Banks starting to come alive, growing

When a fella tells you that your normally conservative local bank, which has been stripped of a big chunk of its assets by non-banking institutions (like brokerage firms and money-market funds), is slowly turning from a patsy into a "killer," you might be apt to give him a fair hearing despite your skepticism.

But if that same fella also tells you that a Citibank-Merrill Lynch merger is virtually a sure thing — ditto for a Bank of America takeover of Prudential Insurance Co. (which last year gobbled up Bache Halsey Stuart Shields) — you'd probably change your mind about that hearing and write off the guy as some kind of kook. (Present regulations would prohibit such mergers.)

Well, the fella expounding these views is anything but a kook.

HE'S GLEN Johnson, the 53-year-old president of Federated Cash Management Systems, a subsidiary of Pittsburgh-based Federated Investors, a research and advisory firm that services 2,000 banks and, more importantly, manages the trust department assets — $25 billion worth — of 1,551 of them.

As cash managers go, FCMS is one of the biggest in the country. Its 21 funds under Johnson's supervision invest $5 billion every weekday morning in such short-term money instruments as Treasury bills, government agency notes and bank CDs (certificates of deposit). This money represents new bank cash flow and funds from maturing securities.

So with this kind of financial clout, Johnson obviously merits a personal hearing.

Not only that, he underplays the money game well, as attested to by his own successful career. A farm boy born in Lake Lillian, Minn. (population, 300), Johnson, who never went to college and once drove a Buick for 300 months, now boasts a personal net worth of over $10 million.

THE PATSY-to-killer scenario laid out by Johnson for the nation's 14,000 banks is already under way, as he sees it.

"The banks are getting off their butt; they're going to war, and they're going to win it," he says. "In two to three years, you'll walk into a bank and see 15 to 20 investment products (from stocks and bonds to real estate funds). You won't be able to tell a brokerage house from a bank. That's the way the world is going: the traditional regulatory lines are being eroded."

Addressing himself to the regulatory banking restrictions in the investment arena (most specifically the Glass-Steagall Act), Johnson contends that's going by the boards.

"That's being eroded by more and more people getting into the gray areas," he says.

He notes, for example, that last year ago, there was no single bank in the recent brokerage business; today, there're maybe 600 of them. He cites, in particular, Bank of America's acquisition of discount brokerage kingpin Charles Schwab and also Chase Manhattan's recently announced plan to acquire discount broker Rose & Co. of Chicago.

In two to three years, says Johnson, every bank in this country will be in the discount brokerage business.

ANOTHER SIGN of regulatory breakdown in the banking arena: Citicorp's recent acquisition of a savings and loan association on the West Coast, a clear erosion of the McFadden Act, says Johnson, which prohibits banks from crossing state lines.

As Johnson sees it, banks are finally waking up to reality — namely, that they've lost huge amounts of their assets (two over $100 billion) to non-banking institutions. And if they don't take action to stem the tide, they'll lose even more — making survival for many questionable.

The picture, Johnson says, is simple: 80 percent of a bank's assets are accounted for by 20 percent of the depositors (those in the upscale category). And maybe 95 percent of that (say $85,000 of a $100,000 account) has been pirated away by the likes of Merrill Lynch (with its cash management accounts) and other big brokers (such as Shearson American Express).

ON TOP of this, Sears Roebuck (which acquired Dean Witter Reynolds) is also gunning for Middle America's financial business — so in effect, says Johnson, the bank is getting hit all over.

What does this leave the bank? "The most expensive part of the public's worth — the transaction business, which, says Johnson, is an unprofitable business.

In a pitch to capitalize on what Johnson regards as a major blunder on the part of banks — namely, their failure to offer investment products (which they can sell you at your request) and thus keep the depositors from straying to a non-banking institution — Federated has launched several funds for the banking fraternity, the majority in January.

To date, these funds have about $200 million of assets. Johnson figures they'll swell to $1.5 billion — $2 billion before year-end.

Included are (1) a stock trust fund (strictly blue chips) that yields 7 percent, (2) a fund of pools of mortgages (government-guaranteed) that pays 12 percent annually and (3) a short-term municipal notes fund that yields 8 1/2 percent tax-free.

FOR BETWEEN $1,000 and $1,250, the investor buys 100 shares of the fund. His interest payments are received monthly and there's instant liquidity since the investor can sell at any time.

Of the current 600 banking firms that offer discount brokerage, more than two-thirds (420 to be precise) do it through Federated.

Johnson notes, for example, that if you happened to live in Dayton, Ohio, and you wanted to buy 200 shares of a $20 stock, no doubt you could go to your local brokers who'll charge you $100 in commissions. But if you went to the Third National Bank & Trust Co., the commission on those same shares would only be $50.

More the shares the greater the savings. For example, the commission on 1,000 shares of a $30 stock would run $160 at the bank — vs. $480 at a regular brokerage house.

Johnson estimates the average saving at upward of 70 percent.

Since Johnson is obviously pitching for more banking business, I asked him if his coming "killer" view of the local bank wasn't grossly overstated to encourage more banks to buy Federated wares.

WHY, he snapped back, do you think there's $200 billion of savings account money — that's 8 1/4 percent interest money — still sitting in the banks?

"The answer, he went on, is trust — with a big capital T. Most people in this country believe in banks," says Johnson; "their fathers kept their money there, so did their grandfathers, and so they feel secure. The bank is the natural retailer of money and money products in most areas, and it's just starting to roar. And when it really roars, you're going to see huge changes in the way financial products are sold in this country."

Among other things, he predicts that banks will quickly recapture (in a few years) 25 percent of the brokerage business (lost to money-market funds, mutual funds, etc.). He also expects many regional brokerage firms to be demolished (either through going out of business or merging with other firms).

"What's coming is a profit squeeze on all financial institutions," he says.

As for the bank lobby, Johnson says it will be forced — because of the need to borrow more and pay more for money — to live on a much smaller spread (the difference between what it pays for money and the price at which it lends it out). But this will be offset, he says, by rising fee income (from its increased variety of financial services).

I asked Johnson if he was really serious about those giant mergers (namely, Merrill Lynch-Citibank and Bank of America-Prudential).

The amiable, talkative Johnson says he truly believes they'll happen, especially the Citibank-Merrill marriage.

"Those two guys could capture the world," he says. "Sure, the regulations will look at it, like the Justice Department and Federal Reserve. But it'll happen; no question about it. Deregulation is good for the country, we'll see more and more of it... because how do you fight the argument that you're bringing more product to more people at a better price?"

The economy at a glance

NEW YORK — Investors cashing in their profits and plugging gold prices helped pull the stock market back from the record heights it hit last week. The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 8.32 to 1,122.82. The index of 30 blue-chip stocks rose to a record 1,121.81 last week.

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court upheld a massive restructuring of AT&T, which clears one of the last hurdles for a major change in how telephone services are provided.

PARIS — Three OPEC oil ministers met only for an hour in Paris Monday in a last-ditch effort to reach agreement on a unified oil price cut within a week or face a 57-barrel drop by the group's powerful Persian Gulf producers.

PITTSBURGH — Bargainers for the United Steelworkers union and ailing steelmakers, racing an unofficial settlement deadline today set by top customers, reached tentative agreement Monday on a new concessions contract.

WASHINGTON — A shrinking bill for imported oil helped make January's merchandise trade deficit smaller, at $2.96 billion, than in any month since April of last year, the government reports.

Under competition. And a recent Central Accounting Offices study suggests some of the pipelines were a few large producers driving hard bargains with the producers.

But there appears to be sufficient competition in the natural gas industry. A 1979 Federal Trade Commission study found that the eight largest gas producers control about 45 percent of the market.

The FTCS report about the median for manufacturing and well below the median for other industries.

There is further proof the shortage was gasily created and maintained: Soon after the 1974 low ended price controls on new, hard-to-find gas, producers began making major finds deep below the earth's surface. They simply had no economic incentive to search for the gas before. Many experts now predict there is enough natural gas to supply the U.S. for generations to come.

The Reagan administration has reacted to the furor over natural gas by proposing to speed up decontrol while seeking a way to prevent price increases because of the above-mentioned contract provisions.

Energy Secretary Donald Hodel has suggested this could be done by having FERC reject price increases for pipelines that are not purchasing the lowest-cost gas supplies available to them.

Gas producers, who claim that legislatively modifying gas contracts is unconstitutional, say this would create a hardship on producers who have committed huge sums for gas exploration under the assumption they would get the prices called for in their long-term contracts.

Meanwhile, advocates of strict control will use their clout in Congress to fight the Reagan administration's plan. Metzbaum waged a lengthy filibuster in 1978 that almost killed the Natural Gas Policy Act, and with natural gas prices at record highs he may have more allies this time.

New pact calls for review of ambulance firm

By Paul Hendrie
Herald Reporter

Worried that the required response time of ambulances answering paramedic calls might not be fast enough, the Board of Directors Tuesday amended a 5-year contract with the Ambulance Service of Manchester, Inc. so it now requires a performance review after 25 months.

The new conditions set by the board after a lengthy discussion seemed to link both town administrators and representatives of the ambulance company, who already had renegotiated the contract after the directors rejected an earlier draft.

However, town General Manager Robert B. Weiss said this morning it appears the Ambulance Service will accept the new conditions. The company's attorney, Joseph J. Lesser, was not available for comment this morning.

After 25 months, the average response times that point would be reviewed and established as a standard for the remainder of the contract.

THE CONTRACT presented to the board Tuesday night set a 10-minute maximum response time in 90 percent of the cases for ambulance response. That guideline was developed by Assistant Health Director Ronald Kraatz, who said it was consistent with programs in other areas of the country and adequate to meet patient needs.

"Ten minutes doesn't impress me as an emergency response time," said Democratic Mayor Stephen T. Penny.

Lesser and Kraatz noted that the response by paramedics themselves would be quicker than 10 minutes and that in many cases, the patient would not be ready for transportation by ambulance in that short a time anyway. In any case, they said the 10-minute standard was the outside limit and that most responses would be quicker.

"I have to say, despite what you say, that 10 minutes impresses me as no performance at all," said Penny. He suggested perhaps setting a shorter response time for a lesser percentage of the time.

But Kraatz said that would involve plugging a number "out of the blue."

"I have no experiential data to pick a (new) response time," said Kraatz. "I did have specific information regarding the 10-minute response time. I don't know any other way to pick a number."

The board's amendment, if ratified by the Ambulance Service, would use the actual performance over the first 25 months to set the standard for the future.

THE DIRECTORS also considered re-opening the $20,000 base annual payment from the company to the town for renegotiation before the five years expire, but Assistant General Manager Steven R. Werber convinced them the town is getting a good deal that would best be left unchanged.

Index jumps most since '50

By Denis G. Sullivan
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The leading economic indicators jumped 2.6 percent in January, the most since 1959, and an accompanying index suggested recession has already turned into recovery, the Commerce Department said today.

Nine of the 10 available leading indicators were positive in January, taking the composite measure up at the fastest rate since it jumped 1.1 percent in July 1959, the department said.

An accompanying index of coincident indicators was up a strong 0.6 percent. Unlike the leading index, intended to be a barometer of the future economy, the coincident index is designed to measure current conditions. The January surge in that index was the strongest since May 1982 and came after 15 declines in the previous 17 months.

The coincident index is "the big news, very important," said department analyst Larry Moran. "It's the first real increase we've had since May. This is a very good sign." He cautioned, however, that analysts will want to see similar increases in February and March to confirm the change for the better did not suddenly evaporate.

California fights Mother Nature

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Thousands of Californians slung sandbags in a relentless downpour today, hoping to hold back floodwaters from powerful storms that have killed nine people, mudslides in northern California swept homes down hillsides.

Up to feet of snow fell in the Sierra Nevada. Five inches of rain fell in parts of the state and forecasters said the storm, which spawned at least three tornadoes statewide Tuesday, would last three more days.

Nighttime-foot seas forced Queen Elizabeth II and her party to cancel and reschedule Britannia's scheduled voyage to San Francisco today. They planned instead to fly from Long Beach to San Francisco this afternoon.

There was massive flooding statewide and officials said unknown thousands were made homeless, finding shelter at Red Cross evacuation centers. Intermittent power outages affected more than 200,000 people.

In the midst of it all, an earthquake measuring 3.5 on the Richter scale rattled office buildings Tuesday in downtown Los Angeles. A 2.8 quake struck Monday night. Both were centered in suburban Inglewood and no damage was reported.

Thousands of volunteers waded today to pile sandbags against flooding yet to come. In Huntington Beach, National Guard troops helped throw sandbags. Eighty-five guardsmen were called out statewide.

High winds forced suspension of dramatic helicopter rescues of 40 people trapped by mudslides in a canyon near Carmel.

Consumers enter oil talks

PARIS (UPI) — With Saudi Arabia insisting agreement is "imminent," oil-producing states brought consumer nations into the negotiations today aimed at averting a world oil-price collapse.

Venezuelan Oil Minister Humberto Calderon Bertel was meeting Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson and Energy Minister Edmond Herve, bringing France into the search for "a long-term policy for both producers and consumers."

"It is now the moment to start dialogue with consuming nations," said delegation member Carlos Julio Gonzalez.

Venezuela, orchestrating worldwide private talks, aimed at reaching a unified price level, also says OPEC nations must close ranks and pull non-OPEC Britain, Norway and Mexico to their side, he said.

Calderon Bertel was to fly to London today for more negotiations with the British. The new travel came after representatives of countries participating in the week-old talks in Paris, Saudi Arabia and London said they had edged closer to agreement.

Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani told French television he believed a price consensus — necessary to call an emergency OPEC summit — expected this weekend — was "imminent."

But he warned "if the price goes down to $26 a barrel, there will be a serious problem for consumer countries such as the United States, which have made a big investment in new energy sources."

OPEC members Algeria, Libya, Iran and Nigeria had called for a deep slash in prices, while the Persian Gulf states and Indonesia have held out for a smaller cut, reportedly to around $38 from the current benchmark of $34.

In Vienna, Marc Nan Nguema, secretary general for the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, said a steep price fall would bring "an all-around catastrophe."

"There will be many more Mexicans," he said, noting oil-dependent Mexico's economic problems and massive foreign debt and saying the fallout also would hurt Western banks.

Strict price controls behind gas problems

By Jeff Maden
Herald Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — OPEC has collapsed in a glut of oil and prices are declining rapidly. There is also a glut of natural gas, but prices are going in the opposite direction — straight up.

Natural gas prices have risen 25 percent in the last year, the Energy Department reports, and consumers in some areas are paying 80 percent more this winter to heat their homes and light their stoves.

What's going on here? THE NATURAL gas producers have a simple answer: oil can be bought and sold without any price controls. The federal government, on the other hand, are still largely controlled by the federal government.

Remove the controls, producers say, and the free market will solve the problem.

Consumer groups and such prominent figures as Sens Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Howard Metzbaum, D-Ohio, say the problem is that the federal government relaxed its grip on natural gas prices when Congress passed the Natural Gas Policy Act in 1978. That law calls for gradual decontrol of most natural gas by 1985.

These advocates of price control say there can never be a free market in natural gas because of the dominance of a few large producers and pipeline companies.

But the evidence suggests that those strict price controls — in effect from 1954 to 1978 — are in the opposite direction — straight up.

But the evidence suggests that those strict price controls — in effect from 1954 to 1978 — are in the opposite direction — straight up.

pipeline companies projected, and supply began to outstrip demand. The pipelines — as well as utilities and consumers — were stuck with a huge albatross around their necks.

"Because of these take-or-pay contract clauses, (pipeline companies) are buying high-priced gas at the same time that they are selling producers of cheap gas to cap their wells," explained Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo.

The Citizen-Labor Energy Coalition, the chief lobby in town of strict price controls, says these contract provisions are the result of the strong bargaining position of producers.

"De-control," director, Robert Brabson, added that "many pipelines are themselves producers or have producer affiliates. Since the law limits those pipelines from paying more for their own gas than they pay other producers, there is a built-in incentive to accept higher than necessary costs from other sources so that their own gas will garner higher prices."

BRANDON blames the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC), which regulates the natural gas industry, for misinterpreting the 1978 law to allow many of its pipelines to come into effect and spur higher gas prices.

Brandon may be right about the FERC, which has a strong bias toward decontrol. But what critics of decontrol do not acknowledge is that these pipeline contracts were signed in a period when there were major natural gas shortages artificially created and maintained by government price controls.

These shortages occurred because the government kept gas prices artificially low through the fifties and sixties, thus encouraging consumption and discouraging producers from exploring for more gas.

By 1977, Federal Carter energy secretary, James Schlesinger, was publicly announcing that natural gas supplies would be "gone" by the end of the 1980s. Some factories in the Midwest and Northeast had to shut down temporarily because of a supply interruption.

But factories in Texas and Louisiana could get all the natural gas they wanted for free.

THE REASON? In interstate gas prices — unlike interstate gas prices — were not regulated. Producers would rather sell their gas in-state where they could charge what the market would bear.

Brandon is correct that many pipelines and producers have ties that hinder competition. And a recent Central Accounting Offices study suggests some of the pipelines were a few large producers driving hard bargains with the producers.

Responding to public demand, the police department will sponsor an all-day child fingerprinting session on Saturday, April 23.

Police Chief Robert D. Laman announced today that the program will run from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., and may be repeated on future weekends if public interest warrants it, said Laurence Wilbur, head of the department's community relations division.

It is proposed to provide parents with a reliable means of identifying their child if he or she is lost or abducted, Wilbur said. The Vernon police department conducts a similar program.

Police will provide fingerprint cards, but won't keep them on record. That will be the parents' responsibility, said Wilbur. "We don't want to have the ACLU (American Civil Liberties Union) down our throats," he said.

Parents who want further information about the program should contact Wilson at the police department between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. on weekdays.

Judge upholds Coventry budget

By Richard Cody
Herald Reporter

VERNON — A Superior Court judge, in a decision filed Tuesday afternoon, has ruled against an action group trying to have Coventry's 1982-83 budget sent to referendum.

In an advisory note, he also says the town can outlaw future referendums by adjusting its charter, and the action group can affect Coventry's budget process by the "election process."

Tolland County Superior Court Judge Eugene T. Kelly ruled in favor of the defendant Coventry Town Council. He has decided that since town operations would suffer from changing or revoking the law instituted budget, a referendum would not be proper.

He has also ruled against another portion of the suit brought by the Coventry Taxpayers Association that asked Kelly to prevent a town from rejecting petitions calling for a ballot vote. He says in the decision that the association failed to prove the required elements of the action they were seeking, a permanent injunction.

SPECIFICALLY, Kelly says the plaintiffs could not prove irreparable harm, an important stipulation when the court considers such an order.

"Further, there are remedies available to the plaintiffs either by the election process or by charter amendment to eliminate any claimed inconsistencies between charter and statute," Kelly writes.

Kelly says that when considering a "mandamus, an action which the CTA sought when asking to have the budget sent to the polls, the court must weigh the future effects of the decision."

The mandamus, Kelly writes in the eight-page decision, "is not awarded as a matter of right but is within the exercise of the sound discretion of the court, and any equitable or inexcusable

Carter starts peace trip

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Former President Carter opened an unofficial Middle East peace mission, saying he would meet Palestinian leaders in the occupied territories but viewed a session with PLO leader Yasser Arafat as "improper."

Carter arrived Tuesday after U.S. Middle East envoy Philip Habib flew in from Israel to brief him and top Egyptian officials on the Lebanese-Israeli talks on foreign troop withdrawals from Lebanon.

Habib met today with Carter, starting a 17-day, five-nation Middle East trip. The two were planning to call separately afterward on Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak at his residence.

In the Suez Canal city of Ismailia, Egypt, Israel and the United States were holding talks today on the Tabu border area, a disputed 1,100-yard stretch of coastline along the Aqaba Gulf near the Israeli port of Eilat.

In Khaldé, Lebanon, a Lebanese government spokesman accused Israel of intrinsigence after the negotiators held their 19th round of talks Tuesday.

Regan given EPA data

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressman investigating the Environmental Protection agency says he has sent President Reagan "specific information of criminal conduct" in the agency's toxic-waste cleanup program.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., asked the president to honor his pledge not to cover up wrongdoing at the agency in a letter Tuesday that outlined the information developed in hearings by the House Energy and Commerce oversight subcommittee.

Another congressman looking into EPA, Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., released an alleged EPA "hit list" of people to be fired that singles out scientists and researchers who are "liberals or environmentalists."

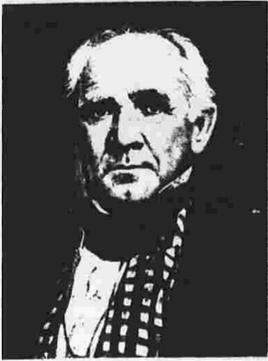

Scheuer said the list was obtained from an EPA employee who had provided reliable information previously.

But EPA Administrator Anne Burford angrily denied there was a list of people to be fired.

"Absolutely not," she told reporters when asked if she and former presidential adviser Lynn Neizer had drawn up such a list.

Earlier, Mrs. Burford, her eyes tearing and voice cracking, told a House appropriations panel hearing on the EPA budget, "So long as this circus atmosphere is surrounding the EPA, we will be inhibited from doing our job."

In California, a White House aide said Reagan intends to keep Mrs. Burford as head of the agency as long as none of the allegations is proved.

Shergar still missing

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Hopes of finding the kidnapped racehorse Shergar ebbed today on the second day of a farm-by-farm search that turned up only an illegal stall.

Thousands of farmers, undaunted by their lack of success Tuesday, said they were heading back into the fields today "just to double check."

Ireland's 150,000 landowners were urged to scour their property for the 5-year-old horse, which was abducted from the Aga Khan's Ballymany stud farm the night of Feb. 8.

The kidnappers made a $3 million ransom demand after making off with the horse, winner of the Irish Derby and English Derby in 1981.

"We seem to have drawn a blank," said a spokesman for the Irish Farmers Association after Tuesday's hunt.

"Tens of thousands of farmers spent from dawn to dusk searching their properties but there was no sign of Shergar," the spokesman said. "But they all are going out again (today) just to doublecheck."

Socialist mayor wins

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — For two years, self-described socialist Mayor Bernard Sanders has labored under suggestions that his 10-year 1981 election victory over a longtime incumbent was a fluke, a once-in-a-lifetime upset.

Tuesday, he exercised those shadows from his political ledger, coasting to an overwhelming victory over two major party challengers in the most expensive race in Burlington's history.

Unofficial voting returns showed Sanders with about 52.8 percent of the nearly 12,000 votes cast, a new record turnout. Democrat Judith Stephany, who left a seat in the Legislature and a position as House minority leader to take on Sanders, received about 30.7 percent.

Republican School Board Chairman James Gilson brought up the rear in the three-way race by drawing about 16.5 percent.

"The results turned out to be better than expected," said the Brooklyn-born Sanders, 41, while supporters cheered in his second-term as mayor of Vermont's largest city.

"It's a bit more of a mandate than we had two years ago."

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II flew to a region torn by civil strife and religious upheaval today on an ambitious eight-day tour of Central America — potentially the most dangerous trip of his well-traveled papacy.

The papal Alitalia jet left Rome's Fiumicino Airport today for a 14-hour flight to San Jose, the Costa Rican capital. A one-hour refueling stop was slated for Lisbon, Portugal.

Governments and their opponents — armed and unarmed — "rebel" priests and conservative bishops, are expected to scrutinize some 40 addresses the pope will make for a hint of ideological support of their views and causes.

On the 15,000-mile trek John Paul travels from tranquil Costa Rica and Belize to violence-torn El Salvador and Guatemala, and leftist Nicaragua.

He also will visit Panama, Honduras and the Caribbean island of Haiti, the poorest nation in the Western Hemisphere.

Cash left Nashville's Baptist Hospital Monday to find her husband, Johnny Cash, had lined the pathway from her car to the front door of her home in Hendersonville, Tenn., with flower petals. It was Cash's way of remembering her and his wife celebrated their 15th anniversary this week, and Thursday is the 13th birthday of their son, John Carter Cash.

Mrs. Cash spent four weeks in the hospital recovering from surgery. "I'm feeling fine, just very weak," she said. A family friend said, "The flowers were Johnny's idea. He was so happy to have her back home again. There was a time during her illness when we thought we might lose her."

Fulco Santastefano della Cerda, duke of Verduira, was a fabulous jewelry designer whose work in the 1930s-1960s was snapped up by such as Diana Vreeland, Mrs. William Paley, Lily Pons and Mrs. John Hay Whitney.

Among his most ardent fans was the duchess of Windsor. She once took a topaz rose from his shop, for which she had not yet paid, according to Comptroller magazine, and told everyone who admired it she had designed it herself. Then she took it back and asked to exchange it for a topaz thistle, one of the duke of Windsor's emblems.

the nation's worst nuclear accident.

A lawyer for residents around the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant told the justices Tuesday the community had suffered "severe mental distress" after the March 1979 accident.

"Restart brings with it the psychological reality of another accident," William Jordan said. "A traumatized population is now facing the possibility of another accident."

Jordan is asking the justices to uphold a lower court ruling the Nuclear Regulatory Commission must weigh neighbors' "fears of recurring catastrophe" before allowing a start-up of the undamaged reactor at the plant near Harrisburg, Pa.

Metropolitan Edison Co. wants to put the reactor back to work generating electricity. Both reactors have been shut down since No. 2 reactor was so seriously damaged radiation leaked into the air.

Under questioning by Justice Lewis Powell, Jordan said the mere knowledge the plant was running — even without visible evidence — would be traumatic.

Last May, nearby residents voted overwhelmingly against reopening the reactor.

More bombs hunted

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Police bomb squads, beset by threats since the discovery of dynamite at three casinos, concentrated today on searching the evacuated University of Nevada campus — the target of three threats.

Police ordered the evacuation of the 10,000-student University Tuesday and searched the 360-acre campus.

Thousands of students who live on campus were moved to a motel, and the university's 24-hour, student-operated radio station, KUNV-FM, was shut down.

University President Dr. Leonard Goodall said the campus would be reopened when police and campus security assured him there were no bombs at the university.

Three telephoned threats were received Tuesday evening saying bombs had been planted on the campus. Three dynamite bombs were discovered at three casinos-hotels Monday.

Jittery casino owners have hired extra security guards to patrol the peak gambling resorts as bogus bomb threats complicated the work of police searching for the builder of the three bombs.

"We are continuing heavier security," said Jim Seagraves, an executive at the Frontier Hotel where a bomb containing 10 sticks of dynamite was discovered in a trash receptacle near a seven-story tower of rooms where 750 guests were briefly evacuated Monday.

Land-use question holds up plans for Odd Fellows lot

ONE OF THE PLANS FOR A PARKLET
Three alternatives are under consideration by citizens' committee

By Alex Girelli
Herald City Editor

A decision about whether to use the southern portion of the open land at the Center for a business building will have to be made before the town can go forward with landscaping plans for a parklet there.

A committee planning the parklet, mostly on the site of the former Odd Fellows Building, viewed three landscaping plans Tuesday, but agreed it will have to make some basic decisions before it can settle on the details of landscaping.

One of them is whether to devote the southern 150 feet of the land, the low portion near Ford Street, to use for a commercial block. Realtor Warren Hoyland had suggested that possibility at an earlier meeting, but most committee members did not favor it.

One of the three plans shown to the committee Tuesday, however, did show a building in that area. The designer of the plan, Elizabeth Payton, landscape architect, said it might be an instance in which "less is more" aesthetically and that the building might define the area and help to hide what is now an unpleasant view from some angles.

Another possibility the committee must consider is a plan by the Southern New England Telephone Co. to run a driveway from its upper lot behind the phone company building down to Ford Street in a curve around the southeast corner of the land.

That probably could not be done if a building is constructed there.

The advantage of the ramped driveway, besides improving traffic flow, would be that it will provide the basis for regrading the south section of the land. It now slopes steeply to Ford Street. From the elevated drive, it would be easy to grade gently toward the center of the parcel.

The building, drive, and grade questions are fundamental ones, the committee agreed Tuesday. Estimates for the amount of fill needed varied from 750 to 1000 cubic feet, and are based on calculations by sight and not engineering studies. When the committee meets again at 3 p.m. on April 5, it hopes to have more specific answers, but members have agreed it is not feasible to start planting until the fall.

Besides the plan by Mrs. Payton, the committee saw plans by James Juros and by Gerald Bowler. They arrived at similar ideas. All three plans show a path through the parklet back from the sidewalk line. All show major trees as well as shrubs and areas for flower plantings.

Park Superintendent Robert Harrison urged that the northeast corner of Center Park be integrated with the planning so the new parklet will not appear to be isolated. The three designers who submitted plans will look over the area to see how it can be linked to the parklet.

Dr. Douglas Smith, chairman of the committee, asked General Manager Robert B. Weiss if the town could provide the fill needed. Weiss said that the state might be able to help with fill from the widening of the Interstate 86 through town.

Whatever plan the committee finally decides on, it will include a plaque noting that the land was the site of the Odd Fellows Building and the threshold from which building will be incorporated into some kind of monument.

Weiss calls race-bias claim a 'sham' and harassment

By Paul Hendrie
Herald Reporter

Town General Manager Robert B. Weiss Tuesday called continuing allegations of racial bias in the hiring of Assistant General Manager Steven R. Werber a "sham" and harassment.

Werber was accused of stopping him from getting the position.

"I think the harassment of a very well qualified person who has given fine service to the town should terminate, but again, I am a sham that this type of business is allowed to continue," Weiss said.

Werber was the town personnel supervisor before successfully competing for the assistant manager position.

"I'd like the record to show that at the time Mr. (Charles) McCarthy (former assistant general manager) indicated he was leaving to take another position, I had a phone call from Mr. Smith," Weiss said. "He said he didn't think Mr. Werber was qualified and that he would do everything he could to stop him from getting the position."

"Mr. Smith came to me in February and said he had new evidence that the town had been discriminating," added Democratic Director Stephen T. Casano. "Nothing has come forward to show there has been any new evidence."

Casano said Smith merely resubmitted an earlier report by the Human Relations Commission that the board felt was inconclusive.

"As far as I'm concerned, rather than take up any more of the board's time, we should refer it back to the Human Relations Commission and if they have any more concerns they can bring it back," said Republican Director Peter P. DiTosa Jr.

The commission dropped its own review of the Werber hiring in January, under strong pressure from the Board of Directors.

Revenge!

Sometimes it pays to keep your mouth shut.

Police Capt. Joseph H. Brooks, head of the department's patrol division, tells the story of a Joan Circle resident who complained about being ticketed for not shoveling his sidewalk.

As Brooks tells the story, the man felt harassed about receiving the $22 ticket. "Why are you bothering us here, way out in the country?" he said. "Why, just down the street there's a stop sign that people drive through every day."

Brooks made a mental note, and yesterday sent a cruiser to watch the stop sign at the end of Joan Circle. Sure enough, the officer logged about a dozen violations, handing out $22 tickets to residents of Joan Circle, Ralph Road, and other streets in the area.

"His neighbors don't know it, but that guy cost them some money," says Brooks.

Kozlovs find a home

Former Bolshoi Ballet dancers Valentina and Leonid Kozlov have found a home with the New York City Ballet.

The Kozlovs defected on Sept. 16, 1979 when the Bolshoi was in Los Angeles during its summer tour of the U.S. Their action came just three weeks after the defection of Alexander Godunov. Since then the Kozlovs have danced all over the world, making guest appearances with many companies, including the Australian Ballet, the National Ballet of Caracas, and the Israel Ballet.

"They will join the company headed by George Balanchine and Peter Martins this spring."

Kurt Russell has been signed to star with Goldie Hawn in "Swing Shift," a movie about factory workers in World War II.

Mike Connors is now editing "The Doorman," the first movie in which he served as both producer and actor. It should be completed in six weeks.

Elderly Outreach program assured of another year

By Paul Hendrie
Herald Reporter

The Board of Directors Tuesday night appropriated $19,058 to fund the elderly outreach program for another year, after the program got a strong vote of confidence at a public hearing.

Hanna P. Marcus, director of Human Services, said the Manchester elderly outreach program is one of the few in the region to receive a four-year funding commitment from the state. Part of the $19,058 appropriation is a $7,179 federal grant.

"Our program is highly regarded statewide," said Mrs. Marcus.

Through the program, volunteers and staff people visit elderly citizens in their homes to help meet their needs and keep them company. The program offers one alternative to institutionalization.

"One of the most important functions we do for the people we visit is to alleviate their loneliness," said volunteer Tess Munson. "The people who are on the staff do a marvelous job of training their people."

William Rice, chairman of the Commission on Aging, said his commission voted Monday night to support the program. He praised the program's coordinators, Diane M. Wicks and Sarah R. Keleher.

Session set

The Board of Directors will hold a public comment session on March 17 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the Board of Directors office in the Municipal Building to hear comments and suggestions from the public.

A glorious past, an uncertain future

State Democrats have demonstrated again that no single event cheers them more, or reassures them as much that all is well in their political world, than the group therapy they call the annual JJB dinner.

Youngsters like Congressman Hamden and Sam Gejdenson of Bozrah will have to wait before they hear the level of applause the veterans command.

And as often is the case at the JJB, Democrats acted as though they cannot decide whether to cling to the past or look to the future. They talk brightly about the latter. They feel warm about the former when so many exhibits are among them.

Their choice of a speaker this year enabled Democrats to straddle. Senator Ted Kennedy, referring to his late brothers Jack and Bobby on Waterbury Green, reminded his audience of glory days for the party here

Mayor Ed Bergin of that city and Tom Gahan, the new town chairman, sharpened by their presence last weekend those pleasant reminiscences.

And Kennedy, despite recent statements, keeps hopes alive in many Connecticut hearts that he will emerge one day as president of the United States.

Wilson had big hit list

WASHINGTON — The murky world of ex-CIA agent Edwin Paul Wilson was one of constant intrigue and murder-for-hire. His indictment for plotting murders in prison isn't his first encounter with assassination.

According to my own lengthy investigation of Wilson, he ordered the liquidation of at least a dozen onetime associates, including his former business partner, Frank Terpil, himself an ex-CIA man and a flamboyant cutthroat in his own right.

Since he was tricked into the U.S. Marshals' clutches from his Libyan hideout, Wilson has already been convicted of smuggling arms and explosives to Libyan dictator Muammar Qaddafi. He is now on trial for another explosives incident. He also faces charges that he offered $1 million for the murder of a Libyan dissident and $1.2 million for the murder of two federal prosecutors and six former associates who testified against him.

MY ASSOCIATE Dale Van Atta, whose own name was on one Wilson hit list, located the man who was supposed to rub out Billy Carter. The killing, intended to punish Billy for reneging on a deal with Qaddafi, was to have been accomplished by sending the presidential brother a literally explosive oil painting.

Another Wilson enforcer has come forward and traces his ex-boss' assassination orders back to 1975. He asked that his identity be protected, so I'll just call him Hit Man.

He was hired by Wilson to investigate three employees who had disappeared one week-end with some important files. Wilson found dozens of canceled checks indicating embezzlement, and told Hit Man: "Take care of the files, and then I want the S.O.B. dead." He was referring to the ring-leader, an elderly man.

So the hired gun, armed with a .38 and accompanied by a sidekick carrying a lead pipe, waited outside the ring-leader's Virginia apartment. But the assassins chickened out at the last minute, went to a bar and got thoroughly drunk.

HIT-MAN then lied to Wilson the next day, telling him they had been unable to find the old man. He subsequently stalled Wilson until the kill order was forgotten.

Hit Man's next target was Douglas Schlachter, whom Wilson once treated like a son, but who apparently got too big for his britches. As Hit Man remembered it, Schlachter decided to "ease out of the operation." Schlachter and a former high CIA official began "talking openly about murdering Ed and taking over."

Hit Man added: "Because I was the one that Ed trusted the most, they wanted me to call him in London and lure him back home so that we could kill him." Hit Man put through the call, arranged to meet Wilson at Dulles Airport — and promptly told him all about the plot. Wilson, he said, handed him a wad of cash, appointed him his bodyguard and said: "If any of those (expensive deleted) even looks like he's going to do me harm, I want you to blow him away." Wilson promised the hit man protection from the law, saying: "Nothing's going to happen to you. I'll take care of the consequences."

Wilson then set up a meeting with Schlachter at a restaurant in downtown Washington. Hit Man's orders were to wait outside; if the conversation didn't go well, Wilson would signal Hit Man; if they emerged from the restaurant, and Schlachter's doom would be sealed.

Coalition urges tax reform instead of O'Neill's tax plan

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Legislature should be acting on tax reform and not Gov. William O'Neill's plan to raise $27.9 million in new taxes, says a coalition of consumers, labor groups and minority lawmakers.

The call came Tuesday at a Capitol news conference held by a wide cross-section of citizens groups. They called O'Neill's plan a "hodge podge" of unfair taxes that could not be imposed on taxpayers.

A short time later, state Comptroller J. Edward Caldwell announced the projected deficit for the current fiscal year had risen from $55 million to $62.4 million.

Caldwell said the deficit increased mainly because of a $7 million increase in Medicaid payments and about $2 million more in welfare grants above the $34 million projected for the month of January.

John Driscoll, executive director of the Connecticut State Labor Council, AFL-CIO, said the governor's plan will come down the heaviest on low to middle-income wage earners and will drive down the standard of living in Connecticut.

He said lawmakers must begin to deal with tax reform, including a progressive income tax. "I hope the Legislature will confront reality and deal with reform," he said.

Matthew Melmed of the Connecticut Association of Human Services, said O'Neill's proposals "will only be more regressive in an already regressive system."

George Moffett, of the Connecticut Council on Aging, called the governor's plan a "paste and patch structure that will be unbearable for the elderly."

Arbitration law said good one — HARTFORD (UPI) — The executive director of the Connecticut Education Association has urged the Legislature to keep binding arbitration in teacher negotiations as a "peaceful means" of resolving disputes.

"The law is a good one," Thomas Mondanis said Tuesday in testimony before the Legislature's Education Committee. "It provides for accountable arbitrators, advocates for both parties, and guidelines for arbitrators to use in making their awards."

A helping hand for Adventure

Adventure Challenge needs a hand. Directors of the program got the green light from the Board of Education on Monday to continue working out of an office in the school administration building. The action allows the program to enroll students for its spring semester.

But unless directors Paula Cheatwood and Frank Pisch somehow scrape up the right amount of change, Adventure Challenge is going to become a has-been in Manchester beginning this summer.

"Right amount of change" probably isn't the right expression. The program got its start with a $55,000 grant from the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving. The grant runs out at the end of this school year.

In early February, Challenge's board of directors voted to dissolve the organization because of a projected deficit.

Pisch has reformed the program under the umbrella of the Capitol Region Education Council, giving it the non-profit status it needs. But no operating funds are coming from CREC, and that's why Pisch is looking for donations.

Adventure Challenge isn't exactly a household phrase in Manchester, maybe, but it is to the dozens of young people who have taken part in its programs in the last two years.

Adventure Challenge's small staff teaches outdoor skills such as rope climbing and cave exploring. The idea behind the program is that a kid who learns how to tie a tricky knot required in rope climbing, for instance, might learn some self esteem along the way.

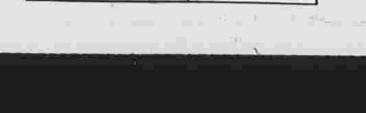

Self esteem isn't the only added side benefit. Self confidence — an ingredient which teenagers often sorely lack — is another.

Often the kids who get the most out of the Adventure Challenge program were the ones who got the least out of school. Often they are the ones who sit in the back of the classroom, not saying much at all, or saying so much that they land in the principal's office a good part of the time.

Adventure Challenge, some may argue, is an unnecessary "frill." It's simply another school enrichment program; the good it does is as large — or as small — as the good half a dozen other "enrichment" programs accomplish.

But it would be a shame to think that Paula Cheatwood and Frank Pisch may take the Adventure Challenge program to another town which might better appreciate it.

Nice surprise

To the Editor: Marci and I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Manchester Herald for the kind words and thoughts on the editorial page of last Wednesday. To say we were caught by surprise and quite flattered would be a very mild statement. We also appreciate the warm remarks we have received from friends, senior citizens and their families.

The decision to make this our last year of involvement was not arrived at without a great deal of thought and emotion. We advised the center's administration and the seniors involved in this year's show of this last week; but the reality did not strike us until we read it in black and white.

We have always prided ourselves in that the only requirement to appear in the show was being a senior citizen. It was our pleasure to be able to let the community know that the seniors were alive and well, and the seniors, in turn, took great pride in knowing that they were still able to contribute something to their town by the funds they were able to raise to subsidize their food program.

In closing, we would be amiss if we didn't extend our thanks to three of our friends, who, along with us, made up the "production company" — Manny Sbona, who designed and painted our beautiful sets; Kay Kowalski, who worked on sets and backstage; and Kay Bolduc, who worked on sets and served as our stage manager.

There are many other non-seniors we wish to thank, but it would fill too many columns — they know who they are and their thanks, as ours, have been shared in the applause our shows have received and the warm love of the seniors.

Once again, thank you. And, don't forget April 22 and 23, at 8 p.m. at Manchester High School. "Let's Do It Again!" Roger M. Negro Marci Negro 203 Oak

The right way

To the Editor: The recent proposal by President Reagan to promote democracy throughout the world deserves a 100 percent endorsement by each and every American.

The plan labeled "Project Democracy" would train young leaders to espouse the concept and an effort would be made to make our own institutions more aware of basic democratic principles.

Project Democracy should not be subjected to the usual partisan political bickering, for it stands far above political bias. American democracy has enabled those who desire to work unlimited opportunities while those who desire not to work, or are unable to do so are given food, housing, medicine and education.

American democracy also guarantees those without sufficient income free legal services so that their legal rights are maintained. American democracy has enabled dissenters to publicly air their political views without retribution. Jane Fonda, one of the more vocal anti-government critics, continues to live a life of affluence.

Wilson had big hit list

Wilson had big hit list

WASHINGTON — The murky world of ex-CIA agent Edwin Paul Wilson was one of constant intrigue and murder-for-hire. His indictment for plotting murders in prison isn't his first encounter with assassination.

According to my own lengthy investigation of Wilson, he ordered the liquidation of at least a dozen onetime associates, including his former business partner, Frank Terpil, himself an ex-CIA man and a flamboyant cutthroat in his own right.

Since he was tricked into the U.S. Marshals' clutches from his Libyan hideout, Wilson has already been convicted of smuggling arms and explosives to Libyan dictator Muammar Qaddafi. He is now on trial for another explosives incident. He also faces charges that he offered $1 million for the murder of a Libyan dissident and $1.2 million for the murder of two federal prosecutors and six former associates who testified against him.

MY ASSOCIATE Dale Van Atta, whose own name was on one Wilson hit list, located the man who was supposed to rub out Billy Carter. The killing, intended to punish Billy for reneging on a deal with Qaddafi, was to have been accomplished by sending the presidential brother a literally explosive oil painting.

Another Wilson enforcer has come forward and traces his ex-boss' assassination orders back to 1975. He asked that his identity be protected, so I'll just call him Hit Man.

He was hired by Wilson to investigate three employees who had disappeared one week-end with some important files. Wilson found dozens of canceled checks indicating embezzlement, and told Hit Man: "Take care of the files, and then I want the S.O.B. dead." He was referring to the ring-leader, an elderly man.

So the hired gun, armed with a .38 and accompanied by a sidekick carrying a lead pipe, waited outside the ring-leader's Virginia apartment. But the assassins chickened out at the last minute, went to a bar and got thoroughly drunk.

HIT-MAN then lied to Wilson the next day, telling him they had been unable to find the old man. He subsequently stalled Wilson until the kill order was forgotten.

Hit Man's next target was Douglas Schlachter, whom Wilson once treated like a son, but who apparently got too big for his britches. As Hit Man remembered it, Schlachter decided to "ease out of the operation." Schlachter and a former high CIA official began "talking openly about murdering Ed and taking over."

Hit Man added: "Because I was the one that Ed trusted the most, they wanted me to call him in London and lure him back home so that we could kill him." Hit Man put through the call, arranged to meet Wilson at Dulles Airport — and promptly told him all about the plot. Wilson, he said, handed him a wad of cash, appointed him his bodyguard and said: "If any of those (expensive deleted) even looks like he's going to do me harm, I want you to blow him away." Wilson promised the hit man protection from the law, saying: "Nothing's going to happen to you. I'll take care of the consequences."

Wilson then set up a meeting with Schlachter at a restaurant in downtown Washington. Hit Man's orders were to wait outside; if the conversation didn't go well, Wilson would signal Hit Man; if they emerged from the restaurant, and Schlachter's doom would be sealed.

Court mulls Powers' appeal

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state Supreme Court is expected to decide in about a week whether to grant a full hearing to appeals seeking dismissal of the corruption case against former Transportation Commissioner Arthur B. Powers.

Powers' attorney, Timothy C. Moynahan, went before the high court Tuesday to argue in favor of a full hearing on the appeals, which prosecutors labeled "frivolous" and unworthy of the court's further consideration.

Assistant State's Attorney John Massameno said the appeals seeking dismissal of some or all of the counts against Powers or to spare the former Berlin mayor a trial were intended "merely to delay the trial-court proceedings."

"Basically our position is that the appeals are frivolous, that they lack legal merit," Massameno said after the court session. Powers faces six charges including perjury, fabricating evidence and bribe receiving as a result of a one-man grand jury investigation of alleged corruption in the Department of Transportation.

Moynahan said a full hearing by the high court was necessitated by the "great public interest" in the issues raised in the appeals and possible ramifications of those issues.

Massameno said he expected the Supreme Court to decide within a week or so whether to hold a full hearing on the appeals.

GOP names board picks

HARTFORD (UPI) — Sidney P. Marland Jr., who served for a time as President Richard Nixon's education commissioner, has been named to Connecticut's new governing board of higher education.

Marland, who served as U.S. education commissioner from 1970 to 1972, and Dr. Thomas Aquila of Weston, a veteran school administrator, were named Tuesday to the 11-member Board of Governors by House Minority Leader R.E. Van Norstrand, R-Darien.

The other two named by Senate Minority Leader Philip Robertson, R-Cheshire, were Anne Egan-Kraig, 41, a New Canaan businesswoman, and Edmund B. Piccolino, 42, of Darien, an executive of the PepsiCo Co. in Purchase, New York.

Grant use ideas set over two objections

BOLTON — The Board of Selectmen Tuesday approved a set of items totaling about $27,000 to be proposed at the revenue sharing hearing March 15. But the action did not come without dissent from two board members, Carl A. Preuss and Norman B. Carpenter, who will bring up their ideas at the hearing as well.

The four proposed items are a trailer for $10,000, a new police cruiser for $10,400, a used highway roller for $2,000 and materials to renovate the old library for $5,000.

There is about 26,000 available in unallocated revenue sharing money, with another $2,000 that has been left unexpended from prior projects, officials said.

Mrs. Carpenter voted against the motion, saying she was against buying a new police cruiser. The cruiser has 83,000 miles on it, Administrator Karen R. Levine said Tuesday at the meeting.

First Selectman Henry P. Ryba said officials hope to use the old cruiser for a town vehicle, used mostly by the assessor. Mrs. Carpenter said the car might be worth more on resale, and that that possibility should be considered before buying a new cruiser.

Preuss offered an entirely different approach to spending the money. He said the money shouldn't be spent until the selectmen and ultimately the townspeople decide whether to vote for a large bonding issue to pay for construction and renovations to one to three buildings.

"If we go for a bond issue, I'd rather see it used to pay for administrative fees," he said.

These fees will be about $25,000, to be paid before the issue is granted by the bank.

The selectmen and other town officials have been talking about bonding for three buildings, a new town garage, a new fire station and renovations to the community hall. Estimates on all the projects put the total at over $1 million.

Ryba said the town needs the proposed equipment, and that the selectmen can't be sure these items will be put in the budget. The finance board will adjust the budget and then townspeople have the final say at the annual town meeting in May.

"I'm not happy about this situation," said Longmeadow Selectwoman Ann Q. Southworth. "We should at least get some facts and figures from Springfield officials."

Selectmen in Longmeadow also act as the three-member Board of Health.

Springfield is waiting for permission from the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering and the federal Environmental Protection Agency for the plan.

GOP chairman suggests designating town birthday

BOLTON — The Republican town chairman, a candidate for selectman, said Tuesday he would like to see the selectmen designate a birthday for the town and hold it in conjunction with a planned student-government day.

Lawrence A. Converse told the selectmen Tuesday at their regular meeting that since Bolton doesn't have a certain birthday, the selectmen might pick one.

The town was founded in October or November of 1720. "I would like the selectmen to propose a birthday, and in that proclamation to ask townspeople to use that day for reflection on the history of Bolton," Converse said.

Selectman Carl A. Preuss, as has been reported, brought up the idea of having students from the high school take over the helm of town government for a day as an enhancement to their curriculum. School officials back the idea, and are waiting for a firm date to be proposed.

Converse said by naming a town birthday, the school could take over on a set day each year. He said school officials need to know the date before the start of the school year, if the proposed student-government day will take place in October or November.

The selectmen indicated that they will consider the idea.

Colchester dump targeted

HARTFORD (UPI) — Attorney General Joseph L. Lieberman has targeted Municipal Enterprises Inc. because operators of the Colchester dump have violated orders to correct pollution problems.

Lieberman said Tuesday he would try to close the dump he said is described by the state Department of Environmental Protection as having one of the worst leachate problems in the state.

Lieberman said dump operator violated a DEP order "designed to alleviate their pollution problem at the landfill."

"They violated that order, and have refused to come in compliance, even after generous extensions. It is now time to close the site," Lieberman said.

He said the state's suit against the company will be filed this week in Hartford Superior Court.

DEP said runoff from the dump is contaminating local drinking water sources and tributaries of the Salmon River.

The leaching problem was discovered by the DEP in May, 1982. Former Attorney General Carl R. Ajello initiated a suit against the company.

Springfield plan threat to salmon

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — A plan to dump raw sewage into the Connecticut River could threaten a salmon restoration project, an environmental activist says.

David Sieckel, president of the Connecticut River Ecology Action Corp., asked the state Environmental Affairs office in a letter Tuesday to intervene in the plan. He called on the office to conduct a study on the environmental impact of the plan related to the salmon project.

"Springfield's proposal could irreparably damage the salmon restoration program in the Connecticut River," he said. "Salmon will be migrating into the Connecticut system during the time that raw sewage is being discharged."

Connecticut officials have already protested the plan. Some legislative leaders are threatening to take the question to court. Two Massachusetts towns are also uneasy about the plan. Agawam and Longmeadow officials said they aren't completely against it, but want to know more about the developments.

"We know that the state wetlands laws apply here and since we border on the river we have a great interest in what's going on," said Neil H. Blatt, chairman of the Agawam Conservation Commission.

In Longmeadow, selectmen voted unanimously Monday to investigate whether the sewage could pose a health hazard to residents along the riverbank.

"I'm not happy about this situation," said Longmeadow Selectwoman Ann Q. Southworth. "We should at least get some facts and figures from Springfield officials."

Selectmen in Longmeadow also act as the three-member Board of Health.

Springfield is waiting for permission from the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering and the federal Environmental Protection Agency for the plan.

Aillon faces third trial

HARTFORD (UPI) — It has been the basis for an unsuccessful claim of double jeopardy; it cannot now be the basis for yet a renewed claim of double jeopardy.

Aillon, now 45 and free on $200,000 bail since December 1977, was charged in the deaths of his estranged wife, Barbara, and her parents, J. George and Bernice Montana of North Haven. Their bodies were found in August 1972 in the Montana's ranch-style home.

Aillon has custody of his daughter by Barbara, Catherine Victoria. She was an infant when her mother died.

Hartford Superior Court judge said a third trial would begin and estimated it would last one month. Markle declined to estimate the cost of the three trials.

"You can't estimate the cost of justice," he said.

The state Supreme Court, in a unanimous ruling released Tuesday, upheld a New Haven Superior Court decision that rejected Aillon's motion to dismiss the three murder charges because he said a third trial constituted double jeopardy.

Aillon, a native of Bolivia who lives in East Hartford, was convicted on three counts of murder in 1973 but the verdict was overturned because the trial judge talked to one of the jurors. His second trial in 1978 ended in a mistrial.

"The trial judge's misconduct has been the basis for a successful motion to set aside the first verdict," the Supreme Court said in an opinion written by Associate Justice Ellen

WHALERS' PIERRE LACROIX AND GOALIE MIKE VEISOR prepare to foil goal-scoring try by Buffalo's Lindy Ruff

Frustration shows in Whaler defeat

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Hartford Whalers are nearing mathematical elimination from the NHL playoffs, and the frustration is beginning to show. "We've lost some close games, and you don't lose those type of games because of lack of effort," said Whalers' Coach Larry Pleau Tuesday night after Hartford dropped a 6-5 decision to the Buffalo Sabres.

The Whalers are 29 points behind the fourth-place Quebec Nordiques in the NHL's Adams Division with 15 games remaining. Quebec needs two points to eliminate Hartford. "It's been frustrating, especially in a game like this where you think you deserve to get a few calls and don't," said Hartford's Ron Francis, who had two goals in the losing effort.

Pleau was equally upset with referee Bob Hall. "We've only had two power plays in our last two home games," Pleau said. "Go to any other building in the NHL and see if that happens. We've lost some close games, and you don't lose those type of games because of lack of effort," said Whalers' Coach Larry Pleau Tuesday night after Hartford dropped a 6-5 decision to the Buffalo Sabres.

Baseball and NBC-TV have five-year pact

NEW YORK (UPI) — Major-league baseball and NBC-TV have agreed on a new five-year agreement that grants the network half of the sport's national television contract.

The pact was announced Tuesday by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and NBC-TV sports president Arthur A. Watson. Financial terms were not disclosed.

Under the terms of the contract, NBC Sports will have exclusive telecast rights to the World Series in 1984, 1986 and 1988 and the League Championship Series and All-Star Game in 1985 and 1987.

Spring training camps Cubs lean and hungry

By United Press International

The Chicago Cubs are lean and hungry and the team hopes its "low-fat" approach will produce a better physical condition Tuesday than most young players as Chicago's training camp officially opened in Mesa, Ariz.

Cyr scored on a power play at 1:52 of the second period before Hartford spurred behind goals by Francis and Ray Neufeld to cut the lead to 4-3.

"We kind of let down in the second period and let the Whalers take the play away from us," Saue said.

Montreal gains tie

Islanders' defenseman caught with pants down

By United Press International

Montreal rookie Guy Carbonneau caught New York Islanders defenseman Paul Reinhart with his pants down Tuesday night.

Carbonneau's shot that bounced off Reinhart's pants past New York goaltender Billy Smith enabled the Canadiens to salvage a 3-2 tie after blowing a 2-0 lead in the third period at Montreal.

Carbonneau's second goal of the game, coming with 90 seconds left, stretched the Canadiens' unbeaten streak to five games.

"We should have won," Smith said. "That last goal was a fluke. I hit the pants of my defenseman and bounced behind me. We were 90 seconds away from the victory, but that is still a minute and a half." The Islanders had gone ahead 3-2 on John Tonelli's goal at 8:14 of the period off a long pass from Mike Bossy.

"It's hard to understand it," Carbonneau said. "We played great for the first two periods and only allowed them to get 11 shots, but all of a sudden in the third we go on defense and look what happens." Islanders defenseman Tomas

Celtics adjusted, crush Kings

BOSTON (UPI) — Danny Ainge said it was only "a matter of adjustment" and those adjustments came in the third quarter — enough of a spur to give the Boston Celtics a cushy 129-111 victory over the Kansas City Kings in the second round of the playoffs.

"It was a matter of adjustment and it took time before we adjusted," said Ainge, who scored eight points to help bring the third quarter Tuesday night. "We just outlasted and outbreathed them. The third quarter was about as good as we can play."

Trailing 68-64 at halftime, Boston ran off a 20-4 spur over the first 5:45 of the third quarter, giving the Celtics an 84-74 lead. Robert Parish threw in 10 points in the spur.

Spring training camps

Cubs lean and hungry

By United Press International

The Chicago Cubs are lean and hungry and the team hopes its "low-fat" approach will produce a better physical condition Tuesday than most young players as Chicago's training camp officially opened in Mesa, Ariz.

Cyr scored on a power play at 1:52 of the second period before Hartford spurred behind goals by Francis and Ray Neufeld to cut the lead to 4-3.

"We kind of let down in the second period and let the Whalers take the play away from us," Saue said.

STEVE CARLTON GETTING READY ... for another season with Phillies

The World Series was so much fun, I'd like to do it again, said Steve Carlton, who is working out during spring training Monday in St. Petersburg, Fla. "I got in again, it would be more fun because we could handle it better."

Pitcher Joaquin Andujar, who did not report with the rest of the team, said he was arriving to join all 39 players on the Louisville roster.

Rain took its toll on Florida workouts. The Cardinals' season was reduced because of inclement weather, while wet grounds and gusty winds slowed the New York Mets' workout for the third straight day.

76ers off to best start in 37-year NBA history

By JEFF HASEN UPI Sports Writer

This 11' only be meaningful if we win a championship. New York, winner of 14 of its previous 17 games, trailed 77-70 after three periods, Philadelphia extended the lead to 13 points on two baskets by Johnson and one by Toney.

"We had good concentration and good intensity," Toney said. "We have a job to do and we do it." Bill Cartwright led the Knicks with 18 points and Bernard King added 17. The 76ers rode 15 points from Toney and 13 from Malone to a 58-47 halftime lead.

Hawks 109, Pacers 106 At Atlanta, Dominique Wilkins scored 26 points and Eddie Johnson added 25 to spark the Hawks to their fourth straight victory. Indiana got 23 points from Herb Williams.

Bucks 101, Bulls 99 At Landover, Md., Sidney Moncrief scored 32 points, including Milwaukee's final nine points led by the Bucks. Jeff Ruland paced Washington with 25 points, followed by Greg Ballard with 18 and Ricky Sobers with 15.

Hockey fans support fights

Hockey fans are unbelievable. For example, when the Boston Bruins and Hartford Whalers tangled last Sunday afternoon at the Hartford Civic Center, and the word tangle is used lightly, the biggest points on the applause meter went to the unscheduled main bout combatants, minus their gloves.

Herald Angle, Sports Editor

The pair was involved in two first period beat-ups, one at the east end of the coliseum, and for the benefit of all ticket holders, moved their act to center ice for bout No. 2 after being released from the penalty box for having served five-minute majors.

Kuzak, at least against Hartford, has all the earmarks of becoming a fan favorite. Personally, both Anderson and Kuzak should have been suspended for longer periods. If the two some want to fight, bare-knuckle style, they should get into the boxing field.

Anderson's contributions this season to the Whaler cause have been minimal to say the least. It's been a frustrating year, one he would rather forget, and Whaler fans, too. Both combatants, once separated, after holding up the game for several minutes, were given early exits to the showers by referee Ron Wicks who assessed game misconduct penalties.

Notes off the cuff Speaking of hockey, former Manchester High athlete Jack Gustafson has an athlete in his family. Jack, manager of the Mal Tool plant in Rutland, Vt., has seen his 15-year-old son, Darrell, help Rutland High to a 17-0 record. The younger Gustafson has tallied 52 points. In February, he was named Rutland Athlete-of-the-Month after scoring 13 goals and 37 assists in six games. He's only a sophomore and already being watched carefully by college and pro scouts.

TONY BRUN AND RAFAEL ADDISON OF SYRACUSE ... battle Villanova's Ed Pinckney for basketball

Winfield and Don Baylor in the middle of the batting order will combine for a total of 390 RBI this year, they knocked in 287 last season.

Joe Rudi, one of several candidates for the Oakland A's first base job, did not meet Tuesday's reporting deadline. Rudi, 36, has been bothered by chronic soreness in both Achilles tendons and requires permission to remain at home in Baker, Ore.

Missouri rules Big Eight for fourth straight year

By Fred Lief UPI Sports Writer

The Big Eight — property of Missouri. The Tigers, ranked ninth in the country, renewed their effort for the Big Eight title Tuesday night by beating Kansas State 49-47 to claim the league crown for an unprecedented fourth straight year.

Elsewhere, Auburn, behind Odell Mosteller's 20 points, hammered Mississippi 82-69 to give Kentucky the regular-season Southeastern Conference title. Marc Marotta scored a basket and a free throw to give Missouri a 74-69 in a Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference playoff game.

Representatives of the league and the players met Tuesday for nearly a half hour and then broke off negotiations. No new date was set to resume talks.

The Tigers ran their record to 25-6 and eliminated Oklahoma off No. 5 Villanova 79-78. In a Big East confrontation before a Carrier Dome crowd of 28,271 at Syracuse, N.Y., Erich Sautler scored 21 points and Tony Brun had 19 (7-for-8 shooting) for the Orangemen, who rallied from a seven-point deficit in the second half. Villanova, 21-5, was led by John Pinone with 23 points and Ed Pinckney with 17.

Martin's version of tiring by A's

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — For the first time since being fired by the Oakland A's nearly five months ago, Billy Martin offered his version of the underlying reason they let him go as well as the details surrounding the firing.

Martin then got to the controversial contest in Toronto last Sept. 16. The A's had lost the first game, 3-2, and after the Blue Jays came up with seven runs in the bottom of the fourth in the nightcap to lead 8-1, Martin left the dugout and I got ballpark. It was generally assumed he couldn't take the A's problem about it. 'Just drop in Monday,' he said. When I did, he said, 'Well, we've decided to replace you. You want to talk about it?' I said no. I was shocked. I didn't ask him for any reason and he didn't give me one.

This book tells how to cook your husband

THE RECIPES IN THIS BOOK
Have been selected with the greatest care and best judgment, but to obtain good results you should use THE GLENWOOD RANGE "MAKES COOKING EASY."

Lemon Sponge Pie
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
Butter the size of an egg (melted)
Yolks of 2 eggs
1 cup milk
1 lemon
(Juice and grated rind)
2 egg whites
1 unshaped pie shell
Cream together the sugar, butter and egg yolks. Add lemon juice and grated rind. Add milk and beat thoroughly. Beat egg whites to a stiff froth and fold into the mixture gently. Line pie plate with the crust and bake about one-half hour at 400 degrees then reduce heat to 325 and bake for 30 minutes.

Good Ginger Bread
1 cup boiling water
1 cup shortening
1 cup white or brown sugar
1 cup molasses
1 to 2 eggs
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
Four boiling water over shortening. Add sugar, molasses and eggs that have been beaten. Then add dry ingredients and beat with an egg beater until smooth. You have to use your own judgment about what temperature to use for baking and how long to bake it.

Boston Tea Room Cake
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons butter
5 tablespoons cocoa
1/2 cup water
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
Old cookbooks were short on directions so I have to assume you put this together the way you would any other cake and put it together with a filling made with a cup of coffee, 1/2 cup sugar, heaping tablespoon cornstarch or flour, 1 square chocolate, a tablespoon butter and a teaspoon vanilla. Boil until thick.

Raspberry Bavarian Cream
2 cups raspberries
1 cup currants
1/2 cups powdered sugar
1 cup whipping cream
1/4 teaspoon granulated gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
1 cup whipping cream

Lemon Snowballs
3 egg yolks
1 cup sugar
Lime juice
1 tablespoon water
Grated rind 1 lemon
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
Mix all of the ingredients together and pour into buttered cupcake tins and steam one-half hour. Turn out, roll in powdered sugar and serve with a lemon or almond sauce.

Let firms know if you're dissatisfied

By Martin Sloane

What would you do if you opened up a jar of baby food and found that it was very watery, and you opened up another and another and found the same thing? "The contents poured out like juice," says Nina Gasper of Rockford, Minn. "I was so upset that I wrote to the Gerber people telling them about this problem, and I included a label from one of the jars." Many consumers writing for the first time to a company about a product problem aren't sure whether they will receive a response. It is usually anger and frustration that makes them take pen in hand, and after seeing the envelope they consider that the writing helped them release a few tensions. ...

Becky Winch of Mayman, Wis., saw one brand of bathroom tissue priced at $1.69, but noticed that the wrapper on the package of Northern tissue indicated that there was a 15-cent Northern coupon inside. Even though the Northern was priced at $1.13, Becky thought the coupon made it a better buy and purchased four packages.

"When I got home, I discovered that there weren't any coupons inside any of the packages," says Becky. "I wrote the company and they then how disappointed I was. I only asked for the four 15-cent coupons I was entitled to and my postage. Imagine my surprise when I received a nice apology letter and coupons for two free packages of tissues. It certainly pays to let the companies know when you have a problem."

PEOPLE PHIL ROURA - TOM POSTER EXCLUSIVE!

Advice from Pia: 'Be true to yourself'

Tiny Pia Zadora says she was so ugly as a baby that her mother shouted at the nurses, "Take her away!"

The blonde actress, who is regarded by some as the American Brigitte Bardot, told People Exclusive that her blonde, blue-eyed mother, Nina Schlessel, had expected an infant that looked like herself. "Out came this black-haired, fat little baby. I was a blue baby," laughed Zadora in retelling her mother's story. "My mother yelled, 'Oh, no, no way. That is not my baby. Take her away.'"

"I was born on Fifth Avenue in Flower Hospital, but we lived in Hoboken, then moved to Brooklyn and then to Forest Hills," Zadora made her debut with Talishah Bankhead on Broadway when she was only six years old.

"My mother is a wardrobe mistress, so she had me auditioning for all the child parts," said Pia. "I must have been in a hundred flops, but I watched all the great stars and learned from them. I even did a show that opened and closed in Philadelphia with Robert Preston. Nobody really remembers me because I was the little kid. Like in 'Fiddler on the Roof.' I was in it for so long, but nobody paid attention to me because I never got to grow up."

Zadora, who has used her mother's maiden name since childhood, is married to a man older than her father. Her husband, Melcham Hildes, owns the Riviera Hotel in Las Vegas and scores of corporations across the country. That's one big reason for her success—his willingness to pump a fortune into producing her ventures. Another is Zadora's willingness to accept how she got to be a "star." Like Brigitte Bardot, she took her clothes off.

Does it bother her at all? "No, people don't want to see me in a nun's robes. I have a good body. It's part of what I do. As long as you're true to yourself. That's the millionaires doesn't hurt."

Nixon impressions are back in vogue

Interest in Richard M. Nixon seems to be mounting these days. Take for example, the experience of impersonator David Frye. Frye made a small fortune poking fun at Nixon, but after Watergate, Nixon's popularity as a comic figure took a nose dive. Not anymore.

Today, says Frye, Nixon is almost invariably the first name that comes up when he asks for audience requests. In both big cities and small towns, it's Nixon all the way.

But that's not the only indicator. A portrait of Nixon, painted by Gloria Schussman and offered as an "official inauguration portrait" by a Los Angeles based firm called investment Matchmakers, is up for sale at a record $125,000.

Although his old movies are still well-received (many are classics and are shown all the time on late-night television), the real life story of James Cagney has never been presented on film, TV or stage.

But now, it's possible that all three will come in rapid succession. Cagney, who made his comeback in "Ragtime," wrote "Cagney on Cagney" himself a few years ago. And he recently agreed to recall little-known details about his life for a new book by Hollywood writer Doug Warren. It will be published by St. Martin's Press next fall. Warren did a book on Betty Grable that Cagney liked, which is why he agreed to cooperate with Warren. Warren's book may be made into a movie, while other writers are working on a musical and others are weighing a TV spectacular or mini-series.

In fact, Cagney says 1983 could be his best year. His wish: "All I look forward to is being able to get to working again."

He says he started as a country-western singer during the Depression-Ridden days when he slept on benches in New York's Central Park and lived mostly on Baby Ruth candy bars. "I've always been a country-western singer," said Laine, "but they have refused to accept me as one. I'm too well established as a pop singer."

Right now, Laine is the headliner of a revue called "Stardust," which started in California, also starring Hillsdale, Alan Jones, Kyle Goveas, Mary Healy, Vivian Blaine and Peter Lynn Hayes.

Gale stops royal sail

By Helen Thomas
UPI White House Reporter

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — A Pacific gale that whipped up 18-foot seas forced Queen Elizabeth, Prince Philip and first lady Nancy Reagan to cancel their yacht trip today and instead fly to San Francisco.

It was determined just before midnight Tuesday the 400-mile trip up the coast would be too treacherous.

"Because of possible delays due to continuous storms, her majesty Queen Elizabeth II and his royal highness Prince Philip will fly to San Francisco from Long Beach," British Consulate spokesman John Houlton said late Tuesday.

The queen, Philip and Mrs. Reagan planned to spend the night at the St. Francis Hotel. The royal yacht, the 412-foot, 5,700-ton Britannia, will sail to San Francisco at a time to be announced later, Houlton said. It was not known if it would arrive in time for the queen's Friday night party planned aboard the royal yacht in celebration of President and Mrs. Reagan's 31st wedding anniversary.

Earlier, the queen reportedly was determined not to allow the foul weather to seriously interfere with her tour. But thunderstorms continued to lash California today and the National Weather Service announced a gale warning for the Southern California coast with winds gusting to 45 mph and 18-foot seas.

Irish nationalist protesters, allied with anti-Reagan forces, said they planned a large demonstration in San Francisco against the queen and the president. But the White House didn't anticipate any problems.

"I don't think there are any security problems," said White House spokesman Eric Rosenberger, who said the queen and the president forged their way through fierce rain Tuesday to hold a soggy social summit at Reagan's ranch.

The prince and queen originally were scheduled to sail to Santa Barbara in the Britannia Tuesday to meet the Reagans, but the voyage was canceled when one of the worst storms to strike Southern California in years hit late Monday, causing flooding, landslides, power failures, some deaths and tornadoes.

Although there had been talk of canceling the trip as too dangerous, they overcame all obstacles.

The queen and her party were ferried through the flooded streets of Long Beach in a battered U.S. Navy bus to a waiting U.S. Air Force DC-8.

An earthquake shook the Los Angeles area a short time after the royal couple left, but the westerner was not felt in the Santa Barbara region, about 80 miles to the north.

The queen, who does not like helicopters even in good weather, drew the line at riding in one to Reagan's Rancho del Cielo, Spanish for "ranch of the sky."

Instead, Reagan and the first lady met the queen and Prince Philip at the Santa Barbara airport and put them in a four-wheel drive wagon for the return trip, passing neighboring ranchers, who stood in the rain in Western attire with a sign "Welcome Liz and Phil."

They lunched on Mexican chicken soup, enchiladas, tacos, refried beans, rice and guacamole.

Victor Borge: He plans to live to 100

At 74, Victor Borge thinks he can keep playing concerts and doing keyboard comedy until he's 100. "Why not? All my family have lived long lives," Borge insisted. "Why, my grandmother lived over Napoleon."

But long life also requires some form of regimen and careful diet, does it not? "I don't think so, as long as you keep active, and keep doing something. For me, I work in the garden and play the piano, and that's enough to keep a body moving."

"I also don't eat Danish pastry. Never, not in this country. In Denmark I eat them, but we call them Vienna bread, which is nothing as heavy as American Danish pastry. Did I say my grandmother lived over Napoleon? Maybe I should say that she lived during Napoleon."

Borge peers over his favorite scarf.

CBS leads ratings again

NEW YORK (UPI) — Even with its final episode — which overnight ratings indicate may be the most watched 2½-hour show in television history — still pending, "M-A-S-H" was solidly in the Nielsen Top 10 last week to assure another weekly prime-time win for CBS.

CBS even stole the march on NBC's series "9 to 5" by running the "9 to 5" feature film on which it was based into first place in the weekly ratings race.

CBS was first with an overall prime-time rating of 20.1 and audience share on 31 ABC was a distant second at 17.3 and 27, and NBC brought up the rear, despite a favorable showing for its mini-series "Rage of Angels," at 15.3 and 24.

Even though it remained in its perennial third-place position, NBC at least was able to boost its long-suffering "Hill Street Blues" and its new entry, "The A Team," was looking like a hit.

"Hill Street Blues" was 18th on the list with a rating of 20.1 and

"The A Team" was one step ahead of it, in 17th place at 20.2.

The top 10 programs for the week ending Feb. 27, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., were:

1. CBS Movie: 9 to 5 (CBS)
2. Dallas (CBS)
3. 60 Minutes (CBS)
4. Magnum, P.I. (CBS)
5. M-A-S-H (CBS)
6. Three's Company (ABC)
7. Rage of Angels, Part II (NBC)
8. ABC Series: 9 to 5 (ABC)
9. The Love Boat (ABC)
10. Grammy Awards (CBS)

CBS leads ratings again

NEW YORK (UPI) — Even with its final episode — which overnight ratings indicate may be the most watched 2½-hour show in television history — still pending, "M-A-S-H" was solidly in the Nielsen Top 10 last week to assure another weekly prime-time win for CBS.

CBS even stole the march on NBC's series "9 to 5" by running the "9 to 5" feature film on which it was based into first place in the weekly ratings race.

CBS was first with an overall prime-time rating of 20.1 and audience share on 31 ABC was a distant second at 17.3 and 27, and NBC brought up the rear, despite a favorable showing for its mini-series "Rage of Angels," at 15.3 and 24.

Even though it remained in its perennial third-place position, NBC at least was able to boost its long-suffering "Hill Street Blues" and its new entry, "The A Team," was looking like a hit.

"Hill Street Blues" was 18th on the list with a rating of 20.1 and

"The A Team" was one step ahead of it, in 17th place at 20.2.

The top 10 programs for the week ending Feb. 27, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., were:

1. CBS Movie: 9 to 5 (CBS)
2. Dallas (CBS)
3. 60 Minutes (CBS)
4. Magnum, P.I. (CBS)
5. M-A-S-H (CBS)
6. Three's Company (ABC)
7. Rage of Angels, Part II (NBC)
8. ABC Series: 9 to 5 (ABC)
9. The Love Boat (ABC)
10. Grammy Awards (CBS)

internationalist, although he has never finished better than second in a world championship. John is the younger at age 38, but has done remarkably well.

In today's hand we find them bidding away merrily with the spade suit and very few cards. They did jam their opponents' trumps around up at three spades doubled.

The two-spade call was one of those weak jump overcalls. In fact, it was so weak that the opposite South, who also used that type bid, merely passed.

Bill raised John to three spades. East doubled to show good cards and to ask West to bid. But West converted the double into one for penalties by passing.

At the other table, Edgar and Norman bid along merrily until interference to reach three no-trump. This made for an overtrick and plus-450. This was a clear win for the team in this board-a-match event. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

No money in 'M-A-S-H'

HARTFORD (UPI) — The drawing of the Connecticut Lottery Play Four number Tuesday was a disappointment to many state residents who hoped to parlay the success of the hit television series "M-A-S-H" into big money.

The number 4077, as in "M-A-S-H 4077," was played heavily by Connecticut residents. Interest in the number was so great officials had to stop taking bets on it when the potential financial payoff reached the $6-million liability mark.

But instead of digits of TV's Medical Army Surgical Hospital coming up, the number 2176 was drawn.

By state law, the lottery has to suspend play on a number when the possible payoff on that number and all of its combinations exceeds a certain limit, a lottery official said.

For the Connecticut Lottery Daily number game, the liability limit is $5 million, the spokesman said.

News for senior citizens

Seniors have wealth of information

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Senior Center. It appears in the Manchester Herald on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

By Jeannette Cove
Senior Center Director

Over the weekend I had the pleasure of talking to my grandmother, Maggie Goldsmith. Well into her 80s, she is alive and vibrant, enjoying good health and a sound mind. If younger people only took time to listen to the many experiences of their older relatives. When speaking to my mother, who will officially be graced with the title of senior citizen at the end of the year, I kept saying, "Did you know that?" She did, but nobody bothered to share with the young.

All of this is to say that seniors have such a wealth of information to share that is of interest. Whether you write it down, record it on tape, tell it to someone, do it. Entitle it "When I was 17" — those were the days "or whatever you like. If you are interested in using a guideline or learning more about how to record your personal history, give me a call.

NEW PROGRAMS will start in March. Please make note of times and dates. The Arthritis program sponsored by the Public Health Nurses association will be repeated. Monday, at 1:30 p.m. and will continue for 10 weeks. Nancy Nettleton, group leader, along with others, developed sessions that deal with defining arthritis and its symptoms, exercise, diet, medications, etc. The first session will be with a doctor who specializes in treating arthritis patients.

Other center activities are as follows:
Saturday: Variety Show Rehearsal 2:30 to 8:30 p.m.
Thursday: Slide presentation of the Senior Center history.
Monday: New Exercise Program begins — will run every Monday and Wednesday.
March 10: "Use and Abuse of Legally Prescribed Drugs" with Henry Seitzer, a retired pharmacist.
March 12: 2:30-5:30 p.m. variety show rehearsal.
March 16: St. Patrick's Day trip — openings still available. $17.
March 17: St. Patrick's Day party at the center. 1 p.m. no charge. The senior center orchestra will entertain you. (No evening dance for this occasion).
March 21: 1 p.m. Brown bag day
March 21: 7 p.m. golf meeting
March 24: Mary Dunphy will entertain you with belly dancing.
March 31: An African Safari slide presentation by John Churlia from his recent trip to Kenya.
Tickets will be on sale for the 10th annual variety show "Let's Do It Again!" for a donation of $5 for adults and $2.50 for children 12 and under. They may be purchased through a senior member or at the center. You may also have your name in the program by being a patron. Patron donations may be sent to the center, 549 East Middle Turnpike or through a senior. Help our last show to be the best. All proceeds will go to support the meals program.

Inmate donors rejected

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — A group of inmates at the Maine State Prison are miffed that the Red Cross won't accept their offer to donate more than 300 pints of blood. But the Red Cross says the inmates represent too high a health risk.
Garry Mitchell, chairman of a prison organization called the Long Timer's Group, wrote letters to the Red Cross and to news organizations saying he would like more information on why the donations are being refused.
"On Oct. 29, 1982, you wrote to us and told us that our blood was unacceptable because of some sort of high risk," Mitchell wrote in a letter to Michael C. Arnold in Portland, administrator of American Red Cross Blood Services for Massachusetts and Maine.

All uglies welcomed

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Knoxville, which is hosting the $600,000 Miss USA pageant this year, also will be the scene of the $6 ugly contest.

That award will go to the ugliest person in the city, regardless of sex.
"We don't discriminate on sex or religion or any of that stuff," said Virgil Davis, secretary-treasurer of the Ugly Club. "If you're ugly you don't have to have anything in front of your name."

Knoxville, which staged a World's Fair last year, will host this year's Miss USA Pageant, a two-week extravaganza culminating with the crowning of Miss USA May 13.
Davis, whose Ugly Club has attracted 25 members in its year of existence, said proceeds from the contest will go to local charities. The contest, he said, will cost $6 to conduct, compared to $600,000 for the Miss USA pageant.
"People kept telling us how ugly we are, so we banded together," Davis said.

Apprenticeships great — if you can get one

Recently the district council of the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners in New York City announced the availability of a small number of apprenticeships in the chill of early winter, hundreds of people lined up and waited outside throughout the night to apply.

Your Money's Worth
Sylvia Porter

AS THIS TALE underscores, opportunities to learn skilled trades through apprenticeships still do exist. But their number has been sharply curtailed and competition is fierce. And now more than ever, the passport to an apprenticeship consists of a strong educational background plus equally strong perseverance, says Ken Edwards, director of skill improvement and training of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. The educational level of the IBEW's apprentices has risen steadily.

Here, too, the number of apprentices has been falling — from 50,000 IBEW apprentices in 1979 in the United States and Canada to 32,000 now.
In total, the Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training of the Labor Department reports registrations down from 324,000 in 1979 to 283,000 in 1982. A flickering bright spot: The percentage of minority and women apprentices is up (but the actual numbers may not have improved at all).
The overall upsurge in unemployment is, of course, a major factor. Both the bureau and union observers agree that organizations sponsoring apprentices don't train many new ones in economic downturns.

New slots do occur, nevertheless — a vital point if a steady flow of skilled workers into our nation's pool of employees is to be maintained. And the advantages of an apprenticeship appear even more glittering in times such as we have been experiencing.

AN APPRENTICESHIP offers the chance to learn a business from the bottom up through detailed instruction and real experience, both on the job and in the classroom. The result: a grounding in the practical as well as theoretical aspects of a particular skilled occupation.
If you choose to compete for an apprenticeship — and if you succeed against the competition — you will have the opportunity to increase your future employability and earnings potential. While you apprentice, you also will be guaranteed a wage and regular wage increases. When you complete your training, you will be recognized as skilled in your craft.

Apprentices are not guaranteed against adverse economic conditions in their occupation or in the nation. They can be laid off, too.

Generally, apprenticeships run from one to five years, depending on the trade. Requirements differ for each trade, as you might expect — but most programs expect applicants to be at least 16 years old and to have a high school education.
What may astound you is the enormous range of skilled occupations that accept apprentices: Most are in construction, manufacturing, transportation and the service industries. But a key trend is the rise in opportunities in the health occupations.
Dental technicians, for instance... biomedical equipment technicians... physical therapy technicians... These are examples of those who can learn their skills through apprenticeships. The Bureau of Apprenticeships and Training recognizes more than 700 other occupations, from air-conditioning mechanics to X-ray technicians, that accept apprentices.
The apprenticeship programs are operated by an employer, a group of employers, or union — with employers and unions frequently combining in joint apprenticeship committees that plan and administer programs and set requirements. Most are registered with the BAT and state apprenticeship agencies.

If the concept of learning a skilled trade through a structured, systematic program of on-the-job training plus supplementary classes appeals to you (it will to countless numbers), one of the 10 regional offices of the BAT will give you more information.
Ask for a copy of the BAT pamphlet "Apprenticeship Information." You'll find the offices listed in your phone book's white pages. State apprenticeship agencies and local employment service agencies also can provide you with current facts about programs and opportunities.

Apprenticeships date back more than 4,000 years to the Babylonian artisans who instituted them to pass on their skills. The tradition continues into an era of technology undreamed of by the ancients.

In proposed bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., and senators from four other states moved Tuesday to make private industry a contributor to any matching grant program Congress might approve to aid high technology education.
The push came in the form of legislation introduced by Tsongas, which would provide about $2.5 billion in federal aid to high technology education projects that were joint ventures of states, schools and private industry.
The bill joins several others currently pending in Congress that would create grant or matching grant programs for educational programs that concentrate on science and technology.
However, the Tsongas measure specifically includes a requirement that private industry participate along with a state in order for a project to qualify for federal matching funds.
Mitch Tyson, a legislative assistant to Tsongas, said it was that aspect of the bill that Tsongas and his fellow sponsors hoped to get included in any compromise legislation that might emerge from Congress.

Industry aid sought for high tech

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., and senators from four other states moved Tuesday to make private industry a contributor to any matching grant program Congress might approve to aid high technology education.
The push came in the form of legislation introduced by Tsongas, which would provide about $2.5 billion in federal aid to high technology education projects that were joint ventures of states, schools and private industry.
The bill joins several others currently pending in Congress that would create grant or matching grant programs for educational programs that concentrate on science and technology.
However, the Tsongas measure specifically includes a requirement that private industry participate along with a state in order for a project to qualify for federal matching funds.

Co-sponsoring the measure along with Tsongas resources on federal lands. The 3 percent would be placed in a Technology Education Trust Fund, and then made available for the grants through annual appropriations, he said.

To qualify for the matching grant, a project would have to have a state contribute 30 percent and private industry 20 percent of the total project costs.
It would also have to meet several other criteria, including a belief that the project could not be accomplished without the grant.
Tyson said the 20 percent to 30 percent state-industry split could be changed and that in some cases industry could pick up more state costs.
Tsongas dubbed the measure the "High Technology Morrill Act," after the Morrill Act of 1862, which set aside 17 million acres of federal land for the founding of agricultural colleges.
A thought for the day: American patriot Thomas Paine said, "Those who expect to reap the blessings of freedom must... undergo the fatigue of supporting it."
