the bull market (with the Dow rising about 200 points in the final '83 quarter). Why will it be resolved favorably?

Because the expected sharp rise in rates won't materialize, says Hoffman. Once the recovery gets underway, he looks for a sharp rebound in internally-generated cash flow. This, plus the issuance of long-term debt securities and stock to pay down short-term debt, should help partially restore corporate liquidity. And therefore, says Hoffman, business credit demands may not be as great as expected.

Equipment and, for the risk-oriented, Intergraph. HOFFMAN TOOK note of IBM's already sharp rise this year, but he contends the stock is still "grossly undervalued." Observing that IBM is entering a new era of real growth — a minimum of 15 percent a year over the next five years — Hoffman figures a price-earnings multiple of 15 on projected '83 earnings of $5.50 a share would not be unreasonable. That would put IBM's shares at around $125.

ML's favorable interest-rate outlook assumes a continuing low level of inflation. This means that the recovery in progress should have sufficient momentum to continue its expansion without running afoul of the '80 dilemma of high rates. A continued recovery would also cause the government deficit to be revised downward for fiscal '84 because of a falling unemployment rate in late '83. Every 1 percent drop in unemployment is equivalent to $35 billion less of lost government revenues. And "crowding out" fears would then be allayed because Uncle Sam's total credit demands would be less than expected, says Hoffman.

He reasons that a poor Christmas could raise new fears that earnings won't match the 25 percent gains that Wall Street's projecting for '83. This, coupled with fears of a monetary rise in interest rates and just the natural desire to lock in gains of those juicy '82 market profits, could lead to a "fair moment of selling." And selling, says Hoffman, begets setting.

IT ALL, SO FAR, seems good — and it is. But then comes the "crisis period," as Hoffman describes it, that could clobber the market in the third quarter.

Technology is the firm's top choice; in fact, ML thinks that 50 percent every equity dollar should be in this sector, since this is what productivity-enhancement is all about.

HIS THINKING: here is that a powerful rally will ensue as investors respond favorably to solid evidence that an economic recovery is indeed under way.

This perception will be reflected, as he sees it, in (1) a continued housing recovery, (2) further gains in the leading economic indicators, (3) a pickup in consumer durable, and (4) a rise in consumer confidence, as brought about by the public's increased wealth and estimated one-half trillion dollars stemming from the recent surge in the stock and bond markets.

And now, you've got to really make way for the ML bull. Hoffman's '84 Dow forecast: a possible move to 1,500 to 1,600.

OK, let's say you buy ML's great enthusiasm. What should you buy?

News Briefing

Federal workers testing for dioxin

TIMES BEACH, Mo. (UPI) — Federal workers were ordered to wear rubber boots, protective clothing and face masks during testing today to determine if floodwaters spread deadly dioxin throughout the evacuated St. Louis suburb.

Town officials complained the testing by the Environmental Protection Agency will do little to help displaced residents find housing, or speed repair of a flood-damaged water supply system.

"It's still up in the air," City Clerk Connie LaCone said of the government's plan to help make Times Beach livable once more. "You don't know what's going on."

Dr. H. Denny Donnell of the Missouri Division of Health said all vehicles entering Times Beach should move slowly to avoid raising dust and possibly dispersing the deadly chemical.

He also said workers should wear rubber boots that can be rinsed off before leaving the area. They also must don protective clothing, including face masks.

State and federal disaster relief officials have agreed to haul away hundreds of truckloads of flood debris left untouched because of the dioxin scare. Mrs. LaCone said the debris is a health hazard, but added, dioxin is a greater threat.

Leak may delay launch of shuttle

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (UPI) — A puzzling leak of flammable hydrogen in the engine compartment of the second space shuttle threatens to delay its first launch later this month.

"We still don't understand where the hydrogen leak is coming from," Mission Commander Paul J. Weitz said Tuesday at the crew's final pre-launch news conference.

The launch of the shuttle Challenger is tentatively scheduled for Jan. 28 at Cape Canaveral, Fla., but National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials said they will not approve it until the leak is found and fixed.

The officials said such a leak could be dangerous during flight.

Engineers at the Kennedy Space Center launch site worked around the clock to trace the source of the hydrogen leak. They said tests so far revealed no significant leakage.

The problem was discovered during analysis of engineering data from a ground test-firing of the Challenger's three main engines last month. Hydrogen 10 times denser than expected was measured in the engine section.

Bay State passes divestiture policy

BOSTON (UPI) — Massachusetts, on orders from the state Legislature, has become the second state in the nation to withdraw millions of dollars in public pension funds invested in companies doing business in South Africa.

The Legislature Tuesday overrode a gubernatorial veto to protest South Africa's apartheid policy by divesting about 100 million in pension funds.

The House, racing against the clock before the 1982 session automatically dissolved at midnight, voted 132-2 to override Gov. Edward J. King's veto of the measure aimed at South Africa's discriminatory policies against blacks.

The Senate voted 23-5 to override the measure. A two-thirds vote was needed in both branches.

Supporters said they expected funds would be taken from the stocks and bonds of 42 corporations and reinvested in the next three years, preferably in firms doing business in Massachusetts.

Several supporters of the bill said it would help the 18 million blacks living in apartheid South Africa and make a strong statement in favor of human rights.

Officials change food stamp plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials say they have "substantially" altered preliminary proposals to cut nearly $1 billion in food stamp and child nutrition spending and to force some food stamp recipients to find work.

But they declined Tuesday to discuss exactly how the proposals have been changed.

Final plans will be included in President Reagan's proposed fiscal 1984 budget, which must be filed by Jan. 31.

A tentative proposal prepared by the Office of Management and Budget would reduce federal spending on food and nutrition programs by $900 million, to $15.6 billion, in the year beginning Oct. 1. Spending in the current fiscal year is expected to total $15.5 billion.

Agriculture Department officials said the 1984 figures are based on an early version of the administration's recommendation and are not accurate.

Miami blacks seek chief's resignation

MIAMI (UPI) — Black leaders are calling for the resignation of Police Chief Kenneth Harms, saying he displayed a "cowboy" mentality during last week's rioting and has allowed racism to become institutionalized in the police department.

"I think Chief Harms ought to resign from his post, and let someone take over who can make this Police Department respond well to the citizens," Ray Faunroy of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference said Tuesday.

"Chief Harms has not been able to bring this Police Department to a level where it has the respect of the total community."

Two men died, 26 people were hurt and a dozen businesses looted or damaged during last week's violence in the Overton ghetto.

The riot began after police fatally shot a young black in a video game arcade.

"They (the police) behaved callously in Overton. They acted as if they were cowboys. I could see the glee in their eyes, between the officers, when they came into that community with their shotguns," said William Perry, head of the Miami chapter of the People United to Save Humanity.

Pope announces 18 new cardinals

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II announced today that he will elevate 18 Roman Catholic Church primates, including Archbishop of Chicago Joseph L. Bernardini, to the position of cardinal.

The promotions will take place at a Feb. 2 church council, to pontiff said at his weekly general audience.

In addition to Chicago Archbishop Bernardini, Monsignor Jozef Glemp, archbishop of Gniezno and Warsaw, Poland, as well as primate of the nation, also will be elevated to the position of cardinal.

Final plans will be included in President Reagan's proposed fiscal 1984 budget, which must be filed by Jan. 31.

A tentative proposal prepared by the Office of Management and Budget would reduce federal spending on food and nutrition programs by $900 million, to $15.6 billion, in the year beginning Oct. 1. Spending in the current fiscal year is expected to total $15.5 billion.

Denmark, Britain battle over fish

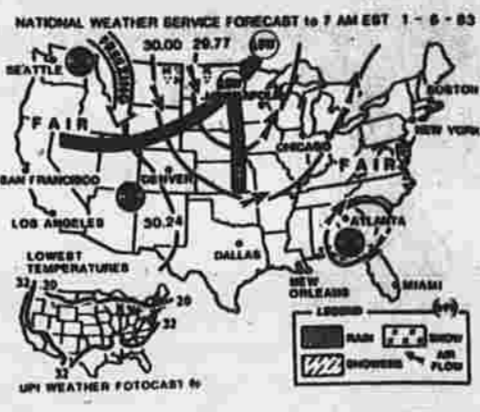

EDINBURGH, Scotland (UPI) — An armada of 100 Danish fishing vessels sailed for Britain's northeast coast today to challenge Royal Navy ships policing a fishing zone declared off limits to the Danes.

With European Parliament member Kent Kirk at the vanguard in a trawler, the Danish ships were heading for British waters and due to arrive at the restricted zone later today and Thursday, the Royal Navy said.

Britain accused Denmark Sunday by excluding its fishing fleet from a 12-mile coastal zone rich in sprat and mackerel, allowing only inshore industrial fishing for catch later processed into fishmeal and fertilizers.

Britain and Denmark both belong to the European Common Market and NATO.

The ban, being considered by the Market today, took effect after the European Court of Justice ruled in favor of Britain on a new common fisheries policy. Britain argues fish stocks in her waters must be conserved.

Checking accounts available today

Consumers with checking accounts join savers today in being eligible for floating interest-rate accounts designed to make banks and savings and loans even more competitive with Wall Street money-market funds.

The so-called "Super NOW" checking accounts are the second step in new laws aimed at assisting depressed financial institutions. Earlier, banks and savings and loans were allowed to offer the generally higher, money-market interest rates on savings accounts. And unlike the Wall Street money-market accounts, the new accounts are federally insured.

The Super NOW rules follow by one day a prediction by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. that mutual savings banks will return to profitability in March if a trend to lower interest rates continue.

"If rates stay down at current levels we expect the industry as a whole to turn profitable about March," FDIC spokesman Alan Whitney said Tuesday, but he said the weakest individual institutions may still not survive.

Market revives rally in rebound

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market Tuesday just about wiped out its record opening-day loss with a powerful rally that could be extended by a decline in short-term interest rates.

The blue-chip and glamor stocks that paced the historic 1982 rally were in the forefront of Tuesday's revival, along with long-neglected oil issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average climbed 19.04 points to 1,046.08 Tuesday, nearly erasing Monday's 19.50-point plunge, the biggest opening-day point loss on record.

Prior to Tuesday, the Dow had fallen 43.31 points about March 7, FDIC spokesman Alan Whitney said Tuesday, but he said the weakest individual institutions may still not survive.

Hollytics

There's a resurgence of political activism in the Hollywood Hills and environs — tagged "Hollytics" by Frank Bies, who lists the top 40 actor activists in Penthouse magazine.

Among them: Alan Alda, described as liberal with a deep — and sincere — sense of morality; Warren Beatty, who runs three political concerts as fund-raiser for George McGovern's presidential bid; Pat Boone, one of Hollywood's most visible conservatives; Sally Field, dubbed by some a "new Jane Fonda"; Jane Fonda, "queen mother" of celebrity politics; Clint Eastwood, called left of center despite his law-and-order films; Charlton Heston, among Hollywood's conservative elite; Jack Klugman, liberal, idealistic and Democratic; and Mario Thomas, who narrows in on the women's movement.

Hairsto-do

Is Barbara Mandrell's hair a mess or a mode? Hollywood fashion designer "Mr. (Bob) Blackwell" put her at the top of his 1982 Worst Dressed List, complaining about the styling of country-music singer's hair, saying, "It's never controlled and it never goes with the clothes."

Then along came the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, who picked Miss Mandrell as one of the Top Stylenakers of the Year.

Miss Mandrell says she owes the honor to her hairdresser, Rahm McDow, She commutes all the way from Tennessee to California for an appointment.

Glimpses

Debbie Reynolds is in town, after playing Atlantic City over New Year's weekend, to begin rehearsals for the Lauren Bacall-Raquel Welch starring role in the Broadway musical "Woman of the Year" that assumes Feb. 8.

Eve Arden is rehearsing for the upcoming Broadway comedy-murder mystery, "Moose Murders," by Arthur Bricknell.

Mario Puzo is in Hollywood for conferences on Robert Evans' upcoming film, "The Cotton Club," to star Richard Gere and Gregory Hines.

Gene Siskel and Roger Ebert appear tonight on NBC's "Late Night With David Letterman" to plug their syndicated show of film reviews.

Top earner

Burt Reynolds reigned as undepicted king of the motion picture box office for the 11th consecutive year in 1982 in a poll of U.S. theater owners. Only Bing Crosby had held a five-year lead before Reynolds.

Writing scores up, math down

By Raymond T. DeMeo
 Herald Reporter

Ninth graders at Manchester's two junior high schools scored better than last year's ninth graders on the writing section of the statewide proficiency test, but worse on the math section.

The results of the annual proficiency test, designed to test the basic skills of students entering their high school years, were made public Tuesday afternoon by the state Department of Education.

The percentage of Manchester ninth graders scoring at or above the state's minimum proficiency level was 95.8, up more than five percent from last year's results.

But only 81.7 percent of the ninth graders reached minimum proficiency standards in mathematics, a six percent drop from last year.

In language arts and reading, the two other testing areas, 92.2 percent and 93.3 percent met or exceeded standards, compared to 85.6 percent and 98 percent last year.

The town's scores exceeded statewide averages in all categories.

BUT THE MATHEMATICS score was clearly a disappointment to J. Gerald Fitzgibbon, the school system's assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction.

"Obviously it's a matter of concern," he said Tuesday. "We thought we were on an upward course. We had two consecutive years of math score improvement. We thought we had a handle on this, and it obviously requires another look."

In 1980, the first year the proficiency test was administered, 85 percent of the town's ninth graders met or exceeded basic skills proficiency levels in math.

Fitzgibbon said 95 out of the 520 students who took the math test in 1982 failed to reach proficiency.

Furious DiRosa, Diana storm out of meeting

By Paul Hendrie
 Herald Reporter

Consideration of a routine step toward the proposed Bennaet housing conversion Tuesday night erupted into partisan debate over an alternative the Republicans had proposed.

Republican directors Peter P. DiRosa Jr. and William J. Diana got so angry that they got up and left the Board of Directors meeting.

That left the third GOP director, Joan V. Lingard, to defend her side.

She sidestepped most questions about the specifics of the Republican proposal by promising a formal presentation to the full board next week.

The board was considering a proposal to allow the Manchester Redevelopment Agency to prepare a plan to sell the revenue bonds necessary to finance conversion of the vacant school to moderate-income housing.

This resolution was not a binding decision to proceed with the sale of bonds — the redevelopment agency still needs to come back to the board to get that permission — but lays the groundwork for quick action if the agency decides to go ahead with the plan.

The resolution eventually was approved 6-0-1, with Republican Director Kenneth N. Tedford, the newest director appointed last month to fill a vacancy, took the opportunity of the redevelopment resolution to challenge the GOP proposal. That plan calls for construction of 36 units of elderly housing behind the Senior Citizens Center, financed by general obligation bonds and supplemented by income from a sale of Bennaet.

Tedford complained that the Republicans had publicized their proposal in a news conference, but had made no formal proposal to the board. He charged the Republicans are not serious about their proposal, but are only trying to stall action on Bennaet.

A decision to go forward on Bennaet must be made by early February, Democratic Mayor Stephen T. Penty said, so construction could be completed in 1983. If the project is not done within the year, investors will not be able to get tax benefits for 1983. Selling tax breaks is a key to the Bennaet financing.

Tedford addressed a series of questions about the GOP plan to DiRosa. DiRosa objected, claiming that Tedford's questions had no relevance, because the Republican plan was not before the board.

"I have to believe that Mr. Tedford's questions are entirely politically motivated," said DiRosa, because if the Republican plan indeed was an alternative to Bennaet, it might be a factor in a decision to support the bonding resolution. Tedford resumed his questions, which DiRosa refused to answer. DiRosa became angry.

"We could save the board a lot of time by having Mr. Tedford submit his questions to the newspapers, which is his intention. I'll see you later," said DiRosa, as he stood up and left the meeting. Diana followed.

Tedford charged that when those costs are added in, the rents at the Republican project would run between $300 and $400, the range in which Bennaet rents would fall.

"If we had this before us, we could consider this, but obviously it was only a delaying tactic and a smokescreen," said Tedford.

Democratic Director Stephen T. Cassano said he chaired a committee in 1978 which considered building housing on the Senior Citizens Center land. He charged the Republican proposal is insensitive, because it was prepared without apparent consultation with the Senior Citizens Center and the Manchester Housing Authority. He said many factors considered in 1978 were ignored by the Republicans.

Penty said the Republicans have not analyzed the "risks" of their proposal, as the Democrats did with Bennaet.

"When we present the plan next week, we should be prepared to answer those questions," replied Mrs. Lingard.

Meeting canceled

The meeting of the Bennaet Housing Corp., scheduled for tonight, has been canceled. No new date for the meeting has been set, but the corporation is expected to meet within the next two weeks.

The corporation is waiting to act on a lease for the vacant Bennaet School building. The final wording of the lease is now being negotiated by Town Attorney Kevin M. O'Brien and the corporation's counsel, Dominic J. Squatrito.

The final lease also would have to be approved by the lower Board of Directors. Plans are to convert the building to moderate-income elderly housing, by selling revenue bonds and tax benefits. The non-profit corporation has been created to oversee development of the facility.

House Democrats cracking the whip on party loyalty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Democrats, cracking the whip on party loyalty this year, are waiting to see if Texas "Boll Weevil" Phil Gramm switches parties before making a decision on whether to discipline him further.

The House Democratic Steering and Policy Committee already has removed Gramm from the House Budget Committee because of his support for President Reagan's programs in the last Congress.

The panel postponed a decision on whether to oust him from the House Energy and Commerce Committee, waiting to see if he resigns to run as a Republican in a special election. Congressional sources who requested anonymity said a decision on whether to oust Gramm from the energy panel would be unnecessary if he resigns.

The panel planned to meet today to finish recommending to the Democratic Caucus which members should serve on what committees. Gramm flew to Houston Tuesday after telling friends here he might resign and run as a Republican. He scheduled a news conference today in his Bryan, Texas office.

Gramm has been Reagan's most loyal Democratic supporter, and Reagan's massive 1981 budget-cutting bill bears his name as one of the sponsors along with Rep. Delbert Latta of Ohio, ranking Republican on the Budget Committee.

The Democratic Steering Committee did nominate six members, including four freshmen, to fill vacancies on the energy panel. They are Reps. Wayne Dowdy of Mississippi and Dennis Eckart of Ohio, plus freshmen Reps. Bill Richardson of New Mexico, Jim Bates of California, Jim Slattery of Kansas and Minnesota's Gerry Sikorski.

Reagan considers budget; news conference tonight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan had two things to consider today about the 1984 federal budget and its projected $200 billion deficit — what to do about it and what to tell the American people about it.

Reagan's first nationally broadcast news conference of 1983, the 15th of his presidency, was scheduled for 8 p.m. EST with questions sure to focus on the fiscal problems. He held his last formal question-and-answer session Nov. 11.

Before the news conference, the president planned discussions on Lebanon and West Bank issues with visiting Israeli President Yitzhak Navon.

Although Senate GOP leaders are urging Reagan to cut or defer defense spending increases in the 1984 budget, they say he is "close to set in concrete" in his refusal to budge on the subject.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., a staunch Reagan loyalist, said Republicans told Reagan Tuesday the deficit numbers are a little terrifying — huge and probably intolerable.

Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Laxalt accurately reflected what went on in the meeting. Aides said the president is considering cuts in the range of $30 billion in "non-defense discretionary areas."

But the Democratic congressional leadership is taking a dim view of administration plans to slash social programs in a during a recession and with nearly 11 percent unemployment in the country.

Speakes said Reagan believes his decision not to retreat on military spending hikes is in "the best interest of the country."

"The president does not like high deficits," he said as much as 70 to 80 percent of the government's spending program is "locked in by law," leaving the president "handcuffed" in dealing with it, Speakes said.

Furthermore, he said Reagan is determined to show a decline in the deficit in future years.

"I think in terms of discretionary cuts we're awfully close to the bone," Laxalt said. "I think we'll have to look at some deferral in military spending and of course the whole gambit of entitlement programs is going to have to be reviewed perhaps on some kind of a freeze basis."

Speakes said Reagan is listening to the warnings from his own conservative party ranks but remains "committed to rebuilding this country's national defenses and is convinced that is the only way to get what we all seek, meaningful arms reductions."

Defense was discussed at some length, said Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., who found, contrary to some of his colleagues, and is convinced that is the only way to get what we all seek, meaningful arms reductions.

Domenici declined comment on a report he recommended a budget freeze with nearly 11 percent unemployment in the country.

Colombia sets crackdown on cocaine manufacturing

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — A Colombian minister ordered a ban on imports of chemicals used to manufacture cocaine in a government crackdown against $20 billion worth of the drug smuggled into the United States each year.

Minister of Economic Development Roberto Gerlin said Tuesday the import ban on ether, acetone, hydrochloride and other chemicals used to purify cocaine paste would be the first step to curb cocaine smuggling.

"I think this is a good first step," Gerlin said. "I recognize the bondage of this drug."

The request for the import ban was made by the Directive Council of Foreign Commerce, which also indicated it would ask Colombian President Belisario Betancur to start a national crackdown of cocaine production and exportation.

Gerlin, as an ex-facto member of the council, can ban the chemical imports without presidential or parliamentary sanction.

An estimated 44 tons of pure cocaine valued at $29 billion makes its way into the United States each year, according to the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency.

A majority of the cocaine entering American ports is manufactured in Medellin, Colombia's second largest city.

But national police officials recently reported hundreds of smaller cocaine laboratories have sprouted in the northeast section of the country.

Colombian laboratories purify cocaine paste imported from Bolivia and Peru. The pure cocaine smuggled into the United States sells for $60,000 a kilogram, about 2.2 pounds.

American drug officials have indicated cocaine traffic has flourished the past three years with the emergence of the Chapare, a jungle region in north-central Bolivia, as the mecca of the best coca crop in the world.

A spokesman for the Directive Council of Foreign Commerce in Bogota said the government agency had analyzed the cocaine traffic between Colombia and the United States and had concluded immediate measures were necessary.

"The problem is the same as always. Perhaps it has worsened," the spokesman said. "We need a special, forestal and constant control of the products used to manufacture cocaine."

President Reagan, during his visit to Colombia last Dec. 3, petitioned Betancur to do more to curb the flourishing cocaine trade.

Emissions tests begin without major problems

EAST HARTFORD (UPI) — At its worst, Connecticut's new emissions test forced motorists to wait up to 75 minutes for a less than 6-minute test, pay $10 and come back within a month to do it again if their car flunked the test.

At its best, there were no lines, the test was over in 4 minutes and the motorist was free to drive for a year before the next test. There was no escape from the $10 inspection fee, pass or fail.

For more than 500 motorists who passed through the East Hartford inspection station during opening day Tuesday, the emissions test was a little bit of both.

Those who drove in just before noon waited an hour to 75 minutes for the test. Others who came in just before 5 p.m. when the station closed, had no wait.

Motorists were "basically agreeable," said Tom Ward, station manager.

"There were a lot of questions but overall things went smoothly. There was no particular problem," he said.

Carol Gilbert of Manchester didn't have to wait for the test and passed. But she was not happy.

"I resent this," she said after paying her inspection fee. "I'm sure they could fix everyone's car for what it cost to go through there."

Her objection: "I just feel it's not directed at the right people. I hate to ride behind trucks and buses. I'm sure none of them are going through," she said.

The program exempts cars made in 1968 or before, vehicles over 10,000 pounds and those not powered by fuels other than gasoline.

Clint Keeney of Manchester said, "I was surprised it went so quickly."

Keeney said he drove right through and his wife didn't have to wait long when she brought her car through earlier in the day.

"I wasn't too fond of the idea," he said of the inspection program. "But since both cars passed I guess I shouldn't complain."

Robert Ordini of Manchester was among the last to pass through the station.

"I like the idea of the program, but I would prefer a vehicle inspection. Ordini would also do away with exemptions. "I don't think this is the way to solve our pollution problem."

Michael Barton, 32, of Manchester was hired as an emissions inspector and said the program "is going great so far."

"Most were polite, very courteous," he said. "Only a couple of people were upset," he said.

Cuts aim to curb deficit

HARTFORD (UPI) — In an effort to curb a budget deficit that has swelled to $67 million, Gov. William O'Neill has ordered state agency heads to hold down spending during the last half of the fiscal year.

O'Neill wrote agency heads telling them to try to hold spending 5 percent below requested allotments in the final two quarters of the fiscal year "while maintaining our commitment to essential state services."

The Democratic governor told reporters Tuesday he was hopeful of meeting a $5-million "lapse figure" built into the budget for the 1982-83 fiscal year, which ends June 30.

"I'm hoping that we certainly meet the lapse figure of $5 million and do better than that if at all possible... to hold the line on expenditures," O'Neill said.

O'Neill said his order on spending reductions would be flexible with regard to state agencies dealing with human services.

"We are not going to reduce the budgets of any human service area agencies unless they can't," he said.

"If they cannot be then we are not going to try, we are not going to eliminate compassion in human services to the people of Connecticut," O'Neill added.

State budget officials cited higher costs in the Department of Income Maintenance — the state's welfare department — as the chief reason for the higher deficit projection, released Monday.

GOP leader seeks new DOT probe

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Republican state chairman has called on the new attorney general to begin a separate investigation into the civil aspects of alleged corruption in the state Department of Transportation.

Ralph Capocelatro said Tuesday a separate investigation by Joseph Lieberman, who was to be sworn in today as the new attorney general, could involve areas where damage suits may be warranted.

The Department is already the topic of a criminal investigation by a one-man grand jury. He said if "nothing else" the second investigation might turn up inadequacies of the DOT's operations.

Capocelatro said allegations of corruption in the DOT had a "dark cloud" hanging over Gov. William O'Neill's administration and an open investigation was needed to help restore public trust in state government.

The grand jury investigation of the DOT has netted in eight arrests, including former Transportation Commissioner Arthur B. Powers.

Capocelatro said he did not think a civil investigation by the attorney general would overlap on the criminal investigation by the grand jury or legislative hearings into DOT operations.

"I don't foresee any problem of overlapping," Capocelatro said at a news conference. "The more light shed the better."

OPINION

Uneasy lie heads of legislative leaders

Capitol Comments

Political leadership in both chambers of the General Assembly which opens today with a ceremonial flourish offers contrasts that bear watching as the session moves along.

In the Senate, the crossfire will be between the majority and minority leaders. In the House, the key leaders will be at each other across the aisle, but they will also have to watch themselves within their own caucuses.

Senate Majority Leader Dick Schneller of Essex and Senate President Pro Tem Gerry Murphy of Franklin complement each other in style and temperament and their Democratic caucus is safely with them.

Murphy is the easy-going operator who knows how to deliver the votes on roll calls. He can mend fences where Schneller would have trouble being a diplomat. Schneller, the issues expert, is regarded as fair and objective even by Democrats who say he can be abrasive.

role of the minority is to be a needle, and he intends to hold Democratic feet, including those of Governor Bill O'Neill, to the fire.

The House is another matter. Incoming Speaker Irving Stolberg of New Haven and House Majority Leader John Groppo of Winsted have come a long way together but they have little in common philosophically or personally. Each has his support troops in the House majority. They will try to get along, but it will take work.

Stolberg was apparently overextended in making Democratic tactics of creating a "leader at large" post for Markham. Similarly, Stolberg brought Representative Bill Cibes of New London into the leadership circle instead of originally, the chairmanship of Government Administration and Elections.

any trouble in this new session from the tiny but tough coalition of fiscal conservatives who were dubbed the Solid Seven in the last assembly. He made its leader, Representative Chris Niedermeyer of Fairfield, chairman of the Transportation Committee in what some see as the obvious expectation that she will be a good girl and not make waves on money matters.

Representative Niedermeyer says, however, that what is left of her coalition — Representatives Betsy Gibson of Groton, Michael Rybak of Harwinton, John "Tony" Miscooski of Torrington and herself — will keep plugging for fiscal restraint.

But Miscooski is typical of casualties in Stolberg's trying to keep everybody happy. The Torrington lawmaker, with 27 years in the legislature, could not even win a vice chairmanship this time.

more liberties with Abate than they can get away with — under Stolberg.

But if Stolberg has some in his caucus he must watch, so does House Minority Leader R.E. Van Norstrand of Darien on his side. Van knows he has problem children who are not his biggest fans.

Some joined the candidacy of Rep. Dave Smith of Brookfield for the leadership post. They find themselves, like Rep. Jamie McLaughlin of Woodbury, who nominated Smith, out of ranking member posts they either had or expected on some of the Legislature's committees.

WASHINGTON — At painful expense to the taxpayers, the Pentagon has developed the most sophisticated weaponry in the world. The latest instruments of destruction are wondrous to behold, with sleek designs, computerized controls and electronic gadgetry.

There is just one problem: These weapons are so complex that only high skilled technicians can operate them. Yet the armed services don't have nearly enough technicians in the ranks. So they depend on civilian contract personnel — known in the trade as "technical mercenaries" — to manage and maintain the sophisticated weapons systems.

So the test for leadership, with all its built-in problems, will not only be in handling the big issues this year but in getting along with its own people. Check back in five months to see how this works out. (Syndicated by The Herald of New Britain.)

Rep. Edith Prague, D-8th, has proposed a bill asking for tougher punishments for drunk drivers, but both the director of the Connecticut Civil Liberties Union and a leading legislator have indicated that it is flawed and has little chance of getting out of committee.

Both said the recently submitted bill is impractical. They said it appears to have been written mostly to comply with campaign promises and shows little understanding of the judicial system.

A new neighbor with a lesson

Main Street's newest occupant has taught its neighbors an important lesson.

Computer Training Institute took over the space vacated by the Singer Sewing Center in December.

The firm marked its arrival by erecting a well-lighted, professional looking sign over its quarters.

The sign was the talk of Main Street the day it went up and those who see it for the first time invariably say a version of the following:

"Gee, that sign looks great." The sign doesn't necessarily guarantee Computer Training Institute's survival nor does it guarantee the quality of what the firm purports to teach: computer-based skills.

However, the sign is vital in creating an image which the new business wants to communicate. That image is slick, modern and professional.

And those who pass by the sign can hardly resist the temptation to wish that other businesses along Main Street had as impressive signs.

Compare CTI's sign, for instance, to the rather unattractively lettered "Mall" which hangs over the Manchester Mall. Surely, some of the problems the Mall has had attracting customers has to do with the rather unattractive and unimpressive entranceway.

In Mall owner Ken Burkamp's defense, he has made an effort to pretty up the back of the building facing the Purnell parking lot. New landscaping and an attractive painted-on sign much improve the look of the rear entrance.

With Worth's leaving Main Street and rumors rife that Carriage House is moving in, CTI's sign should serve as an inspiration to Carriage House owner Joseph Bovino.

If ever there is an instance when a businessman should spend more than he can afford, it's when a new sign is considered.

All one has to do is look at CTI for proof.

Bad advice

To the Editor: I suppose I ought not to have been surprised, after all your articles and editorials on alcoholism and drunken drivers, to find a feature article on alcoholic punches for New Year's Eve parties. Your editorial thinking has always been woefully enough to allow for such contradictions.

The worse offender on the page was the Fish House Punch, fully half of which is hard liquor. The milder ones, however, are quite sufficient to send some party-goers out on the roads in a dangerous condition.

I noticed you were careful to warn people not to boil the alcohol out of the mulled wine and to remind them that they can add vodka to the only non-alcoholic punch you bothered to include.

I have never been able to understand why so large a part of mankind feels the need more or less frequently to drink a substance that reduces both physical and mental ability, even when taken in small amounts.

Undiluted, it is a fatal poison. It is often and unpredictably addictive, as many have found to their grief. For you and others to treat it as something to be enjoyed or even as socially acceptable is to do a disservice to all of us.

It makes anyone who travels in a car less sure of making it home in one piece. It makes it harder for the alcoholic who is struggling to throw off the toils of his addiction. Most cruel of all, it soothes those who are about to take their first drink and those who are just on the point of becoming alcoholic.

Undiluted, it is a fatal poison. It is often and unpredictably addictive, as many have found to their grief. For you and others to treat it as something to be enjoyed or even as socially acceptable is to do a disservice to all of us.

It makes anyone who travels in a car less sure of making it home in one piece. It makes it harder for the alcoholic who is struggling to throw off the toils of his addiction. Most cruel of all, it soothes those who are about to take their first drink and those who are just on the point of becoming alcoholic.

To the Editor: I suppose I ought not to have been surprised, after all your articles and editorials on alcoholism and drunken drivers, to find a feature article on alcoholic punches for New Year's Eve parties. Your editorial thinking has always been woefully enough to allow for such contradictions.

The worse offender on the page was the Fish House Punch, fully half of which is hard liquor. The milder ones, however, are quite sufficient to send some party-goers out on the roads in a dangerous condition.

I noticed you were careful to warn people not to boil the alcohol out of the mulled wine and to remind them that they can add vodka to the only non-alcoholic punch you bothered to include.

I have never been able to understand why so large a part of mankind feels the need more or less frequently to drink a substance that reduces both physical and mental ability, even when taken in small amounts.

Obituaries Swank campaigns against porn in Massachusetts

Almeron L. Hollister
Almeron L. Hollister, 83, of 62 Hollister St., died Tuesday at Manchester Memorial Hospital. He was the husband of Mary (Mollie) O'Brien Hollister.

He was born Nov. 4, 1899 in Manchester and had been a lifelong resident. Hollister Street was named after his late father.

He attended local schools and before retiring in 1965 he had been employed at Pratt & Whitney in East Hartford. In the late 1940s he was part owner of Hollister Brothers Ice Co. in Rockville. He was a World War I veteran, serving in the U.S. Navy. He was a 50-year member of American Legion Post 102 of Manchester.

Besides his wife he leaves a sister, Mrs. Florence Buell of Phoenix, Ariz.; a nephew, Royce Hollister of Coventry; and several other nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be Thursday at 8:45 a.m. at the Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., with a mass of Christian burial at 9:30 a.m. at St. Bridget Church. Burial will be in Backland Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home today from 7 to 8 p.m. with an American Legion Service to be conducted at 7:15 p.m.

The Rev. J. Grant Swank, who conducted an unsuccessful fight against the establishment of pornographic book stores in Manchester in the early 1970s, is spearheading a similar campaign in Walpole, Mass., where he is pastor of the Church of the Nazarene.

In a letter to the editor published in the Walpole Times, Swank cites Manchester's experience as evidence that "once pornographic dealers have locked themselves into a community, it is difficult to dislodge them."

He is urging a united front of Walpole clergymen, businessmen, and the town's Board of Selectmen to band to keep pornographic book stores out of that town.

On Thursday, Walpole will hold a public forum on whether pornography and video games should be regulated in town.

In his letter to the editor, Swank says the Manchester group he headed, Citizens Against Pornography, did not have the support of the Board of Directors, the mayor or the Chamber of Commerce.

He writes, "To this day I still have copies of the book stores that were stop me to say that they wished the elected officials had done something about the large-scale pornography problem in that 'City of Village Charm' (which is its official by-line). Nevertheless it is now too late and Manchester has come to be known as one of those New England open doors for the sale of pornographic merchandise. Personally, I think there is no turning back."

The first pornographic book store to open in Manchester was The Manchester Book Store. It was located in October 1971 next door to what was then the State Theater on Main Street.

Swank resigned from his post with the Chamber in June 1972 after the chamber's executive board gave him an ultimatum, resign or face dismissal. He charged his anti-pornography activities motivated the board's action, but the board denied it.

Cold in the East; snow in the West

By United Press International

Bitter cold turned firefighters into ice statues in New England and a Pacific rain and snowstorm hampered efforts to find a plane that crashed in Washington carrying five people. Prisoners in Mississippi waded into a flooded river to rescue two men.

At least 10 weather-related deaths have been reported in the last three days — four of them caused by exposure. Three deaths were reported in Texas, three in New Mexico, two in Idaho and one each in Oregon and Mississippi.

Temperatures hovered around zero over northern portions of New England and New York throughout Tuesday.

In Maine, the mercury plummeted to 11-below zero at Caribou before climbing to a high of only 2 degrees. Firefighters battling a stubborn blaze in Augusta were slowly transformed into ice statues as water dripping from their helmets and clothes froze.

Mississippi guards and prisoners, on their way to help sandbag flooding rivers Tuesday, were two men and woman from the Sunflower River near Indianola. The man, a passerby, had attempted to save two women in a sinking car but failed because he couldn't swim. One of the women drowned.

The car was still floating when the man came along and attempted to rescue one of the women.

Sunflower County Sheriff Jack Sessums. "But he couldn't swim and had to turn her loose. He most lost his life."

Officials said the women were in a car that skidded on ice and slid into the river. One officer swam to the car and prisoners strung belts together to form a rope.

In Washington state, officials said they would resume their search today for a twin-engine plane carrying five people that crashed in the Columbia Gorge en route from Portland, Ore., to Idaho Falls.

Searchers battled snow, rain, ice and fog in their hunt for the plane that crashed Monday. Pilot Richard P. Perry, 39, of Hooper, Utah, issued a distress call before the plane disappeared from radar screens. He said the plane's wings were icing up.

Persistent showers poured 1 inch of rain on Astoria, Ore., and Hoquiam, Wash.

Clear skies brought Louisiana residents temporary reprieve from rains that dumped 18 inches of water and forced nearly 10,000 people from their homes. At least 3,000 residents were still out of their homes, said Joe Colson, assistant secretary of the state's Office of Emergency Preparedness.

Officials seek cause of blast

STAMFORD (UPI) — Investigators today searched for the cause of an explosion that blew the roof off a burning chemical plant, severely burning four firefighters battling the blaze.

The firefighters were injured Tuesday in a shower of flames from the explosion of chemical-filled drums and vats at United Organic Corp. The first and worst explosion lifted the roof off the building, and was followed by a series of smaller explosions as the fire spread through the three-story building.

"After the first major explosion, different drums started letting go and chemical tanks, as they were heated, exploded," said Fire Capt. Thomas Conklin.

The fire apparently started in a 800-gallon vat, but the cause was undetermined. Officials today were waiting for the fire to stop simmering before entering the plant.

One police officer was admitted to Stamford Hospital for inhalation of toxic chemicals, and 43 firefighters, police officers and ambulance workers were examined for possible exposure to dangerous chemicals.

The four firefighters who suffered second- and third-degree burns on their faces and hands were injured while reading a water hose to rig the pipe in the building at the tip of an industrial complex in Stamford's south end.

Three of the burned firefighters were examined at Stamford Hospital and transferred to the burn unit at Westchester, N.Y., Community Medical Center. They were John Ferguson, Walter Finch and Jerry LeBlanc.

A spokesman at the Burn Center said the three were in critical condition Tuesday night.

The fourth firefighter, Scott Gill, was admitted to Stamford Hospital and will be in the hospital's critical care unit.

Crash hurts woman

A 57-year-old East Hartford woman is in satisfactory condition at Manchester Memorial Hospital today after suffering multiple injuries in a three-car accident Tuesday morning.

Police said Joan T. Carote's car was headed north on New State Road at 7:30 a.m. when it collided with a car driven by Philip M. Choma, 17, of South Windsor. Choma was attempting to make a left turn from New State to Hilliard Street when the accident occurred, police said.

The impact of the collision drove Choma's car into a third vehicle that was parked at the stop sign where Hilliard meets New State. The driver of that car, 20-year-old David M. Moeane of 454 Parker St., was unharmed, police said.

Choma was cited for making an improper turn. A Manchester Memorial Hospital spokesman said he was treated for minor injuries and released. His passengers, 15-year-old Mary Ann Choma of South Windsor and 15-year-old Martin Lee of South Windsor, also suffered minor injuries and were treated and released, the hospital spokesman said.

Factions ravaging Tripoli; deaths mount

By Julie Flint
United Press International

Rival militias ravaged Lebanon's second largest city today in a fifth straight day of fighting that has killed at least 61 people, razed downtown buildings, overcrowded hospitals and ruptured water and power supplies.

"Tripoli is burning," said the headline in Beirut newspaper Al-Liwa.

Heavenly and indiscriminate shelling of civilian neighborhoods and bitter gun battles in the streets raged in the city 50 miles north of Beirut, security sources said.

Lebanese television said at least 14 people were killed and 39 others wounded Tuesday in Tripoli, where pro-Syrian militias fought armed opponents of the 40,000 Syrian troops entrenched in northern Lebanon.

The dangers of bringing ambulances into the fighting areas hampered more accurate casualty tolls, the television said.

The television said some bodies lay in the streets for hours before they were transported to morgues. In Tripoli's latest upsurge of factional fighting, at least 61 people have been reported killed and 109 wounded.

In Tel Aviv, the military command said at least 10 Israeli soldiers, riding in an army vehicle were wounded in an explosion south of Beirut and the civilian driver of a tanker truck was kidnapped in the Lebanese coastal town of Dammur.

In Jerusalem, U.S. envoy Morris Draper, ending an hour-long meeting with Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir and other Israeli negotiators, said he had "high hopes" the impasse on an agenda for talks on troop withdrawals from the Lebanese coastal town was as possible.

Israeli-Lebanese talks have snagged since Dec. 28 on Jerusalem's demand the two nations first attempt to "normalize" relations, but Lebanon insists they focus

Bloomfield nips East in OT, 62-61

By Len Auster
Herald Sportswriter

They somehow almost pulled out the verdict... "Although they didn't deserve it."

And they didn't get it.

An offensive rebound bucket by Carl Brown, coming in unattended from the weakside, with 40 seconds left gave Bloomfield the lead and a free throw by Cornell Snow clinched it as the home-standing Warhawks nipped East Catholic, 62-61, in overtime Tuesday evening in Bloomfield.

The Eagles had three chances to draw even at 61-all but three layup bids by Doug Bond — the third final stanza to go, somehow worked its way to a 55-51 lead with 23 seconds left. But Snow, felled by two late, hit both ends of a one-and-one to narrow it to two.

Rich Kucinas, who had drawn East even and then dished off to Bond for a go-ahead hoop, was fouled with 12 seconds to go and missed the front end. The Warhawks, 3-3, grabbed the rebound and called timeout. They came down court but lost control.

East's Rick Soucier had it momentarily but lost control with the basketball winding up in the hands of Bloomfield's Matt Calarco. His 12-foot jumper hit nothing but net to send it to overtime.

"Again obvious lack of quickness hurt us. We're not coming up with the loose ball. The ball was on the ground and it was somehow batted up. They got it and threw it in," Penders said the last-second shot that sent it to overtime.

East will remember the closing moments, but must remember it hurt itself considerably in the first stanza. The Warhawks, moving the ball at will and getting it inside for easy hoops, had a 13-3 lead at the turn. "We lost the game in the first quarter. We weren't ready to play. That's my fault I guess," shrugged Penders. "Maybe we were looking ahead to Friday," he mused.

East travels to New Britain

Friday to engage St. Thomas Aquinas in its HCC opener. It next week has dates with Hartford Public and South Catholic.

All three are classified as quick teams. "We have three tough ones coming up and we'll see if we can get hungry starting Friday," Penders said.

Bloomfield, with some backdoor buckets and mostly jumpers in the lane area, was 29-for-53 from the field. Brown had 15 points, Snow 13 and Phil Harrison a dozen to lead the Warhawks.

Bond totaled a game-high 21 markers for East with Sean McPadden (15) and Jim Dargati (13) also in twin digits. East was 25-for-54 from the field, including 3-for-7 in the overtime. Bloomfield was 3-for-4 in the extra three minutes.

Unseasonal weather has prolonged the golfing season in the area and with a shortage of snow piled up against the backboard on the way by Bloomfield's Snow — rolled off the iron.

Bond did it a meaningless foul line jumper with a second to go but all that did was draw the final reading closer.

"They (Bloomfield) certainly deserved to win. We didn't deserve to win this game," said an annoyed East Coach Jim Penders, who saw his cagers slip to 3-2.

Penders was particularly incensed by his team's defense — or lack of. "Our defense was like a sieve. They got the ball inside at will. And that was proven in the final 20 seconds of regulation."

Foul line decisive

Penney tops Tribe by 53-47 margin

By Earl Yost
Sports Editor

Clear-cut superiority at the 15-foot foul line spelled the difference between Penney High and Manchester in a CCLL basketball game last night in East Hartford.

The hosts dropped in 21 of 30 attempts from the charity stripe en route to a 53-47 victory before 600 fans.

Manchester's young inexperienced Indians outscored the Black Knights from the floor, 20-16, but canned only seven one-pointers in eight attempts.

Reluctance to shoot may have been the biggest fly in the Tribe's ointment as time after time excessive ball handling proved costly.

Penney, considered one of the league's powerhouses, opened its quarter with a 2-3 while the Tribe slipped to 2-3 overall, 1-2 in the CCLL.

Next start for the young Indians was on Friday night at the Clark Arena against Conard of West Hartford in another league skirmish.

Besides the big advantage at the foul line, Penney also won the battle of the boards by a wide margin with rugged Mike Crooks, tall Doug Shaw and springy Tim Menette just too strong to let the charity stripe end the court.

The high-scoring Crooks was margin by never relinquishing Crooks, however, in addition to his board work, was immense at the foul line, hitting on 11 of a dozen tries.

Ten of Penney's 15 points in the third period were dropped in by Shaw. He popped in four double-digits and added two free throws to account for all but four of his game-high 14 points. Crooks was up with 13 and Menette added 10, six in the final eight minutes, to also wind up in twin figures with 10.

Co-lancey marked Tim Carnell's play. The big Indian tallied two hoops in each of the first three stanzas and added a single basket in the fourth for a 14-point total, tops for his club. Ken Willis, with 10 points, was Coach Doug Pearson's only other player to reach two digits in the point column.

Origin explained

Reader asked recently for the origin of the National Anthem before played before the start of sporting events in the USA. Back in 1818, during the opening game of the World Series between the Boston Red Sox and Chicago Cubs, followers of the home team stood up for the seventh inning stretch in Chicago's Wrigley Field and the band began playing the Star-Spangled Banner. It wasn't until after World War II that all major league baseball teams and other major sports events started with the national anthem. For the record, 15 of the 19 members of the USA 1980 Gold Medal championship hockey team went to the Olympic Games with a commitment from National Hockey League teams. Tennis magazine readers have voted Cliff Drysdale the best tennis commentator and Bud Collins the worst. Tony Trabert, Vic Braden, Arthur Ashe and John Newcombe trailed Drysdale...Betina Jung, 19, and Steve Denton, 26, have been named the most improved tennis professionals of 1982. Bolton in win column after beating Clerey

Behind a big third-quarter surge, Bolton High broke into the win column with a come-from-behind 43-34 decision over Cheney Tech in Charter Oak Conference (COC) basketball action Tuesday evening in Bolton.

The win lifts the Bulldogs to 1-1 in the conference and 1-3 overall while the setback leaves the Techmen 1-1 in the COC and 1-2 overall.

Bolton's next outing is Friday against RHAM High in Hebron while Cheney also takes to the road as it visits Portland High. Both COC affairs start 7:45.

The Techmen had a slender 12-10 lead at the turn and exceeded the margin to 28-22 at halftime. Bolton, however, came out quickly in the third quarter. The Bulldogs ran off eight unanswered points to assume the upper hand and secured a 42-38 edge after 24 minutes.

Jeff Peterson had a big third-stanza outburst with 8 points for the Bulldogs with Ted Brown adding a pair of hoops. Cheney suffered a big blow in the segment as 6-foot-3

Making its 1982-83 debut, Manchester High boys' swimming team was dunked by visiting Fermi High, 78-54, in CCLL action Tuesday afternoon at the Indians' pool.

Manchester resumes action Friday at Conard High at Cornerstone Pool in West Hartford at 8:30.

Manchester's foursome of Gahan Fallone, Gary McDonough, Dave Outini and Tracy O'Connell took the 100-yard medley relay to open matters.

Outini took the 100-yard freestyle the win column and maybe we can turn things around a little bit."

Silvia couldn't point to his bench for the loss as he started some of his youngsters, two sophomores, because of reasons. They helped Cheney to the first-quarter edge. "I put the starters in and we fell behind," Silvia said simply.

Peterson and Mal Ferguson each netted 18 points for the Bulldogs with Brown chipping in 15 markers. Nick Foran and Paul Nowak hooped 18 and 14 tallies respectively for Cheney.

Cheney took the jayvee contest, 60-32. Ricky Gonzalez and Luis Melendez had 12 and 10 points respectively for the 2-1 young Beavers.

Bolton (63) - Brown 47-15, Peterson 40-18, Owen 20-4, Ferguson 6-6-18, Sheets 1-0-2, Richardson 0-0-0, Cusano 3-0-6. Totals 25-13-23.

Cheney Tech (56) - Nowak 5-4-14, Elliott 3-0-4, Mitchell 2-0-1, Strickland 3-0-4, Foran 8-2-18, Westry 1-0-2, Weiss 0-0-4, Hawkins 0-4-6, Veasco 0-0-0. Totals 25-13-23.

Syracuse Coach Boeheim not pleased with rating

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Syracuse University basketball coach Jim Boeheim says he is pleased, but not particularly excited, with the news that his undefeated team has broken into the Top 10.

"We felt we had to win at least eight games to be in good shape for this part of our schedule," Boeheim said.

A Dec. 11 win over nationally ranked Houston on national television was a key victory for the Orange.

"The Houston game was a tremendous boost in terms of exposure," Boeheim said. "Voters can read about you all they want in the Sunday papers but when they see you on television, it's a different story and they start saying, 'Hey, maybe Syracuse is a Top 20 team.'"

In six-plus seasons, Boeheim has compiled a record of 148-43 with a winning percentage of better than 76 percent, the fifth-highest winning percentage among active coaches. His teams have gone to four NCAA tournaments and two National Invitation Tournaments.

By Martin Sloane

With the holidays just past, and another year of coupon and refund savings behind us, our thoughts should turn to sharing with others some of our good fortune in this new year: The next time you are standing at a supermarket checkout line, why not offer the shopper behind you a coupon for one of the items in her shopping cart? After the surprise, you're sure to get a smile.

Isn't there someone who has done a money-saving favor for you in the past year — saved you some labels or found you some forms? Wouldn't it be nice to send for a refund or better yet, a gift offer in that person's name? What would it take to convince your office manager to permit a coupon exchange box in the employee lounge or lunchroom? Probably less than you think, and wouldn't that spread cheer all throughout the year? How about inviting a few friends over to your house for a cup of coffee and to trade a few coupons? If you have never tried it, you don't know all the fun you're missing!

Have you thought about the good feeling you'd get if you dropped some of your unwanted coupons off at a senior citizens center? Or, how about all those pet food coupons you can't use? Is there an animal shelter near you?

It gives us a great feeling of accomplishment when our refunding brings us free product coupons in the mail. But the feeling would be even more wonderful if you gave some of those cans and packages of food to help those who are less fortunate than yourself. In the terminology of refunding, that would be a very special "double play."

If you are an "avid" refunder and coupon clipper with a true yearning to spread the cheer in the new year, then why not offer to speak before a home economics class, a woman's club or a senior citizens group? The best speakers are those who talk about a subject they know or enjoy.

Why not spread the cheer close to home? Have you ever thought of buying an extra pair of scissors for your spouse? Consider the many times he (or she) has watched in silence as you did all the clipping. Last but not least, don't forget the "mailperson" who has labored during the past year under the weight of countless refund envelopes, dutifully delivered to your mailbox. Let's keep the fun in refunding. Happy New Year!

Advice

Lusty in-law needs help

DEAR ABBY: My sister's husband has always liked me. That's the problem. He likes me more than I want him to. He has propositioned me in the past, but I've always been able to put him in his place without making a scene. (I'm separated from my husband.) Thanksgiving night at my mother's he cornered me in the kitchen, and I had to threaten him with a butcher knife to keep him from forcing himself on me. He smeared my lipstick and tore my dress. I said I was chilly and put on my coat so nobody would notice. On another family occasion, he followed me into the bedroom, locked the door and tried to rape me. He keeps telling me "I love" me. I can't stand the sight of that man, but we are thrown together constantly because he's my family. I can't tell my sister because she has three children and she loves him.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Besides, I don't want to hurt her. It's a terrible strain to keep out of his way. He's even called me at work and tried to talk me into seeing him. He's making a nervous wreck of me. What should I do? FEELS TRAPPED DEAR ABBY: Tell your sister. Her husband needs help. Attempted rape is nothing to sweep under the carpet. If he's tried it with you, he's probably tried it with others — and may be succeeded. Family or not, he should be exposed for what he is.

DEAR ABBY: Is it ever OK for a man to wear his hat in a restaurant? I'm dating a Texan who always keeps his cowboy hat on while we're eating out. We go to nice places, and sometimes people look at him funny. By the way, he's not really a cowboy, but he always wears a cowboy hat. Thanks. BETTY IN GREENWICH, CONN. DEAR BETTY: Unless your Texan is an Orthodox Jew, he should remove his hat while dining. DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you asked if there was a city known as

"The Pits." Well, there is. And I am sending you a T-shirt bearing the message, "HIBBING, MINNESOTA — IT'S THE PITS!" Hibbing is the home of the largest open-pit iron ore mine in the world. In the summer, when most of America is sweltering, come enjoy the naturally air-conditioned city of Hibbing, Minn. BILL WIRTANEN, PRESIDENT, HIBBING, C. OF C. AMBASSADORS CLUB DEAR BILL: Thanks for the neat T-shirt. (P.S. It fits.) DEAR ABBY: Please tell that lambrained idiot who is forcing his left-handed child to use her right hand that I am a very victim of th-uh-that k-a-k-a-kind of st-st-stupidity. FA-FA-FA-RANK P.S. I could write a book on the damage caused by such ignorance, but for now, I think the above sentences-says it all.

Antacids don't eliminate gas

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a senior lady of 70 and have always had a lot of gas in my stomach. This time I am visiting my doctor and he sent me for barium X-rays which came out OK, no ulcers, but the doctor gave me Tagamet which I took for four weeks. There was some relief but not enough. I watch my diet very closely. The gas forms in my stomach and goes to my left side along the lower ribs. I am sometimes it goes away. I've had this trouble for two months. I take a lot of sweets before this happens. Do you think my spleen or something has been affected?

Your Health

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

It is not steady but comes when I eat something sweet. I only take a milk of magnesia tablet when needed which does help me. Could you suggest what I can eat for this condition? DEAR READER: Those frequent gas problems that so many people have are from two main sources, the air you swallow and perhaps more importantly, the fermentation of undigested foods in your large bowel. You may be surprised to know that antacids and Tagamet have no beneficial effects on gas regardless of the many commercials that imply the contrary. These have no effect on fermentation in your colon and no effect on swallowing air. I'm not surprised that Tagamet was not successful in your case. Any benefits would have been psychological. I do not recommend laxatives but if a person has a bowel movement they may also relieve colon spasm and relieve gas trapped in the colon and causing pain. That is why a simple enema sometimes

Thoughts

There is a beautiful and instructive work in the Book of Psalms: God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Psalm 46:1. When trouble strikes, what you want is comfort and protection. You want strength to stand up to it and meet it. Sometimes help will come from a friend, and this can be God's way of meeting the situation.

The University of Connecticut at Storrs

In his small book "On the Listening To Another," Douglas V. Steere has some valuable things to say about the use of our ears. He suggests we hear with only the outer ear when we need to practice "holistic listening." This, he explains, is open, sympathetic, caring, non-judgmental listening. Good listeners are patient, selfless, mature people who show concern. Though they may or may not speak, they actively participate in the conversation with their eyes, a smile or an acknowledging nod. Most of us have friends and loved ones who pay us the high compliment of earnest listening. They empathize with our problems, our needs, our dreams. In other words, they are God-like in that they hear the heart-message that is often hidden by our language. If you would serve others well, it is imperative that you learn to give your undivided attention. The Lord will help someone who needs a listening ear. Milton S. Quite a handful: Alma and Richard Thomas with the triplets.

John-Boy has gone country and goals. She has her hands full now, caring for her son, Richard Jr., and the triplets born last year. "The triplets are all doing fine," said Thomas. "They're walking starting to say a few words and becoming more of a handful every day. For Alma, it's three times as much work. I have to say this about Alma. Without her, I couldn't be doing as much as I am. She is so very understanding. Being married to an actor, with my crazy hours, would be enough. With my schedule, she doesn't sleep a lot. But, really, the triplets are a piece of cake." The three bundles of joy are Barbara, Gayne and Pilar, all born a minute apart. And Thomas says that means a lot. Barbara exerts herself as the eldest, although she's too young to realize that she's doing it. "But they have different personalities," he says. "It's amazing to watch them." Any plans to add to the family? No way, he exclaimed. "As far as Alma and I are concerned, the casting is completed on this show."

I haven't heard much about Gary Lockwood. What's happening with him? — D.K., Randolph, Neb. Lockwood just finished a movie of the week, called "Emergency Room," with LeVar Burton. It will be shown via syndication on Operation Prime Time early this year. And last Nov. 18, he filmed a segment of "Hart to Hart" with his ex-wife Stefanie Powers. Since he and Powers divorced, Lockwood has remarried and become the proud poppa of a baby boy, born about five months ago. The family lives in a scrumptious home in Malibu, Calif.

Franchi is doing fabulously. Mrs. P., and, yes, he's still working. Franchi spends much of his time playing dates at Resorts International and the Sands in Atlantic City. He's doing concerts across the country with various symphony orchestras. Right now, he's getting ready to tour in March with the Mantovani Orchestra. Some of the cities they plan to include Dayton, Ohio; Ft. Wayne, Ind.; St. Louis, Mo.; Aurora, Ill.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Schenectady and Syracuse, N.Y., and Erie, Pa. 9-hour miniseries

'Nickleby' comes to television

By Kenneth R. Clark UPI TV Reporter NEW YORK — At 8 1/2 bottom-numbing hours, "The Life and Times of Nicholas Nickleby" was a long-shot that succeeded on Broadway. As a 9-hour miniseries, it would seem a natural for television where Mobil Oil Corp. hopes it will do equally well. Mobil, after all, has a little over $4.5 million tied up in the venture and would like to get its corporate money's worth. Rather's 'News' outpaces NBC prime-time line-up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Not long ago, when one network's evening newscast drew bigger ratings than a rival's entire prime-time line-up, the world in "phenomenon" got a lot of use in recent years. Now, to NBC's increasing discomfort, "phenomenon" is half-way to "routine," and moving fast. Dan Rather and the CBS "Evening News" did it again last week, winning the 7-10 p.m. EST. time slot with a rating of 14.9 and an audience share of 28. That put CBS well ahead of NBC and ABC, which wound up in a virtual tie for new ratings, at 12.6 and 12.5 and 12.5, respectively, but even with NBC's "Nightly News" in second place for a change, the underdog's prime-time rating again was left blinding. NBC, which made the Top 10 only by sliding the last 30 minutes of the Rose Bowl game into prime time, pulled a

Glen Campbell's a big family man

"You can't say that I'm a born-again Christian because I've always been a Christian, but you could say I'm a new Glen Campbell," said the country superstar. "I lost my way somehow, and just before Christmas of '81 I decided to let God take over for me and called my brother Laddell to baptize me down in Delight, Ark. He's a country preacher and he ducked me under a cold creek on December 22." That's when the new Glen Campbell was born. The emergence of the new Campbell led to his break-up with singer Tanya Tucker, with whom he had a relationship so stormy that he and she sometimes acted more like sparring partners than lovers. Campbell has since married, and his new wife, Kim, is expecting their first child. "Campbell has three children, two sons and a daughter, by a previous marriage. He wants a large family, like the one he came from. One of 12 children, Glen insisted, "I want seven sons, just like my dad. I'm the seventh son, so I really want to let God take over to do any movies or acting. I don't want to sing and raise a large family in Phoenix. "Why aren't you? Because I've had it with Los Angeles and that drug scene. I don't like Las Vegas anymore, but I do enjoy Atlantic City. I'm just a country boy who's settling older." "My great granddaddy came from the Argyle area of Scotland and settled in Alabama many moons ago. We were never into music. But when I was nine I just started singing, and by the time I was 14 in Houston I was singing from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m., six nights a week. I've been singing country since. "Is there a sudden explosion of country music? No, not really. It's always been American folk music, just some parts of the country are catching up. You know music as the great Arthur Fiedler once told me at the Boston Pops. He said an A is an A, whether it's country or opera."

Hearst guard now undercover agent

She lived in obscurity until she was kidnapped. Then the name Patty Hearst became a household word. First, everyone worried about the safety of the kidnapped heiress. The worry turned to disgust when Hearst joined forces with her kidnapers and became a fugitive from justice. Then she was arrested in San Francisco and went on trial for her role in the Symbionese Liberation Army. U.S. Marshall Janey Jimenez was the guard assigned to Hearst during the trial. The two became close friends, and Jimenez, the daughter of a poor Mexican immigrant, even wrote a book about the poor little rich girl before leaving California for New York. A few years ago, Hearst married a cop. Last month, Jimenez also married a cop. Until that ceremony, in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Jimenez was almost in hiding. "I've been working as an undercover investigator for the state Attorney General's office, but I can't even talk about it," said Jimenez, just back from her honeymoon. "Patty couldn't make the wedding. You know, she may be an heiress, but she is very frugal with her household budget, so she probably couldn't afford the trip. But she sent her love and best wishes. "The relationship between Hearst and Jimenez is unusually tight. Patty unloaded her fears and torments on Janey during her trial as a terrorist. Janey went on to write a book that held that Patty was innocent and was raped and forced into lesbian relations by her kidnapers, who brainwashed her into cooperating with the Symbionese Liberation Army. "We're still friends, and we keep in touch by phone," said Jimenez. Occasionally, when Patty visits her sisters in New York, she and Janey have dinner together. They don't talk about Hearst's travail. "I know she wants to forget it, but it's hard for her to keep it out of her mind. I hope her nightmare will end someday."

Town holds lottery for homesteaders

FRAMINGHAM, Mass. (UPI) — A lifelong dream to live in his own home has come true for Henry Morgan, one of four people to win a local lottery allowing them to purchase a town-owned house lot for $1. Along with the $1 purchase price Morgan, who turns 34 on Jan. 26, will also qualify for 13.7 percent financing to build a modular home in an area of town considered blighted. "This is quite a birthday present," said Morgan. "I've never lived in a home of my own. I've always dreamed about how it would feel to live in a home — my very own house." Town planners say the project "will help alleviate the serious shortage of modestly priced housing in Framingham and return underutilized and unneeded town-owned land to the tax rolls." Officials said the idea developed after the land in the Mount Wayte area reverted to town for nonpayment of taxes. They estimated homes in a comparable neighborhood could cost up to $30,000 more than a subsidy. To discourage speculators, the town will put a lien on the property for the difference between the appraised value and what is actually paid. To qualify for the Monday night lottery, applicants must be Framingham residents with an income between $30,000 and $40,000 with $1,500 added to the base for each extra family member. They could not have liquid assets greater than $15,000 nor could they have owned a home within three years. Morgan, a food technician at the U.S. Army Laboratory in Natick, and his wife Linda, a switchboard operator, live with three sons in a three-bedroom apartment which costs just over $200 a month. Their new home will be a two-story structure with a cellar and an unfinished second floor expected to cost between $50,000 and $60,000. The building is due to be livable in May. The other three winners were Judith M. Woo and James Teixeira of Franklin; Thomas and Gina Fitzpatrick of Framingham; and Paul and Marilyn Vermilyea of Framingham.

Prince groomed to rule kingdom

MBABANE, Swaziland (UPI) — A 15-year-old son of the late King Sobhuza II of Swaziland is being groomed to be one of Africa's oldest kingdoms when he turns 21, diplomatic sources said. Sobhuza hand-picked the youth, already known as the Makhotheive — King of Kings — shortly before he died last August at 83 after nearly 61 years on the throne as the country's longest-reigning monarch. Sobhuza had some 130 wives and fathered an estimated 600 sons, but the crown prince is the only child of his mother, in accordance with a Swazi custom designed to protect the heir apparent from ambitious and jealous brothers. Diplomatic sources said the Makhotheive's mother, Latwala, did not belong to the true royal line but her clan was "acceptable" to the Council of Elders which has been overseeing the succession since Sobhuza's death.

MARCH receives grants

MARCH Inc. of Manchester has been awarded $13,500 in grants from two separate foundations and the local Emanuel Lutheran Church.

MARCH is a non-profit agency which provides community-based alternatives in care and housing for those with developmental disabilities in the Manchester area.

Emanuel Lutheran gave a grant of $3,500 to the program, Hartford Courant Foundation, $5,000 and Elizabeth Carse Foundation, $5,000.

The MARCH Respite Care Program offers short-term, temporary care for developmentally disabled children and adults who live at home. The service is available in the family's home or in a licensed respite home on an hourly or daily basis.

The operation of the program depends largely upon privately donated funds. In addition to the respite care program MARCH operates two community residences for mentally retarded men and women in Manchester. These homes provide 24-hour supervision, instruction in independent living skills, counseling, and social skills development.

For more information on the programs call 646-4446.

Panel considers questions on elderly housing needs

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the Manchester Senior Center. It appears in the Manchester Herald on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Center will sponsor a social dance class under the direction of Beverly and Lee Burton. Some of the dances being offered are the fox trot, the swing, and disco. The classes will run for eight consecutive Mondays from 10:30 to 11:45 a.m. The cost is $1 per class.

All the pairings are set and reserving the room for your right-ball tournament. The tourney will start on Monday. Individuals will be given one week to complete their match and are responsible for contacting their opponent and reserving the room for their match. I suggest that all competitors check the bulletin board in the game room for the pairings. The winner of the event will be awarded a trophy.

The dart league will start this Thursday at 9:30 a.m. The league is on an informal basis, so it's not too hard to sign up. I have been told there are a lot of former dart players in the center, so please don't be bashful. Let's see you demonstrate your skills.

Our oil painting class is scheduled to begin on Feb. 1 at 9:30 a.m. Back as our instructor is the familiar face of Kay Hendrickson. Kay is an exceptional teacher, and works well with beginners as well as with advanced artists. If you are interested, please sign up in the front office. Starting on Feb. 2 at 9:30 a.m.

fruit yogurt, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons of cottage cheese, 3/2 fluid ounces of powdered nonfat skim milk.

MEAT OR FISH: 3 ounces extra lean ground beef, 1/4 cornish game hen (alternative: 1/2 chicken breast).

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES: One orange, 1/2 cup of blueberries or blackberries (fresh or frozen unsweetened), 2 apples, 1 tablespoon applesauce, 1 tablespoon apple butter, 1 lemon, 1/2 cup alfalfa or bean sprouts, 1 carrot, 1 stalk of celery, 1 small cucumber, 1 medium onion, 1/4 cup parsley, 2 medium tomatoes, 2 cups of mixed salad greens (iceberg, romaine, watercress, fresh spinach leaves, etc.), 1 cup of chopped spinach (frozen).

SEASONING: Salt, pepper, cinnamon, paprika, 2 teaspoons prepared mustard (preferably hot), favorite low-calorie salad dressing, vinegar, Worcestershire sauce (a dash), 2 tablespoons white wine, 2 tablespoons chicken bouillon.

DRY GOODS: 1/4 cup of bran flakes, 1 tablespoon peanut butter, two 6-inch rounds of pita bread (pocket bread), 1 bagel (egg or plain), 2 slices of whole wheat bread, rice (1/2 cup cooked), tea and/or coffee.

MEAL FOR THURSDAY

BREAKFAST (230 calories): Bran flakes, 3/4 cup bran flakes with 1/4 cup blueberries or blackberries (fresh or unsweetened frozen), artificial sweetener if desired, and one glass of skim milk. Coffee or tea with lemon and/or artificial sweetener.

LUNCH (345 calories): Peanut butter sandwich: Mix 1 tablespoon of peanut butter with 1 tablespoon of applesauce. Spread between two slices of whole-wheat bread. Garnish with 1/4 cup of grated carrot and slices from half-an-apple. Accompany with apple wedges (remaining half apple) sprinkle with lemon juice and cinnamon and with carrot sticks.

DINNER (600 calories): Pita burgers with salad. Saute 3 ounces of extra-lean beef in a non-stick pan with 1/4 cup chopped onion, 1/4 cup chopped parsley, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, a dash of cinnamon and pepper, 1/2 medium tomato (chopped) until meat is done and onions are limp. Slice a 6-inch round of pita bread in half and pull open to make two pockets. Or, substitute two pieces of whole-wheat bread. Fill pockets with meat mixture and green lettuce leaves. Pour over the meat filling a yogurt sauce: 1/4 cup plain yogurt with 1/4 cup diced cucumber and one glass of skim milk. Serve with a salad of green leaves (2 a bowl Remove from heat and add 2 teaspoons sour cream. Stir until smooth. Remove loopholes from meat and place meat in gravy.

Spatzle (German noodles)

3 to 3 1/2 cups flour
2 1/2 cups water or broth
1 1/2 cups milk
1 teaspoon salt

Mix eggs, milk and salt together. Add flour and stir with fork until fairly smooth.

Boil water and add salt. Dumpen a little pastry board with water. Take part of dough and place on the board. With a teaspoon and the dough on the edge of the board, cut off little pieces of dough and drop into boiling water. Turn heat down so water is just simmering, and continue cutting dough until it's gone. Simmer until the spatzle float on top, about 5 to 8 minutes. Drain and add little pieces of butter or margarine and mix until melted.

Rotkohl (Red Cabbage)

1 head red cabbage (thickly sliced)
2 onions
2 teaspoons shortening or oil
3 apples
1 teaspoon sugar
Caraway seeds (optional)
2 1/2 cups water or broth
2 to 3 tablespoons vinegar
Salt and pepper (To taste)

1 cup wine (white or red)
Cook the onions in fat until glossy, add sliced cabbage and grated apples, caraway seeds, and water or broth. Cook until tender, about 50 or 60 minutes. After that add vinegar, salt and pepper. Sprinkle flour on top, mix and boil a short time. Add the wine.

Prinzregenten torte

8 eggs
1 1/4 cups sugar
1 1/4 cups flour

1 cup confectioners sugar

Place sugar in mixing bowl. Add one egg at a time, beating well after each. Add flour all at once and mix until smooth. Grease four, nine-inch round pans, line with wax paper and grease again. Pour 2/3 cup of batter into each pan and spread to cover bottom. Bake at 350 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes. Repeat until 10 layers are baked. After removing layers from stove pull off wax paper and cool.

Filling

1-6 ounce package semi-sweet chocolate pieces, melted
2 eggs whites
1/2 cup butter or margarine (softened)

Beat margarine into melted semi-sweet chocolate. Add egg yolks. Beat until mixture is glossy and of spreading consistency. Spread filling between layers and press each layer down firmly. Cool until well set, before frosting cake.

Frosting

1 cup confectioners sugar

Bavarian Bread dumplings

1 loaf French bread (day old bread)
1 cup milk
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup onions (finely chopped)
1 tablespoon parsley
3/4 quart salad water

Cut the bread into very thin slices and soak in the milk. Add eggs and salt and let stand for 30 minutes. Add onions and parsley. Blend until of an even consistency. In a large, wide saucepan, bring the salted water to a boil and then reduce to a simmer. Shape the dumplings with wet hands to about the size of a small egg. If the mixture is too soft, add dry bread crumbs. Drop dumplings into simmering water. Boil for 10 to 15 minutes. Keep warm and serve with meat and gravy.

The plant has been closed since last Wednesday because of a company-wide changeover to a computerized information system. A spokesman said Tuesday the plant would "probably not reopen."

Suit challenges ban removal

Industrial homework is back

The Labor Department under the Reagan administration is backing off from this country's traditional ban on industrial homework in the apparel industry — and by so doing is sending still another blunt signal that labor standards will be eroded in this era.

A case now before the U.S. Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia underlines this threat. The lawsuit, brought by 11 plaintiffs — including the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers' Union and two manufacturers groups — challenges the decision to raise the ban on industrial homework in the knitted outerwear in Vermont and their senators to propose lifting the ban in seven industries (They are: women's apparel, jewelry manufacturing, knitted outerwear, gloves and mittens, button and buckle manufacturing, handkerchief manufacturing and embroideries.)

Industrial homework in the clothing industry is an evil that was banned 40 years ago, and a succession of secretaries of labor and wage-hour administrators never recommended a change until 1980. Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan used the occasion of political pressure from a small, vocal group of knitters in Vermont and their senators to propose lifting the ban in seven industries.

The practice occurs in industries that are not highly technological and use portable equipment and semi-skilled workers. Employers distribute work to employees at home and typically pay on a piece-rate basis. Legions of state and federal officials have made clear that it is impossible to enforce minimum-wage laws, health and safety standards, child labor laws and other regulations to prevent exploitation. Public hearings held in April 1981 showed again that industrial homework remains a horrible problem.

One woman testified anonymously that she was paid $1.30 to make a dress, and it took two or three weeks to sew it. Her earnings: a range of 43 cents to 65 cents per hour against the then-legal minimum wage of $3.35 an hour.

Lifting the ban occurs at a time when industrial homework is known to be on the upswing in Miami, Los Angeles, New York and Chicago. Already enforcement is lax, still another casualty of tight budgets and personnel cutbacks and is limited to a complaints-made basis.

Many industrial homeworkers are poorly educated; many also are undocumented aliens too terrified to complain; the huge majority are women.

Bans on industrial homework exist in 18 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. With the variations among state laws and the fact that 32 states have no laws banning it plus the fact that these are highly portable industries, the lifting of the ban in even one industry that employs roughly 80,000 workers is a dangerous sign.

In its unbelievable "wisdom," the Labor Department

Food prices are up; loan rates, energy costs down

BOSTON (UPI) — New England grocery prices rose only 1 percent in 1982 and were actually down 1 percent from two years ago while consumer loan rates and energy costs in the region fell during the year, according to a UPI monthly survey.

A sample basket of 13 grocery items, based on a survey in six major cities in New England, cost an average of $17.97 in late December — down nearly 4 percent from $18.69 in late November. The latest price check compared to an average of $17.78 a year ago and $18.13 in late December 1980.

As for two other major consumer fronts surveyed by UPI: — For the fifth straight month, the rates for mortgage and auto loans registered a decrease with the average rate in New England, citing a home dropping to 13.97 percent, the auto loan rate falling to 15.29 percent. Both figures are the lowest they've been since late September 1980.

— The average regional cost of a gallon of home heating oil was $12.44 in late December — down a penny from late November, 2 1/4 percent lower than a year ago; a gallon of regular gasoline was $1.27.8 — down nearly 2 cents from the last survey, down 6 1/2 percent from late December 1981.

UPI's regional survey statistics are based on checks at the end of the month in Boston, Hartford, Concord, N.H., and Montpelier, Vt. The latest UPI regional survey results on food prices were consistent with a year-end statement by Cornell University consumer economist Josephine Swanson, who said "food in 1982 showed the smallest annual gain since 1976."

"Prices may increase even less in 1983," predicted Ms. Swanson, pointing to a year-end statement by Cornell University economist Josephine Swanson, who said "food in 1982 showed the smallest annual gain since 1976."

— The UPI supermarket check includes a half gallon of milk, dozen eggs, 20-ounce loaf of bread, 5 pounds of potatoes, 2-pound box of rice, 15-ounce box of Cheerios, pound of lean ground beef, pound of sirloin steak, pound of chicken, pound of haddock, 12-ounce can of whole kernel corn, 5 pounds of oranges and a 29-ounce can of cling peach halves.

— The 13 food items cost $17.37 in Boston (down 4 1/2 percent from $18.18), $18.36 in Providence (up 4 percent from $17.68), $17.62 in Concord (down 9 percent from $19.15) and $18.40 in Montpelier (up 1 percent from $18.15).
