Iran crisis doomed Carter

Former first lady Rosalvnn Carter says she is convinced her husband would have been re-elected if it weren't for the hostage crisis at the U.S. Embassy in Iran. She tells ABC's David lartman in a taped interview that will air Tuesday on "Good Morning America" that she constantly urged Carter to do something. She says she thought it took a lot of strength for her husband to resist the temptation to do something drastic in Iran. "I still think we could have bed Tehran and won the election — and killed many of the hostages in the process probably and

Water, sewer rate increases will air tonight

Manchester residents who use town water and town sewer service will have an opportunity tonight to comment on proposed rate hikes for the two services. The Board of Directors will hold a public hearing on increases at 7:30 p.m. in the hearing room of Lincoln

The town administration has proposed an increase of 65 percent in water rates and 55 percent in sewer use

If the water rate hike is approved, most Manchester residential customers will pay $35.51 each quarter for the minimum charge instead of the $21.51 they now pay. The minimum charge for large users of water will increase by about the same 65 percent.

For the first 10,000 cubic feet in excess of the minimum, the charge will increase from $1.50 for each 100 cubic feet of water, to $2.46. A cubic foot of water contains 7.48 gallons.

At least one director, Stephen T. Cassano, has said he thinks the 65 percent increase is too much in one jump, particularly since the new water treatment plant is not yet in operation, and thus the quality of town water has not been greatly improved. The proposed sewer use increase may meet opposition from officials of the Eighth Utilities District. They have said they object to paying the full amount of the increase if some of the increase is to finance construction of, or maintenance of, sewer lines in the system.

The district builds and maintains lines within the district. Sewage from the district is carried in a large pipe to the town sewage plant for treatment. District officials feel the district should be held responsible for capital costs connected only with that pipe and with the treatment facility. Mayor Barbara Weinberg said last week that the question raised by the district will have to be addressed sometime, if not this year. District Counsel John D. LaBelle Jr., said the question may become unimportant now if the directors eliminate from the sewer budget a number of the capital projects that would be financed by any sewer rate increase

More than 1½ years after officials at Manchester Memorial Hospital announced plans to phase out the venereal disease clinic there, it's still open. And although they say the clinic is a financial drain which cannot be borne indefinitely, no suitable alternative has been found. "Absolutely nothing new" has developed in the last few months,

David Morgan, an administrative aide, said this morning. "The volume of patients is about the same, and things remain on a steady level." For the last decade, the VD clinic has provided free examinations

British warn Libyans

TRIPOLI, Libya - A British diplomat urged Libya not to damage the vacated British Embassy today, hours after Col. Moammar Khadafy accused Britain of protecting "terrorists and enemies" of Libya. Khadafy also repeated his threat to open formal relations with the outlawed Irish Republican Army unless Britain restores diplomatic ties with Libya, broken off following the killing of a British policewoman that sparked a 10-day siege at the Libyan mission in London. "We declare our complete support for the independence and unification of Ireland," said Khadafy in an interview broadcast on French national television. "We will support (the IRA) and, as a first step, the IRA will have bureaus open unless there is agreement reached between Great Britain and said Khadafy in the interview taped Saturday in Tripoli.

Embassy search planned

LONDON - Police with bomb-sniffing dogs prepared today to search the Libyan embassy ting that authorities feared might be rigged with explosives after a 10-day siege "It is a risky business. I personally wouldn't like to be the first one through the door," police inspector Alex Fish said

A police spokesman at the scene in St. James' Square said: "We are going in this afternoon probably between 3 and 4 p.m. (10 a.m. and 11 a.m. EDT) A Saudi Arabian diplomat was expected to accompany police inside, since Saudi Arabia now handles Libya's affairs in Britain. Diplomatic immunity for the five-story townhouse ran out at midnight and police and army experts just before noon prepared to search for clues into the killing of a policewoman who was hit April 17 by gunfire from an embassy window. Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist chief, Cmdr William Hucklesby took charge of the operation. CHICAGO - A man who was granted clemency after serving only five months of a five-year prison sentence for cocaine possession may be put back behind bars for taking a stroll through town. The parole board thought he was paraplegic:

Gov. James R. Thompson has ordered the executive clemency granted to John Irpino, 39, be revoked and the Illinois Prisoner Review Board reopen the case to review new evidence. Irpino rolled into his clemency hearing last January in a wheelchair. The Chicago Tribune reported Sunday He told the Prisoner Review Board he had been a paraplegic since 1982 when he suffered a spinal injury in a 15-foot fall from a construction site. Irpino was granted executive clemency and he ved to Deerfield. III

But Deerfield police kept an eye on him and Police Chief Richard Brandt became suspicious when he read Irpino had been granted clemency.

Anesthesia linked to death

HOUSTON - The president of Baylor College of Medicine acknowledged that one death and two cases of brain damage at Ben Taub Hospital in 1983 may have resulted from improperly anesthetizing patients, a newspaper reports. In a copyrighted story, the Houston Chronicle said Sunday that its investigation also indicated that in at least one other case, a woman's family was told by doctors that her death was anesthesia-related.

The Chronicle reported that in both cases involving death, doctors played down or denied anesthesia problems. Ben Taub is operated by the Harris County Hospital District and serves mostly indigent patients who cannot afford private hospitals Baylor provides doctors for Ben Taub at an annual cost of $20 million and uses it as its primary teaching hospital.

No quick PAC decision

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court today rejected pleas to decide quickly if the government can limit political action committee spending on presidential campaigns, leaving PACs free to spend $20 million on the 1894 election.

Justices also took up a key environmenta dispute over the government's right to grant exemptions to national water pollution standards and, in a 6-3 ruling, protected the media's ability to defend itself against libel suits. The court also opened the way for former

Attorney General Edward Levi and three other top federal law enforcement officials to face trial in a $20 million suit over discrimination in police departments. The justices rejected the officials' arguments

Miami tops in census gain

WASHINGTON - Miami, Las Vegas and Anchorage. Alaska, were among the cities that showed the largest gains in population between 1980 and 1982, the Census Bureau reported. The bureau ranked the 176 American cities with lations of 100,000 or more, a supplement to a list of the top 25 released several weeks ago that named New York, Los Angeles and Chicago as the three largest cities in the country.

The survey showed that cities showing the largest gains were in the West and Southwest. Miami, which moved from 41st to 34th place between July 1980 and July 1982, had an increase of 10.3 percent to 382,726, and Las Vegas, which gained 9 percent, moved from 90th to 80th place. Anchorage grew 11.6 percent to 194,675, moving from 78th to 72nd place.

The population of Aurora, Colo., leaped 16 percent to 184,372 and the city moved from 97th to 76th place. Arlington, Texas increased by 14.3 percent to 182,975, moving from 95th to 77th place. And Meza, Ariz., grew 12.6 percent to 171,695, moving from 102nd to 89th place.

Hart backs reform of immigration

By Laurence McQuillan United Press International

Courting Hispanic voters in Texas, Gary Hart says he favors granting amnesty to illegal aliens who entered the United States many years ago and 'settled down'' to become "productive citizens Former Vice President Walter Mondale Sunday did his campaigning in the District of Columbia, which holds a primary Tuesday, while Jesse Jackson took a sweep through Ohio, Indiana and Tennesee.

All three were gearing up for a major onslaught in the next nine days, during which voters in several states choose more than 700 delegates to the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco this July. The latest United Press International delegate totals — including Saturday's completion of Michi-gan's 155-member delegation — shows 1,171 for Mondale, 620 for Hart, 181 for Jackson, 338 uncommitted and 58 committed to others. The nomination requires 1,967 of the 3,933 convention delegates. "I view the illegal alien problem as both good and bad," Hart said Sunday in El Paso, Texas, where he was campaigning for the state's caucuses on Saturday. There are 169 delegates at stake in that "Many hard-working people have come into this country and taken jobs that no one else has wanted to do. They have settled here, paid taxes and have become productive citizens. It would be very disruptive to force them to return to the country of their origin.'

Speaking from the steps of the Ysleta Mission, the oldest building in Texas, however, Hart said he is concerned that a large influx of illegal aliens poses a threat to jobs for U.S. citizens.

"An immigration reform policy for the United States needs to be balanced," he said. "We need to control our borders, but we must realize the problem will not be solved until Mexico's economy turns back

Mondale spoke to some 50 delegate candidates in a sweltering room at his Washington campaign headquarters. He approvingly borrowed quotes from Jackson, did not mention Hart, and attacked President Reagan's qualifications to conduct foreign policy.

He said the president's trip to China is a success but only because Reagan "suddenly realized he has been unclear how many of the refugees wrong for 30 years" about siding only with Taiwan. The nation needs a president who has "read and understood history and knows the complexities and dangers of the world that we're in," he said.

Jackson Sunday criticized the Carter-Mondale administration for allowing unemployment to increase while expanding the military budget. "Plant closings, layoffs, concessions, rising utility rates, a shrinking tax base, cumbling cities - an endless cycle of poverty and pain for the people of Ohio," he told 1,400 at the Ohio State Fairgrounds. "We can come together and move the cycle of pain to a cycle of prosperity."

Jackson pointed out that in 1977, when Mondale was serious condition and the seventh vice president, 5,000 workers were laid off when Youngstown Sheet & Tube closed. "We cannot eat missiles, or heat our homes with them, or teach our children to read with them," he told the crowd. "We can only pray that we never need to Chandler said. A 15-year-old boy

Drug suspect sought in Kennedy death

By Jane Taylor United Press International

PALM BEACH, Fla. - Police say they want to question a high roller who nted the same bars David Kennedy did before he died because the man was suspected in a similar death last year involving a polo player. Authorities said Sunday they were seeking Harry L. Wolkind, identified by police as the man who provided cocaine for Billy Ylvisaker, a polo player found dead of an overdose in West Palm Beach's posh Wellington suburb March 28, 1983. Officials said Ylvisaker, 27, had snorted enough cocaine to kill four people and had injected some intraven-ously. Wolkind was charged with possession of cocaine and narcotics paraphernalia, but the charges were dropped in December. Wolkind, 29, was described as a high

By Anan K. Safadi United Press International JERUSALEM - Israeli security authorities reportedly are focusing an investigation of suspected Jewish terrorism on previous unsolved attacks against Palestinians in the occupied West Bank. As of late Sunday, police had detained 35 Jewish suspects for questioning in the attempted bombing of Arab buses in east Jerusalem Friday, security sources said. Many of the detainces were settlers from the Israeli-occupied West Bank. Leaders of Jewish settlement movements and high-ranking reserve army officers, including one on active duty, were among those picked up by police, the sources said. State-owned Israel Television Sunday quoted an unidentified senior police source who said investiga-tors would now concentrate on solving previous terror attacks — a 1960 car bombing that maimed two Arab mayors and last summer's assault on the Hebron Islamic College in which three Palestinians were killed and 50 wounded. Interior Minister Josef Burg told Israel Radio "it is now possible proof exist," of a well-organized lewish. now possible proof exists" of a well-organized Jewish . terrorist underground. But Cabinet Secretary Dan Meridor said it was too early "to pass judgment." Israeli news reports described the investigation into the attempted bombings as the first serious attempt to uncover the scope of Jewish underground activity in the occupied territories. At its weekly meeting Sunday, the Cabinet was briefed by the chief of the General Security Services, the Israeli equivalent of the FBI, on Friday's bombing attempt. Details of the briefing were withheld for security reasons and no official statement was issued by the police. Israeli news reports said bombs found on four to six Arab buses had been timed to explode during the afternoon rush hour Friday. "The security forces ... prevented a very heavy

BEIRUT, Lebanon - Battles between Moslem and Christian militiamen in downtown Beirut are overshadowing political efforts to unite Lebanon's warring factions in a new government. Despite the clashes, Prime Minister-designate Rashid Karami resumes talks today with Christian President Amin Gemayel on forming a new government to give Lebanon's Moslem majority equal power. Beirut radio said Karami would travel from the northern port city of Tripoli to the capital to "talk of the positions taken by the various factions about sharing in the government." Gemayel and Karami last met on Saturday. Christian and Moslem militiamen exchanged machine-gun and rocket fire Sunday along the Green Line dividing the capital. Druze Moslem radio said one Druze militiaman was killed and a number were injured on both sides. The battles across the Green Line, a buffer zone between Christian east Beirut and the Moslem west, followed similar clashes on Saturday that killed five A neutral security force began patrolling the no-man's land a week ago. The continued sectarian violence came as Karami, a veteran Sunni Moslem and pro-Syrian politician, prepared to form his 10th Cabinet in 29 years. He spent Sunday in his hometown of Tripoli, where he stressed his new government would concentrate on recovering south Lebanon and the eastern Bekaa Valley from Israeli occupation. We will do anything to recover the south," he said. "Only when justice is done will peace take root." "Israel must open the road for a compromise and a comprehensive peaceful solution in the region," he said. Some 10,000 Israeli troops occupy south Lebanon.

Other goals of his program, which must be accepted by Parliament, include revising the governmental structure to give equal power to Moslems, army reform and stabilization of the cease fire. Karami, who said he wanted all factions to share in his government when Gemayel offered him the premiership Thursday, is still challenged by the ambiguous public stance of at least one major rival. Christian leader Camille Chamoun has already said he will not sit in the Cabinet, and that his party will have to decide whether any other member will take a position.

At its annual banquet this year, the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce put aside the practice of giving awards to citizens for outstanding civic contributions. Some of us missed it. Perhaps it was a good idea to set the custom aside for awhile, but I hope the chamber does not abandon it entirely

Times change. Those of us who don't want to change with them often get left behind. To suggest a return to an old practice is to make yoursell vulnerable to the charge that you are living in the past. Nevertheless. I'd like to see a return to the format of the single secret award. Under that format only one award was presented and very few knew in advance who would get it. Sometime the recipient would suspect, but more often not.

The presentation ceremony was scripted in such a way that as the award speech progressed, clue by clue, more and more people in the audience began to guess who was being bonored. It took a lot of doing and deceiving, as with all surprise parties, but it was worth the effort

On the other hand, it probably appealed to a limited audience of people deeply engrossed in Manchester affairs and it might not go over well now.

WHAT DID GO OVER WELL, as least for most of the audience at the banquet, was the talk by Edwin Newman, broadcast journalist and critic of language

A couple of guests commented afterwards that Newman's talk was too short because he was delayed too long by ceremonies before he finally got to the podiur

Manchester has grown a little weary of waiting for the first concrete evidence of progress toward converting the mills in the Cheney Historic District to residences. Cheney Hall, the only public restoration project in the district that has actually commenced, has progressed to the point where its sponsors are planning to open the hall up to the public for one day on June 23. The private rehabilitations, meanwhile, have seem to be bogged down in financing problems.

Finally, it seems, those problems have been resolved. The town has decided to permit tax-assessment deferrals on the rehabilitations. The Board of Directors did so with some reluctance and only after its members were convinced the developers would not get financing. without the deferrals.

First Hartford Realty, developer of the Manchester Modes plant conversion to rental apartments, is ready to get to work soon after it signs a contract with the town for deferral.

There seem to be no further obstacles, but many Manchester residents will not be fully convinced until they see brick and mortar work in progress.

THE END APPEARS imminent. Assad has always been known as a meticulous "detail man"; now he has been forced to delegate some of his duties. He puts in only a few hours a day at his office, and drops entirely from sight for weeks at a time. His iron grip is clearly not as strong as it used to be. The greediest, most bloodthirsty vulture circling over the seriously ill president is his brother, Rifaat Assad. As the regime's hatchet man, Rifaat has amassed a sizable private army, which he has recently stationed at strategic locations in Damascus. His rivals have deployed troops outside the capital in a standoff that could collapse when the president dies. Rifaat's opponents despise him on personal grounds as a corrur womanizing cutthroat. But it's his political drawbacks that worry hem most. Student firemen killed

NORTHFIELD, Vt. - Three students on the Norwich University fire brigade were killed Sunday when their fire truck overturned on a soft shoulder of the road, college officials said.

Five others were hurt in the accident. The volunteer fire brigade was heading south on Route 12 to a brush fire in Roxbury when the accident occurred at about 3:30 p.m., said Col. Gerald Chikalla, commandant of cadets at the nation's oldest private military college. As the truck rounded a curve, one of its rear wheels went off the paved area and the vehicle flipped over, Chikalla said. Northfield police identified those killed as David L. Anderson, 21, Patrick J. Dekramer, 18, and Mathew R. Baran, 19. No hometowns were

Four of the injured were treated and released from the Central Vermont Hospital in Berlin. Thomas L. Wolfle was admitted to the Burlington Medical Center.

Four other students were thrown from the truck and escaped injury, Chikalla said.

Murder suspect to use Vietnam as his defense

CONCORD N.H. - The first-degree murder trial was to begin today in the case of Gary Place, a former Marine who claims he couldn't leave the battlefields of Vietnam behind

Place, 36, of Concord, will use an insanity defense based on post traumatic stress disorder, a recognized mental illness psychiatrists claim is common among veterans of the Vietnam war. The trial will be the first murder case to use the defense in New Hampshire. Place is accused of strangling and stabbing his girlfriend, Wanda Olsen, 32, lust July 21 in Concord. His lawyers will argue that his combat experiences in Vietnam caused him to suffer mental illness. As many as six of Place's former combat buddies from Khe Sahn - one of the bloodiest battlefields in Vietnam — are expected to testify during the three-week trial. The prosecution was to present its opening arguments today.

"This is a very important case legally in New Hampshire," said Stuart Steinberg, a Concord lawyer who is assisting Place's defense lawyers. In New Hampshire, "There is no rule on what insanity is. That's what makes this a very important case."

Under New Hampshire's insanity law, Place's lawyers will have to prove to 12 jurors and four alternates that their client was insane when he strangled and stabbed Ms. Olsen.

To prove its first-degree murder charge, the state will have to convince juors that not only that Place committed the crime, but also that he thought about it ahead of time. A conviction of first-degree murder carries sentence of life in prison.

Marshall Holman speaks This is the first segment of an interview with professional bowler Marshall Holman. The nterview was conducted at the Bradley Bowl in Bowler's Windsor Locks. JJ: Why did you decide on professional bowling? MH: I didn't really decide to be a professional bowler. It was kind of put in my hands. When I was 19 years old, a businessman in southern Oregon - my home area - came up to me and asked me if I wanted to try the tour. I really had no aspirations of trying the tour. I think possibly because living in a small area I never really had a chance to test my talent against the better players, although I did bowl a little bit against Earl Anthony, Johnny Guenther and some other top players in the northwest. My idea of rolessional bowlers were almost robot-like machines that were 99 percent perfect. There are a lot of talented players out there, but everybor makes mistakes and if you work hard and have some natural ability you can make it. JJ: Did you start out in regional PBA events? MH: I didn't start out on the regioanl level because we didn't have a northwest region until a couple of years ago. I bowled in tournaments called the Northwest Bowlers Association. basically what the northwest region is today. I think that's a good way for any youngster to go, to bowl against the better players in your area, around the state, the tri-state area or whatever and get some experience that way instead of coming straight out of a league averaging 220 and think you can beat the best players in the world because you're kidding yourself most of the time. JJ: Did you feel you could be successful when you first came out on tour? MH: I didn't really think so. I didn't know what to expect. I really was nervous, as is everybody who first comes out on tour. It's a very difficult and different lifestyle, traveling around the country, trying to squeeze a meal in here and there; it's not easy. I didn't know how I would do. It wasn't until I was out for a few weeks and I had a good finish that I thought, "Well heck, I did well this week. Maybe I have a chance to do something out here." I kept working hard and I tried to put into my mind that the name players, the veteran players of 10 years ago when I started on tour, they started somewhere. They started at the bottom and had to work their way up. If you work hard and you're talented, you have a chance to do anything out here. JJ: Did you start out on the winter tour?

MH: Fortunately not. I started out on the summer tour in 1974, and I think that's the best way for any youngster to start. On the summer tour, a lot of the top players don't bowl as many events. It's a little easier going and it's a much more relaxed atmosphere. I think the summer tour is the best way to start. The winter tour, all the lions are keyed up and want their chunk of that prize fund, and it's tough for a new player to break in on the winter

JJ: Won't it be tougher now with more TV exposure because the prize funds will be bigger? MH: Well, the prize funds are going up. We've had our national tour basically 100 percent televised for the past five or six years. With ESPN for a while, and Home Box office, back when I started on the tour, was broadcasting our summer shows. USA network is now doing our summer shows and doing a nice job. I think this fall NBC is doing some of the fall stops. So we've got NBC in the fall, ABC in the winter and spring and USA taking up the summer and spring and USA taking up the summer, so we're on TV for all of our tournaments and it definitely enhances our tour. (Part Two-Next time Holman discusses lane conditions on tour and the lefty-righty controversy).

First pick no mystery in Tuesday's NFL draft

By Ira Kautman UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK - Four months after the University of Nebraska dropped out of the No. 1 spot in the onal college football ratings, Cornhuskers return to the top Tuesday in the National Football League draft.

All 12 rounds will be conducted at a midtown hotel, beginning at 0 a.m. EST, when the New England Patriots officially announce the selection of Nebraska All-America wide receiver Irving Fryar as the No. 1 pick - acquired in a deal with the Cincinnati Bengals. Nebraska dropped a 31-30 decision to Miami (Fla.) in the Orange Bowl that cost Cornhuskers the national

Fryar, a 4.4 speedster who had 40 receptions for 780 yards and eight touchdowns as a senior for the run-oriented Cornhuskers, was signed by the Patriots almost three weeks ago after they dealt four draft picks - including two first-rounders - to Cincinnati. Fryar will become the first wide receiver chosen No. 1 by the NFL since the San Francisco 49ers took Texas Tech's Dave Parks in 1964. New England will be followed by Houston, the New York Giants. Philadelphia and Kansas City. The Oilers are expected to sign 265pound Nebraska guard Dean Stein whiler to a 4-year pact today and will add another nugget to an impressive young offensive line. The Bengals had the No. 1 pick originally owned by Tampa Bay, having acquired it in a deal that sent quarterback Jack Thompson to the Buccaneers. Cincinnati will have three first-round picks, selecting seventh, 16th and 28th. The New York Jets and the Colts, now in Indianapolis, have two first-round picks each.

The Bengals, who have four of the first 35 picks, say they have merely responded to the unusual nature of this year's draft. "This year, we think more choices are better for us than the top choice," says Cincinnati gen-eral manager Mike Brown. "The draft this year has a number of players who are similar in ability. In our eyes, there is simply no one player who stands out."

Teams will have 15 minutes to make a selection in the opening two rounds and five minutes in the last 10 rounds. Where, in the past, almost every team figured to get a definite starter in the first round, that might not be the case this year.

says Charles Caserly, assistant general manager of the Washing-ton Redskins, who pick 27th in the opening round. In just its second operation, the U.S. Football League has had a devastating impact on the NFL draft, grabbing off Brigham Young quarterback Steve Young, Heisman Trophy winning running back Mike Rozier of Nebraska, Tennessee All-America defensive lineman Reggie White and Baylor offensive lineman Mark Adickes, all certain first-round choices. The NFL has announced plans to hold a three-round supplementary draft in early June consisting solely of 1984 draft-eligible players already signed by the USFL Last year, nine players already signed by the USFL were selected in the NFL draft. The Giants, who coveted Stein-kuhler, may trade down in the opening round while Philadelphia is expected to take either Penn State wide receiver Kenny Jack- Mack of Clemson and defensive son or Maryland quarterback Boomer Esiason. Kansas City needs belp at linebacker and

Carl Banks or Wilber Marshall of Florida, who turned off the Oilers with his demands for a lucrative multi-year contract.

Rounding out the order of selection in the opening round after the Chiefs are San Diego, Cincin-nati, Indianapolis, Atlanta, the Jets, Chicago, Green Bay, Minne-sota, Buffalo, the Jets (from New Orleans), Cincinnati (from New England), St. Louis, Cleveland, Indianapolis (from Denver), De troit, the Los Angeles Rams, Seattle, Pittsburgh, San Fran-cisco, Dallas, Miami, Washington and Cincinnati for the third time on a choice from the Raiders through New England. Besides Steinkuhler, NFL scouts are high on North Carolina's 310-pound tackle Brian Blados, Maryland guard Ron Solt and Ohio State tackle Bill Roberts. On the defensive front, look for Rick Bryan of Oklahoma, Ron Faurot of Arkansas, Bill Maas of Pittsburgh and Keith Millard of Washington State to go in the first two rounds

BOLTON — Potential buyers touring the renovated farm house for sale on 122 Hebron Road may be treated to a talking closet along with the customary house inspection You see, the five children of William and Marie Loalbo, the owners, are less than enthusiastic about selling the home they grew up in. So they've perfected a number of techniques to leter would-be buyers.

It's the the youngest, 12-year-old Julie, who's been the most creative. She hides in a closet when someone comes through the house and whispers. "Don't buy this house. It's haunted," as the house hunter passes.

If the kids discovered someone was about to tour the house, they'd try to mess it up. They've also thrown things oul of closets, as part of the haunting routine.

Nevertheless, Mr. and Mrs. Loalbo are selling the five-bedroom house with attached efficiency apartment. They hope to open an inn on Cape Cod. The home, built about 1816, is on the market for $153,900. Listing agent is Norma Tedford of Century 21. Tedford Real Estate, Route 44. The white frame house sits on a 4.5-acre parcel of land surrounded by ods, fields, and flowering trees and shrubs. Although it is still too early to see much color, a gigantic forsythia oush on one corner of the land is about ready to bloom. A dogwood on another corner already has small red buds at the tip of each branch.

"My heart has so many emotions says Mrs. Loalbo as she looks out onto the grounds. The family has owned the for 15 years. On the d bought the house, Mrs. Loalbo says, the owner cried. "I couldn't understand it. But now I can appreciate what she was feeling that day. A part of me doesn't want to leave," she says.

ONE WALKS THROUGH the front door into a front living room, and a dining room to the rear. Ceilings are beamed. To the right of the dining room is a huge kitchen: work island and appliances to the front, and sitting space surrounded by window walls overlooking the back yard to the rear.

20 - MANCHESTER HERALD, Monday, April 30, 1984 BUSINESS Buyer beware of the street corner sales

On the street corners of lower New York City where I live, it's a familiar scene. Day after day, when the weather permits, young men appear, set up folding tables, pile on dozens of radios, each wrapped in cellophane, and begin their chant.

Radios. Five dollars. Bargains, five dollars . Just being where they are is in defiance of all police regulations to monitor merchandise, confiscate stolen goods, issue summonses. But there they are and as the summer comes on, there the young men will remain. So, to test the bargains, last week 1 put down $5 and bought a radio

It is not a bargain. The radio I bought is a poor imitation of the quality personal radios I could buy in any store near my home.

An enormous 25 million radios are now being sold annually, millions of dollars are being poured into the research and development of these small AM/FM stereo radio cassettes, generally used with attached earphones. I do not expect Panasonic, Toshiba or Sony - leaders in this area - to stand behind the junk I bought

What about street shopping for radios and other merchandise of this sort? What are the pitfalls when you deal with "here-today-gone-tomorrow" street hawkers? And spend $5 or a lot more?

QUESTION: What is the objection to buying a radio from a street vendor - no matter what the radio's Ivpe?

ANSWER: It may be stolen merchandise. It is probably not a recognized brand name and rarely do manufacturers of this type of radio provide service, if needed

If you do any comparative shopping at all, the price alone should warn you against a purchase

OUESTION: What about performance?

ANSWER: They usually are characterized by "poor audio performance," says J. Paul Michie, senior vice president for Toshiba. "You never can tell and you certainly would be buying a 'pig in a poke.

QUESTION: Where are the best places to purchase a portable radio with earphones

ANSWER: Any reputable retailer who is recog-

Firms double overseas borrowing

nized in the consumer electronic business. Be skeptical of retailers who clutter their windows with "Going Out of Business" signs for years on end, warns Michie

QUESTION: What prizes are reasonable?

ANSWER: There are many good personal stereo AM/FM radios, with earphones for private listening, available. The best-known Japanese manufacturers have models from about $50 to $170. The price you'll pay will depend on the features you want to be included QUESTION: Why are these personal radios-/cassette players so popular?

ANSWER: We like innovative products. We obviously also are attracted to the units by their handy size and weight as well as their performance. I've seen dozens of men carrying the radios in their shirt pockets or clipping them to their belts. I know women who carry them in their purses for use anywhere. There is no disputing the quality and reliability of the good models from recognized manufacturers. There is little chance that they'll fail to perform as promised

QUESTION: Are all radios guaranteed?

ANSWER: The models sold by street mercha have questionable warranties, if any. If you buy from a sidewalk hawker and want to return it, I doubt you'll be able to find him. (The hawker from whom I be relused to recognize my face and he was on my street. COLDEL ()

QUESTION: What about retailers who advertise certain brand names for prices will below suggested retail levels?

ANSWER: Beware! Some retailers have "add-on accessory prices. meaning you might be charged extra for the headphone, or belt clip, or carrying case, or other accessories. Buy with care; question friends who already own a unit similar to yours; do comparative shopping. You're not saving if your "bargain" turns out to be worthless junk.

More women in management

WASHINGTON - Women held almost a third of management jobs by 1980 and are moving in greater numbers into the lucrative high-tech and science jobs dominated by men, the Census Bureau said.

In a new study contrasting the work force of 1980 with those employed in the same fields a decade earlier, the bureau found that women made strong gains in almost all fields of management and mixed progress in other areas By 1980, women held 30 percent or more of the management jobs in public administration, finance, personnel and labor relations, education medicine, real estate and mail delivery.

A fourth of the nation's legislators, chief executives and general administrators were women by 1980, compared with a statistically insignificant handful in 1970, the bureau said.

Utility seeks rate hike

Japan's bonds tempt American investors

By Mary Tobin United Press International

NEW YORK - U.S. corporations have doubled their borrowing overseas so far in 1984 because of lower interest rates abroad and now investors also are looking across the seas in increasing numbers, particularly to Japan.

One consequence of the strengthen ing yen is a step-up of capital inflow into the country," said Jeffrey Hanna, vice president in international research at Salomon Brothers. "And because the U.S. dollar is expected to weaken further we think the yen bond market will be one of the top performers of 1984." he said.

Although interest rates are lower in Japan, and in European countries, loreign bond prices, unlike the volatile U.S. markets, are steady to firm.

Investors can buy relatively stable yields and at the same time hope that the yen will appreciate enough to more than offset higher U.S. yields they are giving up." Hanna said. Bonds are a "pure currency play." as opposed to stocks, he said. If an American investor buys Japanese stocks to take advantage of the yen appreciation, he might lose share value if a company's export earnings were hurt by the stronger yen. The 5 percent appreciation of the yen vis-a-vis the dollar has already attracted capital," Hanna said. "As the yen and major European currencies continue to rise against the dollar, foreigners will have incentive to open up their markets more."

Hanna, at a news conference, gave several examples of large pension fund managers who are investing in nondollar markets in unprecedented numbers and amounts. Once U.S. tax law changes make these investments more attractive the trend should grow. be said

"Foreign investors tend to move first into the withholding-tax-free Euroyen and Samurai sectors.' Hanna said. 'Yields in these markets already have been driven through the Japanese government yield curve.

Euroyen are yen deposits outside of Japan. Samurai bonds are yen denominated bonds sold in Japan by non-Japanese issuers.

Although Hanna and his associates, Tran Q. Hung and Nicholas Sargen, look for the dollar to weaken across the board, they believe prospects for the yen are especially attactive.

"Current prospects for Japan's eco-nomic growth are excellent," Hanna said. Forecasts of 1984 real GNP growth have been revised upward from around 4 percent to 5 percent, the Japanese current account posted a $4.8-billion surplus for the first two months, and the CPI rose 1 percent in February for a year-to-year rate of 3.3 percent, the Salomon official said.

International diversification strategy requires a two-pronged approach and Hanna said choice of an investment should be influenced by exchange rate forecasts as well as interest rate movements in foreign markets.

One relatively new play is to buy bonds and hedge them into foreign exchange markets.

They just reinvest.

One example of this would be to buy

U.S. Treasuries or U.K. Gilts and hedge them into the yes in the forward market. The currency forward market operates like futures markets except that positions are for very large amounts and must be taken through a commercial bank.

Investors also can "play a weak dollar scenario" with foreign currency denominated money market instru-ments or in foreign currency futures and options

Borrowers have been creative in using currency swaps, interest rate swaps and other means to reduce costs," Hanna said, U.S. companies have borrowed $1.1 billion abroad so far this year, more than double last vear.

"Investors have been slower to adapt to the opportunities abroad," he said. "But data on foreign investments has become increasingly more available here, and we believe that investors also will begin take more advantage of that to increase their returns."

RUTLAND, Vt. - Vermont's largest utility in planning to ask for a rate increase to offset losses from the Seabrook, N.H., nuclear power project Central Vermont Public Service Corp. officials said Saturday when the second unit of the project is formally canceled, they will ask the state to approve a rate hike to make up part of the $12 million invested in the plant.

Public Service Board Chairman Louise McCarren said the company will have to show the Seabrook Unit 2 investments were prudent, in order to get permission to recoup the losses.

CVPS is one of two Vermont utilities with shares in the Seabrook project, which has been rocked by financial difficulties.

CVPS President James Griffin said he did not know how large a rate increase would be needed to offset the Seabrook losses.

Owners of the project have approved cancellation of the second unit if several controversial conditions are met, and Griffin said it will be several months before the reactor's fate is known

Jobless claims down

HARTFORD - The state Labor Department said filings for unemployment benefits dipped by nearly 2,800 to an average of 30,658 during the two week period ending April 21.

Labor Commissioner P. Joseph Peraro said Sunday first-time filings decreased by 111 to 3,147 and continued claims were down 2,676 to 27,511. He said claims expired for 264 claimants.

At the same time last year, the weekly average was 53,185 and included 5,452 intitial and 47,733 continued claims

Peraro said 14 local offices recorded lower filing and there others reported an increase.
