Some 'reforms' are dangerous

Cosmetic vs. real consumerism

Cosmetics involve many real consumer issues. As a mere sampling: How safe are the ingredients? Are rabbits abused in testing for irritation potential when concentrates are dropped in their eyes? Are any or all allergy-causing substances disclosed on labels?

But there also is another kind of cosmetic consumerism: the use of important-sounding "reforms" that create an impression of really tough action to protect the consumer when in fact there may be none. This kind of cosmetic is doubly dangerous.

It replaces the real thing, since officials or legislators can brag about what they "did" and not have to face up to the real, thornier issues swept under the rug.

2) When the predictable happens and the great reforms adopted with such fanfare do not real good, the public is even further alienated—and you may decide that the entire system cannot work for you at all. You then may "drop out" and become indifferent to the whole thing or actually hostile to unprecedentedly open society. The consequences can be tragic, depending on just how you express your hostility.

Your Money's Worth
Sylvia Porter

But aren't laws enforced. Don't be naive. Agencies love to demand new "tougher" laws so that they seem to be protecting you vigorously—while they keep the spotlight away from what they aren't doing with powers they already have. Licensing proposals are a perfect example of this. They can bring in lush fees to feed the bureaucracy; protect the "ins" from outside competition; also often raise prices you pay for products or services provided by a certified "expert." The Federal Trade Commission, for instance, found the costs of TV repairs were significantly higher when licensing was required. But the licensing may not result in any extra protection of the public. Often whatever is wrong with an industry already is illegal and the agencies involved simply aren't doing anything about it.

— Create a new agency.

The trendy solution to problems in the 1960s was to create a new agency to attack an old problem without any new tools to attack it. It was thrilling to see headlines announcing the Department of This or That or Whatever being established. It was less thrilling to see the new agency's budget and to see the agency and watch its performance (or lack of it).

— Reorganize!

Moving around the contents of bureaucratic boxes or organizational charts can be an absorbing form of action. This was "in" entertainment in the 1970s. The number of agencies was now reduced instead of increased. The boxes were consolidated and appeared more rational on diagrams; the garbage inside the boxes wasn't altered at all.

— More policy planning, preferably involving consumers.

Modern Management is the phrase of the 1980s, replacing the New Agency of the 1960s and the Reorganization of the 1970s. But what comes out of it at the end for you and me? More bills for expert consultants—for computer malfunctions; paper for printouts and cashmere ray rubes; coordinators; planners. These are guaranteed results. Less effective decision-making can be another, as facts are sifted through multiple layers of experts and no one stays close to the initial facts.

— Turn the problem over to another level of government. Recognize this as today's approach? It is: dumping the problems back on states and localities even if they are national in scope. The trend of the 1960s to a complicated maze at the federal level has been turned around.

Shift budget figures and focus on the latest budget crisis.

With mirrors (it seems), numbers meaningless to you and me are shifted, digested and served up again to justify an ever-new bite on your pocketbooks or cut in services in some fashion.

Aren't you fooled by all this emergency action and endless crisis management? How can you complain when superhuman efforts are being made to protect you in every field? How dare you demand better (or even any) results? I can prove to you just about anything with numbers. But what we experience day-to-day is how we are actually doing!

But over the long run, if you really become fed up or annoyed enough to stay angry (a very big IF), you, the public, are the bosses and you can exercise your awesome power. To illustrate:

A) Follow up on all grandiose official announcements of any program. Check up, say, a year later with one innocent question: What happened? If the answer is "nothing," act!

B) Insist on enforcement of existing laws by those charged with that duty. Most malpractices are illegal. What have those charged to enforce the law done? If lawsuits to enforce a law dragged, why?

C) Demand that bureaucracies be simplified. Probe into an "effort" to "modernize and improve" to see if all it does is add more paperwork, involve more untold approvals of the simplest move, more computer reports, more high-level policy planners. This is happening right now even as you read this! We can change it—if we mean it.

D) Look at problems in terms of the efforts special interests are asking. Political action committees (PACs) sponsored by specific industries, lobbyists for special interests who can deduct the expense of lobbying from their tax returns, are working 24 hours a day for their clients. Legislators are under immense pressure to please these powerful groups—but they must look good to us.

The dilemma is solved by cosmetic consumerism. Ask these terribly simple questions: What do these interests want? How do the lobbyists affect "me" as a consumer and a citizen?

The questions alone (much less the answers) can be devastating! Try them, I plead with you, just!

WHAT CAN BE DONE to change the situation? In the short run, probably very little, for you, as an American citizen, are allowing it to work. You're rewarding—not punishing—the perpetrators of the frauds who come from all political spectrums—left, right and center.

New England unemployment increases

BOSTON (UPI) — The New England unemployment rate jumped to 7.4 percent in December, still far below the national average of 10.5 percent, and for the 45th consecutive month fared better than the nation, the Bureau of Labor Statistics announced Friday.

Regional Commissioner Anthony J. Ferrara said Rhode Island experienced the sharpest one-month jump — from 9.5 to 10.9 percent — while Vermont reported the fewest of work — 6.8 percent.

For the year, unemployment increased from 6.7 percent to 7.4 percent as 47,000 New Englanders were added to the jobless rolls. The sharpest yearly increase was recorded in Rhode Island, where the rate jumped from 7.6 percent to 10.9 percent, the highest in the region.

Over the same period the national average increased from 8.3 percent to 10.5 percent, an increase of 2.6 million people.

In Massachusetts, four months of improving employment ended when the December rate increased from 6.5 to 7.1 percent. Connecticut and New Hampshire also recorded 7.1 percent rates while Maine increased to 8 percent.

Ferrara pointed out only 16 states nationally recorded rates of 8 percent or higher — five were in New England.

The jobless rate declined in only three of the region's 19 metropolitan areas, Ferrara said, with Bridgeport, New Britain and Manchester, N.H., recording slight decreases.

Stamford, Conn., while up fractionally, maintains the lowest rate of 221 metropolitan areas nationwide at 4 percent. Boston, at 5.4 percent, had the lowest rate in Massachusetts and the second best in New England.

In a related matter, Connecticut experienced a 9.2 percent reduction in unemployment compensation claims for the two-week period ending Feb. 12, according to the state Labor Department.

There was an average of 64,194 unemployment claims in the two-week period, compared with 70,925 in the previous two weeks.

The Labor Department said the decline in claims could be attributed mainly to a reduction in temporary closings.

Columbia pictures is a good stock bet

By David R. Sargent

QUESTION: I read that the Christmas movies did really well this year. Which companies fared best? And are there any stocks in the field you like now? S.C., California.

ANSWER: The big difference between the movies released this past Christmas season and those of the year before is that the 1982 crop had had what they call in industry parlance "legs." That is to say, they have shown staying power — opening strong and, in many cases, staying strong. The late 1981 films were early bloomers but then quickly withered on the vine. According to Variety, U.S. box office receipts for 1983 to date are running about 30 percent above those of 1982.

As to which company fared best, the runaway winner this season has been the Columbia Pictures division of Coca-Cola Co., acquired by Coke in June, 1982. Its surprise hit, "Tootsie," has already grossed more than $90 million from Columbia. "The Toy," is making good money despite bad reviews. And the epic film, "Gandhi," also Columbia, has been hailed by most critics and has opened strong, but its big contribution is yet to come since it is playing in a limited number of theaters. "Gandhi" looks like a sure bet for Oscar nominations.

While Columbia is still a relatively small part of the overall Coca-Cola picture, its recent success has led some security analysts to boost their 1983 Coke earnings estimates to $4.59 a share or better, vs. around $4 last year. Another major plus for Coca-Cola, number one in soft drinks, recently has been the warm reception given its new sugar-free Diet Coke. Of course, the movie business is notoriously volatile, but Columbia's management team is highly regarded and is broadening its stake in home entertainment. We rate Coke a promising buy.

The other Christmas films were pretty well spread out among the leading distributors — most of which are divisions of much larger companies or, as in the case of Twentieth-Century Fox, privately owned.

A good way to participate in the fortunes of the movie industry, however, is by owning the stock of General Cinema, the nation's leading film exhibitor, as well as the leading independent soft drink bottler,

Huge cut possible in oil prices

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (UPI) — Oil ministers from Saudi Arabia and five other oil-rich Persian Gulf states will meet in the next two days amid reports they are planning a huge cut in their oil prices. Omani Foreign Affairs Minister Yusef al-Alawi said today.

The ministers of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council will consider "a plan within the context of the council to achieve a stable policy on oil prices and production," al Alawi was quoted as saying by the state-run Qatari news agency.

Al Alawi made the remarks after returning to Oman from Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, where he took part in a two-day meeting of the council's foreign ministers.

The Gulf Cooperation Council includes Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, Oman, Kuwait, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates.

Cuts in the price of crude oil by Britain, Norway and Nigeria has put great pressure on the big Middle East producers, threatening to collapse the price structure of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

"OPEC has now got to reach agreement," said a London-based analyst with a major international oil company.

"They've got to get a production-sharing agreement which works and a pricing policy they've got to stick to without private discounts."

Britain pressured the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries Friday by slashing prices $3 a barrel on its North Sea oil to $20.50. Norway, another non-OPEC nation, quickly followed suit.

Nigeria became the first OPEC member to break ranks with the 13-nation organization, announcing Saturday it would cut crude prices by $2.50 to around $28 a barrel to compete with Britain.

Nigeria, which desperately needs oil dollars to finance huge overseas loans to revitalize its hard-pressed economy, is competing with Britain because both countries' oil is of similar quality. OPEC's failure to reach a pricing and production agreement in Geneva on Jan. 24. The pressure is now on OPEC to try again for an agreement, but the Nigerian move could make an accord more difficult.

Reports reaching London said OPEC appeared to be moving to cut its benchmark price by $4 to $34 a barrel. If higher-quality Nigerian oil sells for $30, however, the benchmark price for "Saudi light" could tumble to $29.50 a barrel.

New hiring may please medic foes

By Paul Hendrie
Herald Reporter

It's too early to tell whether the imminent appointments of an Eighth District firefighter to the town paramedics squad will eliminate district reservations about the program, a district director said this morning.

A memo to town directors last week said that a district firefighter will be hired as one of four paramedics squad recruits and that the town will appoint its first black firefighter.

The appointment of the black firefighter is significant, because the all-white make-up of the town's police and fire departments has been the source of much controversy, especially after affirmative action policies failed to result in the hiring of any minority police officers last year.

Some members of the black community have promised to organize a peaceful protest if no minority police officers or firefighters are appointed in the latest round of hiring. Two blacks are among the candidates still in the running for current openings in the Police Department.

Mondale: He's ready

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Former Vice President Walter Mondale formally announced today he is running for president to rebuild the American dream and restore the United States to leadership in the world.

Constantly proclaiming "I am ready to be president of the United States," Mondale said his 30 years of public service and travels across the country listening to the people have prepared him for the nation's top job.

"I know what our people want," Mondale said. "They want us to get on with it."

After Watargate, Vietnam and "quick fixes that don't work," Mondale said it is time to get the nation back on course.

"Schools must teach again. Americans must work again. Convicted criminals must go to jail again. Our nation must lead the world again," he said.

Mondale became the third Democratic presidential contender in the ornate Minnesota state capitol where he began his career as secretary of state.

"I know we will win," the former vice president said. "We have everything we need to renew our country. But the American people understand that we also need a president who knows what he's doing."

While Mondale outlined his hopes for the nation, he did not unveil a detailed program for the economy and foreign policy. That will come in a series of speeches over the next few days as he campaigns through Iowa and New Hampshire.

But he did attack some of President Reagan's economic programs.

"We must have an America where working people don't have to pay more so that the privileged can pay less," Mondale said. "I call on Congress to chop those deficits down, scale the defense budget to reality, repeal the scheduled tax cuts for the wealthy, repeal indexing and keep our tax system progressive."

Mondale said he is also running for president to achieve nuclear arms reductions.

Sudan: Libya still a threat

KHARTOUM, Sudan (UPI) — Sudan charged today that Libya continued a buildup of fighter jets, armored units and troops near its northwestern border, despite U.S. and Egyptian declarations the Libyan military threat has receded.

The Sudanese armed forces are monitoring the buildup and are prepared to crush any aggression against Sudan's security, a Sudanese government spokesman said in a statement carried by Egypt's Middle East News Agency.

The spokesman also denied reports of an attempt to assassinate Sudanese President Jaafar Numeiry that have circulated since the government announced it had arrested Libyan-backed insurgents last week.

"Reports of a coup attempt are devoid of truth and constitute a grudging information campaign waged against Sudan by the hirings of mercenaries," U.S. and Egyptian officials said Sunday that Libya's threat to Numeiry's pro-American government had waned.

But the Sudanese spokesman insisted a Libyan buildup of troops, arms and warships along the Sudanese-Libyan border was continuing, and that Sudanese forces were on alert.

The United States last week sent four AWACS surveillance planes to Egypt and the aircraft carrier Nimitz to the waters off the coast of Libya in a show of strength against Col. Moammar Khadafi's alleged plot to overthrow Numeiry.

The Sudanese spokesman also gave the first detailed account of a Libyan-backed conspiracy the government said was smashed last week.

"What happened during the past few days is that Sudanese security forces arrested a number of persons who belong to the so-called (Sudanese) revolutionary committees."

Those persons, who had weapons and explosives in their possession, had infiltrated across the border, after receiving training in Libya, the spokesman said.

A Sudanese government statement Sunday accused Libya of trying to destabilize the Khartoum government by planting agents in Sudan's autonomous southern region, coinciding with air attacks and sabotage bombings.

The Libyan plot aims at blowing up vital economic establishments in Sudan with the support of the Libyan air force, concentrated at the joint border and in the Libyan-occupied regions of northern Chad, the government said.

Sudan claims Libyan Soviet-made Tu-22 bombers and MIG-23 fighters were on alert at Libya's Al-Kufra oasis and in the Libyan-occupied Azou and Lergau regions of northern Chad, which shares its eastern borders with Sudan.

In Cairo, Egyptian Defense Minister Abdel-Halim Abou-Ghazala said there were no signs of imminent aggression but also warned Egypt would take Sudan's side in the event of hostilities, honoring a 1976 joint defense pact in Washington. Secretary of State George Shultz said the U.S. moves had pushed Khadafi "back in his box," and Pentagon officials said the AWACS and the Nimitz had been ordered to leave the area this week.

Skyjack standoff continues

VALLETTA, Malta (UPI) — Unidentified hijackers who commandeered a Libyan jetliner to Malta demanded fuel today to fly to Morocco, but the government insisted all children among the more than 150 hostages be freed first.

The Libyan Arab Airways plane was hijacked on a domestic flight over Libya Sunday night, landing in darkness at Malta's Luqa airport with 159 passengers and an unknown number of crew members aboard.

Malta's Prime Minister Dom Mintoff spoke from the airport control tower's radio with one of the hijackers who demanded fuel to fly the Boeing 727 to Morocco, a reporter who monitored the conversation said.

"Mintoff told them to first release the children as a sign they are in their right senses," the reporter said.

He said Mintoff, who spoke to an Arabic-speaking hijacker through an interpreter, asked the man: "Who are you? What do you want?"

"The hijacker told Mintoff the plane has no fuel and the batteries supplying the plane's electricity are running out," the Maltese reporter said.

He said the hijacker had demanded to speak directly to Mintoff, who then came to the airport control tower.

The jetliner was surrounded by government troops and police at a corner of the airfield where it was forced down Sunday night despite the government's refusal to give the pilot landing permission, officials said.

Air Malta officials in Rome said airport staff turned off all lights at the airport near Malta's capital of Valletta, forcing the pilot to land in darkness.

The plane later tried to take off again but was blocked by security police, Maltese radio said.

"Negotiations with the hijackers have been going on all night in an effort to have the passengers released," government spokesman Paul Mifsud said.

CHINATOWN RESIDENTS MEET MAYOR, POLICE CHIEF ... concerned about massacre at gambling club

Hearing today for suspects in 13 Chinatown murders

SEATTLE (UPI) — City leaders appealed to China's leaders for help today in capturing a third suspect in the gambling-club massacre of 13 Chinese-Americans — all shot through the back of the head.

Benjamin Ng, 28, and Kwan "Willie" Mak, 22, both Hong Kong natives and residents of Seattle, were in custody on 13 counts of homicide. They were arrested early Saturday shortly after the discovery of the slayings — the worst mass murder in the city's history.

Mak and Ng were to appear today for a bail hearing. Mary Kay Barbieri, chief criminal deputy in the King County prosecutor's office, said her office would ask for up to $1 million bail each.

Magazine report says Mafia in U.S. and Italy helped in Dozier rescue

Mafia in U.S. and Italy helped in Dozier rescue

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two days after Brig. Gen. James Dozier was kidnapped by Red Brigades terrorists, authorities turned to the Mafia for help and a jailed mafioso in Italy eventually gave them the address where he was being held. Time magazine reported.

In its Feb. 28 edition, Time said the rescue of Dozier, who was NATO's deputy chief of staff at the time of his kidnapping Dec. 17, 1981, in Verona, Italy, involved the help of an illegal Italian immigrant, a former client, might be able to give police precise information. Campione reportedly developed a plan to sneak Lombino into the United States and into Italy so he could talk to Restelli in Milan prison.

Dozier was held captive for 42 days until his rescue Jan. 28, 1982 — one day after Restelli supplied the address where Dozier, 56, was being held in Padua, Italy.

Shultz rejects missile offer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz says Soviet leader Yuri Andropov's offer to pull back medium-range missiles from the European front would merely shuffling a nuclear threat to other parts of the world.

Shultz said President Reagan's "zero option" plan "is a global proposal." Under the zero option, the number of Soviet and U.S. medium-range missiles along the NATO front would be cut to zero.

Shultz, summarizing Andropov's proposal, said, "All he was going to do was move these missiles over here and they could easily be moved back again."

EPA memo vital to probe removed by former official

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of the Environmental Protection Agency memorandums central to Congress' investigation of toxic waste enforcement was removed from the agency's computer by a former agency official.

Cyrene Ingold, a former aide to fired top EPA official Rita Lavelle, told United Press International Sunday she deleted the memorandum in the same way EPA computers are routinely purged.

Three House subcommittee chairmen said they were concerned information being sought by Congress may have been deleted.

The memo was cited by EPA Administrator Anne Gorsuch Burford, who married Robert Burton, who married Robert Burton, who married Robert Burton.

Despite the agreement giving one House subcommittee access to a waste enforcement memorandum, another panel's chairman said he does not regard the pact as binding on his subcommittee.

"I have more questions raised than answered," Rep. James J. Florio, D-N.J., said Sunday. "I intend to go forward to try to determine what would motivate EPA to go into settlement agreement with companies."

Area residents, many of whom knew or were related to some of the victims, were stunned by the killings. "There are no words that are able to convey the depths of our sorrow over the brutal and senseless crimes," Mayor Charles Royer told Chinatown residents Sunday.

Reagan aides seek accord on creating temporary jobs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some time this week, President Reagan's top aides hope to reach agreement with House Democratic leaders on how to create several hundred thousand temporary jobs for America's more than 11 million unemployed.

They are working with a $4.3 billion jobs program proposal made by Reagan after weighing political and economic realities. In a federal budget approaching $600 billion, the $4.3 billion Reagan proposal, which could rise to nearly $5 billion under pressure for compromise, may seem insignificant.

But just two months ago, an unemployment was still rising, Reagan was trumpeting his opposition to "temporary relief" programs promoted by Democrats who had exploited the issue of his "compassion" in the fall campaign.

Chicago primary too close to call

CHICAGO (UPI) — The final twist of this year's bizarre Chicago Democratic caucus primary is that on election eve it is still impossible to predict the outcome.

The race is confusing even to veteran politicians, raised to regard these elections as formalities. The race is confusing even to veteran politicians, raised to regard these elections as formalities.

On Jan. 23, 1982, Lombino flew to Italy and met with Restelli, who had already contacted through intermediaries. From his jail cell, Restelli, who hoped for a reduced sentence in exchange for cooperation, had already sent out his troops to track down leads on Dozier's whereabouts.

Arson investigators called in on Australian brushfires

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — Firefighters contained the last stubborn brushfire today in the holocaust that ravaged southern Australia but weather officials warned changing winds could revive the blazes that killed 71 people.

Police in the state of Victoria called in arson experts to investigate reports many fires in the region's worst disaster in half a century were set deliberately.

In Cockatoo, where 27 people died and 400 of the township's 500 houses were destroyed in the inferno, survivors said anyone found to have set a fire "should be lined up against a wall and shot."

Firefighters gained the upper hand Sunday over the blazes, which spread last week across Victoria and the state of South Australia driven by gale-force winds and consuming countryside made tinder-dry by drought.

Officials said today more than 900 firefighters battling three remaining fires — two near Melbourne and one near Adelaide in South Australia — had finally brought them under control.

But the forecast across the blackened region was for another day of high temperatures and strong winds and weather officials warned of new fire danger.

Victoria Emergency Services Minister Race Mathews said Monday that $75,000 acres had been destroyed in his state. 1,788 homes were razed and property damage would near $186 million.

In South Australia, officials said insurance claims reached $51 million today but total damage was expected to rise much higher.

Cockatoo residents, numbed as they took part in a national prayer day called by Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser, stood under a charcoal cross Sunday on the town green as the local church, destroyed by fire, still smoldered.

Police Superintendent Don Plant of Victoria said he believed arsonists touched off the fire that killed 44 people and rendered 8,000 others homeless in his state alone.

"We have reason to believe the fires were deliberately lit," he said. "It looks like the work of firebugs."

Victoria Premier John Cain called for "the most severe penalties" for arsonists and people caught with setting fires in the Adelaide Hills. Police said they might find more victims as search teams picked through the rubble of buildings destroyed in the worst brushfires since 1839.

OPINION

South Africa, dangerous bedfellow

By Julian Bond

There's war going on in Southern Africa. It hasn't attracted the attention of the world the way the simmering dispute in the Middle East has, or the on-going counter-revolution in Nicaragua. It doesn't rate the headlines or editorials prompted by the guerrillas skirmishes in San Salvador, or the battles aimed at ousting Soviet troops from Afghanistan.

But a hot war rages from Angola to Mozambique to Lesotho. At its source is the Republic of South Africa, determined to destabilize its black-ruled neighbors to the north. It now threatens nuclear annihilation as well.

IN EARLY December, South African commandos invaded Mozambique, terrorizing farms and highways. A few days following the raid, Mozambique's major oil depot in the port of Beira was blown up.

On Dec. 8, South African

Reagan's policy of "constructive engagement" has failed. And with failure comes the frightening possibility that Reagan administration overtures may widen the "hot" war waged by South Africa into a nuclear confrontation.

soldiers invaded Lesotho's capital of Maseru, burning houses and leaving 42 people - including women and children - dead.

The South African army remains in control of a large portion of Angola, while the South African government has successfully stalled negotiations ending its occupation of Namibia.

In Zambia and Zimbabwe, South Africa continues supporting anti-government terrorist groups and inflicting economic sabotage.

The external "hot" war has been coupled with an increase in domestic suppression inside South Africa.

South African belligerence is a slap in the face for the Reagan administration's policy of "constructive engagement" aimed at placating Pretoria by ignoring transgressions against peaceful states surrounding the white-ruled nation and the repression of black South Africans and their white sympathizers in the vain hope that the government's behavior would change.

"Constructive engagement" has failed. And with failure comes the frightening possibility that Reagan administration overtures may widen the "hot" war waged by South Africa into a nuclear confrontation.

According to the respected Washington Office on Africa, a private group, the Reagan administration:

Allowed U.S. companies to broker enriched uranium for South Africa's Koeberg reactor;

Allowed the export of a Control Data Cyber 170-750 computer to the state-controlled Council for Scientific and Industrial Research in South Africa;

Plans exporting 95 grams of helium-3 which, when converted into tritium, becomes an important component of thermonuclear weapons; and

Plans exporting a hot isotopic press, a sophisticated piece of equipment used in making components for nuclear weapons.

"South Africa's acquisition of nuclear weapons capability is part of a larger picture of Western political, economic, technological and military support for white minority rule," the Washington Office on Africa says. "This support has strengthened the Pretoria regime as it has instituted increasingly sophisticated forms of repression and control over the black majority struggling for its liberation. The apartheid bomb marks a new era in Pretoria's military and political dominance in Africa."

COLLABORATION between South Africa and the United States on nuclear development began in 1945 when Britain and the United States sought a supplier for uranium for their nuclear weapons programs. They bought all of South Africa's uranium and financed the mining and processing industries.

In 1957, as part of President Eisenhower's "Atoms for Peace" program, it was agreed the United States would supply South Africa with nuclear training, a research reactor and the highly enriched weapons-grade uranium to fuel it.

Weapon has grave problems

WASHINGTON — The great corporate scramble for defense dollars has produced weapon systems that are designed more for profit than for defense. The military procurement system has become the nation's biggest scandal.

Contractors sell the Pentagon on fancy military gadgetry that increases their profits but reduces the combat effectiveness of the weapons. The costly trimming helps make U.S. weapons so complex that military personnel can't operate them but must call in factory representatives.

Obviously, new weapons should be tested under battle conditions. Yet they are accepted after superficial tests that permit the contractors to take their money and run. Many weapons now on the firing line would probably be useless in actual combat.

The LATEST example is the Aegis Cruiser, which is supposed to protect Navy carrier task forces from Soviet aircraft and missiles. Yet the cruiser may itself be hopelessly vulnerable to attack.

The heart of each $1.2 billion Aegis Cruiser is a super-sophisticated radar system. It can track attacking planes and missiles and cut through the enemy's electronic jamming to tell real missiles from decoys.

But the radar has a fatal flaw. It emits such strong and distinctive signals of its own that it acts as beacons that give away the exact location of the Aegis.

The Aegis is also virtually untested in anything like realistic battle conditions. Although the first Aegis is scheduled to join the fleet early this year, no one is sure that it will work, even if it isn't sunk.

WHAT HAS the Navy been doing to test its new cruiser? To date, most Aegis combat system tests have been computer simulations rather than actual exercises against target vehicles," said a secret General Accounting Office draft report seen by my associate Don Goldberg.

Furthermore, the Aegis hasn't been tested against the very kind of low-altitude missile that sank the USS Sheffield in the Falklands war. Yet this is the precise threat the experts fear the Aegis is most vulnerable to.

The reason for this failure is simple but appalling: The Navy doesn't have a simulated missile that can be used for this kind of test.

It's not that the admirals didn't think of this. They did. It was called Firebrand, and it would have given Aegis defense teams a target just like the Soviets' dangerous low-altitude missiles.

But in typical Pentagon fashion, Firebrand was plagued with delays and cost overruns. In not-so-typical Pentagon fashion, however, Firebrand was scrapped. The Navy decided it simply wasn't worth its price.

The Navy is now considering a less-fancy simulated missile for Aegis' target practice. But it won't be ready until late next year at the earliest.

This means the fleet's chief defense ship may get its first realistic test from enemy missiles. That will be a little late to find out whether Aegis works.

Rhode Island police fingerprint children in voluntary effort

SCITUATE, R.I. (UPI) — Parents brought their children to state police headquarters over the weekend to protect them against a crime they hope will never happen.

About 50 children, ranging from 16 months to 16 years in age, participated in the first voluntary statewide fingerprinting program in the country to help identify missing children.

"I'm doing it because I love my kids," said Shirley Flemming of Greenville. She brought in Amy, 10, Kevin, 4, Lauren, 4, and Sean, 2. "You never know, it's better this way."

Law enforcement officials estimate 4 million children are reported missing each year. As of last October, 370 children were reported missing in Rhode Island.

The children, whose small hands sometimes had difficulty doing what the policemen wanted them to, seemed fascinated with the chance to get dirty with the permission.

"Look Mom, all inkly," 2-year-old Lauren proudly demonstrated, then stared at her prints under a magnifying glass.

The three police officers participating in the program seemed to have as much fun as the youngsters.

"Look at those prints, those are great fingerprints," Detective Lt. Michael Quinn told one small boy with a baseball cap and sheriff's star pinned to his shirt.

"This is definitely one of our more enjoyable tasks," Detective Lt. Everett Armour said. "We all have kids of our own, and they've been fingerprinted. We know the importance."

The new program has come under attack by the Rhode Island chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union and some legislators. Two bills were introduced in the state Legislature last week that would forbid police departments from keeping the fingerprints.

Rep. Frank Florenzano, D-Providence, one of the sponsors, said the idea of a "master file" of children's fingerprints "smacks of a police state."

But Lt. Richard Wheeler, who heads the new program, said Saturday, "If those bills go through, the Legislature will defeat the purpose we have in mind, to have a centralized repository."

"We hope the card we keep in our files will never be used," Wheeler said. "But if the occasion arises, we want to have the fingerprints available immediately."

And none of the parents who brought their children seemed concerned about leaving their cards.

"It really doesn't bother me," said Cynthia Harrington of Scituate. "We've been so many children kidnapped; this seems like a good precaution."

Brown who is an assistant superintendent of schools in Cambridge for the justice that Harvard had committed. Calef is a descendant of Brown.

Harvard officials did not say how the $10 figure was reached.

The public burning was, according to most Harvard sources, the only one in the college's nearly 350-year history.

The book was "a kind of satire," Brown said, on Cotton Mather's book, in which he chronicled the evil spirits that were supposed to have possessed the men and women accused in the Salem witchcraft trials.

But it wasn't just the element of satire that angered the Mather's, father and son. Calef hinted in his text that when the Mather's, along with four other clergymen, went into a room with a young woman and put their hands on her in an attempt to drive out evil spirits, they might have had other motives.

Patricia Linck, 52, was killed early Saturday in a two-alarm fire at her home at 111 Townhouse Road. Police said the cause of the woman's death has not been determined and the accident is under investigation.

Police said two neighboring housing units suffered smoke and water damage.

In Southington one man was killed and another was injured Saturday in a two-car crash on North Main Street. Police said two vehicles, one driven by John Youther, 23, of Southington and another by Benito Perone, 23, also of Southington, collided head-on at about 2:28 a.m.

Police said Perone was taken to New Britain General Hospital where he was pronounced dead about 4:50 a.m. Youther was taken to Bradley Memorial Hospital in Southington where he was listed in stable condition.

A hospital spokeswoman said he fractured one of his legs in the accident.

In Hartford, Debra C. Sabotke, 22, of New Britain was pronounced dead on arrival at New Britain General Hospital Saturday from injuries suffered when her car hit a bridge abutment on Interstate 91 South.

Police said Ms. Sabotke apparently lost control of her vehicle and went off the right side of the road and struck a bridge railway just south of exit 33.

Fatalities drop

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state Department of Transportation says highway fatalities in Connecticut dropped slightly in 1982 compared to the previous year.

Figure compiled by the Traffic Records Unit of the department show traffic fatalities of 421 in 1982 compared to 437 in 1981.

Commissioner Benjamin A. Muzzo said the figures showed a decline in every category except motorcycle fatalities.

Muzzo said 89 motorcycle operators and 11 passengers died in 1982 compared to 73 operators and 12 passengers in 1981.

Child abuse may lead to suicide try

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Many teenagers who attempt suicide come from families with a history of violence, says a Harvard University researcher who believes the information could be used to spot troubled adolescents before they try to take their lives.

An examination of medical records of suicidal youths has "raised the possibility that child abuse may be predictive of adolescent suicidal behavior," said Eva Deykin, a Harvard School of Public Health epidemiologist.

"There are theoretical reasons why such associations may exist," she said. "First, violence is a learned response to frustration and anger. An individual who has been exposed to child abuse might incorporate that response, turning aggression inward, as a means of coping with outside infractions."

Children who have been abused also have low self-esteem, a characteristic that has been identified as central in suicide attempts, she told the Harvard Medical Area Focus.

A 150 percent increase in teenage suicides over the past 15 years — from 5 to 15 suicides per 100,000 teenagers — has prompted many theories to explain the dramatic increase, but there are agencies in the public or private sector to deal with the adolescents, Ms. Deykin said.

Attempts to explain the high suicide rate range from the skyrocketing number of divorces and the general loosening of family ties, to the hypothesis that youths can't find a productive role for themselves in a world where future employment opportunities are shrinking, she said.

As part of her three-year study into teenagers admitted for suicide at emergency rooms at an inner-city and a suburban Boston hospital, she and the state Department of Social Services will investigate child abuse complaints. She also is establishing a program to follow youths who have made an attempt.

In a related study, Ms. Deykin is looking at adolescent depression to find out if the symptoms and the results will be compared to hospitalized adolescents and adult psychiatric patients.

Lack of language fluency blamed for view of world

HANOVER, N.H. (UPI) — A Dartmouth College language specialist says the United States has a myopic view of the world, with a lack of foreign language fluency that poses a threat to diplomatic relations.

"Our learning ends at the shorelines," said John Rassias, a French and Italian professor who has created an intensive language teaching model that has been adopted in more than 100 colleges and universities.

He warned that this apathy toward other cultures is having a negative effect on the nation's financial, education and diplomatic relations with other countries.

He said a large disparity has developed between the Soviet and American foreign language programs. In the Soviet Union, he said, there are more English teachers alone than there are students of Russian in the United States.

In American high schools, Rassias said only 15 percent of the students are studying the most popular languages: French, German and Spanish. Most of them take only two years of language, falling short of the four years of high school study usually required for fluency, he said.

Rassias said diplomacy is "the most depressing" area of potential damage for the United States. He called American involvement in Vietnam and Korea "blunders etched in blood" that might have been avoided if Americans had a better understanding of foreign cultures.

As part of her three-year study into teenagers admitted for suicide at emergency rooms at an inner-city and a suburban Boston hospital, she and the state Department of Social Services will investigate child abuse complaints. She also is establishing a program to follow youths who have made an attempt.

At local level, will needs end?

Reaganomics is just now beginning to hit Manchester. General Manager Robert B. Weiss told the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce the other day. He was referring to the need for a shelter in town where homeless drifters can sleep on winter nights.

Government and welfare officials say there has been an increase in the number of the homeless in town lately, and they suspect it has something to do with Reagan-inspired cutbacks in federal support programs.

One of the distinctive features of Reaganomics is the shifting of the burden of social spending from the federal level to the state and local levels. There is merit to the idea of increasing the amount of local control over how tax money is spent. But there is a danger, too: Important social needs may not be met at all.

A case in point is the debate over a shelter in Manchester. The citizens seeking a shelter in town for these unfortunate have run into intense neighborhood opposition.

First, residents in the Spruce Street area objected to turning over the local fire house as an overnight shelter, saying children attending the Nathan Hale School ought to be spared encounters with vagrants.

And that may be why their needs will be met best if the federal government were to return to its traditional role as the government of last resort for society's unfortunate.

Commentary How to win in Africa

By Thomas Spear

The United States is in danger of dealing itself a losing hand in southern Africa similar to the one we dealt ourselves in Angola in 1975.

U.S. support for a faction with little support within Angola and for an abortive South African invasion forced Angola's leaders to call on Cuban troops and Soviet support to defend themselves.

Following the Angola debacle, the Nixon administration wisely reversed its policy of supporting white minority regimes in Rhodesia-Zimbabwe and Namibia, facilitating an orderly transition to majority rule in Zimbabwe and the initiation of negotiations between the Western Contact Group and South Africa over independence for Namibia. Those negotiations were approaching a successful conclusion under President Carter until they were undermined by a Reagan administration tilt back towards South Africa.

With the establishment of potentially hostile black governments on its northern borders, South Africa has now embarked on a policy of economic and military destabilization of its neighbors to keep them weak and dependent. While South African-supported guerrillas sabotage crucial rail and pipeline links through Mozambique, South African forces invade Angola and Zimbabwe and train dissident groups from both countries.

The scenario for the future is already becoming frighteningly clear. Spurred by the U.S., Angola insists that it must retain Cuban troops for defense against South African attack. Mozambique is requesting further Soviet aid. And Zimbabwe may be forced to follow suit. South Africa can now argue it is acting in defense of Western interests against growing Soviet influence in southern Africa.

SUCH A POLICY would not, of course, resolve the continuing threat to peace posed by South Africa's own hated apartheid policies. But by preventing South Africa from turning all of southern Africa into an East-West battleground, we would ensure that it would not be able to draw us into a nightmare situation in which we would be forced to support the doomed forces of racism and oppression against those of freedom and independence.

Tobacco output dropping

Tobacco production in the Connecticut River Valley has declined steadily the past 30 years — from 17,400 acres in 1952 to 3,480 acres in 1982 and an estimated 2,265 acres this year — because of reduced cigar consumption and changes in the way cigars are made.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN GOODWIN OFFER THEIR CHARMING 76-YEAR-OLD HOUSE FOR SALE... they've done all the painstaking renovations; house is in move-in condition

Ridge St. special
No handyman will be needed for 76-year-old treasure

Mr. and Mrs. John Goodwin, who have lived in the house for 10 years, are offering it for sale at $249,000.

Mr. Goodwin says the house is a "shell" when they moved in 10 years ago. Goodwin, who had been employed in demolition work in the area, did virtually all the reconstruction himself.

The dining room, which opens up from a wide living room arch, has large bay windows. The country kitchen, to the right of the dining room, is big enough for a table and chairs.

The house is charming. But reluctant handymen will also appreciate the details that don't show. The house has been just about completely insulated; last month's gas bill, including heat, hot water, stove, and dryer was only $250. And the house is warm at 68 degrees.

Loudness can shut down stereo receiver

QUESTION: I own a Pioneer 60-watt per channel receiver that stops playing when I turn up the volume for five minutes or so. What's wrong?

ANSWER: If you are playing it very loud, probably nothing. Many high quality receivers and amplifiers intended for home use have circuits that protect them from damage by shutting them down when they get too hot.

QUESTION: You often use the term "licensed technician." I wasn't aware that TV and stereo repair people had to be licensed. Who requires this and why?

ANSWER: Every tape machine has internal adjustments that must be set to the exact requirements of the type of tape being used. If you want optimum performance, most manufacturers "ball park" these adjustments to make sure the machine is operating properly. They seem to be assuming that the user will have it adjusted for the type they use. One exception to this is companies that produce both tape

QUESTION: I own two identical Sharp RT-10 tape decks. One works best with BASF Professional II and the other one works best with BASF Professional II. Why is this so? Shouldn't they be the same?

ANSWER: It's a solid-state receiver, chances are you're not harming it. If it is a tube receiver, then the tubes will wear out faster because of the prolonged running. A solid-state receiver would be purchased more recently and would have instant-on sound. In other words, the sound comes on almost as soon as you turn the power on. Tube receivers will take as much as 30 seconds to warm up.

CHALLENGER RUBEN CASTILLO HITS DECK... after taking punch by champ Juan LaPorte

LaPorte wins

JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Although he lives in New York, Juan LaPorte was the "home-town" favorite to the 6,000 fans at Roberto Clemente Stadium Sunday.

He responded to the urging of his countrymen by pouncing out a unanimous decision over Ruben Castillo to defend his World Boxing Council featherweight title.

Castillo, the No. 1 contender, gave LaPorte trouble over the first six rounds, but the champion staged a furious finish in the first defense of the title he won against Mario Miranda last fall.

LaPorte admitted he had been slow the first half of the fight, but credited the crowd with helping him in the latter rounds.

"My hands were tied during those first six rounds, but the fans' support made me regain my confidence and I began fighting like I had planned," LaPorte said.

Two recent rule changes by the WBC helped Castillo go the distance, but LaPorte won by a wide margin on all three judges' cards.

England's Sid Nathan scored it 119-108, Harry Gibb of the United States had it 117-108 and Angel Custodio Tovar Marco of Venezuela had it 119-108.

In the 12th round, Castillo was hit by a heavy left jab, and he lost his eyesight. He was taken to the hospital and underwent surgery to correct the problem.

LaPorte, who has a record of 22-0-1, is now the world champion.

Eagle icemen on spree, win

BOLTON — Snapping out of a mini scoring drought, East Catholic belted Windsor High 7-1 in non-conference ice hockey action Saturday night at the Bolton Ice Palace.

The Eagle icemen in splitting their last two outings had scored only two goals, both in a 2-1 win over Gloucester. They were blanketed in their last outing by Fermi.

"We had been in a scoring drought for a couple games and I was glad to see our offense clicking," said Eagle Coach Bill Mannix, who saw his skaters move to 11-6 for the season. "We were concerned about going into the (state) tournament in a scoring drought, but it looks we have snapped out of it. I hope this prepares us for Notre Dame."

The same trio accounted for East's next tally, at 7-14, with Roy notching No. 15 assisted by Olander and Kewler.

Quickness main factor as South beats East

By Len Auster
Herald Sports Writer

Quickness. That's the primary difference between East Catholic and South Catholic.

The Rebels have quickness — quick hands, quick feet, etc. — while the Eagles in comparison seem to move in slow motion.

That was the telling factor Saturday afternoon as the Rebels ran past the Eagles, 89-70, in Hartford County Conference (HCC) basketball action at the Eagles' Nest.

Rebel Coach Joe Reilly is aware of the differences between the clubs. "We like to run, pressure the ball. East Catholic is more of a zone, set-up team. (But) that's the smaller, quicker line-up created havoc with the Eagles. It did so particularly with the 1-3-1 zone press that caused a couple of key turnovers. Those were turned into easy layups by South, giving it a quick four points while East had to fight for virtually every point."

"They outplayed us," said East Coach Jim Penders, who saw his cagers slip back to the .500 mark at 5-5 in the conference and 9-9 overall. "Every loose ball is theirs and they also knifed in for offensive rebounds. We don't react quick enough."

"We have to struggle, work to get good shots and they get shots up and in five seconds. That's demoralizing," said Penders. "To beat South you have to get ahead, stay ahead and hope they're not on."

South, which goes to 9-0 in the HCC and 16-2 overall, was on. The Rebels were a stalling 45-49, 71.4 percent from the floor, that pales East's shooting percentage of 57.1 percent (82-for-66).

"We won it more with our offense than defense," said Reilly. "East could score against us but just personnel we have."

The decision was all but over, except for the final reading, in the opening 16 minutes. East had a 6-5 lead after three minutes before the Rebels went on a 10-2 spurt in a 3:21 span for a 16-8 advantage.

Included in the spurt were three South hoops following Eagle turnovers.

East overall had 11 turnovers, of which South converted six into buckets.

South's lead was 21-10 at the turn and the Rebels moved it to 47-31 at the half with 6-foot-2 junior Doug McCrory and 6-foot senior Mike Thomas leading the way with 8 and 6 markers respectively.

"We had 47 points at the half which is an indication we were playing our game," said Reilly. "They did get it to 12 (in the second half) but never could get it under 10. That seems to be the magic number."

"We were flat yesterday (Friday) night loss to Xavier) so we came out in man. We wanted to get something going. But then we went from man to zone and they still stuck it," said Penders. "They have just too many answers. 'You just have to look at its history (and know anything can happen),' he added.

Indian skaters split week-end outings

BOLTON — One victory and one setback were garnered by the Manchester high ice hockey team last weekend action. The Indians were upended by Rockville High 11-3, Saturday night at the Bolton Ice Palace after coming home a 5-2 winner over Masuk High last Friday night at Wonderland Ice Rink in Bridgport.

The split leaves the Silk Toppers 6-13 for the season. Manchester capped its 82-83 campaign Wednesday night against Hall High at Veteran's Rink in West Hartford at 7-30.

Four unanswered goals in the final period gave the Indians their come-from-behind victory over Masuk. The home club had taken a 2-1 lead 39 seconds into the final stanza on a goal by Ron Maxiere.

"They made it 2-1 and that woke us up," said Manchester Coach Wayne Horton. "It was a close checking game until the third period where we blew them away."

Following the Maxiere goal, Manchester's Curt Massey took the lead in a 39-second span. Eric Trudon, with his 18th goal of the season, was the assist by Dan Guachione. Thirty nine seconds later, Dan Duff zipped home his fourth goal of the season, his second by Bret Factors and Dan Senkow.

"These two quick goals that put us on top really got us moving," said Horton. "It had been a lot of time since we were ahead of a team. We played much better than we had in our last outing against Schmelzer, Toby Tobler, Heaney and Al Molin closed out the scoring for Rockville, which had a final 38-31 edge in shots.

Dan Renner and Dave Royal split time in goal for Rockville while Pat McNamara was in goal for Manchester.

"The shots do show it was pretty much an even game," said Horton, who noted Rockville Coach Dave Martin expressed concern after the Indians' three-goal outburst in the middle session. "Other than the score, I felt we played pretty well. We played a real good scrappy game of hockey," said Horton, who cited Factors, Guachione and McNamara as playing well.

Vets spark Red Wings against Whalers, 5-2

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Red Wings new management team eventually plans to start a youth movement on the squad, but for now coach Nick Polano is detouring on his veterans to help the club earn a Stanley Cup playoff berth.

Detroit got strong efforts from two oldtimers Sunday as Ivan Boldirev scored the 10th hat trick of his 12-year NHL career and goalie Gilles Gilbert picked up his first victory since last March 31 as the Red Wings skated past the Hartford Whalers 5-2.

"The veterans have to lead this team to the playoffs," Polano said. "Last year Ivan played very well in the later stages at Vancouver and was instrumental in them going to the finals."

"Many of our veterans have been in the playoffs before and they have to show our other people how to get there. It takes a lot of pride and intensity and willingness to sacrifice at this time of year," Sunday's victory, before a crowd of 12,806 at Joe Louis Arena, moved the Red Wings a point ahead of the idle Toronto Maple Leafs in the battle for the fourth and final playoff spot in the Norris Division.

Detroit opened the scoring with 2:54 in the first period when Mark Osborne batted Mike Blaisdell's rebound past Hartford goalie Greg Milten.

"We broke the game open with our second period goals. Reggie Leach scored at 1:06 of the middle period and Paul Woods made it 3-0 1:37 later.

Boldirev, who was obtained from the Canucks in a trade on Jan. 15, scored his first goal at 7:39 and got his second of the game while Detroit had a two-man advantage at the 16-minute mark.

"The evening didn't start off well for Boldirev, whose first shot bounced off the goal post.

Hartford got third period power-play goals from Bob Sullivan and Ron Francis to spoil Gilbert's bid for his first shutout in nearly three seasons. The Red Wings countered with goals by Reed Larson and Boldirev. Boldirev completed his hat trick with 48 seconds to play.

Boldirev credited the defense with helping the Red Wings produce seven goals for the second time in three games.

"Our defense was standing up and when they broke up the Hartford attack, they moved the puck up quickly to the forwards who were counter-attacking center ice," Boldirev said.

"It wasn't an overly aggressive game, but Detroit came out and rubbed us off the puck and kept it up the whole game. In the first two periods we didn't respond to their pressure," Pleau said.

Sabres survive rally to turn back Oilers

By Mike Tuily

When Edmonton Coach Glen Sather showed up with a stopwatch, it won't be for timing windprints.

"We did play a very strong defensive game for the first 35 minutes and I was happy," coach Glen Sather said Sunday night after the Oilers survived a three-goal Buffalo rally to post a 5-4 victory over the Sabres. "Now we'll have to try to play 56 next game."

Wayne Gretzky assisted on Jari Kurri's goal at the 8:55 mark of the first period and Jaroslav Pouzar beat Buffalo goaltender Bob Sauve at 7:22 for what seemed to be an unbeatable 5-1 Edmonton lead.

"I thought we were outstanding for the first 35 minutes," Sather said. "Then we had to take a ridiculous penalty by Dave Hunter who high-sticked Buffalo defenseman Bill Hajt and it started them on their way."

Edmonton's offensive fireworks were provided by Mark Messier and Glenn Anderson, who each had a goal and an assist. Goaltender Andy Moe continued his tough play on the road.

"There's a good atmosphere on our team on the road," said Moe. "There's a positive attitude on the team. I enjoy playing on the road because the other rink is usually filled and it makes for a big, emotional game."

Moe was particularly effective in the second period when he held the Sabres' at bay during a 1:52 span while the Oilers were two men short. Later in the period, when Edmonton on the power play, he stopped Buffalo's Gil Perreault on

Sampson meets match but Virginia triumphs

By Fred Lief
UPI Sports Writer

Ralph Sampson already had taken on two of the nation's best big men this season. Pat Ewing of Georgetown and Sam Perkins of North Carolina.

On Sunday at East Rutherford, N.J., he was introduced to another: Steve Stipanovich of Missouri.

Stipanovich, a 6-foot-11 center and the heart of the Tigers' basketball program, ran up some heavy numbers with 27 points, 12 rebounds and 5 blocked shots.

"It was one of my better games if not my best," said Sampson. "He's the first 16th-ranked Tigers, however, it was not enough. Virginia, No. 5 in the country, broke it open in the second half and came away with a 68-53 victory."

"Stipanovich is a strong player. He's a tough defender. He's a jumper was on today. Every time he shot it went in. They tried something a little different than we expected by putting him outside."

Stipanovich said a different strategy was called for against Sampson.

"Ralph is so dominant," he said. "He takes away the inside game. My game plan was for me to go to the outside. I don't think I ever shot so much from outside."

For Sampson, it was also a tough game.

He finished with 21 points, 10 rebounds and 5 blocked shots. In the first half, he was fouled by Cavenar fronting him doggedly and Stipanovich floating underneath. Sampson scored 10 points. But in the second half, he did not make a field goal, hitting 11-of-12 shots from the line.

He also shot 5-6 during the second half because of foul trouble. But instead of folding, Virginia dug deep and won.

"That was great because we got a lot of two-on-one and three-on-two breaks while their guys were going the other way," Boldirev said.

Hartford coach Larry Pleau agreed with Boldirev's assessment.

"It wasn't an overly aggressive game, but Detroit came out and rubbed us off the puck and kept it up the whole game. In the first two periods we didn't respond to their pressure," Pleau said.

In Sunday's other game involving a ranked team, No. 6 St. John's downed DePaul 64-52 in the first meeting of the teams since 1950. Chris Mullin scored 19 points and the Redmen cracked it open with 10 straight points late in the game. Cavenar fronting him doggedly and Stipanovich floating underneath. Sampson scored 10 points. Hits 22 of 24 attempts

Woodson off bench, into record book

By Dave Rife
UPI Sports Writer

Mike Woodson jumped off the Kansas City bench Sunday and into the Kings' record book.

At 39, Woodson made his 22 of 24 field goal attempts for a career-high 48 points. Woodson led the Kings to a 12-1 win over the Houston Rockets at Kansas City, Mo. He also broke the franchise record with 15 straight field goals, bettering the mark shared by Otis Birdsong and Billy McKinney by one — and tied the franchise record for field goals.

Woodson, a 6-foot-5 forward, also registered the highest point total by any player this season.

"It's an unbelievable feeling. I haven't had this feeling since college," said Woodson, who once was an All-American at the University of Indiana against Illinois. "I know my role on this team and when I come into a game, the guys look to me to score."

Woodson's 48 points also broke the 4-year-old Kemper record set last season by Moses Malone, then with Houston, and his 22 field goals were the most in a game this year in the NBA.

"That was the story of the game, certainly — Mike Woodson," Houston Coach Del Harris said. "We couldn't find anybody who could handle him. It would have taken the National Guard to handle him today."

The Kings led 63-53 at halftime and Houston could pull no closer than seven points the rest of the way as the Kings boosted their record to 27-26, the first time they've been above .500 since Feb. 6.

Ray Williams added 19 points and assists for the Kings. Houston was led by Allen Leavell's 26 points and James Bailey added 24.

In other games, Philadelphia trailed New York 104-89, Los Angeles routed Indiana 126-112, Milwaukee edged New Jersey 124-111, San Antonio clipped Atlanta 103-100, Phoenix buried Cleveland 103-81, Chicago stomped Dallas 124-111, Seattle trimmed the Redskins Super Bowl victory over the Miami Dolphins, setting an NFL record. USFL sources described Riggins negotiations as "serious," the newspaper reported.

Riggins earned $30,000 last year, the final year of his contract, the newspaper said.

At Indianapolis, Magic Johnson had 27 points, 10 rebounds and 9 assists, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar contributed 26 points and 13 rebounds and Jamaal Wilkes added 24 points to lead Los Angeles to its 13th straight victory over Indiana. George Johnson led the Pacers with 19 points.

At Milwaukee, Bob Lanier's layup with eight seconds left to lift Milwaukee. The triumph was the Bucks' fourth in a row and 10th straight at home. Sidney Moncrief led Milwaukee with 31 points, Marques Johnson added 25 and Lanier had 17. Otis Birdsong led the Nets with 20 points and Buck Williams had 19.

Spurs 103, Hawks 106.

At San Antonio, Sidney, Johnny Moore scored 7 points in the last two minutes, to lead San Antonio. Mike Mitchell led San Antonio with 22 points and grabbed 11 rebounds and 12 assists. Dan Roundfield led Atlanta with 39 points and 11 rebounds.

Suns 103, Cavaliers 81.

At Richfield, Ohio, Larry Nance tossed in 21 points and blocked seven shots and Walter Davis added 20 points to pace Phoenix, World B. Free topped the Cavs with 31 points.

Bulls 124, Mavericks 111.

At Chicago, Reggie Theus scored 25 points and Dave Corzine added 21, including 19 in the second half, to help Chicago overcome a 17-point second-period deficit. Dallas' Mark Aguirre led all scorers with 30 points.

SuperSonics 116, Warriors 112.

At Seattle, Jack Sikma scored 30 points, including 20 in the first half, to lift Seattle. Gus Williams added 18 points and 12 assists for the Sonics. Lewis Lloyd scored a career-high 29 points for Golden State and Joe Barry Carroll added 29.

Clippers 107, Jazz 87.

At San Diego, Jerry Cummings scored 26 points and Bill Walton added 22 to lead San Diego to its fourth victory in the last five games while Utah dropped its 11th game in the last 12.

T'rail Blazers 104, Bullets 25.

At Portland, Ore., Jim Paxson fired in 26 points and Calvin Natt added 22 to lead Portland and extend Washington's road losing streak to 11 straight. Jeff Louisa led the Bullets with 31 points.

Cougars strong at end in victory

After getting off to a slow start, Manchester Community College gathered up a head of steam and never looked back as it topped Norwalk Community College, 75-61, in CCAA basketball action Saturday night at East Catholic.

The win in the Cougars' final home game lifts them to 12-7 for the season. The loss sends Norwalk to 13. MCC's next outing is Tuesday night against the Norwalk Connecticut State College Jayvees at 6 o'clock in Willimantic.

The Cougars wind up regular season play Wednesday at Becker Junior College. They will then face Middlesex Community College, for the fourth time this year, in the first round of the CCAA Tournament Saturday night at 7 o'clock at Kennedy High in Waterbury.

Norwalk had a 14-12 lead midway through the first half before Chuck Green netted 6 consecutive tallies for the Cougars to give them the upper hand. Pat Silver hooped 6 unanswered points later on as MCC secured a 34-28 halftime advantage.

MCC moved its halftime spread to 40-28 two minutes into the second half before Norwalk rallied to trail, 44-44, with nine minutes left. It was 54-51 in the Cougars' favor before Silver, Jim Florence and John Reiser hit hoops for a 68-31 reading.

Silver had 16 points and 9 rebounds in the win, while Florence had 11 markers and 15 rebounds to pace MCC. Doug Leonard chipped in 8 points and 11 assists for the Cougars. Chris Fay had 15 points and Bill Camp and Curt Massey 14 apiece for Norwalk.

Latest NCAA NCAA top 10 rankings show MCC in the No. 10 slot. The top eight teams in the NCAA Region XXI will be invited to the tournament that takes place March 5-7 at Warwick, R.I. The Cougars trail Middlesex and Becker, who share the No. 8 slot, and could wish with against either to earn the eighth and final spot that will earn them a trip to the NJCAA tourney.

Sophomore wing Bob Teddoli, with goals Nos. 5 and 6, rounded out the scoring for East in the final period. Keeler had three assists and Ken West and defenseman Pat Barrett two apiece.

East had an overwhelming 33-12 edge in shots with Vinnie White and Charlie O'Connell splitting time in goal for East and Curt Willoughby between the pipes for the Indians.

"Our passing was good. We played heads up hockey. And you have to be able to see open men," said Mannix, who lauded the play of two of his youngsters, Olander and Teddoli. He also was pleased his sextet was only assessed three minor penalties. The Eagles have had, on occasion, troubles by taking needless penalties.

East following its encounter with Notre Dame, winds up its regular season Wednesday night against Wetherfield at the Ice Palace. It will then sit back and wait for Division II tournament rankings and pairings to be announced. That will be Saturday in Hamden.

60 minute win for Navratilova

CHICAGO (UPI) — The way she plays each year in Chicago, they might as well call the women's pro tennis tournament in the city the Martina Navratilova Invitational.

The top-ranked player in the world and top seed in the tournament took just 60 minutes Sunday to dispose of local favorite Andrea Jaeger to win her sixth straight Chicago tour title.

Her 6-2 victory earned her $30,000 in the $150,000 event and drew her within one victory of the unofficial record by a woman for most consecutive titles at one location.

Navratilova, who has won 11 consecutive titles at this location, said she would like to go for seven. "I started well, broke her service, but then I didn't hold mine," said Jaeger, who plays the finals in Chicago for the first time.

"Then I got discouraged, I started to play streaky," Jaeger said. "I was a little frustrated at the beginning, but overall I thought it was a solid performance," said Navratilova, who won her third consecutive title in 1980.

Navratilova said she will miss the 75-year-old Wimbledon. "I like this place. It's very intimate and there's plenty of room to move around," said Navratilova. "It's closer to the action here, you can play before 15,000 in a bigger building and you don't have to travel."

GARY HALLBERG WATCHES BALL TOM KITE WASN'T TOO HAPPY ... drop into cup on 18th hole for bird ... after missing short putt on 13th hole

Pointer from Arnie helped Hallberg win

LA JOLLA, Calif. (UPI) — Growing up in Illinois, Garry Hallberg had hockey on his mind. He was introduced to golf when he was nine, but never took it very seriously. But at the age of 12, a trip to the Arnold Palmer Golf Academy and a few words from the Man changed his life.

Arnie gave me a few pointers, told me I had a good swing and that I should stick with it and maybe someday he'd see me out on the course," Hallberg recalled. "That was all I needed. For the next three years I did nothing but play golf."

Sunday, as Hallberg rolled in the biggest putt of his life on the 18th green to win the $300,000 San Diego Open by a stroke over Tom Kite, Palmer's jet, the Man at the controls, roared over the Torrey Pines Country Club.

The 53-year-old Palmer had finished his round just an hour earlier, 11 strokes behind Hallberg, and was blasting his way to the clubhouse in Toronto.

The teacher's career is fading. The student has a world of golf ahead. And for Hallberg, nothing will get much tougher than his first PGA victory. As he stood over his final putt Sunday, the $24,000 first prize dancing in his head, his legs trembled to rubber.

"When I got over the putt I was shaking so bad and my heart was pounding," the 24-year-old Hallberg said. "I was so nervous, I was shaking so bad and my heart was pounding."

"My game probably thrives on competition," he said. "The more I play the better I feel."

NFC Rookie of Year honors for McMahon

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim McMahon has changed the way defensive linemen play in the NFL. He is the first defensive lineman to be named NFL Rookie of the Year since 1957.

McMahon, the fifth player selected in the draft, received 21 votes from the 56 writers participating in each NFL city. Washington wide receiver Charlie Brown, who had eight touchdowns in nine regular-season games, finished second with 13 votes while New York Giants back Butch Woolfolk and New Orleans

10 nominees for Sullivan Award

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Figure skater Scott Hamilton, diver Greg Louganis and long distance runner Alberto Salazar and Mary Decker Phyllis are among the 10 nominees for the 53rd annual Sullivan Award, which will be presented Monday to the outstanding American amateur athlete for 1982.

The winner is determined in a vote of 2,000 amateur sports officials, past winners, sports directors and writers. Given by the Amateur Athletic Union, the award "recognizes the top amateur sportsman of the year, not only for athletic achievement but also for how well he conducted himself on and off the field."

Richard Petty led for 30 early laps but his hopes for an unprecedented eighth 500 victory were dashed when he blew an engine on the 48th lap.

Defending champion Bobby Allison made a valiant run but never fully recovered from his lowly 58th start in the race. He finished ninth. The car was totaled and Waltrip suffered bruises and a mild concussion. Doctors said he spent the night in Halifax Hospital for observation.
