Flashing light in Center mystifies state workers

By Sarah Passell
Herald Reporter

Afraid to venture through the intersection of Main and Center streets lately? Unsure who goes first when every light is on flash? Fed up with a light system always on the blink at the busiest intersection in town? Don't call the police. They know.

Don't call town hall. They're not town lights. They belong to the state and the state can't figure out what keeps going wrong.

The problem, according to David Gilbert, senior transportation engineer with the Connecticut Department of Transportation, is in the "failsafe unit." The unit rests inside a large metal control box on a post on the southeast corner of the intersection, in front of the Southern New England Telephone Building.

The failsafe unit is supposed to throw all the lights at the intersection into the flash mode anytime there is danger of conflicting green lights that would cause unsuspecting motorists to collide in the middle, Gilbert said Wednesday.

The unit has thrown the lights into the flash mode five times in the last three weeks. No one knows why.

The seeds of the problem were apparently planted when the state hired Coken Company of Providence, R. I., to install a new controller in April, Gilbert said. Coken buys its controllers from Traffic Engineering and Sales, another Providence firm, according to Coken engineer Paul Annarummo.

Coken guarantees its work for 30 days, Gilbert said. But, as often seems to happen with things on warranty, the controller worked well until the warranty ran out.

"We hate to throw it away," said Gilbert Wednesday. "We'd have to know exactly what's wrong before we could do that." He said department maintenance workers would continue to try to repair it.

Neither Gilbert nor Annarummo would say how much it cost the state to install the controller last spring. Annarummo did say a controller can cost many thousands of dollars depending on what it is programmed to do.

"It's like a computer," he said Thursday.

Annarummo said as far as he knows Connecticut has not turned to Coken for help. He said Connecticut transportation department maintenance workers are pretty good at fixing controllers themselves.

Police say there haven't been any accidents yet at the intersection during times when the lights are on the blink.

Jobless rate dips into single digits

By Drew Von Bergen
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate plunged to 9.5 percent in July, the lowest in more than a year, as nearly 500,000 Americans found jobs, the Labor Department reported today.

It was the first time since last August that the civilian jobless rate has fallen below the double-digit level and added fuel to Reagan administration projections the economy is turning around.

The 9.5 percent seasonally adjusted level was a dramatic decline of half a percentage point from June's 10 percent level and is 1.3 percentage points below the recession high of 10.8 percent last December.

The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said 10.6 million workers were still unemployed, 556,000 below June's level, as the size of the civilian labor force remained unchanged. Total employment rose by 499,000 over the month to 101.3 million.

A separate jobless rate, which includes 1.7 million military workers as part of the work force dropped from June's 9.8 percent level to 9.3 percent.

The 9.5 percent rate for the civilian work force was the lowest since June 1982, when it was the same 9.5 percent.

The bureau said the July decline in joblessness occurred primarily among adult women, whose rate fell 0.7 percentage points to 7.9 percent. The rate for adult men declined slightly from 9 percent to 8.8 percent.

Teenage unemployment remained high, however, at 22.8 percent, although down 0.8 percentage points from June.

Heritage, Seamen's merger will be dropped, Hale says

By Raymond T. DeMeo
Herald Reporter

Heritage Savings & Loan Association has dropped plans to merge with a New York bank, Heritage president William H. Hale said Thursday.

In March, Heritage agreed in principle to be acquired by Seamen's Bank for Savings of New York City. But Hale said lawyers for the two banks are in the process of nullifying the agreement, which never received approval from state or federal banking regulators.

Hale said the banks dropped the merger idea after it became clear that it would cost considerable time and money to fight the newly-enacted state law prohibiting interstate mergers involving New York banks.

"It just didn't seem worth the trouble," he said.

In March, E. Virgil Conway, president and chief executive officer of Seamen's, made public a letter of intent to purchase Heritage's 312,000 shares of common stock for $18 a share. The same stock sold for $7.21 a share when Heritage became a public company 1 1/2 years ago.

The deal subsequently won the approval of the governing boards of both banks, but was never brought to a vote among the banks' shareholders.

Seamen's buyout offer was set to expire on Sept. 30 if the merger couldn't be arranged. Hale said the deal might be cancelled sooner "if the two parties can agree."

He said the two banks have a few unresolved issues to be worked out — like who will pay the legal fees and other expenses incurred in planning for the aborted merger.

The merger would have allowed Heritage, with assets of $140 million, to tap the resources of Seamen's, with assets of $1.7 billion. But Hale said that even though the deal is off, there's still a chance for cooperation between the two banks.

He said Seamen's recently bought half of a $12 million mortgage granted by Heritage.

The Heritage-Seamen's merger is one of three unions between New York and Connecticut financial institutions proposed in the past six months.

Politicians skirmish in battle of Union Bridge

By James P. Sacks
Herald Reporter

Manchester's own small bridge war heated up this morning as several prominent Republicans charged at a press conference that the Democratic majority in town government sat on the Union Street Bridge problem for five years. They said nothing substantial was done about the bridge until three people were killed in the collapse of the Mianus Bridge in Greenwich early this summer.

The Democratic majority has been aware of the problem since a 1978 report by the state to the town, they charged, but has done nothing about it.

Board of Directors minority leader Peter DiRosa, the chief spokesman at the conference, was joined by state Sen. Carl A. Zinsser and Director William Diana in charging that the condition of the bridge is an example of Democratic party insensitivity to the needs of Manchester taxpayers.

DiRosa called the situation "a scary state of affairs," especially for residents of the North End who may have to wait longer for emergency service vehicles such as fire trucks, since they cannot cross the bridge in its present condition.

Mayor Stephen T. Penny hotly denied the charges in an interview following the conference. He said the bridge is the "number-one priority" on Manchester's list for trading in federal interstate highway funds and has been on the agenda for several years.

A new $1.5-million bridge — built mainly with federal money — should be completed on Union Street over the Hockanum River by October 1986, the mayor said.

HE SAID preliminary engineering contracts for the new bridge have been approved by the state Department of Transportation as submitted in a concept plan by the town. The new bridge will be 85 percent paid for by the federal government, the mayor said, with the town and the state splitting the remaining 15 percent equally.

DiRosa, apparently unaware of the project's approval by the DOT, said at the conference that the condition of the bridge "shows how well they (the Democrats) are taking care of the citizens. Why has it taken five years?" he asked.

DiRosa said the $29,000 recently suggested by the administration to make the bridge suitable for residential traffic "is not going to shore up that bridge so I feel safe going over it."

He also indicated he thought the $80,000 estimate for making it suitable for trucks was insufficient.

"IF THE (Mianus) bridge in Greenwich had not gone down," Sen. Zinsser said after DiRosa concluded his remarks, the bridge would not have been closed early this summer by the town administration.

"Something has got to be done," he added. "We don't have to wait for disasters."

The senator said the town administration has not contacted him about the problem, though he has been open to an approach. He said he had been looking into possible financing and had contacted the DOT about the bridge.

"No one has asked in three years," Zinsser said. "When you get down to something like a bridge, let the politics go for another time."

Penny charged that Zinsser and DiRosa showed "complete ignorance" in making the charges. He said the charges were politically motivated because this is an election year.

Quote of the day

Marilyn Monroe died 21 years ago today. Roger Ebert, musing on his ABC-PM Network show "Movienews" that she seems as big a star now as she was then, said:

"Why is it that Marilyn Monroe remains such a constant presence in our national imagination, 21 years after her death? Maybe it's because she never seemed real in the first place. She lived and dreamed and suffered and died, and yet to a lot of us she was basically a symbol, a smiling, red-lipped, blonde-haired, eternally cheerful sex goddess who became part of our folklore. She became the most famous movie star of her generation...but somehow everybody overlooked the human being inside...the human being who died on Aug. 5, 1962...and who still captures our imaginations."

The brothers Gibb

Robin Gibb, of the Bee Gees Gibbs, has bought a $250,000 Miami Beach bayside mansion two doors away from his older brother, Barry. Robin has preferred living in England in the past. He bought the house from David P. Reynolds and J. Louis Reynolds through the Keys real estate agency. A Keys agent said, "It's just a gorgeous house. The floors are all marble as you walk in with a huge living room and separate Florida room and music room. I would mind living there myself."

Brooke stock slips a bit

Wall Street was a bit bearish on a firm that hopes to make a fortune by baring actress-model Brooke Shields. Fine Arts Acquisitions, Inc., which will market $40 posters of Miss Shields standing nude in a bathtub at the age of 11, sold off 1.5 million shares of stock Thursday. Its first day of trading on Wall Street.

But by the time the market closed, the $6 trading price of a three-share unit had dropped to about $3.75.

"It's been a bad day for the market," said Robert Blatt, chairman of Muller and Co. Inc., the brokerage house that put the stock offering together. "I don't know how well it (the stock) will do. You can't predict."

Besides the posters, the company plans to market a book and portfolio featuring the pictures. The top model's mother, Teri Shields, tried unsuccessfully to block use of the pictures in a lengthy court battle against photographer Gary Gross.

"The quality of the pictures is extremely high," said Harris Shapiro, president of Fine Arts Acquisitions. "They are of the highest tastes. They are not pornographic."

Country for college-bound

Tammy Wynette, the First Lady of Country music, and singing school superintendent Dr. Donald Steele begin a recording session Thursday in a unique effort to provide more scholarship money for college-bound students in Seattle, Wash. Steele and Miss Wynette were recording an album, "Let's All Pull Together," for the benefit of Steele's school district.

Liddy goes Broadway?

G. Gordon Liddy, one of the oddest figures to emerge in the Watergate scandal of the mid-1970s, is trying out for a role in the Broadway revival of Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman."

Doris Blum, a spokeswoman for producer Robert Whitehead's office said Wednesday that Liddy had been to the Edison Theater to read for a role in the play. Liddy will return next Wednesday for another reading, she said.

Ms. Blum said Liddy read the part of Ben, Willie Loman's adventurous older brother. The play is being revived by Miller, Whitehead and Dustin Hoffman, who portrayed Washington Post reporter Carl Bernstein in the Watergate movie "All the President's Men."

Glimpses

Ken Follet, whose mysteries include "Eye of the Needle" and "Key to Rebecca," has a new novel coming up, "On Wings of Eagles."

Sally Ride will attend the reception given by Ms. magazine and the Girls Clubs of America in New York on Aug. 9.

Harvey Fierstein and George-Paul Russell hosted a party Thursday night for Chita Rivera, who will give her final performance in the Broadway musical "Merlin" on Sunday.

Doris Roberts, whose last TV series role was as the mother in "Angie," will join Stephanie Zimbalist and Pierce Brosnan in the cast of NBC's "Remington Steele" next fall as an IRS agent.

The police series "Hill Street Blues" dominated the Emmy sweepstakes Thursday for the third consecutive year with 17 nominations. Among the nominees for best dramatic actor were John Forsythe (L) for "Dynasty"; Tom Selleck (C) for "Magnum P.I."; and Veronica Hamel and Daniel Travanti for "Hill Street Blues" — top row. Also in the running for best actress in a dramatic role are Linda Evans of "Dynasty"; Sharon Gless (C) of "Cagney and Lacey"; and Debbie Allen of "Fame".

'Hill Street Blues' is tops as Emmy nominations made

By Stan W. Metzler
United Press International

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — NBC, fighting to climb out of last place in the Nielsen ratings, grabbed nearly as many Emmy award nominations as CBS and ABC combined.

Led by the gritty police series "Hill Street Blues" with 17 NBC programs received 133 Emmy nominations, which were announced Thursday from the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

CBS and 73 nominations and ABC 68, including 16 for the romantic "The Thorn Birds" miniseries.

"Winds of War," the 16-hour ABC epic about events leading up to World War II, got 13 nominations. Two low-rated but critically praised NBC series — "Cheers" and "St. Elsewhere" — earned 13 and 10 nominations apiece.

Pulitzer Prize-winning author Norman Mailer was nominated for his "Executioner's Song," and movie legend Bette Davis was nominated for her role in "Little Gloria."

Other leaders were "M-A-S-H," "Fame," and "Motown 25: Yesterday, Today, Forever," nine each.

"SCTV Network" and the special "Who Will Love My Children" with eight; and "Nicholas Nickleby," seven.

The Emmys will be awarded Sept. 25 during a live broadcast on NBC hosted by Eddie Murphy and Joan Rivers.

Daniel Travanti, named best actor in a drama series for the past two years, was nominated again for his role as Capt. Furillo in "Hill Street Blues," named best dramatic series the last two years. His competitors this year are Tom Selleck, "Magnum, P.I.," John Forsythe, "Dynasty," and William Daniels and Ed Flanders, both in "St. Elsewhere."

Alan Alda, who has won five Emmys for "M-A-S-H," was nominated twice as best actor and director of a comedy.

Manchester In Brief

Hearing set on cable rates
The Department of Public Utilities Control will hold a public hearing Thursday on Cox Cable of Greater Hartford's request to increase the charge for basic cable TV service by $3 a month. The hearing will begin at 10 a.m. at Wethersfield Town Hall, according to King Quillen, a DPUC spokeswoman.

Cox Cable serves about 33,000 customers in Manchester, Glastonbury, South Windsor, Newington, Wethersfield and Rocky Hill.

Since 1978 the firm has charged $8.85 a month for basic cable, not including pay movie channels or other options. In April, Cox asked the DPUC for permission to raise its rates to $11.85, citing increased costs and decreasing profits.

At Thursday's hearing, Cox officials will answer questions about the rate increase from DPUC staff members and state Consumer Counsel Barry S. Zitser. Members of the public may also speak.

If necessary, the hearing will continue on Friday at the DPUC's headquarters in New Britain, Ms. Quillen said.

She said DPUC commissioners will take a vote on Cox's rate hike request sometime in late September.

Cummings' Smith 'unfair'

Democratic Town Chairman Theodore R. Cummings said Thursday he doesn't think it fair that Republican Town Chairman Curtis M. Smith "tore my head off with language" at the GOP nominating caucus Wednesday.

He had heard that Smith attacked him during the caucus "because I don't let people speak, he says."

Cummings pointed out that he was also attacked Wednesday night at the Democrats' own caucus for rules changes, but that he had allowed his attackers, including angry committee member Carmilo Vendrillo, to have their say.

That, claimed the chairman, contrasts with Smith, who "says one thing and does another."

Cummings was referring to the Republican caucus. Town committee member J. Russell Smyth to resign his membership and two appointive positions after being silenced by the chairman before the vote on nominations.

Smith also refused to recognize conservative John Tucci at the caucus since Tucci is not a committee member. Tucci, who had sought a party slot on the ticket for the Board of Directors, stormed out at the end of the caucus making angry remarks about the Manchester GOP.

"What kind of open organization is that," Cummings asked Smith, said Cummings, "is shallow — a public relations man; but his PR is inconsistent and he forgets that."

Clark says program works

"As far as I'm concerned, the program has been paid for," James Clark said emotionally about the town's Advanced Life Support program that made the difference between life and death.

He was referring to an incident Wednesday night when the medical team was called to the home of William Pentastamacher of 39A Bluefield Drive, victim of a heart attack.

Clark, coordinator of training for the program, said it was the first call for the paramedic program that made the difference between life and death.

The team, a paramedic and an EMT IV from the medical squad, EMTs from the Town Fire Department's Engine Co. 1, and a crew from the Manchester Ambulance Co. worked on the victim for about 45 minutes before transporting him to Manchester Memorial Hospital, where he is in stable but guarded condition.

Clark said the team began first with Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation, used medications, began an IV and defibrillated the patient. The crew continued CPR while the patient was on route to the hospital.

During the treatment, the crew in the field was in constant touch with the Emergency Department at the hospital. Electrocardiograph strips were sent over the air to be read at the hospital. Clark said the crew's performance won the praise of the emergency room physician on duty and of the patient's personal physician.

"You would have to be there to really appreciate it," Clark said.

Pizza challenge issued

Antony LoGrasso, owner of Tony's Cuisine, 221 Spencer St., Manchester is issuing a challenge to workers in the clerk's office of Hartford Superior Court to come and test his pizza against any in the land. LoGrasso told the Herald this morning.

LoGrasso said he became angry on reading in a newspaper that some court employees had a friend bring a half-frozen pizza from Chicago to Hartford after bemoaning the lack of first-rate pizza in the Hartford area.

LoGrasso said he feels the pizza made at his restaurant stands up to any to be found in Chicago.

He said he intends to offer the court employees a pizza of their choice next week.

Democrats' districts revamped All not happy with rule changes

By James P. Socks
Herald Reporter

At least two Democratic Town Committee members — one a district chairman — disagree with changes in the party by-laws that were instituted at the Democratic party's nominating caucus Wednesday night.

Democratic Town Chairman Theodore R. Cummings and other prominent local Democrats, who say the changes will equalize power among the 12 districts, came under fire at the caucus in an angry speech by town committee member Carmilo Vendrillo of District Eight.

After Vendrillo's attack on Cummings, which was answered by fellow committee member Town Clerk Edward Tomkeli, District Nine Chairman Thomas O'Neill told the caucus that by pushing the rules changes through, "you're not creating a good feeling among the districts."

O'Neill said in a later interview he thinks the amendments to the by-laws are meant to consolidate committee control by Cummings, and particularly to diminish the power of his district and some others. He said Cummings' contention that the changes mean greater equality among the districts is "not quite honest."

THEODORE CUMMINGS at Wednesday caucus

THE MAJOR change in the by-laws will increase the size of the town committee to 101 from its current size of 80 and give each district a floor of eight members. Others will change the way states are defined on district caucus ballots, increase the number of members required for a quorum at town committee meetings from 30 to 40 percent, require the election of a vice-chairman from each district, and define when a caucus presiding officer can close a caucus.

The rules changes, drafted by attorneys Joel E. Janenda and John R. Fitzgerald, both town committee members, will take effect in January 1984 before the next town committee elections.

Under the current system, 10 districts are represented by committees that range from seven to 11 members. The next election will incorporate the 1982 change to 12 party voter registration districts and give seven districts eight members each, with the five

State nearly ready for supermarkets action

The state's Attorney General's office should know within 30 days whether it will file an anti-trust lawsuit against Yankee Supermarkets, an advertising and buying co-op of 25 independent supermarkets, including two in Manchester.

Robert M. Langer, the state's assistant attorney general for anti-trust matters, says his office's investigation of Yankee's business practices is continuing. "We've received full cooperation from Yankee's lawyers and the lawyers from Springfield Sugar Co.," he says.

Springfield, a Suffield-based company that distributes Sweet Life groceries, is the major grocery supplier for all of the co-op supermarkets. Springfield Sugar officials helped to arrange the co-op, which started in February.

The independently-owned markets involved in the Yankee co-op are from Connecticut and Western Massachusetts. Crispino's Supreme Foods and Andy's Foodtown in Manchester are members, as is the Highland Park Market in Coventry.

The markets are represented on central committees in charge of advertising and buying products from wholesalers. By buying together, the markets are in a better position to negotiate lower prices with wholesalers, by pooling their advertising funds, they can afford bigger and more elaborate ads.

Shortly after Yankee started advertising in February Langer said the Attorney General's office would "look into" the co-op to see if it violated anti-trust laws by establishing uniform prices at independently-owned stores.

"We want to be very careful about this investigation," Langer says. "We want to be sure laws aren't being violated, but we don't want to restrict the markets' right to free trade."

Seven killed in shooting

AVIGNON, France — Two pistol-wielding thieves killed seven people in a wild shooting spree that erupted at a French hotel early today after they failed to break into the hotel's safe, police said.

The dead included Lucien Andre, 66, the French consul in Sarrebruck, West Germany. All of the victims were French.

Dollar sets record levels

LONDON — Shrugging off central bank attempts at intervention, the dollar bounced ahead against European currencies today setting record levels again in France and Italy.

The American currency was at its highest level for nearly 10 years against the mark in West Germany and made further gains on sterling in London.

The dollar's strength depressed the price of gold which is reckoned in dollars and therefore more expensive for foreign purchasers.

The billion price fell $4.75 overnight in Zurich to $410.50 and it was $4.75 cheaper in London at $408.625.

The dollar's rise over all currencies seemed set to continue, London dealers said.

Walesa has plan

GDANSK, Poland — Hinting at new tactics by the outlawed trade union, Solidarity founder Lech Walesa welcomed a group of newly released political prisoners, promising the struggle for freedom will "end with our victory."

"I welcome you back to liberty," Walesa told a meeting of about 40 former political prisoners Thursday at St. Brigidas church in the northern port city, birthplace of the union in 1980.

"Sixteen months of Solidarity in operation were the first stage of our fight," Walesa said. "The second stage of it began on the 13th of December," a reference to the imposition of martial law in 1981.

"The third stage will end with our victory," he added.

Hijacked jet returns

MIAMI — A hijacked Capitol Air jet landed in the United States today after an overnight stay in Cuba and passengers said the man who splashed gasoline in the plane's cabin was a "slovenly, drunk Cuban" who cried upon landing in Havana.

It was the ninth successful domestic hijacking since May 1 and the third involving Capitol's flight 236 from San Juan to Miami.

Passenger Isadore Torres, 33, of San Juan, Puerto Rico, described the hijacker as "a slovenly, drunk black Cuban who started to cry when the flight landed" in Havana.

Shadow cast on peace hope

EL SALVADOR — A clandestine radio broadcast by rebels from El Salvador assailed U.S. special envoy Richard Stone as "another soldier of intervention," clouding hopes that his meeting last week with a rebel leader would lead to peace.

Soviets boycott world champion chess matches

By Kirsten O. Lundberg
United Press International

MOSCOW — Soviet grandmaster Garry Kasparov said he would risk being disqualified today by boycotting a world championship chess match outside Los Angeles, a site he finds unacceptable.

The Soviet Chess Federation said Thursday Kasparov would fail to appear for the semifinal match set for Pasadena, Calif., against Soviet defector Viktor Korchnoi. Kasparov's countryman, Vasily Smyslov, said he will not go to Abu Dhabi where he is scheduled to play Hungarian Zoltan Ribli.

Kasparov, 20, appeared in a statement published by the newspaper Sovetskiy Sport, or Soviet Sport, for the match to be moved, preferably to Rotterdam, the Netherlands, a site both he and Korchnoi found acceptable.

The decision by World Chess Federation (FIDE) President Florencio Campomanes to hold the match in Pasadena displayed "an obvious disregard for the opinions of the interested parties — that is, the participating chess players," Kasparov's statement said.

As a result of the players' protests, the Soviet chess organization said, "the matches will not be held in either Pasadena or Abu Dhabi," where Smyslov complained the weather was too hot.

FIDE officials meeting in Madrid last week said failure to appear at the semifinals would mean automatic disqualification.

The contestants are competing for the right to play the Soviet Union's Anatoly Karpov, the world champion, for his title next year.

The Soviets said they are still willing to discuss the sites for the semifinals with the other participants and the relevant chess federations.

Their objections to Pasadena include restricted access for Soviet diplomats and citizens, fears for the safety of the Soviet delegation and complaints over news coverage facilities.

Kasparov said the years 1983-84 would represent "a sad place in chess history" if the matches do not take place, and would leave a "strange and undefined situation."

He acknowledged that Campomanes was within his rights because of vague wording in the FIDE charter, but the Soviet Chess Federation accused the FIDE president of "unlawful violations."

Karpov, 32, has been world champion since 1975, when American Bobby Fischer declined to defend his title. Karpov has twice fought off challengers from Korchnoi, who defected in 1976 and now lives in Switzerland.

Bombings of Japan marked with protests, fasts in U.S.

By June Preston
United Press International

Anti-nuclear protesters today began a weeklong series of demonstrations to commemorate the bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, targeting military bases and production facilities in more than 70 cities across the United States.

The protests were expected to continue through next week. Atomic bombs killed 106,000 people in Hiroshima Aug. 6, 1945, and 50,000 in Nagasaki three days later, marking the end of World War II.

In Albuquerque, N.M., World War II veteran Gilberto G. Quintana said he would be at Holy Ghost Catholic Church Saturday for day long blood donations. Quintana, 57, of Pecos, N.M., said he suffers from cancer caused by radiation exposure he received in Nagasaki three months after the bombing.

"I want to give witness to what happened at Nagasaki," said Quintana. "I hope the United States and Russia get rid of all the atom bombs because the poor people are going to suffer."

"The government has put us in the fire and now they don't want to put the fire out," he said.

In Amarillo, Texas, 36 anti-nuclear activists today neared the end of a 1,600-mile march from the Pentagon to the Pantex nuclear weapons assembly plant. The group planned to camp outside the plant from Saturday, Hiroshima Day, until Tuesday, Nagasaki Day.

"Nobody in their right mind would say they favor nuclear war, but the position of this country is based on the position nuclear war is possible and under certain circumstances the United States would initiate such a war," said marcher Ken Solberg, who teaches at St. Mary's College in Winona, Minn.

A five-day commemoration in Washington, with the theme "Remembrance is Not Enough," was to start with a vigil tonight outside the White House. Other candlelight vigils were scheduled for Saturday and Monday.

A rally at the Lincoln Memorial was scheduled for Sunday night, as well as a traditional Japanese candlelight on the monument's reflecting pool. The activities were sponsored by an umbrella organization of peace groups.

The Mobilization for Survival released a list of more than 70 cities where further demonstrations were planned.

In Washington, a caravan of cyclists from the Soviet Union was expected to arrive at the White House today. Julian Bond was to speak at a rally in New Haven, Conn. tonight.

OPINION

Reagan's ideology, politics clash

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's decision to put Central America so conspicuously on the front burner, courting controversy at the precise time he figures to be profiting politically from the domestic economic outlook, tells volumes about his essential priorities and the hold his anti-Communist ideology has on him.

Jack Germond and Jules Witcover
Syndicated columnists

Drawing the nation's attention so forcefully to the Latin troublespot right now has one inevitable side consequence. It blurs not only the importance of the economy but also the White House's deliberate effort to shore up the President's weaknesses on such politically important domestic matters as education and among major constituencies such as blacks, environmentalists and women.

The reason the President is willing to overshadow this domestic fence-mending is that when it comes to foreign-policy items that go to the heart of the President's view of the East-West struggle, everything else is secondary. With National Security Adviser William Clark and U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick lobbying hard for showing the Soviet Union this country means business in Central America, domestic political considerations take a backseat.

THE WHITE House is not unaware that the public-opinion polls are running heavily against U.S. military involvement in Central America, and that the "Vietnam syndrome" casts a long shadow on Capitol Hill especially, over any indication of such an impending involvement. But the President, as he noted in his recent press conference, clearly believes the problem essentially is one of educating the public about the true situation — as he sees it, an East-West confrontation.

Part of the problem, though, is that the President obviously has been dissembling when he criticisms are thus diffused. Then, White House thinking goes, having used the bully pulpit for this one priority foreign-policy effort, the President will resume employing it to deal with his domestic problems. The recent all-court press on education is seen as a prototype for future campaigns toward other problem issues and constituencies.

THE recent campaign to pass the administration as a champion on civil rights, which fizzled, is dismissed as essentially an attempt to take heat off Reagan's proposal to replace three members of the Civil Rights Commission. The view at the White House is that a much more concerted effort will be required ahead to change the minds of black Americans toward him. But other groups — notably Hispanics and women — are slated for Reagan blitzes in the weeks and months ahead.

In August, largely because the President will be in Texas and Mexico, events are being considered to show the President's concern for the special problems of Hispanic voters. Later, probably in September, the plan is for him to start dealing with the gender gap — the fact women voters clearly prefer Democrats to Republicans and appear to be particularly disenchanted with Reagan himself.

These concerted appeals to specific constituencies are transparently efforts to improve the President's chances for re-election. But defenders, while acknowledging they are transparent, insist they are a plus for Reagan in that they show he is not ignoring the groups who have felt left out by him.

The pragmatists at the White House, such as Michael Deaver, as opposed to the ideologues like Clark, think constantly in political terms and hence push these efforts at constituency courtship. And they are able to carry the day when no surmounting issue close to Reagan's ideological heart emerges.

But when something like a possible East-West face-off in Central America surfaces, it is no contest. So the future of domestic political fence-mending is very likely to ride on how well things go south of the Mexican border.

Guerillas fighting internally

WASHINGTON — For the first time in a year and a half, the CIA-backed guerrilla movement inside Nicaragua, My associate Jon Lee Anderson is the first reporter to have reached the Misquito Indian rebels fighting on the Atlantic coast of Nicaragua.

The situation is so bad, he reports, that the Misquito leaders are seriously thinking of pulling their 2,000 guerrillas out of action. They complain bitterly of mistreatment by their nominal allies, the Nicaraguan Democratic Force (FDN). Here is my associate's report:

The Indian guerrilla group, called Misura, is fighting to win regional autonomy for their primitive, swampy homeland in eastern Nicaragua. Their leader is Steadman Fagoth, a former Sandinista who is now a bitter foe of the Managua regime.

LIKE THE 13,000-man FDN, the Misquitos get all their arms and supplies from the CIA, but there's a big hitch: The Misquitos get their supplies through the FDN — and they complain about being changed in the process.

Promised 2,000 M-16 automatic rifles, the Misquitos got American carbines of World War II vintage. "There's a black market going on between the FDN and the Honduran armed forces," one rebel leader charged. "Some of our carbines were stamped with the initials of one or another of the Honduran police or military forces, and we began seeing Honduran soldiers walking around with brand-new M-16s — ours."

The Misquitos claim they have been forced to accept second-class status by Gen. Gustavo Alvarez, Honduran armed forces chief, who helps direct guerrilla activities for the CIA. For example, Misquito leaders are refused travel documents by the Honduran authorities when they try to go abroad and plead their case as an independent rebel group.

OF THE ORIGINAL $80,000 supposed to have been given them by the CIA, Misquito leaders say they didn't get a dime — the FDN got it all. The FDN, they complained, "treats us like a regional wing of their own force. They use us. They even claim our battles as theirs."

The Misquitos are in desperate need of boats and outdoor motors to continue fighting in their land of swamps, bayous and rivers along the coast. The FDN has plenty, they said, but won't give them up. "They have five helicopters, four small planes and five powerful speedboats," a Misquito leader said. "We can't get one (helicopter) to reposition our isolated combat units or take out our wounded."

"We have men in the field going hungry, while the top honchos in the FDN get $3,500 monthly salaries and houses and food provided by the Americans. We don't even have a doctor — not one — for 2,000 men."

For the first time, the guerrilla leaders gave specific figures on the amount of CIA aid they get. "The gringos have cut us back 25 percent," said one Misquito officer. "Now we only get $35,000 instead of $50,000 a month for food, transport — everything we have to buy apart from weapons and ammo, which we get separately."

Assuming the much larger FDN is paid on at least the same scale, this means the CIA's Nicaraguan enterprise costs more than a quarter-million dollars a month, exclusive of arms and ammunition.

The Misquito leaders expressed concern over "left-wing U.S. politicians" who are trying to force the CIA to give up or cut back its support of the anti-Sandinista rebels. "I hope this isn't going to be another Bay of Pigs," said one Indian leader.

Connecticut In Brief

Report made last year

NEW MILFORD — A state bridge inspector said he reported to his superiors last September the pin-and-hanger assembly suspected of causing the Mianus River bridge collapse was one of several badly rusted and in need of immediate attention.

J. William Burns, commissioner of the state Transportation Department, and other high-ranking department officers, said they do not recall receiving the report, a supplement to a regular inspection report on the bridge, from senior bridge inspector Jerry White and his partner Charles Everest.

When the department released its file on the Mianus River bridge June 29, the day after the collapse that killed three people and seriously injured three others, the supplement White said he submitted with the routine September inspection report on the bridge apparently was not among the documents. The routine report was in the file.

Connector bridge is closed

OLD SAYBROOK — A 67-year-old bridge that is a two-lane connector between Route 1 and Interstate 95 has been closed because the bridge was so severely rusted a workman's hammer punched a hole in a beam.

First Selectwoman Barbara Maynard said she banned traffic from the heavily used Ingham Hill Road bridge at 1 p.m. Wednesday after state Transportation Department inspectors making a routine check found the main structure was seriously deteriorated.

The rust was so bad a workman's hammer went through stringers, small beams that support the bridge's wooden deck, said Ronald Baldi, the Old Saybrook highway supervisor.

James Leersich, a senior state Transportation Department inspector at the scene, said, "We are concurring with our inspectors. This thing must remain closed."

Two men die in crashes

Two Massachusetts men died Thursday in separate traffic accidents in Connecticut.

Edward Smith, 69, of Tewksbury, Mass., died in Lawrence and Memorial Hospitals in New London from head and internal injuries he suffered in a tractor-trailer accident Wednesday on Route 9 in Old Saybrook, state police said.

Smith was a passenger in a tractor-trailer rig driven by Michael E. O'Connor, 20, also of Tewksbury, police said.

Police said O'Connor apparently lost control of the truck as it was rounding a curve on the ramp from Route 9 to northbound Interstate 95. The vehicle veered right into 100 feet of guardrail and tipped over onto its right side, blocking the ramp for several hours, police said. O'Connor was charged with negligent homicide, police said.

Robert C. Rutkowski, 35, of Haydensville, Mass., was killed in a two-vehicle accident Thursday on Route 10 in Granby, police said. Rutkowski's car skidded sideways on the highway and collided with a 44-wheel dump truck, police said.

The truck driver was listed as David A. Messenger of East Granby, who escaped apparent injury, police said.

Officer outwits hitchhiker

NEW MILFORD — A federal corrections officer helped capture an escaped prisoner by offering a ride to a hitchhiker who matched the suspect's description.

Dean Mosher, 23, a native of New Milford, was arrested without resistance by New Milford police Thursday while sitting in the parked car of Thomas Hollister, a corrections officer at the federal prison in Danbury.

Mosher escaped July 24 from the Connecticut Correctional Institution in Enfield where he was serving a sentence on a burglary charge.

Hollister was driving along Route 25 in the Newtown area when he heard on the radio scanner in his car that police were looking for Mosher.

He said he saw a man matching Mosher's description hitchhiking south on Route 25 and offered Mosher a ride to the New Milford station. Hollister said he told Mosher he wanted to buy beer and stopped at a market on Route 7 in New Milford.

Union leader likes new plan

State police may get to bid for shifts

By Mark A. Dupuis

HARTFORD — The state has proposed a plan to allow state troopers to voluntarily bid for shifts and work the same hours for a 112-day trial period, rather than changing shifts weekly.

Jerry Herkowitz, president of the state police union, said Thursday the proposed work schedule would be easier on troopers' health.

Under the state's proposal, troopers statewide would be able to volunteer to work a particular shift, such as days or overnight duty.

Herkowitz said steady shifts are better for troopers' health than the current system of rotating shifts week to week between days, evenings and overnight duty.

"That's got to be medically the worse schedule on your body that there is," Herkowitz said, citing studies that showed the human body takes 28 days to adjust to a particular schedule.

He said state police as a group suffered an "awful lot" of health problems, including ulcers, kidney, liver and intestinal problems.

"A great deal of that is attributed to the rotating shifts. This of course would allow your system to adjust, to go on," Herkowitz said.

He also said deciding shift assignments by seniority would work out because senior members of the state police force had the most health problems.

The straight shift concept was tried in an experiment involving about 150 troopers at barracks in Colchester, Hartford and Southington, but rescinded by state police management when problems arose and the union filed grievances.

The problems occurred when some troopers were assigned to day shifts for gun training two days a night or evening shifts the other three days in the same week.

Union leader likes new plan

HARTFORD — Hartford attorney Ryszard S. Mrotek has filed motions in U.S. District Court, hoping to force the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service to free his client, a 22-year-old Iranian man.

The motions, filed Thursday, seek to force the government to show why Mohammad Kavandi is a deportable alien for failing to comply with regulations concerning college attendance and overstaying his time in the United States.

Kavandi's student visa has expired and he has not been able to find permanent employment.

A hearing on the motions was scheduled for 2 p.m. in U.S. District Court in Hartford before Judge Jose Cabranes.

Storm's toll: 3,000 lost power; winds, fires did damage

By United Press International

Northeast Utilities has recovered from a brief but violent series of thunderstorms which cause 27 knocking out service to the Hartford area.

The National Weather Service at Windsor Locks said thunderstorms, lightning, and gusty winds moved east through the capital city area about 8:30 a.m. Thursday, hitting Hartford with flashes of lightning and heavy downpours.

Northeast Utilities said scattered power outages were reported throughout the state, with more than 2,500 customers without electrical service in central Connecticut, including East Hartford, Manchester and Bolton.

Power also was disrupted for customers in Hartford, West Hartford, Bloomfield, Canton, Granby, Simsbury, Torrington and other sections of northwest Connecticut and in the Tolland and Vernon areas of northeast Connecticut, said NU spokeswoman Lorraine Scott.

She said repair crews worked to restore service lost when lightning caused blown fuses and high winds felled tree limbs that downed transmission lines. Most customers had service within 2 1/2 hours.

A one-family home in Stafford Springs was heavily damaged in a fire caused by what neighbors described as two lightning bolts.

The owner, Harry Bragdon, was away on vacation, his sons said. No one was injured.

In Manchester, lightning knocked a brick chimney on its side, starting a fire that gutted the attic. There were no injuries.

Lightning also set fire to a power transformer in Manchester. It burned for two hours before the power was shut off.

"It was a pretty vicious and fast-moving storm," said James McKay, Manchester's deputy fire chief. Weather officials said the thunderstorm dropped more than 1 inch of rain in Stafford Springs in less than one hour.

The weather service forecast cloudy skies, temperatures in the 80s and 90s and high humidity for today.

In Manchester

A usual start to the campaign

Manchester's political parties are alive and well, and the dynamic of democratic government is manifest in Manchester.

The Democrats met this week and they agreed, without dissent, on a slate of candidates for the forthcoming election.

They skirmished a bit, however, over some changes in the rules by which they will govern their own affairs.

The Republicans met this week and they agreed, without any voiced dissent, on a slate of candidates for the forthcoming election.

They skirmished a bit, however, about the rules by which they governed the conduct of their own endorsement meeting.

One member of the Democratic Town Committee strongly accused the town chairman of playing internal politics with the party structure.

One member of the Republican Town Committee, convinced that he was gagged unfairly by the town chairman, resigned from the committee and disassociated himself from the party.

One Democrat set in motion the machinery to fight within his party at the polls for a chance to fight the other party at the polls.

So the election battle started, as it always does, within the camps of the warring foes, as though a little rehearsal were needed for the campaign to come.

But it was not long before the fighting moved into the main arena.

The Democratic town chairman seized the opportunity to capitalize on the discomfort in the enemy ranks and rushed into public comment on the undemocratic nature of the Republican Party, a totally predictable strategy.

Meanwhile the Republican town chairman was getting into print with a blast at the Democratic administration for not doing something about the ailing Union Street bridge a long time ago. The rhetoric was a preamble to the announcement that Republican Director Peter DiRosa would hold a press conference at the Union Street bridge today.

When Republican Town Chairman Curtis Smith at the meeting this week began what turned out to be the mildest pep talk one could ask for, one member of the committee, himself a candidate, said in barely audible voice, "not until after Labor Day, Curt."

But that very candidate had with him a press release to launch his candidacy.

No question about it. The campaign has started. To ask for a delay until Labor Day is perhaps too much.

But it is not too much to ask that the parties build a bit slowly up to the pitch so as not to sap the energy of the electorate. And it is not too much to ask that in their effort to stimulate interest, they also try to make the campaign as meaningful as possible.

We can't overcome the Klan with violence

To the Editor: There was a man named John Brown who believed he had a divine mission to take vengeance on pro-slavery sympathizers. On May 24, 1858 he led a raid on a pro-slavery settlement at Pottawatomie, Kansas, in which five men were dragged out of their cabin and hacked to death. On Oct. 16, 1859 he attacked Harpers Ferry intending to incite a slave insurrection. In spite of the laudability of his goal of eliminating slavery, John Brown was convicted of murder.

The Ku Klux Klan began in the south after the Civil War to reassert white supremacy with terrorist methods. The Klan used violence and threat of violence to achieve its political goal. The Klan is now trying to recruit members in Connecticut. Opposing this effort is the John Brown Anti-Klan Committee. This committee has chosen the right name.

In newspaper accounts we find the Klan performing legal non-violent demonstrations and the anti-Klan people violently attacking the Klan supporters and police officers. They are using violence and threat of violence to achieve their political goals. Are they any better than the Klan? Is it necessary to choose between two evils? Before World War II many people chose the evil of Hitler over the evil of Stalin. Must we make a similar choice between KKK and John Brown?

Freedom of speech is our most cherished freedom. The minimum cost of this freedom is that everyone else also has it. We must accept the fact that people will use this freedom to express ideas we find odious. This is not a good reason to do away with this freedom.

We should oppose the Klan with all legal means at our disposal. Their goals are evil. If we do away with the laws that protect them, however, we also take away the laws that protect us. If we do that, then it will be the most violent that will control. We are in as much danger from the John Brown people as from the KKK. Violence is always evil. The propagation of violence is never good.

Edward M. Gawinski

A great pizza overlooked

To the Editor: Slightly reading your "Pizza" feature in the Herald of July 22, I just don't believe it! Nobody mentioned the great pizza at Paul's on Talcottville Road, Rt. 83 in Vernon?

I thought perhaps the survey was Manchester shops only, but noticed Bolton, Andover and Coventry stores listed.

In my family's opinion, Paul's is the best — granted, we haven't tried most of the places that did make your list — but we know we do like Paul's for flavor, crust texture, etc.

We aren't alone in our fondness for Paul's — a visit there, particularly on a Friday or Saturday between the hours of 5 and 9 will

Coventry teen a natural at riding horses

By Kathy A. Gormus Herald Correspondent

COVENTRY — It was just over two years ago that Michael Breault sat atop the fence surrounding the Long Hope Arabian horse stables in Coventry, admiring and tending to the horses he had come to adore and adoring stable owner Nellie Niwola, who often chased Breault and his companions away.

Today Breault, 15, is on the other side of the fence, having cultivated a partnership with Mrs. Niwola and her 8-year-old mare which has earned the trio hundreds of awards at horse shows and will send them packing for Canada next week for Breault's first taste of international competition.

"I would show the kids away, never knowing that someday he would be riding my horse," Mrs. Niwola said of their inauspicious introduction.

However, their paths soon crossed on more favorable terms when Mrs. Niwola approached the 15-year-old Breault, known as the North River Riders and Drivers, to find a "walk-trail" rider to ride one of her horses in shows. She was introduced to Breault, a member of the group who, as a novice, had only sporadically and had received limited instruction.

Shortly afterwards, Breault was introduced to the riding club's "Dusty," a registered half Arabian and half palomino, whose full name is Taxysens Gold Dust. The two immediately hit it off.

"Michael has given her such a good attitude," Mrs. Niwola said. "Dusty" is a registered half Arabian and half palomino, whose full name is Taxysens Gold Dust. The two immediately hit it off.

Michael Breault and his mount, Dusty. The two have scored triumph after triumph thanks in part to Breault's athletic ability.

He is an astute kid and he's very athletically inclined."

"He's got a real natural, innate ability," agreed Mrs. Bennett. "And he just loves everything that has to do with horses."

That love, Mrs. Niwola said, has been manifested in the countless hours he has spent at the Goose Lane barn where the horses are now kept, caring for the horses when he is not riding them. A Portland stable recently offered him a job as a groom because "they know how well Michael takes care of horses," Mrs. Niwola said. Breault turned down the job because of a busy schedule.

IN ADDITION to his equestrian pursuits, Breault plays saxophone in the Coventry High School band, is on the varsity cross country team and manages to maintain good grades.

He also frequently does odd jobs, such as mowing lawns and babysitting, to pay for his riding lessons and some of his riding equipment.

Breault qualified for the 1983 Canadian Nationals by accumulating in shows throughout the year. While that and other hunter awards are technically Dusty's, much of the credit in any such event must go to the rider, Mrs. Niwola said.

"What he does regulates what she does," she said. Breault qualified for the 1983 Canadian Nationals by accumulating in shows throughout the year. While that and other hunter awards are technically Dusty's, much of the credit in any such event must go to the rider, Mrs. Niwola said.

The competition, which typically attracts riders from throughout the United States, Canada and other countries, will be Breault's first international competition. While Breault said his main hope is to place in the top 10 in Toronto, those familiar with his riding say he has a good chance of placing much higher.

At the Nationals, he will compete in both a hunter class, in which the horse is judged, and a "medal" class, in which Breault's riding form, or equitation, will be judged. Although Breault's second place honors in Springfield also qualified him for this year's U.S. Nationals in Albuquerque, N.M., he was unable to attend because of the distance and expense involved.

In addition to travel and lodging expenses for participants, entry fees alone can total $500 for such a competition, Mrs. Niwola said. The trip to Canada for Breault, Mrs. Niwola and Dusty is being sponsored by a grandfather and uncle of Breault.

Although a trip to the U.S. Nationals was out of the question this year, Breault and Mrs. Niwola hope to qualify for and attend it next year, as it is being held in close-by Kentucky.

In June, Breault also qualified for the National 4-H Judging Competition by placing first out of about 100 competitors in the statewide judging competition. The national competition, to be held in October in Harrisburg, Pa., involves judging various classes of horses just as a professional judge would be required to do, said Jean Breault, leader of the Trotting Troopers, the 4-H group to which Breault currently belongs. Breault will be one of four Connecticut 4-H representatives attending the trip which is being sponsored by the 4-H Club.

Aside from the challenges that lie ahead, Breault said he is proud of the fact that he has placed first in two Memorial Day weekend by placing first in two Arabian shows. The trophies is particularly cherished, he said, because he felt he had not done well early in the competition.

Such do, however, is characteristic of those who strive for perfection.

"He's always very nervous before he goes into the riding," said Michelle Cavanagh of Bolton, his riding instructor for the past three years. "He wants to do so well."

Were blue ribbons to be awarded for modesty, Breault would not doubt be a top contender. Despite the dozens of ribbons and trophies neatly displayed in his room at the family's Merrimack Road home, Breault seemed genuinely stumped when asked what he considered to be his major accomplishment.

"Oh, I don't know," he said. "I've only been riding for three years."

BRIDGE

No guts, no glory

East's queen proceeded to run off all 12 tricks. There are only 12 top cards, but South ran off all his trumps. When he lost the last one, it was impossible for West to protect both black suits. South was to chuck one of his clubs, and the last five tricks went to black suits. East had a K-Q-4 of clubs.

West was philosophical about his defeat. He remarked, "Once you had reached the diamond slam, I was close to getting the overtrick, which is my fault, probably cost me a half a match point if it cost me anything."

He was right. Only one other pair reached six diamonds. South took the bid, but at three no-trump down two.

Let's look at the bidding. South's four-club call showed strength and was a forcing bid. After South had merely rebid four diamonds, North felt that he could not bid beyond game, but South looked at his second-round controls in both major suits, took the ball by the horns and bid the slam.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23) You'll have an opportunity to put your true-blue qualities into play today when you're asked to stand by a friend who needs your support.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today you will be more concerned with boosting someone else's ego rather than furthering your self-interests. No working your personality is ascending!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Who you deal with today, use gentle measures. Kind words strengthens relationships, hard words never them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Conditions which seemed to work against you yesterday will turn about and function for your benefit today. You can change losses into gains.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Harmony follows in your footsteps today. You'll know how to put at ease persons you encounter. Benefits and pleasant memories will result.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) This can be an enormously productive day, provided your heart is really in your work. Take pride in each task you perform.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Sometimes it is unwise to let your heart rule your head, but today is an exception. Give compassion and concern precedence over practicality.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Much personal satisfaction can be derived today from some form of domestic expression, such as cooking, entertaining, gardening or housework.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Let the one you love know how much you really care. Do something special today, whether it be a thoughtful gesture, however small, or an evening on the lawn.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone with whom you have strong emotional bonds may play a key role today in helping you get something you've strongly desired.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Charm, wit and tact are your greatest assets today. You'll know how to use them skillfully to sway others to your way of doing things.

Sweeping things under the rug gets you nothing but a lousy rug.

Parolee is charged in brutal slaying of girl hitchhiker

WORCESTER, Mass. (UPI) — A parolee accused of brutally slaying a 17-year-old girl hitchhiker on his birthday was being held without bail today pending a pretrial conference later this month.

Paul Hanlon, 23, of Athol was ordered held without bail in the Franklin County Jail Thursday after pleading innocent to a murder charge before District Court Judge Thomas J. Carroll. A pretrial conference was set for Aug. 16. He was found competent to stand trial.

Hanlon was arrested Wednesday after a telephone call and charged in the near-decapitation murder of Cathy Ann Brackett of Worcester, whose throat was slashed Sunday in the northern town of Templeton.

Worcester County District Attorney John J. Conte said Worcester's birthday was Sunday, the day of the murder.

Hanlon was paroled just two weeks ago, on July 19, from the Franklin County Jail. He had been serving a term since May 1981 for kidnapping, assault with intent to rape and assault with a dangerous weapon. Sheriff Donald McQuade said Thursday.

He was a good prisoner while he was here," McQuade said.

Officials said Hanlon, who worked in the prison as a baker, had been working as a trainee at a Worcester bakery.

Ms. Brackett and Tammy Dupree, 17, of Worcester, were hitchhiking when they were attacked by the man who picked them up. Ms. Dupree struggled free from the grasp of the attacker with her clothes partially torn off and sustained only minor injuries.

At least 14 die in bomb blast in Tripoli

By Hugh Pope United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A car bomb exploded today outside a mosque in Tripoli as worshippers were leaving Friday prayers, killing at least 14 people and wounding 36 others, a government spokesman in Beirut said.

The violence in Tripoli and factional fighting in the mountains east of Beirut overshadowed troop withdrawal talks between U.S. envoy Robert McFarlane and government leaders on Israel's current plan to pull back and redeploy in south Lebanon.

The car packed with 165 pounds of explosives exploded outside a mosque in a pro-Syrian neighborhood as crowds of worshippers were leaving the traditional weekly prayer meeting, Beirut radio said.

The blast left a 3 meter wide and 1.5 meter deep crater. It caused damage in a wide area, Beirut radio said.

A government spokesman in Beirut said 14 people had died and another 36 were wounded in the blast outside a mosque as Muslim worshippers dispersed following noon prayers.

Soon after the blast, armed men appeared in many of the city's neighborhoods. The Voice of Lebanon radio report said, "The sound of machine gun fire is echoing everywhere."

Tripoli has been the scene of bitter fighting between pro and anti-Syrian sects fighting for control of the coastal city 42 miles north of Beirut.

Thursday that Israel had rejected the demand, which McFarlane discussed while in Israel.

President Amin Gemayel's government is worried that Israel's current plan to pull back and redeploy in south Lebanon could lead to a permanent partitioning of the country into Israeli and Syrian-controlled regions.

Lebanon defined its position that refuses discussion of any withdrawal as long as it is not complete, said Beirut radio, quoting diplomatic sources.

Israel is withdrawing its soldiers from the Shout mountains southeast of Beirut to more defensible positions along the Awali River, 28 miles north of the Israeli border.

Israel wants to place its soldiers behind safer lines until Syria, which maintains 40,000 troops in the country, pulls out.

The U.S.-mediated Israeli-Lebanese troop withdrawal agreement, signed May 17, has not been implemented because of Syria's refusal to withdraw.

McFarlane is scheduled to visit Syria and other Arab states during his Middle East visit.

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli press reported today that former Defense Minister Ariel Sharon gave a gloomy assessment of Lebanese chances for restoring control over the country after visiting Beirut Thursday.

Sharon visited Christian leaders including Phalange party leader Pierre Gemayel, father of the president.

Murphy, 54, a former ambassador to Syria, will replace Nicholas Veliotis, who will be nominated as ambassador to Egypt.

In Washington, the Reagan administration completed the shuffle of its Middle East diplomatic lineup Thursday, naming ambassador to Saudi Arabia Richard Murphy as assistant secretary of state for the Middle East.

FOCUS / Weekend

Middle-of-the-night tidal waves, drunks, bubbles

Oh, the joys of a backyard pool...

By Sarah E. Hall Herald Reporter

So your swimming pool looks like the movie set of "The Green Slime," and the filter's backed up from eating all that algae.

Don't feel bad. Lots of people get dog-dayed about keeping their pools sparkling by the time August rolls around, when it's too hot to bother.

Your pool problems could be worse. The Colletti family on Brookfield Street had their 18-foot above-grounder burst in the middle of the night early this summer.

Awakened by what sounded like an explosion, they ran outside to find a tidal wave gently cresting over their lawn.

Jules LeBlanc, owner of Eastern Connecticut Swimming Pool Sales and Service in Rockville, reports that irate neighbors have shot through a couple of his customers' pools with b-b guns.

And a few years ago, the Recreation Department crew of Aquatic Supervisor Tom Kelley had trouble with, er, a piece of extra-large pool debris. Arriving at Globe Hollow early one morning, the workers spotted a fully-clothed man, floating motionless some distance out. They immediately pulled him ashore, whence they found he was still alive — but in a somewhat drunken stupor.

"Apparently, he just wanted to cool off, and boy, was he cold by the time we found him," says Kelley.

BUT BACK TO the more mundane problems. Local pool experts agree on one point: don't be stingy with the chemicals if you want to avoid peagreeness.

"People keep trying to cheat on their pools, probably to save money," says Christine Mortensen of All-Season Pool and Sauna in Bolton. "But it ends up costing them more if they let their pools go."

First off, she recommends running your filter 24 hours a day and backwashing it regularly.

Buy the slow dissolving, highly concentrated (.99 per cent pure) chlorine, which comes in tablets, she says, and then stick them in either a specially-made punctured capsule or a margarine dish with holes punched in it to set at pool bottom. The hotter the weather, the more chlorine you'll need.

Mrs. Mortensen also warns pool owners to watch out for slippery liners — that can mean your pool will be green as an eel by the next day. At either stage, a good shock treatment with algicide and lots of chlorine is in order.

Pool store owner LeBlanc prefers the diluted liquid chlorine (about 12 per cent pure), because "it doesn't have to dissolve or anything — it goes right to work."

TOWN POOL MANAGER Kelley likes the liquid stuff, too. He claims it's less messy to use, when applied via filter, and ing your eyes sting, your skin itch, and your water dull. (Too much chlorine is seldom the cause of the burning-eye syndrome, as many mistakenly believe.)

If that's the case, stabilize your pool water with one of the specialized chemicals labeled as either pH increasers or reducers. You may also want to use one of the "burn out" or "water clarifier" chemicals on the market.

ALL THOSE chemicals can get pretty expensive. Vicky Moreau of Lawton's Mermaid Pools in Glastonbury estimates that a season's worth of all the stuff you'll need for a medium-sized in-ground pool costs between $100 and $150.

WATCH FOR algacide overdose, build-up of organic debris, or kids throwing detergent or dishwashing liquid into the water. Anti-fouling products are available at pool stores.

Once your pool water is clear and the pH balanced, it's more likely that your filter will run smoothly. Many filter problems occur when parts get gunked up from dirty or pH-imbalanced water, say experts.

Weekenders

Bop to the Bandshell The contemporary band, "Chariot" will lead off this weekend's schedule of events at the Manchester Bicentennial Bandshell.

The group, which plays original and contemporary sounds, will be at the shell on Saturday. The fun starts at 7:30 p.m. Bring seating. The event is sponsored by Caspar Percussion and Lanzano Guitars.

On Sunday, the Bandshell audience will enjoy the sounds of the Fred Bocchino Percussive, a Herb Alpert Tijuana brass-style band. This performance also starts at 7:30 p.m. with a raindate of Aug. 12. Sponsor: DeCormier Motor Sales.

It's August, It's Jazz Up for some good jazz? New England's only festival of new jazz starts this weekend on Hartford's Id State House lawn. Real Art Ways, the sponsor, features musicians of international standing.

Tonight Joseph Lerman, a member of the famed Art Ensemble of Chicago, opens the festival with a solo saxophone performance at 8 p.m. Then on Saturday Marian Crispwell will present a program of solo piano. Crispwell has performed with such jazz names as Roscoe Mitchell, Anthony Bonito, and Leo Smith. The performance also opens at 8 p.m.

Vegetes, yes, but... Those who have been taking in the Main Street farmers' market know that it's one of the best places in town to get fresh vegetables. But there are also lots of delicious freshly-baked goods, too.

The market is from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturdays in front of St. James Church. Sponsor: Manchester Area Conference of Churches.

Come to the parade You're invited. And it's free. Hartford's West Indian community will end its celebration of the 21st anniversary of West Indian independence with a parade on Saturday.

The parade starts at 10 a.m. from the Travelers Data Center on Windsor Street, proceeds north on Main Street, with the reviewing stand on the parking lot of B. Golden and Sons.

The parade will end at the old Fuller Brush Building.

A little night music Want a romantic way to begin your Friday evening?

Here's one, and it's free, too. The Sont Fidelis Trio will play French music on woodwinds at 5 p.m. tonight at the Genres Court of Wadsworth Athenaeum.

Then go to a classic film later on at the Athenaeum. Here's tonight's schedule: "The Maltese Falcon," 7:30 p.m.; "The African Queen," 9:30 p.m. Tickets: general admission: $3. Members, students, seniors, $2.

Social life dull? Feel if things get any duller, you'll have to have your date book put in moth balls?

Then put an end to this trend and come to the U.S. Dance Club's show and dance at the club, 38 New Britain Ave. Rocky Hill. The dance club plans a show and dance, featuring Susan Silva and David Hamilton, award-winning dancers.

Club, by the way, offers private and group lessons for singles and couples.

"Music Man" is here Universal Players will present "The Music Man" tonight at 8 at the Unitarian-Universalist Society East, 153 W. Vernon St.

Tickets are $5 at the door. There will also be 8 p.m. performances Saturday and Aug. 11 to 13.

If you want to reserve tickets, call 649-3168.

Dating after age 50

Here are some tidbits from the "Hints from Romantics" mailing for August.

"We're still romantic after 50 years!" writes "You at Heart" from Arizona. "My husband and I went on a Caribbean cruise this spring to celebrate our 50th anniversary. Imagine my concern when I realized I had left his gift at home. When we docked at an island, I bought some pretty red satin ribbon. The night of our anniversary, I draped the red ribbon around me and tied a gorgeous bow in front. I walked into the bedroom and said, 'Ta-da. Here's your gift, honey! I didn't forget.' He was speechless. It must have rekindled that old spark, as his eyes lit up just like on our honeymoon. P.S. You don't print names, do you? If you do, burn this up. I'd die of mortification." (No, I don't print full names. In addition, I'm happy to use pen names whenever requested.)

"Speaking of pen names, 'Very Happy in Utah' writes: 'Let nobody tell you love and romance can't happen to us 'older' people. I recently married a 68-year-old man. I am 65. The love, excitement, and yes, sex, is as wonderful as it was at age 18. Every day holds something very special — we marvel that it could happen to us, but we are very thankful it did.'"

"Love Birds' Youngest Daughter" from Mentor, Ohio, is a believer. She writes: "I don't usually respond to newspaper articles, but I think as far as romance is concerned, my parents are an endangered species. In their 60s, they still do most things together — and enjoy each other's company. From getaway pika weekends to an ocean cruise. They keep trying new things. They have their special 'cuddle time' and we still have to be sure we aren't interrupting anything. They also have their trials and tribulations, of course, but that's when my dad picks one of his special roses from the yard for her. It was his way of saying he was sorry — without having to say it in words."

Romance! Langdon Hill Syndicated Columnist

"I thought I would add some romance to my grandparents' lives. So one day when they weren't home, I hid 'Love It' cartoons from the newspaper throughout the house. For example, I taped one to my grandma's pillow that said, 'Love is... finding a note under your pillow saying I Love You.' And I put one on my grandpa's dish saying 'Love is... sharing the cooking, eating AND dishwashing.' My grand- parents loved them. Now, I collect them. I hope to give them to my husband someday."

Even old love songs can work romantic wonders. Here's proof from St. Louis romantic Rose B. "I was in the basement washing clothes when I heard my husband come in. I went upstairs and we started talking. Somehow, in the course of our conversation, we had a disagreement. I went back downstairs in a huff and he went out the door. got in the car and took off. I had no idea where he went, because he had never done that in all the years we'd been married. Later I heard him come in. All of a sudden I heard 'I Love You Song' being played on the stereo full blast!" (Romance! Note: That's the song that begins, "When I'm Calling You, oo-oo-oo, oo-oo-oo...") Since I knew that we didn't have that record, I burst into tears because it had been a favorite of ours. He knew how much I loved that song and this was his way of saying he was sorry — without having to say it in words."

Rebels take over Voltan government

OUAGADOUGOU, Upper Volta (UPI) — A pro-Libyan former minister overthrew President Jean-Baptiste Ouedraogo in a coup today and declared the rebels "completely in control" after an eight-hour gunbattle that killed five people and wounded 15.

The coup led by former Prime Minister Thomas Sankara was Upper Volta's second in eight months and came just two days after the State Department warned of "a continent-wide pattern of Libyan destabilization."

Heavy fighting broke out in Ouagadougou at 11 p.m. Thursday and raged for eight hours around the president's residence and near the national police barracks, residents said.

Sankara, a Marxist allied with Libyan leader Moammar Khadafi, went on the state-run radio to say the fighting ended in the ouster of Ouedraogo, described as a populist

Rock climber enthuses: 'It's a dance on a rock'

By Thomas Conroy

Cunningham and his partners are free climbers — their ascents are made with hands and feet only. The gear they bring along is a safety net, not a climbing aid.

Winfield destroys says — and gull

By Mike Tully

UPI Sports Writer

All this talk about abusing birds could be just the thing to get the New York Yankees off and winging. Dave Winfield, after treating the Blue Jays roughly by driving in two runs in a 3-1 New York victory Thursday night...

$500 fine and or six months in jail. Winfield remained at the police station until midnight Thursday to arrange a date for returning to Canada to face the charge.

beat Boston 6-1. Baltimore nipped Cleveland 4-3 in 10 innings. Kansas City topped Milwaukee 6-2. Chicago defeated Detroit 4-2. Minnesota edged Oakland 4-3 and Seattle blasted California 11-5.

Orleans 4, Indians 2
At Cleveland, Eddie Murray doubled home Dan Ford with one out in the 10th inning to lead the Orioles. Scott McGregor, 14-4, notched his sixth straight victory and his 10th in his last 11 decisions.

White Sox 4, Tigers 2
At Chicago, Scott Fletcher and Julio Cruz lined back-to-back doubles to ignite a four-run sixth inning and Richard Dotson allowed six hits over eight innings to lead the White Sox. Dotson, 12-6, struck out five and walked two in earning his fourth straight victory and eighth in his last nine decisions.

Bill Sample of the Texas Rangers is down for the count and receives treatment from team trainer after hitting ball off the handle into his leg in game against Red Sox. Sample had to leave game.

Rangers pull pin on Red Sox

ARLINGTON, Texas (UPI) — The pin has been removed from the voodoo doll bearing the Texas Rangers logo. "I hope it stays out," outfielder Billy Sample said Thursday after the Rangers snapped an eight-game losing streak with a 6-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

in the opening inning after fouling a pitch off his right knee. The injury forced Sample to leave the game in the second inning and he was taken to Arlington Memorial Hospital for an X-ray that proved negative.

Sutton grabs lead at PGA

PACIFIC PALISADES, Calif. (UPI) — The last time Hal Sutton found himself leading a golf tournament, he fell apart faster than a $59 sofa. And that tournament two weeks ago had only the name of a beer as a sponsor and a $350,000 purse to provide the pressure.

the top players in the game played later, they didn't shoot as well. The casualties included British Open champion Tom Watson, two-time PGA champ Gary Player, and five-time PGA king Jack Nicklaus.

MIDDLETOWN — Moriarty Brothers will resume Greater Hartford Twilight League baseball action tonight with a second-round playoff game against Malloy Jewellers at 6 o'clock at Palmer Field in Middletown.

Boston (UPI) — Businessman Steve Belkin has had a change of heart over his decision to back out of buying the Boston Celtics, but current owner Harry Mangurian says it's too late because he has a new prospective purchaser.

Bidwell's summer full as he keeps on playing

By Borry Peters

Herold Sportswriter

Dave Bidwell hadn't slept in 22 hours, but he wasn't complaining. Though this day was exceptional, he's come to expect only a few hours of sleep at night during his hectic summer schedule.

He keeps you loose. He never puts any pressure on us. Bidwell hopes this year will bring back memories of the '70's, when Moriarty's regularly took the Twilight crown. He says the competition in the league has stiffened the past two years, but this year's team has a good chance to regain the Twilight championship.
