Graduates already?

Minister Eugene Brewer of the Church of Christ on Lydall Street Friday presented "diplomas" to students of the "Friday School" run by the church. Classes of three- and four-year-old children are staffed by volunteers and run for 10 weeks during the fall and spring. The program, which capped its eighth year Friday, started with one class of 10 children. It has grown to four classes totalling 32 students and now has a waiting list. Right, Brewer presents a diploma to Kristen McKee. Below left, graduate Kelley Chamery thinks about what comes next. ## Four more leave EPA

By Gregory Gordon United Press International
WASHINGTON — Four more top officials of the Environmental Protection Agency have resigned in a new round of housecleaning at the agency, where 20 political appointees have left their jobs since it became embroiled in controversy, a spokesman said Friday.
The latest to resign, on William Ruckelshaus' second day as EPA administrator, included Frederic Eidsness, assistant administrator for water, and Kathleen Bennett, assistant administrator for air, noise and radiation.
Two regional administrators, Peter Bibko of Philadelphia and Lester Sutton of Boston, also resigned, EPA spokesman Rusty Brashear said.
EPA officials also said Michael Sawyer, who handled scheduling for former agency administrator Anne Burford and later transferred to the agency's Office of International Activities, was asked to resign Wednesday by Fitzhugh Green, new head of that office.
Sutton resigned late Thursday, he said, and the other three top officials submitted their resignations Friday.
Eidsness and Bibko have both been under investigation by EPA's inspector general's office in recent weeks, according to agency sources.
Eidsness also has been questioned by the FBI because of disclosures he met privately in late January with James Sanderson, a former adviser to Mrs. Burford who served as an attorney for a private waste disposal company. Days later, Eidsness reversed his staff and ordered speedy processing of a special permit for the company's controversial incineration ship.
EPA's former inspector general, Matthew Novick, recommended a five-day suspension for Bibko because of his alleged use of government telephones to make 300 personal calls over a 13-month period and alleged misuse of a government chauffeur.
Bibko has denied any impropriety and said he intended to repay the government for the phone calls.
Mrs. Bennett had several environmental groups on battle lines relating to enforcement of national air pollution standards, including her threat to impose severe financial sanctions on cities failing to meet federal standards.
The environmentalists charged she was using the Clean Air Act as a club to help push through Congress revisions weakening the law, which is up for reauthorization.
With the resignations, seven central office heads and four regional chiefs will have departed, along with Mrs. Burford and her former deputy, John Hernandez, since early February. The controversy first heated up Feb. 7 when President Reagan fired Rita Lavelle as head of the toxic waste cleanup unit.

Amendment advances

Legislators back cap on spending

By Bruno V. Ranniello United Press International
HARTFORD — The Appropriations Committee voted overwhelmingly Friday to approve a proposed constitutional amendment to limit state spending to the growth in personal income.
The committee voted 35-5 to endorse the plan, which many members agreed was merely a vehicle to get the issue to the floor in time for action before the Legislature's June 8 adjournment deadline.
The vote followed rejection of the so-called Delaware plan, which called for a constitutional amendment to limit spending to 98 percent of projected revenues and require 66 percent of the Legislature to approve any tax increases.
Republicans pushed for the Delaware plan because it capped both spending and revenue. It was rejected on a party line vote of 24-16.
Rep. William Cibes, D-New London, who favored the Delaware plan, said the caucus backed off from the income tax, although support remained.
"We're inclined this evening, and only this evening, to go ahead with the GAE plan but we're not wedded to it," said Sen. Cornelius O'Leary, D-Windsor Locks, committee co-chairman, in rejecting the Delaware plan.
The approved amendment was dubbed GAE, because it was brought out of the Government Administration and Elections Committee by co-chairman Sen. John Daniels, D-New Haven.
It would establish a spending cap based on gross personal income and set up a procedure for emergency appropriations and disposal of surplus funds.

Reagan takes hard line on Cuba

By Donald A. Davis United Press International
MIAMI — President Reagan, given a frenzied welcome by tens of thousands of Cuban exiles, declared Friday the United States "will not permit the Soviets and their henchmen in Havana" to spread communism to other Latin American nations.
Thunderous applause again and again interrupted Reagan's hard-line foreign policy speech to about 2,500 people inside the Dade County Auditorium, with an estimated 60,000 more listening over loudspeakers in the street.
The crowd encircling the auditorium waved blue and white Cuban flags and banners calling on Reagan to support attempts to overthrow the regime of Cuban President Fidel Castro. "We demand the right to fight," one banner read.
Reagan soberly told the audience in ceremonies marking the 81st anniversary of Cuban independence that Cuba "is no longer independent" because of Castro's "new fascist regime."
"But let me assure you, we will not let this same fate befall others in the hemisphere, we will not permit the Soviets and their henchmen in Havana to deprive others of their freedom, and some day Cuba itself will be free," Reagan. The audience rose twice in standing ovations during the single sentence.
Accusing Castro Cuba of peddling drugs and revolution, Reagan warned Congress the American people will hold accountable those who thwart his battle against Marxism in Central America.
At another point, he brought down the house by joking, "There are only two places where communism works — in heaven where they don't need it and in hell where they have got it."
Still greater applause erupted when Reagan ended his speech with the Cuban exiles slogan, "Cuba si, Castro, no," adding, "Vaya con Dios... Go with God."
It was easily the most successful of a series of campaign-style trips Reagan has made in recent weeks, possibly the most successful of his presidency.
Before speaking, Reagan ate a typical Cuban lunch of chicken, black beans and rice at the restaurant La Esquina de Tejas (Texas Corner) in the heart of Miami's "Little Havana."
"Now is the time to act reasonably and decisively to avert a crisis and prevent other people from suffering the same fate," Reagan declared in his speech.
Denying El Salvador the military aid it needs to fight leftist insurgents and barring covert U.S. aid to rebels fighting the Marxist-led Sandinista regime in Nicaragua would be "a prescription for disaster," he said, heaping scorn on opponents of his Central American policies.
"Ironically," he said, "our biggest obstacle is not foreign threats, but a lack of confidence and understanding."
"Teddy Roosevelt is known to have said, speak softly and carry a big stick." Well, there are plenty of soft speakers around, but that's where the similarity ends," he said.

Today in history

In 1982, British troops stormed ashore on the Falkland Islands and the war with Argentina was joined in earnest. Here, the British Frigate H.M.S. Antelope explodes after being hit by Argentine bombs on May 23, 1982.

UAW chief taps veeps

DALLAS (UPI) — The tough task of directing the General Motors Department of the United Auto Workers was given Friday by Vice President Donald Ephin, who led the union's bargaining team in historic concessions talks at Ford Motor Co. The appointment of Ephin and assignments for other vice presidents were announced by new UAW President Owen Bieber. The new president had made up his mind several weeks ago but in typical fashion did not disclose the appointments until an early morning meeting of the union's 26-member International Executive Board. The position of GM director is one of the most influential in the 12 million member union. The GM director oversees collective bargaining with the No. 1 automaker, which has about 350,000 active hourly workers. Bieber had held the post before his election this week as new president of the union, replacing Douglas Fraser. Three of the last four UAW presidents have come from the GM department directorship.

Tornadoes hit Texas

HOUSTON (UPI) — A swarm of up to 16 tornadoes cut a 150-mile-long swath across southeast Texas in 12 hours of terror Friday, killing at least nine people, injuring about 50 others, tearing through a dozen towns and cutting power to thousands. Twelve hours after a pre-dawn onslaught killed eight people in five counties, another tornado ripped through two trailer parks in Crosby on the east side of Houston about 2 p.m. CDT Friday and killed at least one more person. A Harris County sheriff's dispatcher said the Chapman Mobile Home Park and Crosby Estates were demolished by the afternoon strike and several people were hurt, but "we have only one fatality so far" at Crosby. When the first wave of tornadoes struck about 2 a.m., Daniel William Rau Jr., 15, was sucked out of his family's trailer home near Prairie View, Texas, with a friend clutching him. The wind threw the youth 200 yards, killing him. "I was trying to hold him as tight as I could," said Scott Thomas, 18, who was sleeping next to Danny in the Red trailer home. "It blew him away from me. He flew out the top of the trailer."

Poker champ: 'All right!'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Tom McEvoy yelled "All Right!" upon capturing the World Series of Poker championship Friday, even though financial problems early in the high-stakes tournament forced him to sell off two-thirds of his $540,000 first prize. McEvoy beat out 107 other players who each aimed up $10,000 to compete in the four-day $1.68 million tournament, but he took home less than $180,000 of the championship prize money before taxes. Earlier in the tournament, he ran into personal money problems and sold shares of his eventual winnings to seven people for less than $100 per share. He collected some $6,000 for the shares. Investors received a return of more than $300,000. McEvoy, 34, of Grand Rapids, Mich., said the distress sale made sense. "I wanted to come out of this thing with something and it was a longshot that I'd even finish in the money," he said. "You don't come in here as a first-time player and push guys like (former world champion) Doyle Brunson and Bobby Baldwin around. In fact, you try to stay out of their way."

Budget bill 'off target'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Declaring "I meant it then and I mean it now," President Reagan reacted Friday to Senate passage of a high-tax 1984 budget plan by renewing his defiant vow to veto any bill that raises taxes or spends too much. By one vote, the Republican-led Senate Thursday night adopted an $49.7 billion budget that would raise $73 billion in new taxes over the next three years, slow Reagan's military buildup and spend $11 billion more than he wants on non-defense domestic programs. It projects a $17.6 billion deficit. In a statement issued to reporters aboard Air Force One as Reagan flew to Miami to deliver a speech marking the 1st anniversary of Cuban independence, the president said: "Last Tuesday I said to the nation: 'It is time to draw the line and stand up for the people. I will not support a budget resolution that raises taxes while we are coming out of a recession. I will veto any tax bill that will do this, and I will veto spending bills that would rekindle the fires of inflation and high interest rates.'"

"I meant it then, and I mean it now," Reagan said. White House press secretary Larry Speakes told reporters aboard the aircraft the Senate-passed budget is "off target in all three areas." Defense spending is "too low, taxes are too high and spending is too high."

Tories kick off campaign

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher opened her re-election campaign Friday as the government announced that inflation had dropped to its lowest level in 15 years. Her opponents charged the good news would not last. Opposition officials quickly attacked the government announcement that Britain's annual inflation rate as measured by the retail price index had dropped to 4 percent last month, the best since April 1968. The Labor Party's Peter Shore said the April figure marked the end of inflation's downward trend and that all "reputable forecasts" predicted it would climb back to 7 percent later in the year. Liberal Party leader David Steel said the United States, West Germany and Japan all had lower inflation and unemployment than Britain. At her Conservative Party's first campaign news conference, Mrs. Thatcher repeatedly stressed her policies would lead to economic growth and lower unemployment.

Baldrige warns Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige warned Japan Friday that its trade surplus with the United States risks fostering protectionist sentiment among Americans. Baldrige also criticized the Japanese practice of targeting and aiding growth industries through subsidies that facilitate research and development. The tough-talking commerce secretary told a luncheon meeting of the Japan National Press Club that the $20 billion U.S.-Japanese trade imbalance registered in favor of Japan last year was likely to grow. As a result, he said, "It looks like the consensus which supports free trade is going to be further eroded." Baldrige also said American businessmen fear targeting in support of industries such as computer technology may undo the benefits brought by Japanese concessions meant to ease trade friction between the two countries.

Quote / Unquote

"I remember very clearly the feeling of living in Atlanta. I was a man, a great teacher, very much in love with my wife."
— Shirley MacLaine, actress, who believes in reincarnation.
"I would call upon the Soviet Union to take another look and to get on the side of peace in Lebanon."
— George P. Shultz, secretary of state, appealing to Moscow to drop its opposition to the Israeli-Lebanese troop withdrawal agreement.
"We have reason to be ashamed."
— Henri Nannen, publisher of the West German magazine, Stern, after the so-called "Hitler diaries" proved to be fakes.
"I feel like we're leaving on top. I knew some of the executives were not happy with the show, but that's nothing new. Some of them weren't happy when we went on the air."
— Carroll O'Connor, actor, on the cancellation of CBS-TV's "Archie Bunker's Place."

Syria hints about war

Syria might go to war to stop the Israeli-Lebanese troop withdrawal agreement, Syria's foreign minister hinted in remarks published Friday. He labeled the pact "more dangerous" than the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty. "Syria's essential condition for the withdrawal of its troops from Lebanon is the creation of national equilibrium in Lebanon," Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam said in an interview published by the Lebanese weekly magazine An-Nahar Arab and International. Khaddam's remarks came as U.S. Middle East envoy Philip Habib visited Saudi Arabia, Syria's most important financial backer, seeking help in persuading the Damascus regime to withdraw from neighboring Lebanon. "If Egypt shared common borders with Syria, a war would have erupted between us due to the (1979) Camp David (Israeli-Egyptian) treaty. Much more links us to Lebanon," Khaddam said in the An-Nahar interview. "And we will use all which is in our capacity to thwart this agreement — an accord more dangerous than Camp David."

GM rides the upswing

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. Chairman Roger B. Smith said Friday that the economy is steadily improving and GM will ride the upswing into 1984. "We're not expecting a boom, nor is anyone else," Smith told the annual stockholders' meeting. "Instead, we're looking for a steady, sustainable rate of growth in the GNP — on the order of 2.5 percent this year and more than 4 percent in 1984." He said GM is sharing the growth in which "consumer confidence has moved up importantly and retail sales are also on the rise." The No. 1 auto company is observing its 75th anniversary. Despite declining car sales, Smith said, since Jan. 1, GM showed the highest earnings for any quarter since 1980, with worldwide profits of $650 million. In the same period the company has called 49,000 employees back to work.

Thailand expels Soviet

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — A Russian trade official was expelled from Thailand Friday after being caught red-handed with what police said were top-secret documents on troop positions along the Thai-Soviet border. Victor Barychev, 47, pushed his way angrily through a crowd of reporters at Bangkok's Don Muang airport and refused to comment on the Thai Foreign Ministry order for him to leave the kingdom. Barychev, a trade official attached to the Soviet Embassy in Bangkok, boarded an Air Vietnam flight to Hanoi along with his wife Malina, 46, and was expected to catch a connecting flight to the Soviet Union. He was arrested Thursday in the coffee shop of a second class Bangkok hotel after taking delivery of what were described as highly classified documents and photographs detailing troop positions along Thailand's eastern border. He was then taken to a Thai police Special Branch detention center for interrogation before being taken into custody of Soviet Embassy officials Thursday night.

Swiss firm was 'duped'

PARIS (UPI) — The Hoffmann-La Roche company said Friday it had been duped by a firm responsible for a chemical accident in Italy was lost for seven months because it was "duped" by the firm responsible for the waste. Andre Futterknecht, technical director of the Swiss multinational which owns the chemical plant at Severodvorsk in northern Italy where an explosion in 1978 released the dioxin, said Hoffmann-La Roche accepted full responsibility for disposing of the waste. He blamed the Mannheim, Italy firm for not providing proper information on its whereabouts. "We accept responsibility as the people responsible for taking care of the waste," Futterknecht told a news conference at the suburban offices of Hoffmann-La Roche's French subsidiary. "But we were duped in good faith by Mannesmann, which does not enjoy the reputation we believed it had."

NAACP chief suspended

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Margaret Bush Wilson, national board chairman of the NAACP, has been suspended from the organization's executive committee and what appears to be a dispute over policies and a clash of personalities, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch said Friday. Hooks, a Baptist minister and former member of the Federal Communications Commission, was replaced in his NAACP job by Thomas I. Atkins, the civil rights organization's general counsel, the newspaper said in a copyright story. Much of the friction between Hooks and Mrs. Wilson reportedly was the result of disagreements concerning the roles of the executive director and the policy-making board. The Post-Dispatch said Mrs. Bush wanted the board to become more assertive.

Your neighbors' views:

Question: Do you think the Israeli-Lebanese peace treaty is a step forward?

Jeffrey Roberts, Hartford: They're confused. There is no peace there because they're not getting together. You can't have peace and war at the same time. If they get together and are honest with themselves it will come out alright.
Joseph Arsenaull, Manchester: I haven't formed an opinion... I think they need to talk.
Ed Steele, Manchester: No, and I don't think we should get involved.
Jack Tardif, Manchester: Not really. If the Israelis and Lebanese want to fight, let them fight. It's not our problem.
Carol Seaton, Manchester: I hope any treaty is a step forward... this one war unless Syria pulls out. It has 40,000 troops there.
George Atkins Sr., Manchester: It won't have a step forward... there will be another war unless Syria pulls out. It has 40,000 troops there.
Bill Tilley, Manchester: I don't think it will hold up. Israeli wants to keep Lebanon and its enemies won't give it up.
Larry Nugent, South Windsor: Yes, I think we need a sign that the two parts can talk and come to an agreement even if it's not workable — you've got to start somewhere.

Blind MHS student

APRIL HUTCHINS will return to Manchester High School this September with a four-legged pair of eyes. Miss Hutchins, 17, is blind. All her life she's had to rely on other people to guide her places that she can't find on her own. When she gets her seeing-eye dog, or "dog guide," this summer, she'll have more mobility, and more independence. "I have mixed feelings about getting the dog. I'm excited and scared at the same time," she said. THIS SUMMER, Miss Hutchins, an MHS junior, will spend four weeks at Guiding Eyes for the Blind in Yorktown Heights, N.Y. There she'll get acquainted with her dog guide, either a Labrador or golden retriever. When school resumes in September, the dog will be an essential component from the Connecticut State Department of Education. But her new lifestyle will demand some adjustments — from her, her family, and the students, teachers and administrators at Manchester High School. Students will have to resist the urge to call to Miss Hutchins or the dog while the dog is in the business of guiding. Teachers will have to get used to Miss Hutchins' disciplining the dog in class, with a sharp "no" or a firm jerk on the harness. "People will want to pet the dog, talk to the dog, and feed the dog... all very definite 'nos,'" said coordinator Sherrill Adams. "She (April) has to be in control of the dog at all times. If other people distract her or the dog, it interferes with the teamwork." Disciplining the dog may also be a problem. Although strict discipline is an essential element of training, the sight of Miss Hutchins jerking on her dog's harness may shock some people. "Many people think that this is cruel, that it hurts the dog. It does not," said Ms. Adams.

MHS '23 class reunites

Five of the seven speakers at Manchester High School's 30th commencement exercises in 1923 also attended the 60th reunion of the class Friday at the Manchester Country Club. Elton Johnson gave the invocation and eulogized deceased classmates. Mildred Harrison distributed copies of a newspaper article which had been saved by her late husband and classmate, Sidney Harrison, since the day after graduation in 1923. According to the article, the Class of 1923, whose members received their diplomas from Ninth District School Board President Howell Cheney — was the largest ever graduated at that time. James McKay led the group in singing popular songs from the 1920s. Norman Johnson and Mildred Harrison read reminiscences from class members and the reunion closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

No fish tale

Some 70 senior citizens showed up at 6:30 a.m. Friday for the start of the annual senior citizens fishing derby at Sautters Pond. Among those on hand were (from left) Stan Lucas, a judge; Pete Condo, who caught this one-and-a-quarter pound, 14.5-inch rainbow trout, netting him first prize for largest fish; and Paul Sartor from Multi-Circuits. The firm provided funds for the event. Other winners: heaviest fish, William Sullivan, one-pound six ounces; most fish, Tony Desimone, three rainbow trout; most fish on fly pole, Clarence Tedford, three rainbow trout; and first fish, Joe Peretto. In all, 125 seniors participated.

Zinsser raps budget plan

Sen. Carl A. Zinsser, R-Manchester, says Gov. William O'Neill would "go back on his word" and "damage his credibility" by accepting the state budget recently approved by committee Democrats. Comparing the budget proposed by the governor and one approved by the committee, Zinsser says both call for spending increases far in excess of the current inflation rate. "If we have to live with one," Zinsser said, "the governor's 10.7 percent budget increase is certainly preferable to the Appropriations budget boost of 12.3 percent." Zinsser, the ranking Senate member of the Appropriations Committee, had sponsored an amendment holding General Fund growth to 6.6 percent, but says it was killed on a party-line vote. In a press release, Zinsser blasted the Democratic proposal, calling it a "drunken-sailor scheme to be imposed on Connecticut taxpayers."

Prospect of guide dog both exciting and scary

APRIL HUTCHINS, MHS JUNIOR... mixed feelings about dog

LIFE WITH a dog guide is going to take some getting used to for Miss Hutchins. But she figures it's better that she make the adjustment in high school, while she's still in a reasonably controlled environment, than a year later when she goes to college. "I think I can adapt to having the dog, although there's always an element of doubt in my mind," she said. "It helps that I have more self-confidence than I used to. In fact, I'm kind of a perfectionist... I have very high standards for myself. Sometimes a little too high, I guess."

Two town garages will be discussed by the Board of Directors at a special meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the hearing room in Lincoln Center. A committee to study improvements to the town's highway garage on Ottest Street has recommended that the directors allocate an additional $46,300 for renovations. The question was referred to that committee at the last directors' meeting when Public Works Director George A. Kandra recommended the added expenditure beyond the $150,000 already allocated for the work. The low bidder, Annull Construction Co., asked $162,900 for the work. At the May 10 meeting Kandra said the cost could be reduced by eliminating lifts and eliminating plans for a second floor in one area. He said Friday the committee preferred to keep those facilities. Also slated for discussion Tuesday is the adaptation of the Water Department facility on Charter Oak Street for a Park Department Garage to replace the one on Harrison Street that has been sold to Multi-Circuits. The directors will review sketch plans and consider authorizing the town to go forward with final plans and to take bids. The preliminary plans have been drawn by Purcell Associates. They call for installation of lift and for some inside storage of equipment in addition to the building and for some outside storage in a shed. One question not yet answered is whether the town will also construct a fuel depot at Charter Oak. A disadvantage is the closeness of water wells at the site. A committee of citizens had recommended somewhat curtailed plans for the renovation. In January, Robert Harrison, superintendent of parks, centers and highways, objected. His objection was based partly on the committee recommendation that the maintenance facilities be limited at Charter Oak. Estimated construction cost of the renovation would be about $300,000. Kandra said Friday. Fees and other costs would be added to that. The cost of fuel depot would be separate. Public comment will be permitted on the Charter Oak plans.

Hints of change in landfill charges

It is rather surprising that we have not heard more about Public Works Director George Kandra's proposal to charge fees for use of the town landfill. One might have expected two reactions to it. One from commercial haulers, who will pay the bulk of the costs of maintaining the landfill if the fees are instituted. The other from residents who have been used to free dumping and would have to buy a $6 permit each year if Kandra's proposal is accepted.

Manchester Spotlight

But they deposit only five percent of the stuff that fills the dump.

(The word "landfill" was introduced in town during the administration of a former general manager, the late Richard Martin. Martin used to become annoyed with headline writers who wrote "dump," notwithstanding the fact that he was an ex-newspaperman who knew that "dump" took up less space than "sanitary landfill." He was determined to give the place a better image, and despite a setback or two over the years, he seems to have succeeded.)

There is some suspicion, in fact, that the image of the town landfill is better in the eyes of some commercial haulers than other landfills hereabout where tipping fees are charged. If a hauler picks up garbage in number of towns, including Manchester, the assumption is that he will do his dumping here where there is no fee instead of at a place where there is one.

WHEN IT GOES, another social institution will have disappeared. Those who make the 57,000 trips a year to the dump in autos and pickups meet there friends they have neglected. You can meet some very important people at the dump, people who belong to the clubs you can't afford to join.

Besides it is fun to see if the landfill attendant who guards the entrance will remember your face or the location of the rust spots on the front of your car and excuse you from the catechism designed to be sure you're a bona fide Manchester resident.

WHEN IT GOES, another social institution will have disappeared. Those who make the 57,000 trips a year to the dump in autos and pickups meet there friends they have neglected. You can meet some very important people at the dump, people who belong to the clubs you can't afford to join.

Besides it is fun to see if the landfill attendant who guards the entrance will remember your face or the location of the rust spots on the front of your car and excuse you from the catechism designed to be sure you're a bona fide Manchester resident.

Cubans may have been sent

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Alarming intelligence reports out of Nicaragua warn that Fidel Castro may already have sent Cuban troops to help the Sandinista regime fight U.S.-backed rebels there. One report put the number of Cuban troops at 1,000; another estimated 2,000.

If these reports turn out to be accurate, the Cuban military buildup in Nicaragua could give the Sandinistas the edge they need to crush the guerrillas of the Nicaraguan Democratic Force.

This much is known about Cuban strength in Nicaragua: There are at least 5,000 civilian advisers and 1,500 military and security advisers.

BUT THERE ARE also unconfirmed intelligence reports that a substantial Cuban military force arrived in Nicaragua two weeks ago, headed for the key town of Ocotal. If true, this development could lead the Reagan administration to beef up its aid to the "contras," as the anti-Sandinista rebels call themselves. The war would then escalate dangerously.

I sent my associate Jon Lee Anderson to Central America for a firsthand look at the situation. He spent a week inside Nicaragua with a task force of 186 contras and went along on an ambush directed at the Sandinista militia. He picked up some evidence, impossible to confirm independently, of a Cuban presence in the combat zone of northern Nicaragua.

One rebel group commander, who calls himself Comandante Sereno, said his men had killed Cubans carrying Soviet-made AK-47 submachine guns and "some strange machines" that turned out to be television cameras.

"I didn't know what the contras were," Sereno recalled. "I was afraid they might be bombs. I fiddled with one until a green light came on. It scared me, so I sprayed them with my machine gun." The green light was the camera's "on" signal.

HOW DID HE know they were Cubans? They were obviously not Nicaraguans, he said. They were tall, black and bearded. Sereno said he had fought with Cubans when he was with the legendary Commander Zero — Eden Pastora — during the Sandinistas' revolution against Anastasio Somoza's national guard in 1979.

Furthermore, Sereno said, "before the ambush we heard them talking, and they had Cuban accents." The two cameramen, presumably filming the action for Cuban and Sandinista TV, had made the fatal mistake of carrying arms for protection.

Another incident involved an 18-year-old soldier. After an experimental assault on a scientific base, Paul Christian, Paul Raymond, Cecil Kellyway, 1953.

Another young rebel said she was known as "the fat lady" and added, "But she wasn't just a doctor. She carried a gun."

The Cuban woman was riding in a jeep that was part of a Sandinista convoy ambushed by the rebels. When the ambush started, she yelled at the guerrillas: "Dogs of Reagan! You will all die!"

The Greek said he lobbed an RPG-7 (rocket-propelled grenade) at the jeep. It was a direct hit.

The Cuban connection is a major worry for the young contras. They've heard rumors that Castro has already sent missiles to the Sandinistas, and a "regiment" to reinforce the garrison at Ocotal. At present, the rebels said, they're doing well against the militia because it is largely made up of "cannon fodder" — untrained peasants forced into service by the Sandinistas. "But if the Cubans come in, things will be more difficult for us," a rebel leader acknowledged.

Mary Frann: Newhart's 'second wife'

By Vernon Scott
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD — How do viewers accept a change of spouse when a favorite actor or actress turns up with a new mate in a new series?

In years past Dick Van Dyke switched from Mary Tyler Moore to Hope Lange for "The New Dick Van Dyke Show" and didn't succeed nearly as well. Perhaps viewers thought the comedian was better off with Mary, who didn't marry at all in her second hit show.

Now Bob Newhart, long the TV husband of Suzanne Pleshette, has reappeared in a weekly series with a new mate, Mary Frann, and viewers apparently have accepted this new union with equanimity.

It never occurred to Mary that she had a tough act to follow in the person of Suzanne, who was Bob's long-suffering bride for six years in the comedian's first sitcom.

Mary and Suzanne could hardly be more different physically. While both are slender and beautiful, Mary is a blue-eyed blonde. Suzanne is a smoldering, dark-eyed brunette. Their personalities and characteristics are different in their performances as well.

As Emily, Suzanne was cynical, fast with a bon mot and somewhat patronizing to klutzy husband Bob Hartley. Emily was unusually tolerant of Bob, who clearly wasn't her intellectual equal.

Mary plays her role of Joanna Loudon with a gentle affection for the equally klutzy Dick Loudon. She is softer, more pliant and clearly adores her burning husband.

"I didn't find Suzanne a difficult act to follow because Joanna is a new character, not a replacement for Emily," Mary said.

"Suzanne was wonderful in the role and I told her so."

The first meeting between Mary and Suzanne on the Newhart set was a practical joke engineered by Newhart. Suzanne, who was usually rehearsed in baggy sweatshirts, tennis shoes and with her hair flying. Pleshette, when not at work, was counted among the best dressed and most groomed women in Hollywood.

"Bob and Suzanne ran into one another at a party and Suzanne said she'd like to step by the set," Mary recounted. "Suzanne added, 'Would it upset anyone?'"

Bob said, "Yes, especially Mary."

"Good," Suzanne said. "I'll be there!"

"They were both kidding. Bob knew I wouldn't be upset, and so did Suzanne. But the next day she really visited the set."

"When I arrived looking like an unmade bed, I saw this gorgeous, beautifully dressed brunette talking to Bob. I said to myself, 'Let that be anyone but Suzanne Pleshette.'"

"Then, with a big grin, Bob called me over and introduced us. We exchanged a few one-liners and Suzanne left."

"Then, when Mary got playful herself, she persuaded Newhart and the show's director to call the producers saying she had such high ratings. At the end of the season we averaged number 10 in the Nielsen. I thought we'd do well because Bob has such a big following."

"Not only that, we've got a good time slot, quality writing and a good ensemble cast. We've gotten along like family since the first day on the job. I've never worked with anyone who was more fun."

relieved, they returned to their offices."

One day when the show was taping for its live audience, Mary entered the scene dressed in a sexy black silk nightgown and descended the stairs. At the crucial moment Newhart turned and called her "Emily."

The audience seemed not to notice and Newhart was unaware of his goof.

Mary said, "I turned to the audience and told them, 'I'm not going to continue this show when he calls me by his first wife's name.'"

"It's no surprise to me that our show has had such high ratings. At the end of the season we averaged number 10 in the Nielsen. I thought we'd do well because Bob has such a big following."

Obituaries

John F. Darby
John F. Darby, 71, formerly of Manchester, died Friday at St. Francis Hospital and Medical Center, Hartford.
He was born July 22, 1911, in New York City.
Darby, of Main Street in Warehouses Point, moved from Manchester 15 years ago after working at Manchester Memorial Hospital for 20 years.
Survivors include a brother, William Darby of Rockville, and a niece, Mrs. Mary Palmer of Manchester.
Private funeral services and interment at the St. James Cemetery will be at the convenience of the family.
The Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., is in charge of arrangements.

Girl avoids deportation

HARTFORD (UPI) — An agreement has been reached in U.S. District Court to allow a 15-year-old girl from Ghana to remain in Hartford, a Hartford attorney said Friday.
Ryszard S. Mrotek said the agreement was signed by federal Judge Joseph Cabranes following a day-long meeting with the girl, Sophia Hayford, and attorneys representing the state Department of Children and Youth Services and the state Attorney General's Office.
Miss Hayford had been scheduled to board a plane at Bradley International Airport in Windsor Locks Saturday and fly home to her native country.
Under the agreement reached Friday, Mrotek said, the state will allow Miss Hayford to remain living in a foster home in Hartford and continue her American schooling.
Mrotek said a misunderstanding by DCYS officials apparently resulted in the state's belief Middlesex Superior Court Judge Mary R. Hennessy had ordered the girl deported to Ghana.
Miss Hayford's troubles developed in early March when she was removed from her uncle's Middletown home and placed in a foster home in Hartford by the DCYS.
Miss Hayford said her uncle had beaten her severely. The department confirmed her safety was in jeopardy in her uncle's home.

Gray: UTC goal to double sales

HARTFORD (UPI) — United Technologies Corp. Chairman Harry Gray said Friday the conglomerate's target for the remainder of the decade is to double sales to $30 billion and increase net profits by about one percent.
Gray, speaking to the New York Society of Security Analysts, said increasing sales may include buying up other companies to supplement or extend existing businesses.
"We are only interested in companies that build on our high technology base," he said.
Among UTC subsidiaries are Hamilton Standard, Pratt & Whitney, which is opening a jet engine parts plant in Georgia in late 1983, Otis elevators, Sikorsky helicopters, and Carrier air conditioning and refrigeration.
UTC sales in 1982 totaled $13.6 billion and its after tax profits were 3.1 percent. Gray said he hoped to boost net profits to 4 percent.
He said nearly 40 percent of UTC's sales are abroad and the next step is to pursue global strategies for product development, marketing, and manufacturing.
International joint ventures are increasingly important because they allow UTC to share the work and risk with partners in other countries while giving the company access to overseas marketing networks, Gray said.

Charges dismissed in tandem arrest

STAMFORD (UPI) — Superior Court Judge Alvin Rottman dismissed charges Friday against Jon M. Lastfogel, the first trucker to be cited under Connecticut's ban on tandem-trailer trucks.
Rottman said Lastfogel, 36, a resident of Montreal, Canada, suffered "untold agony" because of his arrest by state police April 29 at a Howard Johnson's on Interstate 95 in Dartmouth.
The judge said signs warning of the law should have been posted at or near the state borders.
Lastfogel, who drives trucks for Port Express International in Newark, N.J., "acted in good faith" by asking a toll collector about the legality of double trailers and by parking his truck after he learned tandems were illegal, Rottman said.
He could have been fined $500 and had his license suspended for 60 days if convicted of the misdemeanor charge.
Connecticut reaffirmed its ban on tandem trailers April 6, after the federal government authorized the double trailers on interstate highways and major roads built with federal funds.

Getting ready for derby

Preparations for today's fishing derby for children under 14 included stocking Sautter's Pond with fish. The derby, sponsored by Manchester State Bank, will award trophies for the longest fish, the heaviest fish and the most fish caught by a single fisherman. Bank president Nathan G. Agostinelli (left) examines the prospects for Saturday with breeder William Kurhs and Frank Mordavsky (right) before the fish are thrown into the pond.

Mall doesn't want KKK

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Ku Klux Klan's plan to hold a recruiting drive in Westfarms Mall this weekend would be against the wishes of the mall's owners and management, a Westfarms official said Friday.
Norman Plourde, Westfarms manager, said Connecticut Klan members intend to hold the recruiting drive Sunday, "despite the fact it is against the wishes and in violation of the constitutional private property rights of the owners and management" of the shopping center on the West Hartford-Farmington town lines.
The Klan claims a state Superior Court decision that gave the National Organization for Women the right to petition in the privately owned shopping mall also gives the Klan the right to distribute leaflets there.
"Not only is the Klan's decision currently under appeal by both Westfarms and NOW, but the Klan's demands to force itself upon Westfarms and the local community further proves that our initial concerns were justified," Plourde said.
Plourde, whose comments were in a statement released in Hartford to members of the news media, said he would make no further comment on the Klan recruiting drive until he holds a news conference Saturday morning.
Bill Wilkinson, national leader of the Invisible Empire, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, said Thursday he had given his approval for the Connecticut Klan activity.
He said the Klan is turning to shopping centers in its recruiting efforts after being frustrated in some attempts to hold public rallies.
"We have decided to take on the malls," Wilkinson said Thursday in a telephone interview with The Hartford Courant from his home in Denham Springs, La. "If we are not allowed to pass out literature, then we will make our presence in our full regalia."
Wilkinson said he talked Thursday evening with Connecticut Klan leader James Farrands of Shelton. "He had some questions he had to ask me. He wanted my OK," Wilkinson said.
"We earnestly want to reach the public. We have been blocked by the state's attorneys with injunctions at our rallies," Wilkinson said.
The state has obtained court orders restricting Klan demonstrations and prohibiting the carrying of weapons.

Court drops charges against EB protesters

GROTON (UPI) — Criminal trespass charges have been dismissed against 18 anti-nuclear protesters who sat in front of a building at Electric Boat shipyard early Friday, linked arms and refused to move.
Seven of the 18 already were scheduled for sentencing in New London Superior Court within hours of the sit-in for vandalizing a Trident submarine at EB in November 1982.
Judge Harry Edelberg said there was no point in bringing a case against the demonstrators for their morning protest because many of them already were due to be sentenced on more serious charges later in the day.
The 18 protesters formed a human blockade in front of the engineering building at EB about 7:30 a.m. to support the seven demonstrators, known as "Plowshares No. 4."
About 60 sympathizers watched from across the road, holding placards and an American flag. They chanted protest songs together.
Police took the demonstrators away in vans and cruisers about 30 minutes later and charged them with third-degree criminal trespass.
"They were very orderly," said Deputy Police Chief Nicholas DeNola.
The protesters were brought to court within two hours for arraignment and the charges were dismissed.
Sentences for the seven demonstrators convicted of vandalizing the sub ranged from seven months and 12 months in jail. Three of the seven were convicted of felony charges.
The "Plowshares No. 4" were found guilty May 2 of breaking into the shipyard at 4 a.m. on Nov. 14. They hammered the sub's missile hatches, poured bottles of blood onto it and painted slogans on the sub deck.
The protesters did not contest their actions, but said the break-in was justified under precepts of international law.

Washington withdraws from Civic Center job

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gerald L. Washington, who has been at the hub of a week-long controversy, administration through what he thought was a bona fide correspondence program at Norfolk State College in Norfolk, Va.
Washington, 39, who was tapped for the post by City Manager Woodrow Wilson Galtor, also said he probably will resign as sales manager at the Civic Center.
"I'm told there is a move afoot to fire me," Washington said. "I don't know whether that is true or not."
With all the publicity surrounding his appointment, Washington said he doubted it would be possible for him to "expect the corporate community to abide by my programs."
The first storm erupted last Saturday when the Civic Center Commission criticized Galtor for not picking one of the three candidates they suggested as director of the 100-seat facility.
Questions then were raised about Washington's credentials — there were no records for two of the three college degrees he listed on his resume.
Washington maintained he was duped into believing he had earned a master's degree in business administration through what he thought was a bona fide correspondence program at Norfolk State College in Norfolk, Va.
"The question of background checks doesn't disturb me at all," he told reporters Friday. "As a matter of fact, I would have been disappointed if you folks had not done that."
"There were mistakes on the resume," he said.
Washington said he had no idea one way or the other about whether the criticism about his appointment was racially motivated, as Galtor has said.
"I don't have any ideas on racism," he said. "What I hear the city manager saying is all he wants is consistency. Whatever he does, approach it in a consistent manner."
"I don't have any ill feelings about anybody in all of this," Washington concluded. "There are some things that I did that caused problems. Whether I did them unknowingly is beside the point."

The Earl of sports

The Herald's Yost doesn't boast. But he's seen it all

By Adele Angle
Focus Editor

The late Tom Fergusson, who at the time was publisher of the Manchester Herald, had his doubts. The tall, angular 52-year-old standing before him on that day in 1944 couldn't type, for one thing. But Fergusson's son, Ronald Fergusson, then managing editor of the Herald, had put in a good word for the southern North Endler who had just returned from World War II.
After all, Earl Yost had covered local games for the Herald gratis even before he'd entered Manchester Trade School. (Today's Cheney Tech).
The younger Fergusson saw plenty of promise in Yost.
"He said, 'Give the kid a chance,'" Earl Yost said this week, recalling those early days when he'd hurry home at night to practice his typing. His starting salary: $20 a week.
It's an irony, perhaps, that the 62-year-old Yost, who officially retires in September — will end his career as the state's oldest sports editor.
When he started out, he was the youngest. There were even newspaper stories at the time noting this fact.

SPORTS FIGURES — including some Hartford Whalers and, possibly, the Whalers' new president of hockey operations, Emile Francis — will toast him at a testimonial dinner on Wednesday at the Army and Navy Club on Main Street. The event begins with a social hour at 6:30 p.m.
Speakers will be Scott Gray, sports announcer with WTIC-AM, and Middleton Press Sports Editor Fred Fortin.

Those who want tickets — at $11 apiece — can call Len Auster at the Manchester Herald at 643-2711 or Nate Agostinelli at Manchester State Bank at 646-4004.
There will be plenty of friends on hand to relive the good old days. And there will be no lack of praise.
"If you had to rate good guys, Earl Yost would be at the top," said Agostinelli, a longtime friend.
"Earl has helped quite a few kids out — just by a few words in the paper or a picture," said another longtime acquaintance, former Manchester Senior Center Director Wally Fortin.
"He's the kind of guy any kid would want for a father," said Robert Digan, coordinator of the town's Youth Services Bureau. For years, Digan recalled, Yost would end his column with a reminder to everyone to go to church.

YOST HAS HAD the kind of assignments that younger sportswriters would turn in their video display terminals for. Few are likely to cover the breadth of sports that he has.
Among other things, Yost:
• covered the World Series for 30 years, starting from 1946.
• spent two to three weeks in Florida each year from 1955 to 1976, covering baseball's spring training.
• covered at least 50 professional Friday night fights in Madison Square Garden, Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds in New York.
• covered games in Boston, including the Boston Bruins in the National Hockey League and the Boston Celtics in the NBA.
• covered pro tennis events such as the Aetna World Cup.
• reported on all the home Whalers games for about five and a half years.

A SOFT-SPOKEN MAN, Yost isn't the kind who likes to collect praise in his breast pocket. In fact, though he's written about other's glories for years, he's positively retiring when it comes to noting his own milestones.
Most credit him with being the one individual who has made the Manchester Thanksgiving Day Five-Mile Road Race what it is today.
For years, Yost not only sought out top runners in the country to take part, but he painstakingly printed names and times of all the runners afterward — even when the numbers grew into the thousands. As a consequence, Yost's wife, Adele, has yet to have a "normal" Thanksgiving sitdown dinner.
Yost also has probably done more than anyone else in Manchester to promote schoolboy sports.

WHO IS Earl Yost?
He's the youngest of four children of Albert and Ida Yost. His father was a weaver at Cheney Brothers — a company for which Yost later worked for two years before he joined the Air Corps during World War II.
He was a poor kid. His memories working at the YMCA's

He recalls sports greats

Manchester Herald sports editor Earl Yost has met many of the major sports figures of our time. Here's what he has to say about some of them:
Ted Williams: "He was just great with me. He used to take my kids down to the dugout... he hated the Boston press, but he took to other people, including me."
Babe Ruth: "One of the greatest people I ever met. I was with him maybe four times. The last time was when he came to Hartford. That was the last game he ever played in his career." What did Babe Ruth look like? "He used to call him 'Tomato Face.' He was big, fat and had spindly legs."
Lou Gehrig: "I idolized him as a kid. He was German. My father was German. I wanted someone to look up to. I saw him play a couple of times but I never got close to him."
Billy Martin: "He's bad for baseball. In my book he's a bad apple. He's always looking for that little extra edge. Life is a two-way street. He never looks to the other side. He wants everything to go his way. I don't think he ever grew up, frankly. I can honestly say, though, he did make himself available." Except when he joined the Yankees. He was a real nice guy... but when he got to New York... I'd never want one of my sons to play ball with him."
Eddie Shore: "Off the ice, you'd think he was a minister. He was an excellent speaker. On the ice — look out. He was tough. Really tough. He had more stitches than anybody in hockey. Over 600 stitches on his face."
Mickey Mantle: "Mantle was extremely shy and very careful who he talked to. He was very aloof. It was very hard to get close to him unless you were a writer traveling with the team."
Joe DiMaggio: "There'd be these five to seven daily press conferences. He had one story after another. He was the greatest. A lot of class. A true Yankee."
Sugar Ray Robinson: "As a boxer, he was superb, but outside the ring... Last time I saw him he was penniless. He had holes in his shoes. Now he's got a job teaching youth in California. Someone's looking out for him, I guess. He went through millions — typical of a lot of fighters."
Willie Pep: "He was one in a million as a fighter. (But outside the ring)." He had a lot of extra curricular activities...
Jackie Robinson: "The opposing team would really ride him. And the fans would say things you wouldn't say in a Sunday School. They'd really ride him because of his race. In Brooklyn they talk differently, they act differently. But they adopted him after they found out he could play ball."
Billie Jean King: "She has the foulest mouth on a woman I ever heard." He recalled covering a tennis tourney between the Boston Lobsters and Billie Jean's New York Apples. Yost brought his wife, Adele, to a press conference. "My wife said, 'Did he beat right?' I said, 'You certainly did.'" What about the disclosure of King's lesbian affair? "I was known for years. Both she and Martina. It was just something you just didn't write about. To me it wasn't a big thing. Apparently today it is."

Yost has also worked with well known sports writers. Among them:
Grantland Rice: "I sat beside him at the Yale Bowl at the first football game I ever covered. He was the dean of sports writers. The number one writer in the country. It was a thrill sitting next to him, watching every move he made. He charted the game, and I charted right along with him. I figured if he was doing it right, I wanted to try to do the same."
Red Smith: "He was a very good friend. (Early in Yost's career.) "He was very helpful to someone like myself, just starting out." He made sure I got around, he made sure I made the right contacts." Yost recalled sitting in the press box, watching in amazement as Red Smith ripped five or six pieces of paper out of the typewriter before he finally settled on a lead. "I thought we weren't supposed to waste paper." Later, Yost said, reading Red's columns, "They were superb."
Bill Lee: "He was probably my best friend among Connecticut sportswriters. We often traveled together... he was the most

Ugliness brings conviction

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Being ugly isn't a crime, but police said the conviction of Richard Felton for sexual assault came about in part because he is downright ugly.

Following her assault last October, a woman told police her assailant was big — 6-foot-2, 220 pounds — and ugly.

Engagements

Detective Craig Rhudy studied the crime report and noticed the officer who had written it had entered the word "ugly" in a column marked "personal oddities."

"I said, 'That's got to be Richard Felton,'" Rhudy recalled.

Engagements

Felton had been described as big and ugly before by a woman who said she had been raped last May by a man who, in his hurry to leave, had left his wallet behind.

A Superior Court jury convicted him Wednesday of both crimes. Sentencing is pending.

Seven month old Kelly Concannon receives a lesson in how to play pat-a-cake from her big sister Kristen, age five, during a visit to Borzani Park in Torrington, Conn.

Senior News

Garden plots will be limed and rototilled

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Senior Center. It appears on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Greetings, The planting season is now upon us. If you feel the urge to start a vegetable or flower garden, please stop by the center and support our annual plant sale. Containers are $1.40 and this weekend we have a "special" on asters and zinnias which you can purchase for $1 a container. Proceeds support our meal program. The sale will begin at 9 a.m. and end at 5 p.m.

While on gardening, I have some good news for all the individuals who have a garden plot behind the center. On Wednesday the garden plots will be limed and rototilled. Individuals anxious to plant Wednesday afternoon are reminded to check the bulletin board across from the front office to obtain their plot number. Also anyone who has free time and would like to help with the garden chores should be at the garden around 8:30 a.m.

Because we had a large response to the Radio City-New York trip we will add a third bus. The cost is $16 and includes admission to the "Summer Spectacular."

June 16 — Appreciation day for Roger and Marcel on asters and zinnias. Mike and Erna were selected. On behalf of all of us, I congratulate both of them.

Here's what we have in store for Thursday programs for the end of May and early June. May 26 — Bingo after lunch. June 2 — Bennet Junior High School singers, directed by Mel Lumpkin.

June 9 — To be announced. June 16 — Appreciation day for Roger and Marcel. Negro and the production crew for their efforts in raising funds for the center in the past 10 years with our variety show.

I have had many requests from the ladies in reference to organizing a golf league. If there are any ladies interested in participating in a ladies league, please register in the front office. As soon as we get enough lady golfers, we will pick a course and the day to play. Watch the column for further details. Here's to a speedy recovery for Bruno Lemesis, Harold Bodurtha and Paul Dodge at Manchester Memorial Hospital. Bruno is an avid gardener and I'm sure he is anxious to get started with his garden here at the center.

Week's menus Monday: baked macaroni and cheese; buttered vegetables, chilled fruit. Tuesday: beef stew, green salad, roll and butter, brownies. Wednesday: baked corned beef hash, mixed vegetables, rice bread and butter, gelatin. Thursday: patty patty parmigiana, whipped potato, broccoli, Italian bread, apple crisp. Friday: vegetable soup, tuna salad sandwich, dessert.

Real world is coming

"It is unlikely that there will be any improvement in the job market in the near future," Ferrara said.

"Although the economy appears prepared for an expansion following the deepest recession in several decades, the continued uncertainty over its overall strength or weakness finds many corporations uncertain regarding their recruiting and hiring goals," Ferrara said.

Booth Hospital is salvation for young mothers in need

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Because of your long time interest and support of the Salvation Army Booth Hospital for unwed mothers, I want to bring you up-to-date. For two agonizing years we feared we would have to close our doors because our money was running out. In fact, a date was set and the hospital announced that no more girls could be admitted. Sick at heart, we all prayed a lot, and God heard our prayers because some generous people (and foundations) came to our rescue, and now the Booth Hospital is safe for another three years.

We are filled to capacity, Abby, but I'm sad to report that our unwed mothers keep getting younger and younger. Presently we have one 10-year-old and three 11-year-olds.

Our Emergency Lodge has become a haven for homeless families — especially mothers and their fatherless children. It, too, is filled to capacity — 10-bed, family-style accommodations, 2,050 persons served annually, 74,825 meals served annually.

Every spring, just before Easter, our board purchases new clothing for each child in the lodge.

Reader feels like a yo-yo, and is going crazy over it

Ask Dr. Blaker

Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER: I really need your help. I feel like a yo-yo. One day I'll be happy, confident and free and the next I'll hate myself and feel like crawling into a hole and dying.

I think my problem is that I let other people dictate how I feel about myself. I worry too much about how others see me. So many days I am so sensitive that I let a remark from someone bother me terribly. This constant worrying is wearing me out. It makes me angry at others and myself.

How can I get over this? It is driving me crazy. I know I am a nice person.

DEAR READER: In your mind you may feel you are a nice person but it sounds like you may have some emotional doubts.

These doubts may be deep-seated or unconscious and may be making you overly susceptible to the negative feelings others have about you. Your own self-esteem is not strong enough to disprove them, for example, "or at least weigh — what others think."

Because you know you are being irrational and others will judge you by your daughter's life. Now might be a good time for you to turn again in earnest to your religion for guidance. Your minister or priest will probably be able to help you continue to love your daughter. And who knows, through your love, you may be able to influence her, or more likely her children, back into your way of living.

Does your job have you tied up in knots? Get help from Dr. Blaker's newsletter: "How to reduce job stress." Send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 478, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

'It was Doug's choice'

MHS-East hoop rivalry is dead — for now

Manchester High and East Catholic will NOT meet in boys' basketball in 1983-84. That fact was confirmed Monday by Manchester High Athletic Director Dick Cobb.

"It was Doug's choice," Cobb said, referring to MHS basketball coach Doug Pearson. "He wanted to play Rockville twice. I said if he wants to play Rockville, play Rockville. It really doesn't matter to me. I feel East Catholic will draw better but from what I hear they (Rockville fans) follow their kids pretty well."

East Basketball Coach Jim Penders is upset that the never received word until after the fact. "What bothers me is they didn't have the courtesy to call said Penders. 'All I know is it won't hurt our program. We'll have our 20 games.' East's schedule for 1983-84 calls for a trip to New Haven to take part in the Pearl Street Classic against Sacred Heart of Waterbury.

PEARSON SAYS there is nothing "sinister" about severing relations — for one year anyway. "I just wanted to play Rockville twice, that's all. There's nothing sinister about it," Pearson said, adding that this will help Fermi with its out-of-league scheduling. Fermi and Manchester each will play Rockville twice.

"We wanted to help Fermi with its out-of-league scheduling more than anything else. The way the league dates came out, it was just a mess. It was difficult to play East the way things worked out," Pearson said, calling it a "natural thing." "We just wanted to help Fermi with its out-of-league scheduling more than anything else. into this, said the Indian mentor. Eagle Athletic Director Tom Main, who's doubled as JV basketball coach, was equally disappointed with the separation. "When it first started, I thought it would be good for the town. I was hoping it would grow to other sports. Now, I'm not sure what will be," he said.

Was good rivalry

The East-Manchester rivalry began in 1974. It was a good one, despite the apparent top-sided control held by the Eagles, with 14 wins against one loss. Three of the 15 outings have been decided in overtime and 12 have been determined by 10 points or less.

That doesn't show outright domination by one side, although the won-lost record indicates otherwise. It will be a very sad day if the rivalry is not renewed. The basic premise for the series in the first place was monetary. Both schools were looking to raise revenue from a good game.

For awhile, anyway, it worked. The first crowd was a sellout of 1,800 at Clarke Arena. The following year an overflow throng of 1,950 jammed Clarke Arena to see East take an exciting 66-61 overtime decision. The return bout at the Eagles' Nest also packed the rafters.

Biggest crowd ever was 2,000 to see the first "76-77" confrontation at the University of Hartford. There were some warning signs that fan interest was waning. The second meeting of 1978-79 drew 1,200 at Clarke, including 526 who walked through the turnstiles for no charge. A crowd of 1,000 (1,200 capacity) at the Eagles' Nest saw the first battle between the two schools in 1980-81.

"It's not that we don't want to play East Catholic anymore," insists Pearson. "That's not the intent. We just weighed everything, including the fact the rivalry has worn off a little bit. Rockville is a natural rival, especially considering we may be in the same league next year. We want to promote that, if the new league goes through. Getting a head start may be advantageous."

There's nothing sinister about it," Pearson said, adding that this will help Fermi with its out-of-league scheduling. Fermi and Manchester each will play Rockville twice.

"That maybe played a factor in the break. "Crowds in high school have dwindled for all sports," agrees Main. "(But) I'm sure if Manchester and East were undefeated we'd pack the place. If both were below .500, we wouldn't."

"It hasn't drawn spectator support as it should. I think maybe a year or two off would help renew interest in the rivalry," Pearson says.

Return a must

Realignment of the three leagues in the area — the CCLC, CVC and CDC — is all but complete. Word should be coming near the end of May. What we should see are three eight-team divisions.

If that's true, that would mean 14 locked games for basketball. That leaves six openings. "We ran out of open dates," Pearson says, explaining why the intraschool schedule will not be meeting on the hardwood in 1983-84. "I'm sure the players will be a little disappointed. But most of them have either played or will get to play East Catholic. As far as I'm concerned, it's no permanent thing."

MHS winner in track

Undaunted by the wet conditions, Manchester High boys' track team swept past CCLC in a 100-meter race at the Pete Wigren Track at 3:30. The locals are two-time defending CCLC champs, posting unbeaten records the past two years, and could tie for a third championship with a win. A one-loss would leave them in third place behind Windham and East Catholic.

The sweep gives the Indian tracksters an overall 8.2 mark, 7.1 in the league. The Indians wind up dual meet competition Tuesday against unbeaten Windham High at Pete Wigren Track at 3:30. The locals are two-time defending CCLC champs, posting unbeaten records the past two years, and could tie for a third championship with a win. A one-loss would leave them in third place behind Windham and East Catholic.

Senior Butch Wemmel had a pair of firsts, winning the shot put and discus, and second in the high jump and pole vault, to pace the MHS team behind Windham and East Catholic in Saturday's meet. Ken Parrott won the 400 with a time of :55.5.
