Who'll be biggest selloff victims?

The big questions in stock market land: How deep a sell-off? Has it already begun? And if it has, what stocks are likely to get smashed the most? For some answers, let's get some perspective.

If you look at the last six bull markets coming out of a recession (prior to the most recent one), you'll undoubtedly be surprised to learn that the average rally we've just had — about 39 percent or 300 Dow points in just five months — was not overly spectacular.

The average such gain since '48 has been a much better 40 percent. And the only bull market that failed to top 39 percent was the one that commenced in October 1960. On that occasion, the rally was just 36 percent.

However, one might attribute this below-average showing to an extraordinary circumstance — the shoot-out between President Kennedy and the steel industry. In that instance, the market was pulverized after Kennedy forced the industry to rescind price hikes, subsequently tumbling a wacked 27 percent.

It's worth noting too that the average market gain during the six bull markets (prior to a 10 to 15 percent correction) lasted nearly 16 months. And the shortest such rally (from the October '74 bottom) was nine months.

Accordingly, one could legitimately conclude that the current bull market — if you can call it that — has considerably more mileage.

This data — a bit of bullish conclusion — comes from Stephen Leeb, the savvy editor of the Investment Strategist, a biweekly investment letter out of Jersey City, N.J., with some 1,400 subscribers.

While the recent market pasting has led a number of

Dan Dorfman
Syndicated Columnist

analysts to conclude that a healthy market correction is indeed under way, Leeb, at one time research director of Indicator Digest, a leading investment advisory service, doesn't believe it.

"It's a setback, not a correction," he says.

Another 10 stocks that our man rates as extremely vulnerable in any decline are Fay's Durg, Coachmen Industries, Vendo, American Savings & Loan, Telex, Paine Webber, Shaklee Corp., Limited Inc., General Nutrition and Colco Industries.

Leeb believes that any holders of the "vulnerable" stocks should immediately sell at least 50 percent of their positions. If they do not, he concludes, they sure better know something about the company that the rest of the market doesn't.

Asked to name his three favorite stocks for 1983, Leeb chose Intel and Advanced Micro-Devices, two leading companies in the semiconductor field, and Medtronic Inc., the country's largest producer of pacemakers.

observes Leeb, by refusing for the moment to pump up the money supply even more.

Though this action disappointed the market (in turn precipitating the recent sell-off), Leeb feels the Fed move will be short-lived. The economy, he points out, is still too weak. And until the recovery is self-sustaining the Fed can't afford to tighten the credit reins.

Accordingly, the word from Leeb (and he's by no means alone) is that we'll see the Fed, over the next six weeks, further cut the discount rate to at least 8 percent and maybe 7 1/2 percent. At present, the discount rate — the rate at which banks borrow from the Fed — is 8 1/2 percent.

Though any further Fed cuts in the discount rate would likely benefit the stock market, Leeb feels strongly that this is a good time to sell specific stocks — given the roughly 15 percent market correction he sees unfolding in about six weeks.

AND ALL THAT BRINGS us back to the question posed at the outset of the column, namely: What stocks are likely to take the worst drubbing in the event of a full sell-off?

For some answers, Leeb undertook an analysis of the 13 percent market correction that followed the 50 percent surge in stock prices between October '74 and July '75.

Significantly, the 10 strongest groups during that market surge fell nearly twice as much (about 24 percent) during the three-month correction between July and October '75. And some of the best performers were pounded for losses of 30 to 35 percent.

So the obvious question: Who were the biggest winners in the latest market outburst during which the Standard & Poor's 500-stock index (between Aug. 11 and Jan. 5) shot up about 39 percent?

Homebuilding led the way (up 112 percent), followed by instrumentation (81 percent); metals (76 percent); tires (71 percent); air transport (68 percent); forest products (65 percent); autos (61 percent); building materials (60 percent); and textile-apparel (58 percent).

TRANSLATING these groups into individual stocks, Leeb has come up with a list of what he regards as the 18 most vulnerable equities — ones susceptible to 25 to 35 percent declines.

They are U.S. Home, Pulte Home, Hewlett-Packard, Perkin-Elmer, Hudson Bay, Phibro, Goodyear, Goodrich, AMR, UAL, Weyerhaeuser, Champion International, Ford, Chrysler, Jim Walter, U.S. Gypsum, Jonathan Logan and VF Corp.

Another 10 stocks that our man rates as extremely vulnerable in any decline are Fay's Durg, Coachmen Industries, Vendo, American Savings & Loan, Telex, Paine Webber, Shaklee Corp., Limited Inc., General Nutrition and Colco Industries.

Leeb believes that any holders of the "vulnerable" stocks should immediately sell at least 50 percent of their positions. If they do not, he concludes, they sure better know something about the company that the rest of the market doesn't.

Young company gets 'fowl' start in business

By Bob Lowry

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — The old joke about the chickens crossing the road is no laughing matter to two young Texans who hope to use the moral to spotlight their fledgling computer software company.

Morgan Watkins, 28, and Paul Rutz, 23, the principal stockholders in Mops Computer Systems, Inc., an Austin company they formed in May 1981, are trying to break into the highly competitive software business.

They theorized they needed something to create favorable exposure for the company, which currently operates out of a bedroom in Watkins' apartment.

THEY DECIDED to market a video game.

"Instead of coming out with, say, an accounting program, we're trying to get out there with the video games," said Watkins.

"They're popular and people like them."

Mops' first effort — completed in May 1982 — was a three-dimensional game called "Halls of Time," which took about 2,000 hours to design and program.

The game only runs in black-and-white on the Radio Shack TRS-80 personal computer — the largest-selling personal computer in the United States.

Even though the game centers around the standard "maze" theme, it is unique, said Rutz, because it is the only continuous motion 3-D game available for the TRS-80 computer.

"Halls of Time" was advertised for sale at $27.95 each in "80 Micro," the TRS-80 owners' magazine.

MOPS WASN'T exactly overwhelmed by mail orders, but Watkins said it was a learning experience.

It was worth the effort, but it hasn't made us wealthy yet," he said.

"We learned what we needed to learn and got about the number of orders we expected."

Now, Mops is moving to market a more sophisticated color video game that will be used on the IBM personal computer.

The game, called "Fowl Play," will be in full color with accompanying sound effects. The object is to score points by moving three chickens across a busy multi-lane highway and a railroad track.

"It's not the kind of game you'd want to play for 24 hours," said Watkins. "But if you're tired of doing accounts receivable (on the computer), you could take a break and play 'Fowl Play.'"

MOPS HAS HIRED a marketing firm in hopes of getting the game into retail outlets. There still are some minor refinements to be made in the programming, but Rutz said, "we're trying to get on the market as fast as we can."

The game probably could be sold to one of the large electronic companies that sell video games, but Watkins and Rutz said that would be only a short-term profit for them and would not give their company the exposure they're seeking.

Watkins, who works part time at the University of Texas computer center, and Rutz, a graduate student at UT in computer science, formed their business after meeting at church.

Their goal is to get into the traditional computer software business and leave video games to others, but Watkins acknowledged, "we may keep our hand in it."

Mops has sold teaching programs to the university and hopes to generate more business through the video game.

The tiny company employs two people, an accountant and a programmer, Watkins' wife, DeDee, an artist, also helps out.

Watkins said he hopes hard work and long hours eventually will pay off. "We want to get to the point where it will support all of us," said Rutz.

"People who are dedicated and keep busting can make it," Watkins said. "We don't want to get the reputation as hackers. We design and build very carefully."

PAIR PICKED BY SAVINGS BANK OF MANCHESTER

Corporators elected

Two corporators were elected at the annual meeting of the Savings Bank of Manchester Monday at the Manchester Country Club.

They are A. Paul Berte, secretary of the Board of Compensation Commissioners for the State of Connecticut, and Ross H. Hollander, president of Hartford Distributors Inc.

The corporators were announced by John D. LaBelle, chairman of SBM's board of directors.

Berte, who resides at 57 Tuck Road, Manchester, has been active in tax affairs. He is a former member and chairman of the Manchester Republican Town Committee and a former chairman of the Manchester Housing Authority. He is also an adjunct faculty member at Manchester Community College.

Berte was graduated from Bowdoin College and the Columbia University School of Law. He also holds a master's degree from Columbia's Graduate School of Business.

A member of the Connecticut Bar Association, Berte is married and the father of four children.

Hollander, who resides in Hartford, was the 1975 winner of the Governor's Civic Leadership Medal for the Greater Hartford Jewish Center. He served as chairman of the board of trustees of the Greater Hartford Convention and Visitors Bureau and was a member of the board of directors for the Urban League of Greater Hartford.

Financial supermarkets questioned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One-stop shopping for dishwashers and loans has gone too far and retailers like Sears Roebuck & Co. may be forced to give up their financial services, a top federal banking regulator warned.

William M. Isaac, director of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, told reporters Thursday his agency is preparing proposals to Congress that would reverse the trend toward department stores offering financial services.

Isaac said the Federal Reserve Board agreed the trend has gone too far, but the Reagan administration did not.

"There are enormous problems, potential conflicts, when you talk about intermingling banking and general commerce," Isaac said.

Isaac said the principal problem was "some inherent conflicts that can't be resolved by unsafe practices" which could allow companies with access to federally insured deposits and lending resources to pressure competitors or customers.

"It's been our experience some areas of risk are so great a blanket prohibition is better than a specific rule, because a specific rule can be gotten around too easily," he said.

Isaac gave two examples of the kind of intermingling the FDIC questions.

"Sears Roebuck and National Steel both own federally insured savings and loans which now have commercial and unsafe practices," he said.

"In other words they're banks. In my judgment a bank shouldn't own a steel company. Why should a steel company be permitted to own a federally insured savings and loan?"

In Chicago, Edward R. Telling, chairman and chief executive officer of Sears said through a spokesman.

"The people who gain most from deregulation are consumers. Mr. Isaac appears to be a federal regulator who has lost touch with the marketplace in an age of deregulation."

Sears became a widely diversified financial conglomerate last year, offering investments through its brokerage subsidiary Dean Witter Reynolds, mortgages and commercial loans through Allstate Savings and Loan Association, money market mutual funds through Sears-U.S. Government Money Market Trust in addition to its insurance products sold by Allstate Insurance Corp.

Bankers battle withholding law

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Rhode Island bankers are battling a new federal law requiring taxes to be withheld on interest and dividends starting July 1.

The campaign by the Rhode Island Bankers Association is part of a national drive by banking and other financial industry groups to block implementation of the withholding requirements.

The banks will have cards customers can sign asking the state's congressional delegation to urge to have the law repealed.

The withholding provision, part of the 1982 tax budget, requires an automatic 10 percent tax deduction on interest and dividend income. Just like taxes are withheld from a paycheck.

Most interest and dividends are already subject to income taxes. But the new law requires the banks withhold a percentage of interest and dividend income, just as it does with ordinary wages.

Reagan MIAs top priority

By DANIEL F. GILMORE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, in an emotional appeal to relatives of servicemen still missing in Southeast Asia, called on Hanoi Friday to account for the 2,494 Americans and end their families' anguish.

The president, standing before a small black POW-MIA flag pinned to a curtain, said his administration will give the issue "the highest national priority" and that broad bipartisan support exists in Congress to bring the situation to a successful close.

"Today, I want you to know that your vigil is over," Reagan told a convention of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia. "Our government is attentive and the intelligence assets of the United States are fully focused on this issue."

The president was openly moved when 600 people crowded into the auditorium of a Virginia hotel a 15-minute ride from the White House stood and applauded his pledge. In turn, he hailed them as "a room of heroes who kept a vigil of unprecedented faith and devotion."

The organization is the driving force behind efforts to obtain a full accounting of the 2,494 Americans still listed as missing following the Vietnam War.

Its convention is being held on the 10th anniversary of the signing of the Paris peace accord, which officially ended American combat involvement in Southeast Asia.

The league arranged to vote Friday evening on a resolution to offer a $250,000 reward for information resulting in the return alive of any one of the missing.

"The anguish you have suffered — the families of brave men listed as prisoners of war or as missing in action — is unspeakable, something the rest of us can never really know even in partial measure," Reagan told the conference.

Nuke-free zone wouldn't change much

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet proposal to create a nuclear-free zone in central Europe would not affect the medium-range nuclear warheads Moscow already has in place, a Western diplomat said Friday.

The official Tass news agency said the Soviet Union would be willing to negotiate a ban on SS-4 and SS-5s which NATO is trying to counter by deploying cruise and Pershing-2 missiles starting at the end of 1983, the Western diplomat said.

NATO deploys short-range weapons against the numerically superior Warsaw Pact troops and tanks.

The diplomat said Moscow was trying to undermine NATO's policy of flexible response, which refers to the West's decision to recognize the possible necessity of using nuclear weapons to stop the onslaught of a Soviet tank thrust across the Iron Curtain.

"We are trying to reduce the danger of surprise attack by either side by lowering the level of forces through talks in Vienna. Their proposal seeks to hinder NATO's capacity to carry out the defense of Europe through its strategy of flexible response," he said.

Battlefield weapons are those with a short range and would not include the medium-range SS-20s, SS-4 and SS-5s which NATO is trying to counter by deploying cruise and Pershing-2 missiles starting at the end of 1983, the Western diplomat said.

"We are trying to reduce the danger of surprise attack by either side by lowering the level of forces through talks in Vienna. Their proposal seeks to hinder NATO's capacity to carry out the defense of Europe through its strategy of flexible response," he said.

These sessions, the Mutual and Balanced Force Reduction Talks (MBFR), resumed Thursday after a six-week recess. They have been deadlocked for 10 years. Medium-range weapons are under discussion in Geneva.

The Soviet proposal was couched as a response to a suggestion from an East-West commission headed by Swedish prime Minister Olof Palme to establish a 185-mile-wide zone.

When the commission proposed the nuclear-free zone last summer, the Soviet delegate demurred on the grounds such weapons could be quickly moved back into the zone.

"What's to stop them — or us — moving weapons quickly back into a 600-kilometer-wide zone as well?" the diplomat said.

"That's why we prefer the troop-reduction approach (the Vienna talks)."

O'Neill: Parlors OK, casinos aren't

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. William O'Neill said Friday he had no objections to a state board's decision to open new Off-Track Betting parlors and possibly expand the lottery.

However, O'Neill said he would not accept casino gambling in Connecticut and did not expect legislation to legalize casino gambling to make it through the Legislature and to his desk.

"I'm against casino gambling and I have been and certainly do not expect anything to reach my desk, but if it did, I'd veto casino gambling in the state," O'Neill told reporters after a meeting of the State Bond Commission.

Rep. Abraham Giles, D-Hartford, and Rep. Clement Young, D-Bridgeport, have filed bills that would allow casino gambling in hotel complexes in the Hartford area and in Bridgeport.

Although opposed to casino gambling, O'Neill said he had no objections to a decision by the Gaming Policy Board to open four new Off-Track Betting parlors and possibly expand the "Play 4" lottery from two to six days a week.

The four new OTB parlors approved by the board Thursday will give the state 20 parlors, the maximum allowed under existing law. The board's decision also will add wagering on dog races to all of the parlors.

The board hopes the added number of OTB parlors and expanding the Play 4 game will increase gambling revenue within limits of a moratorium on new legalized gambling facilities in Connecticut.

"I haven't recommended any of these solutions to the gaming commission," O'Neill said when asked if he recommended the expansion to help resolve the state's money problems.

"Of course, they are following the dictates and the availability of the laws that are on the books as far as I can see," he said, adding the expansion involves the same type of gambling already allowed.

O'Neill will present his proposed budget to lawmakers on Feb. 9. He wouldn't say what it will include or what the bottom line on the package will be.

"We've reduced it as much as possible in our opinion and it will be up to the General Assembly, of course, once I release it to them on Feb. 9 to render their decision," he said.

"I haven't ruled it out but it's still highly unlikely," the governor said.

West Coast braces for fifth storm

A flood warning was issued for southern New Jersey shore communities.

A winter storm watch for up to 8 inches of snow was posted for northern and central Arizona mountain areas and for about a half foot of snow in the Colorado Rockies.

There was good news and bad news for storm-tossed California.

The bad news was that another "very powerful upper level storm off the coast" was expected to slam into the state later Friday and last through Saturday, said the Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo.

"It certainly has the potential for producing a lot of rain," said forecaster Ryan Tiley, who declined to compare its potential severity to its four devastating forerunners.

The good news, Tiley said, was that "it looks like after this one ends, there will be a bit of a reprieve. There are no more major storms off the coast."

The storms all but assured a mud bowl in the Rose Bowl, Pasadena, Calif., site of Sunday's Super Bowl the Miami Dolphins and the Washington Redskins.

At least nine deaths were attributed to the weeklong series of California storms. Six others were killed late Thursday when their twin-engine plane crashed in a severe thunderstorm near Scottsdale, Ariz.

Sixteen cities and counties around the state declared local emergencies. Gov. George Deukmejian declared a state of emergency in four counties, two in the north and two in the south.

Coastal residents sandbagged homes, and thousands of sight-seers lined Southern California beaches to watch the high surf.

More than 1,000 homes were wrecked by lashing 20-foot seas on the entire coast Thursday. Hundreds fled their homes and damage was estimated in the millions of dollars.

California forecasters said the latest stormy onslaught would kick up 14-foot waves.

A Pacific juggernaut barreled on a collision course with California Friday — the fifth in a week of storms that killed at least nine people with hurricane-force wind and rains, wrecked more than 1,000 homes and forced hundreds to flee inland from crashing 26-foot seas.

A Mid-Atlantic storm, time in comparison, brought heavy rains and wind gusts 23 mph in the Carolinas. Strong winds blew from Northeast Florida to New Jersey.

U.S., Israelis agree

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — U.S. and Israeli officials Friday reached a "good understanding" to prevent further confrontations between Israeli troops and American Marines stationed around Beirut airport, the U.S. Embassy said.

The meeting followed two weeks of bitter words between the United States and Israel over incidents between their forces.

The U.S. Embassy said the meeting was held "at U.S. initiative" and involved U.S. envoy Morris Draper, Col. Thomas Stokes, commander of the Marines in Lebanon, and Gen. Amir Drori, Israel's northern commander.

A "good understanding" was reached on the common objective of preventing incidents between Marine Amphibious Units and Israeli Defense Force personnel moving through nearby areas, "an Embassy statement said.

Israeli reports emphasized the presence of Stokes and Drori, but the U.S. Embassy report emphasized Stokes attended "to assist in the technical aspects" of the military discussions.

Judge testifies for self

MIAMI (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Alcee Hastings testified in his own defense Friday that the man he is accused of conspiring with to accept a bribe was an acquaintance of 15 years who often could not understand his secretive manner.

Hastings, the only federal judge to be tried on criminal charges while on the bench, also challenged prosecution testimony about a dinner with his alleged co-conspirator at a Miami Beach hotel and a cryptic phone call that the government says are key pieces of evidence against him.

Almost 200 spectators packed the courtroom to hear Hastings, the defense's 50th and final witness in the 3-week-old trial. Dozens more were turned away and waited outside for a chance to enter.

Presiding U.S. District Judge Edward Gignoux indicated the case would go to the jury Tuesday.

Hastings is accused of scheming with Washington attorney William A. Borders Jr. to solicit a $150,000 bribe from racketeers Frank and Thomas Romano. Prosecutors say in exchange for the money, Borders promised to have Hastings return $845,000 ordered forfeited from the Romanos.

Gates sentence: 40 years

HARTFORD (UPI) — Convicted murderer Larry Neal Gates, 21, was sentenced to 40 years to life in prison Friday in the June 1980 slaying of a young Glastonbury neighbor and her 14-month-old son.

Superior Court Judge Thomas H. Corrigan ordered Gates to serve 25 years to life for the shooting of Elizabeth Hart, 29, and 15 years to life in the death of young Thomas Hart.

A trial was cut short last October when Gates pleaded no contest to felony murder in a plea bargaining agreement. Additional charges of kidnapping and capital felony murder, which could have carried the death penalty, were dropped.

Gates was charged with kidnapping, sexually assaulting and fatally shooting Mrs. Hart with a handgun and crushing her son, an only child, with a car in the family's driveway. The sentences will be served consecutively.

Pittsfield 'the pitts'?

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Somebody wrote Dear Abby calling his city "the pitts" and Mayor Charles L. Smith says that's just not fair.

The letter, signed only with M.M. in Pittsfield, appeared in Abigail Van Buren's column Thursday.

"You said New York is called 'The Big Apple' and Cleveland is known as 'The Plum,'" then a reader asked if there's a city known as 'The Pitts,'" the letter writer wrote.

"Yes, it's Pittsfield, Mass.,"

"I think we have a great community here and I have never heard reference to Pittsfield in a derogatory way," Smith said Friday.

"People from outside the city think we have a great, wonderful city," as indicated by almost 1.5 million tourists who come every year, he said.

He described the city as a hub nestled in the Berkshires. Visitors come in the winter to ski and ice fish. During other seasons they tour author Herman Melville's home and Shaker Village, shop in the downtown and relax on the lakes and beaches.

3,000 more jobsless

HARTFORD (UPI) — The number of jobless workers in Connecticut increased by 3,000 to a total of more than 113,000 in December, the state Labor Department reported Friday.

But Labor Commissioner P. Joseph Peraro said that when adjusted for seasonal closings, the unemployment rate edged lower by a tenth of a point to 7.2 percent — the second straight monthly dip in the seasonally adjusted rate.

Nine labor market areas in the state showed higher levels of unemployment in December, the rate went down in three areas and was unchanged in the remaining two, he said.

Factor layoffs drove the jobless rate up from 6.6 percent a year ago, but Peraro said the figure still compares favorably with the 10.8 percent unemployment rate nationwide in December.

In November, the last period with full figures available, the 3.9 percent jobless rate in the Stamford area was the lowest in the nation.

Only four states had lower rates before adjustments than Connecticut's 6.9 rate: South Dakota (5.6 percent); Massachusetts (6.5 percent); Oklahoma (6.6 percent); and Vermont (6.7 percent).

Peraro said of seven seasonally adjusted economic indicators reported in December, three improved and four declined.

Reggan broke stakeout

BOSTON (UPI) — President Reagan's surprise visit to a working-class pub broke up an FBI stakeout inside the barroom, the Boston Globe reported Friday in a story that was promptly denied by the White House and FBI director.

The newspaper said six shocked FBI agents, awaiting the arrival of a suspect under surveillance for several months, rushed out of the Elre Pub as the presidential motorcade approached for an unannounced stop Wednesday after Reagan toured a computer training center in Boston.

"The facts are wrong," FBI Director William Webster said in Washington.

But the Globe's managing editor, Matthew Storn, declared the newspaper was standing by its story.

"We have a most authoritative source regarding the FBI's activities at the Elre Pub on the day of the president's visit," Storn said. "If there is any problem with our story, and we are not sure there is, it concerns whether the FBI had left the pub before the Secret Service arrived. But this is the kind of story that makes officials run for cover."

Rabies victim dies

WALTHAM, Mass. (UPI) — A Massachusetts man bitten by his dog while working in Nigeria died of rabies Friday following a desperate three-week struggle that included use of interferon, an experimental anti-cancer drug.

Kevin Wessell, 36, of Waltham, who had been in a coma for about a week died at Waltham Community Hospital at 1:20 a.m. It was the first reported case of rabies in Massachusetts since 1935.

The rabies was diagnosed later in the day.

Doctors said Wessell had an advanced form of the disease by the time it was diagnosed. Characterized by a fear of drinking water, loss of body function, and paralysis, advanced rabies is 100 percent fatal.

Wessell was aware of the threat of rabies at the time he was bitten in October but was assured at a Nigerian clinic he was "not at risk" and was given a tetanus shot, hospital spokesmen said.

Almanac

Today is Saturday, Jan. 29, the 29th day of 1983 with 336 to follow.

The moon is full.

The morning stars are Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus and Mars.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius. American patriot Thomas Paine was born Jan. 29, 1737 and dramatist Paddy Chayefsky was born Jan. 29, 1923.

In this date in history:

In 1900, eight baseball teams were organized as the American League. They were Buffalo, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Milwaukee and Minneapolis.

In 1926, Ty Cobb, Walter Johnson, Christy Mathewson, Babe Ruth and Honus Wagner became the first five men elected to the Baseball Hall of Fame.

In 1979, President Carter and Chinese Deputy Prime Minister Teng Hsiao-ping opened three days of historic talks.

Also on this date in 1979, President Carter commuted the seven-year Patricia Hearst bank robbery prison sentence to two years, opening way for her to leave prison and get married in February.

A thought for the day: American patriot Thomas Paine said, "A bad cause will ever be supported by bad means and bad men."

Negro: NOW not for town

By Paul Hendrie Herald Reporter

Town Treasurer Roger M. Negro said it wouldn't pay the town to take advantage of a new ruling by the banking commissioner that allows municipalities to put their money into NOW accounts.

A NOW account, basically, is a checking account that pays interest. Democratic Director Stephen T. Cassano, who learned of the banking commissioner's ruling at a recent meeting of the Connecticut Conference of Municipalities, suggested that it might pay the town to put into NOW accounts the money it keeps in checking accounts. He said it might earn the town some extra interest.

But Negro said the amount of money he keeps in checking accounts is so low that Manchester could not benefit by investing in the NOW accounts.

"I run a very tight investment policy here where I have everything right down nearly to zero in my checking accounts," said Negro. "Some of these accounts have just a couple of hundred bucks in them."

In fact, Negro said the amount kept in checking accounts is so low that the town is lucky the banks don't demand service charges. He said any move to convert the checking accounts to NOW accounts might backfire and result in service charges that would more than offset interest earned.

Negro said the town met a couple of years ago with the banks to do business with to explore the possibility of earning money on its checking accounts. At the time, the banks hinted they might hit the town with service charges, instead of paying it interest, Negro recalled.

Cassano said he had no delusions that the town would make a huge windfall by investing in NOW accounts. But he believed if a little bit of interest could be earned, it might be enough to pay a typewriter here or there.

"It's a boost to municipalities in that it gives them more opportunities to earn more money," said Cassano.

That may be the case for some communities, but not for Manchester, said Negro. He said it is better to leave the checking accounts well enough alone, so the banks don't get any ideas about adding service charges.

However, Negro said he has been able to take advantage of another new kind of account: money market savings accounts. These accounts pay higher rates of interest than normal savings accounts and the banking commissioner ruled municipalities can take advantage of them, said Negro.

"We've already started changing over some of our savings and money market accounts to these market accounts now pay amounts to a higher return than the town gets on other short-term investments."

The Savings Bank of Manchester and Robert J. Smith Inc., a local insurance company, have challenged the community to match their contribution of $12,000 to the fuel bank of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches. Left to right, Donna Cammeyer of SBM and Dave Tortenson of Smith Inc. chat with Daniel Boland, employed by a local oil company. Donations to the fuel bank challenge can be sent to MACC, Box 773, Manchester.

Crossroads recruiting teens to paint murals on plywood

Crossroads Inc., a non-profit group offering drug and alcohol counseling to teenagers, is looking for local teens interested in working together on a mural.

Lynn Haberern, a Crossroads coordinator, says the agency is recruiting students from Bennet and Hilling rural high schools and Manchester High School to paint two murals on plywood backings.

The students will be responsible for finding a "theme" for the artwork, she says. Anything goes on that score, as long as it's "appropriate," she says.

Building budget urged

A budget of $128,730 was recommended Thursday for renovations to municipal government office buildings to provide more space and better location of services.

The recommendation was made at a meeting of a joint committee to study the proposed alterations and shifting of offices within the complex.

Most of the money would be spent in converting the old Hall of Records, now virtually vacant, into a court of probate. For that building, the budget figure is $79,655. It will be the first phase of the work.

When the court of probate moves from the Municipal Building, shifts will be made there to make better use of the space and put offices frequently used by the public in the most accessible places.

The work is being done almost entirely by town employees under the supervision of Herman Pascantelli, supervisor of buildings. The costs will be more than offset by the $146,000 the town received for the sale of Buckland School.

The budget will now go to the Board of Directors for approval.

2 GOP leaders back Manning

BOLTON — Two town Republican leaders have endorsed Thomas Manning's bid for the school board, despite the fact that it will pit a Republican against a Republican.

Lawrence A. Converse and William Fehling, respectively the chairman and vice chairman of the Republican Town Committee, said Friday Manning's run will add spice to the campaign and though a good candidate must lose, the race may in the end turn out more Republican votes. This in turn would help Republican chances of maintaining its stronghold on town government.

Right now, incumbents Pamela Z. Sawyer and board Chairman Joseph J. Hainburdo Jr. are the Republican nominees. Because of minority representation laws, they were assured until Manning's announcement of gaining reelection. Likewise, the Democratic nominees, Barry Stearns and incumbent Louis Cloutier, are assured of being elected and need not even campaign.

Manning needs 43 signatures to be placed on the ballot. He has to file them with the secretary of state's office by Feb. 10. He said Thursday night he should have little trouble obtaining the signatures.

"I don't think that everybody is of the opinion that you should not do this," Fehling is running for the finance board, said. "I think it will add some competition and issues to the campaign, and will bring out more Republicans to the polls."

"I'll put a little life into the campaign," Converse said, though he added that he still would rather not have seen Manning challenge his own party members. "As a person, we can't deny him that, and there is a position on the slate open. It could live up to the campaign and give people a choice. If it's going to be, I'll back it," he said.

At caucus Tuesday, Manning was denied a chance to run for a full term on the Zoning Commission.

Swenson seeks funds for Armory

State Rep. Elsie L. "Bib" Swenson this week filed legislation to name a new bridge in Manchester after the late state Rep. Vincent Genovesi, R-Manchester, who died in office in 1982.

Swenson was elected in Nov. 1982. He became ill and took the oath of office while hospitalized in Manchester Memorial Hospital. He died in June 1987 at the age of 59. His brother Donald won the seat in a special election and served four terms.

Mrs. Swenson has asked that a new bridge, connecting Oakland and Denning streets as part of improvements to Interstate 86, be named the "Vincent Genovesi Memorial Bridge."

She said that would be appropriate, because Genovesi was a member of the General Assembly's Transportation Committee when the current improvements to Interstate 86 in the area were debated.

"The Genovesi family is an old family in town and Vincent served his town and his state well in a number of social and civic capacities, not to mention government service," said Mrs. Swenson.

The legislation will be co-sponsored by state Rep. James R. McCavanagh, D-Manchester.

Genovesi bill is filed

Manchester architect Richard Lawrence has been selected to design plans and specifications for the rehabilitation of five houses owned by the Manchester Housing Authority in scattered parts of town.

The selection of Lawrence was approved recently by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development. He planned the first of the rehabilitation projects, a duplex house on Orchard Street. The work on that house is being done by Joseph L. Swenson Jr., and is nearing completion.

Under the program the authority rehabilitates houses in disrepair and rents them at federally subsidized rates.

Tax review meetings set

ANDOVER — The Board of Tax Review will meet Feb. 7, from 6:30-8:30 p.m. Feb. 9, from 7:30 p.m. and Feb. 12 from 10:00 a.m. at the town office building.

Persons wishing to file a complaint with the board may secure an appointment for the weekday meetings by calling 742-7305. Additional meetings will be scheduled if necessary.

Persons with appointments should arrive approximately 10 minutes before their scheduled time to fill out the required complaint form. Assessment notices should be brought to the meetings.

Grievances may be received by a single member of the board. Anyone insisting on presenting his case to the entire board should state such when making an appointment.

OPINION

Reagan puts America 'on the mend'

WASHINGTON — Early reaction to President Reagan's State of the Union address generally was positive from both public and private sources. In it, he called for sacrifice and faith, promising that "America is on the mend."

ABC News reported that 43 percent of the respondents in a poll prior to the speech believed the country was heading in the right direction, compared to 58 percent who thought so after the speech.

The White House received 1,083 telephone calls and telegrams within hours after the speech, according to an aide. They included 799 positive responses — 530 phone calls and 169 telegrams.

"We think the response to his bipartisan proposals was extremely well received in both sides of the aisle," said Deputy Press Secretary Larry Speakes.

"We think it speaks well for the president's proposals."

REAGAN SOUNDED a key theme early in the address by calling members of Congress, "not as Republicans and Democrats, but as Americans, to make tomorrow's America happy and prosperous at home, strong and respected abroad, and at peace in the world."

Lee Roderick

Washington Correspondent

The president has "taken the first necessary step" to putting the nation back to work, said House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., who added that the next step is to offer proposals "going substantially beyond what was presented tonight."

Most of the major Democratic presidential hopefuls for 1984 were largely critical of Reagan's approach to healing the economy, but a number of Democrats joined O'Neill in at least applauding the spirit in which it was offered.

The president's plea to put politics aside in confronting the wealthy at the expense of the poor, used the word "fair" or "fairness" a dozen times in the speech, the text of which ran nearly 11 legal-size, single-spaced pages. He noted this is a "painful period" for too many citizens, specifically listing farmers, steel and auto workers, lumbermen, black teenagers, and working mothers.

"The problems we inherited were far worse than most inside and out of government, had expected," said Reagan. "The recession was deeper than most inside and out of government had predicted. During those problems has taken more time, and a higher toll, than any of us wanted."

But, he added, "This recovery will bring with it a revival of economic confidence and spending for consumer items and capital goods — the stimulus we need to restart our stalled economic engines."

THE PRESIDENT offered a four-part plan for economic growth which he said must be bipartisan, fair, prudent and realistic. The plan aimed first at all at overcoming record federal deficits which are a clear and present danger to the basic health of our republic."

Reagan's four-part program includes: (1) a temporary freeze on the overall amount of federal spending, including both pay and pension programs for federal workers. Officials said the fiscal 1984 budget would provide for 0 percent real growth in Pentagon spending and a 3 percent reduction in the rest of the budget.

(2) Control of so-called "uncontrollable" spending programs, "the largest single cause of the built-in or structural deficit problem." Food stamps, for example, have grown by over 400 percent since 1970, said Reagan, and last year alone there was over $1 billion in food stamp overpayments.

(3) Adjustments in defense spending, which was announced earlier, to save $55 billion over the next five years.

(4) A stand-by tax of 1 percent of the Gross National Product that could be used for three years, starting in 1986, if needed to reduce the federal deficit.

Documents locked in the files of the FBI and State Department reveal a fascinating attempt by the Russians to sabotage the Carter administration's decision to boycott the 1980 Moscow Olympic Games.

Obviously upset by the boycott announcement, the Soviets assigned their third secretary in the Washington embassy to take steps that would counteract the White House boycott decision.

The embassy third secretary, Viktor Petrovich Tyutin, like most Soviet diplomatic personnel, was a KGB agent.

ACTING FOR his KGB masters, Tyutin contacted a politically well-connected American in January 1980 with a request to undercut President Carter's boycott.

The American dutifully reported the Russian plan to the FBI. Here was Tyutin's game plan: He suggested to his American contact that a committee of athletes and prominent political figures be formed to protest the Olympics boycott. The idea was to have 60,000 letters sent out, asking recipients to write the White House and members of Congress denouncing the boycott.

Tyutin offered the American an unspecified amount for his services and for printing and mailing of the letters. Understandably, he insisted that his own name — and any connection with the Soviet Embassy — be kept secret.

Tyutin also suggested that a group of Americans be formed to go to Moscow, attend the Summer Olympics and issue a press release criticizing the boycott.

The FBI called Tyutin's scheme a "classic covert active-measures operation." It failed because the American contact reported it to the FBI, which then informed the State Department. Tyutin quickly left Washington for home in May 1980.

Another, more recent example of the KGB's "active measures" occurred last June. It involved a legitimate New Orleans consulting firm, Aviation Personnel International, which numbers among its clients such blue-chip corporations as RCA and General Mills.

ACCORDING TO a letter on API stationery, dated April 28, 1982, the company had a secret agreement to provide mercenary helicopter pilots for the South African Air Force. The letter also alluded to a secret deal among the United States, South Africa and API to take part in the abortive coup attempt in the Seychelles in November 1981.

The letter was signed by API's assistant registrar, "Michelle Lang." It was used as the basis for articles in several African newspapers, including the Harare Herald in Salisbury, Rhodesia, as evidence of an apparent plot by the United States and South Africa to overthrow the leftist government in the Seychelles.

But the letter was a fake. The KGB goofed. "Michelle Lang" is not a real person, but a code name used by API on some form letters. "Her" signature is actually a composite of two company employees.

"It was a good attempt to sign 'Michelle,'" an API spokesman told my associate, Tony Capocanno. "We were surprised."

It is regrettable that more in his mold do not emerge and give, as he did, of their time, talent, and honest goodnature to the freely doing of deeds demanded by the pervasive and real needs of the community, not for tangible rewards, status, or notoriety — but from an old-fashioned and ingrained sense of doing what is right, fitting and needful. He is missed, that's sure.

But he is not forgotten. Jesse and Sue Brainerd Delray Beach, Fla.

Sabotage not new for KGB

Washington Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON — The Kremlin's attempt to infiltrate the grassroots nuclear-freeze movements in this country and exploit it for Soviet propaganda purposes isn't the first time the KGB has tried such tactics in recent years.

Fill out those applications

It's up to 21 degrees today, Ferenheit of course, since I'm one of those with the little sliding red and white gadgets my sympathetic kids buy for me, are baffled by how a perfectly reliable understandable 21 degrees is something else celestius and meters!

My spirit shrivels when I see those signs marked miles and kilometers. I just know the next time I pass it, "they" will have removed the miles and then on for the rest of my life I won't know how far I am from anywhere.

I'm still safe today, however. I know 21 degrees means pull my coat off the hook. And looking at the calendar they haven't started juggling the names of months yet, have they? I see we are coming into the end of January.

My friends, March 15 is the very last day on which you can apply for the 1983-1984 Connecticut Energy Assistance Program. After March 15, no matter how eligible you are, or how cold, or high your fuel bill, you cannot apply.

Thousands of good people struggled in vain with $200 a month and up fuel bills last year and then with gas and electric bills of $600 and higher. They realized by April and May that even putting every extra penny into the fuel bill over the summer they were not going to be caught up by the beginning of the next heating season in October. Many were indeed eligible for assistance but didn't apply until too late.

If your income is at 150 percent of poverty or below, you are eligible for assistance of between $400 and $600, depending on your income. You are eligible for assistance if you are a household of one with an annual income of $7,020 or below. A family of 4 at 150 percent of poverty would be eligible if their annual income was $13,950 or below.

Elderly/disabled are eligible up to 175 percent of poverty (1 person annual income of $8,100.)

OPERATION FUEL We have received a grant of $2,000 from Operation Fuel. Families falling into the 150-200 percent of poverty bracket are eligible for grants up to $650 from this program. Only about 6 percent of the households who are eligible for Operation Fuel Money apply for assistance. If you are eligible for cheese and butter, you are eligible for fuel assistance from Operation Fuel through us.

MACC FUEL BANK Back up assistance to those who are eligible for fuel assistance is provided by the MACC Fuel Bank. Many of our lowest income neighbors can no longer afford the newspapers. Pass word along to them about eligible help. Help keep your neighbors warm. Thanks to growing community support, we are able to help those who fall between the cracks in programs and those who are over the income guidelines but have extraordinary other financial problems.

CHALLENGE MATCH Robert J. Smith, Inc., local insurance agency, has again added a thousand dollars of their own to the challenge grant of the Savings Bank of Manchester encouraging community givers to raise $2,000 in all. Challenge donations should be marked Fuel Bank — Challenge and mailed to MACC, Box 773, Manchester, Conn. 06040.

To date $55 has been raised in challenge donations including contributions from Barbara Gayle, Russ and Charlotte Grannis; St. Bridget's; St. Vincent DuPaul Society; Jeannine Johnson; Veronica Robidoux; June Stevenson; Albert C. Bourrette; Manchester Ultraya Group and a special contribution given in memory of Vivian Murray by her daughter Nancy LaBonne.

Let's reexamine the China hand

Editor's note: On Saturdays the Manchester Herald reprints editorials from other New England newspapers. The following is from the Boston Globe.

People better hope the State Department is really calling the shots when it says there will be no retaliation against the Chinese for halting purchases of three U.S. commodities. A few more policy decisions like the one that cut U.S. purchases of Chinese textiles — and we'll find we're in a still deeper recession than the one afflicting us now.

Simply stated, the Chinese had asked for a 6 percent annual growth in shipments to the United States while the U.S. negotiators flatly refused to allow import growth of more than 2 percent. When the United States refused to back down, the Chinese imposed bans on the import of U.S. soybeans, cotton and synthetic fibers.

Sino-U.S. trade has always run in American favor. Complete figures are not yet available for last year, but the United States sold about $3 billion in goods to the Chinese, about $600 million more than it imported. Textiles accounted for nearly a third of Chinese exports to the United States.

The conspicuous feature of each of the three banned commodities is that there are large U.S. surpluses already. Chinese refusal to buy these products can only worsen the surplus situation and, indeed, soy and cotton futures prices fell amid fears that the Chinese might also cut back purchases, where shipments are of greater value, more than $1 billion a year, and cause surpluses even more troubling.

The dispute with China is not a matter of overwhelming importance in the overall world trade picture right now. China accounts for only 2 percent of U.S. exports. The difficulty is longer term because China is a vast potential market for U.S. manufacturers and commodities. Arguments over a 4 percent growth rate in textiles cannot possibly make that market more accessible to American suppliers.

When George Shultz visits China early next month, he would do well to take along some fresh approach to the question. There were indications during the earlier negotiations that the Chinese might not have insisted on a 6 percent figure. Splitting the difference might clear the air. Finding out would at least show greater flexibility than has been the case so far.

The conspicuous feature of each of the three banned

He's gone, but not forgotten

To the Editors: We have just learned of the passing of Nathan Charles White Jacobson, a man whose family goes back to the first settlers of the Coventry.

Many present and former residents of the town recall the numerous contributions that Nathan made to his community, his church — and especially to the younger people during the pre-World War II days when money was scarce, unemployment high, and community services virtually non-existent.

A high-honor graduate of UConn, when it was Connecticut State College, he was trained as a mechanical engineer — back in the days when that profession was far from popular.

Many a Coventry high school student was guided by Nathan through the complexities of algebra, trigonometry and physics, thanks to his inherent love of those studies, and a genuine interest in helping others.

A member of the long-distance track team, he brought laurels to the college from victories over opposing runners throughout New England. Some of us recall the famous, friendly contest that, as a full evening long ago, saw Coventry's two best runners, Nathan, and Oliver Frederickson, pitted in a grueling, all-out run.

It started opposite the old main street that stood at the foot of Mason Street.

The two agreed to run to the car barn in Williamic (now the city's public works garage), about five, and return to the starting place.

Nate beat Olie by some 15 minutes, and was scarcely out of breath.

How many of us fondly remember his old Model T Ford, and later the Dodge, that provided, throughout the Depression days, unflinching transportation for Coventry's baseball, basketball and football teams.

With Nate at the wheel, the team members jammed inside, or hanging outside on roof, fenders and spare tire, the whole entourage was hauled to and from games in Andover, Willington, Williamic, Storrs — and once, even to Lebanon! I suppose the Little Leaguers, and many of Coventry's folks, have no idea that Coventry's Miller-Richardson Field was precisely laid out by Nathan with transit tape and rod; nor that he and his father provided the machinery, tools and manpower to make the field one of the best in the whole region — back in the late 1920s and early 1930s.

As Coventry's early scoutmaster, Nathan brought that program to at least two generations of Coventry's young men.

I recall back in 1938, when I was scoutmaster of a troop in a neighborhood house in East Boston, he and I arranged a summer camp in the just-opened wilderness camp area of the Boston Council in the Tamworth-Chicora region of New Hampshire.

Nathan arranged for "Doc" Weston — an ex-physician-turned-actor, living in the Actors Colony — to do the Coventry boys' physical gratis.

My troop's physicals were done by a "fourth-year" Tufts med student. It started opposite the old main street that stood at the foot of Mason Street.

The two agreed to run to the car barn in Williamic (now the city's public works garage), about five, and return to the starting place.

My contingent was picked up in East Boston. We had no recreation experts nor planned activity program. But the campout was unquestionably one of our most memorable two-week experiences. And the price was right, $4 per scout — meal, transportation and lodging!

Few now know that Nathan was a long-time, dedicated superintendent of the Sunday School at the First Congregational Church; or, that when the Coventry Volunteer Fire Department was being formed, he was in the forefront of raising the needed funds. He long served the department as secretary, and as a very active firefighter.

He held a commission in the U.S. Army and was an elected member of several honorary engineering societies. While never emulating members of his family who've traditionally held important responsible elective office, Nathan served faithfully and well in numerous public and civic organizations for over more than a quarter-century.

A modest man, Nathan Jacobson never sought public honors — never, even given that program to his friend, as an associate in many, many affairs in days gone by, mourn his passing.

It is regrettable that more in his mold do not emerge and give, as he did, of their time, talent, and honest goodnature to the freely doing of deeds demanded by the pervasive and real needs of the community, not for tangible rewards, status, or notoriety — but from an old-fashioned and ingrained sense of doing what is right, fitting and needful. He is missed, that's sure.

But he is not forgotten. Jesse and Sue Brainerd Delray Beach, Fla.

Union considers challenging rife

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state's only elevator installers' union was to consider today challenging a city decision barring workers from city-assisted projects because it refused to sign an affirmative action plan.

The union "will not under any condition" sign the plan which requires 15 percent of the workforce on city project be minority group members, John DeRosa said Thursday.

DeRosa is business manager for the 320-member Local 91 of the International Union of Elevator Constructors.

Ask Dr. Blaker
Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

Pow wows can help

DEAR DR. BLAKER: My family is so unpleasant. I hate to be home. Nobody is ever civil to one another and sometimes it just seems like a battleground. Is there anything I can do to change this?

DEAR READER: I suggest that you call an official family conference and start it by telling them honestly and openly how you feel.

Every family member should have a chance to be heard and should be attentive while another person is speaking. If you are clear and courteous in expressing your feelings, chances are the others will follow suit. No one should be judgmental or vindictive or else the discussion could dissolve into more arguing.

As you speak, you'll probably find that some family members agree with you, others may be surprised that you feel the way you do and still others may have a completely different interpretation of the home scene.

The discussion should provide you and your family with new insights. Bringing things out in the open this way should also promote deeper understanding among you and lead to a more pleasant home atmosphere.

There is no sense in your suffering in silence when you have it in your power to begin the problem-solving process by opening up communication.

DEAR DR. BLAKER: My best friend is always trying to improve her image. She's forever buying new kinds of makeup and clothes and trying new hairstyles.

But now she's really going off the deep end. She has decided to get a new job — and she doesn't need it. I'm not the only one who feels this way, either. Is there anything I can do?

It's better to sit than lie

DEAR DR. LAMB: I read the letter from the lady who was concerned about the effects of sitting all day in the office. I was interested in your advice about how sitting without enough activity caused a person to feel tired and even affected the heart and circulation.

I'm concerned about my mother. She lives with us and because of her age is not too active. She stays in the house mostly and sits a great deal. She already has some osteoporosis and I realize that the changes in her bones with age make it more likely that she will have a fracture if she falls.

You mentioned that older people should not be in bed if they can get out of bed and active. You said in the past that this could affect their bones as well as heart and circulation. I'd like to know if there is a difference in sitting and being in bed with regard to calcium and my mother's osteoporosis.

DEAR READER: Yes, there is. I don't think just sitting in a chair is adequate activity for the reasons I have discussed before and I like to see everyone who can get some activity such as a comfortable stroll or more if a person is up to it.

For some reason, individuals lying down are more prone to loss of calcium than people sitting

Officials: statistics show toll booths not safety hazard

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut's highway chief and top law enforcement officers told lawmakers Friday statistics showed traffic accidents are not a major safety factor on the Connecticut Turnpike.

The comments came before the Legislature's Transportation Committee, which has speeded up hearings to discuss the merits and costs of eliminating tolls after a Jan. 19 accident at the Stratford toll plaza that claimed seven lives.

The panel also got a variety of information on the bonding of the 30-year-old tollway, cost estimates to reconstruct the highway and how much federal aid was available.

THE HEARING also drew questions from Fairfield County legislators who have called the tolls unfair, unsafe and uneconomic.

Transportation Commissioner J. William Burns presented figures estimating a cost of more than $158 million to remove tolls safely and upgrade the turnpike.

Burns said records from January 1978 to last March showed the accident rate on the turnpike averaged 152.8 per 100 million miles. He said only 7.6 percent of the 14,000 accidents on the turnpike occurred at toll stations.

An estimated 68,000 vehicles used the Stratford tolls every day. Of the 14,000 accidents reported on the entire turnpike, 257 occurred at the Stratford toll and involved one death, Burns said.

A total of four deaths on the entire turnpike were reported during the 39-month period, he said.

State Police Commissioner Col. Lester J. Forst, who testified earlier during the daylong hearings, said he agreed with Burns the figures indicated most accidents on the turnpike were "fender benders," and the fatal crash last week "was an exception."

Forst said there was no difference where an accident occurred if it was caused "by someone who fat at the wheel, is daydreaming or following too close."

Forst said the DOT could institute a number of mechanical procedures to make the roadway safer but in the end it's the "human factor" that determines the safety on the highways.

To this end, Forst said, it was more important to have added radar patrols, motorcycles, and even a helicopter or fixed wing aircraft to patrol the 120-mile turnpike.

Burns said last year the state collected $48 million in tolls from an estimated 134-million vehicles that used the turnpike. Ninety percent of the vehicles were passenger cars that paid a total of $22 million, the remaining were commercial vehicles that produced $15 million.

Sen. William DiBella, D-Hartford, co-chairman of the committee, said after the lengthy hearing the basic concern of the issue "remains how to fund reconstruction costs for the roadway."

Weepy work

Judy Eschmann, left, peels onions as Mary Ann Taggart lends a hand, and Ellie Watt, right, cleans lettuce. The women are preparing for the roast pork dinner scheduled Saturday from 5:30 to 7 p.m. at the fellowship hall of Second Congregational Church, 385 N. Main St. The dinner, which will be served continuously, includes fruit juice, roast pork, mashed potatoes, gravy, applesauce, green beans, tossed salad, rolls, butter, ice cream, cookies, and beverage. Price is $7 for adults and $3.50 for children under 13. Proceeds will be used to defray the costs of recent renovations to the sanctuary and church school. Call 649-2863 for reservations.

Permit sought

A building permit is being sought by J and G Associates for 14 condominium units on Oakland Street at an estimated construction cost of $400,000.

The 1.7-acre parcel is on the west side of Oakland Street just north of North School Street. The complex of two-story structures was designed by Gregory Louis Montana, a South Windsor architect.

Courtesy of police, a Storrs resident Thursday visited barracks in Colchester, William, Coventry, Manchester and East Hartford — but not for pleasure.

He was wanted in each of these towns on warrants charging him with issuing bad checks, police said Friday night.

Daniel F. Aurand, 22, of Hillyard Road, Storrs, was first picked up by state police based in Colchester, and charged with three counts of issuing bad checks.

Police said he was then transferred to William, where additional charges were leveled, then brought to Coventry.

In Coventry, he was charged with three counts of issuing bad checks, then transferred to Manchester. There he was charged with six counts of the charge, and one count of sixth-degree larceny.

Police said he was then brought to East Hartford where he was wanted on additional counts.

"He was all over the place last night," one state trooper said. "I don't know how many other police served a warrant Friday night charging a Hartford man with three counts of second-degree failure to appear."

Brookfield St. Louis, 16, of Park Street in Hartford, had failed to appear in court to face a charge of breach of peace made Sept. 2, and charges of entering on school grounds and possession of marijuana brought against him Oct. 13, police said.

He was being held Friday night in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Elmer F. Rice, 85, of Winterhaven, died Friday at Manchester. He was the husband of Viola V. Rice, who died in Winterhaven. He was a member of the 4048 in Winterhaven.

Survivors, besides his wife, are three sons: Charles K. Rice of Middlebury, Earl Rice of Jacksonville, Fla., and Alan Rice of Winterhaven; a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy M. Smith of Winterhaven; three brothers, Kenneth Rice of Merrimack, N.H., Donald Rice of Stetson, Fla., and James Rice of Leominster, Mass.; eight grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 11 a.m. at Rose Hill Funeral Home, 580 Elm St., Rocky Hill. Friends may call at the funeral home one hour before the funeral.

One day last fall I was over visiting and Kevin called me outside.

"What do you think?" he asked with a big grin.

"What do I think of what?" I asked.

He was crestfallen that I hadn't noticed that Sally Fields had a brand new roof on her cage — complete with sloping sides and tar shingles.

"Drainage — for when it rains," Kevin said, still hoping I'd catch on to how terrific it was that Sally Fields now had a cage that looked like a Swiss chalet.

"What about a chimney?" I asked.

LET ME MAKE something perfectly clear.

Kevin is no great fan of rabbits. Nor was his daughter's anything special either. It was simply one of your standard black and white rabbits with big floppy ears, the kind children in elementary school like to draw.

But the thing was Kevin didn't want that rabbit dying on his account. Not with Lum Lum's tragic passing still a black mark on his soul.

As the fall grew chillier and the woodstove went on, Kevin became even more obsessed with Sally Fields's survival.

In early December the styrofoam insulation was added. Kevin took four pieces of styrofoam and made an igloo-like thing with a little round opening and he set that right inside the cage. He was sure this would guarantee tropical conditions for Sally Fields no matter how hot the temperatures fell.

"A guest room?" I asked.

Sally Fields looked puzzled, too. He sat there munching on a carrot taking the whole thing in. Kevin claimed Sally Fields spent whole days in his igloo but I never saw the rabbit venture inside.

ANYWAY THE bad news came just recently. Sally Fields succumbed. There was no autopsy. A highly secret burial took place after dark down by the brook. Sally Fields is in eternal rest next to Lum Lum.

And Monique hasn't noticed a thing. Or at least she hasn't chosen to comment on it.

The other day she breezily told me that her father told her he was going to buy her a dog.

"When I'm 18," she said.

Keeping the news a secret

The rabbit died. Kevin found him curled up beside his water dish quite one morning.

Nobody's said anything at Monique yet and she's not asking. Which is just as well because this is the second pet that has left Monique by way of death.

The first was a cat she named Lum Lum. Every once in a while when Monique gets angry at her father, she tells him that he killed Lum Lum. Kevin didn't kill Lum Lum but she still blames himself that he didn't recognize that there was something wrong with the cat.

"I should have noticed how sick she was," he says.

Then I say, "But you probably couldn't have done anything anyway. That cat was sick." I say that to make my 25-year-old brother feel better after his 4-year-old daughter has savaged his conscience.

THE LATE RABBIT'S name was Sally Fields. Monique named him that. Nobody ever understood exactly why. Once I asked her and she shot me one of those how-could-you-be-so-stupid-it's-perfectly-obvious-why looks 4-year-olds are so good at.

Sally Fields lived outside in a huge rabbit cage behind the garage. Somebody at work gave Kevin the rabbit cage. It came along with the rabbit inside of it.

Laurie left a poignant legacy

What Laurie wrote

1980 University of South Dakota Nothing, nothing at all but what other people see it as being — an endless emptiness. What is it like trapped in a dark closet unable to get out, beating on the walls and screaming, ramming my head against the wall... and the wall is the shell of myself.

I want no tears when I am gone — no useless crying or prayers but a moment of celebration. Everything I wanted to be I was — a biologist, a psychiatrist, a philosopher, a dancer, and my happiness was misunderstood and confused by the most I accept perhaps Mom and Allen. Now I am with him perhaps under God's grace, living in a happiness that is far beyond any other I have ever known.

When someone who has not heard of my death asks you how I am doing, only say, she's in a far off land somewhere with her fiancé, she doesn't want to have any children and she's very happy. She's more beautiful than she ever was before in spirit and her grace is boundless. Then perhaps if you truly cared, you could say a prayer that we will meet again in God's chosen land where there will be no sorrow and only joy.

Loneliness streaks through my mind Like a bullet without fire Angry thoughts of your demon The manipulator, the driver of this bargain Sends me angry for refuge in a more peaceful existence Demands! Demands! What you demand leaves me recklessly hoping for a sea breeze, a soft leaf against my body, the petal of a rose.

No one can ever pay the price if the game goes on, and I'm tired of this loser's streak. Don't call my name again for I am leaving the table to go hang myself and celebrate my madness in some other domain. I will not answer your call again, so be it. I seek the rose still.

Loneliness streaks through my mind Like a bullet without fire Angry thoughts of your demon The manipulator, the driver of this bargain Sends me angry for refuge in a more peaceful existence Demands! Demands! What you demand leaves me recklessly hoping for a sea breeze, a soft leaf against my body, the petal of a rose.

No one can ever pay the price if the game goes on, and I'm tired of this loser's streak. Don't call my name again for I am leaving the table to go hang myself and celebrate my madness in some other domain. I will not answer your call again, so be it. I seek the rose still.

Mastrangelo marriage marked

Members of the Democratic Town Committee congratulated one of their own Thursday night at the start of their meeting.

Town Chairman Theodore R. Cummings said it was appropriate to honor Pascal Mastrangelo, who, at age 80, got married last week in a church ceremony. The Democrats gave Mastrangelo a warm round of applause.

"It's good," snapped the colorful Mastrangelo with a smile when asked how married life was suiting him. That drew laughter from his colleagues.

Mastrangelo, who was a widower, is chairman of the Manchester Housing Authority. He is also a district leader in the Democratic Town Committee.

He married Alice Magnuson, 76, of Bolton last week. Mrs. Magnuson was a widow.

"Pat shows us you're only as old as you feel," said Cummings. "I think it's great."

Silvers finds 'Happy Days'

For many years the character of Jenny Fonda was the spunky ABC's Tuesday night comedy "Happy Days," but it wasn't until last season that viewers finally got to see the bubbly, bubbly of Joanne Whalley-Kilmer.

She is played by Cathy Silvers, a familiar name to anyone who has watched television, because she is the daughter of entertainer Phil Silvers.

Miss Silvers was born in New York City when her father was starring on Broadway in "Do Re Mi." By the time she was 6 months old, the family had moved to Los Angeles.

The Silvers family is a close-knit group, all five offspring were born within seven years. As youngsters they used every opportunity to appear on television, and she frequently staged for the community.

"I always wanted to perform," says Miss Silvers. "I was always 'on' in my part of the house. My mother and father were always watching me. I was always being praised for my performance. I was always being praised for my performance. I was always being praised for my performance."

Following her graduation from Beverly Hills High School, Miss Silvers continued her dramatic training at California State University at Northridge.

She got her role on "Happy Days" after Dudley Moore went to a college production and was so impressed with her performance that he called his agent to arrange an interview for her.

PBS PRESENTS

is black power a myth?

On Monday, Jan. 31 addition of "Frontline," the question is asked: "How often is black power a myth?"

Series anchor Jessica Savitch hopes to shed some light on this topic during the hour-long "In the Shadow of the Capitol."

Have blacks, who've won elective office in many of the nation's largest cities and towns, really gained political power — or is it just an illusion?

Nowhere is this more prominent than in the nation's capital, Washington, D.C., where the unfinished work of the civil rights movement, the fight towards accomplishing the "Frontline" examines the power and powerlessness in Washington, D.C. and poses many disturbing questions about the future of American cities.

The 26-week series is produced by a consortium of public television stations: KCTS Seattle, WGBH Boston, WNET New York, WPTV Miami, and WTVS Detroit.

MANCHESTER'S JEN KOHUT (21) HAS CONTROL... as she's guarded by Hornets' Darlene Williams in CCIL III

East defeats Xavier

With its best offensive showing of the season, not-shooting East Catholic whipped Xavier High, 76-60, in Hartford County Conference basketball action Friday night at the Eagles' Nest.

The win was the fourth in a row for the surging Eagles and boosts them over the 500 mark at 3-2 in the conference and 7-5 overall. The loss drops the Middletown-based Falcons to 1-4 in the HCC and 5-7 overall.

"I feel we're starting to get our confidence as a team offensively," said East Coach Jim Penders, who saw his cagers shoot a torrid 26-for-39 from the floor. "We shot extremely well, obviously, and we were taking good shots all night."

"Everybody was looking for the open man and we played a good offensive game," added Penders. "East had a total of 13 assists with senior guard Neil Ptachinski dish out seven."

East had a slim 12-11 lead at the turn with the Eagles pushing the margin to 35-23 at halftime. Junior guard Jim Dargati had four field goals in the second stanza to pace East.

Senior forward Doug Bond tossed in three hoops in the third canto as the Eagles moved their lead to 52-39 with eight minutes to play. The Falcons sliced the East advantage to seven points with 2 1/2 minutes to go before the home club iced matters from the foul line. Dargati was 5-for-6 from the line down the stretch and 6-foot-7 junior pivotman Chris Brunone 3-for-4.

Brunone was playing with a dislocated finger, suffered last Tuesday in the win over NorthWest Catholic. He still managed 6 points and 6 rebounds in a good effort.

Dargati, 4-for-4 from the field in the second canto and 7-for-9 in the first half, finished with nine field goals and 23 points overall. Bond added 18 points and 7 caroms while Sean McPadden chipped in 9.

"I think the kids played maybe their best offensive game of the year," remarked a pleased Penders, who hopes his cagers have settled into a good groove. He was expecting good things from his Eagles in 1983-84 before hitting some tough opponents early in the season.

Mike Muzio pumped in 21 points and Roger Madero 16 to pace Xavier.

East will try to continue its upswing Tuesday night when it entertains IHCC foe St. Paul in a 7:30 start.

East Catholic (76)—McPadden 25-8-9, Bond 8-22-18, Callahan 0-0-0, Dargati 9-5-23, Ptachinski 16-6-8, Brunone 2-4-8, Smith 2-2-6, Soucier 0-0-0, Galligan 1-0-2, Renstrom 1-0-2, Totals 26-30-76.

Xavier (60)—M. Muzio 8-5-21, Madero 8-0-16, Murphy 0-1-2, Brown 3-2-8, Mills 0-2-2, Rosen 2-0-4, J. Muzio 9-0-4, Coughlin 1-2-3, 4, Kols 0-0-0, Totals 24-12-60.

Indians top Hornets

EAST HARTFORD—Despite its apparent shortcomings on offense, Manchester High had enough firepower to annex a 49-37 triumph over East Hartford High in CCIL basketball action Friday night in East Hartford.

The win lifts the Silk Towners to the 500 mark at 5-5 in the league and 4-4 overall. The loss drops the Hornets to 2-9 in the CCIL and 3-10 overall.

Manchester shot 19-for-49 from the field. "We're getting a good feel for the game," said Manchester Coach Doug Pearson. "We did a good job of controlling the tempo and playing defensively but we're not playing well offensively."

All the phases are there. But on offense, we are not getting the points we should. We were never in a position in the game to lose but we're just not getting the points we should," continued Pearson.

Senior guard Mark Mistrretta, after going scoreless in Tuesday's win over Wethersfield, pumped in a game-high 16 points to pace the Indians. Mark came through tonight. He had zero points the other night and tonight 17. That's our story. We don't have anything consistent and that's hurt us, especially against the good teams."

Manchester's defense was a key factor in Tuesday's triumph. The clamps on Keith Capers after the Hornet performer had 11 first-half points. "Peterson did a good job of holding the ball," said Pearson. "He held him to three points and four shots in the second half. And Kevin Brophy did a good job on (Derek) Hovanec. He's capable of scoring a lot of points but Kevin held him to seven." The Tribe coughed added.

The quintets were deadlocked at 8-8 after one period with the Silk Towners moving to a 26-20 halftime lead. Manchester extended its advantage to 36-27 after three periods with the Hornets unable to climb up the mountain.

Manchester only committed six turnovers and did a good job on the backboards, outbounding the Hornets. "We're just not a good offensive team," said Pearson. "We are having lots of problems offensively," he reiterated.

Ken Willis had 11 points and turned in a solid effort, as did Brophy who totaled 9 points.

Silks junior Steve Peterson pumped in 14 points and 14 rebounds to pace the Indians to 14 points to pace East Hartford.

Manchester, which has won two straight, makes the long journey Tuesday night to a team-high 14 points to pace East Hartford.

Manchester (49)—Dupe 12-3-4, Carmel 1-0-2, Brophy 3-3-9, McCurry 1-0-2, Mistrretta 7-3-17, Silver 0-2-2, Peterson 10-0-2, Willis 8-13-11, Totals 19-11-49.

East Hartford (37)—Hovanec 3-12-7, Capers 5-4-14, Welles 1-3-5, Moore 2-0-4, Johnson 1-0-2, Lead 1-0-2, Mazzoli 1-2-1, Ortiz 0-0-0, Shannon 1-0-2, Totals 14-9-14.

MHS girls in romp

Putting forth a good third-quarter effort, Manchester High girls' basketball team humbled West's play is ended

Manchester's next outing is Tuesday at home against Simsbury High. The Trojans took the first meeting from the Silk Towners.

Manchester also took the javyve till, 49-8. Betty Maher and Stacey Miller each had 8 points for the 19-2 young Indians.

The Indians' lead was 20-4 at the half, doubling a 10-0 advantage at the turn. Manchester took control in the third quarter by outscoring the Hornets by a 17-6 margin.

"We had a little bit of a breather this week," said Indian Coach Steve Armstrong, referring to an earlier meeting Tuesday which saw West win 49-37. "We're getting into the tougher part of our schedule. We'll see how good we are."

The victory was the Indians' fifth in succession and moves them to 6-4 in the league and 7-5 overall. The loss was the 10th in as many outings for the Hornets.

"We had a little bit of a breather this week," said Indian Coach Steve Armstrong, referring to an earlier meeting Tuesday which saw West win 49-37. "We're getting into the tougher part of our schedule. We'll see how good we are."

Whaler front office weak

What's the weakest link in the Hartford Whaler organization? One man's opinion: the front office.

The brass, from Howard Baldwin down, must shoulder the main blame for the current plight of the National Hockey League entry that has proven beyond question that it's going to be an also-ran in the 1982-83 season.

The firing of Larry Kish, as coach, and Larry Pleau's decision to take over the reins again is no improvement.

Sacking Kish was in the blueprint the Whalers used since leaving the World Hockey Association and moving in with the bigger boys in the NHL. The front office panicked when the league up and it's always easier to fire the coach than the 19 or 20 players.

Pleau proved once before that he could not mold the Whalers. He encountered all kinds of problems as a coach. The only reason he's getting a second chance is the fact he's the man who makes the decisions as he wears two hats. As coach and director of hockey operations, it's one job too many, but apparently everyone knows it but Baldwin who made the decision.

This is Pleau's team he wheedled and dealt for the type player that now wears the green and white of the Whale.

Instead of getting better, the Whalers are worse off than a year ago when they finished last in the Adams Division.

Player trades and moves by the front office (Pleau) for the most part, have backfired. The brains in the organization, and the leadership, have been thinking minor league at best.

Instead of improving each year the Whalers have gone downhill.

Eternal optimism

Each pre-season found optimism flowing over from Baldwin on down the line. "We are making strides, both on and off the ice," Baldwin promised last spring before the first puck was officially dropped.

One excuse another another had been given for the sub-par performances on the ice.

The public was asked to be patient when the franchise was accepted by the NHL. A four-year plan for respectability was forecast.

This is the fourth year and the Whalers can't drop any lower in the standings.

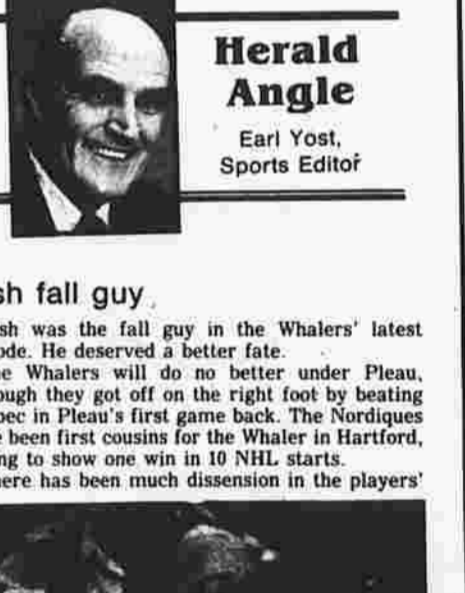

"There is no way, not even with a miracle, that the club can make the playoffs and finish as high as fourth in the Adams Division."

Baldwin has not given the team major league leadership and Pleau's lack of experience as a coach and an administration is more obvious with each decision that is made.

Holding down two posts, as coach and director of hockey operations are too much for any man, as it has been proved in other organizations in the past. Putting a totally inexperienced man in operations is even worse.

Pleau, who showed he had a lot of intestinal fortitude by going on a talk show the night of Kish's firing and then taking over the coaching reins and facing the music Thursday night in Hartford when Quebec visited, can't be fully faulted for taking the two Whaler positions. It was Baldwin's idea.

Not too many men get a chance to coach in the NHL and although every one who signs on knows that his tenure will be short, it's a prestige position.

RHAM shades Cheney Tech

Unable to cope with the press in the second period Friday night at home, Cheney Tech went down to a 75-70 defeat at the hands of RHAM High in Charter Oak Conference warfare.

Tech moved out to a 15-10 first period margin on some fine shooting by Bob Elliott and Nick Foran but when RHAM discarded its man-to-man defense the home crew was unable to control the tempo. As a result, at intermission, the visitors had erected a 10-point margin, 35-23, and were never headed. RHAM outscored Tech 23-8 in the second stanza.

The loss was the eighth in nine COC outings and ninth overall against only one win. RHAM was on the winning ledger for the fifth time in 11 games and sport an overall 10-10 mark.

RHAM held a 40-19 lead entering the final canto and rode home the winner on some fine marksmanship by Mark Clear, Todd Farley, Joe Gleason and Ken Babik. The latter set the pace with 18 points and Gleason dropped in 17. Farley hooped a dozen and Clear contributed 11.

Cheney's best point-producers were Elliott with 19and Foran with 27. The latter hit 11 times from the field and added five free throws while Elliott threw in eight hoops and three charity tosses. Paul Nowak was also in twin figures with 10.

RHAM (75)—Tarbox 0-11, Farley 4-12, Clear 4-3-11, Tuohy 2-4-8, Gleason 6-5-17, Babik 7-4-18, Kindal 2-4-8, Kne 0-0-0, Totals 25-27-75.

Cheney Tech (70)—Mitchell 1-1-3, Strickland 0-1-1, Elliott 8-3-15, Babik 5-0-10, Foran 11-5-27, Watry 1-1-3, Hawkins 2-1-5, Velasco 0-0-0, Melendez 0-2-2, Totals 28-14-70.

Bolton five trounced, 74-43

ROCKY HILL—Three scorers are better than one and the Rocky Hill High proved that Friday night as the Terriers placed three performers in twin digits in downing Bolton 74-43, in Charter Oak Conference basketball action in Rocky Hill.

The win lifts the once-beaten Terriers to 8-1 in the conference and 16-1 overall while the loss drops the Bulldogs to 3-6 in the COC and 7-7 overall.

Mark Wright, who pumped in 38 points in Rocky Hill's Tuesday win over Cheney Tech, had 15 first-half points. Bolton's Jeff Peterson applied the clamps in the third stanza, holding the normally high-scoring Terrier scoreless, but Wright finished with 21 points, McKenna 17, Stevens 14 and Sharp 8 to pace Rocky Hill.

Mal Ferguson had 14 points and dished out 11 assists to pace Bolton, which also received 8 points from Ted Brown.

The Terriers also took the javyve tilt, 51-24. Don Halobardo had 8 points for the young Bulldogs.

Bolton's next tilt is Tuesday at home against Cromwell.

Rocky Hill (74)—Sharp 3-2-8, Dzikiewicz 1-0-2, Wright 9-3-21, McKenna 7-3-17, Stevens 6-2-14, Trocano 3-2-8, Shea 1-0-2, Cristalli 0-2-2, Totals 30-14-74.

Bolton (43)—Brown 4-0-5, Peterson 3-1-7, Ferguson 5-4-14, Owen 3-0-4, Cusano 1-0-2, Halobardo 1-0-2, Sheetz 1-0-2, Fletcher 1-0-2, Totals 19-5-43.

Celtics stop Suns

BOSTON (UPI)—Nate Archibald and Kevin McHale combined for 15 points in a fourth period rally Friday night, lifting the Boston Celtics to a 111-104 victory over the Phoenix Suns.

The victory was Boston's 12th in its last 14 games while the Suns absorbed their third straight defeat.

The Celtics trailed 90-83 with 10:35 remaining when Archibald triggered a 17-4 run over a span of six minutes with a pair of outside jumpers. McHale converted a three-point play with 7:39 left to give Boston the lead for good 98-94.

A McHale tip in with 4:45 to play completed the spree and gave the Celtics a 102-96 lead.

Archibald had eight of his 12 points in the run and McHale scored his 24. Walter Davis, who led Phoenix with 26 points, had the only three baskets for the Suns in that stretch.

Robert Parish, whose two foul shots with 29 seconds left sealed the victory, led the Celtics with 29 points and Bird added 20. Maurice Lucas had 24 for the Suns and Dennis Johnson added 10.

The Celtics led 34-29 after one period, but Phoenix rallied back to tie the game 60-60 at halftime.

Sabres 6-2

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—Second-period goals by Ric Sotgiu, Mike Poligo, Larry Playfair and Phil Housley broke open a 1-0 contest, and the Buffalo Sabres extended their home-ice unbeaten streak to 11 Friday night with a 6-2 victory over the Chicago Black Hawks.

Sotgiu, who hit the post twice with first-period shots, found an empty net at the end of a one-on-one break off a pass from Housley at 1:40.

Poligo aped around Chicago defenseman Doug Wilson and beat Chicago goalie Murray Barnston with a 25-footer at 6:30.

Coaches keeping eye on weather

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — As the Southern California area braces itself for a second major tropical storm in the last 48 hours, the coaches of Sunday's Super Bowl teams Friday hurried to beat the deluge and put in the finishing touches on their game plans.

A major storm hit the Los Angeles area on Thursday, dumping nearly three inches of rain in some areas, and a second storm was scheduled to hit late Friday or early Saturday. There was some rain forecast for Sunday's game between Washington and Miami at the Rose Bowl, which has a natural grass surface.

Miami Coach Don Shula hurried to get in his last full-scale workout before Sunday's game. Shula had made tentative arrangements to bus his players to the Marine Air Station in El Toro, Calif., 20 miles from the Dolphins' Newport Beach hotel. But the skies cleared briefly early Friday and Shula worked his club at its normal Cal State-Fullerton practice facility.

Washington Coach Joe Gibbs, whose team is using the Los Angeles Rams' training complex in Anaheim, also was hoping to get in a solid workout before the skies opened again.

"With just one week to prepare for the game, things are a little tight," Shula said. "Normally you use the first week to put in your game plan and then you come out to the Super Bowl to polish it up. We couldn't do that since we played Sunday. We had to put in the game plan in the past few days and we really need the time to smooth things out."

Gibbs said he hopes the weather will not be a factor but feels both clubs can handle the expected slug if heavy rains continue Sunday.

Shula had planned to have von Schamann kick for the first time this week on Thursday but changed his plans after Thursday's storm left the turf soft.

"I didn't want him taking a chance hurting himself again with that poor footing," Shula said. "He'll work today and he says he'll be ready. It worked out well last week when he took the entire week off before the Jets game. We don't want to risk developing any soreness before the game."

The Dolphins, appearing in their fourth Super Bowl and seeking their third title, were three-point favorites. Washington lost 14-7 to Miami 10 years ago in the Redskins' only Super Bowl appearance.

13-year veteran Kuechenberg recalls juicy Sunday in '73

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It was 10 years ago but Miami's left guard, Bob Kuechenberg, remembers it well. Specifically, he remembers Washington tackle Diron Talbert well. He claims Talbert spent the entire game spitting tobacco juice in his face across the line.

That was Super Bowl XVII, Kuechenberg will be back in his old familiar position for the Dolphins. And he'll see the same Redskins uniform lined up against him.

"Deja vu or something," Kuechenberg said. "It really is not so spooky when you think about it. Now all I have to hear is that Diron Talbert is coming out of retirement or something."

No such luck. Battling the 13-year veteran Kuechenberg this time will be Darrel Grant. Reports indicate he doesn't spit tobacco juice.

Whether Kuechenberg and the rest of the Miami offensive line can handle the Redskins' defense will be a key to the game. Next to the 6-foot-2, 260-pound Kuechenberg, the Dolphins will send out left tackle Jon Giestler (6-5, 260), center Dwight Stenerson (6-2, 260) and guard Jeff Toews (6-3, 255) and right tackle Eric Laakso (6-4, 265).

That foursome will be responsible for protecting quarterback David Woodley and springing backs Tony Nathan and Andre Franklin.

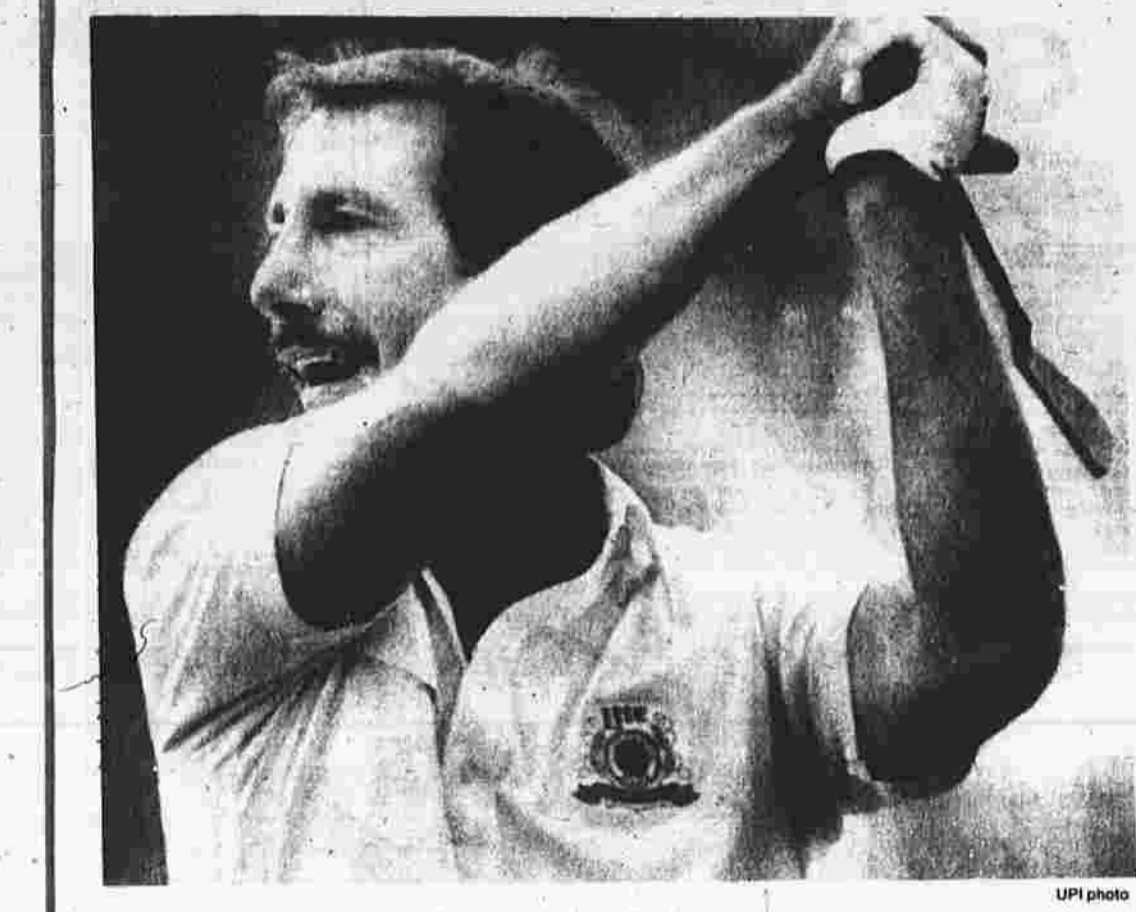

WIDE RECEIVERS ALVIN GARRETT AND JIMMY CEFALO ready for final test of season in Super Bowl Sunday

Woodley may need all the help he can get. In just his third year in the NFL, he ranked 27th of 28 quarterbacks in passing efficiency during the season and has performed erratically. Just when Miami Coach Don Shula was ready to pull him for veteran Don Strick, Woodley turned it around, throwing the two touchdowns passes in the regular season finale against Baltimore and then leading the Dolphins' surge through the playoffs.

"There's not really an explanation," Woodley said. "I'm doing the same things I always did, only now they're working. There has been no evolution or anything like that."

Woodley will be throwing to wide receivers Durlie Harris, Nat Moore and Jimmy Cefalo.

With prospects for a wet, rainy Super Bowl Sunday in Pasadena's Rose Bowl, the power-running tandem of the 216-pound Nathan and 225-pound Franklin could be crucial to the game's outcome.

Thousands in line at Bryant funeral

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Eight of his bravest players carried Paul "Bear" Bryant to his grave under a bare hickory tree Friday after more than 8,000 mourners in two cities said goodbye to the man they called the greatest football coach who ever lived.

A crowd of 5,000 — many dressed as though for an Alabama football game — watched in eerie silence as the hulking pallbearers carried Bryant's flower-blanked casket to the grave. Only the sound of one woman sobbing broke the stillness.

A funeral procession three miles long, consisting of more than 300 cars and six buses carrying Bryant's last University of Alabama team and many of his former players, drove the 60 miles to Birmingham behind the white hearse after funeral services in Tuscaloosa.

At the request of Bryant's wife, Mary Harmon Bryant, the motorcade passed Bryant Denny Stadium, the Crimson Tide's home field.

Bryant, who won 323 games in his 38 seasons — more than any other college coach — died Wednesday of a heart attack only 28 days after retiring. He was 69.

"We give thanks to God for his personal strength in leading men and the tenderness with which he could touch a child," the Rev. Joe Elmore intoned. "The main services for Bryant at the First Methodist Church in Tuscaloosa, Ala., will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday at the University of Alabama."

Accompanied by her son, Paul Bryant Jr., and daughter, Mae Martin Tyson.

Many mourners wore crimson and white, the colors of the Crimson Tide. Some wore Alabama caps and others were seen in hooded check hats, which Bryant always wore on the sidelines on game day.

A number of people wore T-shirts that said "I Took a Giant Leap" referring to Bryant's 1956 move to Alabama.

Former Alabama players Ray Perkins, who Bryant selected to succeed him last month.

In a brief graveside service, the crowd recited the 23rd Psalm and the Lord's Prayer and then the dead coach's family left, with the mourners straggling behind and the simple line casket still beside the grave.

It was lowered into an underground vault later.
