Miami calm doesn't last

MIAMI (UPI) - Young blacks enraged at an all-white jury's swift acquittal of policeman Luis Alvarez lay in wait for motorists driving through Overtown Friday and police rushed to seal off the ghetto for a second time.

A few hours after black City Manager Howard Gary declared "This town is calm," police returned to the area to put back up the barricades ordered pulled down.

"It is business as usual and we anticipate being this way this evening and we don't think we ought to overreact," Gary said, shortly before a motorist was injured by rocks and bricks hurled at his car. Sixteen people were injured, none seriously.

Over 300 people were arrested during the night and another eight young looters were apprehended early Friday afternoon, but massive "police response teams" of up to 20 carsloads of riot-gear officers raced to trouble spots to keep violence from mounting.

Ghetto schools were virtually empty Friday.

The 65-block Overtown ghetto, where Alvarez killed a young black in 1982, setting off a three-day riot, was reopened to traffic Friday morning but those whites who ventured in were driven out by rocks and bottles and it, along with the Coconut Grove section, was sealed off again.

"Get out of here," screamed a youth hurling a brick at the car of UPI Florida Editor Kurt Frank. "Get out of here now!"

"It's going to get real bad tonight," said Overtown resident Marcel Junist. "They just want to be throwing rocks. I hear they'll be shooting, too. It's all because a black man was killed by a white cop and the cop got off. It's going to be bad, real bad."

Gary refused to impose a curfew or close businesses, saying closing "all the bars and all the gas stations when we only have a small problem confined to a small area in my estimation brings about panic. We will act depending upon the situation."

A member of the all-white jury that found the Cuban-born Alvarez, 24, innocent of manslaughter in the killing of Nevell Johnson Jr. told the Miami News they needed little more than two hours to reach a verdict because the state's case was "mostly baloney."

"They didn't have a sufficient case to convict him," Donald R. Moore told the Miami News.

Alvarez could not be reached for comment.

Nevell J. Daughtrey, director of the Business Assistance in Liberty City told blacks. "There is no win in the streets."

Daughtrey said he prayed there would be no further violence "because a whole lot of people, most of them black, will end up being hurt."

He accused the bulk of the rioters of being mere "professional criminals."

"A lot of people see an opportunity to rip off or steal," he said. "Many people say the people who riot didn't get anything from jobs programs and economic assistance programs, but the people who riot got what they are looking for. They are looking to rip off somebody and they did."

The Liberty City ghetto, where 18 people died in a riot that burst out in 1980 when a jury acquitted policemen of beating to death a black motorcyclist, was relatively calm Friday.

But hundreds of school-age youths milled around the streets of Overtown and when Frank tried to drive through, youths pelted his car with rocks at an intersection near the video arcade where Johnson died.

With two minutes, eight police cruisers howled to the scene and 16 officers armed with rifles leaped out and took up positions with rifles in hand.

Five minutes later, Frank's car was attacked again near the intersection, its windshield shattered by rocks.

Police said by daybreak Friday more than 300 people were booked on charges ranging from loitering to looting, but Dade County Corrections Lt. N. Charron at the county jail said none were actually held.

"We gave them sandwiches and Kool-Aid," he said, "then the city of Miami took them home."

Tasty education

Friday's "Opportunity Day" at the Cornerstone Christian School offered a tasty education for Sean McCavanagh, who is grabbing a quick lick of chocolate during a candy-making session. Students got a taste of everything from chocolate-making to videotaping to macramé to the streets of Hartford. More pictures on page 5

Verplanck School what would happen if they died and left children without anyone to provide for them.

She drew spontaneous applause.

Another young woman told the residents she was an abused child.

"As I grew older I began to understand that what was going on in my family was not normal."

She said she would have had no place to turn if it were not for the group home where she lives on Summit Street.

Theresa Kelly, the houseparent of the group home on Summit Street for six girls, was on of those who spoke. She said being a houseparent was one of the greatest pleasures in her life. She has been a houseparent for 17 years and has been in Manchester for six years.

Neighbors of the Summit Street group home, Richard LaPointe and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schneider, sought to reassure residents they had nothing to fear from a group home. LaPointe said the home was first-occupied by boys. "We were a little nervous at first," he said. He said he learned he had nothing to fear from the group home youths. "But I fear some of the other kids in the neighborhood and some of them."

"Don't be afraid of a group home. It'll work out. Especially if you bend a little."

Mrs. Schneider said the girls in the group home were excellent baby sitters for her children. "Maybe they look for what most of us take for granted," she said.

Schneider said he and his wife did not know there was a group home nearby when they bought their house. "What you've got to remember," he said, "is that they are looking for somebody to care about them."

One man in the audience asked him if he did not get his house for less money because there was a group home next to it.

Schneider said no. He said the price was lower than it might have been because the Lauren Cable of Buckland Street married Ronald Gankofskie of Windham last December.

On Thursday, the ladies at Trinity Church, the church Lauren attended, feted the young woman at a bridal shower.

There were the usual things, of course. A cake with fancy frosting. Pretty decorations. An iron, stone-ware, and sheets and towels.

And a 30-pound pig named Hamilton.

"My daughter always wanted a pig. To go with the cow," explains her father Norman Cable.

The cow?

As one might have guessed, this wasn't the ordinary, run-of-the-mill shower.

The surprise present spent most of the day Thursday holed up at the Cables' garage, after the bride's mother, Shirley Cable, picked him up from a pig farm in Glastonbury.

As the evening's finale, he was rolled in, sleeping like a baby, in a round steel drum. "I was really surprised," says Lauren. "But it seemed like something my bride would think of."

Why a pig at a shower in a church? The bride likes animals, for one thing. She majored in animal husbandry at Rockville High School, and just last April bought a month-old calf to raise as a school project. (That's where the cow comes in.)

She always wanted to live on a farm, her father says, and she got her wish when she married the young Windham farmer; they settled into married life with their cow and a few rabbits. They plan to breed the cow, named Peaches, when she's older.

But the cow, apparently, got lonely up there on the Windham farm. Rabbits and people are pretty good company, of course, but what that cow needed was a real friend. Someone from the same social strata. A peer group. Someone who wanted to sleep in the barn at night.

Luckily Lauren's mother came to the rescue. She knew exactly what to do. She drove to Glastonbury and asked to buy a pig for her daughter's shower. A pig to go with the cow.

The old farmer was a bit surprised. He said he'd been in business 63 years, and had never seen anything like it - a pig in a shower at a church.

Not that Mrs. Cable wasn't a bit nervous about the whole thing. Originally, she had planned to pull the pig into the church in a little red wagon.

Mrs. Cable didn't want to ruin the quiet, dignified evening planned by the church women. "Have you ever tried to catch a pig?" her husband asks. Fortunately, an experienced neighbor came up with the steel drum idea. And Hamilton was just as well-behaved as could be.

What was Lauren's reaction?

At first, when she saw the drum, she thought it contained another bunny. But when she looked inside, she saw Hamilton. "She screamed, 'Oh, my goodness!'," says her father says.

Mrs. Cable, of course, is relieved that the evening went off without a squeal. Hamilton's debut was a smashing success. "I've always liked to give things that were different," she says.

As for Hamilton, he was trucked home Thursday in the Gankofskies' pickup. "He slept most of the time," says Lauren. He spent the night in the truck, and this morning Lauren introduced him to his new quarters. "I was sitting in the pen with him and he was crawling all over me," she says.

She's going to have to deal with a little sibling rivalry, however. The books on animal husbandry didn't prepare her for this.

"The rest of the animals are jealous," Lauren says. "But they'll get over it."

Shirley Cable of Buckland Street poses with the newest family member, Hamilton. Mrs. Cable gave the pig to her daughter, Lauren Gankofskie, for a wedding shower gift.

Gemayel predicting 'historic agreement'

By Jack Redden United Press International

LAUSANNE, Switzerland - Lebanese President Amin Gemayel predicted Friday he and leaders of the Middle East nation's warring factions would reach an "historical" agreement that guarantees peace and dignity to the country's citizens.

Gemayel's spokesman, Michel Samaha, said the weeklong Lebanese peace conference was in its "final phase" and could be over by the weekend.

"We will reach a solution that guarantees dignity and liberty for all Lebanon," Gemayel predicted in an interview with French television.

Gemayel said he expected the conference to issue "a historical document which will be adopted by all and reflects the will of the different factions to end the war in Lebanon."

Samaha told reporters Gemayel was working with representatives of the other eight Lebanese leaders to produce "a synthesis of all written papers by the first day of the Lausanne conference was shattered by mortar and heavy machine-gun battles. Buckley is the third American abducted in west Beirut since Syrian-backed Shite and Druze Muslim militia troops seized the Moslem half of the capital from the Lebanese army Feb. 8.

Samaha played down the cease-fire violations along the line dividing Christian East Beirut from the Moslem west of the capital, calling them "normal" until a buffer zone is established to separate the warring parties.

Gemayel's spokesman declined to comment on the kidnapping of the U.S. diplomat, saying only that the Americans had been in touch with the Foreign Ministry and "there are contacts now going on."

Although the Lausanne conference had included discussion of a national unity government on the agenda, Samaha said the actual formation of a cabinet would not take place until the leaders get back in Lebanon.

Despite the prospect of a delay in presenting a joint position to the leaders, Gemayel's spokesman said, "I think it (the conference) will be finished over the weekend - maximum."

While aids to the Lebanese leaders continued the bargaining inside the luxury Beau Rivage Hotel, the key power at the conference, Syrian Vice President Abdul Halim Khaddam, was reported sightseeing in the Swiss mountains.

At first glance, the Urban Animals come on like punk rockers in their black T-shirts and roller skates. But the Houston, Texas, club actually comprises architects, building contractors, businessmen and artists.

Professionals turn night skaters

Unusual club calls Houston home

By Jay B. Lewis
United Press International

HOUSTON — At first glance, the Urban Animals come on like punk rockers, ruffling out of Houston's petrochemical mist, ghetto-blues blaring, looking eight-feet tall in their roller skates and black T-shirts.

Then you get closer and find you're talking to architects, businessmen, artists and building contractors, and the anxiety starts to fade as they explain who they are and where they're coming from.

And after awhile they start making a kind of convoluted sense, providing a real meaning to the legend of their T-shirts, "Skate or Die!"

There are just some people who need a little bit of excitement, says metal sculptor Scott Prescott, who founded the Urban Animals during a celebration of the Summer Solstice in 1979.

"I just wanted something to do where I didn't have to go to the disco and drink. Besides, I sweat when I dance, and you're not supposed to sweat at a disco."

From that beginning, the Animals evolved into a sort of social club.

Well, not a club, really, because there are no dues and all you have to do is show up and start skating. More like a gang, but not quite, since the Animals don't really have a leader.

Numbering about 200, with constant turnover around a core of maybe 25 people, the Urban Animals are almost a subculture, which has in common a first rate knack for coping with the pressures of urban life.

"Rather than fighting the urban experience, they take it for what it is and see what they can do with it," says group anthropologist Karen Ronald, 27.

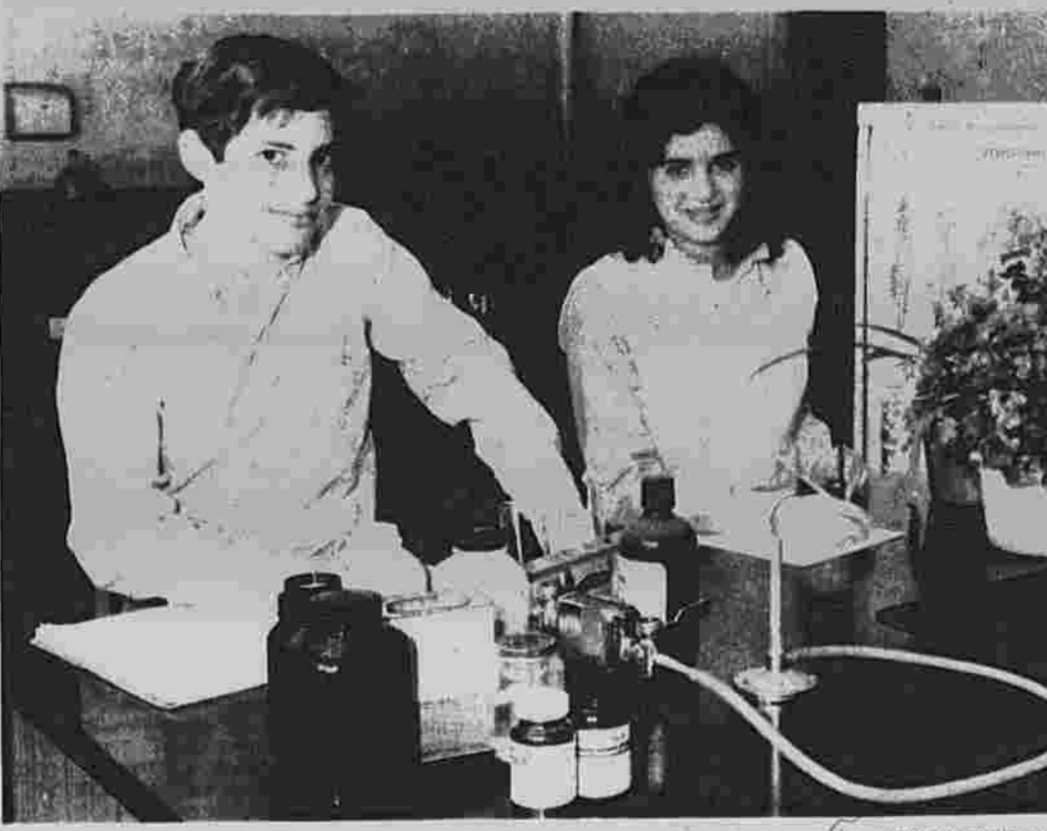

What they've done is learned to thrive in the urban landscape, rather than seeing themselves up and pretending it's not there.

"You don't have to live in the woods to be creative," says Ms. Ronald.

The Animals are also an athletic lot, constantly working out on the pavement. They've got the downtown parking garages marked off with ratings on the sidewalks, giving degree of difficulty and number of security guards.

Prescott's sculpture, "Viking Funeral," in which he took a junked car, carefully wrapped it around a tree at the edge of a city park, filled it with beer cans, and laid out a commentary on drunk driving.

"People kept seeing it and thinking it was a real wreck," Prescott says. "Finally the city put out a sign saying 'This is Art.' First time I ever saw the government define art."

Most in state regain power

Most of the 48,000 Connecticut residents who experienced a brief return to pre-electrical times regained their power Friday, three days after a surprise ice storm derailed utility lines.

About 1,300 utility illuminating customers, most in New Haven, Hamden, North Haven and West Haven, were still without service Friday afternoon, said spokesman Jack Dolan.

As we go to the door we're finding more out than had previously been reported," he said.

Post office site being eyed to expand Parkade parking

By Sarah Possell
Herald Reporter

The president of the company that owns half of the Manchester Parkade said Friday he is interested in buying the Broad Street post office, possibly to clear more parking space for Stop & Shop customers. If postal operations move elsewhere as the local postmaster hopes.

Manchester Postmaster Aiden Victoria said Friday he would like the Manchester Post Office mail processing plant on Main Street and the Broad Street delivery facility to be consolidated under one roof.

Victoria said those who work at the Broad Street station have long expected the loss of parking space. Employees now have to find space where they can along Broad Street.

"If they were going to move and space were available, I'd be interested," Wilder said. "I said to my people, 'If you find out anything, concrete, tell me.'" Wilder would not confirm that he would have the building torn down to make way for more Stop & Shop parking, but he said he is carefully monitoring the effect of the existing space limitation.

Victoria said he did not have a site in mind for a new central post office and the decision to move is not yet definite.

"I hope I pray," he said. He predicted it will be at least a year before any move. The official in charge of looking for a new site, Edward Defoe, of the U.S. Postal Service Connecticut Valley district, could not be reached for comment Friday.

Victoria said he, himself, had considered the Gerber Scientific Products building across the street at 161 Broad St., but he has rejected it as too small. Nor would merely moving across Broad Street solve the traffic problem faced by drivers.

Wilder Manley bought the Parkade property from a now-defunct Kings department store chain in 1981.

A Manchester man serving a six-and-a-half-year prison term for marijuana possession was convicted Friday of committing perjury during his October 1982 trial. He was sentenced to two more years in prison.

The perjury trial of Richard Fantasia, 28, took place before Judge Richard C. Noren Friday morning in Manchester Superior Court. After several hours of testimony, Noren found Fantasia guilty of lying when he testified that he had no drug record before his arrest on the marijuana charge in 1982.

Fantasia was one of nearly 40 people arrested in the Manchester area one night in October 1982. Police called it the largest roundup of area drug traffickers in Manchester history. He was charged with possession of more than 30 pounds of marijuana with intent to sell.

Fantasia's attorney in the perjury case, Hartford lawyer Gerald M. Klein, argued that the attorney who represented Fantasia during the October trial mistakenly told Fantasia that a drug-related charge stemming from a 1980 arrest had been reduced in plea bargaining to a lesser, non-drug-related charge.

Fantasia's attorney in the marijuana trial, John P. McKeon, testified that he told Fantasia that the original 1980 charge, conspiracy to violate state narcotics laws, had been reduced to breach of peace.

During the trial last fall Fantasia denied having a drug record when defense attorney McKeon posed the question and again when asked by the prosecutor, Deputy Assistant State's Attorney Peter Ponziari. Ponziari then produced Hartford court records which showed that Fantasia had actually pleaded guilty to possessing a controlled substance and was fined $65.

Noren apparently did not believe that Fantasia could have forgotten the exact nature of his 1980 scrape with the law. At the afternoon sentencing Noren brushed aside Klein's arguments that Fantasia had been singled out for persecution.

Compromise approved on water regulations

HARTFORD (UPI) — A compromise version of a bill to keep the state's water pollution control standards above federal requirements was approved Friday on a second go-around in the Legislature's Environment Committee.

Friday, 7:14 p.m. — Motor vehicle accident, Interstate 86 between exits 93 and 94 (Eight District).

As Fantasia's mother and sister looked on, Klein argued that Ponziari's recommendation of a three year additional sentence was unreasonable. The maximum penalty for perjury is five years in prison, a $5,000 fine or both.

Klein told Noren that officials convicted of perjury for lying to a grand jury in the New Britain job-selling scandal received sentences of no more than one or two months.

"I have to ask the court to think about which defendant has injured the system more," said Klein. He asked that the perjury sentence be made concurrent with the term Fantasia is already serving at Somers prison.

Fantasia, looking weary and subdued throughout the proceedings, shook his head when Noren finally announced the two-year additional sentence.

Everything's worth something at Cheney Hall

Even if you're not a history buff, you can't help getting caught up in the Cheney Hall restoration fever. When the members of the Cheney Hall Foundation met, no one from the public comes, but foundation members seem to generate their own enthusiasm. With all due respect to foundation chairman Herb Stevenson, it must be admitted that he does not always succeed in keeping two people from talking at once, the way students do in a lively class.

The ideas flow and blend so a reporter has a hard time afterward being sure who said what. What starts out as a suggestion quickly takes on the detail of a proposal.

And while some planning committees seem to take forever to come to a consensus and then labor long over how to develop a formal plan from it, the foundation just breezes along.

TAKE THE MATTER of the stage curtain, for instance. There is a big piece of it left. Don Kuehl wants to know what to do with it. Maybe it will have to be thrown away, but then again it could be cut up and the pieces sold as souvenirs. The foundation likes to find ways to get money for restoration.

But the curtain is dirty and it's old. Maybe it can't be cleaned or maybe it will fall apart when it is cleaned. It's a good bet that Peter DiRosa, a Manchester town director who runs a cleaning business, will be lured into this before long.

I was just beginning to envision a hank of thread carefully wrapped and somehow labeled: "This is thread from the stage curtain used at historic Cheney Hall in Manchester when the hall was the center of cultural and civic activity in town. Souvenir of the restoration of the 1860's."

While I was trying to figure out how I would display such a historic memento, I heard the word "laminated." I think it came from Jay Giles. It is logical, anyway, that such a thought would occur to the engineering mind, which is always putting things together in such a way that they keep each other intact.

Gasoline problem no problem to us

The idea was that regular gasoline would be available about as long as cars were around to use it, but the Environmental Protection Agency is now under pressure to speed the ban of leaded gas.

Illinois, Massachusetts, New York City and Chicago joined four environmental groups this week to petition EPA to ban regular gasoline by 1986.

At the moment, EPA is holding out for its original ban date of 1992. But facing 9 million lawbreakers who are using regular gas in cars designed to run on unleaded gas, and higher sales than predicted for regular gas, it is now studying three options:

- An immediate ban on leaded gas sales at self-serve pumps.
- Reducing the lead content of regular gas.
- Moving the ban up four years to 1988.

If the EPA were to order an immediate ban on regular gas, the oil industry predicts a three-cent-a-gallon increase in the price of gas and shortages as refineries find themselves unable to produce enough unleaded gas to meet demand.

One thing America doesn't need is a return to gas lines and higher prices.

Proponents of the regular gasoline ban are tossing around a $400 million estimate of the amount society would save in car repairs, pollution and children's medical bills.

Whether that guess is accurate or not is impossible to say, but it's obvious if the environmentalists get their way, every driver in the country will be paying through the nose to take care of a problem three cities should handle on their own.

Manchester Spotlight

Alex Girelli — Herald Reporter

NOW I HAD to shift my image. I saw a 2-inch square of fabric, maybe totally encased in plastic (historical purists will have to yield a little in the end).

The whole bit may not be a very important part of the restoration, but the process seems to be typical of the way words become images and images become accomplishments in the restoration.

When Stevenson said he had discovered where to find round tables for the dinner-theater party being planned at Cheney Hall in June, I found myself sitting at one of those tables enjoying my meal and a performance by the Little Theatre of Manchester. I even began to think what LTM might choose to do for the occasion. It has to be right. But LTM can figure that out better than I, so I won't give it any more thought.

In fact, maybe I had better stop thinking about the dinner at all.

After all, I was not one of the early supporters of the Cheney Hall restoration. In fact I expressed a lot of reservations about it.

Maybe I have no right to be among the celebrants. But I hope whoever has my seat has a good time, and saves me a piece of the curtain, or a least a strand of thread.

On vehicle maintenance

Director James F. Fogarty never passes up an opportunity to press his argument in favor of in-house maintenance of the town's motor vehicles. In fact, he is adamant on the topic.

The administration handed him another such opportunity at Tuesday's meeting of the Board of Directors when it asked the board to allocate $11,000 buy a pickup truck. It is to replace a truck in such bad shape that it was erroneously described as a flatbed because the body had decayed to the point where it was replaced by a wooden platform.

The purchase has been planned and the request was to have been in the budget for next year. Apparently the department was going to struggle along with it until Keith Champan, fleet manager, put his foot down and said it is absolutely unsafe. Fogarty did not object to the purchase. In fact he insisted the board had no choice.

BUT FOGARTY DID OBJECT to the fact that the department had spent $2,000 for repair of another truck that is in bad enough shape that it should be put out of service. He had done his homework and he came prepared. He had a list of parts for the repair, complete with prices he said were too high.

The question of in-house vehicle maintenance is one that has raged beneath the surface ever since the voters rejected the issuance of bonds to build a central maintenance garage. But the town is moving toward it, by hiring a fleet manager, by enlarging the highway garage, and by making provision for it in the park garage being built at Charter Oak Street.

No one seems to argue openly that the town should do all its own vehicle work. There are directors who have said that it is cheaper to farm out some things than to handle them in house, but no one has applying that argument to vehicle maintenance.

Either Fogarty thinks the town is not moving fast enough in the direction he wants to take, or he is making sure, by his public complaints, that nobody sabotages the process.

Flier's career in ruins

WASHINGTON — Cmdr. Emory Brown is a decorated fighter pilot whose dedication to the Navy has backfired on him and wrecked his career.

Brown has always been gun-glo. A 1964 Annapolis graduate, he numbers among his 34 decorations the Distinguished Flying Cross, 16 Air medals and four Navy Commendation medals for valor in the skies over Vietnam. He also received the Navy's highest non-combat award for risking his life to save three crewmen during a catastrophic fire aboard the carrier Forrestal in the Tonkin Gulf.

In 1979, the Navy eagerly participated in the filming of a movie — "The Final Countdown" — that has been a bomb to recruiting. Brown not only served as the film's technical adviser, he also directed, coordinated and flew in the movie's spectacular aerial sequences of F-14s in action.

But Brown went a little overboard to make sure the film was exciting and realistic. To avoid bureaucratic delays, he paid some of the filming expenses out of his own pocket and was then reimbursed by the film's producer. The total reimbursement was $5,400.

Rumor-brokers brashly accused Brown of skirting flight-line regulations in return for the payment. He was indicted and convicted in federal court on charges of conflict of interest and accepting a gratuity.

BROWN HAS APPEALED

the conviction and emphatically denies the charges. An internal document filed in his behalf notes: "It defies credulity to think that an officer of Cmdr. Brown's distinction, career and dedication would risk his reputation for the sake of nearly 20 years for $5,400. At worst, Cmdr. Brown has failed to comply with the letter of Navy regulations — has failed to 'follow the book'."

Brown believes one of the reasons he was convicted is that he took the advice of counsel and pleaded guilty to a single conflict-of-interest count. "I was on the verge of despair over the charges," Brown told his associate Donald Goldberg, explaining the plea. He said he thought the guilty plea would put the whole affair behind him.

BROWN LATER CHANGED his plea to not guilty on all counts. But the initial guilty plea came back haunt him at his trial.

The Navy, meanwhile, did its own investigation. Here are the findings of the Board of Inquiry: "Evidence presented to the board supported the claim that Cmdr. Brown did not benefit personally... With regard to the conviction of accepting a gratuity, evidence supported the argument that the money provided to Cmdr. Brown was in payment for expense incurred on behalf of the squadron and the movie company."

The board found the government's investigations "filled with unsubstantiated allegations, many of which were based on rumor and innuendo rather than on good objective evidence."

"The evidence presented to the board supports, in every instance, Cmdr. Brown's version of the events."

"It is believed that Cmdr. Brown is, basically, an honest man who always acted in the best interests of his subordinates and unit organizations."

The board concluded that Brown's superiors "allowed the matter... to develop into a case that destroyed a first-ranking officer's career and has the potential for needless adverse publicity to the Navy."

IRISH STEW: The luck of the Irish may be running out for a fund-raising group that has stubbornly refused to accept a federal judge's finding that it is an agent of the Irish Republican Army.

Next week the government will ask that the Irish Northern Aid Committee be held in contempt of court and fined $5,000 a day if it fails to file information required by the law covering foreign agents.

Romance can be realistic outlet

As editor of the quarterly book review of Romantic Books known as the Romantic Book Guide, sold nationally by subscription, I thank you for your article on romance books, Tuesday, March 6.

However, I take exception to some preconceived notions that those in the romance novel industry have been trying to undo. One of these is that a large percentage of romantic book lovers are in their 70s. This is simply not true of the industry at large, or even of Buried Under Books in particular.

In surveys done by Romantic Times, a bi-monthly tabloid with over 70,000 subscribers, readers were generally found to be between 20 and 40 years of age, educated, and in middle- to upper-middle income brackets. More than 75 percent of all respondents were actively involved in careers. They read romantic fiction for the same reasons people watch TV — to relax.

Unlike best sellers and other popular mainstream fiction, romantic fiction always offers the reader a happy ending, something very pleasant in our upside-down world. Romantic novels are hopeful fantasies. Some are realistic, offering positive solutions to a negative world.

A South Windsor writer, Mary Fanning Sederquest, writing under the name of Kathryn Ransom for 2nd Chances new married love series, "To Have and to Hold," wrote of a Glastonbury couple in "Moments to Share." The man was a surgeon at a Hartford hospital; the woman a personal director. They loved each other very much, but didn't have enough time to spend together between their two demanding careers.

A very real problem today. They also wanted to start a family and wondered if they'd have time for a child. They solved their problems in a loving way, giving the reader a glimpse of a real life problem, believably solved within the confines of a loving relationship.

Romantic fiction has come a long way from the sweet romances enjoyed by silver-haired ladies back in the 1860s. In some instances, romance fiction offers role models to today's women returning to the market place or seeking her role in society. They are forward-looking, sometimes inspirational, always romantic, and sometimes full of wonderful humor. And they are read by women who are writers, accountants, lawyers, doctors, homemakers, and written by women who often hold down two careers who are part of the expanding horizons for women. It is an industry that is primarily written for women, by women, produced and published by women, offering women more opportunities than any other field. The stories are no longer about "rich" men marrying poor little girls who they "save." In "A Distant Cattle," by Sue Ellen Cole for Silhouette Intimate Moments, the heroine saves the hero from financial ruin at the hands of an unscrupulous business manager.

Knowing many writers personally through my work as an editor, I felt I had to clear up some old misconceptions. The romantic novel today reaches an entirely new audience, an expanded readership that even includes men. As a genre, it outsells all other paperbacks, and accounts for as much as 50 percent of all paperback sales combined.

Mrs. Bea Steffel, Editor of the Romantic Book Guide 811 Main St.

New tax policy is wrong

I have been in a state of shock and disgust since seeing news reports on television about the State of Connecticut collecting sales tax from residents who have made and will make purchases in other states.

How could we possibly stoop to this and, furthermore, get away with it? And why do other states allow this intrusion?

I was appalled at the attitude and tone of the official statement concerning the collection of these taxes (Chan. 3 TV, March 12). In my opinion, this smacks of police state tactics. Will it next be office cars? Will it next be the potential for needless adverse publicity to the Navy?"

Hart, Mondale battle for Saturday votes

By Clay F. Richards United Press International

Democratic front-runners Walter Mondale and Gary Hart battled for votes in the Midwest industrial heart of America Friday on the eve of six caucuses that will pick another 251 delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

The former vice president and the senator from Colorado both stumped in Illinois, which holds a primary next Tuesday, but kept an eye on Michigan — the biggest state to vote yet this year when it picks 136 delegates in Saturday caucuses.

Arkansas, Mississippi, South Carolina and the Canal Zone also hold caucuses Saturday. In Kentucky, the first three of 129 counties hold caucuses that finish March 31 and the state's 53 delegates are not included in the 251 that will be picked Saturday.

Civil rights activist Jesse Jackson, hoping Michigan will be his best state to date in terms of winning delegates, criticized both Hart and Mondale before a crowd of about 1,500 young people at a Lansing high school.

Campaign '84 claimed another casualty as Sen. John Glenn of Ohio announced he is dropping out of the race after a poor showing in which he ran up a $2 million plus debt.

At a news conference in Washington, Glenn said: "I would like nothing better than to stay in this race, compete in all the caucuses and every single primary and win the nomination of my party."

One day the Greek landlady knocked on the woman's door. She held up a dead Swedish ivy. It was the same Swedish ivy the woman had dumped that morning beside the garbage waiting on the curbside.

This is strictly an after-dark type of arrangement

landlady would usher her into the kitchen so she could see the plant's progress. The plant was stripped of its yellowed sections and lovingly reotted in an empty gallon tin of olive oil. It was given a place of honor on the window sill, which was crowded with other plants.

Abby's pecan pie recipe wins raves in Merry Olde

DEAR ABBY: I was born in England, led an American, and came to the United States in 1919. I've been a widow for 39 years. I'm nearly 92, and still take my daily walks and feed the pigeons, who know me and come in a bunch to meet me.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

I'll get to the point, Abby. About 15 years ago you sent me your recipe for pecan pie. At the bottom of the recipe it says, "Let me know how your years came out." I have a guilty conscience because I have made literally dozens of your pecan pies and not once have I written to let you know how they have done. I've got the reputation for being the world's best pecan pie maker. It's easy to make, and all who taste it say it's the best pecan pie they've ever had.

ABBY'S PECAN (OR WALNUT) PIE

1 cup white corn syrup
1/2 cup dark brown sugar
1/3 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup melted butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 whole eggs
1 heaping cup shelled pecans (or walnuts)

(to do) think the pie is tip-top. So I'm writing to you, and let you know how your years came out. I have a guilty conscience because I have made literally dozens of your pecan pies and not once have I written to let you know how they have done. I've got the reputation for being the world's best pecan pie maker. It's easy to make, and all who taste it say it's the best pecan pie they've ever had.

DEAR ELIZABETH: Your letter made my day. And if anyone out there wants the recipe, here it is.

DEAR ABBY:

This letter has taken a long time to write. I need to know if I will get excommunicated from the Roman Catholic Church for something I did over a year ago. I'm scared to talk to my priest for fear of what he might tell me.

I'm married and have three children. My husband and I weren't getting along very well and I started to have an affair with a co-worker. Well, I found out I was pregnant, so in order to save my marriage I had an abortion. (My husband had had a vasectomy after our last child was born.)

Mix syrup, sugar, salt, butter, vanilla. Add slightly beaten eggs. Pour into a 9-inch unbaked pie shell. Sprinkle pecans over filling. Bake in 350-degree oven for approximately 45 minutes.

You can top it with a bit of whipped cream or ice cream, but even plain, nothing tops this! And please let me know how yours turns out.

DEAR NEEDS:

Confess to your priest. If you are truly penitent, you will not be excommunicated.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ENGAGED IN OMAHA:

When people ask you how many carats your diamond is, they probably want to know how much lettuce was involved.

Magee Miner, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miner of Bolton, admires harbingers of spring, daffodils, held by Colleen Kirk, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kirk, of Bolton, while Jody Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Evans, also of Bolton, enjoys the whole thing. The children are calling attention to the creative arts festival and talent show to be held at the Bolton Elementary and Center Schools Tuesday, to celebrate Spring.

Reader says back pain gone after doing special excersizes

DEAR DR. LAMB: I've had constant pain in the lower back and spine. But a few weeks ago I started exercising, and after three days I could get out of bed and walk with much greater ease.

Your Health
Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

When I began reaching for my keys, my fingertips only reached just below the knees. Now I can get them within an inch of my toes.

I'm astonished at how good the results are after only one week. I hope exercising will become as much a part of my life as eating and sleeping.

I've been taking Motrin for my back pain four times a day, but since I've been exercising I haven't had to take it.

I'm now constantly aware of keeping my stomach sucked in to strengthen my stomach muscles. I'm hoping I will become second nature.

DEAR READER: I'm delighted you feel so much better. Many people with lower back pain can benefit by exercising to strengthen the abdomen and back muscles.

You probably benefit a lot from the stretching exercises. Shortened muscles in spasms are a major part of back discomfort. If everyone exercised to maintain strong abdominal muscles and used stretching exercises, there'd be fewer back problems. As you've discovered, taking care of your muscles is better than taking medicine.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My 17-year-old granddaughter has "mono." She has swelling around her eyes and is extremely tired even after hours and hours of sleep. She's not attending school and had to quit her part-time job. The doctor said there wasn't a lot to be done, except drink plenty of fluids and get plenty of sleep. Somehow I feel there must be more to it than that.

How serious is this illness and will it be long before she recovers? Is it contagious?

DEAR READER: Mononucleosis is a common illness caused by a virus. It's contagious and easily spread by kissing, which is why it's often called the "kissing disease." Young adults often have a sore throat, headache and enlarged lymph nodes, particularly in the neck. Fatigue is common.

Because it's a virus illness, antibiotics don't help unless it's complicated by a bacterial infection. Most cases of illness only lasts a few weeks and the person gradually regains the previous energy level.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I'm a 55-year-old woman who has raised two children and is now well-adjusted career woman with children and good marriages.

Sometimes that makes me feel good about my life. We all have to choose where we want to put our energies. We don't have to be satisfied with where you put your energies?

Just in case the cops need pastoral care ...

Editor's note: this column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches.

By Nancy Carr, MACC Director

The chaplain at Manchester Memorial Hospital is ready for any and all emergencies. In fact, in his determination to be on the spot for any of his brother clergy (robbers) who may need him, he will be on the floor most of the Cops and Robbers game.

And, in a pinch, he'll even be available for any police officer who requires pastoral care. Although, if I recall correctly, several Cops and Robbers games back, Chaplain Harris got an elbow in the jaw so neatly placed that he was unable to unhinge it for some six weeks.

However, it takes more than a shot in the jaw to keep a good chaplain down, and he'll be making his on Sunday, along with Father Richard (chipped elbow) Lamore (St. James), Rev. Michael Thornton (Center Congregational and Shepherd's Place chaplain), Rev. Richard (Pres) Dupe (North Methodist and President of Rev. (MACC)), Rev. Timothy Slattery (St. Paul's) (Community Baptist and MACC financial committee chairman), Rev. Dale (stick-end-up) Gustafson (Emanuel Lutheran and head of our Project Re-entry Advisory Committee, and Emanuel Lutheran intern), Rev. Steven Sabin, who has a bright future if he survives Sunday night.

The Robbers are importing a Lutheran from Trinity Lutheran in Vernon (Tom Colyer), and Tierney Funeral Home is donating the services of Brian McAuley. Actually, Tom Tierney (Tierney Funeral Home) is the spirit behind the annual Cops and Robbers benefit basketball game, and I will leave the rest of the speculation to you, good reader. Also playing for the Robbers, we hope, will be Fran Bachand, Bob Standley and Dave Carpenter.

And you? We're asking you to make two commitments: show up at church Sunday and pray for your pastor, and show up at East Catholic High tomorrow night and applaud him. Well, if you insist, you can applaud in the morning and pray at the game. Or, if appropriate, applaud and/or pray for your very favorite cop.

Speaking of which we have a number of intrepid men in blue returning from last year (who can't wait to get even including community favorites police officers Ficarra, Reeves, Beeler, Collins, Lombardo, Graham, Bulnik, Wood, Jordan, Anderson, E. Wilson (what's the 5 for?), J. Wilson (Larry?), and Ted K. whom John Hawthorne says has a Polish name he can't spell. Rev. (MACC) Rev. Timothy Slattery (St. Paul's) (Community Baptist and MACC financial committee chairman), Rev. Dale (stick-end-up) Gustafson (Emanuel Lutheran and head of our Project Re-entry Advisory Committee, and Emanuel Lutheran intern), Rev. Steven Sabin, who ticket. Tickets will be available at the East Catholic Evangelical Church on Saturday, March 17, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., so come early. Warm up your tonils and be ready for a good time for the whole family.

And, in case you are wondering if anyone is foolish enough to referee such a game (I mean really, do you want to call a foul on your confessor or the man most likely to discover you absent-mindedly parking on a bus stop?), we have back with us four honorable, respected and fearless men — Wilson Deakin, Dave Doonan, John Coletti and Joe DePaqua.

Come on down, friends. You are all we need to make tomorrow night a great evening.

FURNITURE BANK

Did you know that last year we managed by hook and crook to place 243 pieces of furniture valued at $7,798 in clients' homes? For us that's a record (we have such a difficult time with the furniture bank). Not because all of you, but because we can't find a fool-proof no-cost way to get furniture from you to the people who need it.

And, we do want to thank all of you who called and said you have pick-up trucks you would be glad to make available. We couldn't seem to get the backs matched up with your trucks. So how did we manage to place 243 pieces of furniture? Some of you, bless you, were able to deliver for us. And, some of our clients were able to find a neighbor or friend who could pick up. And, great gift to us all — Charles and Margaret Lewis — who volunteered to come twice monthly and either pick up and deliver furniture directly to persons in need, or (if we don't have a call on file) put the item in our very limited storage shed provided by the good people at Community Baptist.

The Lewins, by the way, are true gifts. They are active at St. Bartholomew's and bring the same sense of loving ministry to MACC. Not only do the Lewins do much of the lifting, hauling and moving, they have also hung curtains, painted, and even once in a pinch, made eyes, made — constructed a kitchen table for an elderly man.

One of our sincere regrets is the number of times we have to pass up your offers of furniture because we don't have a way to get it, or a place to store it. Just want you to know we appreciate your thinking of us.

Right now, we are looking for a sturdy kitchen chair for a friend of ours who is paralyzed from the waist down. She herself is confined to a wheelchair but an aide comes in to help her. She only has one kitchen chair, and that is so wobbly, it isn't safe to sit on. We would like to provide her with a sturdy, safe chair.

We are also looking for kitchen chairs and a table, and a living room chair for an older couple who are trying to start over. Their son died last year and since he didn't have insurance, they had to sell everything they had into his hospital and medical bills.

NCAA Tournament roundup

Buzzer shot ousts Huskies

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Rolando Lamb hit a turnaround jumper at the buzzer from 20 feet Friday night to give Virginia Commonwealth a 79-69 victory over Northeastern in the first round of the NCAA Tournament's East Regional.

The Rams, 23-6, will meet Syracuse in the second round Sunday.

In a later game, Iona met Arkansas in Sunday's other game. VCU trailed by a point with two seconds left. Michael Brown of the Rams rebounded to Lamb, who fired from the lane to pull the Rams to 68 and Lamb tied it with two foul shots following a steal with 1:09 to go.

Midwest Regional Illinois State 49-48

At Lincoln, Neb., Lou Stefanovic sank a 15-foot shot from the right wing with seven seconds remaining to deliver Illinois State a 49-48 NCAA Midwest regional victory Friday night over Alabama.

In the second game of the doubleheader, Big Eight runnerup Kansas took Northwestern Athletic Conference co-champion Alcorn State.

Kansas' Steve Nunn hit a 47-42 lead with 5:38 remaining. But Illinois State trailed on the lead in a press offense and inadvertently let the Crimson Tide back into the game by going the next 5:31 without an offensive rebound. Alabama front-liners Terry Williams and Bobby Lee Hurt each scored a basket to cut the lead to 47-46. After Johnson missed the

Bird, Johnson pace Celtic victory

BOSTON (UPI) — Larry Bird scored 28 points and Dennis Johnson added 22 Friday night to lead the Boston Celtics to a 100-99 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks.

The Celtics fought back from deficits of up to eight points to beat the Bucks for the fourth time in five games this season. Scott Wedman, substituting for the ailing Gerald Henderson, added 13 points. All of Wedman's points came in the second half and most of them in a period starting with the final two minutes of the third quarter and extending into the fourth period as the Celtics took charge.

Marques Johnson led the Bucks with 26 points as Milwaukee lost for the fifth time in six games. It was the Celtics' seventh victory in their last eight games.

At Pontiac, Mich., Michael Ray Richardson scored 22 points and Darryl Dawkins added 21 Friday night to carry the New Jersey Nets to a 117-108 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

The game was played over an overtime period of 18:11, bringing the Pistons' attendance total for the season 527,806, an all-time single season record.

New Jersey staged off a furious fourth-quarter rally to post its 10th win in the last 11 games. The Nets carried a 91-82 lead into the fourth quarter but the Pistons' spree narrowed the margin to 95-93.

Irish Sports Night slated for Monday

The 31st annual Knights of Columbus Irish Sports Night will be held Monday night at the KofC Home.

Honored guests will be the coaches of three recent state championship East Catholic sports teams. Jim Penders (baseball), Jude Kelly (football) and Sal Mangiavico (girls' cross country) will be recognized for leading their respective squads to state championships.

Penders' team won the state title in 1983. Kelly's gridiron squad took the state Class M championship and Mangiavico's unbesieged girls' team took home their fourth straight class title in 1984.

At Milwaukee, Louisville's lightning quick guards, Lancaster Gordon and Mill Wagner, helped guide two scoring spurs that led the Cardinals to a 72-59 victory Friday night over intrastate rival Morehead State in a first round NCAA Midwest Regional game.

In the second game, Villanova met Marshall. Gordon and Wagner each scored 17 points against the turnover-plagued Eagles to help Louisville improve its record to 26-6 Center Conference. Jones added 19 for Louisville.

Morehead State ended its season 24-6 after qualifying by edging Eric Richardson in the closing seconds to finish the season 18-12. The Crimson Tide, a fifth place finisher during the SEC race, lost five of its last six games.

East Catholic's Chris Brunone (22) stretches high to drop home basket in East Region II championship game Wednesday against Windham. Brunone had 11 rebounds in Class I tilt. Brunone and his Eagle teammates met St. Bernard at Glastonbury High tonight at 6:30 in Class L quarterfinal.

East 5 underdog third time around

GLASTONBURY — The East Catholic basketball team is hoping lightning won't strike twice in the same place.

Friday night coach Jim Penders said Friday that his team may have a psychological advantage on tonight's Class L quarterfinal game against St. Bernard of Uncasville at Glastonbury High at 6:30. The Saints, 17-4, defeated the Eagles twice during the regular season, and Penders said it is difficult for any team to beat another 11-2 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers.

At Philadelphia, Scott Hastings and Alex English each scored 29 points Friday night to lead the Denver Nuggets to a 118-102 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers.

St. Bernard's coach Jim Penders said his team should be relaxed tonight because it already has won three tournament games. "Whatever we get from this point of the year is gravy," Penders said.

Housing gains highest in almost six years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Construction of residential housing reached its highest level in almost six years last month, increasing 11.2 percent above the healthy rate of building starts in January, the government said Friday.

New construction in February hummed along at an annual rate of 2.2 million units, the Commerce Department said, a level far beyond what most analysts had thought possible with current interest rates.

The department also revised upward its figures on January housing starts, which increased 16.7 percent over December's rate.

Analysts said the unexpected two-month resurgence in new construction was helped by mild weather, substantial housing sales and consumer acceptance of a r a b i e r e

Although mortgage interest rates already are inching up, the movement has not dampened enthusiasm in the housing market so far.

Starts of single-family houses, in heavy demand, were up 4.1 percent in February on top of January's 28 percent increase.

Apartment developers, while not facing the same demand, are starting projects rapidly to take advantage of tax breaks and to fill the gap left since the government phased out its subsidized construction, analysts said. Multi-family projects were up 25.1 percent in February.

Seabrook blamed for bond rating drop

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Bond ratings for Public Service Co. of New Hampshire and Maine Central Power Co. were lowered Friday because of a 73 percent cost hike for the Seabrook nuclear plant and increasing pressure to cancel Seabrook II.

Most of the ratings set by Moody's Investors Service of New York for Public Service, the prime Seabrook owner, had previously been in the "Ba3" or "speculative" category.

Moody's lowered three bond categories to "B1" — defined by Moody's as "lacking general characteristics of desirable investment. Assurance of interest and principal payments or of maintenance of other terms of the contract over any long period may be small."

D. Maxwell Logan, Moody's vice president and associate director in charge of electric utilities, said Public Service's bonds are among the lowest among utilities and "very, very speculative."

Utilities with comparable ratings include three companies that own shares in the crippled Three Mile Island nuclear plant, he said.

have dropped steadily since 1974, he said, primarily because of Seabrook.

The utility retained its B1 rating for its general and refunding mortgage bonds.

"The cost increases and delays at the Seabrook nuclear power plant placed an added burden on Public Service as the cost of financing has risen sharply."

"Clearly across the board, builders are telling us there are a lot of people coming out, there are a lot of sales."
