Reagan stand may hurt aid to Salvador

By Robert Shepard
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Congressional approval of military aid to El Salvador may be threatened by President Reagan's refusal to condition arms shipments and the stationing of U.S. advisers on progress in human rights.

Key members of Congress, stunned by Reagan's veto of the link, said they would seek to reimpose the law next year or shut off U.S. aid to the Central American nation.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill termed the veto a "tragic error" and Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, said, "I am concerned that this veto sends a confusing signal to El Salvador just at a time when we are trying to send a strong, clear signal that political violence must cease."

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he will try to block any further U.S. military aid to El Salvador next year until a new human rights law is passed to replace the one Reagan killed.

Reagan Wednesday vetoed a bill that would have required him to report on El Salvador's treatment of its citizens every six months. Under the law, adopted in 1981, the reports were required as a condition for continued U.S. aid.

Secretary of State George Shultz, speaking to the Congress July 20, said El Salvador's human rights record met the legal requirements but "falls short of the broad and sustained progress" sought by Congress and the administration.

Shultz told reporters at a breakfast meeting Thursday he "agonized" over the last report because certification was a "close question."

He said, "If I had to do one by mid-January, it would be very difficult to sign a certification."

Reagan said the congressional requirement hampered his efforts to improve the human rights situation in El Salvador.

O'Neill said, "I simply do not understand why the president would do this at a time when right-wing death squads are brutally murdering innocent Salvadorans despite the warnings of our own ambassador there."

Percy, R-Ill., noting the old law "had the strong support of Congress," said he expects new bills will be introduced when Congress reconvenes next year.

The certification represented "an agreement between the United States and the Salvadoran government that we can provide support to El Salvador if they pursue certain economic, political and humanitarian goals," Percy said.

Dodd, a sponsor of the original certification law, said "it could have been worse" without the pressure of the reports.

"Until certification language once again is law, I will take whatever steps are necessary to block any supplemental aid requests for El Salvador," he said.

Five groups dealing with civil liberties and human rights announced Thursday they will prepare their own "certification report" on El Salvador to replace the one the administration will not do.

Soviets still cold on talks

By Louise Branson
United Press International

MOSCOW — The Kremlin warned President Reagan and other NATO leaders Friday not to expect Soviet negotiators to return quickly to the suspended talks in Geneva on medium-range nuclear missile deployment in Europe.

Official Soviet media also reiterated warnings by ailing Soviet President Yuri Andropov of countermeasures in response to the impending deployment of new medium-range NATO missiles in western Europe.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry said a rare news conference would be held Monday for Western reporters, with Marshal Nikolai Ogarkov and Deputy Foreign Minister Georgi Kornienko spelling out the Soviet stand on missile deployment.

The media reports contained warnings to the West that it was being overconfident about the future in the aftermath of the breakdown of the Geneva talks on reducing medium-range missiles in Europe.

"There is a concerted effort in the West to present the breakdown of the Geneva talks on limiting nuclear weapons in Europe as an occurrence of little consequence," the Novosti news agency said.

But the breakdown of the Geneva talks should be seen as a serious setback to limit and reduce nuclear arms.

Despite the Soviet warnings, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger predicted the Soviet Union would resume the suspended Geneva talks on medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe "in some months."

Weinberger, addressing the Novosti news agency said, "Please turn to page 10"

Judge says PZC acted improperly

By Alex Grelli
Herald Reporter

THE DECISION held that Burkamp, as the owner of property in the Downtown Taxing District, does have the right to seek the special exception and to use parking spaces in the town-owned lot to meet the requirements of the exception.

Burkamp, who learned of the decision Friday afternoon, said he will hire a traffic consultant to testify to the commission.

At the moment no restaurant is planned for Burkamp's mall. Originally he had negotiated with Playpen Restaurant to lease the space, but Playpen apparently has lost interest in the mall.

THE SPECIAL EXCEPTION was granted by the commission in January and was appealed to the court by a group of neighboring business persons.

The decision also says the record of the hearing shows no evidence of the effect on traffic of the establishment of a restaurant in the building.

She said that the record in fact suggests at least the possibility of intermittent traffic congestion.

The decision also says the record of the hearing shows no evidence relevant to "conditions necessary to protect the public health, safety, convenience and property values"

And the commission failed to state on the record the reasons for its decision, also required by the statutes.

The decision concludes that the commission's approval cannot stand on the existing record.

A restaurant of the size planned by Burkamp needs 150 parking spaces under the regulations. Burkamp propose to satisfy that requirement with the spaces in the 322-space town lot.

The decision says that "with the appropriate traffic report, the commission may well conclude, as implied by the defendant Burkamp, that any inconvenience caused by the infusion of 150 more cars into the area during peak daytime and shopping-night hours will be more than offset by the overall advantages to the community from the proposed use."

It also says the commission might deny an exception requiring 300 of the 322 spaces. Thus the commission must have an adequate traffic report to determine if the use of 250 of the adjoining 322 spaces should be approved, the decision concludes.

A use that needs more than 60 parking spaces under the terms of the regulations requires a special exception. Restaurants have to have one parking space for each 25

Ike Kleinschmidt misses the limelight

By James P. Socks Herald Reporter

It's been less than two weeks since the Board of Directors began meeting without Arnold M. Kleinschmidt, but "Ike," as he's known to his friends and former constituents, already misses his place among Manchester's top decision-makers.

PLACE on the Democratic ticket, and ultimately the board, was taken by former Board of Education member Eleanor Coltan, says he misses being a director in spite of the amount of work it took. He decided to step down when Cheney Brothers refused to give him sufficient time off from work for the election. He announced the decision at a meeting of the Democratic Town Committee last fall.

Former town Director Arnold M. "Ike" Kleinschmidt already has regrets about his decision to step down from the board before the November election. But he says he looks back on his four-year career on the board with satisfaction.

LIKE MANY OTHER Manchester Democrats, Kleinschmidt, when asked about politics, would rather discuss accomplishments than the mechanics of the political process. His one gripe is that he thinks the town and Eighth District fire departments could cooperate better.

COMPARED to the generally white-collar board members, Kleinschmidt is a real estate broker who is also regional director for the Friendship Force - Kleinschmidt said he and Fogarty used to "kind of agonize over one mill, or even a half or a quarter mill" in added taxes.

The body of Sheikh Halim Takiyeddine, 61, lies in state in the House of Druze as women visitors shake hands with the widow Adele Hamdan (far left) and other immediate family members.

Sheikh Takiyeddine was assassinated on Thursday by a lone gunman with a pistol.

Angry Druze militiamen vow they'll get revenge

By Hugh Papp
United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Druze Muslim militiamen vowed Friday at the funeral of a slain religious leader to inflict revenge for his death as stores, banks and schools shut down in Muslim west Beirut to mourn the assassinated sheikh.

In the northern city of Tripoli, rival Palestinians exchanged rockets and shellfire in the worst violation of the week-old cease-fire between the forces of guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat and Syrian-backed rebels.

About 5,000 people attended the West Beirut service for the Druze Sheikh Halim Takiyeddine. Youthful saluted absent Druze militia chief Walid Jumblatt with the chant, "We will follow you with our blood, O' Walid."

Fuad Salman, speaking for Jumblatt, said, "We will break the arm of those who have taken the decision to eliminate us. The honored sheikh will not be the last martyr but our arm is strong and can hit anywhere."

The government released no details of investigations into Thursday's murder of Takiyeddine, president of the Druze Supreme Religious Council.

Druze guns regularly kept the capital and, although largely silent Friday, kept the Beirut airport closed for a third straight day.

Palestinian rebels in the hillside Beddawi refugee camp and on Mount Turbul east of Tripoli started a "fierce hammering" of Arafat's only escape route — the port area — in the evening, witnesses said.

"Shells and rockets, unleashed from the hills, are whistling and crashing into the port at a rate of one or two shells a minute," one witness said.

He said the rebels were using Soviet supplied Grad rockets on the port area, but that Arafat's men returned the shelling. Clashes were also reported along the demarcation line east and northeast of Tripoli.

The shelling Friday night was the worst since Saudi Arabia and Syria arranged a cease-fire in the Palestinian civil war last Friday.

Negotiations to withdraw Arafat's men and the rebels from the Tripoli area have dragged on since then, raising fears that the cease-fire would collapse.

The International Red Cross had been working under strict secrecy for days on a plan to evacuate some of Arafat's wounded men by sea, but continued violations of the cease-fire scuttled the plan.

Mrs. Smith's days are numbered in Washington

By United Press International

WASHINGTON — White House counselor Edwin Meese today denied there was any discussion or agreement on potential appointments to the reconstructed U.S. Civil Rights Commission.

The statement appeared to confirm reports the White House plans to drop moderate Republican Mary Louise Smith from the commission for failure to back Reagan's civil rights philosophy.

Meese was asked about reports that there had been a tacit agreement that all commission members who had served less than six years — including Mrs. Smith — would get seats on new commission.

The former commissioner had six members. Legislation signed by Reagan enlarges the panel to eight members with four appointed by Reagan and four appointed by Congress.

"At no time during the negotiations on the restructured commission was there any discussion or agreement as to particular personalities and individuals," Meese said. "There has never been any agreement whatsoever as to appointing any individual."

His statement conflicts with accounts of key senators and civil rights leaders who insist there was an unwritten commitment that Reagan would reappoint Mrs. Smith, who was named to the panel last year.

Meese said that Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., spoke to him today and agreed with Meese that no commitments were made by the White House.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes also told reporters, "there were no deals made. The president has not made final decisions."

Meese said that Reagan has made only one appointment to the commission — Clarence Pendleton, who was chairman of the old commission. He also appointed Linda Chavez as executive director.

He said he expects Reagan to announce his remaining quota of appointments early next week.

Meese declines to confirm a Washington Post report that the president will name two of the people he nominated last March — New York lawyer Morris Abram and John Buznet, president of San Jose State University, saving one seat for a minority, possibly Hispanic, appointment.

Earlier this week Reagan signed into law a compromise to save the agency from extinction.

Chloride may hurt, too

WASHINGTON — For years people have believed the sodium in sodium chloride — common table salt — was one of the culprits in high blood pressure, but scientists now say the chloride may be just as much to blame.

Two California doctors reported Thursday they found a normal amount of dietary sodium chloride induced high blood pressure in a group of lab rats, while other equal amounts of sodium ascorbate, a common preservative, and sodium bicarbonate, baking soda and the ingredient of some antacids, did not.

The scientists said their study, reported in Science magazine, showed other sodium compounds, such as baking soda or antacids, may not be as important as salt in causing the high blood pressure, which affects about 37 million Americans.

WASHINGTON — Negotiators for Greyhound bus lines and 12,700 striking workers held secret bargaining Friday with the government's top mediator in an effort to end the 30-day nationwide walkout.

Officials of the nation's largest bus line flew to the nation's capital at the urging of chief federal mediator Kay McMurray, but the company said in a statement issued from its Phoenix, Ariz., headquarters it was "not optimistic" about an early settlement.

The development was the most significant move by the corporation since rank-and-file workers rejected a Greyhound demand for a wage cut Nov. 28.

The negotiators were reportedly at a motel near one of Washington's three airports, but the exact whereabouts was kept secret. It was not known whether the two sides were meeting face to face or if McMurray was acting as a go-between.

"We have no comment," said a spokeswoman for the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

Co-ed is U.Mass arsonist

AMHERST, Mass. — A chemistry major from Philadelphia who was in charge of her dormitory floor was arrested Friday and charged with setting one of the 30 fires set this fall at the University of Massachusetts.

Authorities arrested Yvette I. Henry, 20, a resident assistant at the all-women's Crampton Hall dormitory, about 8 p.m.

Authorities said they obtained crucial information on the suspect earlier in the evening, when they intentionally struck a false alarm and cleared out the dormitory to conduct an administrative search.

MINIT-MAN PRINTING
423 Center Street Manchester
Low Cost Printing Is Only MINITS away at Your MINIT-MAN Printing

We started our business in 1970 as the first quick print and copy center in Manchester, because of our specialized high speed equipment, we are able to print from your photo ready copy in just a matter of minutes. We also have a valuable new 3-M Bond Copier which makes beautiful copies on bond paper. We can also do flyers, letters, business cards, index cards, envelopes, postcards, tag tickets, rubber stamps and engraved name plates and pins of all sizes within a reasonable time, at very economical prices. We are open 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday; Saturdays 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Our facilities also include punching, padding, stitching, cutting, collating and folding. We are located at 423 Center Street, across from Willie's. For any information, please phone 646-1777.

Nine are charged with drunk driving

Police charged the following with drunk driving this week: Dennis Gorman, 34, of East Hartford, was arrested Wednesday and charged with driving an unregistered motor vehicle. James E. Smyth of 42 Knight St. was arrested Wednesday. Vernon resident William Keve, 19, arrested Wednesday, also faces a charge of driving with his license suspended.

Talking peace In a small town in Nicaragua, a woman and her child attend a ceremony during which Sandinista officials announced an amnesty for Miskitos in jail and in arms against the government. The woman is a relative of a jailed Miskito.

Judge: PZC erred on Mall square feet of "customer service and assembly" space. THE APPELLANTS, represented by the law firm of Beck and Pagan, claim they will be hurt by the infusion of 150 added cars in the area and the usurpation of a disproportionate number of parking spaces from the town lot with a capacity of 322 spaces that adjoins the mall.

Nickel supply is low

After reading the newspaper, I've made some notes: Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the basketball player, has scored 30,000 points in his professional career, according to an item in the sports pages. Something's wrong with a game in which a player can score 30,000 points. This is inflation at its worst.

Manchester's Neal Kearney He's a Patriots cheerleader

Six years ago Neal Kearney of 28 Flint Drive rooted for the Baltimore Colts. After all, Kearney's cousin is former Colts running back Lydell Mitchell. Today, though, Kearney cheers for a different team. And he doesn't just do it sitting in front of the tube on Sunday afternoons, sipping a beer.

Neal Kearney (inset photo) is a cheerleader for the New England Patriots. The Manchester High School graduate heads the team's gymnastic squad.

Don't knock Saturday afternoons

It is Saturday afternoon, and the living room floor is littered with the remains of two weeks of newspapers and 4,000 peanut shells. The cat, in disgust, has relocated to another room.

Winter storm cuts power, ices highways

By United Press International

A winter storm dumping rain, sleet, snow and freezing rain on Connecticut was blamed for loss of power to about 2,000 Danbury-area residents and may have caused a fatal one-car accident on Avon Mountain in Avon.

(Police reported no major accidents in town as the result of the storm.)

Scattered power outages were reported as the storm blew into the southeastern part of the state Sunday. More than 2,000 customers in Newtown and 700 in Bloomfield and Windsor lost power for several hours. A Northeast Utilities spokeswoman said. The power was restored by 3:30 p.m.

Mary Meyer, 58, of Avon, was killed as she was driving down Avon Mountain on Route 44 about 4 p.m. Sunday, said Avon police. Ms. Meyer lost control of her car and it struck a telephone pole, said Sgt. Richard Kolb. She was pronounced dead at the scene.

Kolb said driving conditions in the area were poor due to rain and snow but the cause of the accident had not been determined. Route 44 was closed on both sides of Avon Mountain for an hour while police removed the car.

Slippery conditions were blamed for a two-car collision on Route 185 on Talcott Mountain in Simsbury that sent one driver to the intensive care unit of St. Francis Hospital and forced that road closed for an hour.

A car slid across the center of the road at the bottom of the mountain and collided with one driven by Donald Lash, 56, of West Hartford, who was reported in critical but stable condition today after undergoing surgery at St. Francis Hospital.

The other driver, John Orzech, 20, of West Simsbury, was treated and released from St. Francis. Police closed Route 185 on both sides of the mountain for an hour while the accident was cleared up.

A National Weather Service travelers advisory remained in effect for inland Connecticut Sunday evening as the mixture of rain, sleet, snow and freezing rain continued over much of the state.

Precipitation was reported light in most areas. The weather service said there was a slushy layer of snow over some roadways and advised motorists to drive cautiously. The weather service warned falling temperatures would create icy spots overnight.

Connecticut state police reported no major accidents. A state police spokesman said there were "a lot of minor fender benders." State police urged residents to stay home.

Up to two inches of snow fell on most of the north central and northwest parts of the state.

Skiers in northern New England enjoyed several inches of snow on already white slopes and plows lumbered out of garages in western Massachusetts for the first time this season as up to 12 inches of snow fell in the region.

At Mt. Snow and Killington ski areas in Vermont, six to eight inches of new snow was reported and officials said the season was off to a good start.

"It's a real gift to the skiers," said Tom Meyers of Mt. Snow, which opened Nov. 14.

Marines dead because they left bunkers

By Cathy Booth United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — U.S. officials today said the eight Marines killed at the Beirut airport Sunday charged out of their protected bunkers into a frontline fighting position without authorization in the fiercest fighting since U.S. troops arrived in Lebanon 15 months ago.

The Marines were on their highest alert today, braced for renewed attacks from Syrian-backed rebels who shot down two U.S. Navy jets and killed the eight Marines in Sunday's fighting. Two crewmen were captured behind Syrian lines when their plane was shot down. One of the crewmen, Lt. Mark Lange, died of his injuries, his family said, and the other, Lt. Robert Goodman, was captured by the Syrians.

In predominantly Moslem west Beirut, a car packed with 330 pounds of TNT exploded in the garage of an eight-story apartment house today, igniting a fire that spread through a city block. Police said the bombing left at least 14 people dead and wounded 84.

The eight slain Marines and two fellow wounded soldiers were manning a position southeast of the airport runway when they came under an intensive three-hour barrage of 23mm anti-aircraft flak and mortar rounds Sunday night.

"Ten good young men moved out of their protective bunkers and into a fighting position. They felt it was the thing to do. I wish now they hadn't," said Lt. Col. Ray Smith.

"Nobody above their squad leader — and I don't think even their squad leader himself — told them to man the fighting position. I certainly don't fault them for doing it."

The fighters struck Syrian anti-aircraft batteries east of Beirut. The attack, personally authorized by President Reagan, was the first against Syrian positions in Lebanon.

Shortly after the airstrikes, gunners in the hills east of the capital retaliated by blasting Marine positions around the Beirut airport for 4½ hours with heavy artillery, rocket and mortar fire.

Smith said the volume of 23mm anti-aircraft flak Sunday night was "a bit of a surprise," but officials believe the eight Marines were killed by a 120mm mortar round.

Marine gunners responded with M-60 tanks and with the 5-inch guns on the USS Ricketts, a guided missile destroyer off shore. The idea of using the monstrous 16-inch guns of the New Jersey was considered but ruled out, Smith said.

Shortly after dawn today Marine spokesman Capt. Wayne Jones, said the Marines were in bunkers on their highest condition one alert.

"Looks like we will keep it that way for a while," Jones said.

In an apparently unrelated development, a car bomb exploded in the Moslem Treek al Jedida neighborhood during rush hour, ripping off the front of the eight-story apartment building, collapsing a three-story building nearby, and igniting fires that spread through a city block.

Witnesses said schoolchildren were among the hundreds of people caught by the 8:04 a.m. 11:04 a.m. EST blast and trapped for hours behind a screen of fire that spread up the front of buildings. Many people burned to death, police said.

ry phone caller to a news agency said the bomb had been set by the Front for the Liberation of Lebanon from Foreigners, an anonymous group that has claimed responsibility for many attacks in recent years. But there was no way to verify the claim.

Trustees give him 'stay'

By James P. Sacks Herald Reporter

A Patriot Lane resident is organizing a drive to save the covered bridge that runs over Porter Brook in the Oak Grove Nature Center. The bridge has been closed and is in danger of being torn down because it has structural problems.

Alex H. Krajevski, of 79 Patriot Lane, said today that last Thursday he won a "stay of execution" for the bridge from the executive board of the Lutz Children's Museum. Members of the museum board, which leases the nature center property from the town, had decided to tear down the bridge on Saturday.

Mrs. Flint said the board had closed the bridge about a month ago because it was concerned that someone could get hurt on it.

While Lutz board members would like to see the bridge saved, Mrs. Flint said, "Our concern is that it's a safety hazard." She said the museum was in the process of raising funds for other purposes and could not simultaneously sponsor a drive to save the bridge.

"We very much think it's an asset to the nature center," Mrs. Flint said of the bridge. "There's a lot of sentiment in the community for saving it, as well there should be."

KRAJEWSKI has already raised $250, he said, and his "guestimates" that repairs would be between $1,000 and $1,500. He said

Resident hopes to save covered bridge from demolition if that cost estimate is close to accurate he is prepared to devote enough time to the project to try to raise the funds.

Once the structure is sound, he said, he and other "weekend carpenters" would perform other needed repairs at no cost.

Krajevski said he has spoken to between 20 and 30 people who want to save the bridge.

Responsibility for injuries on the bridge, Mrs. Flint said, is a "real grey area," though it is insured by the museum. "But it's certainly not something anyone wants to test," she said.

Town General Manager Robert B. Weiss said as far as the town is concerned, injuries would be the responsibility of the museum, which has leased the property since the 1960s.

Asked if he thought the project could succeed, Krajevski said that saving the bridge hasn't been a priority with the museum trustees because, understandably, they concentrate on education programs.

"Their priorities have to be in teaching," he said. But, he said, "there are people who are interested in the bridge and don't care about the Lutz, and vice versa."

The nature center property lies between Highland Street and Oak Grove Street in the southeast section of Manchester.
