Street vendors earn money, evade taxes

While strolling in a wealthy residential area of Manhattan recently, I overheard a conversation between two well-dressed men, in which one told his companion that the police had just fined him $250 for working as an unlicensed street vendor.

Your Money's Worth Sylvia Porter

AND YES. — have I been wrong? Here in New York City, a street vendor can easily earn $200 each day, or about $44,000 by working 220 days a year. That amount should be subject to city and state sales taxes; assuming a profit of 50 percent (about average), that $22,000 also is subject to some income taxation.

IN CITIES across the nation, business owners and residents indicate they are becoming antagonistic toward street vendors. Initially welcomed as lively storefronts to draw and despoiled downtown areas, vendors are discovering the welcome mat is being

THE IDEA BEHIND crackdown efforts is not to eradicate peddlers there always will be some illegal, or unlicensed or unlicensed vendors along with those legal, licensed and welcome. The idea is to make it increasingly risky and costly to operate. To achieve that goal, cities...

Fixed-rate loans could hurt region's S&Ls

By Steven W. Svrce United Press International

BOSTON — Savings and loan associations were able to start climbing out of a big hole when interest rates subsided, but some people worry New England S-and-Ls may be digging themselves a new pit.

Those results alone don't spell trouble. But combined with the study's finding that 60 percent of the S-and-Ls were writing the fixed-rate mortgages for their own portfolios, as opposed to selling for a secondary market — creates the anxiety.

Jets' collision in Madrid fog kills over 100

By Dianne Klein United Press International

MADRID, Spain — An Iberia Boeing 727 speeding down a runway in blinding fog at Madrid's airport today slammed into another jet and both planes burst into flames, killing more than 100 people, authorities said.

Officials said the Iberia jet, which had been shut down for incoming flights before the crash, Lopez Barranco said because of the thick fog he did not see the DC-9 in his path "until it was too late."

Fundamentalist schools give state authorities a headache

By Vince Stricherz
United Press International

Rev. Everett Silven stood on the steps of the Cass County, Neb., jail, where he had just completed a four-month sentence, and asked God's help in killing his adversaries.

Silven, the five-and-a-half-time pastor of Faith Baptist Church and director of Faith Christian School in Louisville, Neb., had served the sentence for contempt of court. He was found in contempt for disobeying a court order that his school comply with state education standards, or close.

"I do ask in the authoritative name of Jesus ... that God Almighty bind the officials of the state of Nebraska and Cass County from further interference with the work of God at Faith Baptist Church ... by converting or eliminating state regulation for church schools. Other states are searching for a middle ground where the state can claim some semblance of regulation while not threatening school officials.

SILVEN'S CASE is perhaps the most publicized. But there are many similar to it in the nation's heartland. Unaccredited fundamentalist schools are mounting court challenges to state laws which they see as an extension of their churches, is unconstitutional, they say.

Some states, citing a mandate to educate children, maintain they have the right to regulate religious schools as well as public education and to demand the same standards of teaching in both. Some have circumvented the issue by minimizing or eliminating state regulation for church schools. Other states are searching for a middle

One Nebraska school found the answer was to move across the state line to South Dakota, where regulations are fewer.

The South Dakota Legislature last year approved a measure requiring church schools to have their teachers reviewed and approved by the state. Attempts at more stringent rules were thwarted.

IN NEIGHBORING IOWA, an agreement was reached so that parents in the Suburban Heights Baptist Church in Fairfield would provide information to the state's right to regulate private church schools. The U.S. Supreme Court refused to consider the issue.

The Nebraska Board of Education has decided to accept minimum reports from parents as a means of determining the children at least are in a school. The reports do not preclude counties from prosecuting schools for noncompliance.

But the state has said it plans periodic visits to two Amish schools that had extremely low test scores and were more than two years below the average grade level of public school students.

An appeals court test is expected early next year in a similar donnybrook in Michigan, where a 1921 law the state has no right to require that church schools use certified teachers or offer courses of study comparable to those in public schools.

Bungalow comes from the Hindustani "bungla" meaning "of or belonging to Bengal."

Resolutions by directors honor Weiss and MACC

Town General Manager Robert B. Weiss and the Manchester Area Conference of Churches were honored last by the Board of Directors.

In a resolution the board acknowledged Weiss's 33 years in government. He recently received a 35-year service award from the International City Management Association.

Mayor Barbara B. Weinberg said the board is glad that Weiss has served so many of those years (18) in Manchester. Weiss said he has served with scores of elected and appointed officials over the years. "That's what has made this an enjoyable career for me."

The resolution honoring the MACC was presented to Nancy Carr, its executive director.

It listed the projects carried out by the MACC and lauded the work of its small staff and the hundreds of volunteers who serve.

On a less pleasant note, Mrs. Weinberg suggested Weiss watch closely for introduction of state legislation that would force towns with remaining landfill capacity to share it with towns that do not have any landfill room for disposal of trash.

Directors urged to save bridge

By Anne Corliff
Herald Reporter

Lee McCray of 280 E. Middle Turnpike, who was president of the Manchester Jaycees when that group built the covered bridge in Oak Grove Nature Center in the late 1960s, called on the Board of Directors Tuesday night to save the bridge from being destroyed.

McCray said he is appalled that the bridge was allowed to deteriorate to its present state.

It was to have been demolished Saturday until a resident of the area, Alex H. Krajewski of 79 Patriot Lane, intervened and won a stay of execution for the structure.

It is on land owned by the town and leased to Lutz Children's Museum, which operates the Oak Grove Nature Center.

Krajewski was given until next Wednesday to come up with a plan to save the bridge. He said this morning he's already collected more than $300 to repair the structure and has been promised more.

McCray argued Tuesday that the bridge is on town land and thus belongs to the town.

He said it is the first covered bridge in the country to have been built in the century and is considered an authentic covered bridge. He said it was constructed using old methods.

He said the bridge involved contributions from businesses and the work of a lot of volunteers.

"How did it get into that condition?" he asked. "How about the rest of the facilities in the center?"

"We must save the bridge," he told the directors.

The bridge has been vandalized over the years and it has developed structural problems as well. It now leans badly and was closed about a month ago by the Lutz

Charter Oak fuel depot ruled out

There will be no town fuel depot at the park garage to be located on Charter Oak Street, the town administration was told by the Board of Directors Tuesday night.

Majority Leader Stephen T. Penny told General Manager Robert B. Weiss there is a consensus among the majority to preclude Charter Oak as a possible site for a general fuel supply. He said he did not anticipate that consensus can be changed. He said the board might consider a small fuel supply for use by the small vehicles used by the Park Department.

The objection to the site is that there are water wells there and it is over an aquifer that would be in danger of being polluted if there were a fuel spill.

The tanks can be shielded but there is some risk of pollution, apparently enough risk to convince the directors the depot can't go there.

Penny told Weiss and Public Works Director George A. Kandra they must explore other alternatives.

One such alternative considered is putting the depot at the police station, where some fuel is already stored. That idea has brought objections from some people who fear it will be a hazard too close to the Iling Junior High School.

ALSO TABLED was consideration of revised rules for sanitary-sewer service. The board wants to hold a workshop on the rules before acting.

Kandra explained that the revisions are the last remaining requirement the town must meet to collect the final 10 percent of federal money for improvements to the sewer system.

That money paid for 90 percent of such work as a $2.5 million trunk sewer.

Weiss said the town has already replaced a graduated rate for sewer service with a flat rate to satisfy those requirements.

The directors approved a changed method of financing the $218,000 the town is spending to correct low water pressure some residents experienced when the distribution system was revamped.

The town will issue one-year non-renewable notes.

Gala dance for Yves

More than 50 women wore Yves Saint Laurent gowns to the $300-a-ticket dinner dance opening the designer's show at the Metropolitan Museum's Costume Institute Monday night in New York. One who didn't was Linda Gray in "Dallas," who clicked with the paparazzi in a Bob Mackie gown that plunged to the waist both before and aft. Miss Gray was almost upstaged by such international beauties as the Vietnamese Ribes, Catherine Deneuve, Cristina DeLaRosa, Mariel Hemingway, Nancy Kissinger, Helene Roccas, Marie-Helene de Rothschild, and LouLou Pichoux, Olimpia de Rothschild and LouLou Klossowski, Saint Laurent's assistant. More than 800 of the beautiful ones dined on scallops, cold beef wrapped in veal and chocolate cake. They toasted Yves in champagne, danced to two orchestras and kissed Diana Vreeland, who organized the show.

More anchorwomen

Diane Sawyer, co-anchor of the CBS Morning News, predicts that one of the three major TV evening news will have a woman anchoring the evening news within five years. Asked where she will fit in the picture, she told a luncheon sponsored by the Pittsburgh Communications Foundation, "I may be blonde but I'm not dumb - I'm not going to go near that question. I don't know." Miss Sawyer said that in the past there had not been "a pool of women to draw from" for the job. She said the current crop of TV newswomen includes "some incredibly good reporters," naming Leslie Stahl and Susan Spencer (both CBS) and Connie Chung (NBC). In fact, there already has been a woman co-anchor of the evening news. Ask Harry Reasoner. Her name was Barbara Walters.

The most overrated

This is the age of junk, according to Rolling Stone magazine, and in its special Dec. 22-Jan. 5 edition it has named the 68 most overrated people in America. Some of the names are bound to get people mad; others will have readers nodding agreement. The first three on the list are Johnny Carson, Barbara Walters and Bill Cosby. Following among the overrated are Mary Tyler Moore, Alan Alda, Liza Minnelli, Gloria Steinem, Halston, Bert Reynolds, Luciano Pavarotti, John Travolta, Jeanne Kirkpatrick, Zubin Mehta, Carl Sagan, Bob Hope and Henry Kissinger. The list includes all three network evening news anchors - Dan Rather, Tom Brokaw and Peter Jennings. But the one that really hurts - how could they have included Garfield the cat?

NAACP image awards

Rosa Parks, who refused to go to the back of a Birmingham, Ala., bus in 1954 and sparked the boycott led by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., presented Coretta Scott King with the Humanitarian Award last weekend at the 16th Annual NAACP Image Awards at the Hollywood Palladium. "I accept this award on behalf of all the people who worked for the Martin Luther King Day holiday," Mrs. King said. TV producer Aaron Spelling received an award for his $100,000 gift to Derrick Gordon of Los Angeles, who needed money for a heart transplant operation. Michael Jackson, who didn't attend the ceremony, shared the Entertainer of the Decade Award. Jones said, "I can't think of a better 50th birthday present than something like this to me and Michael."

Quote of the day

Al Pacino, currently starring in the deadly serious film "Scarface," started out as a clown. That's what he told David Hartman in a 40-minute interview to air Thursday and Friday on ABC's "Good Morning America." Responding to Hartman's surprise, Pacino said: "Well, that's what I did the first part of my life, you know. I did only comedy. I wrote my own reviews and things. I directed them and I put them on." He added: "It's sort of saved my life at the time because I was, I guess, so depressed. It makes good therapy, you know, to do things that are funny. I'm always fascinated by funny people. I think it's interesting to be around them, too, and watch how they cope."

Tickets were cheaper than

SPRINGFIELD, Ore. - A quarter-century after receiving a $1 parking ticket, a woman paid off the fine.

A dollar and a tattered 1958 Springfield parking ticket arrived at the police station Monday, without a letter or explanation.

The woman, who asked not to be identified, said later in an interview the ticket had been tucked away in a drawer for 25 years. "I just thought (paying the fine) was the right thing to do, the honest thing to do," she said.

Springfield City Prosecutor John Fusser said the city won't try to calculate or collect 25 years of interest on the $1 fine.

"I can guarantee you that the city of Springfield is more than happy to take the dollar and close the case," he said.

Deferred levy proposal tabled for public hearing

Consideration of action that would permit the town to defer assessments for developers who rehabilitate buildings in the Cheney Historic District was postponed Tuesday night by the Board of Directors.

It came under heavy fire from one citizen, J. Russell Smyth.

The matter was postponed because a public hearing will have to be held in the near future. Early indications are that the directors are divided on whether to permit the deferred assessments, with a majority of them in favor.

Smyth said that when the townspeople approved a $730,000 referendum for public improvements to the area, the town provided enough incentive to the developers.

"If they can't make enough money on the deal, they should get out," Smyth said.

Almanac

Today is Wednesday, December 7th, the 341st day of 1983 with 24 to follow.

The moon is moving toward its first quarter.

The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius. They include novelist Willa Cather in 1876, actor Eli Wallach in 1915, linguist Noam Chomsky in 1928, and actor Ted Knight in 1923.

On this date in history:

In 1787, Delaware became the first state to ratify the United States Constitution.

In 1877, Thomas A. Edison demonstrated his new invention, the first device for accurate reproduction of sound, which he dubbed the gramophone.

In 1931, President Herbert Hoover refused to see a group of "hunger marchers" at the White House.

In 1941, Japan launched a sneak attack on the United States at Pearl Harbor in Hawaii, killing 2,400 people and all but destroying America's Pacific Fleet. Simultaneously, the Japanese attacked the Philippines and other islands.

A thought for the day: President Franklin D. Roosevelt said, "I have seen war. I hate war."

OPINION

Richard M. Diamond, Publisher,
Dan Fitts, Editor

Alsop's waging a lonely campaign

John Alsop of Avon sees himself as a lonely little petunia in an onion patch of Republican politics just now.

Alsop is on a self-assigned campaign to save his party from what he deeply believes would be a bad mistake if it takes Lowell Weicker's advice and opens its primaries to unaffiliated voters.

That pits Alsop, who says this would weaken the party, against Weicker, who says it is a sure way to make the party formidable.

It has Alsop, an elder statesman with nothing to gain personally, challenging Weicker, the current strong man of the party in Connecticut.

THIS CONFRONTATION also has Weicker, a potential candidate for governor in 1986, arguing for practical arithmetic against Alsop's fear for long-range consequences if the GOP dilutes its bloodstream this way.

Ironically, the issue also finds Alsop, a clubhouse politician in a very clubby political organization, in unaccustomed isolation from the GOP mainstream and opposing Weicker, the textbook maverick who is now

Capitol Comments

Bob Conrad
Syndicated Columnist

leading the organizational charge.

Weicker, a United States senator who moved back to Greenwich this year after brief residence in Mystic, likes to cite voter figures. Democrats have a wide lead in registration, something in the range of 600,000-plus to 400,000-plus for the Republicans.

The total of unaffiliates is more than 500,000, as the hungry GOP knows.

So the question facing Republicans when they convene in Hartford in about five weeks is whether to change party rules — as Weicker suggests — to let these unaffiliated voters take part in their primaries.

Alsop isn't waiting until then. He is on tour, taking his pleading to Republicans around the state.

describes as a false sense of urgency about the plan. He sees no reason why it could not be given more time, and perhaps considered in 1985. He says the issue is too serious to let the party be swept along hastily.

Alsop, the GOP national committeeman from Connecticut and candidate for governor in 1982, says the proposal is illegal anyway because state law prohibits so-called independents from voting in partisan primaries.

He contends that allowing unaffiliated voters this privilege would weaken the two-party system and take away, as he said in a five-page letter to party wheels, "the only reason there is to belong" to a party. That's no way to strengthen the GOP, says this veteran of 37 years in politics.

Alsop sees a moment of truth facing his party if the January convention votes to change its rules. The Democratic-controlled legislature won't accommodate the GOP by modifying election laws, Alsop says with an air of confidence. So that will leave it up to the Republicans whether they want to take their case to court. That would be expensive, he says.

AS FOR the concept generally, Alsop points out that Democrats have operated under the same restrictions on unaffiliated voters and they have done rather well.

He credits the late Democratic boss, John M. Bailey, with bringing his party to dominate by other means.

Alsop says he isn't trying to start any sort of vendetta by his crusade to block the Weicker plan. He simply sees it as a shortsighted blunder.

The only reasons Alsop can offer for going along, as most of the GOP leadership is doing, could be these:

One is the desperation argument — the line that nothing seems to be working for the GOP so it should try anything to reverse its losing record at the polls.

The other is what Alsop calls the "embarrassment" factor — sparing the big guys from Weicker on down the embarrassment of seeing their project defeated at the special state convention next month.

But for John Alsop, the lone voice of resistance, the Weicker plan would be worse in the long run. (Syndicated by The Herald of New Britain.)

Oil dam is ready to break

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has a dramatic opportunity to heal the economy and inaugurate a new era of prosperity. All he has to do is drive down the price of oil.

In an earlier column, I warned that the cost of crude could soar to new altitudes. A flare-up in the volatile Persian Gulf region could create another oil panic, which is all the OPEC extortionists need to inflict the next price gouge upon the world.

Yet Reagan can force the price of oil down by the skillful use of U.S. power. The timing is right to create another oil panic, which is all the OPEC extortionists need to inflict the next price gouge upon the world.

There is an ocean of oil behind the dam — enough to supply the world's anticipated needs well into the 21st century. This is oil that has already been discovered, measured and catalogued. It doesn't include the new oil that will be found.

OIL REMAINED CHEAP as long as the United States controlled the oilfields. If the OPEC powers tried to create a shortage in an attempt to jack up prices, the United States merely raised the oilgate enough to keep the storage tanks filled.

The Richard Nixon became president. Through a jumble of blunders, negligence and timidities, he lost control of the oilgate. Thereafter, the United States not only paid whatever OPEC chose to charge but also worked out the credit arrangements by which the more impoverished nations could also pay their oil bills.

Every time the consuming world cut consumption or raised its own oil production, OPEC simply slowed down its pumps to cancel out the increase and preserve a tight market. The Pikes Peak prices made it possible for the oil sheiks to lower production and still collect more billions than they had ever dreamed of.

NOW AT LAST, OPEC's resolve is beginning to crack. Half of the oil-producing countries, anxious for more revenues to keep up with their spending, are secretly selling oil below the OPEC level. Even Saudi Arabia, the bulwark of OPEC, has formed a mysterious marketing company in Switzerland. The company, Norbec Ltd., reportedly is selling Saudi crude on the free market.

This has weakened the price of oil on the "spot market" where oil is sold for immediate delivery. Grudgingly, OPEC has already rolled back its prices to around $29 a barrel. Now the gush of bootleg OPEC oil and non-OPEC oil may cause prices to slide another $4 or $5.

Today, the OPEC ministers are gathering in Geneva to discuss the problem. The radical oil states, led by Iran, are calling for tighter production and higher prices. They are supported behind the scenes by the big oil companies and international banks, which have a vested interest in high prices.

Now is the crucial time for the United States to mobilize the non-OPEC countries and regain control of the oilgate. America has the military power to prevent any disruptions in the oil flow and the economic power to force the price back to earth. We should be talking about $8-a-barrel oil, not $30-a-barrel oil.

Every $1 drop in the price of crude would add at least 0.1 percent to the U.S. gross national product. Yet a reluctant President Reagan has not taken the necessary steps to restore U.S. dominance of the oil-distribution system. He isn't even prepared to cope with another oil crisis, which could rescue OPEC and catapult oil back into orbit.

In Manchester

Lutz showed insensitivity

The way the board of directors of the Lutz Children's Museum handled the Porter Brook bridge issue raises questions.

The bridge, which was closed a month ago because of structural problems, was slated to be torn down last Saturday.

It had been repeatedly vandalized, and was leaning precariously — and the Lutz directors felt the bridge was a hopeless case, and a hazard as well.

Then Alex H. Krajewski of 79 Patriot Lane went to the Lutz directors and asked them to reconsider.

Like many residents in town, Krajewski is unusually attached to the simple wooden bridge. He and his family have walked across it many times. It's a pretty spot and a part of Manchester many treasure.

Krajewski is leading a drive to find volunteer carpenters and funds — maybe $1,500 is needed — to save the bridge. From the sounds of his phone ringing off the hook on Tuesday, it looks as though he'll make it.

A question that must be raised: Why didn't the Lutz board make the same attempt as Krajewski?

Why were the Lutz people going to tear down the bridge without even telling members of the community what they planned to do?

Why wasn't there some kind of effort made to enlist the community's support?

To the museum's credit, members had approached town administrators for help. The town's response was that it was the Lutz's problem, not the town's.

In addition, several years ago there had been a museum committee set up to study the bridge problem. The committee had been told by several builders and a town engineer that repairing the bridge would be beyond the Lutz's limited budget.

Apparently, safety was the museum's main concern in tearing down the bridge. Museum Director Steven Ling said he did not want someone to get injured on the frequently vandalized bridge.

Ling told the Manchester Herald that before all the fuss began, he had feared negative publicity on the bridge's hazardous condition might hurt the museum's general fund drive. He said the museum couldn't afford that kind of harm.

Ling's attitude is understandable. But, in hindsight, it was short-sighted, for the negative publicity generated by the bridge's destruction also might have hurt the fund drive.

Members of the Lutz board have their energies set on the museum's educational projects. It's easy to see how a simple wooden bridge badly in need of repairs could get lost in the shuffle.

But the Lutz directors should have been more sensitive to all the people who built the bridge and cherished it.

Bigots on the warpath with in a particular place," she says.

In some instances, the material is crude and blatant, as in the case of Spotlight, a newspaper published by the Washington-based Liberty Lobby, which during the 1982 campaign carried a story that bluntly proclaimed "Zionists have political control of Nebraska."

On other occasions, however, the appeal is more subtle. In 1982 Sen. James R. Sasser, D-Tenn., was the target of a sophisticated anti-semitic campaign even though neither he nor his opponent was Jewish.

Sasser's opponents distributed literature criticizing the senator's reliance upon "wealthy liberals living in other states" and "big-city money men" for campaign contributions; accompanied by selected lists of donors with unmistakably Jewish surnames.

WITH RELATIONS between Israel and its Arab neighbors a subject of continuing public debate, Mrs. Boron is disturbed by those who ignore the fact that Israel's supporters in this country include many people who are not Jewish.

R-Utah, who cited "the strength of Jewish lobby" as an explanation for the opposition to the sale of military equipment to Saudi Arabia.

Similarly, she rejects the argument of those who insist that they are not prejudiced against Jews, but are opposed to Zionism.

"You cannot deny us the right to our homeland," she says. "You can't be anti-Zionist and not be anti-semitic."

"It's the equivalent of me saying 'I like Catholics, but don't recognize the Pope and I think the Vatican ought to be returned to its rightful owners, the Italians,'" she adds.

THERE ALREADY are unhealthy signs of revived anti-semitism in next year's political campaigns. In Missouri, for example, the prospect of two Jewish politicians running for governor and lieutenant governor on the Democratic ticket has inspired a round of venomous criticism.

In Maryland, Democratic Rep. Clarence D. Long isn't Jewish, but is up for re-election next year and has been a crucial supporter of foreign aid to Israel. Radio commercials are being broadcast in the state characterizing him as "almost un-American in his support of Israel."

The notion that being Jewish, having the support of Jews or being sympathetic to Israel is somehow a political liability obviously is incompatible with this country's proud tradition of cultural and ideological diversity.

Nevertheless, the political opportunities and bigots persist in their efforts to promote hate and fear in campaigns throughout the country.

Group stops short of recommending raise for legislators

BY DENNIS C. MILLESKI
United Press International

HARTFORD, Conn. — A state commission stopped short of recommending a raise for legislators but promised a draft report for next week amid speculation a raise would become a major issue in next year's legislative elections.

Tuesday, members of the Commission on Compensation for Elected State Officials and Judges discussed raising salaries but suggested legislators might have to account more closely for how expense money is spent.

Several commission members supported an increase to $15,000 for legislative salaries and putting a cap on any additional expense allowances. Legislators now are paid $10,500 a year in salary and another $2,500 for expenses, which is less than the commission earlier had recommended.

"Ten-five to me... that's poverty," said Thomas Coates, an aide to former Republican Gov. Thomas Meskill, petroleum industry lobbyist and now an executive with an Oklahoma oil company.

Under state law, salary increases could not become effective at least until 1985 because legislators cannot boost their own pay while in office. But Ritter warned that to some critics "asking for $1 is like robbing the treasury."

There was disagreement on whether lawmakers should have to provide vouchers to account for the $2,500 for expenses, which is over and above their reimbursement for costs such as mileage, stationery and business-related telephone calls.

Connecticut In Brief

Schools are still unequal
HARTFORD — The state's nine-year effort to equalize educational opportunities between rich and poor communities has fallen far short of its goal, a state Department of Education report has shown.

The report, released late Tuesday, was the first comparing the communities for experience of teachers and staffers and the ratio of students to teachers, counselors and reading specialists as a measure of quality education.

In all towns and cities, wealthy districts offered students larger numbers and better-trained teachers, guidance counselors, reading and math specialists and other staff.

The ratio was 13.86 students per teacher in high-spending districts compared to 16.59 students per teacher in communities spending less on education.

The disparity was even greater for the ratio between students and support staff, including guidance counselors, reading specialists and remedial teachers.

Injured football fan moved

NEW HAVEN — The Harvard freshman whose heart failed when he was hit on the head by a falling goalpost after the Harvard-Yale game has departed a hospital on the road to recovery, driven in an ambulance by the man her father says helped save her.

In a few words with reporters at the Hospital of St. Raphael, Margaret "Meg" Cimino, 18, said she was feeling "much better" than she was Nov. 19 when Charles Esposito drove his ambulance on to the field at the Yale Bowl through hordes of 75,000 departing fans at the 10th game in the Harvard-Yale series.

"Without the very quick response she would not have made it," Ms. Cimino's father, Dr. Joseph Cimino, said Tuesday as he waited for his daughter to be brought by stretcher to a street level exit at the hospital. He is chairman of preventive medicine at New York Medical College in Valhalla, N.Y.

FBI: Gerena was in N.Y.

HARTFORD — FBI officials in Buffalo, N.Y., say they have "positive evidence" Victor Gerena, their prime suspect in the $7 million Wells Fargo robbery, was in the Buffalo area.

FBI spokesman Michael Kogut said Tuesday it is possible Gerena may have moved to another area, but it is also possible he is still in the Buffalo area "keeping a low profile."

Kogut said agents will continue contacting informants in Buffalo's Hispanic community and other sources. He said calls from the public regarding possible sightings of Gerena have dwindled to a few and none have been confirmed.

Gerena, 25, a part time guard at the Wells Fargo Armored Service office in West Hartford, is suspected of robbing $7 million in cash after snatching two fellow guards Sept. 12.

Support for rules changes

STORRS — A University of Connecticut poll has shown strong support, particularly among Democrats, for participation by unaffiliated voters in party primaries and nominating candidates by direct primaries.

The results, published Wednesday, said 63 percent of those surveyed said it would be a "good idea" for unaffiliated voters to participate in primaries.

Supporters included two-thirds of those respondents who identified themselves as Democrats or unaffiliated with either party, and about 50 percent of the Republicans.

Support was less strong for a second proposal to replace the current system of nominating conventions with direct primaries where candidates could petition themselves directly onto a primary ballot.

The state's top Democratic leaders oppose either change.

Syria returns body of U.S. pilot

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syria today returned the body of the American pilot shot down during the U.S. air raid over the Syrian-controlled mountains of Lebanon.

The body of Lt. Mark Lange was taken by ambulance from the Syrian-Lebanese army checkpoint at Duhour and then transferred to the U.S. Marines at Beirut airport.

Lange, 26, died sometime after the crash of his A-6E Intruder aircraft but his navigator-bombardier, Lt. Robert Goodman, parachuted to safety. U.S. officials have reported negotiations began almost immediately for Goodman's release despite Syria's vow to keep him until "the end of the war."

Lange's left leg had been amputated below the knee and he also had unspecified wounds on his face and chest, Lebanese officers said.

The Marine base was quiet, with the security status after an attack Tuesday night in which Syrian-backed Druze militiamen were driven off with tank and missile fire.

"We were ready for them," said Maj. Dennis Brooks, explaining how the Marines unleashed a barrage to wipe out a militia position minutes after machine gunners opened fire Tuesday.

The brief battle occurred as Syria said the weekend U.S. air strikes put the two countries "in a state of war."

A broadcast on the state radio in Damascus said Soviet-backed Syrian leaders were studying measures "to redress the imbalance in the region" created by a new U.S.-Israeli military cooperation accord.

Druze gunners in the mountains east of Beirut sprayed the eastern perimeter of the Marine compound at the airport with heavy machine gun fire, Brooks said.

Still shaken by the deaths of eight Marines in a presumed Druze assault Sunday, the U.S. forces hit back with an A-6E tank, a Dragon missile, four grenades and a round from a shoulder-fired anti-tank weapon.

Western analysts in Beirut said some retaliation in Lebanon against Palestinian targets was expected following a bomb attack Tuesday against a bus in Jerusalem that killed four people and wounded 43 others.

The Palestine Liberation Organization claimed responsibility for the blast. The Israelis have launched several retaliatory air strikes against guerrilla targets over the last month.

Israel said Syria downed one unmanned Israeli spy plane, but Syria claimed destruction of a second drone Tuesday as U.S. war jets were reported again in Lebanese skies.

In Washington, the Navy defended its use of air power during the air raids against Syrian anti-aircraft gunners Sunday in the wake of criticism that the A-6E and A-7E aircraft were too slow and their pilots too inexperienced. Two of the jets were shot down.

An unidentified senior Navy officer said the 28 carrier-based planes ran into surprise anti-aircraft fire. He said criticism that the Navy pilots were inexperienced was "absolute nonsense."

There was still no word on the fate of an American airman aboard one of the downed jets who was captured by the Syrian-backed forces and Washington apparently made no progress in recovering the body of pilot Lt. Mark Lange, 26, who was killed in the raid.

Resident held in assault case

A Manchester resident was held overnight Tuesday in lieu of $1,000 bond after his former girlfriend told police he threatened her with a rifle and a stick but no rifle, they said.

Police obtained a search warrant for Miss Turner's apartment, but found no rifle there, either, they said.

Police apprehended Chappell in his car on West Middle Turnpike, they said. A search of his car yielded a black club but no rifle, they said.

Habs overpower Whalers

MONTREAL (UPI) — Christmas is more than two weeks off, but it isn't hard to figure out what's at the top of Montreal head coach Bob Berry's wish list — more efforts like the one his club delivered against Hartford Tuesday night.

Montreal scored his 10th

and 11th goals of the season to spark Montreal to a 4-1 victory over the Whalers, allowing the Canadiens to avoid slipping into last place in the Adams Division.

Berry, who lashed out at his club in an article published in a Montreal paper Tuesday, was in a much better mood following the win. "Maybe I was too negative in what I said after the game (a 6-2 loss Sunday) in Buffalo," he said. "I guess I was just a little discouraged. If we continue playing the way we did tonight, I'll be happy."

Veteran Montreal defenseman Larry Robinson said he didn't blame Berry for being outraged at the club's play of late.

"Bob had a good reason to be upset," said Robinson. "It's obvious to all of us that things aren't going too well for us here. Sometimes I think we try too hard and maybe that's the problem."

The win lifted the struggling Canadiens' point total to 27, three more than the cellar-dwelling Whalers. Montreal outshot Hartford 31-14 in the contest.

"We checked, checked and checked tonight. We wore the Whalers down," said Berry, adding he told the club little before the game. "We have a team meeting, but we've had a million of those. Everyone understood the importance of this game."

Naslund opened the game's scoring on a power play at 7:37 of the first period, breaking in from the blue line to beat Hartford goalie Greg Millen. The Swedish forward scored again 53 seconds into the

Young Manchester hockey team will have experienced personnel

By Len Ausler
Herald Sports Writer

They're going to be a young team but one with experience. A contradiction?

Hardly.

"On the first day of practice I saw a lot of uniforms from the Middlesex Midgets and South Windsor youth programs," said Manchester High ice hockey coach Wayne Horton.

There are 10 sophomores on the team, but Horton said, "most are out of youth programs and have been playing for some time," Horton says.

Manchester, 7-13 a year ago, launches his third season under Horton against Farmington High on Saturday night at the Bolton Ice Palace at 8:10 p.m. Horton feels this team has the best shot of reaching 500, the break point for qualifying for the Division II tournament.

"We've gotten closer and closer to my goal of 500 and I feel this year is it," said Horton, admitting to being a little leery of such a statement having been burned in the past. But his optimism is based on getting players with skills already implanted. They already have the basics of skating, shooting and passing.

"I haven't had to teach them the basics that much. They're coming to me with the basic skills. What I have to do is get them to play as a team," Horton also had to do something very unusual for Manchester hockey. He had to cut for the first time in his history. "I took 22 out of 32 boys. That's something new for Manchester hockey. We had 32 out and that's phenomenal. But that's too many and unfortunately we don't have a JV team," Horton said.

The Indians have a roster of six seniors — four returning — five juniors, the 10 sophomores and one freshman. If they're not out of the Eastern Connecticut Hockey Organization, they've played either with the Middlesex Midgets or in the South Windsor youth program. The sophomores, "are something I've been looking for," says Horton. "They can play hockey."

That remains to be seen against a scholastic competition. Senior Dan Gauchione and sophomore Shaun Kelly form a second backline, twosome with two more sophomores, Mark Riemiels and Mark Cichowski, the third pair of defensemen.

Junior Ian Blood, who saw action a year ago, will be in goal with

"We won't be big but we will be good," Horton says. "The first three lines have experience through the youth programs."

Horton said UConn's unusual success in football and customary achievement in soccer, Horton hopes, will have a carry over to hockey. "Football did it and soccer was up there again. The spirit of the school is there and I feel that will carry over into hockey."

"I feel this year will be very interesting."

Easler aiming at Green Monster

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The trade that sent pitcher John Tudor to the Pittsburgh Pirates and outfielder Mike Easler to the Boston Red Sox looks normal enough on paper, but the players involved are making it a baseball oddity.

Simply put, southpaw Tudor doesn't want to leave cozy Fenway Park and its short left-field wall for roomy Three Rivers Stadium. And the left-handed Easler can't wait to take aim at that Green Monster in the opposite field.

"This might be the park that's been waiting for me like, well, maybe I've been waiting for it. You never know," Easler laughed. "It'll be a great experience anyway, playing there."

Easler, 34, traded Tuesday at baseball's winter meetings in Nashville, batted .307 for the Pirates in 1983 with 10 home runs and 54 RBI in 115 games. A feared hitter since joining the Bucs in 1979, he compiled a .287 average — including .258 with 21 homers in 1980 — and was an N.L. All-Star in 1981.

Fairly certain he was in the Pirates' plans for a few more years, especially if he lost free agent right-fielder Dave Parker this winter, "Hi Man" bought a home in suburban Pittsburgh Oct. 22.

"Isn't that crazy?" Easler said. "It (trade) somewhat surprises me."

"I really didn't expect it, but again, being in professional ball for 15 years you tend to expect anything. I knew the Pirates might be looking for more pitchers. I knew I wasn't untouchable."

In Tudor, 29, the Pirates get the ace of the Boston pitching staff (the past two years with 13 victories in each and one who didn't exactly do handsprings when informed of the deal).

Errors bountiful in Husky victory

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — Neither coach had much good to say about the University of Connecticut's error-plagued 77-70 win over Fairfield at the Coliseum.

Of course UConn coach Dom Perro wasn't as unhappy as Fairfield's Terry O'Connor after Tuesday's game, but he said, "We played extremely awful. We were fouling foolishly. At the end we got out with our hide."

UConn, which ran off 18 straight points midway through the first half, turned over the ball 32 times while Fairfield gave it up 28 times. UConn hit 49 percent of its shots. Fairfield connected on 35 percent and hit 29 percent in the first half.

"We played well for a sport, but when it goes, it all goes wrong," said Perro. "The mistakes were from a lack of concentration."

"You can't win shooting 29 percent," said O'Connor. "We played poorly in the first half, except in the beginning."

UConn's press and defense O'Connor said, "They're good at harassing you." He attributed two spurts during which UConn ran up 30 unanswered points to his team's "loosey shooting."

"If we were more aggressive Saturday and UConn them in foul trouble," said O'Connor.

UConn's leading scorers were sophomore forward Eddie Williams with 18, sophomore guard Earl Kelley with 13 and junior forward Ray Broxton with 12. High scorers for Fairfield were freshman guard A.J. Wynder with 18, sophomore forward Tony George with 17 and sophomore forward Jay Byrne with 10.

The top rebounder for the game was Fairfield's sophomore forward Pat Verina with 12. UConn's top rebounder was sophomore forward Tim Coles, who had nine.

The Huskies scored the first two points, but Fairfield blew ahead 12-4 before UConn regained its scoring touch.

Aided by three Fairfield turnovers, UConn scored the next 18 points over a 10-minute span to take a 22-12 lead with 6:45 remaining in the first half. UConn led at the half 34-23.

In the second half UConn outscored the Slugs 12-0 over a three minute stretch to take its biggest lead of the game, 56-33.

Fairfield rallied back with a late second half surge led by George, Wynder and sophomore guard Tim O'Toole to come within six, 74-68, with 35 seconds to go.

Connecticut is now 2-1 and Fairfield is 1-4. Fairfield plays Navy Saturday and UConn them in foul trouble," said O'Connor.

UConn's leading scorers were

At Pittsburgh, Barry Pederson scored a hat trick, including the winning goal early in the third period, to lead the Bruins. Rick Middleton had a goal and four assists and Terry O'Reilly scored an empty-net goal for the Bruins. Bryan Maxwell, Ron Flockhart and Doug Shedden tallied for Pittsburgh.

Blues 5, Sabres 2
At Quebec, Wayne Babych scored a hat trick in the third period and Brian Sutter and Bernie Federko each added two goals to power St. Louis. The victory lifted St. Louis, last in the Norris Division, into a tie with Detroit. Buffalo slipped into the tie with Boston for first place in the Adams Division.

Nordiques 8, Calgary 1
At Quebec, Dale Hunter scored on a penalty shot to trigger a four-goal first period outburst and Andre Savard added two goals lifting the Nordiques. Quebec goalie Daniel Bouchard turned back 19 shots to help extend the Nordiques' unbeaten streak to six games, tying a club record.

At Vancouver, British Columbia, Bob Nystrom scored the game winning goal at 17:41 of the second period to snap a 2-2 tie and lift the Islanders. Brent Sutter added his 11th goal of the season and Mike Bossy scored his 21st. Rick Lanz and Stan Smyl had the Vancouver goals.

Celtics bombard Bulls behind Bird

CHICAGO (UPI) — A couple of long touchdowns that would have been the envy of most NFL quarterbacks were the trigger that kept the Chicago Bulls on the skids against the Boston Celtics.

Larry Bird, known as one of the best passers in the game in addition to his offensive shooting production, uncoiled several long court-to-court passes in the second quarter which he said "demoralized" the Bulls and helped Boston post a 118-105 victory Tuesday night. The loss was Chicago's sixth straight and left the Bulls with their second fewest wins in the NBA.

"It's a Boston Celtic trademark, the long pass from one end of the court to the other," said Bird, who led the Celtics with 24 points and dished out four assists. "When you're able to do that, you demoralize the other team when you can get the fast break basket."

The Bulls led 42-42 midway through the second quarter before Bird let loose with a couple of long passes that led to scores and ignited a 24-4 scoring spurt that knocked the Bulls out of the game. Chicago was down 68-52 at halftime and never got closer than eight points in the second half.

"We had problems. They had too many easy baskets on long passes and we stressed this after watching films and in practice," said Chicago coach Kevin Loughery. "They had great individual performances as well."

Kevin McHale came off the bench to add to Robert Parish 21 for the Celtics, who rebounded from their overtime home loss Sunday against division leader Philadelphia.

For Easler, the word is only good from Boston manager Ralph Houk.

bird and he continues to lead the Bulls. Boston coach K.C. Jones of McHale. "It was a tight game until that second quarter. Kevin comes in and gives us a lift and we got those fast break baskets to help put us in front."

The Celtics shot 54 percent from the field thanks to their fast break layups and held Chicago to just 45 percent from the floor.

Boston overcame a strong individual performance by Chicago forward Orlando Woolridge, who led all scorers with 32 points, one below his season high. He scored in the first quarter when Chicago trailed by only two points.

"He's a tough guy to guard. I wish he was on our team so I wouldn't have to guard him all the time," Bird said.

Woolridge said he was pleased with his performance but disappointed that he was not winning.

Reggie Theus got a rare start for him this year and added 15 for the Bulls.

"It's just a matter of doing the best you can when you are out there and hoping for the best," said Theus, a former NBA all-star who made only his fourth start of the season. "It's tough to see this club bench like this. We want a winner in Chicago. I want to be a part of it."

Gerald Henderson added 17 and Dennis Johnson 15 for Boston, which improved its mark to 14-6 while the Bulls sank to 5-12.

Sky-high Kelly, East enjoying Post-season

By Barry Peters
Herald Sports Writer

Jude Kelly says he'll stay up in the clouds for quite a while. It's that nice a feeling.

Doug Post says he's come back down to earth and is starting to face reality. He's got a few more things on his mind besides savoring the accomplishments of the just-completed East Catholic football season.

For Kelly and his East coaching staff, for Post and the rest of the Eagles, the whole East Catholic community — this was a season to remember, a rare chance to be on top of the high school sports world.

Not every high school team has the opportunity to make a state championship game, let alone win over a team making its fourth straight appearance there. But that's just what East did, capping off its 10-1 HCC tri-championship season by defeating Hand High, 14-12, for the Class MM state playoff crown last Friday.

"No, I haven't come down yet," Kelly — as usual — didn't make any predictions for this year. No certain number of wins, no conference championship, no state playoff game. All the Eagles did was become the first East team in its 28-year football history to win a state championship.

"I've had five teams, and each one has had its own personality," said Kelly, who's compiled a 25-2-1 career record at East. "Without a doubt, this team had more speed, more physical ability than any other. That term 'chemistry' was really important. The seniors were such a close-knit group. They've played together since they were freshmen, and they hang around together on and off the field. They blended together with the younger kids."

One senior whom the underclassmen would do well to emulate is running back Doug Post, who logged 1,358 yards and 15 TDs this season. Post also ran for 201 yards in the championship game, including the winning run of 97 yards, his longest ever and the longest in school history, surpassing the 94-yard romp by Kevin Shorey in 1975.

"I'm starting to come down and face reality," said Post. "But it's the best feeling I've ever known."

Post must start facing the reality of choosing his college, not an easy decision for a solid Division I prospect. He's got quite a few schools in mind — the University of Connecticut, Mass. University of New Hampshire, Rutgers, Maryland, Boston University, Boston College and Tennessee — but he'll take his time making his choice.

He also relishes the chance to reflect on his years at East.

"As freshmen, we all said we'd someday go to the states," said Post. "As sophomores, we saw the Naugatuck-Xavier game. We said next time, we wouldn't have to pay for tickets. We'd be in it."

Like Kelly and fellow running back Buddy Zachery, both of whom called "chemistry" the key word to the '83 Eagles, Post sees team unity as the reason for East's success.

"We never give up," said Post. "We play with intensity. The South Catholic game (East's only loss) since it woke us up and made us strive for our goal together."

The achievements of East were remarkable. Its 215 points and 18 wins were the most ever for an East team. The Eagles also held their opponents to 60 points, excluding the Hand game, also the best defensive performance for an East team.

And individually, the numbers were equally remarkable. Twelve players made the All-HCC team: running backs Post and Jim DePersia, offensive tackle Mark Wasilewski, defensive backs Chris Darby (eight interceptions) and Zachery, linebacker Joe Leslie, defensive end Gary Ryle, defensive tackle John DeMauro and placekicker Mario DiLoreto (25 PATs) were first team selections, with quarterback John Gilbert, offensive guard John Canny and linebacker Rob Hayhurst receiving honorable mention.

Is there any way to top what transpired in 1983?

"It'll have to come from them," said Kelly, forecasting in his naturally ambiguous way. "We'll have a good nucleus returning, but we'll have to work together as a team. We put a big emphasis on that. What it comes down to is the attitude of the team."

Getting set for Rotary Classic

Members of the Manchester Rotary Club met with administrators of Manchester Community College Tuesday afternoon to tap-off plans for the second annual MCC-Rotary Club Basketball Classic to be held Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 27-28, at East Catholic High. First round action on Tuesday matches Hesser College from Manchester, N.H., against Norwalk Community College at 6 p.m. with MCC taking on Hartford State Tech in the 8 p.m. nightcap. The consolation game at 6 p.m. followed by the championship game at 8 p.m. is set for Wednesday, Dec. 28. Taking part in the luncheon at the MCC campus included (l-r) Chuck Garey, Jerry Baskin, president of the Rotary Club, William Vincent, MCC president, and Kevin Brophy, Garey and Brophy are members of the MCC basketball team.

Rose finds job market tight at winter meetings

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — It always hurts when those you love don't return your calls, so you can imagine how Pete Rose feels.

Not good. Not very good at all because the question isn't so much anymore whether he'll be able to get those 210 hits he needs to break Ty Cobb's record of 4,191 as whether anyone will even give him an opportunity to do it.

Up to now, nobody has shown any compelling desire or inclination to sign the switch-hitting, 42-year-old future Hall of Famer, and the general reaction among all the clubs at these baseball meetings seems to be generally the same. Nada.

"I'd never say we're not interested in Pete Rose because we all love him, but ... Cleveland's Gabe Paul says without finishing the sentence.

"When I prodded Paul to do so, he looked at me with an expression requiring no further explanation and said, 'That's all I can say is but.'"

That's pretty much the same thing you get about Pete Rose from all the other clubs here. They all love him and think the world of him, but nobody seems to have any place for him. He only made it tougher on himself by all those stipulations he made. To begin with, he had to play regularly next season with whomever he signed with, and also made it known he wanted to be with a contender and had no intention of taking a cut.

Sports Parade

Wittingly or not, he was painting himself in a corner, one he's finding it very tough to come out of now even though he's working out every day and has dropped nine pounds since the season ended and the Phillies released him.

The clubs who had any interest in him all have been strangely silent.

Montreal was one of those clubs. Rose's best chance of being signed by the Expos would be if they trade their first baseman, Al Oliver, but there has been no overwhelming demand for the 37-year-old 1982 National League batting champ at the meetings even though he has hit 300 or better the past eight seasons.

That doesn't leave any room with the Expos for Rose, and that's why whatever interest they might have had in him seems to have rapidly dissipated.

Then there are the Pirates, but you have a similar situation there. Jason Thompson is the Pirates' first baseman and there has been talk of dealing him, but so far he's still in Pittsburgh. Besides, the Pirates no longer even mention Rose, so it doesn't look very promising for him with them, either.

You can forget about the Reds.

They made that pretty plain the other day when they went for Tony Perez instead, re-signing the popular 41-year-old Cuban to pinch-hit and play first base part-time for them. Tony was smart. He never said he had to play regularly. He doesn't have to because he isn't going after Cobb's record.

There was even some talk Rose might wind up with the Yankees. Why not? He's exactly the kind of break-your-neck type ballplayer George Steinbrenner worships.

"I don't know where those stories originated that he was coming with us, but I can tell you they're not true," says Yankees general manager Murray Cook.

Believe it or not, there was even a report that Rose would make some concessions and return to the Phillies so he could go after Cobb's record with them. No substance to it, assures Bill Giles, the Phillies' owner-president.

That leaves only Seattle, which hasn't exactly been beating down Rose's door, either.

Had Rose not insisted on playing regularly next year, he still would've been with the Phillies. Paul Owens tried to persuade him not to insist on having to play every day before he would sign. "I was only doing it because I love Pete Rose," says the Phillie's manager.

Everybody does, but so far nobody's giving him a job.

I still think he'll get one, possibly after these meetings are over and all the clubs see what they have. But as the days go by and nothing happens, somehow Pete Rose keeps reminding me of Babe Ruth at the end of his career. The Babe lived in a disappointing world of half-shadows and may be never be finished, for a long time nursing the hope he might get back in uniform again. He never did, and I hope Pete Rose doesn't wind up the same way.

MHS fall success reflected in CCIL honors

By Len Auster
Herald Sports Writer

This was quite a fall season for Manchester High athletic teams and that fact was reflected in the voting for all-Central Connecticut Interscholastic League teams as the Silk Towners had a number of representatives selected.

tabbed in the voting conducted by the coaches. Each was a first-time selection. Petersen holds the school record for career shutouts with 35. Waltert has been a two-year stalwart at the all-important sweeperback slot and Evans solidified the Indians middle in his first year as a starter.

Hall, the CCIL champs, and Wethersfield each had three selections as well and Penney High's Mark Garcia was also named to round out the all-league squad.

Junior striker Brad Pelligrinelli, a 13-goal scorer, received second team honors.

Four other Indians, junior forward Eric Wallert and junior stopper John Janenda and sophomores Dave Kelly, Nick Caeace and Brian Milone, garnered honorable mention.

Manchester for the first time in 30 years was outright champion in football. Manchester's strength was its defense and that was reflected with three selections on this end and one on offense. Nose guard Willie Likely took all-CCIL accolades for a second year in a row and he was joined on the elite squad by senior linebacker Glenn Chetel and junior cornerback Jim Fogarty.

Junior running back Greg Turner, who rushed for 1,064 yards and 10 TDs, was the Indians' fourth all-league selection. Second team honors were won by senior offensive tackle Pat Farrell, senior defensive end John Harris and senior defensive tackle Ed Stack.

John Harris and junior Eli McPolley received honorable mention at running back. Two more Indians, senior defensive tackle Jim Marx and junior linebacker Albie Harris, also received honorable mention.

Manchester was not as successful in field hockey or volleyball but nevertheless received representation on each squad. Senior Jen Kibohit took first team honors in field hockey and defender Darrell Sibrins took second team notice. In volleyball, senior Judy Dolan received all-league honors.

Junior Vinnie Liscomb, who took 22nd in the State Open, garnered all-league honors in boys' cross country and teammates John Comeau and Paul Toland took honorable mention. Three Indians were on the girls' cross country all-league team with senior Felicia Falkowski, junior Becky Castagna and sophomore Debbie Dussault, each accorded top honors. Meg Harvey took honorable mention.

Ueberroth, Baker in semifinals for commissioner's job

By Fred McMane
UPI Sports Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — George Steinbrenner was the loudest voice at the winter baseball meetings Tuesday. Instead, a man who wasn't even in Nashville, Jimmy Baker, created the biggest clamor.

Baker, the White House chief of staff and a stranger to the sports community, reached the semifinals of the commissioner's sweepstakes by joining Peter Ueberroth in the two-man race for baseball's top job.

The Search Committee, which has been looking for a successor to Bowie Kuhn for more than a year, has narrowed its choices to those two men and a decision is expected to be reached by the end of the week.

"We've had in the past several stories that there were job changes in the works for Mr. Baker," said White House spokeswoman Kim Hoggard. "But we didn't choose to comment on those then and we won't start now."

Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, has orchestrated the successful preparations for the 1984 Summer Games. He has a fine track record in the private travel agency business he operated before accepting his current job.

A Bartlett Giannetti, the president of Yale who had been mentioned as a candidate for commissioner, has removed himself from consideration because of commitments to the university.

It was expected that Steinbrenner would steal the spotlight Tuesday night and announce he was firing Billy Martin as New York Yankees manager and replacing him with Yogi Berra. But that didn't happen.

Instead, Steinbrenner did not arrive until late Tuesday night and he brushed aside reporters' questions about the Yankee managerial situation.

"Please fellows, I'm tired. Not tonight. Tomorrow," Steinbrenner said as he breezed through the hotel lobby and went quickly to his room.

The trade market has been especially quiet. Only one trade was made Tuesday, with the Boston Red Sox sending left-handed pitcher John Tudor to the Pittsburgh Pirates for outfielder Mike Easler.

In other developments, the Oakland A's acquired pitcher Darrel Aberfeldt as the player to be named later in the trade that sent Bill Caullin to the A's for pitcher Dave Beard and catcher Bob Kearney and the Kansas City Royals signed free agent outfielder Lynn Jones.

The pitching-richer Pirates got even richer by acquiring Tudor. The 26-year-old left-hander posted a 13-12 record with a 4.09 ERA last season and ranked 10th in the American League in innings pitched with 240.

He joins a staff that already includes John Candelaria, Rick Rhoden, Larry McWilliams, Lee Tunnel and Jose DeLeon.

Sports in Brief

Dorsey Kodak All-American

STORRS — University of Connecticut linebacker John Dorsey has been named by the American Football Coaches Association to the Kodak 1983 All-American team for the University Division I-AA classification. It has been announced.

The 6-3, 233-pound UConn senior was one of 24 I-AA collegiate stars from throughout the nation named to the elite All-American first team.

In 11 games during the 1983 season, Dorsey had 125 primary tackles and 59 assists for a total of 184 tackles (18.7 per game). He recovered two fumbles broke up seven passes, had 10 running back tackles for losses, caused four fumbles, registered seven quarterback sacks, blocked an extra point, and had two interceptions. Dorsey led the UConn team in tackles in each of the past three seasons.

Ziegler being heavy handed

TORONTO — NHL president John Ziegler is offering a heavy-handed approach to any official complaint on strike league's handling of the suspension of Chicago Black Hawk forward Tom Lysiak.

"I have said that if anyone breaches the collective agreement with the league they can expect to be fired," Ziegler said Tuesday in an interview from West Palm Beach, Fla. "but I am not aware that that (strike) is what officials intend to do."

Ziegler was reacting to published reports that the officials intend to strike Friday unless the NHL Board of Governors takes a tough stand against players who hit officials.

College roundup Houston wins Top Ten battle

By Fred Lief
UPI Sports Writer

The Phi Sigma Juma fraternity learned something about its membership Tuesday night: it can win down the stretch without Akeem Olanjuwon.

With its 7-foot center having fouled out with 6:31 left, the University of Houston got strength from other sources in beating Louisiana State 106-91 in Baton Rouge, La.

Michael Young took most of the burden, finishing with 25 points (11-of-16 shooting) and 11 rebounds.

LSU, ranked No. 9 in the country, trailed 52-50 seven minutes into the second half but then went to work and scored 13 points the rest of the way. In all, the Cougars, ranked No. 6, struck for 48 points in the final 13 minutes.

"This is the first game we played up to our potential," Houston coach Guy Lewis said. "I would hate to play them every night."

Alvin Franklin added 23 points for the Cougars, and Olanjuwon picked up his fourth foul six minutes into the second half. He finished with 14 points (2 in the second half) and 10 rebounds.

Elsewhere in the Top 20, No. 3 Georgetown crushed St. Louis 82-50. No. 14 DePaul routed Western Michigan 84-66, and No. 15 Maryland beat Penn State 67-58.

At Landover, Md., freshman Michael Graham scored 18 points and Pat Ewing added 15 — all in the first 14 minutes — as the Hoyas won in a rout, Georgetown, 50-plus for the first time in their series, facing its first tough test Saturday at DePaul.

"In our league (Sunshine State Conference) you make a mistake, well, you give up two points," said St. Leo coach Gary Richert. "If you make a mistake against Georgetown, with their transition game, you've just lost ten points."

At Rosemead, Ill., freshman Dallas Comegys hit all of his 10 points in nine minutes and DePaul went on to give Coach Ray Meyer his 701st victory. The Blue Demons led 41-19 at halftime as Western Michigan shot 21 percent from the floor.

At Hershey, Pa., Jeff Adkins scored 15 points and Adrian Barkley and Ben Coleman had 14 each to pace Maryland. The Terrapins made 8-of-10 free throws in the last 1:18.

"If we hadn't made those free throws we would have lost," said Maryland coach Lefty Driesell. "This made the difference in the game."

In other games, it was Cornell 61, Colgate 50; Holy Cross 76, Harvard 71; New Hampshire 81, Tulane 69; North Carolina 74, LaSalle 72; Illinois 69, Vanderbilt 55; Southern Mississippi 55, Mississippi State 48; Virginia Commonwealth 41, William & Mary 38; Wake Forest 62, Davidson 51; Indiana 81, Tennessee Tech 66; Oklahoma 83, Arkansas State 61; Southern Methodist 88, Penn. 66; Texas 51, Baylor 50; Texas-EI Paso 83, Southern 67; Northern Arizona 71, Arizona State 70; and San Diego State 91, Long Beach State 76.

McEnroe, Martina win down under

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — Mats Wilander of Sweden advanced to the semifinals of the $1 million Australian Open tennis tournament Tuesday, beating defending champion Johan Kriek in straight sets in a quarterfinal match at rain-plagued Kooyong Stadium.

The second quarterfinal on center court had only just started when rain again interrupted play.

McEnroe didn't even bother to appeal to referee Peter Bellenger and walked off the court after the sixth game of his match against Masur, a young Australian, when heavy rain swamped the stadium.

Before a crowd of 4,800, Darie dropped her service in the ninth game when she tightened her shots and "elbowed" on crucial points.

Navratilova put extra pressure on the 23-year-old Darie, who was scrambling around the court desperately trying to get to her opponent's penetration.

Navratilova will face doubles partner and good friend Pam Shriver in the semifinals Thursday.

Navratilova will face doubles partner and good friend Pam Shriver in the semifinals Thursday.

McEnroe didn't even bother to appeal to referee Peter Bellenger and walked off the court after the sixth game of his match against Masur, a young Australian, when heavy rain swamped the stadium.

Before a crowd of 4,800, Darie dropped her service in the ninth game when she tightened her shots and "elbowed" on crucial points.

Navratilova put extra pressure on the 23-year-old Darie, who was scrambling around the court desperately trying to get to her opponent's penetration.

DEAR MARTIN: The other day I found a package that had a coupon attached to it. The coupons said "use now." When I took it off at the checkout counter and also tried to use it with a manufacturer's coupon I had cut out of the newspaper for the same product, the cashier said it wasn't allowed. Should I have been able to use both coupons? -Janice Smith, Renton, Wash.

DEAR JANICE: No, you can't use both manufacturer's coupons on the same item. Most coupons have these words printed on them: "One coupon per purchase." Even if these words do not appear on them, it is now the industry custom to redeem only one manufacturer's coupon per item. But there are times when two coupons can be used. Here is an example: Many supermarkets print their own coupons in newspaper advertisements and circulars. We had cut out of the newspaper for the same product, the cashier said it wasn't allowed. Should I have been able to use both coupons? -Janice Smith, Renton, Wash.

Advice

Uncle's lap is no place to sit

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old girl with a problem. I can't talk to anybody about it. I have an uncle who everybody thinks is the greatest. He's 50 and married.

Dear Abby Abigail Van Buren

Lately he has been pulling me on his lap, feeling me, and trying to give me grown-up kisses on the mouth. He used to be my favorite uncle, but now I feel funny when he gets near me.

get is a warning signal. The next time you see your uncle, tell him that you do not want to sit on his lap, that you do not want him to put his hands on you and that you do not want any "grown-up" kisses. Tell him that if he tries to do any of these things, you will tell your mother. And if she doesn't believe you, tell another adult — a relative, a teacher or your minister.

I was born Janet Sue Flanagan. (2) I married John Donlevy and became Janet Flanagan Donlevy. (3) John died and I recently married George Williams.

Am I now Janet Donlevy Williams, Janet Flanagan Williams or Janet Sue Williams? JANET

DEAR JANET: When a widow remarries, she has the option of using her husband's name as a middle name or dropping his name and using her maiden name. If she was married for a long time and has children, she will undoubtedly prefer to keep the name of the man with whom she spent many years and which identifies her with her children.

DEAR ASHAMED: It is not your imagination. That "funny feeling" you controls your central vision. And I hope you don't smoke, because cigarette smoke significantly increases the risk of such a problem.

Your other eye may not become involved. I suspect your doctor is attempting to prevent any further damage to the circulation to the eye. Niacin (Nicobid) is sometimes used to improve the cholesterol problem and hopefully to prevent changes. Better stay with your doctor's guidance.

Milk boosted by computer ROSEMONT, Ill. (UPI) — The National Dairy Council has introduced a computer program to get kids to drink their milk.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am 75 years old and in pretty good health, but noticed that my eyesight is falling. My eye doctor looked in the back of my eyes with a very powerful light. He said that one of my eyes was deteriorating. He prescribed Nicobid, which he didn't prescribe for three months, but he said it was the only way he knew how to help.

He called my eye problem "involuntary macular degeneration." I've taken Nicobid for three months, but can't tell any improvement. Is this right or should I stop taking the medicine? I like to crochets, knit and watch TV, as well as do my own work.

DEAR READER: Your problem is caused by the degeneration of a small spot in the back of the eye where many of the rays of light are focused to provide visual images. It is advertising expensive? You'll be surprised how economical it is to advertise in Classified, 643-2711.

Censors concern actress more than show's ratings

By Julienne Hastings United Press International

NEW YORK — Ratings don't concern Madeline Kahn just because she's trying her hand at a TV sitcom, what's on her mind is who's behind some of the decisions that go into making her show.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have a problem that is affecting the happiness in our marriage. I am 55 years old and have no interest in sex except to wish I had the life of my earlier years when I was able to please my husband.

Hormones could help sex

Your Health Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

I also have a problem with dryness. I spoke to my doctor about it nine months ago after reading about it in one of your columns. I asked him about trying estrogen, but he said my symptoms didn't warrant estrogen and prescribed Vagifem cream instead.

DEAR READER: You do need help. Vagifem is not a hormone cream, nor is it a lubricant. It ordinarily is prescribed for trichomoniasis, a common infection that causes a discharge.

Food supply good for holiday season

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although the worst drought in a half-century devastated crops in key United States agricultural areas this summer, most food supplies will be plentiful and prices reasonable for the 1983 holiday season.

Only sweet potatoes are in short supply and will be more expensive, says Ralph Parlet, of USDA's Economic Research Service.

Because the nation's economy has recovered somewhat from last year, demand would tend to pull turkey prices up — but downward price pressure will come from the competition from plentiful supplies in the pork sector.

Consumers will also find hams with apples, canned tomato products, broccoli and potatoes. Frozen vegetables are a bargain because supplies are large, while demand has been sluggish.

BRIDGE

Visualize the hands

mediate stage does this in some measure. On the other hand, a defender who is able to do this is almost surely an expert or near-expert.

Dummy's king of clubs wins the first trick, and the jack of hearts is led and allowed to ride to West's king. Most West players will surrender to the club, but a sharp player with thinking cap on his head. He will see if there is any way to rid the trump suit with no trouble at all.

Let's watch a West player with thinking cap on his head. He will see if there is any way to rid the trump suit with no trouble at all.

Then West will see that if South also holds three spades, there is a chance to salvage a plus. How does he go about this?

He simply leads his queen of spades and poor South is going to lose his nice game. Dummy's king of spades will win that trick but when East gets in with the diamond king, he will give his partner the beautiful spade tricks.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

There have been countless articles to illustrate how an astute declarer will make a doubtful contract by placing his opponents' cards as he wants them to be.

Every declarer who has progressed to even an intermediate stage should know how to do this.

Area News In Brief

School lunches booming

ANDOVER — The revised school lunch program serves about 75 youngsters a day, says School Principal Frederick Ashton.

The price of a lunch, including milk, is $1. This is used to both pay the person who transports the lunches in a heated bus from Glead Hill School in Hebron, and to pay those who prepare the food.

Parents, working as volunteers, have helped serve and clean up after lunch.

Student council studies law

BOLTON — The Bolton High School student council last month attended a series of workshops on teenagers and the law at Mohagan Community College in Norwich. Social Studies teacher Anthony Falcutta accompanied student-council members to the day-long program.

The Connecticut Consortium for Law-Related Education sponsored the workshops. Bolton students attended sessions on the rights and responsibilities of Connecticut adolescents, prevention of exploitation of teenagers, the drunk-driving law, and alcohol-recognition programs and the U.S. Constitution.

Park funds not restricted

BOLTON — Town Administrator Karen Levine told the Board of Selectmen Tuesday that $13,000 in revenue-sharing money was allocated last year to fund any improvements to the Herrick Park ballfields, but the money was in town officials' hands.

Members of the Recreation Commission asked First Selectmen Henry P. Ryba last week if the money could be transferred to improvements other than the lighting system. Ryba and commission members agreed $13,000 is not enough to install a proper lighting system for night games.

Selectmen agreed that the commission should consult with town Park Director Stanley J. Bates, who has authority over park improvements.

Aging committee wants van

BOLTON — Paul Brown, chairman of the town Senior Citizens Committee, asked fellow committee member Ruth Baker Tuesday to appeal to the Board of Selectmen to apply for a federal grant to buy a specially equipped van to transport the elderly and handicapped to and from business and recreational activities.

The money, $235,000, is available to towns in the Hartford area through the Capital Region Council of Governments. The grant was first announced over a year ago. The funds will be used to pay 80 percent of the cost of the van and about 50 percent of operating costs.

Selectmen said they did not know how much of the money has already been claimed by other area towns. The board had agreed last month to convey its interest in acquiring a van to CRCOG.

Scholars named

COVENTRY — The chairman of the department of educational administration at the University of Connecticut was on hand last week to welcome 14 Coventry High School students into the Nathan Hale chapter of the National Honor Society.

To be eligible, seniors must have a B-plus average grade. Sophomores and juniors must have an A-minus average.

School board members jubilant

Voters approve renovation of RHAM

HEBRON — Members of the RHAM school board were jubilant Tuesday night when voters in the principal's office Tuesday night were jubilant as they learned voters in Andover, Hebron and Marlborough had passed a referendum to renovate RHAM High School.

Official counts show Andover voted 123 to 46 in favor of the referendum. Hebron's tally was 407 to 150, and Marlborough's was 406 to 58. In total, 938 voters were for the renovations and 254 against.

A handful of board members who have been spending their evenings since September campaigning for the referendum congratulated one another as they looked forward to seeing renovation start on the critically deteriorated building as soon as school ends.

The victorious RHAM renovation committee, headed by Robert McKay of Hebron, promptly issued a statement of appreciation to over 150 volunteers who helped in the campaign.

RHAM student groups, parents and administrators had joined forces to urge support of a project. Volunteers staged a telephone canvass, distributed fliers, and posted large cartoons depicting RHAM dilapidation.

A new roof for the RHAM building will be the first in a long list of problems to be tackled when repairs begin. The fire-alarm system in the 26-year-old building is now obsolete, and the school is in violation on several counts of the Connecticut Fire Safety Code.

RHAM Board Chairman Richard A. Harrison had said before the referendum that the senior high school has come close to losing its accreditation with the New England Association of Schools and Colleges because of its rickety and unsafe condition. The school was spared only because it had initiated plans for the renovation.

Other additions include: a handicapped toilet, a new band room, improvements to the heating system, repainting and new tile flooring throughout the building.

Over half of the $3 million renovation bill will be footed by the state. The rest is expected to come through a bond issue. First year's costs to each town are projected as follows: Andover, $26,005; Hebron, $103,811; Marlborough, $40,263.

The district has engaged the Connecticut Bank & Trust Co. as its financial consultants on the project. It has been indicated that short-term financing might be sought initially to get the project underway.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to make do with what you have today, rather than borrow anything from friends. Also, think carefully before making loans yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Success could be denied you today if you persist in doing everything the hard way. Look for easy routes, not bumpy roads.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) The which you wish to do today can be accomplished, provided you are not defeated by your own self-doubts. Believe yourself as a winner, not a loser.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be extra careful in any dealings today with friends where money is involved. If things are managed poorly, misunderstandings could erupt.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Associates are not in accord with your career objectives today could do you more harm than good. Don't proceed if you're unsure of your aims.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Good helpers may be difficult to find today, so select co-workers with care. Be certain they're willing to follow your instructions to the letter.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do not take financial gambles on things today where the control rests in the hands of others. They could fall flat.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try to skirt issues today where you and your mate take opposing positions. Small disagreements could easily be blown out of proportion.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your mental faculties are extremely sharp today. Unfortunately, you might focus on the faults of others rather than on their virtues. Be tolerant.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do not permit your wasteful or extravagant tendencies to gain the upper hand today. If you do, they'll cause you regrets that could be avoided.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Do not come on too strong today when dealing with others, especially if you are in a position of authority. Harsh words produce negative results.

Selectmen question shift, take no position on media center

By Sarah Passell
Herald Reporter

BOLTON — The Bolton Board of Selectmen Tuesday refused to take a position on the school board's proposal last week to add a new library and computer center, at an estimated cost of $400,000, to Bolton High School.

Members of the school board indicated last week they wanted the selectmen's response to their idea. Specifically, the school board is interested in adding the library proposal to a group of three other capital projects the selectmen are already hoping to fund through one municipal bond issue for town voters' approval.

"We'll consider it," was all Selectman Sandra Pierog would say of the idea.

"We have needs too," said First Selectman Henry P. Ryba. "When did they come up with this media center? I thought they were after a new cafeteria and auditorium."

The Bolton Board of Education several times in recent years drew up plans for an addition with a new auditorium, cafeteria and hand room. Each time the idea was blocked by residents.

SOME SELECTMEN speculated that school board Chairman James H. Marshall, elected last summer to replace former Chairman Joseph Haloburdo, and newly appointed superintendent Richard E. Packman may be responsible for the shift in the school board's priorities. Marshall has made it known that his emphasis as chairman will be on enhancing Bolton schools' academic programs.

The school board has put the other proposed addition at the bottom of its proposed five-year capital-improvement plan. The new library is among projects the board wants to see begun in the next academic year.

The board is expected to vote formally Thursday night to approve the five-year plan. The plan is merely an outline of projects the board would like to see undertaken. The town Board of Finance must approve the school board's budget each year and can effectively block major capital expenditures by rejecting the schools' budget proposals.

Ryba noted that the cost of a new library would have to be borne by town taxpayers temporarily, until the state gets around to reimbursing the schools for its share of project's cost. Packman has said the state would pay 58.8 percent of the cost. The town's share would be about $165,000.

"I strongly feel it's time for the town to start doing something with its own facilities, which we have been neglecting for a number of years," Ryba said. The selectmen are preparing a proposal to build a new town garage and firehouse and to renovate Community Hall. Ryba said all three existing facilities are overburdened.

TOWN ADMINISTRATOR Karen Levine, who was present when the school board revealed its plans, explained that the new library would empty space that then could be used for teaching special-education students. Special-education instruction is now carried out in cramped offices temporarily partitioned off from the main administrative office in the high school, school officials said last week.

If the school gets a new library, the board would turn the old one into two classrooms for the learning disabled, officials said.

Selectmen voted to send the school board a letter that states only that they are preparing a proposal to fund the garage, firehouse and town-hall renovation through a bond issue.

Each of the three projects would need separate approval from town voters, Ryba said. If the town adds the high school library-computer center to the bond proposal, it too will require separate approval, he said.

Joint sewers considered

BOLTON — The town will consider joining Vernon in building a state-funded septic system to serve homes around Bolton Lake, the Board of Selectmen agreed Tuesday night.

The selectmen agreed to inform Vernon officials of their interest in the idea after hearing a report from Water Pollution Advisory Committee Chairman Michael Zizka.

He told selectmen that, contrary to what they were told last month, Vernon doesn't plan to lay sewers around the lake.

Zizka said Vernon town officials told him they were actually considering community septic systems in lake neighborhoods. The state would pay 80 percent of the cost of installing such a system if Vernon goes it alone, Vernon officials told Zizka. If Bolton joins Vernon and installs such systems in the lake neighborhoods within Bolton boundaries, the state will pay 100 percent of the cost to both towns, Vernon officials told Zizka.

Zizka had consulted with Charles Vassilopoulos, Vernon's environmental health officer, and Charles Pitkat, the director of Vernon's Water Pollution Control Authority.

Vernon officials first discussed the issue in October with Bolton Building Official Calvin Hutchinson. Hutchinson came away with the impression that Vernon first considered the idea of installing multi-acre septic systems to serve houses on the Vernon side of the Bolton lakes, then switched to the idea of extending town sewers to the lake district.

Zizka said Vassilopoulos and Pitkat told him they have not yet proposed any sites for community septic systems. Bolton First Selectman Henry P. Ryba asked Tuesday whether there is even enough suitable land to contain such systems for the area under consideration.

Zizka said the high number and small lot size of existing homes near the lake would mean future individual septic failures.

Coleco: dolls, computers — but mostly hype

The ultimate sales impact of Cabbage Patch dolls and Adam home computers — two well-publicized products from Coleco Industries — is anybody's guess.

Dan Dorfman
Syndicated Columnist

But what's clear is that any words on the subject from Coleco's two top officers — brothers Arnold and Leonard Greenberg, the respective tony president and chairman — should be taken with a grain of salt. This is based on their repeated failure to deliver on their glowing promises, as amply demonstrated in their reports to Coleco shareholders over the past 10 years.

What emerges — based on a review of Coleco's annual reports dating back to 1973 — is a series of rosy forecasts that turned out to be worthless 60 percent of the time. In numerous cases, the projected results were far worse than anybody might have imagined.

As it turned out, 1974 earnings fell more than 50 percent — with Coleco reporting 15 cents a share, vs. 32 cents in 1973.

The projection for 1975 was clear and unequivocal: "We will record a significant increase in earnings..." The result: 1975 net plummeted to a penny a share.

The 1978 performance was a fiasco, but you wouldn't have guessed that from the glowing words from the Greenbergs in the 1977 annual report.

In assessing 1981, the Greenbergs, in the 1980 annual report, wrote: "Although our business activity for the first three months of the year has been at a somewhat more moderate rate than was the case a year ago, we expect the last nine months will be even stronger for Coleco than the comparable year-ago period."

THE RESULT: Earnings tumbled nearly 45 percent to $1.01 a share from $1.83 in 1980. The 1982 showing was a good one as Coleco's earnings, adjusted for a 100 percent stock dividend, rose to $2.90 a share.

projection, but it badly overstated its production capabilities. Coleco, in its 1982 annual, noted that "Coleco has long possessed the ability to turn out in short notice high-volume quality products in our own well-equipped facilities in the United States, as well as in contract facilities in the Orient."

The big production delays in Adam shipments — practically a replay of similar problems Coleco had in 1977 with its Teletar game components from the Orient — unmistakably showed that just the opposite is so.

Obviously no one can argue with a highly skeptical O'glove when he declares that "any projection from Coleco has to be seriously questioned..." The reaction from the Greenbergs on their bum forecasting record? Alas, no luck. Leonard was out of the country and Arnold didn't return phone calls.
