By Ed Lion
United Press International

BOSTON — Tainted donor semen for artificial inseminations may carry a variety of sexually transmitted illnesses — including gonorrhea, syphilis and the killer disease AIDS, a federal scientist warned today.

A doctor with the Centers for Disease Control warned in the New England Journal of Medicine there had been at least 10 "anecdotal," unconfirmed reports that women caught sexually transmitted diseases in donor semen they received through artificial insemination.

established "protocols" are in place to screen donors for sexually transmitted diseases, wrote Dr. Laurence Mascola. Ms. Mascola, who spent a year in the Atlanta-based CDC's Venereal Disease section and is now assigned as a field officer in Los Angeles, warned such transmissions could be dangerous.

"The effects of certain sexually transmitted diseases on maternal health, pregnancy outcome, and infant viability are profound," she wrote in a letter to the Journal.

But Ms. Mascola wrote that microorganisms causing gonorrhea, hepatitis B, some vaginal infections, and a virus that can cause birth defects are "just a few of the agents known to be transmitted in semen."

"Other potential offenders include herpes simplex virus, chlamydia ... Treponema pallidum (which causes syphilis) and possibly the agent responsible for the Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome," she wrote.

He called for further studies on the question but stopped short of recommending "wide-scale bacteriological" screening procedures of donor semen.

"While the possibility exists, I am not aware of any documented cases when a woman having artificial insemination actually got one of these diseases," he said.

Better studies needed on drugs for arthritis

BOSTON (UPI) — Gold injections — a common therapy used for rheumatoid arthritis — may be able to slow the progression of the sometimes-crushing disease but more studies are needed, researchers said today.

A team of doctors reported in the New England Journal of Medicine that four drugs commonly used to determine if the drugs actually slow the long-term progression of the disease, although based on current studies injections of gold solutions show some evidence of working.

"Doctors previously have been most concerned with alleviating symptoms and signs," said Dr. Irving Kushner, of Cleveland Metropolitan General Hospital and Case Western Reserve University.

Doctors say AIDS may be linked to fungus

BOSTON (UPI) — A fungus with similarities to a drug that suppresses immunity has been isolated in the blood of some AIDS patients, leading government scientists today to theorize a fungal infection may trigger the killer disease.

Writing in the New England Journal of Medicine, the researchers said a fungus with some properties like cyclosporin — a soil fungus that acts as a potent immunosuppressant — was found in three patients with Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome.

Doctors believe it is spread through intimate contact and contaminated blood products.

Our hypothesis suggests that the severe impairment of the immune system and the subsequent fatal opportunistic infections results from the systematic release of a potent cyclosporin-like immunosuppressive molecule from a chronic fungal infection," the doctors wrote in a letter to the Journal.

Basically, fixed term certificates have been deregulated and banks can pay any rates they choose.

Right now you can get an especially high rate and lock it up for a long term.

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (UPI) — Hundreds of Cubans held out today in the hills surrounding a captured air strip, preventing the U.S. invasion forces from capturing the island and heavy artillery shelling on the Cubans darkened the sky with black smoke.

Manchester school board candidates air views

Teacher pay, special education dominate radio debate

By Sarah E. Hall Herald Reporter

The talk ranged from the old-time way to build school roofs to who should pay for local latch-key programs. But the eight school board candidates in Thursday night's WINP radio debate talked most about teacher pay and special education.

Republican candidate Gloria D. DellaFera said it's "an absolute must" to raise teacher salaries. Democrat and current Board of Education Chairman Leonard E. Seader said the bottom pay levels, in particular, should be raised — "that's where we ought to direct our efforts."

Education Association's stance on the issue. He insisted the idea itself is "something which should not be rejected out-of-hand as the teachers' union did."

Child in the middle is in danger of getting educationally handicapped. She called on students to be more responsible. To get students out of trouble, Youth Services programs must be strengthened, said Mrs. Cobb.

Mrs. Cobb said only 1 percent of Manchester High School students are taking advanced math, a fact which has him alarmed. Naab hinted that course offerings are too diversified as it is, and may be behind the drastic drop in this year's Scholastic Aptitude Test scores at Manchester High School.

Most Democratic candidates strongly supported existing school curricula, in contrast to the Republicans. Malone said private schools have an edge over public ones, and can do a better job. Seader disagreed. "The opportunity for learning in Manchester has never been better," he said.

The political silly season is upon us

When I arrived in Manchester early this year, I genuinely envied the Manchester Herald's political point man, Alex Girelli, who has the privilege of covering most news conferences, debates, and other local political gatherings. "What better subject to write about," I thought naively, "than politics?" Always good for a quick 15 inches and a strong headline.

Around election time, and even before, all a reporter has to do for a story is ask Mayor Steve Penny about Minority Leader Pete DiRosa's latest thoughts on an issue, or ask GOP Town Chairman Curt Smith to say something nice about his Democratic counterpart, Ted Cummings, or vice versa.

If they don't have any genuine concerns at the moment, members of the GOP can be counted on to say something nasty about Bennett or the Democrats' lack of respect for the sidewalks. Invariably, the Democrats will fall back on their record, which includes just about everything good that's happened during the last two years.

For reporters, it's easier than looking for easenits on television maps, analyzing sewer voters. There was no law saying it shouldn't have, the Republicans admitted. But they needed to hold a press conference about something, and the Pop Shoppe's Democratic tax problems had become old news.

The GOP, for lack of a better issue, has now commenced beating Bennett like a dead horse as a tax haven for "wealthy, out-of-state investors."

The Democrats, on the other hand, are beginning to look like they rammed Bennett through at least partly so the building's 45 apartments would answer Manchester's election-time housing needs.

As much as they try to hide it, Manchester's political opponents often like and respect one another - a favorable contrast to Chicago, where politics often reveals the most brutal side of humanity.

FOR SOME REASON, I can't wait for this election to be over, no matter who wins.

In the wake of the flurry of newspaper articles that will follow the vote count, both political sides will, I am told, return to governing Manchester in a more-bipartisan-than-not fashion. When that happens, the Board of Directors will get back to deciding matters of substance and reporters can get back to writing significant stories, even about politics.

That's probably about when I'll start envying Alex again.

SPANTON DISCOVERED that Pratt & Whitney was overcharging the Air Force for spare parts that could be purchased only from the company.

He reported excessive labor costs and complained of serious difficulty in gaining access to the company's files.

At that was embarrassing enough. But then Spanton committed the unforgivable offense: On Feb. 11, 1982, he wrote a memo questioning Pratt & Whitney's only watchdog member, William J. Batson.

Spanton knew his memo would touch some raw nerves in high places. So he wasn't surprised when, on July 7, 1982, he was visited by John Batson, a special agent in the Defense Criminal Investigative Service.

Batson informed Spanton that he was the subject of a criminal investigation.

UNFORTUNATELY for the vengeful authorities, Batson - like Spanton - is an honest cop. After an exhaustive investigation, Batson filed a report that said: "All significant leads have been followed, and available evidence does not indicate that Spanton was involved in any criminal activity."

Batson not only gave Spanton a clean bill of health, he also confirmed the auditor's charges: Pratt & Whitney vigorously disputed all charges of wrongdoing.

Meanwhile, the big brass haven't unsuccessfully to force Spanton into retirement or get him to accept a transfer that would have gotten him out of Pratt & Whitney's hair. This fact, too, was dutifully reported by Batson.

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, is planning hearings on the Spanton case. He wrote Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger: "We must reward the George Spanton of the world and punish those who muzzle him."

Weinberger's response was ambiguous: "I know you share my view that no one should be disciplined or removed on the basis of unverified rumors." Did he mean Spanton - or his persecutors?

Auditor's offense vs. P&W

WASHINGTON - A year ago, I reported that a Defense Department auditor had blown the whistle on improprieties by a major defense contractor - and was being punished for his disclosure.

Not only did the Pentagon brass do nothing to correct the abuses, they harassed the honest investigator and tried to force him out of his job.

The unscrupulous hero was George Spanton, a respected, career auditor with the Defense Contract Audit Agency. He spent years ferreting out waste and mismanagement in the defense establishment.

Then he was assigned to keep an expert eye on Air Force contracts with Pratt & Whitney - and the roof fell in on him. My associate, Donald Goldberg and Indy Badhwar have pieced together more of the story.

U.S./World In Brief

Indicators show improvement

WASHINGTON - The government's sensitive index of leading economic indicators climbed 0.9 percent in September, the strongest improvement in four months, the Commerce Department said today.

The month's formation of new businesses showed the biggest advance among five indicators that contributed to the overall index. But five other indicators were negative, primarily building permits.

The index is designed to be a rough guide to what the economy will do in the weeks and months ahead.

The September report portrayed an economy both benefitting from a broad-based recovery and being hurt by high interests that have slowed down the housing boom.

The index went up a revised 0.3 percent in August, the latest report said, instead of declining 0.1 percent as originally reported.

With the August revision, the index has improved for 13 consecutive months.

Private analysts have been critical of the track record of the leading indicators because it performed poorly during the recession, often seeing strong improvement that did not happen.

Tanaka refuses to resign

TOKYO - Kakuei Tanaka, convicted in the Lockheed bribery scandal, rebuffed appeals from Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone today to resign from parliament.

Nakasone, who said earlier he would stake his political life on his mentor's resignation, told reporters he met former Prime Minister Tanaka as "a long-time friend to give him some advice."

Nakasone would not say whether he asked Tanaka to relinquish his parliamentary post during their nearly two-hour meeting, but ruling Liberal Democratic Party officials believed the talks focused on the resignation.

"Shadow Shogun" Tanaka - so named for his powerful behind-the-scenes influence on Japanese politics - was convicted two weeks ago of accepting $2 million in bribes from Lockheed Aircraft Corp. of the United States.

After the meeting with Nakasone, he shook his head when reporters asked whether he would quit.

Lewis guilty in Tylenol plot

CHICAGO - James Lewis, described by prosecutors as a "vicious, mean person" who had no regard for the victims of the Tylenol-cyanide killings, was found guilty of extortion for demanding $1 million from Johnson & Johnson.

A federal jury of eight men and four women found Lewis guilty Thursday after deliberating for three hours on the eighth day of the trial before U.S. District Chief Judge Frank J. McGarr.

No sentencing date was set. Lewis faces a maximum 20-year prison term and a $100,000 fine. He already is serving a 10-year sentence for a mail fraud conviction May 28 in Kansas City, Mo.

Lewis showed emotion and stared down at the defense table before and after the verdict. He later shook hands with defense attorney Michael Momic, who said he would appeal the verdict.

The defense admitted Lewis wrote the letter to Johnson & Johnson Co. demanding $1 million to "stop the killings," but contended he did it to embarrass his wife's former boss by leaving clues the boss had written the letter.

"It was a very, very quick verdict and we're very pleased," said U.S. Attorney Dan K. Webb. He said government prosecutors plan to seek "extensive incarceration" for Lewis.

Officers ignore shooting

HOUSTON - Two Secret Service officers arranging security for a vice presidential visit saw the fatal shooting of a doorman at an exclusive condominium, but made no attempt to arrest the gunman, authorities say.

Bill Livingston, agent in charge of the Houston office of the U.S. Secret Service, said his office would investigate the incident although he found no immediate evidence of wrongdoing.

"The suspect drove right by them and they didn't even bother to get a license plate number. They can't even tell us which state the plates are from," said a police investigator who asked not to be identified.

Gregory J. Chafin, 25, doorman for the St. James Condominiums, was gunned down outside the exclusive high-rise about 10:30 a.m. CDT Thursday. He died in a pool of blood before help could arrive.

"The suspect pointed an automatic rifle at him and started shooting," said Homicide Det. J.C. Mosier.

"It was cold-blooded. He shot (Chafin) several times and then calmly walked over and pumped him with more shots as he stood over his body. It was a cold, calculated killing," Mosier said.

Efforts on missing urged

WASHINGTON - The father of Adam Walsh, a 6-year-old who was kidnapped and murdered, joined lawmakers in urging the government to expand its efforts to locate an estimated 1.8 million children who disappear each year.

Sens. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., and Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., Thursday introduced a Senate bill that would establish a national toll-free telephone number for reporting information on missing children and a national clearinghouse for coordinating efforts to find them.

An identical House bill was proposed by Reps. Paul Simon, D-Ill., and Michael Andrews, D-Texas.

Despite what the senators called foot-dragging in the House, Congress last year passed a bill creating a national register of missing children and another of the unidentified dead.

Sponsors said the new bill would go a step further by providing $10 million a year for the "hot line" and the national center to help state and local agencies and individuals search for missing youngsters.

Earthquake shakes West

BERKELEY, Calif. - A large earthquake shook five states in the West early today.

The quake was felt in Montana, Idaho, Utah, Washington, Wyoming, Oregon and Nevada. Seismologists were unable to determine its epicenter immediately.

In Idaho police said some buildings in Boise were damaged by the quake, which was felt there at 8:05 a.m. MST.

The quake was also felt strongly in Montana and northern Utah, which was felt there at 8:05 a.m. MST.

The earthquake studies office at Montana Tech in Butte said the quake was believed to be centered in southwestern Montana.

Bennet: we've heard enough

The persistent role of the conversion of Bennett Junior High School plays in the election campaign is puzzling.

The conversion, after all, is virtually an accomplished fact and no one has suggested trying to reverse the course of events at this stage, if indeed, it would be possible to do so.

If the complicated mechanics of the Bennett project are flawed in some major way, no one has been able, or willing, to expose that flaw. And if the whole project is destined to collapse some day, that day is a way off.

Between now and the next election, it is unlikely that there will be any conclusive proof that the deal is bad.

Meanwhile 33 persons have applied for units among the 45 to be built, a development that should put to rest the arguments that the apartments are in the wrong place for rentals at market rates or that there are too few people who can or will afford them.

There has been no public clamor against the project and no public expression of enthusiasm for it.

Still it figures prominently in all the debates, the Democrats, most of them, claiming it is one of their greatest accomplishments and the Republicans, most of them, labeling it a big piece of deception, a misuse of town property and misapplication of town effort.

It has captured, in a campaign noticeably lacking in issues, more attention from the politicians than it deserves.

Joseph S. Hachey, the only Republican candidate who favors the Bennett project, chides the Democrats for making a big deal of plans for what will amount to 50 units of housing in two proposed complexes. He says they are insignificant in scope. If those 50 units are insignificant in the total scheme of things, so are the 45 units at Bennett.

Bennet conversion is all but behind us. If it works it will have been a success. If it fails, we look forward to hearing about it in another campaign.

Meanwhile it would be nice if both parties would forget about it.

Vote yes

To the Editor:

In the November election the voters of Coventry will have before them a series of proposed changes in the Town Charter. Those proposed changes have been divided into three questions on the ballot. Question 1 and 3 involve a wide variety of changes in the charter, many of which serve to update sections of the charter not revised since its original adoption in the mid-1960s and now in need of adjustment.

These changes are not particularly controversial and we urge your support for them. However, the primary focus of attention is Question 2, which pertains to the process by which the town approves its budget.

Over the past several years Coventry has been divided into two camps, those who argue in favor of the Town Meeting as the sole forum for the approval of the budget under the authority of the present charter, and those who argue in favor of a referendum-style approval of the budget at the polling place under the authority of state statutes.

The Charter Revision Commission comprised citizens who argued for both positions. However, after lengthy deliberations we also sought to provide a series of charter proposals that would ensure the ability of the town both to arrive at a budget in more sensible and timely fashion and also to put our recent troubles behind us. Out of this conviction came the desire to seek compromise.

The proposal now before the voters at Question 2 on the Nov. 8 ballot represents such a compromise. The proposal provides for an annual budget meeting but also permits the final vote on budget approval to be adjourned to the polling places upon the request of one third of the voters present at the budget meeting. If the budget is rejected at such an election it is returned to the Town Council for adjustment.

The adjusted budget is then submitted to a second budget meeting, where a final budget is to be adopted. In the interests of timely completion of the budget process, there is no provision for adjourning this second budget meeting to a vote at the polling places.

Such a proposal does not represent a victory for either faction in town but rather a compromise that provides a workable solution.

We, the undersigned members of the Charter Revision Commission, urge the voters of Coventry to study the proposed changes in the Town Charter carefully. If you feel as we do that this proposal represents a viable compromise, we urge you to vote YES on the Charter Revision Questions on the ballot on Nov. 8.

Reject them

To the Editor:

By a judge's decision which the Town Council saw no reason to negotiate or to appeal, Coventry shall have a sewer, whether the people want it or not. The Water Pollution Control Authority shall now have the task of putting it in place.

As a former member of the WPCA, whose reappointment was denied by the present Town Council by an action put forth by Elizabeth Patterson, the council effectively deprived the WPCA of the only watchdog member with guts enough to call a spade a spade and not be a "yes man."

When the powers to be (pun intended) start running over the world and have worked on several sewer projects, but my expertise has been denied the town by this council's petty action.

On Election Day, I urge the voters of Coventry to get out and vote this council and its cohorts out on their respective ears. Elect a team that keeps the public interest in mind, not its own self-interest, one that will strive to protect the taxpayer.

Vote No on the charter revision at the same time, which, if passed, will give the Town Council even more power to dip into the taxpayers' pocket without the voters' approval.

Do those, and perhaps Coventry can salvage itself.

P.S. While scuba diving, I found this anonymous verse etched in stone at the bottom of un-polluted Coventry Lake.

One of the council, Master Dunn Again has decided to run.

But he's pro-sewer. I hope a long skewer.

The voters will thrust 'til he's done.

(At least that is what I think it said.)

Lassow: Let town temporarily cover some fires in district

By Alex Girelli
Herald City Editor

The Town of Manchester Fire Department from its Buckland station, will respond to structure fires in the Tolland Turnpike-Union Street area until the Union Street bridge is replaced, if a proposal by Gordon Lassow, president of the Eighth Utilities District, is worked out.

Lassow made the proposal at a meeting Thursday night with Mayor Stephen T. Penny. The meeting was the first in a series suggested by Penny early this year as a way of resolving district-town differences.

At the meeting Thursday, Lassow heaped almost lavish praise on the fire department for its advanced Life Support System, particularly for the report they have established with the emergency medical technicians of the Eighth Utilities District Fire Department.

Lassow asked Penny to explore the possibility of joint purchasing by the town for supplies used by firefighters, by the sewer department and by other services. He said the move would save the district money because of the superior purchasing power that would result. Penny said he would take up both the firefighting proposal and the purchasing question with the town administration, but he foresaw no apparent difficulties in implementing them.

district firefighters would not arrive at a fire in the crucial areas so soon. If they had already started out from their Hilliard Street firehouse before Christmas, Lassow had called for help from the town.

Lassow, Thursday night, said the present proposal calls for having dispatchers automatically call on the town whenever a structure fire is known to be involved. Lassow said that in any structure fire there is a reasonable assumption that there may be danger to persons.

Specifically, Lassow's suggestion was that the officer in charge of the district fire department will ask Engine Five from the town fire department (Buckland station) to respond to a working structure fire on Tolland Turnpike, east of North Main Street, and to Union Street, north of the bridge.

The charge officer will also ask for two tankers from the Vernon Fire Department due to lack of hydrants in the area.

With the bridge closed to heavy vehicles, the district firefighters now have to take a long way around to the area.

Sounding the one slightly critical note, however, was a totally harmonious meeting between the elected heads of the two municipalities, Lassow said, in a prepared release.

The stakes: the CCIL football title

Unbeaten Manchester hosts Hall Saturday

It may be the season of ghosts and goblins and witches and warlocks, but Manchester High football coach Ron Cournoyer is being spooked by Warriors.

In Saturday's clash of CCIL titans, the Hall High Warriors, 5-1, will be coming over from West Hartford with the good intentions of turning Memorial Field into Cournoyer's Last Stand. These Warriors have no choice: Should they be scalped, the best they can finish it in a tie with Manchester, the only unbeaten in the league at 6-0.

like Manchester, don't give up more than a point.

A major concern of Cournoyer's is that the Indians will be facing a wishbone offense with more options than a New York Yankee minor leaguer. This will be the defense's biggest challenge, says Cournoyer, and he hopes the offense will be able to control the ball seven and eight minutes at a time to give the defenders a rest.

One thing which speaks Cournoyer is the possibility of the uncontrollable, the snap over the punter's head, the missed handoff, the injury to a key player. Both teams are healthy, save for Manchester's offensive guard and linebacker, Glenn Chetelat (injured knee). Ironically, another injury may not make Chetelat's absence so devastating. In a pre-season scrimmage, guard Andy Knofla, who was expected to nail down a starting job, broke his thumb and didn't return until last week. He's fresh and healthy now, ready and eager to take over Chetelat's guard spot.

Defensively, though, it's a different story. Manchester will play Eli McFoley in Chetelat's linebacker slot, meaning the Indians will have seven two-way players compared to only one for Hall. That can make for some tired Indians come fourth quarter.

The Lineups: Hall vs. MHS

At 1:30 p.m. Saturday, the Manchester High football team hosts Hall High in what could decide the CCIL championship.

Manchester may appear to have an edge in size, but the Hall Warriors are known for their speed and quickness. Hall's explosive offense has scored 35 points or better in four of its six games. Quarterback and co-captain Rick Rateman runs the wishbone offense to near perfection. The leading rusher is with running back Frank D'Agostino, who's gone over 100 yards in four games. Hall also uses the two-plateau system, with co-captain Jamie Martin the only starter on both offense and defense.

Sixers begin title defense against Washington

By United Press International
Julius Erving will have little time to savor his first NBA championship ring, which he will receive tonight in a pre-game ceremony before the Philadelphia 76ers' season opener.

Erving will be joined by center Moses Malone, the league's MVP the past two years, forward Marc Iavaroni and guards Andrew Toney and Maurice Cheeks. The only newcomers on the 76ers are first-round draft pick Lee Rautins of Syracuse and guard Sedale Threatt.

Celtics are ready; open in Detroit

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — The results mean something now and the Boston Celtics hope they are ready.

Fratelye says the Bucks are again the team to beat.

"I like the fact that we're in condition. That's important," Jones said. "These back-to-back games, this early will be a big test for us." Bird added. "Two rookies made the team. Greg Kite, the No. 1 draft choice out of Brigham Young, is expected to spell Parish and McHale in the pivot. The big surprise was fourth-round pick Carlos Clark of Mississippi, who impressed Jones with his defense, something not in abundant supply among rookies. M. Carr returns to add depth and enthusiasm.

When the Kings host the Los Angeles Lakers, fans will need a scorecard to see who's who. The Lakers have traded guard Norm Nixon for center Sven Nater, while the Kings have improved significantly from last year's 38-47 team to a 48-34 record.

"We've done some things that looked good on film. The passing game is better. The players are maintaining a level of consistency. We'll just have to do what we do every week."

played since the 1976-77 campaign. The SuperSonics made three roster additions — signing guard Charles Bradley, who was released by Boston earlier this week, and 7-foot center Steve Hayes. David Thompson, afflicted with a cocaine problem last season, remains unsigned, so the Sonics also acquired Reggie King, a 6-6 forward, from Kansas City for a second-round draft choice in 1985.

East should have easy day at Nebo

By Barry Peters
Herald Sports Writer

If the Northwest Catholic Indians have any hope of upsetting East Catholic Saturday morning (Mount Nebo, 10:30), they'll have to do it with revenge of last year's 59-0 drubbing in mind.

BC, Lions drawing notice

By Peter Mav UPI Sports Writer

FOXBORO, Mass. — Scouts from four bowl games are on hand for the big one — and they're looking at both teams. It's an indication of how far Boston College has come — and how Penn State has picked up the pieces.

Eighth-ranked Boston College, which made its first bowl appearance since World War II last year, is a five-point underdog to the unrated Nittany Lions in Saturday's game at Sullivan Stadium.

Scouts from the Peach, Liberty, Hall of Fame and Florida Citrus (formerly Tangerine) Bowls will be on hand to see the Eastern supremacy showdown.

"It means a lot to us," said BC co-captain Steve DeOssie. "One of the goals we set at the beginning of the season was to be the best in the East. That's a stepping stone to being one of the best in the nation."

BC, 5-1, is coming off a three-week layoff, and their last win was over Division I-AA and winless Yale. While BC was resting and recovering, Penn State beat Alabama, Syracuse and West Virginia to climb back to respectability after an uncharacteristic 0-3 beginning. The Lions have won five in a row.

Penn State's turnaround is the result in part of the emergence of defensive coordinator Doug Strang, who has started to make Lions fans at least partially forget Todd Blackledge. Running backs Jon Williams and D.J. Dozier have accounted for more than 1,000 yards and receiver Kenny Jackson averages 16 yards per reception.

"They're not as good as last year, but they're not far off," BC coach Jack Bicknell said. "They have got hurt with the run or the pass. The guy that frightens me is Jackson. He keeps you up at night."

The one who frightens Penn State coach Joe Paterno is the same one who gives the wiles to every coach — nimble quarterback Doug Flutie. The 5-foot-9 midget is nursing a sore ankle and his first completion will give him a school record 367. A junior, he already holds the career mark in yardage by nearly three miles.

Flutie will be complemented in the backfield by two strangers — starters Troy Stratford and Bob Blewett. Neither has played in a while and the three-week layoff enabled them to recover. Brian Brennan is Flutie's favorite target.

"BC has more than Flutie," Paterno said. "They've got a strong offensive line and fine tight ends. They will be tougher for us to beat than West Virginia."

BC has never beaten the Nittany Lions in 11 tries, including last year's 52-17 shellacking during which Flutie passed for 820 yards, 10th highest in NCAA history. A Penn State win would ensure the Lions of their 45th straight nonlosing season, extending their record to a capacity crowd of 61,000 is expected.

Murphy calls it a career

HOUSTON (UPI) — Calvin Murphy, the only original Houston Rocket left on the team, announced his immediate retirement to make way for younger players.

Murphy, 35, 4-10, is one of the shortest players in the NBA, showed little emotion in making the announcement Thursday.

"I hate to miss the chance to play with Ralph Sampson," said Murphy. "In 13 years, I've played with and against all the great players, like Will Chamberlin, Jerry West and Hal Greer and all the others."

Rockets General Manager Ray Patterson said it was a sad day for the franchise.

"Calvin has been through the good times and the bad. He was always a good team man. We will retire his No. 23 at a ceremony later in the season," Patterson said.

Murphy's number will be hung in the rafters beside the Rockets' 1981 Western Division Championship and 1978 Central Division Championship flags and former Rocket Rudy Tomjanovich's jersey No. 45, retired three years ago.

Murphy, a second-round draft choice who came with the Rockets when they moved from San Diego to Houston in 1970, was a known fan's energetic play.

In the 1977-78 season, Murphy finished fifth in the NBA in scoring, averaging 25.5 points per game.

Murphy also holds the NBA records for highest free-throw percentage in one season (.958 in 1980-81), and the most consecutive free throws made (78 from Dec. 27, 1980 through Feb. 23, 1981).

Murphy, who averaged 22.9 points per game in 1982-83, had a total of 17,949 points through last season and ranked 17th on the all-time NBA scoring list.

A native of Norwalk, Conn., Murphy played college basketball at Niagara University, where he averaged 49.9 points per game one season. He had one year left on a $300,000 contract. The terms of his retirement were not disclosed.

Following the announcement of Murphy's retirement, the Rockets Thursday waived second-year guard Jeff Taylor and placed Chuck Nevitt on the suspended list to meet the NBA's deadline Friday of trimming the roster.

A team spokesman said the 7-foot-6-inch Nevitt — the tallest player to appear in an NBA game — planned to play in Europe this season.

Illini hunts for Roses

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Not since the legendary Red Grange ran for five touchdowns and passed for a sixth against Michigan in 1924 has a football game against the Wolverines meant so much to Illinois.

On Saturday, Illinois and Michigan — both carrying records of 5-0 in the Big Ten and 6-1 overall — meet in Memorial Stadium in a game that will give the winner a strong edge toward a Rose Bowl berth.

The ninth-ranked Illini, who have won six games in a row, have beaten No. 9 Michigan at home since Nov. 9, 1957. The last time Illinois defeated Michigan was according to Brian McIntyre, director of public relations for the NBA, the league has made a proposal which would increase the salary of starting officials from $24,000 to $28,000. This is in addition to a proposal on the table which calls for a 27 percent increase over three years, 10 percent coming in the first year.

The referees' union was represented by General Counsel Richie Phillips, with eight referees present at the talks. Merri Lane, a lawyer in Phillips' office, said the union lowered its demands Thursday from $35,000 to $32,000 for first-year officials and from $7,000 to $2,000 for second-year referees. Lane said the league's offer of $28,000 also applied to second-year refs. She also called the starting figure "deceptive," because a referee must work 82 games to get the full amount and first-year referees usually work about 62 games, which would come to $21,000.

"Their major move was imperceptible in terms of dollars," Lane said. "In fact, the movement they made is almost none at all."

"They'll start to work tomorrow (Friday) with substitute refs."

"We did an analysis and found out if they were to take on our demands and contract it with their offer, it would cost $17,500 more. Which is not a lot of money for an NBA team. Especially in contrast to players' salaries."

Lane also said the officials altered their demand for a three-man referee system the league currently uses two, agreeing to wait until five months into the season before it is put into effect.

"We think probably the fact they now run the football more effectively and are still able to pass effectively makes them tougher to defend. (But) their strength is offense, like everybody has said, they're very physical and very quick."

NBA referees reject offer

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — A six-hour negotiation session failed to narrow the gap between the NBA and the league's referees Thursday as the league will almost definitely use substitute officials when the season opens Friday night.

Thursday's meeting was "extraordinarily unproductive," according to a counsel for the National Association of Basketball Referees.

The two sides are scheduled to meet again Friday at 2 p.m. EDT. The regular season opens with nine games Friday night.

"I'm not sure we're going to get any closer," said Brian McIntyre, director of public relations for the NBA, the league has made a proposal which would increase the salary of starting officials from $24,000 to $28,000. This is in addition to a proposal on the table which calls for a 27 percent increase over three years, 10 percent coming in the first year.

"We did an analysis and found out if they were to take on our demands and contract it with their offer, it would cost $17,500 more. Which is not a lot of money could have hit a few more. I left a few on the lip of the cup."

Lon Hinkle and Jeff Sluman were at 48 and 67.

At 68 was a group of 11 that included Al Geiberger, Mark McCumber, Fuzzy Zoeller and defending champion Calvin Peete.

Zoeller, who needs to finish fourth or better to become top money winner for the year, was treated by a chiropractor for a recurring back injury after first-round play.

"His back is pretty bad," said Bean, who played with Zoeller. "I know he's not going to play after this until he goes to South Africa."

Zoeller, with $415,689 in earnings, trails money leader Hal Sutton by $10,979. Sutton did not enter Pensacola this year because he had a commitment to play in Japan the week after this tournament, the last stop of the PGA tour.

Haynes files suit against the NFL

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — New England Patriots defensive back Mike Haynes wants to be a Los Angeles Raider and he wants a federal judge to make him one.

An agent for the holdout Haynes has filed a federal suit aimed at requiring the NFL to approve the trade of his client to the Raiders that it previously vetoed.

The suit, which reportedly seeks $15 million in damages, was filed against the league's Commissioner Pete Rozelle, San Diego Chargers owner Gene Klein and Seattle Seahawks coach Chuck Knox.

Agent Howard Slusher's action came Wednesday in Los Angeles District Court after the league disallowed an Oct. 11 deal involving Haynes because it said the transaction took place after the deadline.

"The suit requests the court to issue the order that will allow Mr. Haynes to immediately play with the Los Angeles Raiders," Slusher said in a statement. "Further, the court has been asked to award actual damages to be determined at trial and punitive damages for violation of anti-trust laws."

On Oct. 11, the Patriots verbally agreed to trade Haynes to Los Angeles for first and third-round draft choices in 1984. But the trade took place at 10:30 p.m. 15 minutes after the league had notified all

Cheney fourth in COC meet

PORTLAND — Placing two runners in the top 10, Cheney Tech took fourth place in the team standings at Thursday's Charter Conference Championship Meet.

Brendan Owens took sixth place for the Beavers with a time of 17:45 and Jeff Vira was 11th in 18:07 over the 2.7 mile layout. Bacon Academy's Tim Hardy was the individual winner with a time of 16:22 with Cromwell's Jack Hannah second in 16:36.

Harlan Shelton and Roger DuBiel were 24th and 28th respectively for the Techmen and Ron Bussye rounded out the scoring with a 20th place finish.

Vinal Tech and Portland tied for conference honors with 60 points apiece followed by Bacon Academy 64, Cheney 98, Cromwell 138, RHAM 156 and East Hampton 164.

Coverly defeated

PORTLAND — It will be remembered as the goal that never was.

Thursday's scenario: The Coventry Patriots are behind to Portland, 2-2, with a minute to play. Andrea Rhoades lets a shot fly into the Portland goal for the tying goal — so everyone thought. But a whistle had blown and an obstruction called on Portland. The goal was taken back, Coventry given an indirect kick and Portland tied the game.

"It should have been a goal," said Coventry coach Paul Lombardo. "They shouldn't have taken it away. It should have been our advantage. The whole game the officials went against us."

The game may be also remembered as the turning point should Coventry fail to make the state tournament. With the loss, the Pats fall below the required 600 mark to 45-4. Portland is 5-2-2. Portland opened up a 3-0 half-time lead but Coventry responded with two second half goals by Kristen Joy and Andrea Rhoades. "Once we settled down, we fought hard," said Lombardo.

Keans scored his third goal of the year with 5:10 to play.

"I wanted the shoutout," Keans said.

Like everyone else around the NHL, Doug Keans knew the Boston Bruins would be looking for a second goaltender after Pete Peeters ran out of gas during the playoffs last season.

Keans just had no idea that goal would be him.

Keans, picked up on waivers from Los Angeles during the summer, turned aside 24 shots while eight teammates scored in 13 seconds later in the game.

Altobelli named manager of year

NEW YORK — Joe Altobelli, who survived the pressure of succeeding Earl Weaver and managed the Baltimore Orioles to the world championship, has been named American League Manager of the Year by United Press International.

A 51-year-old native of Detroit who copied Weaver's success without the bombast associated with his predecessor, Altobelli received 13 votes to easily outdistance Tony LaRussa of the Chicago White Sox, with eight, and Bobby Cox of Toronto, five. Tommy Lasorda of the Los Angeles Dodgers captured the award in the National League.

"It's quite rewarding to be recognized as a manager," said Altobelli. "To win like we won, you have to have good ballplayers. Then to win the award is quite rewarding and pleasing."

Altobelli, who managed the San Francisco Giants from 1977 until being fired near the end of the 1979 season, skipped the New York Yankees' top farm team to the International League title in 1980 then served as third base coach for the Yankees for two years.

Lye gives golfers lesson taking Pensacola Open lead

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI) — Mark Lye gave young golfers lessons two days before the 250,000 Pensacola Open and the clubhouse on the basics helped sharpen his game enough to shoot an under-par 62.

"I made me think about the fundamentals," Lye said of the pointers he gave youngsters Tuesday. "I got me back to the basics."

Lye fired nine birdies and only one bogey Thursday in posting his opening-round 63, good enough for a three-stroke lead over Andy Bean, Don Pohl and Ronnie Black, who were tied at 5 under 66.

The tournament continues today on the par-71, 7,093-yard Perdido Bay Country Club course.

Lye, who matched his first PGA victory at a Boston tournament last month, clipped in from 70 feet with his putter on the par-4 ninth hole and canned puts of 40 feet on No. 7 and 12 feet on No. 12 for three

ACC showdown worth watching

By United Press International

Just because no automatic bowl bid goes to the Atlantic Coast Conference champion doesn't mean Saturday's ACC showdown between No. 3 North Carolina and No. 10 Maryland isn't worth watching.

For starters, there's the unbeaten North Carolina facing its first stern test of the year against the once-beaten Terrapins. Through the battle between standout passers Scott Stankavage and Boomer Edson and consider the winner is practically guaranteed an appearance in a major bowl and it adds up to quite a spectacle at College Park, Md.

North Carolina Coach Dick Crum gave his team two days off during the week after an open state last weekend. He hopes it will make for a well-rested team but doesn't really know what to expect.

Both teams are 3-0 in the ACC.

"It's great to be playing in an 'important' game like this so far into the season," Maryland Coach Bobby Ross said. "It's a tribute to our program. I'm thrilled for our players to have this opportunity. But this isn't the last game of the season."

Saturday's schedule is spaced with three other meetings between ranked teams: No. 4 Florida hosts No. 5 Auburn in a Southeast Conference clash, No. 7 Miami hosts No. 13 West Virginia, and No. 8 Michigan visits No. 9 Illinois in a battle of Big Ten powerhouses.

Also, No. 11 Washington visits

MHS falls to Enfield

ENFIELD — Unbeaten Enfield High improved its record to 11-0 with a 4-0 victory over Manchester High in CCIL action here Thursday afternoon.

Manchester, 2-3-3 overall, was led by midfielders Jen Kobut and Beth Pagan. They tried to break through the Enfield defense but couldn't put a shot home.

Manchester goalie Chris Colvin played well with nine saves. She also helped fend off 13 penalty corners.

Manchester resumes action Monday at Wethersfield High at 2:45 p.m.

Youngsters on display in Miami

By Dove Rarfo UPI Sports Writer

A rookie leading the NFL in passing is about as rare as one leading the league in rushing. But two youngsters in contention for individual honors will be on display at the Orange Bowl Sunday.

AFC passing leader Dan Marino runs the Dolphins' offense while league-leading rusher Eric Dickerson is the major factor in the Rams' resurgence.

Both teams are 5-3 and in contention for their respective division titles.

Marino's 107.1 passing efficiency rating is second in the NFL to Joe Theisman and the Dolphins have won two of three since he replaced David Woodley as starter.

"For the third week in a row, he demonstrated great poise, confidence and the leadership that we were looking for," Miami Coach Don Shula said of Marino's performance in a 21-7 win at Baltimore.

"The things I like about Marino are his quick release, his good vision, plus he's big and strong."

Dickerson has gained 993 yards rushing and is taking aim on O.J. Simpson's all-time season rushing mark of 2,003 yards set in 1973. The rejuvenated Rams boast a balanced attack. Dickerson rushed for 144 yards in a 45-35 loss to San Francisco last week and Vince Ferragamo passed for five touchdowns.

"These two are the backbones of our offense," LA Coach Carroll Robinson said. "The two men have great talent. Dickerson is producing beyond anyone's expectations. He can physically dominate a game. Ferragamo has enormous potential. He has a positive idea about throwing and he is still in the process of developing as an efficient quarterback."

The Dolphins defense will never be easy pickings as long as Bill Arnsparger is the defensive coach, but injuries continue to cause trouble.

The Rams defense is relatively healthy and Shula doesn't like what he sees.

"Jack Youngblood continues to be their best pass rusher and he has a fine set of linebackers behind him," Shula said.

In other games Sunday, it will be Baltimore at Philadelphia, Dallas at the New York Giants, Detroit at Chicago, Houston at Cleveland, New England at Atlanta, New Orleans at Buffalo, Tampa Bay at Pittsburgh, Kansas City at Denver, Green Bay at Cincinnati, Minnesota at St. Louis, the New York Jets at San Francisco, and Seattle at the Los Angeles Raiders.

On Monday night, it's Washington at San Diego.

At Philadelphia, the Eagles need to revive a running game that has been outgained 1,254-717 by opponents. The Colts, on the other hand, rank second in the league in yards gained per rush, 4.8, but have had trouble generating a pass attack.

At Atlanta, coaches Dan Henning and the 3-5 Falcons and Ron

Erickson leads Seniors

CARMEL VALLEY, Calif. — Former tour pro Bob Erickson came out on top with a 7-under-par 64 at Rancho Canada East Thursday to grab the third round lead in the $100,000 U.S. National Senior Open Golf Tournament.

Dean Lint and Morgan Fottrell, also playing in the East, played 68 and 69, respectively, and West course leader Mo Mullins had a 75.

Second round tie for second place a shot off the lead.

Thomas decisions Boone

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Unbeaten heavyweight Pinklon Thomas of Philadelphia, ranked fourth by the World Boxing Association, secured a 10-round unanimous decision Thursday night over veteran Leroy Boone.

Thomas, 212½, used a strong left jab and side-to-side movement to control the action and improve to 23-1.

Bochte will un-retire

SEATTLE — Solid-hitting first baseman Bruce Bochte should be returning to baseball next season, possibly with the Oakland A's, according to both his agent and former manager.

"He (Bochte) said he was pretty sure he was coming back," Milwaukee Manager Rene Lachemann said Thursday. Lachemann was the 32-year-old Bochte's last manager at Seattle in 1982.

Bochte retired from the Mariners and baseball last winter, and has said little about his reasons for doing so.

Bochte's agent Tony Attanasio said his client would consider offers from four teams — Oakland, Boston, Kansas City and Toronto.

Mets name two coaches

NEW YORK — The New York Mets announced Thursday that 14-year major league veteran Bill Robinson would join their staff as a batting coach for the 1984 season.

Met general manager Frank Cashen also said that 25-year-old Bobby Valentine would return for a second year as third base coach. Robinson and Valentine join former manager Frank Howard on new manager Dave Johnson's staff for next season. The Mets must still name a pitching coach and a bullpen coach.

Bowie returns to Wildcat 5

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Kentucky coach Joe B. Hall says he will return to coaching at the University of Kentucky after a two-year injury-related absence in the Wildcats' opener Nov. 10.

Bowie, of Lebanon, Pa., who played on the 1980 Olympic team, missed the entire 1981-82 and 1982-83 seasons because of a persistent left shin bone fracture.

He underwent surgical treatment at the Campbell Clinic in Memphis, Tenn., to correct the problem, but Hall said others remain.

"He's got good mobility and strength, but his conditioning is the problem," Hall said Thursday. "He also has mental adjustments. He has been off the court for two years."

Slow recoveries of injured players are the Wildcats' main opponents at the beginning of the 1983-84 season, said Hall, whose charges host arch-rival Louisville at Rupp Arena in the opener.

Senior Dicky Beal is still suffering from his knee injury suffered last season but is making good progress after surgery this summer, he said.

"I've got a gut feeling Dicky will be contributing by our opening, but he won't be 100 percent," Hall said.

"He's not scrimmaging or working in any other action that is dangerous. Any pain that occurs is described by doctors as adhesions breaking loose."

Hall said Bret Bearup is over his bout with mononucleosis. He said Bearup is suffering in practice from a conditioning standpoint, because he missed six weeks of conditioning and workouts while recovering.

"He is back, but only at about 90 percent," Hall said.

Another problem has been Metin Turpin's weight, but Hall said he has made progress.

Cornwall said all law enforcement agencies "from Santa Barbara to San Diego" would have access to the equipment.

Midjet play winding down

The next to the last week of the Manchester Midjet Football League schedule comes up tonight at Mount Nebo with the Eagles having an important game in the nightcap. The Eagles, 1-1, are in second place in the league behind the league-leading 4-0 Chargers. They must beat the 1-1 Jets to keep within striking range of the Chargers, who are idle.

In the 6:30 p.m. opener, the 1-2-2 Giants oppose the 0-3 Patriots.

The final week of midjet league play is Friday night, Nov. 4.

FOCUS / Weekend

This spooky sign on Main Street points the way to Manchester Jaycees haunted house on Main Street.

Haunted Happenings

Keep your goblins busy this weekend

It's yet three nights before the eve of witches, goblins, and haunted happenings. But Manchester residents can get a jump on Halloween activities by taking in some of the many events planned over the weekend.

Saturday the Lutz Children's Museum and the Main Street Merchants Association will collaborate on some pre-holiday fun.

First on the agenda, a pumpkin-decorating contest from 10 a.m. to noon in front of the Manchester Mall on Main Street. Budding artists will get a free pumpkin to decorate, and they'll be judged on their efforts. The pumpkins can be taken home. The event is free.

If you need a little sustenance to make it through all that decorating, be sure to stop at the Manchester Sheltered Workshop bake sale beginning at 10 a.m. also. Look for tables under the former Carriage House Boutique on Main Street.

The museum and merchants will also sponsor a gala costume parade starting Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Manchester State Bank parking lot. Prizes will be given to all participants, and grand prizes awarded after the parade for best costumes.

The parade, complete with clowns and balloon sculptors, will wind its way up Main Street to Center Park, where Milton the Magician will give a free magic show, rain or shine.

For adults only

If you've not won a prize, you'll have another chance later Saturday afternoon. The Manchester Recreation Department will sponsor a Halloween skating party from 4 to 6 p.m. at Skating Palace East in East Hartford.

Participants will be given free candy and parents may skate free. Prizes will be given for best costumes for adults.

... the secret to successful romance has been repeated over and over again. It's not kinky. And it's not kinky. It's having the courage to care.

they'd never been before. (Luckily for Cary, the props department remembered to bring along a single yellow rose to be presented at dinner.) After dinner, they'd return home and dance by candlelight to the stereo (their favorite Glenn Miller record, courtesy of the research department). And then — and only then — would they retire for a night of very private passion.

I'm sure that a "slam-bang real man" is convinced that real women don't think that way. In a way, he's right. Based on the letters I've received, female fantasies tend to be much MORE involved than just drinks, dinner and dancing. Men, you'd be very well advised to ask a female friend or partner what her idea of a "perfect romantic evening" is. Make sure you take detailed notes.

Believe it or not, most men — given the chance — are also quite romantic. I'm consistently amazed by the very creative suggestions sent in daily by male readers. Researchers have shown that male romantic fantasies tend to be short and to the point, while female fantasies frequently involve detailed situations not unlike scenes from a romantic movie. Men, the conclusion is inescapable: Atmosphere, not bedroom prowess, is the key ingredient to a successful romantic evening.

For example, instead of starting — and finishing — your evening in the bedroom, prepare your "fantasy" as though you were directing a movie. Would Cary Grant go straight for the body of his leading lady? Probably not. He'd start the evening by serving drinks at sunset on the porch (the scenic designer having added candlelight, flowers and music beforehand). From there, he'd take his wife to a little restaurant

'Uncreative' woman has uncaring husband

Sometimes you just have to be blunt. When I received the following letter, I knew it was time for a column "For Men Only."

QUESTION: The problem is my wife. We've been married for three years now and I'm not getting enough 'romance.' If you know what I mean. It didn't used to be this way. I've tried everything. I suggested wife-swapping and she said no. I went and bought some adult toys and nightgowns and she wouldn't even look at them. My wife says that we should go to a counselor to "work things out." What would you say to an uncreative woman like that? — Frustrated Romantic ANSWER: I wouldn't say anything. I'd shut up and listen.

Let me talk to you, man to man. She's right — and you're wrong. Before you discuss exactly what romance is, let me first tell you what romance is NOT:

- Romance isn't swapping your wife. Since when did you promise to "love, honor and trade in after three years?" Adultery is not the answer to your problems. Caring is.
- Romance isn't forcing "gifts" on your wife she doesn't want. Your marriage should be an equal partnership. Find something that you both can get excited about. Talk with your wife about romantic experimentation. Her ideas may surprise and delight you.
- And romance isn't found in the letters to men's magazines. They may tell you that "everybody is doing it," but let them try to prove it.

In the thousands of letters from readers that I've received, the secret to a successful romance has been repeated over and over again. It's not kinky. And it's not kinky. It's having the courage to care.

Sounds simple, right? It is. To help keep it that way, here are just a couple romantic hints for men to keep in mind.

1) Like all living things, romance needs atmosphere. Researchers have shown that male romantic fantasies tend to be short and to the point, while female fantasies frequently involve detailed situations not unlike scenes from a romantic movie. Men, the conclusion is inescapable: Atmosphere, not bedroom prowess, is the key ingredient to a successful romantic evening.

For example, instead of starting — and finishing — your evening in the bedroom, prepare your "fantasy" as though you were directing a movie. Would Cary Grant go straight for the body of his leading lady? Probably not. He'd start the evening by serving drinks at sunset on the porch (the scenic designer having added candlelight, flowers and music beforehand). From there, he'd take his wife to a little restaurant

MORE HINTS FROM ROMANTICS: It's time for another Romance! Review. Now playing at a theater near you is:

"All The Right Moves" (20th Century Fox), starring Tom Cruise of "Risky Business" fame. On the five-point Romance Scale of Hugs, "All The Right Moves" receives 2.5 OK, but much better if seen at a drive-in. Cruise plays a high school football player named Stee who can't wait to get out of his small town and go to college. Lee Thompson plays his girlfriend whose most romantic moment occurs when she plays her saxophone. Honestly.

You're hearing reverse country crossover blues

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — There's a new tune getting plenty of airplay these days in Nashville music circles — like this," asked Exile lead guitarist J.F. Pennington, pointing to a recording he had brought to the top of the pop charts but that second major hit never came. Exile learned a lesson — one hit does not a rock career make.

"We had a No. 1 pop hit. A year later there was no hit," said drummer Steve Grotzman. "Pop is a very fickle market, very up and down. Country isn't like that. Once you're established — true, you may not sell as many records — but you are there for a while."

"We want to play music for a living. We can keep doing that and make a good living with country," Grotzman said.

A key factor in Exile's decision to "go country" was the fact that the band was responsible for writing such hit country songs as "Stay With Me," "Take Me Down," and "The Closer You Get," a song that helped Alabama win the Album of the Year award from the Country Music Association.

"All these people were getting country hits our songs," Pennington said.

The result of the switch-over is an album called "Exile," and songs that range from hardcore country to gospel.

Entertainers like Thomas Charles and the members of Exile have discovered that country music is more lasting, not as tightly formatted, less hectic and more secure.

In addition, more and more young people are listening to country music.

Help, care urged for adolescents

By Sarah E. Hall Herald Reporter

At the Manchester Community Services Council meeting Thursday, local psychiatrist Dr. Jamshid A. Marvasti demanded that the MMH psychiatric ward be a follower in adolescent care.

He called for the formation of several new programs: a walk-in clinic and psychiatric ward for teenagers at Manchester Memorial Hospital; an adolescent day treatment center; a group home for troubled young people; and more wilderness-experience and job programs.

Only four adolescents can currently be accommodated in the MMH psychiatric ward, he said. The squeeze leaves doctors no choice but to admit some emotionally disturbed youngsters to the pediatric ward, he added, "causing a difficult situation."

Some 70 such patients, who would be prime candidates for a new adolescent psychiatric unit, were instead admitted to MMH as pediatric patients last month alone, according to Marvasti.

He and school Special Education Director Richard Cormier also supported a school-run day-treatment center for adolescents. It would save money and keep youngsters close to home, they said.

There're tricks, but foliage still a treat

WELLESLEY, Mass. (UPI) — Fall foliage viewers in New England will continue to find some treats for their eyes during the Halloween weekend, the A.L.A. Auto and Travel Club reports.

Nature's usual tricks of frost, wind and rain have left many trees bare or nearly naked, but beautiful autumn colors still may be seen in some parts of the region.

The A.L.A. suggests the best viewing areas will be in southern Connecticut, Rhode Island and southeast Massachusetts, with pockets of brilliant foliage in central and southern Vermont and southern sections of New Hampshire and Maine.

In Connecticut, recommended routes for foliage viewing are U.S. 7 between Wilton and Danbury and the Merritt Parkway between Milford and Greenwich.

Foliage viewers in Rhode Island should try U.S. Route 44 west of Providence. Highway 116 between Smithfield and Coventry, U.S. Route 1 and I-95 in the south and Highway 77 around Little Compton.

In southeast Massachusetts, color is reported about 75 percent.

Holy pumpkin

Halloween painters didn't let a little thing like rain stop them from painting store fronts on Main Street this week.

On Tuesday afternoon, when Manchester Herald photographer Al Tarquino made his rounds, the kids were busy up and down the street.

The event is part of a series of Halloween events sponsored by the Downtown Merchants Association and the Lutz Children's Museum. Judges will announce the winners of the sign painting contest on Saturday.

Robert Dorin of 26 Finley St. heads down Main Street with Anessa Hamel and Dorin's son, Andy. Dorin, who owns Manchester Hardware and helps with the sign painting contest each year, took time out from painting duties to supervise Anessa and Andy at Computer Training Institute.

Advice

Mother searches for way to cure lovesick daughter

DEAR ABBY: I need some advice fast. I have a 15-year-old daughter who is crazy in love with a 19-year-old neighbor boy. Today, you hear about 12- and 13-year-old girls getting pregnant, and I am out of my mind with worry. So how do I keep my precious daughter from making this mistake? I keep close tabs on her. She isn't allowed to date this boy, but she may talk to him in front of the house.

Abby, I pray every night, and I know God hears me, but I need to know how to handle this in a calm manner. Every time I think of it, I cry. I hear her talking to her friends on the phone, and I know she is in terrible danger. She "Loves" this boy so much, she would do anything he asked her to do. (I pray to God she hasn't already done it.) I can't lock her up. I have talked to her about love, making love, and how important it is to save herself for marriage, but I'm not sure I got through to her. Please help me. I am desperate.

GOING CRAZY
DEAR GOING: First,

Dear Abby

have a calm, non-judgmental heart-to-heart talk with your daughter and find out what relationship is between her and the 19-year-old neighbor man — not boy. Does he have a serious interest in your daughter? Or is she (like many 13-year-old girls) living in a dreamworld? If your daughter is sexually involved with this young man, have a talk with her. Does he know that sexual intercourse with a minor is statutory rape? And does your daughter know everything she needs to know about how to prevent an unwanted pregnancy? (Don't make the mistake some mothers make in thinking that if they discuss this with their daughters it's the same as giving them permission.

It's not.) If your daughter has a father, include him in this discussion. She's his daughter too. (P.S. Prayer is wonderful. But it's a very unreliable contraceptive.)

DEAR ABBY: I am 21 years old and I am trying to get over my first love. Last summer I fell in love for the first time and I never knew I could be so happy. He told me he loved me and I never doubted him for a minute. Then he left for college in another state, saying he would call me and his address so I could write to him. He left last month and I haven't heard from him. This hurts me so much. Is this what love is all about? It's the same as giving them permission.

assistance. Should I write to him, or try to get over him? I love him so much. Please tell me what to do.

IN PAIN
DEAR IN PAIN: Don't write to him. This is not what a lasting "love" is all about — it sounds more like a summer romance. Don't dwell on thoughts of him. Consider it a good learning experience. You will be the richer and wiser for it. Close that door and don't look back.

DEAR ABBY: After a homosexual male has had a sex-change operation and becomes a female, is he then a heterosexual, bisexual or is he still a homosexual? This is not a joke, Abby, it's a question that has been puzzling me for a long time.

CURIOS
DEAR CURIOS: If the sex-changed female chooses for her sexual partner another female, she is a lesbian. If she prefers males exclusively, she is heterosexual, and if she enjoys sex equally with both males and females, she is bisexual.

Taking drugs for migranes can lead to complications

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have been told by a friend that the drug Sansert was prescribed for the migraine headaches she had for years. After taking Sansert only once, she never again had another migraine. But she did say this drug is dangerous and changes your blood system. I would like to know your opinion. I have tried so many drugs with no relief.

Your Health
Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR READER: About Sansert, it is a good medicine and is used to prevent migraine headaches in cases that cannot be controlled by other methods. I do not know what you mean by saying your friend used Sansert only once. If you mean she took treatment for several months and stopped having migraine headaches, that would be more plausible. Like most other migraine medications, Sansert seldom cures or totally prevents migraines. That is why it, as well as other medications, needs to be taken for long periods of time.

That is where the trouble begins with Sansert. It may stimulate thickening of the fibrous tissues in the body cavities leading to serious complications. To prevent this most doctors who use it prescribe it only for a few months and then stop it to give the body a chance to avoid such changes or reverse those that have occurred.

Several other medications are used on a continuous basis to prevent migraines. Some are stopped by changes in lifestyle, including avoiding certain foods that contain tyramine, such as aged cheese.

Fortunately for most women who have migraine headaches they usually stop after menopause is over. In a few women, however, they start then.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I'm in my late 20s and have been exercising because I'm obese. My problem is that upon losing weight from my waist and hips I have noticed that my right hip goes up more on one side than the left. It is also scary as one buttock is much higher on that side, too. I'll do anything to try to correct this problem. I'm not vain, Dr. Lamb, but clothes look and fit terribly. In bathing suits I really look deformed.

DEAR READER: You may have two problems. Often our two halves of the body are unequal. One breast may be larger than the other. Even the sides of the face are often different.

So many people have one leg that is shorter than the other. That will tilt your pelvis and make one hip higher than the other. In that case, if you find out which leg is shorter you can have a lift in your shoe and help to straighten the foundation, so to speak. That decreases the pelvic tilt.

The other (or additional) possibility is that one half of your pelvis may be smaller than the other half. It is important to determine if your difference is to correct this problem your entire spinal column to be aware in balancing your body. Why not go see either a specialist in physical medicine or an orthopedic specialist and find out if you have enough change to require help.

Grenada fighting could go on for days

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (UPI) — U.S. troops backed by F-16 jets and mortar fire battled Cuban soldiers entrenched in the mountains of Grenada Friday. The Pentagon said 11 Americans had been killed and 67 wounded since the Caribbean island was invaded four days ago.

As the fighting continued, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said the first American troops could begin leaving the island later in the day.

The admiral commanding the invasion forces said they had captured all major military objectives on the island but that the fighting could go on for days or weeks.

The Soviet Union said U.S. warplanes had fired on its embassy in the capital during the invasion and said such incidents could have "serious consequences."

The Pentagon denied the accusation.

Friday's fighting was centered on the southern half of the 133-square-mile island between the Point Salines airfield, captured by U.S. forces when they invaded Tuesday, and the mountains to the north and northeast.

"They are still hiding up in the hills and were trying to flush them out," said Air Force Lt. David N. Hinchee, a ground support coordinator at the Cuban-built airport that has become headquarters for the more than 3,000-man seven-nation invasion force.

Mortar and machine-gun fire went on throughout Thursday night and into Friday and was audible in the capital of St. George's.

Groups of F-16 jets flying in formations of two and three strafed the hills surrounding Point Salines and American officials said the Cubans appeared to be withdrawing further into the mountains.

The search for the Cubans went on through Thursday night. American helicopters equipped with powerful searchlights could be seen in the darkness buzzing over the countryside.

Also resisting the invaders were members of Grenada's Peoples Revolutionary Army and the volunteer militia, who reportedly were terrorizing civilians.

"They're killing civilians just as they're killing soldiers," Weinberger said in a statement.

A Grenadian from the village of Fontenay said Grenadian soldiers threatened to kill all residents of her village for refusing to shelter them.

"They said they were going to come back tonight and kill everyone. We can't go back home," she said.

Villagers streamed out of their homes, carrying children under their arms and a few belongings they packed hastily. They reported the threats to an American Marine at a checkpoint on the road to St. George's, the capital. There were no immediate reports on deaths or injuries.

In announcing its latest casualty figures of 11 dead and 67 wounded, the Pentagon said seven other American soldiers were missing, according to a Spanish embassy cable obtained by UPI.

In Washington, Adm. Wesley McDonald, overall commander of the invasion forces, said "all major military objectives on the island were secured."

He said that at one point during the past two days, the number of American troops on the island reached as high as 2,000, but that by Friday afternoon the number had gone down to 5,000 after most of the original invasion troops withdrew. The Marines and Army Rangers were being replaced by members of the Army's crack 82nd Airborne Division who will deal with the retreating Cubans, McDonald said.

In Havana, the Spanish and Colombian representatives called

Deadly quake hits Northwest

CHALLIS, Idaho (UPI) — A powerful earthquake rolled through the Rockies to the Pacific Friday, killing two children, sending giant boulders crashing into homes and slightly damaging buildings at a nuclear weapons research laboratory.

Centered in rugged, lightly populated central Idaho, it was the strongest quake in the Pacific Northwest in 24 years, with a Richter scale magnitude of 7.2 recorded at Berkeley, Calif., and 6.9 at other seismographic stations.

Tara Leaton, 7, and Travis Franck, 6, were crushed to death while walking to school when the front of a brick building on the main street of Challis collapsed on top of them.

Three people were treated for injuries in Challis, a town of 1,200 nestled in a valley next to the Salmon River between peaks rising to 10,000 feet. Minor injuries were reported at nearby Mackay and Clinton, Idaho, and damage was widespread.

The epicenter of the quake was located 13 miles south of Challis. Buildings awayed in Salt Lake City, Spokane, Wash., and Winnemucca, Nev., hundreds of miles from the center. The quake was felt in Idaho, Washington, North Dakota, Wyoming, Oregon, Montana, Utah, and Nevada. A man in Sacramento, Calif., said the water in his swimming pool rippled.

At the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, 50 miles from the center of the quake, the jolt cracked the walls of the administration building and a storage building, but officials said there was no damage to radioactive equipment. Four nuclear reactors operating at the time were automatically shut off by a seismic switch when the tremor struck, an official said.

The laboratory has engaged in nuclear power and weapons research since 1949.

"We had no damage to the major site facilities," Anne Hosford, spokeswoman for the laboratory, said.

Residents of Challis said huge boulders rolled down the slopes of the nearby foothills and careened into the town. One hit the home of Mona James who was sipping coffee when she felt the quake. "It's just something you couldn't believe unless you'd seen it yourself," Mrs. James said. "I was drinking coffee and the power went off. I ran into the kitchen, then out

Bolton trooper learns the town

TROOPER WALSH AT BOLTON CENTER. He likes the country setting

Bolton trooper learns the town

By Sarah Posselt Herald Reporter

BOLTON — The town's new resident state trooper spent most of this week in town, learning the ins and outs of his new job from retiring Trooper Robert Peterson.

Richard J. Walsh said Friday he doesn't know why he was chosen from among seven applicants for the job — he was too happy to be risk-taking the decision, he said. But he knows why he chose to apply.

"I like the country setting more than the highway," he said. State troopers spend a lot of time cleaning up accidents on state highways.

He takes over next week for Peterson, who has been Bolton's resident trooper for 18 years.

Walsh doesn't know if he'll be allowed to stay that long. The state has considered setting a limit on the number of years one trooper may serve one town.

Walsh, a six-year veteran of the state police, used to patrol territory that included Bolton, Andover, Columbia and Hebron. Although he grew up in West Hartford and still lives west of the river, the 31-year-old said he has loved the rural communities in eastern Connecticut since he was assigned to the Colchester Barracks in 1978.

Walsh plans to move to the area where he gets married next spring. He has a wife and three children.

"I see a lot of the same traits in Richard I see in Bob Peterson," said First Selectman Henry P. Ryba. "He has compassion, he doesn't fly off the handle, he can communicate. I think he's going to be OK." Ryba said those traits are important in a small town, where a police officer has more personal contact with residents than in a town the size of Manchester.

Walsh said he especially looks forward to working with the town constabulary. Bolton's part-time auxiliary police force. The constabulary patrol during the hours when the resident trooper is off-duty and are directly under his supervision.

In his spare time Walsh does what it seems half the healthy population in America does: He runs. He's not the devoted jogger Trooper Peterson is, Walsh was quick to explain. He has never run in any races, but that could change in a town where the chairman of the school board, several members of the Board of Finance and almost any town official you talk to have been in training recently for a long-distance contest.

ECHS teachers march to protest pay, benefits

By Sarah E. Holl Herald Reporter

"To deny a just wage cries out to heaven for punishment," said the sign East Catholic High School guidance director John O'Connell carried.

ECHS English teacher Mary Pat Noonan turned her blue-lettered placard toward Farmington Avenue so passing motorists could see. "How many more good teachers are going to be forced to leave?" it read.

Both faculty members marched in protest Friday against what they say are too-low salaries and paltry benefit packages. In what may be a precursor of a full-fledged strike, they joined about 100 other teachers from five area Catholic high schools on the sidewalk in front of the Diocesan School Office in Hartford.

Next Wednesday, the 182 voting members of the Greater Hartford Catholic Education Association must decide whether to continue with more mild forms of protest, or take the bold step of terminating their contract and striking 20 days later.

Union President Thomas Dickau says he's sure the move to strike will hit the floor right away at next week's meeting. "And there's a great deal of support for it," he said.

Mark Skehan, a physics teacher at ECHS, is one who would support it. "I feel used," he says, citing insensitivity at the diocesan level.

Archbishop John F. Whealon has refused to get involved.

Mrs. Noonan is another pro-strike union member. "At this point, I feel as though I would have to support a strike. It's the only thing that's drastic enough to make a difference," she said.

Now pregnant with her first child, Mrs. Noonan says she has "everything at stake" in the outcome of the labor dispute. Her husband is also a Catholic teacher at another diocesan school — "and we cannot afford to have a child and still teach, with our current income," she said.

Debbie Veronneau, a math teacher at East Catholic along with her husband, John, has similar concerns. "I can't afford to have a family," read the sign she carried.

The two are both union negotiators, and say the administration has been hard-lining them. Since the start of contract talks last December, the union has come down in its salary demands more than two times as far as the administration has moved up.

Now their three-year salary proposals seem comparatively close. The two pay packages, each set up on a split-year basis, differ by no more than 1 percent during

It's time to turn back the clocks — carefully

By James V. Heollon United Press International

HARTFORD — Daylight Saving Time ends at 2 a.m. Sunday and a big-time operator says some people will damage antique clocks that are not meant to be set back.

In the spring, they are set one hour ahead and there is no problem. But in the fall, they go back an hour and that can mean trouble for certain old and valuable clocks of the striking or chime variety.

That's because some owners might not know their clock's internal levers are set like ratchets that travel in one direction, says Joseph R. Bates of Newfane, Vt.

"If you're in doubt, you should never set the hands back. Just let the clock run down. Set the hands ahead and stop one hour short of the old time. If the clock has a pendulum, you just stop the pendulum for an hour. It's that simple. Nobody ever thinks of it," he said.

A native of Edinburgh, Scotland, Bates has been buying, selling and restoring clocks since 1962 as "the British clockmaker," and is sometimes retained by private collectors and museums, like Mystic Seaport, where he has restored ship chronometers. His office and showroom is in his Vermont home, once an inn.

"Generally speaking, clocks that are made within the last 100 years can be set backwards without any problem. They are designed for that. But unless you know specifically the clock can be set back, you shouldn't do it," he said in an interview during a visit to Connecticut.

Daylight-saving time apparently originated with a proposal by Benjamin Franklin in 1787. He suggested it as a means of saving candles. Its modern development has been credited to William Willett, a British builder. He advocated it in a paper, "Waste of Daylight," in 1907.

Bates says while he reminds people to set their clocks back and suggests how to do it properly, he sometimes forgets to set his own. "I'm not the compulsive type," he said.

"One of the key things is the fringe benefit package and the archdiocese's unwillingness to even consider improving it," says East Catholic religion teacher Robert LaRochelle. At issue are pension, medical and dental plans, as well as tuition abatement for faculty offspring.

"To a certain degree, it's a matter of principle," Dickau concedes. "There's not a great deal of difference between the two proposals, but some teachers feel the negotiating team may have under-sold our needs."

A state mediator has recessed contract talks until he feels further progress is possible. Binding arbitration is worth fighting over, since it's compounded over three years. Allegedly poor benefit offers also have them balking.
