Israel places its forces on alert

Smith home is sold

Alex Urbanetti of 349 E. Center St. has purchased the Robert H. Smith home at 131 Hartford Road and "about six acres" of adjoining property. Smith confirmed this morning.

Smith would not disclose the home's purchase price and said as far as he knows, Urbanetti, an artist, plans to live in the old Cheney mansion and has no plans to develop the property.

"He (Urbanetti) said he has always wanted to live in a Cheney home and looked at several before buying mine," said Smith, who is planning to move with his wife to another community.

Neighborhood residents — who face the possibility of condominium development on the Great Lawn, which Smith sold for $200,000 in 1982 to attorney Wesley Gryk and automobile dealer Michael Lynch — are concerned about further development in the historic Cheney area.

Gryk and Lynch are seeking a zone change which would allow them to build condominiums rather than single-family homes, for which the property is now zoned, on the 3.8-acre central portion of the lawn.

Urbanetti could not be reached for comment this morning and documents concerning the sale were not yet filed at the Town Clerk's office.

Smith, a Manchester native who has been prominent in civic affairs, said his move is "not an exodus." He said he plans to continue running his insurance business in Manchester.

"We're both 70 and the kids are all gone," he said, adding that the old Cheney mansion is "too large, so we're moving to a new location."

Smith declined to say where he plans to move.

WKSS opens safety center

Advertising or public service?

By James P. Sacks
Herald Reporter

Is the WKSS radio sign painted on a building along Interstate 86 near the Route 83 exit a zoning violation or the marker for a new kind of highway safety program?

Town Zoning Enforcement Officer Thomas R. O'Marra — backed up by the Zoning Board of Appeals — thinks the sign is one thing, and WKSS president Howard P. Tanger thinks it's another.

The question will be resolved one way or the other over the coming Memorial Day weekend, and Tanger hopes the station can prove the sign has more to do with highway safety than with advertising.

Stern reporter arrested

Man confesses Hitler forgeries

HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — A Nazi relics dealer has confessed he forged the Hitler diaries and authorities arrested the reporter who arranged the sale to Stern magazine, a West German Justice Department spokesman said today.

Spokesman Peter Beck gave no details of the confession, but the Bild newspaper said the relics dealer, 44-year-old Konrad Kujau, in a wry touch that demonstrated his ability at forging, signed the document "Adolf Hitler."

Beck also announced the arrest of Gerd Heidemann, the Stern reporter who claimed he tracked down the diaries in a three-year hunt in West and East Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Spain and Latin America.

Heidemann, 51, called a "bloodhound of a reporter" by Stern before he was fired, was arrested Thursday at his luxurious Hamburg apartment on suspicion of fraud, Beck said.

Beck said Heidemann was arrested because Kujau's confession indicated the reporter knew the diaries were forged and the story he told about getting the bogus Nazi leader's diaries from East Germany was not true.

from 6 to 11 p.m. today and Monday — when the largest number of motorists are on the road.

The station will provide free coffee to "hundreds of motorists," said Tanger, and will pass out free highway safety literature, maps and the 1983 Connecticut Vacation Guide "as long as they last." The literature will be provided by the AAA.

Morning disc jockey Dick Burtel will man the location today and station executive Joe Rizza will represent WKSS there on Monday. The site will be marked with floodlights during its hours of operation.

In addition, the State Police will station a patrol car and officer at the WKSS sign whenever possible while the site is open. The officer will answer motorists' questions on highway safety and other matters.

The station also plans to broadcast public service announcements on drunken driving throughout the weekend.

"Our thought is that everything helps," said Tanger. "If we can reach one listener who is tired and get him to have a cup of coffee — perhaps save a life — the program will have worked."

Tanger said if the station considers the program, which will cost "in the thousands," a success, it will be expanded to other Connecticut locations on future holidays.

If WKSS considers the program successful, the station can again apply for a variance allowing the sign to remain.

Syria says aggression is planned

By Scott MacLeod
United Press International

Israel placed its forces on alert today and warned Damascus against renewed hostilities, with Syrian forces reportedly conducting large-scale military maneuvers in eastern Lebanon and along the border with the Jewish state.

In Damascus, the state-run Syrian radio said the Israeli charges of a Syrian troop build-up were a "cover for Israel's aggressive intentions and preparations for war."

"Using the pretext of Syrian preparations in the (Lebanese) Bekaa Valley, Israel and the United States are now in close contact regarding the implementation stage of the aggression," the radio said.

The radio warned Israel that if it considering "an aggressive adventure, it has to calculate a thousand times, because Syria will deal with it with strength and determination." Syria admitted Thursday its warplanes confronted Israeli jets over Lebanon this week.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli military sources confirmed that Israeli forces had been placed on alert, but observers viewed the action as a precautionary measure.

The action came as Syria was beginning what Israeli news reports called large-scale military maneuvers along the Golan Heights, annexed by Israel, and Lebanon's eastern Bekaa Valley.

The start of the Syrian army maneuvers aroused concern in Israel since the same tactic was used by Egypt before its surprise attack across the Suez Canal at the start of the 1973 Arab-Israeli War.

The Israeli military command said today Syria was preparing new sites for Soviet-made SAM missiles in the Bekaa to replace ones destroyed by Israel in last year's Lebanon War.

The respected military correspondent of the Israeli Ha'aretz newspaper, Ze'ev Schiff, said a small spark could set off a conflict between Israel and Syria.

"We hope Syria will not make a fatal mistake. We are taking the necessary measures," Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir today said as he left for a week's trip to Europe.

Shamir termed "baseless" Soviet accusations Israel was preparing to attack Syria.

The Israeli warnings to Damascus were conveyed through Washington, telling Syria not to initiate fighting in Lebanon, where at least 30,000 Israeli forces, 40,000 Syrians and 10,000 Palestinians are positioned, Israel said.

A report by U.S. intelligence sources in Washington said Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization have sent about 2,500 new men to the Bekaa Valley, although it was not clear if they replaced troops leaving the area.

"We've been sending the warnings via the Americans for the past 10 days," said Uri Porath, spokesman for Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Lebanon and Israel signed an accord earlier this month, which Syria rejected, calling for a withdrawal of Israeli troops from Lebanon and unscathed relations between the two countries.

In New York, Secretary of State George Shultz told the Foreign Policy Association Thursday a final refusal by the Syrian government to pull its troops out of Lebanon would mean the partitioning of that country.

"I think it's in its (Syria's) best interest to have a prosperous stable Lebanon free of all foreign forces across its border rather than a partitioned Lebanon, which is what it will get out of failure to withdraw," Shultz said.

Syria's state-run newspaper, Al Baath, said the accord turns Lebanon "into a base and passageway for the Zionist enemy."

"I hope there will not be an escalation or a move that will force us to react," Israeli's deputy prime minister, David Levy, said Thursday. "Israel has warned the Syrians, through the United States, not to play with fire."

Fireworks plant explodes

BENTON, Tenn. (UPI) — A fireworks factory exploded on a farm today, killing at least eight people in a series of blasts that hurled bodies into trees and shook windows 15 miles away, authorities said.

The explosion occurred at a fireworks plant located on the Webb Bait Farm just outside the city limits of Benton, a rural southeast Tennessee community 40 miles east of Chattanooga. Bradley Memorial Hospital in nearby Cleveland, where the victims were rushed by ambulance, confirmed there were eight dead.

Witnesses reported a scene of awesome destruction. "It sounded like big firecrackers," said Marc Hunt, who operates an Ocoee River rafting business a mile away. "What got me concerned was I heard a super big explosion. A few seconds after the boom, it sounded like a bunch of shotgun blasts going off."

"I saw the charred remains of a person who was about 30 feet from me. There was hardly anything left. A couple of ambulance people said there were parts of bodies up in the trees — hands, legs, and heads laying around."

Hunt said ambulance attendants identified seven different bodies

Some rock groups barred for fear of rowdy crowds

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Interior Secretary James Watt may have started a trend when he banned what he considered unwholesome entertainment from the Washington, D.C. Mall. Watt said the July 4th concert at the Mall the last few years had attracted the "wrong element," a remark that was considered a slap at the Beach Boys, who have played at the Mall two years in a row.

Mystery disorder causes sporadic blindness

NEW YORK — Doctors are at a loss to explain a disorder that plunges some victims into sporadic blindness. It is called benign essential blepharospasm. Victims wink, blink or squint a lot at first and then find eyelids clamping shut. Spasms around the eyes affect muscles that control lids. The spells of blindness are of unpredictable duration.

Essential Blepharospasm Research Foundation with helping to locate victims across the country. Eldridge, who attended the first annual conference sponsored by the foundation, said its efforts at bringing patients together brought the scientific community a chance to look at greater numbers of victims of the disorder once thought rare.

These people are desperate because they are essentially blind and have difficulty carrying out their daily routine. Women have trouble with housework and both men and women have difficulty or find it impossible to drive their cars.

Advice

Uncle Sam wants your dog plus he's willing to pay

DEAR READERS: Just when I think I've heard everything, I get a letter from the Department of Defense Dog Center at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, asking me to help recruit dogs for a rewarding career in the military!

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Dogs are needed to be trained for guard duty, narcotic detection and explosive detection work. Some facts: The dog must weigh a minimum of 50 pounds and can be either male or female. German shepherds and Rottweilers are preferred, but it must have the predominant features of the breed it represents. The Defense Department will pay $259 per dog. If you have a dog that you think qualifies, write to: D.O.D. Dog Center, Detachment 32, Lackland Air Force Base, Texas 78222.

You will receive a form to fill out. If your dog qualifies, it will be taken to a local military veterinarian and either talks non-stop with you or lies on the floor. The examination is free. If you use a private veterinarian, you must pay the charges. Every once in a while she will break into a conversation while others are talking and introduce an entirely different subject!

What on earth could be wrong with her? She is very intelligent and extremely well-read. I really care for her.

So if you want to do something patriotic for your country, send your dog. I have a dog that you think qualifies, write to: D.O.D. Dog Center, Detachment 32, Lackland Air Force Base, Texas 78222. You will receive a form to fill out. If your dog qualifies, it will be taken to a local military veterinarian and either talks non-stop with you or lies on the floor. The examination is free. If you use a private veterinarian, you must pay the charges.

What are calories, and how does the body burn them?

DEAR DR. LAMB: You explain a little bit about calories. I've heard you talk about calories but how does your body use them? I know you use calories for exercise and work but people who do not do very much still use calories.

Your Health
Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

People use calories when they are sleeping. For what? Why do you eat fat with calories? You eat fat with calories. You eat fat with calories. You eat fat with calories.

DEAR DR. LAMB: It has been brought to my attention by friends that the whistles of my fan are often quite yellowish or orange. I am a male, age 38, apparently in excellent health. My diet is normal and varied. Can you offer any clue to the cause of this condition and possible treatment?

DEAR DR. LAMB: My attention is drawn to your article on how the body generates heat, using fat to an engine using energy (gasoline instead of food) and in the process liberating heat. Just as the engine needs to cool, so must your body.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Several important friendships will be developed this coming year with persons you already know casually. These relationships will prove advantageous. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your mate may be a bit more capricious in handling your joint interests than you will be today. Don't take over the last minute. The NEW Astro-graph shows the relationship with your mate may be very slight chance that he can handle that bad break.

'Thinking' machines on horizon

Japanese computers seen as threat to U.S.

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — Computers that see and hear and mimic human thought are on the horizon, a Stanford University researcher says. The only question is will they be "thinking" in English or Japanese? "It's imperative that American industry and government take heed of what the Japanese are doing," computer science Professor Edward Feigenbaum said in an interview. "It could," he said, "alter the balance of power in the world."

Feigenbaum asserts, although others disagree, that America "has done nothing" to meet the challenge and is squandering a small technological lead "one day per day." "It's irrelevant to argue with people whether the machines will 'think' or not," Feigenbaum said. "While the Japanese have put a lot of planning and thought into their fifth generation project, they've spent no time at all... debating whether a machine really can be said to 'think'." The Japanese, he said, "with their impressive track record of doing what they say they're going to do, are building a machine that in 10 years will be able to make a million logical inferences per second, later on a hundred million to a billion logical inferences per second."

The futuristic project "is unlikely to be completely successful in the 10-year period. But to view it therefore as a lot of smoke, as some American industry leaders have done, is a serious mistake," Feigenbaum said. "It's audacious, but it's doable," he said. Feigenbaum, a 47-year-old pioneer in American artificial intelligence research, said the Japanese program amounts to a "second computer revolution — perhaps THE computer revolution." He and co-author Pamela McCorduck, a Columbia University lecturer and science writer, argue that the United States "best hope is to mount a crash program comparable to the effort that landed an American on the moon in 1969."

Oakland Terrace — a condo community

OAKLAND TERRACE CONDOMINIUMS — a Manchester mini-community consisting of 14 townhouse styled condominiums. A complete community small enough to project the neighborly feeling one gets from private ownership but not having that "pride of ownership feeling" lost in the apartment like appearance of larger condo developments. The developers of Oakland Terrace, J&G Builders, have made the effort to build a quality product without the "extra frills" that are found in other condo sites. Many times these "extra frills" are not necessary to the buyer's needs, but are included, and the buyer has to pay for it, even if not wanted.

D. W. FISH REALTY CO. BRAND NEW TOWNHOUSE CONDOMINIUMS OPEN HOUSE THURS. & FRI. 4-7, SATURDAY 11-4. Features: Fully equipped kitchen, dishwasher, in-cabinet refrigerator, etc. Price: $49,900. Includes a house illustration and map.

List of potential bank failures zooms

Early last November, this column published a list of 48 banks that could bankrupt in a year if their current rate of operating losses continued.

All of the banks on the list were insured — accounts are protected up to $100,000 — so no depositor is known to have lost any money, though there may have been some inconveniences.

Well, the company that provided me with that list — an outfit called Veribanc, Inc. of Wakefield, Mass. — is back with a brand new one. And to and behold, the potential bankruptcy list (within a year) has nearly tripled to 128.

Moreover, more than half of them — 67 to be precise, and mostly community banks — will have zero equity in less than six months if they maintain their current rate of loss.

TEXAS — many of its banks overly aggressive in their energy, loans on the expectations of higher oil prices — leads the way with 13 potential bankruptcies. The runner-up with 12 possible bankruptcies is California with four aggressive lenders of funds for new real estate ventures that went awry in the face of high interest rates and a slumping economy.

Other states with a conspicuous number of potential bankruptcies, according to the Veribanc analysis, are Oregon (11), Oklahoma and Illinois (10), Tennessee and Colorado (seven), Missouri (six) Indiana (five) and Florida and New Jersey (three).

The list is based on information obtained from the Federal Reserve and covers the latest available data (as of year-end '82) as reported to the Fed by the nation's 14,852 banks.

Veribanc essentially specializes in providing statistical analysis of banks and savings and loan associations based on raw data obtained from various regulatory agencies. It should be duly noted, however, that the Veribanc analysis is based on the banks' own efforts since the end of '82. Nor does it factor in a more positive bank environment resulting from federal regulatory involvement, mergers or money supply (which expands the banks' deposit base).

lowering revenues and putting a squeeze on profits)

TO DATE, 18 banks have failed this year (with four closing their doors permanently). If that rate were to continue, you'd have just under 50 failures this year. Not only would that top last year's 42, but you'd also beat the previous high before that — 44 in 1980.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC), which incidentally belittled the original Veribanc study — in effect, suggesting the findings were too flamboyant — is now singing a different tune. In some realistic non-blue sky talk, for a change, FDIC chairman William Isaac recently told a bankers' meeting he expects the number of "problem banks" to continue to grow throughout the year. And he predicted the failure rate would equal, if not exceed last year's total.

Meanwhile, the number of banks on the FDIC's problem list continues to mount. At present, there are 425 such banks, up about 15 percent from the list of 370 such banks as of the end of last year.

Veribanc's analysis of banks and savings and loan associations based on raw data obtained from various regulatory agencies. It should be duly noted, however, that the Veribanc analysis is based on the banks' own efforts since the end of '82. Nor does it factor in a more positive bank environment resulting from federal regulatory involvement, mergers or money supply (which expands the banks' deposit base).

Ver, the number of bank failures continues to swell in '83 in the face of:

- (1) The lingering effects of four years of a stagnating economy and extremely high interest rates.
- (2) The high number of loans made on the expectations that inflation would be here forever (especially in the real estate and energy fields).
- (3) Surging competition for the bank depositor from non-bank institutions (such as brokerage firms, insurance companies and finance companies).
- (4) Growing competition among the banks themselves to lend to more credit-worthy customers (in turn holding down loan rates and therefore they have been closed and then reopened under regulatory auspices or new management.

One presumably bankrupt bank — with zero equity (as of year-end '82) — is the First National Bank of Woodlawn (Illinois). At the end of last year, the bank had equity of $26,000. If you were to annualize the bank's fourth quarter loss of just over $250,000, it would be over $1 million in the hole at the end of '83.

One extenuating circumstance here: The bank's former chairman went to jail for fraud.

Vice president Wanda Carroll tells me the bank's big problem is bad loans. She went on to say that "we're in the process of increasing our capital."

LEADING THE LIST

With the biggest projected annualized loss is a biggie — the IntraWest Bank of Denver. The bank, the nation's 106th largest, lost about $89 million in 1982. At the end of last year, the bank had equity of $200 million. If you were to annualize the bank's fourth quarter loss of just over $250,000, it would be over $1 million in the hole at the end of '83.

IntraWest executive vice president Peter Falletti acknowledges the bank suffered because of problems with energy and construction loans — also, from the declining cash flow from the retail-wholesale sector as a result of a burn economy. But he insists the bank's on "a turnaround course." The bank had a profit of $14 million in the first quarter and Falletti sees a full-year profit of around $20 million.

The bank may indeed be on the rebound, but meanwhile it's merging its lead bank with the Denver affiliate of a West Coast bank (First Interstate Bank Corp. of Los Angeles) to strengthen its financial muscles.

Typical of the problem banks is the Citizens State Bank of Forked River, N.J. Fixed mortgage rates in a rising interest-rate environment, rising costs of deposits (because of the competition) and problem loans, notably in real estate, pushed the bank into the red. But when rates came down, the bank was able to start liquidating its real estate properties.

The sale of a branch office (which cut overheads both added to the capital base and helped produce a profit in the first quarter. The bank is looking at new areas of business, such as discount brokerage, and plans a $3 million equity offering in June.

"Our health is much better, but we still have work ahead of us," says executive vice president Thomas Cleary.

Veribanc surely agrees with that; it gives the bank just five months before its equity goes to zero.

A thought for the day: Mark Twain said, "I promise not to do a thing is the surest way in the world, to make a body want to go and do that very thing."
