subject to a penalty, note. The penalty is at a 16 percent annual rate from Jan. 1 to June 30, 1983, and an 11 percent annual rate from July 1 to April 15, '84. If you are contesting any proposed deficiencies of the IRS for pre-1983 years, or have refunds on which interest is due, note: Interest on these is figured at a 16 percent annual rate for the period Jan. 1 to June 30, 1983, and at an 11 percent rate from July 1, '83, to June 30, 1984. U.S./World In Brief

Gulf war intensifies

LONDON — Iran said today it launched another offensive in the Persian Gulf War and had smashed through Iraqi lines, advancing to within artillery range of Iraq's key Baghdad-Basra highway, Iraq said the attack had been repelled.

The official Iranian news agency IRNA, monitored in London, announced the latest attack code-named "Val Fajr 6 (Dawn-6)."

The war was to be the subject of talks in London today between Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Saudi Crown Prince Abdul Aziz, London's Times reported.

Britain might intervene "in certain circumstances" with the United States to secure the oil supplier threatened by the Gulf war, Mrs. Thatcher said Tuesday.

The Pentagon confirmed a U.S. battle fleet is in the northern Arabian Sea to protect American interests.

French roadblocks continue

PARIS — French truck drivers, rejecting a series of government concessions, again rolled their rigs across vital highways today, creating the worst traffic jams of a six-day protest.

Police reported 600 trucks were crippling approaches to Paris, including the vital northern link to Charles de Gaulle International Airport.

The national highway services said the number of truck blockades of French highways tripled from Tuesday, with 142 big rig blockades reported across the country in the most widespread roadblocks of the six-day-old protest.

Court to hear race case

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court is stepping into the middle of a touchy custody battle over a white child who was taken from her mother after she remarried a black man.

The justices hear arguments today over a Florida judge's ruling that it would not be in the best interests of a white child to remain with her mother, Linda Sidoti Palmore, after she married a black man.

Melaine Lynn Sidoti, 6, was removed from her mother's care because a state judge found "social stigmatization" was sure to come because of her mother's remarriage to a black man.

Grannie captures escapee

BRADEN, Tenn. — An escaped murderer packing a shotgun proved no match for a Bible-quoting 73-year-old grandmother who disarmed him with a dose of old-time religion and then insisted he finish his bacon and eggs before returning to prison.

Louise DeGraffried didn't flinch when she saw Riley Arzeneus, 26, marching her husband into their rural home at gunpoint Tuesday.

"Put your gun down. I'm a Christian woman and I don't want no violence," she told him.

Arzeneus, one of five "armed and extremely dangerous" convicts who broke out of Fort Pillow State Prison Saturday, meekly obeyed, placing his shotgun on a table.

Irish gunmen sought

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Security forces today are dragging a dragnet around a village in efforts to find suspected Irish nationalist terrorists who escaped after a gunbattle in which two civilians and a soldier were killed.

In addition to the dead soldier, the first killed in the British province this year, another was wounded in the firefight Tuesday night and in critical condition in a Belfast hospital.

The incident occurred in the village of Dunloy in County Antrim, a well-known tourist area some 40 miles north of Belfast and brought the 1984 death toll to 12 in violence in Northern Ireland.

Vietnamese prepare strikes

BANGKOK, Thailand — Thai military chief Gen. Arthit Kamlang-ek said he believed Vietnamese occupation forces in Cambodia were preparing to use air strikes against anti-Hanoi guerrillas.

A clandestine guerrilla broadcast claimed rebel forces killed 80 Vietnamese soldiers and wounded more than 100 others in recent fighting.

Labor loses battle on bankruptcy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled unanimously today that companies on the verge of bankruptcy can cancel union contracts, a move denounced by labor unions recently when it occurred in the beleaguered airline industry.

The justices said firms may cancel union contracts as long as a U.S. Bankruptcy judge agrees.

Writing for the court, Justice William Rehnquist said Congress knew how to exempt collective bargaining agreements from bankruptcy proceedings and could have done so if it wished.

"Its failure to do so in this instance indicates that Congress intends that the (bankruptcy laws) apply to all collective bargaining agreements" covered by the National Labor Relations Act, Rehnquist said.

The court left open the possibility that labor groups could have some say in bankruptcy proceedings, ruling that "a somewhat different standard should govern the decision of the Bankruptcy Court to allow rejection of a collective-bargaining agreement."

While five members of the court also ruled a debtor cannot be found guilty of an unfair labor practice for abrogating a labor contract, four justices said they would rule the National Labor Relations Act should allow for a finding that an unfair labor practice occurred if the firm makes changes in its contract after filing for bankruptcy.

About the time the court heard arguments in the case last October, the issue took on national significance when Continental Airlines announced it was filing for bankruptcy and said it would not honor its union contracts.

Continental employees charged the firm was declaring bankruptcy to shield itself from the labor contract so it could cut its work force by two-thirds, slash pay in half and impose longer working hours.

Continental shut down for two days in September, stranding thousands of passengers, and declared bankruptcy because a financial forecast showed the firm would not be able to pay its debts.

The court acted today on a case involving the New Jersey firm, Bilidisco & Bilidisco, which filed for bankruptcy in April 1980.

Hawaii faces massive strike

HONOLULU (UPI) — Union leaders representing 40,000 state and county employees expressed pessimism about prospects for contract agreements only hours before the deadline for a potentially crippling statewide strike.

The strike would be the largest in Hawaii's history and affect schools, medical care, sports events, public sanitation, the courts and a variety of other government services. It was scheduled to start at 6 a.m. (11 a.m. EST).

Wary government and union negotiators made a last-ditch effort to settle their differences, mainly on pay. Leaders of the 9,800 blue-collar, hospital and prison workers.

James Yasuda, the state's chief negotiator, agreed the situation was desperate. "The hour is getting late," he said. "I don't know what the formula is."

Because it appeared likely that the 2100 members of the Hawaii State Teachers Association would strike, officials canceled classes in all public schools today.

Although the 2,700 members of the University of Hawaii Professional Assembly also threatened to join the walkout, university officials said they were determined to keep the institution open.

Government offices issued a flurry of announcements of services to be canceled or reduced in the event of a strike.

CBO says Reagan underestimated deficit

By Elaine S. Povich
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The non-partisan Congressional Budget Office today projected President Reagan's proposed fiscal 1985 budget would result in a $192 billion deficit, $12 billion higher than the president estimates.

The annual Reagan presented Feb. 1 projected the deficit would be $180 billion in fiscal 1985, which begins Oct. 1, and gradually would decline to $123 billion by 1989. That estimate was based largely on a prediction of sharply declining interest rates.

But the independent CBO, in its estimate of Reagan's budget, said the deficit would steadily increase: to $192 billion in 1985, $211 billion in 1986, $233 billion in 1987, $241 billion in 1988 and $248 billion in 1989.

"The bulk of this difference results from different long-run economic assumptions, primarily with respect to interest rates," the report said. "The remainder is the result of technical estimating factors."

"The deficit this year is about $195 billion.

As an example, the administration predicts the three-month Treasury bill interest rate will drop from its current level of more than 9 percent to 5 percent by 1989 due largely to declining inflation.

The CBO, on the other hand, estimates the interest rates will only drop slightly by the end of the decade, to 7.8 percent.

The Treasury bill rate is indicative of the level of other interest rates, like those paid to service the huge federal debt.

"Most economists agree that federal deficits of the size projected will keep interest rates higher than they would be otherwise," the report said, stressing that cutting the deficit is imperative to reducing interest rates.

With Reagan's two-party panel on the deficit still talking but lacking agreement on ways to chop the debt, Senate Finance Committee chairman Robert Dole, R-Kan., planned today to outline his own deficit-reduction proposal. The debt panel has scheduled its second meeting for Thursday.

In a luncheon speech to the National Press Club today, Dole planned to suggest a list of proposals, including changes in tax shelters and interest-free loans, as well as increases in some patient-paid Medicare premiums.

Dole's panel voted 15-1 last year to come up with a deficit-reduction package by Feb. 15. But that date fell in the middle of the just-ended congressional recess.

Dole's aides say he wants to move quickly on his deficit-reduction package.

In the House, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., has his own package of debt-cutting proposals ready.

Former president of Argentina faces trial

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Former military president Leopoldo Galtieri was arrested on the orders of an armed forces tribunal for his role in the defeat of Argentina in the Falkland Islands war with Britain.

Galtieri was arrested Tuesday and taken to the Campo de Mayo army base just outside Buenos Aires after nine hours of questioning by the Supreme Council of the armed forces.

Adm. Jorge Anaya, the hawkish commander, said to have been the main proponent of the Argentine invasion of the Falklands that sparked the war, was to appear today before the tribunal and could also be detained afterwards, military sources said.

The council is prosecuting top officers for their responsibility for the interest rate will drop from its current level of more than 9 percent to 5 percent by 1989 due largely to declining inflation.

The CBO, on the other hand, estimates the interest rates will only drop slightly by the end of the decade, to 7.8 percent.

islands since the early 19th century when they were declared a Crown Colony by Britain.

Galtieri, an army general who served as president during the 74-day war, was forced into retirement after the defeat.

Galtieri and Anaya already have been charged by a special military commission with failure to provide troops with proper wartime provisions and support, which it proven to be correct, calls for either a long prison sentence or the death penalty.

Galtieri and Anaya, along with Air Force Brig. Gen. Basilio Lami Dozo, comprised the three-man military junta that ruled Argentina at the time of the invasion.

Lami Dozo also was charged by the military commission with leadership failures during the war, but he faces only a long prison term.

District directors unhappy they didn't know of survey

Three directors of the Eighth Utilities District objected Tuesday night to the fact that they knew nothing about a proposal for a district ambulance service until they had read of it in the press. The objections came from Samuel Longest, Willard Marvin and Gordon Lassow, district president. Directors Thomas Landers and Joseph Tripp told their fellow directors there was no intent to keep them in the dark about the proposal.

Fiano files new plans

Bolton attorney Lawrence A. Fiano Tuesday applied to the Planning and Zoning Commission to have the zoning of 28.7 acres off Keeney Street changed from Rural Residence to Residence A to allow for development of about 37 single-family houses. A previous request by Fiano to have the land zoned Planned Residence Development was defeated Feb. 6. Although the PZC zoning to FRD, a petition opposing the plans made a 4-1 vote necessary for approval.

Panel kills new song

HARTFORD (UPI) — A legislative committee today killed a bill that would have replaced "Yankee Doodle" as the state song with a tune written by a Deep River man. The Government Administration and Elections Committee voted 14-4 to kill the bill that would have designated "We're Proud of Connecticut," written by James A. Pennypacker, as the official state song.

Court to decide right to tie

"I would feel like being an executioner and I don't want to be and I would refuse to tie," he said. But he said that, with the approval of the court and the hospital, he would not refuse to sign an order to take Miss Foody off the machine. Death would result within minutes of the unhooking, he predicted.

Parents testified

The parents testified that they have been spending at least 10 hours per day by their daughter's bedside since her arrival at the hospital. Leo B. Flaherty, the Foodys' lawyer, as well as others representing them and the hospital, asked Judge Hennessey for a prompt decision to prevent further grief. Her ruling could be permanent, leaving the care of Miss Foody up to her doctor, her parents and the hospital, or mandatory, demanding that they either do or do not turn off the respirator.

Manchester struggles to top Wethersfield

By Len Auster Sports Editor
WETHERSFIELD — When a good team plays poorly and a poor team plays well you may wind up with a competitive game. That's what happened here Tuesday night. Manchester High, under the pressure of having to play well to gain a berth in the C.T.L. Playoff, did not have one of its better outings of the season but prevailed over a scrappy Wethersfield High club, 52-49.

Manchester did take a 10-7 lead at the turn and looked like it was going to blow matters open early in the second period. The Indians tallied eight unanswered points for an 18-7 lead. Another spurt, led by John Janodis's six points off the bench, widened the advantage to 26-12 with 4:09 left in the half. The Indians, during all this, didn't record a rebound. They didn't record their first until a minute was left in the half. They wound up with 14 against 17 rebounds for Wethersfield in the deliberately and sloppily, played game.

The home-standing Eagles scrapped back and slimmed the halftime deficit in half to 31-24. The Indian lead was still seven, 39-32, midway through the third stanza before Simmons hit three open 15-foot jumpers to help Wethersfield trail at the turn, 41-40. "That was just some poor defense on our part," Pearson said of Simmons' scoring spree. Simmons finished with a game-high 22 points.

The Eagles won the fourth quarter, but almost had the lead, but Keavney's initial shot went in and out, as did a follow by Simmons. That could have made it real interesting. "We just didn't make the big shot when we needed it," Heimgartner said. "It was a good game for us, a lot better than the last time," he added, recalling the first meeting taken by Manchester by a 54-27 reading. A Ken Willis 15-foot jumper and Russ Anselmo free throw enabled the Indians to lead, 46-45, with 4:39 to go. Wethersfield tried desperately to get back into it but Willis hit a jumper in the lane and two second half by the Indians to help keep Wethersfield in contention. The Eagles had 15 first-half giveaways but settled down.

Olympics not a disaster

Were the Winter Olympics in Sarajevo a disaster for the United States? Some people would like you to believe so. They compare the eight medals to the 12 won in the 1980 games in Lake Placid and say we're regressed. Or have we. Or is it also a possibility that Americans put too much credence in medals, as Peter Carruthers suggests. Carruthers and his sister, Kitty, won the silver medal in pair figure skating. Following their performance, the Carruthers were asked if they felt it was worthy of the gold medal.

Thoughts Len Auster Sports Editor
Hamilton succumbed to the pressure of the Olympics. Yet he didn't draw nearly as much criticism as the hockey team, that was seeded seventh and finished seventh. "IF YOU CONSIDER a top 10 finish a good showing, then the U.S. had some spectacular results. The U.S. had three of the top six women's figure skaters in Rosalynn Summers (2nd), Tiffany Chin (4th) and Elaine Zayak (8th). Summers apparently has her mind set on joining Ice Capades but look for the 16-year-old Chin to emerge as the next U.S. world champion. There was also a fourth place finish by Jeff Hastings of Norwich, Vt., in 90-meter ski jumping. That was a pleasant sport, too, if all kinds of talk about getting this group ready for the '88 Games. But ski jumping is far from an American sport. Speedskating didn't turn out as 1980 but what should be remembered is Eric Heiden had a good Olympic that year, not the U.S. team. And it's good to imagine the U.S. becoming a super power in the sport with only two artificial rinks in the country, one at Lake Placid and the other at West Jost, Wisconsin. The four-man bobsled piloted by Jeff Jost took a surprising fifth. But not many people noticed. How can you get excited about a sport where there is only one bobsled run in the entire country, that at Lake Placid.

Surprise defense wins for East cagers

By Rich Cahill Herald Sports Writer
WINDSOR — One had one of his better games of the season, and the other had one of his worst. As usual, though, Jim Dargati and Chris Bruone were the most obvious reasons for an East Catholic victory here Tuesday night. Windsor had a 17-7 advantage after that period, as the East offense had difficulty getting untracked. In the second period, Dargati became the East offense. He scored 16 points in the period, but East trailed 28-23 at the half. After three periods, Windsor still led by five, 41-36. Through the first three quarters, the Eagles committed one in the fourth quarter, and the help of two by Windsor, took the lead in the first minute of the period. First, Theriault hit two free throws to make the score 43-40. Then, Smith stole the inbound pass and scored to cut Windsor's advantage to one. The next inbound pass also was stolen by Smith. He fed Dargati for a twisting layup which sent the Eagles in the lead, 44-43. The Eagles were still up by a single point, 44-43, when Smith missed the front end of a one-and-one free throw opportunity with 1:43 to play. Windsor held for a final shot, but was unable to get the ball inside against East's collapsing zone. That forced Zia to try a evening. But, with four seconds left in the game, Bruone preserved East's lead by blocking a shot by Windsor guard Bob Tacey. There were other, less visible, reasons for East's win. Senior forward John Theriault pulled down a season-high 13 rebounds and also scored nine points. Senior forward Joe Smith scored 11 points, and his two fourth-quarter steals led to the baskets which put East in the lead for the first time since early in the opening period. Windsor had a 17-7 advantage after that period, as the East offense had difficulty getting untracked. In the second period, Dargati became the East offense. He scored 16 points in the period, but East trailed 28-23 at the half. After three periods, Windsor still led by five, 41-36. Georgetown's Patrick Ewing finds himself on the back of St. John's Mark Jackson (13) in Big East Conference clash Tuesday night in Landover, Md., at the Capital Centre. The Hoyas' 7-foot junior center wound up with only 11 points, two in the second half, as the

Exceptional Chris Mullin pivotal in upset of Hoyas

By United Press International
Though he really didn't have much choice, Georgetown coach John Thompson looked on the bright side of his team's 75-71 loss to St. John's Tuesday night and offered an honest appraisal. "They ran, and that was a surprise to us," said Thompson. "St. John's is usually very conservative in the fast break is something they don't ordinarily do." St. John's opened up a 23-6 lead with 11:33 to play in the first half. The Redmen were 2-for-6 from the free-throw line in the final two minutes of the game, and Horace Broadnax brought the Hoyas to within 72-69 with 48 seconds to play. But Mark Jackson connected on 1-of-2 free throws and added a slam after a Mullin steal to put the game out of reach. Georgetown was led by David Wingate with 13 points. Center Pat Ewing was held to 11 points and lost in the first half. "We tried to keep him (Ewing)

Air raids by Israel continuing

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli warplanes today bombed "terrorist" targets in the mountains east of Beirut for the third time this week, the Israeli military command said. Two buildings in Bahamoun which served as terrorist bases and headquarters were attacked as was a 130mm artillery position northeast of Mansouriyeh. The command said, "All Israeli planes returned safely to base." The Israelis have warned they would continue raids in Lebanon in an effort to keep Palestinian guerrillas from infiltrating positions taken by Druze and Moslem militias fighting the government of Lebanese President Amin Gemayel. The attack, the third this week, followed Israeli air raids in the Bahamoun area Sunday and Tuesday. In the Sunday strike, the jets also destroyed a saw mill near the coastal town of Dannon, which Israeli military spokesmen described as a "terrorist" position. Israeli leaders have pledged relentless strikes against suspected Palestinian guerrillas in the rebel-controlled Shouf Mountains to prevent them from re-establishing strongholds in the area. The air raids also have been seen as a strong signal to Druze and Shiite Moslem militiamen to keep guerrillas away from Israeli lines in southern Lebanon. Israeli troops pulled out of the Shouf and redeployed further south along the Awali River last September. "Maybe these raids are helping somebody in Lebanon but the target of these raids is to attack the PLO wherever they are," Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Wednesday upon his return from meetings in Belgium and Holland with European Common Market leaders. Meanwhile in Beirut, Lebanese army units sympathetic to anti-government rebels were poised to take over Moslem west Beirut as warring factions in the city ignored an appeal from the nation's Christian and Moslem leaders to lay down their arms. The troops, led by a Shiite Moslem officer, guarded the streets of the Moslem half of the city after a night of heavy shelling and clashes along the Green Line dividing the city killed at least 15 people and wounded 70 others, police said. The renegade troops stayed away from the Green Line, where their former comrades who remain loyal to the nation's Christian President Amin Gemayel clashed with Moslem militiamen. The Green Line divides the Moslem and Christian halves of the city. Moslem and Christian religious leaders joined Wednesday for the first time in nine years to urge Lebanon's warring factions to lay down their arms, but their appeal went unheeded. Police said by midnight Wednesday, Beirut hospitals had reported at least 15 people killed and 70 wounded. Among the casualties was a French soldier hit at a post in the southern suburbs. The French are the only participants of the original four-nation "peace-keeping" force that have not announced a withdrawal from Beirut. Other Lebanese Army units sympathetic to anti-government rebels were poised to take over positions being evacuated by U.S. Marine peace-keepers at the Beirut international airport. President Reagan, in a Washington news conference, defended his decision to redeploy the Marines to ships offshore and said they would be sent back to Beirut if there was a chance they could continue their peace-keeping mission. Reagan conceded that "things don't look bright" in Lebanon but denied that the move was an admission of defeat.

Committee studies policies

By Sarah E. Hall Herald Reporter. Right-to-die issues, the advance of technology and questions raised by research techniques have pushed medical ethics to the forefront in the past couple of years, says Michael Gallacher, acting director of Manchester Memorial Hospital. So 11 months ago, the hospital complied with a national accreditation committee recommendation by forming an ethics committee. A minister, four physicians, a registered nurse and a lawyer who is also a hospital incorporator have volunteered to wrestle with the tough moral questions facing the medical community. They themselves have been in the limelight lately, because of the committee's link to a lawsuit brought by a South Windsor couple who want their terminally ill daughter unhooked from a hospital respirator. THE "DO NOT RESUSCITATE" policy prepared by the ethics committee did not apply to Sandra Z. Foody, the South Windsor patient, Gallacher said. It does apply in cases where terminally ill patients, their physicians and family have agreed that if the patient suffers a cardiac or respiratory arrest, the hospital will not "resort to heroics" to save them. There's a special protocol if the patient is unconscious or a child, Gallacher said. In any case, a written "DNR order" must be in place if the hospital is not to try to revive a particular patient who has stopped breathing or whose heart has stopped beating. The order must be renewed every three days, he added. "If there's no order, we will resuscitate the patient." That order was what was lacking in the case of Sandra Foody, who stopped breathing at her parents' home and was brought to the hospital by ambulance in December. "WE HAVE A POLICY at the hospital, that if someone comes in with a cardiac or respiratory arrest, we establish an airway," Gallacher said. "In Miss Foody's case, we didn't have the time to stand back and have a nice long discussion about whether we should resuscitate the patient." Gallacher said he believes there is a DNR order now in place for Sandra Foody if she should suffer a cardiac arrest while attached to the respirator, but he could not say.

Baldrige brings GOP's economic message to Manchester

By Alex Girelli Herald Reporter. President Ronald Reagan will run on a platform of reducing the budget deficit and will be able to do so in 1985 after being re-elected with a mandate from the voters, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige told a Republican gathering in Manchester Wednesday night. Baldrige spoke to about 230 people at the Lincoln Day Dinner at the Army and Navy Club. No one could remember the last time a Cabinet member appeared in Manchester. The event was arranged by Republicans of Manchester and five neighboring towns. Baldrige said it would be impossible to get bipartisan support for budget reduction measures to reduce the deficit in the election year, but the election mandate would empower the president to succeed in the next year. THE NATION is not only in a stage of economic recovery, but in fact, is now in an expansion phase, he said. Baldrige said the Commerce Department has to aggregate the millions of figures that determine the Gross National Product, and "we see nothing but a normal recovery. All the figures are pointing the right way." Baldrige said the federal government and business will not find themselves in competition in the future. Baldrige was introduced by Roger Eddy, state Republican treasurer. Eddy said everyone in politics should have a goal. He said his goal was to introduce important people at dinners. "At least I have been asked to introduce a very important person," he said. Many Republican stalwarts were asked to stand for recognition at the dinner and a lot of people were acknowledged for their contribution to making the event a success. Ironically, the person most cited was a Democrat. Almost every speaker, including Baldrige, praised the work of Dutch Fogarty, a Democrat on the town Board of Directors who doubles as maitre d' at the club.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige (center) chats with Vivian Ferguson and Curtis Smith, Republican town chairman, at a reception at the home of Dr. and Mrs. H. John Malone Wednesday night. Baldrige, speaker at the Lincoln Day Dinner at the Army and Navy Club, met a number of area Republican leaders and rank-and-file party members at the reception and dinner.
