

GOP strategy is to woo ethnics and target Connecticut

Lee Atwater, Reagan's deputy campaign director, and Roger Stone, coordinator for 13 Northeastern states, told a briefing that to win in New England, the president would push strongly for the working class, ethnic and Catholic votes, which generally are conservative.

Specifically, they said, he would contrast his leadership qualities with Mondale's and promote the rebounding economy.

"New Jersey and Connecticut, both heavily Catholic states with a more recent history of voting Republican in presidential elections, are our top priority states in the region," said Stone, "and we're confident about our prospects in both those states."

Maine and Vermont, although part of the once solidly Republican New England block, have had more recent trends of voting Democratic and have become somewhat smaller battlegrounds than states such as New York and Pennsylvania, Stone said.

"They are states where the president is currently enjoying comfortable leads, but states that will have to be watched closely," he said.

Stone also believed the reason Reagan is competitive in the Northeast is because his traditional coalition are holding together.

Atwater, meanwhile, contended that Mondale has failed to build an effective base.

"Traditionally, the Midwest and the Northeast are the base states in a Democratic national campaign," Atwater said. "This year, the Mondale campaign at this point has not solidified a base in their own region. They have squandered their time and resources in the last two years and still do not have a solid political base developed as they go into this national campaign.

Rhode Island, Stone said, Reagan's appeal to "blue-collar, ethnic Catholics is very strong."

He argued that the president could carry the Bay State as he did in 1980, especially because John Anderson is not on the ballot. Many voters for Anderson's third party in 1980 were, Stone said, Republican voters Reagan could carry this year.

In Rhode Island, Stone argued that Republican Edward DiPrete was running a "surprisingly strong race" for governor and would "help the president substantially by pulling Catholics and these statistics of the progress that Massachusetts is making, and it is fertile Reagan country."

Stone also argued that the conservative Republican platform approved by the convention Tuesday would not hurt Reagan in the Northeast because of the improved economy and because ethnic and Catholic voters are usually conservative.

Japanese empire

According to legend, the Japanese empire was founded by Emperor Jimmu in 660 B.C. But records of a unified Japan date from 1,000 years earlier, Chinese influence was strong in the formation of Japanese civilization. Buddhism was introduced before the 6th century.

A-list of the damned

Chris Leachman, who took over the lead in the play "Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All For You," made a personal addition to a list of sinners in the script that is read to the audience by the title character.

Appearing at San Francisco Marines Memorial Theater, the actress was reciting a list of sinners going straight to hell — among them Brooke Shields, Roman Polanski, Billie Jean King and Linda Lovelace — when she added Joan Collins' name to the list of the damned. Miss Collins, said Miss Leachman, had a public affair 30 years ago with her husband, producer George Englund.

"I was 7½ months pregnant. How could I compete with her," Miss Leachman asked the audience, apparently stepping out of her usual character. "I remember Joan saying once, 'Oh, Chris, you must hate me.' I said, 'Just get off my husband's lap.'"

It's a bad connection

The union that represents AT&T telephone operators is furious with comedian Joan Rivers because she poked fun at operators in a TV commercial for AT&T competitor MCI.

Glenn Watts, president of the Communications Workers of America union, fired off a telegram Friday to Miss Rivers, saying he expects an apology for this "slayback portrayal of some of the most hard-working and efficient workers in the country." Watts also challenged her to try the job herself.

"We're waiting for her to take us up on our operator-for-a-day challenge and apologize. Otherwise, we're going to evaluate other actions," Watts said, but did not specify what those actions might be.

Big Bird goes AWOL

The "Sesame Street" gang is going Hollywood ... in Toronto.

"Sesame Street Presents: Follow that Bird" is the first "Sesame Street" feature film, currently being shot in Toronto and described as a comedy adventure with music.

Star billing goes to Carroll O'Connor as both Big Bird and Oscar the Grouch. Jim Henson, creator of the Muppets, plays Kermit the Frog and Ernie, while Frank Oz (the voice of Yoda in "The Empire Strikes Back") plays Bert, Grover and the Cookie Monster.

The plot has Big Bird leaving Sesame Street to live with a family of dodo birds and the Sesame gang's efforts to find him.

They're together again

James Stewart and Mildred Natwick, both 76, will be working together for the first time in more than 50 years when she joins him on location to film "The Late Christopher Bean" for an upcoming CBS movie.

The actors last appeared together on stage in 1928 when they were members of the University Players in Falmouth, Mass., and Stewart was just beginning his acting career.

Almanac

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 22, the 225th day of 1984 with 131 to follow.

The moon is moving toward its new phase.

There is no morning star.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Leo. They include French composer Claude Debussy in 1862, American writer and critic

Dorothy Parker in 1893, German composer Karlheinz Stockhausen in 1924 and comic actress Cindy Williams in 1947.

In 1922, Michael Collins, a founder of the Irish Republican Army and a key figure in Eire's independence movement, was assassinated by political opponents near Bandon, Ireland.

In 1968, Pope Paul VI arrived in Colombia, becoming the first pon-diff ever to visit overwhelmingly Roman Catholic South America. In 1970, President Jomo Kenyatta, father of modern Kenya and symbol of the African independence movement, died at the age of 66.

A thought for the day: American writer Dorothy Parker said, "With has truth in it; wisecracking is simply caelesthenics with words."

Leukemia benefit sponsors hope for last-minute donations

By Sarah E. Hall
Herald Reporter

A Manchester family dedicated to raising money for the Leukemia Society is making an eleventh-hour appeal for help in the hope that proceeds from a benefit sale on Sept. 15 will beat previous records.

"It will be quite truthful, the volume of contributions has dropped from what it's been other years and we don't understand why," Avondale Road resident Leonard Lohr said last week.

His son Michael, now 19 years old, founded the annual sale six years ago as a charity benefit. Despite the fear Michael, stated in a batch of letters mailed last month that the upcoming sale could be a "disaster," he said Tuesday he hopes a last-minute drive to obtain donations of cash and products from area businesses will lead to success.

"I'm confident this sale is going to be one of our better ones, if not the best," he said. "A lot of people wait till the last minute to send things."

Mike and Leonard Lohr, along with Mike's 16-year-old brother Eric — who has largely taken over the project now that Mike is in college sophomore — have already collected dozens of name-brand items for the sale.

The items will go for an estimated 10 to 60 percent less than their retail prices at the North

Main Street YWCA three weeks from now. The teenagers spent much of the past year writing to manufacturers around the country asking them to donate the products.

"The brothers' goal is to raise $10,000 this year, according to Cathy Caspalar, program coordinator of the Northern Connecticut Chapter of the Leukemia Society of America. She said the Lohrs' sale netted $8,232 for the society last year in their biggest fund-raiser to date.

The total stands at about $32,000 over six years, she said.

LOHR RECITED A LIST of items which are sure to be offered on Sept. 15.

• A Cuisinart food processor.
• A large selection of stuffed animals.
• Two porcelain figurines from the prestigious House of Edward Marshall Boehm, as well as at least one piece of Waterford crystal.
• Two Seiko wristwatches.
• "Hundreds and hundreds of computer games" and other software, including a word processing kit.
• One hundred cases of Hefty garbage bags, each containing 12 boxes, to be sold at about $10 a case.
• Three brand-new guitars.
• Sports, hiking and camping equipment, including two raquet-

ball rackets, a down jacket and Schrade jackknives.
• Six Norelco coffee-makers.
• Keebler Cookies donated by the distribution center in the Manchester Industrial Park.
• And leftovers from last year's sale, including Gatorade hair accessories, signs and mirrors with beer-brand logos, and Halloween decorations, some priced as low as 10 cents each.

"We are currently hoping for a last-minute deluge of contributions."

When asked why he has remained determined to make the sale a success year after year, Mike Lohr said he guesses it's "like a hobby." He said it had grown out of his experience, when nine years old, he holding a Burger-King sponsored backyard fair to benefit the Leukemia Society.

"I'm just stuck to this," he said. "I can't seem to give it up." The benefit sale will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sept. 15, at the YWCA on 78 N. Main Street. Call 646-6005 after 5 p.m., or contact the Leukemia Society for more information or to make contributions.

BY LATE THIS WEEK, when his summer job for an automotive paint wholesaler is over, Mike Lohr plans to be out soliciting popular restaurants for donations of gift certificates. "People love to buy these (at a fraction of their worth) because it's like trading your money in for more cash," he said.

The teenager is about to send out his letter to area manufacturers, and is counting on more help from Eric as soon as the younger boy arrives home from summer camp. Mike's girlfriend, Cindy Gallagher, has pitched in by typing letters, and as many as a dozen volunteers are expected to help out on the day of the sale.

About a month ago, when the outlook was bleak, Mike Lohr sent out a number of letters begging local companies to donate goods or money — and saying that turning over the project to his father and brother "wasn't such a good idea after all." He stopped

MMH budget is approved

By Sarah E. Hall
Herald Reporter

HARTFORD — The state commission that controls health-care costs in Connecticut approved a $29.1 million budget for Manchester Memorial Hospital Tuesday afternoon after cutting the hospital's proposed revenue plan by $1,200,000.

As a result of the action by the state Commission on Hospitals and Health Care, the average rate for a semi-private room at MMH will rise 11.4 percent. The rate will rise from the current $158 per day to $176 at the start of the 1985 fiscal year in October. That is less than MMH officials had predicted when they first submitted their $40.3 million budget request.

The budget agreement was reached after negotiations between MMH and the commission. They were needed after the commission ruled that the proposed MMH budget plan failed a preliminary "Overall Reasonableness Test" in July. At that time, the commission asked the hospital to cut its budget by nearly $5 million.

When asked for his reaction to the revised settlement, George Roy, chief financial officer at MMH, said "The hospital is pleased with it, never pleased." "The settlement reflects the hospital's agreement to voluntarily reduce revenues and expenses," said Sue Stanley, Chief of Finance for the commission.

Because the revised budget passes the commission's reasonableness test, it is subject to less strict criteria than it would otherwise have been.

The $1.2 million reduction includes a $93,000 carryover from the 1983 fiscal year when commission's MMH overspent a total of $1,505,000.

But rather than cut the total amount from the new budget, the commission set up a restricted account in which the hospital must place $812,000 for future capital needs. The funds must be salvaged from other accounts or raised, the commission ruled.

At the meeting Tuesday, MMH attorney Jeannette Schreiber asked that future budget increases take into account the carryover, which she said represents "an artificial reduction." The commission bases its rulings on calculations that compare one year's spending and revenues to the next year's.

Capital expenditures have been set at $1,508,000, up $234,000 from the hospital's budget request. The additional allowance reflects the remaining amount that MMH is authorized to spend on its $22-million building project, now nearing completion, Ms. Stanley said.

Sullivan resigns her post

Betty R. Sullivan has resigned as chairwoman of the Downtown Coordinating Committee because of new job responsibilities, she said in a letter to town General Manager Robert B. Weiss.

"It has been a pleasure working with you and the other members of the committee," she said in the Aug. 13 letter announcing her resignation. "I feel that our committee has made some very valuable contributions to the betterment of Manchester."

Ms. Sullivan was recently promoted to executive vice president of the New Haven division of Heritage Savings and Loan Association and will be devoting most of her time to training people in New Haven, she said in her letter to Weiss.

However, she said she does not plan to move from Manchester and will observe and offer my support to this committee in the future."

The downtown committee is a 18-member civic interest group which includes town officials, real estate agents and merchants.

Ms. Sullivan, previously a vice president at Heritage, was promoted earlier this month after the Manchester-based bank merged with Fidelity Federal Savings and Loan Association of New Haven.

Ms. Sullivan could not be reached for comment on her resignation from the committee.

Ferraro defends financial reports, looks for new start

By Paulo Schwed
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Geraldine Ferraro returned to the campaign trail after vigorous questioning about her and her husband's tax returns.

For almost two hours Ms. Ferraro fielded questions Tuesday and defended her decision to keep her husband's assets secret for the last six years. She said she and husband John Zaccaro disclosed more information about their financial status than "any other candidate in the history of the United States."

Ferraro hopes the tax returns and financial statements she and her husband filed Monday will be enough to satisfy questions on the subject. She acknowledged mistakes in her handling of the financial controversy and revealed at a news conference she will surrender her position as an officer in Zaccaro's real estate company.

She said by her birthday Sunday — when she turns 49 — she hopes it will be "a whole new year" and she can begin campaigning in earnest.

Ms. Ferraro was scheduled to make a speech in Washington today at a convention of the American Federation of Teachers and planned to do some campaigning in Birmingham, Ala., on Thursday.

Democratic presidential nominee Walter Mondale said he called

Ms. Ferraro from his home in North Oaks, Minn., shortly after her news conference and congratulated her for a "superb performance."

"I believe the Ferraro performance is a demonstration of strength, not weakness. A demonstration of a ticket that believes in candor and openness. I am even more convinced than ever that I made the right choice" in making her his running mate, he said.

Although polls after the Democratic convention showed their ticket neck-and-neck with President Reagan and George Bush, the Republicans have since widened the gap to between 10 and 20 percentage points.

Besides the financial furor that replaced initial euphoria over Ms. Ferraro's selection, the Mondale-Ferraro campaign has been dogged by a series of mishaps.

There have been complaints the Mondale organization is too insulated from Jesse Jackson and most recently, from Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young who called the advisers a bunch of "smart-ass white boys." There have also been reports Ms. Ferraro balked at some of her marching orders from top Mondale aide Jim Johnson.

Ms. Ferraro's press secretary Patricia Barrio quit Tuesday night, saying she was frustrated with her husband's death.

Hitler diary trial recesses

HAMBURG, West Germany — The long-awaited trial of a reporter and a Nazi memo peddler accused of bilking a West German magazine out of $3.2 million for bogus Hitler diaries adjourned for a week just hours after getting started.

A three-judge tribunal trying magazine reporter Gerd Heidemann and Third Reich relics dealer Konrad Kujaw recessed the proceeding Tuesday until Aug. 28 to consider a demand that it disqualify itself on grounds of bias.

Kujaw and Heidemann are charged with defrauding the reporter's former employer, Stern magazine, of $3.2 million between January 1981 and May 1983. They allegedly took the money in return for providing Stern with 60 newly discovered diaries by Adolf Hitler that were supposed to become a historic sensation — but instead were proved an embarrassing forgery.

Belushi was injected, friends say

TORONTO — Cathy Evelyn Smith injected comedian John Belushi several times with a cocaine-heroin mixture during a five-day party at a Sunset Strip motel in Los Angeles, the late actor's friends testified.

Leslie Marks and Nelson Lyons, in affidavits submitted to an extradition hearing for Miss Smith Tuesday, said they saw her administer frequent injections to Belushi.

Miss Smith, 35, of Toronto faces extradition to California where she is charged in Belushi's 1982 drug-overdose death. The former singer and songwriter was quoted in the National Enquirer tabloid as admitting she gave Belushi the fatal dose. In the final 30 hours of Belushi's life, he was injected with heroin and cocaine at least 24 times — most or all of those by Miss Smith, the hearing was told.

Fighting ends Tripoli calm

TRIPOLI, Lebanon — Artillery and machine gun fire shattered a brief calm today, killing five people and forcing residents searching for victims of an earlier battle to scramble for cover.

"There is cross-city shelling with rockets and sniper fire," a witness said in the third straight day of violence in the northern port. "So far today's fighting has killed five people and injured 17 more."

Twenty-two hours of furious cross-town shelling began Monday between rival Muslim gangs, the anti-Syrian Islamic Tawheed organization and the pro-Syrian "Pink Panthers" gunmen, who wear raspberry-colored uniforms.

Syrian troops surrounding the city as a peace-keeping force since 1976 did not intervene, reports said.

Suspect held in slayings

CHICAGO — A suspect in 19 homosexual-related slayings who had been freed on bond because of illegal search and seizure methods will be charged in the death of a man whose dismembered body was found in a trash dumpster, police said.

Larry Eyer, a self-employed house painter, was arrested after the body was discovered in a trash dumpster outside his apartment building.

"We are currently in conference with the State's Attorney's Office," Police Commander Edward Wodnicki said Tuesday night. "We anticipate at this time that we will have charges."

Eyer, 30, who had been sought in Lake County, Ill., and in Indiana with the homosexual-related murders and mutilations of 19 young men, was charged in October in the mutilation death of Ralph Colise, 28.

Threat against Reagan has R.I. man arrested

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — An unemployed Warwick resident with a limited education and a history of mental problems has been charged with threatening the life of President Reagan, the secret service said.

Robert V. Sousa, 34, of 33 Winter Ave., appeared in U.S. District Court Tuesday before Judge Bruce M. Selya, who set bail at $100,000 and ordered the suspect to undergo three months of psychiatric evaluation.

Sousa told the judge he had been unemployed for the past seven years.

The suspect allegedly made several threatening phone calls to the White House over the weekend, and was arrested Monday, the Secret Service said.

Threatening statements he made during a traffic arrest last year helped agents trace the calls to Sousa, officials said.

Court documents filed in the case included a doctor's statement saying Sousa suffered from "mental retardation, emotional instability, personality disorder, anti-social and intermittent pre-psychotic schizophrenic condition, paranoid type."

At the time of the 1983 arrest, the Secret Service investigated Sousa but decided not to arrest him because of his mental condition, officials said.

In the weekend incidents, the caller gave a false name and address, but provided other information that led the Secret Service to suspect Sousa, officials said.

Included was the same zip code recorded after Sousa allegedly made the 1983 threats, the Secret Service said.

Mondale lauds Ferraro decision

By Thomas Ferraro
United Press International

NORTH OAKS, Minn. — Democratic presidential nominee Walter Mondale is sporting his biggest smile in weeks — a proud grin in support of running mate Geraldine Ferraro's disclosure of her family finances.

Mondale, whose uphill campaign had been stalled by financial questions about her, said she was "courageous" and "candid" handling of the matter has now produced "a stronger ticket" better able to take on the Reagan-Bush team.

A beaming Mondale called and congratulated Ms. Ferraro Tuesday after she calmly answered questions at a 90-minute, nationally televised news conference in Washington.

He then summoned reporters to his home outside of Minneapolis and said, "Gerry Ferraro has passed a test of leadership and strength that will be reassuring to the American people."

Said Mondale, "I feel good about it."

However, controversy continued in the Ferraro camp, as press secretary Patricia Barrio quit over the handling of the disclosures.

"I've been through two of the worst weeks any campaign has ever had without any backup staff," she told reporters. "It's been very frustrating. It's not the level of professionalism I like to adhere to."

Questions have swirled about the tax liabilities, real estate dealings and campaign financing of Ms. Ferraro and her husband, real estate investor John Zaccaro.

The controversy escalated when Ms. Ferraro said her husband would release his tax returns and then he initially refused.

On Monday, the couple made a sweeping financial disclosure that showed Zaccaro has more than $3 million in assets.

Violence mars South African vote

By Erik Von Ees
United Press International

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — Police arrested 24 protesters today as mixed-race South Africans voted for the first time in 28 years, choosing their chamber of a segregated parliament that still excludes the nation's 22 million blacks.

A South African Broadcasting Corp. report said firebombs were hurled at the Cape town polls at one candidate and that two youths were arrested. There were no reports of injuries.

Opponents of the white-ruled government's apartheid racial policies have called a boycott of the elections and of next week's elections in which Asian voters will choose a parliamentary chamber of their own.

Thousands of South African college students and school children boycotted classes to protest the election.

According to the new constitution to be formally adopted Sept. 3, Prime Minister Pieter W. Botha will take the post of state president and will use wide-ranging powers to oversee the business of the two chambers and the all-white House of Parliament, whose 178 MPs already have been elected and seated.

The chambers will look after non-political affairs involving marred by violence as supporters and opponents of the segregated chambers clashed with each other and with police.

Tuesday a meeting of opposing sides deteriorated into a chair-throwing battle in a suburb of Cape Town, where the bulk of South Africa's "coloreds" live.

Police and education officials said about 30,000 protesting students boycotted classes Tuesday.

In Grahamstown, near Port Elizabeth, police arrested 16 white Rhodes University students, including Students Representative Council President Alan Williams.

Officials said the group, carrying an anti-election placard, was demonstrating at the main entrance to the university grounds.

Four members of the United Democratic Front — a leader of the boycott movement — were arrested at the Belmont polling station near Johannesburg today, a UDF spokesman said.

Two other black students were arrested in the black township of Soweto, outside Johannesburg, he said.

Thirty-five UDF members were detained by police in raids throughout the country Tuesday, South Africa's new constitution, which takes effect next month, creates separate Asian and "colored" — as mixed race people are called — chambers of parliament to deal with non-political affairs of the respective races. Whites, however, will retain virtually absolute power, while the majority blacks will continue to have no vote at all.

Law and Order Minister Louis le Grange said police were "prepared for any eventuality" and would not allow anything to disrupt the balloting.

Election officials said there were small queues at some polling stations in the Transvaal when voting started, but numbers quickly dwindled.

Some 907,000 of South Africa's 2.7 "coloreds" were eligible to vote in today's election.

The exiled African National Congress, a guerrilla movement fighting white rule in South Africa, also has backed the boycott, which political forecasters predicted would lend to a less-than 50 percent turnout.

Among those detained in pre-dawn raids aimed at curbing the boycott campaign were UDF publicity secretary Patrick Lekota and one of the group's three presidents, Archie Gumede.

Voters today were to elect 80 legislators to a mixed-race House of Representatives. On Aug. 28 the nearly 900,000-strong Asian population will have an opportunity to

H&R Block To Offer Tax School in Manchester

Thousands of people are saving money at tax time and earning money in their spare time as income tax preparers.

Anyone may enroll. There are no restrictions or qualifications. Courses are ideally suited for housewives, retired persons, teachers, persons wanting to increase their tax knowledge or anyone who files a tax return.

Qualified course graduates may be offered job interviews for positions with Block. However, Block is under no obligation to offer employment, nor are graduates under any obligation to accept employment with H&R Block.

The modest course fee includes all textbooks, supplies and tax forms necessary for completion of the school. Certificates and 7.5 continuing education units will be awarded upon successful completion of the course.

Registration forms and a brochure for the income tax course may be obtained by contacting the H&R Block office at 383 Silas Deane Hwy., Wethersfield, telephone 529-1489.

During the 14-week course, experienced Block personnel will teach students all phases of income tax preparation including individual returns. Instruction topics include current tax laws and tax theory and their application as practiced in Block offices nationwide. There is classroom lecture and practice problems on each subject. Courses are programmed to teach students increasingly complex tax problems as study progresses. Students will find the course both practical and challenging and will also be able to use their new skills directly to save money on their own tax returns.

O'Neill and Moffett begin war dance

By now, just about everyone watching the political scene in Connecticut expects Gov. Bill O'Neill to seek a second full term in 1986.

O'Neill says it's a good bet that he will, and that is a mouthful for this very gun-shy Democratic politician.

Also by now, observers expect that former Democratic Congressman Toby Moffett will be a candidate for governor regardless of whether O'Neill is after the same nomination.

The ritualistic war dance has already begun. Both seasoned Democrats talk about each other in unguarded moments with close friends, and the gist of these conversations is that they are in the race for sure. They make the same kind of belittling references to the other which politicians do in the company of trusted allies.

And they are especially attentive to every tidbit of information they can get on the other.

So in many ways, the 1986 campaign is really under way for the Democrats. It's time for the rank and file to start choosing its sides.

O'NEILL, MORE COMFORTABLE than ever in the job and with the full approval of wife Nikki, is behaving and thinking like a candidate although he is a long way from making a definitive statement.

Moffett, who has ruled out any attempt to win elective office in Washington again, wants the top job in this state so bad he can taste it. The one development which could alter that obsession would be a big appointment in a Walter Mondale presidency. At the moment, that seems to be a long shot.

Ironically, these likely rivals for their party's gubernatorial nomination in 1986 are on the same team in this year's presidential race. O'Neill is general chairman of Walter Mondale's campaign in Connecticut while Moffett is working his way up the ladder in the nominee's organization in Washington.

O'Neill has the advantage of the incumbency as we writers like to say in belaboring the cliché. But it's a fact, just the same, and no one knows it more than O'Neill does. O'Neill also is tightening control over the Democratic organization in this state.

MOFFETT, STILL NOT TOTALLY SURE of what he will do in 1986, knows he must put it together now if he expects to emerge in strength by mid-1986, when the Democratic State Convention would be considering his bid. The best that Moffett can hope for is the 20 percent of delegate support he needs to mount a primary against O'Neill.

Moffett is a high roller in politics and he continues to lead and inspire a loyal band of liberals who are as eager to see him in the governor's chair as he is himself. Whether he can also count on some of the state's big labor combinations as he had in his corner in 1982 — the year of his disastrous decision to go for the U.S. Senate — will have to sit on the back burner a while longer.

Within the Democratic party, the most significant development all year was the appointment by O'Neill of State Sen. Dick Schneller as director of the Mondale campaign in this state.

THE MONDALE CAMPAIGN is just for openers. Once it's over, Schneller can take off his warm-up jacket and await recognition of his real role in the party. Whether he has a title, or operates for a while on momentum, he is O'Neill's discovery as a Democrat of unusual political value.

As one observer who cannot be identified told us, Schneller "was always with us."

The "us" in that reference means O'Neill's inner circle. And the real inner circle is based at the state Capitol, which has been the center of control and influence for the Democratic party since the late Gov. Ella Grasso put it there early in her tenure.

Schneller, this source also said, was put in charge of the Mondale effort partly "to take the wind out of the sails of guys like (George) Hannon and (Jim) Wade, O'Neill's longtime personal friends who, in the judgment of some Democrats, became too possessive about it. "They wanted their own king," our observer said.

That, of course, may have overstated the status of Hannon and Wade, who are still important allies of O'Neill's and fund-raisers extraordinary. And it avoids the touchy subject of State Chairman Jim Fitzgerald's position in the Democratic scheme of things.

But the best bet in Democratic politics at the moment is that O'Neill will be a candidate for reelection in 1986 and that he will have to dispose of Toby Moffett, if he can, in order to run.

VA wants costly plan for vets

WASHINGTON — The White House is sitting uncomfortably on an ambitious Veterans Administration proposal for future health care of the nation's growing number of older veterans.

The costly plan is something the Reagan administration would rather not deal with before Election Day.

The reason is simple: If President Reagan doesn't endorse the multi-billion-dollar proposal, he risks offending more than 20 million veterans who may need VA medical care as they retire and lose their employee health insurance plans.

But if the president accepts the VA's fearfully expensive proposal, it will make his stand against tax increases even less believable than it already is.

The VA, whose militant constituency and bipartisan clout on Capitol Hill have made it virtually untouchable among federal agencies, has timed its proposal shrewdly. No candidate for Congress or the White House is likely to risk being seen as putting more dollars above the welfare of veterans and their families.

But the VA's draft report to the White House makes two things clear: The problem of aging vets is one that won't go away, and its solution will cost plenty. My associate Donald Goldberg has obtained a copy of the closely held draft, titled "Caring for the Older Veteran: A Shared Vision for the Future."

"Americans are growing older," the report points out, "but veterans are growing older faster than the general population. ... In this decade, 4.2 million veterans will pass the age milestone. ... By the year 2000, 63 percent of all American males over 65 will be veterans. Under current eligibility rules, this means that by 2000 two out of every three elderly males in the United States will be eligible for VA health care if they elect to use it."

The cost of VA medical programs is already more than $9 billion a year. If the youngest World War II veterans and those who served in Korea and Vietnam are to be given the same level of care that older vets are now getting, the cost increase will be significant.

"The magnitude of the increase will depend on factors whose impact can only be estimated, but it will approach an increase of $6 billion (a year) from 1985 levels at its peak in 2000," the draft report warns. "In addition, provision for the facilities necessary to meet the needs of the older veteran will require an estimated $6.4 billion investment above current commitments, primarily between 1990 and 2000."

The VA report lists several targeted areas or "strategies" that will require sizable expansion over the next few years. Among the most important:

- "The goal of the hospital strategy is to provide sufficient capacity in VA hospitals to assure availability and accessibility of needed inpatient acute care services to all eligible older veterans, by the report states. New construction and service to "understand us as we are" will increase bed capacity by at least 27 percent by the year 2000.
- "The ambulatory care strategy has a goal of providing a non-institutional capacity designed to provide essential health and supportive services to eligible veterans of all ages, emphasizing a full extent consistent with high quality care."
- The extended care strategy's goal call for a 250 percent increase by 2010 in the capacity of nursing homes operated or supported by the VA, plus expansion of home care programs and day health-care services.

In addition to veterans' medical services, the report estimates that by 1990, anywhere from $5 billion to $8 billion a year will be needed to meet pension payments, plus $104 billion for other compensation.

Woman to face charges in freak shooting accident

ENFIELD (UPD) — Funeral services were being held today for a woman shot fatally by a neighbor who faces a manslaughter charge in the freak-accidental shooting.

Police said Tuesday a manslaughter charge will be filed against Tonja Tyler, 25, who tripped over her cat while carrying a loaded gun that fired, killing her friend walking outside.

Police are classifying the shooting Friday of Catherine Castano, 27, as an accident, but Detective Sgt. Leo Arnone said a manslaughter charge would be filed after tests on the gun at the state police crime laboratory in Meriden are completed.

Arnone said he believes the report will confirm that it was Mrs. Tyler who pulled the trigger of the .357 Magnum handgun.

"There's no doubt it was an accident," he said, "but we just want to be sure she was the one who shot the gun."

Police said the death was classified as accidental but charges would be filed because the crime fit the definition of homicide, Arnone said.

Transplant patient awake

HARTFORD — Tiny Laura Label was awake and alert Wednesday buying the hopes of her parents and doctors the 16-month-old baby will recover from liver transplant surgery and go home to Watertown to live a normal life.

Laura was given the liver of a 17-month-old Newark, N.J., child in an eight-hour operation that ended 5 a.m. Tuesday. It was the first liver transplant performed at Hartford Hospital.

Little more than 24 hours later, Laura was critical but stable in the intensive care unit, attached to a respirator to help her breathe.

"She's awake. She's moving around and alert. She appears to hear us speaking to her," said Dr. Carolyn Riegler, the transplant team's specialist in pediatric intensive care.

Her parents, Steven and Teresa Label, were not available for comment but were "handing it well," a hospital spokesman said.

Laura suffered from biliary atresia, a condition which causes bile to build up and eventually destroy the liver. Her case was "quite advanced" and she had developed cirrhosis, or "end-stage liver disease," said Dr. Alan Leichter, the transplant team's specialist in pediatric gastroenterology.

Expert probes Ensign blast

SIMSBURY — An internationally known expert is investigating last week's blast at an explosives manufacturing plant in which three workers were killed.

Robert Van Dolah, 45, an investigator of explosions and fires, Tuesday met with company officials to discuss the Ensign-Bickford Industries complex and studied technical information.

Dolah arrived in Simsbury from Pittsburgh, Pa. Sunday four days after the blast that left three workers dead and a cloud of fumes that forced hundreds from their homes.

Although federal, state and company investigators have been sifting through the rubble in search of clues leading to the cause of the explosion, Van Dolah was asked to help by Herman Fonteyne, president of the company.

Carter coming to Hartford

HARTFORD — Former President Carter will visit Hartford Sept. 17 to dedicate a new television station in honor of the late Gov. Ella T. Grasso, the station announced Tuesday.

The former president and his wife, Rosalynn, will appear on the inaugural program on WTIC-TV, Channel 61, an independent station partly owned by Mrs. Grasso's son, James Grasso.

Carter will dedicate the station to Mrs. Grasso, who strongly supported him in the 1980 primary campaign where he put down a challenge by Massachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

The station originally had the call letters of WETG-TV, for Mrs. Grasso's initials, but will go on the air with the WTIC-TV call letters, which formerly were used by Channel 3, now WFBS-TV.

Hartford tops in gonorrhea

HARTFORD — The city of Hartford tops Connecticut in the number of reported cases of gonorrhea, but officials are worried there may be many more with young people avoiding treatment.

The Hartford Health Department recorded 3,311 cases of gonorrhea in 1983, 191 fewer than in 1982. Gonorrhea remains the most frequently reported venereal disease in the state and the country.

A Health Department spokesman said there may be as many as 5,000 unreported gonorrhea cases in the city because of a reluctance to seek treatment.

Parents happy with arrest

HARTFORD — The parents of a young woman stabbed to death in a deserted driveway said they were relieved police obtained an arrest warrant but will never understand why their daughter was the victim of such violence.

Suspect Clinton Milner, 26, faced arraignment today on a murder charge in the slaying of 23-year-old Susan Kennedy of New Britain Aug. 4.

Police Tuesday arrested Milner, 26, for the death of Ms. Kennedy, who had been stabbed 12 times in a driveway of the building where she had gone to visit a co-worker from Aetna Life & Casualty.

Brother gives police info

NEW HAVEN — Robert Golino has testified he gave police private information about his brother shortly before Anthony Golino was arrested July 2 for the murder 11 years ago of Penny Serra.

Robert Golino, 29, of Hamden, was subpoenaed to Superior Court Tuesday in a probable cause hearing to determine if further prosecution of his 33-year-old brother, a local popcorn distributor, is warranted.

Miss Serra was stabbed once in the left side of the chest and her body found in a tenth floor stairwell of the Temple Street garage. Anthony Golino is free in $150,000 bond.

Cop says Allison brutal

NEW HAVEN — A police official has testified defendant Guillermo Allison had bruises and injuries on his body when he was arrested four days after the murders of his estranged wife and her parents in 1972.

North Haven Police Capt. Walter Cummings Tuesday identified photographs taken after Allison's Aug. 18, 1972, arrest showing injuries to his right hand, on the underside of his right arm and bruises on both legs.

Allison is being tried a third time in the stabbing deaths of his wife, Barbara Allison Montano, 26, and her wealthy parents, a George Montano, 49, and his wife, Bernice Montano, 46, in their home on Aug. 12, 1972.

Allison, 46, of East Hartford, was convicted of the murders in 1973 and given a 75 year sentence. But the conviction was overturned because the trial judge had spoken to a juror during deliberations.

Allison was freed on $255,000 bond in 1977 and his second trial ended in a hung jury in 1979.

More voodoo from the GOP

From the taxpayers' point of view, it's nice to hear President Reagan wandering around the country saying he'll raise taxes only as a "last, desperate resort."

But considering the economic policies adopted by the conservative-dominated platform committee at the convention in Dallas, the president isn't being realistic. Neither is his party, which adopted the platform Tuesday despite the valid criticisms of moderates like Connecticut's Sen. Lowell Weicker.

If the Reagan administration wins a second term and the Republicans' platform goals are pursued, there's little doubt that taxes will need to be raised unless the record deficit is to rise even higher. Those who listen to Reagan now are asking to be disillusioned.

Party insiders admit that the platform writers will be ignored if push comes to shove. The president will simply forget their policies and do what's needed, as he has in the past.

But it's sad that the voters won't have gained anything more than rhetoric from the Republican convention this year. It would be far better if the GOP were to provide a realistic summary of its program.

The fact is that while it meets in Dallas, the party is calling for policies that would add between $20 and $50 million to a burgeoning federal deficit now estimated at $170 billion. It bases its assessments on a theory known as supply-side economics, which has also been called "voodoo economics."

The GOP is calling for doubling individual tax exemptions and an end to the corporate windfall profits tax on gas and oil, to name just two among a host of items. It asks these things while promising that ordinary taxpayers won't be required to cough up another dime.

As Kansas Sen. Bob Dole, like Weicker a center-leaning Republican, has noted, the proposals in the platform would cost the government a lot of money. In turn, the government would charge the taxpayers.

Dole calls the party position "sort of mind-boggling" and adds: "If it (the addition to the deficit) does total $100 billion, it would be embarrassing."

It pays to remember that the Reagan administration promised four years ago to give us a balanced budget by now. In order to do so, it has cut the services and programs that help less fortunate Americans to a bare minimum.

The administration also won passage of a record new tax package, though the income tax itself was not affected.

Rather than economizing, the Reaganites have multiplied the deficit several times over and could well do so again.

During convention week, it's nice to get a glimpse of the Republican vision of Utopia: lots of government largesse to corporations and few taxes to support it.

But it would be a lot better if the platform made an attempt at honesty. That way, the inevitable tax hike — no matter who wins the presidency — would be a bit less of a surprise and a lot easier to take.

Working seniors should know act

To the Editor:

Changes in the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act concerning Medicare are very important to all people 65 to 69 years of age who are working. It is very important that we let these people know about these changes.

There are two very important Medicare issues that I want to tell all working seniors age 65 to 69 about.

Earlier this year, I wrote letters to our congressional delegation (and everyone else I could think of) calling for action on two Medicare issues vital to everyone between the ages of 65 and 69 who continued to work. The issues involved were 1) the requirement under the new Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act that employers offer their employees ages 65 to 69 the same health benefits plan offered to their younger workers. Medicare payments are then secondary for those older workers (and their spouses age 65 to 69).

Those employees may have wanted to delay enrollment in Part B of Medicare until they retired because the Part B coverage was probably duplicative, however, persons who enrolled late were subject to a penalty. The monthly Part B premium was increased by 10 percent for each full year that an individual delayed enrollment, therefore, people were afraid not to enroll. That penalty has now been waived. There will be no penalty for the older worker who takes Medicare at a later date when he retires and, issue number 2) he will be able to enroll in Medicare as soon as his health benefits with the company are no longer in effect. The same month in which the benefits run out, his Medicare will go into effect. He will not have to wait for a

Health care cost action is needed

America's political leaders apparently think that skyrocketing health care costs are an issue that's "too hot to handle" in this election year.

For the most part, Congress and the Reagan administration are avoiding the issue, and not much has been heard from the candidates for the Democratic party's presidential nomination on the subject either.

The American Association of Retired Persons believes that the health care cost crisis is too important to be "swept under the rug" until next year. Medicare is on the verge of bankruptcy. Millions of American workers and their families are facing cutbacks in employee health benefits. Child care programs are running out of funds.

That's why AARP is urging

Universal show great production

Americans of all ages to send copies of their medical bills to Congress. We want to give Congress the message that we need action on health care cost containment now, and health care costs are going to be a major issue in the political campaigns.

Let your representative and senators know that they can't duck this issue any longer. Send them copies of your medical bills and a note today.

interest loans. Other proposed uses include $133,000 for sidewalk and drainage improvements, $75,000 for parking and drainage facilities at the Senior Citizens' Center, $60,000 for playground improvements, $50,000 for an elevator at town hall and $20,000 for administrative costs.

Both Mrs. Lingard and Gelting also suggested that more money be made available for rehabilitation of older housing units.

The town's acceptance of the money depends on the outcome of a Nov. 6 referendum in which voters will be asked if the town should re-enter the CDBG program.

Weiss has said the current proposal is similar to the program the town had in place when residents voted by more than a 2-to-1 margin in 1979 to withdraw from the CDBG program. In 1980, voters again rejected participation in the program and placed a two-year moratorium on the town's re-entry.

The 1979 referendum sparked a lawsuit by three low-income residents and the U.S. Justice Department. They claimed the town's withdrawal was racially motivated and discriminated against low-income people. Manchester won the lawsuit.

Diana has said he opposes having another referendum or re-entering the CDBG program because voters have made their feelings on the matter clear in the past referendums.

A 15-member study committee appointed by the Board of Directors earlier this year recommended by a 9-to-5 margin, with one abstention, that the town re-enter the program. The majority said that the benefits outweighed the risks involved but the minority felt the risks were too great.

The block grant program is designed to benefit low and moderate income people, eliminate slum conditions and promote accessibility for the handicapped to town programs.

Teenager charged in alleged rape

A teenager with no known address was arrested Friday on rape charges in connection with a July 3 assault on a Manchester woman.

Jonathon Robbins, 17, was charged with two counts of first-degree sexual assault and one count of third-degree sexual assault. Police said Robbins was on probation for a burglary conviction at the time of the alleged attack and is now in jail.

According to police a 16-year-old acquaintance of Robbins reported that she had rebuffed physical advances he made toward her in her bedroom the night of July 3. She said she was later forced to have sexual relations with him twice in a car parked outside her house, where she lives with a friend and her friend's children, police said.

The girl was refused treatment when she went to the Manchester Memorial Hospital emergency room two days later because she refused to let hospital officials notify her parents, police said. She later returned to the hospital with her father and was treated, police said.

Manchester police said Robbins has previously served time in the state prisons in Cheshire and Brooklyn and in the Hartford Correctional Center.

Hepatitis outbreak hits Worcester

WORCESTER, Mass. (UPI) — Federal health officials have proposed an unprecedented vaccination program for drug users and their sexual partners to try to stem a deadly outbreak of hepatitis B in the Worcester area, officials said today.

Dr. Stephen Hadler, a researcher for the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., said he was working with local health officials to find money to pay for the unusual program, which has never been tried before in the country.

"This is being considered because of the severity of the outbreak," said Hadler. "But we're not even sure how easy it would be to get it to them."

Since September 1983, 78 cases of the liver disease have been reported in the Worcester area. Six victims died from the disease in the last 4½ months, one of the highest mortality rates ever recorded in the country, he said.

A city the size of Worcester would expect to see about 15 cases of hepatitis B a year, said Walter G. Irvine, head of the city's Health Department.

Officials have determined that about 60 percent of those who have contracted the disease are drug users while about 15 percent had sexual contact with drug users, he said. Normally, death occurs in one out of every 100 cases, he said. The disease strikes the liver, causes fatigue, nausea, abdominal pain, vomiting and can lead to death. There is no treatment.

Hadler said few of those people may be willing to come to vaccination clinics because of fears of being arrested and because they generally have a low concern for their health, he said.

"The idea would be some kind of clinic that would guarantee them anonymity and no chance of prosecution," he said. "The problem is they're afraid of being arrested because they're doing something illegal."

Officials also fear they wouldn't go through with three doses of the vaccination needed over a six-month period for it to work, Hadler said.

In addition, each set of three doses costs $100 and officials estimated it would cost at least $20,000 to administer the vaccines for the Worcester area. Neither the CDC or local health officials have the money, he said.

The Worcester outbreak may be especially deadly because of a newly discovered accompanying bacteria, called the Delta agent, may also be present, he said.

The Delta agent was first discovered in 1976 by a doctor in Turin, Italy, though its companion role to hepatitis B was not discovered until 1980. That year it was positively identified as a factor in a severe hepatitis B outbreak among Venezuelan Indians in which 34 of the 149 patients died. 3 The outbreak of Hepatitis B is the fourth such outbreak in the United States since 1980. In the three previous outbreaks — in California, North Carolina and Kentucky — Delta agent also was suspected but blood studies were not conclusive.

Portland's Olympian hero

Maine gives welcome to Benoit

By Ed Lion
United Press International

PORTLAND, Maine — The city got mountains of ticker tape ready for today's gala parade honoring three New England Olympians, including Maine running superstar Joan Benoit who won the first women's marathon in the history of the games.

The parade will honor:
• Benoit, 27, of Freeport who has won the hearts of Mainers for her running courage.

• Billy Swift, 22, of South Portland, a pitcher on the silver medal-winning U.S. Olympic baseball team.

• And Harriet "Holly" Metcalf, 26, of South Hadley, Mass., a member of an eight-person rowing team that won a gold medal. Her parents live in Arrowsic, Maine.

The parade, sponsored by an association of Portland businessmen and City Hall, will wind its way through the downtown with the three athletes expected to ride in a convertible.

Organizers say they expect Gov.

Joseph Brennan and Maine Sens. George Mitchell and William Cohen to speak at the parade.

"We're getting a lot of confetti ready," said parade spokeswoman Bonnie Stringer. "We want a snowstorm kind of thing."

Organizers using shredding machines have made confetti to distribute to buildings along the parade route.

The three athletes will further be honored on Aug. 29 by the Maine Sports Hall of Fame, an organization that honors Maine athletes to promote sports.

Miss Benoit will be inducted into the hall at a special dinner, joining about 60 other Maine athletes who went on to fame and glory in the Olympics and professional sports.

"We are inducting Joan Benoit and honoring the other two," said hall executive secretary Jack Dawson.

"Ordinarily our induction dinner is in the spring but the whole country is involved in honoring these people."

"Anybody from Maine, whether they have been an athlete or haven't, certainly vicariously ran in the Coliseum that day with Joan. It brings tears to some peoples eyes when they talk about it with what she had to overcome."

Miss Benoit, who grew up in Cape Elizabeth and attended Bowdoin College, suffered a knee injury in mid-April, casting her Olympic hopes in doubt. But 17 days after surgery she came back to win the Olympic trials.

And then with a courage and determination that has won the admiration of Mainers, she went on to win the first ever Olympic women's marathon, breezing over the 26-mile, 385-yard course in 2:24:52.

Leak means refueling delay

HADDAM NECK (UPI) — A leaking seal that flooded the containment building of the Connecticut Yankee nuclear plant with 200,000 gallons of water will extend the plant's 10-week shutdown for refueling.

Plant spokesman Tony Nericcio said the water was "confined and controlled" within the building Tuesday. "There is no radiation danger or health hazard to the public," he said.

No workers were injured. A leaking seal in the refueling cavity, or the space around the reactor, allowed 200,000 gallons of water to drain onto the containment floor about 8 a.m., said Nericcio who compared the accident to a "flooded basement."

"This is a separate quantity of water than used to flood the reactor itself," Nericcio said, although the leaked water did become "mildly radioactive" because of its contact with the walls of the reactor vessel.

He said refueling will be delayed for two days until the water can be pumped back into a storage tank and the seal repaired. The plant is in the third week of its scheduled 10-week shutdown for refueling.

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Grady Nettles turned 40 years old Monday. He showed no signs of it Tuesday night... "Everybody expects when you're 40 that you're over the hill."

Coach Bill Parcells goes into his second NFL campaign determined to reduce the constant flow of mental and physical mistakes his club made last season in a dreadful 12-1 campaign...

"I'm not changing my personality — I'm changing my approach," says Parcells. "I'll be tougher just from the standpoint that I expect players to toe the line."

The Giants lost 27 fumbles and were intercepted 21 times last year and Parcells is counting on quarterback Phil Simms to take control of a sputtering offense...

THE GIANTS ARE ALWAYS respectable on defense, but the club traded away three defensive starters in the off-season...

COVENTRY — Any Coventry child who wishes to play football this fall may sign up to play with the teams in the Bolton Football Association, the head of the Bolton association said recently. Cliffor Socorro said Coventry and Bolton have received permission from the Eastern Connecticut Football Conference to join forces for one year. The Coventry football program has been disbanded. Those in Coventry who wish to play should call Art Fowell at 742-9200 or show up at practice in Bolton. Practices have already begun and are being held at Herrick Memorial Park, starting at 6 p.m. every weeknight. The town of Coventry will provide equipment and insurance for Coventry players.

Red Sox sign Marzano

BOSTON — The Boston Red Sox Tuesday announced the signing of U.S. Olympic team catcher John Marzano. Marzano was the Red Sox' top pick in the June draft and the 14th pick overall. He will report to the Florida Instructional League on Sept. 15. Marzano, 21, averaged 409 during his three years at Temple University with 22 home runs and 44 RBI in 122 games. The 5-foot-11, 180-pounder led the U.S. Olympic team with a .407 average during its pre-Olympics tour. In the four games in Los Angeles, Marzano hit .333 with a home run and four RBI. Marzano was picked by Minnesota in the June 1981 draft after graduating from Central High School in South Philadelphia.

Auerbach number retired

MARSHFIELD, Mass. — Red Auerbach, president of the Boston Celtics and the team's former coach and general manager, will have a number retired in his honor at Boston Garden this winter, team officials said Tuesday. Now in his 35th year with the Celtics, Auerbach will have No. 2 raised on Jan. 4 in ceremonies before a game with the New York Knicks. It is the 18th Celtics number to be retired. No Celtics player ever wore No. 2. No. 1 was retired in honor of Walter Brown, the first owner of the Celtics.

Two sign with Kings

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — The Los Angeles Kings announced Tuesday the signings of their first two 1984 NHL draft picks, defenseman Craig Redmond and center Brian Wilks. Redmond, 18, of British Columbia, is the cousin of former NHL players Dick and Mickey Redmond. He was the Kings' top pick and was considered one of the top defensemen available in the draft. He was ranked as the fourth best overall player and the best defenseman by NHL Central Scouting, which evaluates all eligible players. Wilks, also 18, of Toronto, was the Kings' second selection and the 24th pick overall in the draft. The 170-pound center scored 21 goals and had 34 assists and 75 points in 64 games for Kitchener of the Ontario Hockey League last season.

Weber gets 4th PBA title

WINDSOR, Ontario — Pete Weber defeated top-seeded Bob Chamberlain 20-17 to capture his fourth career title in the finals of a $125,000 Pro Bowlers' Association tournament Tuesday night. Weber, of St. Louis, celebrated his 27th birthday by collecting the $18,000 for his winning performance. It was the second title this year for Weber, who won just four weeks ago in Austin, Texas.

Coburn wins ladies classic

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Cindy Coburn won the $25,000 Ladies Pro Bowlers Tour Greater Rochester Classic by one pin when Jeanne Maiden missed a single-pin spare in the 10th frame Tuesday night. Coburn won 205-204 in the final match despite giving Maiden a chance to win when she left a 5-pin split in the 10th frame and failed to convert the spare. Coburn, of Buffalo, N.Y., won her fifth career title and first this year to earn $5,000. Maiden, of Solon, Ohio, earned $2,500 for second.

Jones improves record

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Middleweight Carl Jones of Los Angeles used a steady left jab to build up points and score a 10-round unanimous decision over Jerome Johnson of Jackson, N.J., Tuesday night at the Tropicana Hotel and Casino. Jones, 21, improved his record to 21-1-4 while Johnson, 29, fell to 5-7-1.

NFL, Chiefs favor dome

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The National Football League and the Kansas City Chiefs strongly support putting a fiberglass fabric dome over Arrowhead Stadium, a move estimated to cost at least $30 million, the Chiefs' president said. Chiefs president Jack Steadman said he was pleased with the results of a four-month, $30,000 feasibility study on the proposal to put a dome over the football hall of the Truman Sports Complex. The study estimated the roof's base costs, various fees and treating would total $30 million. Another $10.5 million in costs is possible, the study said. If outside concourses are enclosed, a new removable artificial turf is installed and the roof is installed to reduce projected utility costs.

Cyclist sets world record

ZURICH, Switzerland — Swiss cyclist Max Hurseler set a world professional cycling record Tuesday when he covered 100 kilometers in 1 hour 12 minutes 4.1 seconds. According to the Guinness Book of Records, the previous best time was set by Aleksander Romanov of the Soviet Union in May 1983. He managed the distance in 1:13:31.3.

Cross-country run is over

SAN FRANCISCO — Two San Francisco women ran across the Golden Gate Bridge early Tuesday at the end of a 114-day run from Boston. Anabel Marin, 41, and Caroline Merrill, 42, jogged across the fog-shrouded span at mid-morning and were greeted by friends with warm embraces and champagne toast. The runners covered 30 miles per day and ran six days a week. They said local communities all across the country cheered them on. They began their run in Boston four months and seven days ago. They wore out 27 pair of running shoes and 96 pair of socks.

Williams' knee injury a big blow to Falcons

By Joe Cornicelli
UPI Sports Writer

With the start of the regular season just 12 days away, the Atlanta Falcons received a crushing blow Tuesday in the form of a severe knee injury to star fullback William Andrews.

Andrews, the most productive rusher-pass receiver in the NFL over the past five years, suffered the injury in practice and was scheduled to undergo surgery this morning.

"We don't know the extent of the injury at this time," said Falcons publicist Bob Dickerson late Tuesday. "We don't know how long he'll be out, but obviously he won't be in the lineup for the start of the season."

Andrews was cutting off the right side during a running play and was tackled by rookie linebacker Thomas Benson of Oklahoma. Observers said his leg appeared to be broken but he was hit. Andrews, a six-year veteran, was carried off the field and rushed to Piedmont Hospital in Atlanta, where he underwent extensive X-rays. The decision to operate came several hours later. Doctors said they were unable to tell how badly the knee was injured until they operate.

Andrews averaged over 1,000 yards per season rushing over the past five years and caught an average of more than 50 passes per year. For the past five years, his rushing reception total has been 3,882 yards. Last year, he rushed for a team-record 1,567 yards and caught 59 passes for 609 yards.

Patriots get Hawthorne in week's second trade

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Wide receiver running back Greg Hawthorne was traded Tuesday from the Pittsburgh Steelers to the New England Patriots for an undisclosed future draft choice.

Hawthorne, a 1979 first-round draft pick out of Baylor "whose career" has been marred by injuries, caught 19 passes last season. In 50 games and 10 starts as a Steeler over five seasons he rushed for 522 yards and seven touchdowns while piling up 770 yards on pass receptions and three touchdowns.

It was the second trade this week for the Patriots, who Monday traded another future draft choice to the Denver Broncos for 1982 All-Pro punter Fred Streidick. Also Tuesday, the Patriots put eight players on waivers, three others in injured reserve and another on the reserve-physically unable to perform list. The cuts put New England at the NFL limit of 60 active players.

Hawthorne, 6-foot-2, 225 pounds, was converted to wide receiver in 1982. He has averaged 15.3 yards a catch, and in three pre-season games this year he made three catches for a total of 44 yards.

Patriots head coach Ron Meyer, who coached against Hawthorne and his Baylor teammates while SMU head coach, plans to use Hawthorne as an "H-back" in the Patriots one-back offense. Hawthorne has 4.3 speed in the 40-yard dash.

Hawthorne was expected to practice with the team in preparation for the final pre-season game Friday night against the Kansas City Chiefs in Foxboro.

The Patriots asked waivers on wide receiver Curtis Henderson, linebacker Drew Johnson and cornerback Scott Bolan, tight end Darryl Lewis, kicker Bruce Kalmeier, and tight end Curtis Johnson.

Linebacker Keith A. Lee was put on the "unable to perform" list due to a right ankle injury. The team must cut down to 49 players on Aug. 27.

While American athletes saw years of dedication rewarded with medals at this year's Olympics, others — like Manchester's Bill Dumas — had the time of their lives just watching the show. Dumas, the sports publicist at Manchester Community College, recently returned from a 10-day trip to Los Angeles, the site of the 1984 Games.

"It's something I'll never forget," said Dumas, who was present in the Los Angeles Coliseum for all of the track and field events and also saw some of the swimming events. Dumas also got to see the baseball final (an Olympic "try-out" sport this year) between Japan and the U.S.

Like most vacationers that went to L.A. this summer, Dumas came home with a pack of souvenirs. But where the typical Olympic mementos invariably included a commemorative button or T-shirt with rings on it, Dumas was decidedly unique. "Dumas, who stayed at a private home near one of the Olympic villages at the University of Southern California, made acquaintances with several of the competing athletes. As a result, he gained several prize possessions like the gym bag and warm-up top given him by Canadian discus thrower Rob Gray. Dumas met cheerleader Sherry, though, was the running shirt that he got in a trade from Dallas placed All-Pro defensive tackle Randy White on the "did not report" list. White has been a holdout, demanding a new contract. He could be reactivated for opening day if he reports to camp.

Minnesota waived running back Jarvis Redwine, a former Nebraska star, and put kicker Benny Ricardo on injured reserve. Buffalo waived veteran fullback back Roosevelt Leaks and Cleveland placed free safety Mike Winnell on injured reserve. Denver waived linebacker Stan Blinks, a starter for the New York Jets last season, and defensive tackle George Small and Green Bay released defensive end Byron Bragg and guard Lewis Harris.

Pittsburgh traded wide receiver-running back Greg Hawthorne to New England for a draft choice, placed linebacker Bob Kohlrs on the physically unable to perform list and waived tight end John Rodgers.

Seattle released linebacker Jim Youngblood, a former starter for the Los Angeles Rams, and Tampa Bay obtained wide receiver Perry Tuttle, a former first-round draft choice out of Clemson, from Buffalo for a draft choice.

Bill Dumas proudly displays souvenirs from his trip to the Olympics in L.A. Dumas is holding a gym bag he received from Canadian discus thrower Rob Gray. In the foreground are warm-up shirts from Gray and British gold medal decathlon winner Daley Thompson.

British gold medal decathlon winner Daley Thompson. "I traded him a Manchester Community College/New England Relays T-shirt," noted Dumas. "Daley was interested in the shirt because it said 'Manchester' (a city in Great Britain) and he was amused at the 'New' England print."

Dumas, who sent away for tickets a year in advance, sat in the second row from the track at the Coliseum.

"The whole experience was fantastic," Dumas said. "Being that close to the athletes when they were competing and getting a chance to meet some of them was great."

China's athletes glad to be home

PEKING (UPI) — China's Olympic superstars seemed glad to be home Tuesday after an onslaught of bright lights, star-welcoming banquets and endless autograph sessions. But they had mixed feelings over their new status as national "heroes and heroines" in a country where fame is still shunned and self-deprecation remains the ultimate virtue. "We've realized our dream and we're very happy," said Lang Ping, 24, a member of China's victorious women's volleyball team. "Now we can go back to our hometowns and see our families."

When the "certain goes up" at Saturday evening's musical cocktail party for the restoration of Cheney Hall, the first thing beneath the spotlights will be utterly silent. That's because the hors d'oeuvres, not the singers, will take center stage first. According to Anne Miller of Fern Street, guests will get quite a spread for their $10-per-ticket. "Delicatessans, cheese shops and restaurants from around the area are donating food," said Mrs. Miller. In addition, committee members Mary Blish, Angela Iamancosa, Jackie Smith, Val Johnston and Jayne Newirth are preparing homemade goodies, including dips, stuffed mushroom caps, a huge fruit platter, quiche ensembles and an easy-on-the-tastebuds liver pate. Ticket holders are also entitled to cocktails from an open bar. They will be entertained with a musical review presented by members of the Little Theater of Manchester and Hartford's Producing Guild, and an organ concert as well. All of this merriment begins at 7 p.m. Saturday at the home of Tim Stotts, 44 Porter St. Although tickets will be available at the door, committee members hope that patrons will purchase them in advance, through Val Johnston, 645-8558. Here are the recipes for some of the items to be served at this gala event.

How to survive a zucchini attack

Stay calm. Grab the scissors. Cut out the following

By Nancy Pappas Herald Reporter

Hollywood has brought us "The Attack of the Killer Tomatoes," and "The Turkey Movie Festival." So what about "The Zucchini that Squashed My Garden?"

Along about mid-August, most gardeners are feeling something between awe and disgust as they head down to the old squash patch. Those darned zucchinis seem to take steroids. One day they're barely the size of a hot dog, and the next morning they're the size of a shillelagh. It's had enough that the vines terrorize the rest of the garden, spreading out and choking out anything that they don't actually pull from the ground with their tendrils. But then, these enormous base-balls appear, and beat the rest of the garden into submission. What can you do with them? In spite of their general appearance, they make rather poor softball bats.

1 cup grated Parmesan cheese

1 10½-ounce can condensed cream of chicken soup, undiluted
¼ cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons snipped parsley
6 cups thinly-sliced unpeeled zucchini

Paprika
Combine butter, cereal crumbs and cheese, then set aside.

Combine soup, onion, parsley and seasonings. Stir in squash and ½ cup bread crumbs. Mix well.

Turn into 1½-quart shallow baking dish. Top with remaining crumbs. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 30 minutes, or until squash is tender and crumbs are golden. Serve six to eight.

To freeze, line the baking dish with foil before spooning in the ingredients. Bake for 20 minutes, then cool and freeze solid, uncovered. In the casserole dish, remove zucchini "ice cube" and overwrap completely with foil.

To serve later, remove all but the bottom piece of foil and return to the casserole in which it was partially baked. Partially thaw in the refrigerator (this will take about a day) and bake 35 minutes, or until hot throughout.

Ratatouille

2 tablespoons olive oil
4 small or 2 large zucchini
2 medium onions, sliced
1 medium eggplant
4 large fresh tomatoes, peeled and quartered, or 1 28-ounce can plum tomatoes, drained
¼ cup fresh basil leaves, or 2 tablespoons dried
Salt and pepper to taste

Heat oil in a large heavy skillet. While the zucchini is frying, peel and cube eggplant. Add it, along with tomatoes, to the frying pan. Cook about 20 minutes, with the pan covered. Add seasonings, cook an additional 10 minutes with the cover off. Serve hot, cold or at room temperature.

Zucchini Ginger Jam

1 very large zucchini (about 3 pounds), peeled
2½ pounds sugar
1 lemon, juice and peel
1-inch round piece fresh ginger root
½ pound candied ginger, silvered

Cut zucchini into small cubes. If seeds seem particularly large, remove them. Place in a large bowl and cover with sugar. Let stand overnight. Next morning, drain off accumulated sugar liquid and bring this syrup to a boil. Add lemon juice, peel and ginger root. Simmer 1 hour. Add candied ginger and zucchini to the hot syrup and simmer 1 hour, or until zucchini becomes transparent. Fish out the knob of fresh ginger and spoon jam into sterilized jars. Seal immediately. Yield: 4 jars.

French Vegetable Stew (Freezes Well)

1 cup dried navy beans
6 cups water
2 cups soy salt
2 large tomatoes, peeled
½ pound green beans, cut into 1-inch pieces
1 cup small pasta shells, uncooked

2 pounds zucchini, in ¼-inch slices

FOR PISTOU TOPPING:
¼ cup olive oil
3 or 4 cloves garlic, peeled
¼ cup fresh basil leaves
¼ cup Parmesan cheese

2 pounds oven-ready zucchini, unpeeled, cut in 2-inch slices

1 large onion, minced
3 tablespoons butter
1 fresh or canned tomato, peeled and cut in quarters

Zucchini Walnut Bread

3 eggs
¾ cup vegetable oil
½ cup sugar
Grated rind of 1 orange
Grated rind of 1 lemon
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
2 cups, or about 1½ pounds zucchini, unpeeled and grated
½ cups whole wheat flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground coriander seed

Zucchini Casserole

3 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
2 cups unsweetened cereal, crushed to make 2 cups

Packing a picnic basket for a late summer picnic can be an opportunity for a creative cook with a microwave to make a meal ahead of time with a minimum of effort.

The menu selected for this slightly dressed-up version of a picnic is:

Since picnic foods are served cold, much of the preparation can be done a day or two before the event. The Moch Bourain and Tomato Aspic are best prepared two days in advance.

The day before, prepare the chicken, refrigerate covered until cool, then wrap in foil or pack in covered container and refrigerate. Prepare Vegetables Provencal and marinate overnight. Microwave potatoes for salad. While hot, toss with Italian dressing and 1/4 cup water. Cover and refrigerate.

Early in the day of the picnic, microwave cake. Allow the cake to cool, sprinkle with sugar, and pack. Complete the dressing for the salad; chill. Make Avocado Soup, chill thoroughly and pour into thermos container. Mix cream into chilled dressing, drain potatoes, and complete salad. Drain Vegetables Provencal and pack in sealed container.

Mock Bourain
8 ounces cream cheese
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon oregano
1/2 teaspoon basil
1/2 teaspoon thyme
1/2 teaspoon marjoram
1/2 teaspoon dill
1 teaspoon chopped dehydrated chives

Low-rap cream cheese and place in a glass mixing bowl. Microwave at 50 percent power (Med) 1 1/2 minutes, or until softened, but not melted. Blend in remaining ingredients except lemon pepper. Pat into a round cake 3 inches in diameter and 1 1/2 inches high. Roll generously on all sides in lemon pepper. Refrigerate 24 hours. Serve with assorted crackers.

Chilled Avocado Soup
2 tablespoons margarine
1 tablespoon minced onion
2 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon oregano
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 cups chicken broth
2 large avocados, mashed

Combine margarine and onion in a 2-quart butter bowl and microwave on high 1 1/2 minutes. Add all other remaining ingredients to onions except avocados. Microwave on high for 5 to 6 minutes until soup starts to bubble, stirring twice.

In a food processor or blender, process avocados with cooked soup base. Refrigerate. Serve well chilled. Yields: 1 generous quart.

Cold Fried Chicken
2 envelopes (4 1/2 ounces each) crispy crumb coating for chicken
1 1/2 cups crushed whole wheat flake cereal

For Best Selection

2 tablespoons dried parsley flakes
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter or margarine
2 eggs
2 tablespoons milk
8 to 9 pounds broiler-fryer chicken pieces

In a shallow dish, mix crumb coating, cereal, parsley flakes and salt. Set aside. Place butter in a pie plate. Microwave on high for 45 seconds, or until melted. Beat in eggs and milk. Dip chicken pieces in egg mixture, then dredge in crumb-cereal mixture, pressing firmly to coat.

Place one-third of pieces, bone side down, on paper towel-lined baking sheet with meatiest parts toward outside. Microwave on high for 12 minutes. Rearrange so that less-cooked parts are towards outside, do not turn over. Microwave on high 10 to 15 minutes longer, or until juices run clear and meat near bone is no longer pink. Repeat with remaining chicken. Refrigerate, uncovered, until cool. Wrap or pack in container. Serves 12.

Creamy Potato Salad
1 1/2 teaspoons salt, divided
1/2 cup hot water
12 medium potatoes, peeled and quartered
1/2 cup Italian salad dressing
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup vinegar
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon white pepper
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1 tablespoon butter
1/2 cup whipping cream
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup green onion
2 tablespoons sliced fresh parsley
4 hard cooked eggs, sliced

Disolve 1 teaspoon of salt in 1/2 cup hot water. In 3 quart casserole, combine potatoes and salted water. Microwave on high 20 to 25 minutes, or until fork-tender, stirring after half the time. Drain and cut into slices or cubes. Toss with Italian salad dressing and 1/2 cup water. Refrigerate until cool.

In a 1-quart casserole, mix sugar, vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, the mustard and pepper. Microwave on high for 2 to 4 minutes, or until boiling, stirring after half the time.

Stir a small amount of the hot mixture into beaten eggs. Return slowly to hot mixture, stirring constantly. Reduce power to 50 percent (Med) and microwave for 2 to 3 minutes, or until thickened, stirring with a wire whip every 20 seconds. Stir in butter until melted. Refrigerate until chilled.

Mix cream into chilled dressing. Drain potatoes. Add celery, green onion, and parsley to potatoes. Pour dressing over vegetables, tossing to coat. Garnish with sliced eggs, chili. Serves 12.

Tomato Aspic
1 1/2-ounce can tomato juice, divided
1 1/2 cups thinly sliced celery, divided
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 whole cloves
2 bay leaves
3 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1 medium green pepper, chopped
1 cup grated carrot

Measure 1/2 cups tomato juice into 2-cup measure. Set aside. In a 2-quart casserole, combine remaining Juice, 1/2 cup celery, onion, brown sugar, lemon juice, salt, cloves and bay leaves; cover. Microwave on high for 5 minutes. Reduce power to 50 percent (Med). Microwave 10 to 15 minutes, or until flavors are blended.

Stir gelatin into reserved 1/2 cups tomato juice. Strain hot tomato juice; stir in gelatin mixture. Chill until thickened but not set. Mix in 1 cup celery, the green pepper and carrot. Pour into 8- to 10-cup ring mold. Chill until firm, at least 4 hours. Serves 12.

Add remaining ingredients. Cover and refrigerate at least 4 hours, stirring occasionally. Remove vegetables with a slotted spoon and pack into a container with a lid for sealing. Serves 12.

Vegetables Provencal
6 cups small cauliflowerets
3 cups sliced carrots

1/3 cup water
1/2 cup sliced pitted black olives
3 medium green peppers, cut into thin strips
1 12-ounce bottle Italian salad dressing
3 tablespoons white wine
1 1/2 teaspoons sugar

In a 3-quart casserole, combine cauliflowerets, carrots and water. Cover and microwave 8 to 13 minutes, or until cauliflowerets are tender-crisp, stirring after half the cooking time. Drain.

2 tablespoons margarine
Wash, stem and briefly steam fresh spinach, or thaw and drain the frozen spinach. Set aside.

NEW YORK (UPI)—A recent survey by TeenAge Magazine shows that drug use among high school students is dropping dramatically. On the bleaker side, many of those teenagers have had suicidal thoughts.

The recent poll of 1,022 high school students reveals that 60 percent of those questioned said they had never tried any drug. Among those who had used drugs, many said they were just experimenting, or had quit.

The survey of 13- to 19-year-olds also showed the majority of respondents suffered from depression, anxiety and suicidal thoughts, often because of school. School work and environment were listed as the main source of depression for 78 percent of those questioned; boyfriend-girlfriend relationships for 54 percent; and family conflicts for 44 percent.

More than one out of six questioned said they had attempted suicide, and more than half said they had thought about it. According to Dr. Eva Y. Deykin of the Harvard School of Public Health, teenagers now account for one fifth of all suicides.

Lafayette Escadrille spinach pie delights Anne Miller

Anne Miller of Fern Street is an avid cook herself. So when she bestows a compliment on a local restaurant, it carries a big wallop.

Mrs. Miller, who works at Merritt Realty on East Center Street, is a big fan of the spinach pies served by Chris Poulos at the Lafayette Escadrille, a pizza parlor and lounge on East Middle Turnpike.

"They aren't as heavy as some of the catzone you get, and they're full of flavor," she said.

Poulos was pleased — but not surprised — to hear of the popularity of this dish, which has become a lunch and dinner staple at his restaurant. It's a long roll (between 14 and 16 inches long) he prepares with vegetables, sausage and pizza dough. But he suggested that home-cooks could use a refrigerated

Advice

Trucker advised to get off road

DEAR ABBY: We have three adult crippled children (our own) all in wheelchairs due to a rare genetic form of cerebral palsy. However, that is not the problem; I'm coming to that.

Our children love music, so we bought them a used jukebox and stocked it with their favorite records — mostly polkas, Irish ballads, golden oldies, etc. Last December, the jukebox broke down. The dealer who sold it to us tried to locate the transfer switch that was needed to repair it, but he told us that since it was a 20-year-old Wurlitzer, he doesn't expect to find one because the parts are not being made anymore.

Abby, the model is 2801 and it plays only 45s. It had a beautiful tone before the switch broke. Can you help me, or is this a hopeless case?

GERTRUDE B. IN WILKES-BARRE, PA.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buran

Readers: Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

DEAR ABBY: How did you do you have to be find your real parents? I am adopted and do not get along with my mother. I would like to open the files and find my real parents, but I don't know how to go about it. Please help me. I am 14-years-old.

A KID IN KANSAS

DEAR KID: There are many search organizations that will be happy to look for your birth parents. Some charge a fee, others do not. The law states that a search cannot be started until the adoptee is 18, but he/she may register now.

My recommendation is: International Soundex Reunion Registry, P.O. Box 2312, Carson City, Nev. 89702. Write for Soundex forms, and enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. The organization's services are free. It registers the adopted person, and if one of that person's birth parents also registers, a match is made with the assurance that the "match" is agreeable with all parties. Some parents (also some adoptees), prefer not to be found, which I believe is their right and should be respected.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 16, unmarried and recently had a beautiful baby boy, which I decided to place for adoption. It was a very painful experience. I never want to address through anything like that again so I considered going on the pill. If I do, I might figure that as long as I'm on the pill I will be protected, so I can sleep with just anybody, and I don't want to be that kind of girl. On the other hand, if I don't go on the pill, I may say, "Well, this one won't hurt," and I'll end up where I was 9 years ago.

I want the next time I have sex to be special, but I have a hard time saying no. I think the other kinds of birth control are gross. What do you think?

CONFUSED IN CONNECTICUT

DEAR CONFUSED: I think it's better to be protected and not regret it, than not be protected and regret it. And since you admittedly have a hard time saying no, avoid situations that put you to the test.

Is your social life in a slump? Lonely? Get Abby's updated, revised and expanded booklet, "How to Be Popular" — for people of all ages. Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Abby, Popularity, in care of the Manchester Herald, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif., 90038.

Gland may cause sweating problem

DEAR DR. LAMB — I perspire too easily. In the summer, sweat runs down my face, drips off my nose and chin and, if I am standing, runs down and drips off my fingers — and that's when I'm not working.

In the winter, my underwear becomes damp and I chill throughout and through. My head sweats, dampening my hair or cap, and gets cold as ice.

One doctor I saw said that many people sweat easily, and another said this proves that my sweat glands are working. Neither one prescribed anything for the problem. I must have a malfunctioning gland in my head, neck or somewhere else. Can you help me?

DEAR READER — Such extreme sweating can be difficult to treat. Your problem differs from that of the person who has localized sweating, such as under the arms. You may be right about having a gland that is not functioning properly. You certainly should have your thyroid gland function checked to see if you have an overactive thyroid. That can cause excessive generalized sweating. There may also be something abnormal about the tiny thermostat in your brain, which we all have. When it is important to cool the body, this thermostat sends out signals through nerves to increase the blood flow through the skin. This causes sweating. It also cools the body at night, which can cause night sweats. The thermostat can be affected by spicy food and is involved in the perception that you are overheating during the menopause.

Your Health

The skin is the major organ for controlling body temperature. Sweating is a form of evaporative cooling, and a heavy sweat means that your skin-cooling mechanism is overloaded. This is why sweating often accompanies a break in a fever: It means the body has started to cool itself rather than continuing to increase its temperature.

Doing something about excessive perspiration is more difficult than knowing what causes it. You might find some relief by taking one of the adrenergic-neutralizing medicines, such as Inderal. To update you on the problem, I am sending you The Health Letter 18-2. Sweating, Antiperspirants and Deodorants. Others who sweat this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10101.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have heard that On-Calc 40 is good for people who are calcium-deficient. After taking two a day for a few days, I became very constipated, and I have not taken any more since. I also never had a problem with constipation. Could it have been caused by the pills?

DEAR READER — It was probably the calcium. And if you are one of those people who become constipated when they take calcium, you will have the same problem with all the calcium preparations. But you can take a preparation that contains some magnesium oxide to offset the constipating effect of calcium. Ask your doctor to help you choose one that will be right for you. One part of magnesium oxide to five parts of calcium carbonate usually will prevent this problem.

Individuals who become constipated when they take calcium usually have much larger doses. The small dose of 500 mg. of calcium in two On-Calc tablets will not have this effect on most

Seavers mark golden anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Seaver of 499 Woodbridge St. were honored recently at a family party to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary. The party was held at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Seaver in Cinnaminson, N.J. Also attending were their two grandchildren, Thomas and Kristen Seaver, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carey and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Squibb, from Asbury Park, N.J., sisters and brothers-in-law of the couple; and another sister-in-law, Mrs. Mirium Seaver of Kennebunk, Maine, and some close friends. They are charter members of Chapter 1275 of AARP.

Spaziani is at conference

Eugene J. Spaziani, an associate professor of hotel management at Manchester Community College, is participating in the eighth annual conference of the Society of Wine Educators at California Polytechnic State University in San Luis Obispo, Calif. Spaziani is a charter member of the international organization. During the conference he was chairman of a panel entitled "Teaching Credit Courses at a College of University Level—Expanding your horizons." Spaziani also presented a paper on the development of the wine industry in Connecticut.

As chairman of the organization's Education Committee, Professor Spaziani attended every conference and has been instrumental in the development of the organization's Resource Center for educational information, now centered in Chicago.

Spaziani, a noted wine judge, wine educator and wine writer, is chapter director of the Eastern Connecticut Chapter of Les Amis du Vin.

Thoughts

"Then Jesus, crying with a loud voice, said, 'Father, into thy hands I commit My spirit!' And having said this, He breathed His last." (Luke 23:46)

"Abide with me; fast falls the darkness deepens; Lord, with me abide!

When other helpers fail, and comforters flee,
Help of the helpless, O abide with me."
("Abide With Me.")

When Henry F. Lyte wrote those words, he was not just including in pointless hope. Like St. Paul, he knew in Whom he believed, in Whom he could trust, in Whom he found strength and comfort.

Job achieved spiritual victory when he set out on a great faith with this comment: "Though He slay me, yet will I trust in Him." (Job 13:15)

Jesus cried out, "Father, into Thy hands I commit My spirit," when the world thought that it had crushed Him.

Stephen exclaimed, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit," when he was being dragged from the city and stoned. (Acts 7:59)

"These and countless others down through the ages have been convinced of the abiding, inseparable truth once published in the British Weekly:

"The one fact is God; all other things are circumstances."
The words of Hopeful in Pilgrimage truly speak to us today: "Be of good cheer, my brother, for I feel the bottom, and it is sound." There is more to life than just trials and tribulations;

God is still God.

Tax law aids youths in private schools

The great good news I submit to you today is that under new 1984 tax law, you and your company may so set up a situation that you can put your child through private school or college — at no cost to you! This law, in fact, includes more new tax breaks than even its creators realize. It may take them (and us) years before we fully realize the tax-saving possibilities and how to bend them to your own benefit.

To begin with, as pointed out in an earlier column, the 1984 law settles decisively the tax treatment of interest-free loans from companies to executives. Specifically: 1) You include in taxable income the interest your company could have charged you but didn't. You then 2) take an offsetting deduction for the interest you could have paid the company but didn't. Net effect: You pay no tax on the interest-free loan.

What has this to do with no-cost school financing? The obvious answer, as pointed out to me by Eli J. Warach, a divisional vice president and editor in chief of Prindle-Hall, is that you can borrow money interest-free from your company and your child's school bills.

While you still have to pay back your company, cutting the overall family tax bill.

Now let's see how you can combine this old standby with the new law (fringe benefit) and put your child through school with tax savings.

Carolyn Jones is president and owner of XYZ Corp. and in the 50 percent tax bracket. Her 7-year-old son, Daniel, will be ready for college in 11 years and Jones wants to have at least $50,000 saved by then to pay Daniel's expenses.

1) XYZ gets its money back.

2) Jones has a big financial loan lifted from her shoulders at no tax cost. Due to the new 1984 tax law, she doesn't owe a dime in income taxes. And while she has made a taxable gift to Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. Jones have a $20,000 gift exclusion that shelters the gift from tax.

3) And, of course, Daniel has the fringe he needs for college.

This is an extraordinary tax-free fringe benefit that actually gives you a no-cost way to finance your child's education. Whether Congress figured it out that way is a provocative question — but there it is. To put it in everyday lingo, grab it and run!

Your Money's Worth

Sylvia Porter

Though, under this new setup you're not out of pocket. But for this arrangement to work, you must combine the interest-free company loan with another top tax-saver: The family income-splitting trust.

This is the long-term favorite, the short-term or 10-year trust. The trust works this way: You transfer cash or income-producing property to a trust set up to last for at least 10 years and a day. At the end of that period, the accumulated trust income goes to your child and the trust principal comes back to you.

Payoff: The trust income is shifted out of your high

Meta trade boon for Bridgeport and New Haven

By James V. Heallon
United Press International

NEW HAVEN — Ralph Costanza, president of the privately-owned New Haven Terminal Inc., expects the longshoremen and his leased 120-member work force to handle 400,000 tons of steel, 250,000 tons more than he would have expected to handle in a good year five years ago.

"On top of that, there's copper. Copper five years ago was zero. This year, we'll probably handle 150,000 tons of copper," said Costanza, a Yale graduate, class of 1955, and Harvard Law School.

Crowley has been running New Haven Terminal since 1959 when a domestic steel strike occurred. Consumers then realized, he said, they could get high quality low cost steel from Japan and the Common Market with better customer service than they could get from American producers.

He said since the economic recovery in January 1983, New Haven and Bridgeport have been swamped with steel in a way they didn't foresee. But the two had become natural ports of entry for steel, with Cileo Terminal Co. in Bridgeport the dominant steel port. It expects to handle 650,000 tons this year.

New Haven and Bridgeport will have additional storage, too, as equipment in the handling of more refined steel because it is vulnerable to rust if not kept dry and out of the weather. Crowley acquired abandoned U.S. Steel Corp. warehouses near his deep-water dock and Cileo obtained warehouses from the Bridgeport Brass Co.

Crowley says it is true the good times are rolling but he's aware things could change. He said in this campaign year the Reagan administration might have to impose industry-proposed restrictions on imports to satisfy the blue-collar vote. But too drastic limits could threaten the stability of a producer like Brazil.

"Brazilians are grumbling about an austerity being imposed on them to enable them to pay back their American bank loans," he said. "A rebellion in a place like Brazil on the mainland of Latin America would be really threatening to the world order and I think if the United States were to follow policies that really stimulated serious unrest in Brazil it would be crazy."

"That doesn't mean they're not going to do it. I don't think they will. I think it's obvious to people. I use Brazil as an example. There's also Argentina and Chile in the same situation."

(Gen. Augusto Pinochet is in trouble as it is. Now if we cut off Chilean copper, Pinochet will be in real trouble.)

DPUC regulators veto conservation charge for CNG customers

NEW BRITAIN (UPI) — Connecticut regulators have vetoed a conservation charge for compressed natural gas (CNG) customers.

The Public Utilities Control Commission (PUC) said it rejected a request for a rate increase for CNG customers because the increase would affect the following month for its 120,000 customers in the Hartford-New Britain and Greenwichee areas.

The commission trimmed the company's $12.2 million request to $9.3 million and refused to allow the utility to collect a "conservation adjustment" to cover reduced consumption due to customer conservation.

"The weakness of their conservation program tended to bias me against the conservation adjustment," said Peter G. Boucher, one of three commissioners to consider the request. "It seemed like it would be hitting ratepayers with a double whammy."

Commissioner Edythe J. Gagnier, who headed the three-member panel, said she hoped the rate increase would be the company's last for at least two years.

"This company's practice has been to come in for rate relief on an annual basis. It has presented on the record in this case that, with reasonable rate relief, it will stay out until mid-September and company officials said the increase would take effect the following month for its 120,000 customers in the Hartford-New Britain and Greenwichee areas."

"We believe that the level of rate relief provided should make it possible for the company to live up to its representation," she said.

Victor Frauenhofer, CNG president, said he was happy with the preliminary decision. "Without analyzing it in detail, it does seem responsive to our request," he said, calling the increase "something we could work with."

The company's last rate increase was $6 million in 1983. It had asked for $19.5 million.

Two indicted on rent scam

HARTFORD (UPI) — A federal grand jury Tuesday indicted two Hartford landlords and a former housing official for bilking the government of more than $700 by submitting phony rent assistance claims.

Indicted for conspiracy to defraud were landlords Earl Augusto Davis, 35, and Francisco V. Lopez Jr., 35, and Rafael Sanchez, 32, a former employee of Imagination's Inc. of Hartford.

The firm administers the government's Housing Assistance Payments Program and Sanchez was employed as a housing counselor responsible for preparing the documents for Section 8 applications.

U.S. Attorney Alan Nevas said the trio conspired to defraud the government by submitted the applications of tenants who never resided in apartments.

The indictments charged Sanchez and Davis of defrauding the government of $6,318 for a period between July 1, 1980 and July 1,

Police clear Bolton constable in incident

By Sarah Posselt
Herald Reporter

BOLTON — The Board of Selectmen and the State Police have cleared town Constable Kevin Julian of wrongdoing in a May 4 car chase that brought a complaint from the mother of the teenage driver on whom Julian pulled a gun.

In a statement released at their regular meeting Tuesday, the selectmen said, "It is the Board of Selectmen's belief that Constable Kevin Julian acted in a competent and professional manner, drawing upon the training he had previously received and continues to receive."

Police declined to disclose any details of the investigation, which was undertaken last month at the request of the selectmen. The investigation was directed by Sgt. Anthony Kalkas of Troop K in Colchester.

According to Steeles Crossing Road resident Mary Anne Rose, the mother of Richard Rose Jr., her son sped away from Julian when Julian tried to stop him for driving a car with a noisy muffler.

Julian followed and finally stopped Rose near the railroad tracks by Steeles Crossing Road, and ordered Rose and his companions to lie on the ground while he radioed for a state trooper.

Mrs. Rose called her son's conduct "foolish." But she charged that Julian was "irresponsible" and "grossly underrated."

Contacted recently at Sears in Manchester Parkade, where he works as a security officer, Julian declined to discuss the incident.

The selectmen were unable to describe what kind of training town constables receive on engaging in high-speed chases and using their guns. But Deputy First Selectman Douglas Cheney, who led Monday's meeting in the absence of First Selectman Henry P. Ryba, said constables are trained to follow the same procedures state troopers learn at the state police training academy in Meriden.

The commander of Troop K, Lt. Lawrence Merrill, has said that state police are taught to avoid chasing drivers at high speeds when they suspect no more than a routine motor vehicle violation. Merrill said after the May 4 incident that troopers are encouraged to take down the car's license plate number and trace the driver through the state motor vehicle department.

"It's just as easy to go and wait for him in his driveway," Merrill said.

Cheney said after Monday's meeting that he would release a more detailed explanation of the state police ruling that was sent to Mrs. Rose, but only after he is sure she has received the selectmen's letter in the mail.

Merrill and a Manchester police spokesman both said last month that an officer might chase a car if he thinks there is something suspicious about its occupants.

Asked why the Barracks will not release details of the investigation, Merrill replied, "That's the way it's always been and we don't want to set a precedent."

Area Towns In Brief

Director resigns
BOLTON — The town's director of health, Manchester physician Howard J. Lockward, has announced his decision to resign from the post at the beginning of October.

Lockward told the Board of Selectmen in an Aug. 15 letter that he was timing his resignation to coincide with his retirement from private medical practice.

Lockward recommended the town appoint his associate, Charles W. Wickensham, to replace him as health director. Selectmen took no action on his recommendation at their regular meeting Tuesday.

PBC seat filled
BOLTON — The Board of Selectmen voted Tuesday to appoint Mount Sumner Drive resident Philip A. Pino, a Hartford architect, to fill a vacancy on the Public Building Commission.

Pino works for the architectural firm of Jeter, Cook and Jepson. He will replace former commission member John Sambogna, who asked not to be reappointed when his term expired at the end of June. Pino is not politically affiliated.

But he was the town GOP's recommendation for the opening. Town contractor James Boufford was the Democrat's nomination.

Jubilant Republicans await rousing finale

By Laurence McQuillon
United Press International

DALLAS — Ronald Reagan and George Bush, renominated by a Republican convention confident of victory, delivered acceptance speeches tonight that cast the GOP as "America's party" in a fight with Democratic "doom and despair."

The 2,235 delegates ratified the nomination of the president and vice president Wednesday night to set the stage for tonight's show-casement conclusion of a four-day spectacle without suspense.

"By the time this convention ends, the Republican Party will be well on its way to becoming America's party," Reagan jubilantly declared to ardent supporters waiting for his virtual coronation.

Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater, the champion of the right who suffered a crushing 1964 defeat at the hands of Lyndon Johnson, bestowed his blessings on the GOP incumbent.

"In your hearts, you know he's right," Goldwater said of Reagan on the floor of the convention hall — filled with many who trace their political armor to his own White House bid. The approval echoes Goldwater's campaign slogan of 20 years ago.

The 73-year-old Arizona senator also made a ringing repetition of the declaration he made in his own acceptance speech: "Extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice."

Texas Senator John Tower (right) hugs his Arizona counterpart, Barry Goldwater, on the podium of the Republican National Convention Wednesday night in Dallas. Goldwater urged his fellow party members to keep the conservative tradition. He also repeated an old campaign slogan of his: "In your heart, you know he's right."

The Democrats contend it is a "lavishly produced political commercial" that is not news, while the GOP calls it a vital part of its program. NBC and CNN have decided to carry the film, while

Doctor fears Sakharovs brainwashed by Soviets

HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — A videotape proves Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov and his wife were alive last month but they may have been drugged in preparation for brainwashing, a West German newspaper said today.

"There is for the first time indisputable proof that the Nobel Prize-winning Sakharov is alive and has broken off his hunger strike," Bild reported in today's edition.

Sakharov reportedly went on a hunger strike May 2 to force Soviet authorities to allow his wife, Yelena Bonner, to leave the country for medical treatment. Despite Soviet assurances the Sakharovs are well, there has been widespread concern in the West about their condition.

A physician who viewed the 20-minute videotape said he thought the couple was given medicine to influence their thinking — possibly in preparation for brainwashing.

"It struck the doctor that the speech of Sakharov and his wife was drawing and they moved slowly and robotlike," Bild reported. "When Sakharov eats a stew he chews slowly."

The newspaper quoted the doctor as saying, "Both probably are getting tranquilizers. They work in such a way, make you tired — the brain, too."

The doctor, who the newspaper did not name, said he could not rule out the possibility that the substances were being put in their food so they could be hypnotized against their will.

Visitors discuss government

Africans get tour of town

By Kathy Garmus
Herald Reporter

Absent from Manchester General Manager Robert E. Weiss's office this morning was the usual discussion of block grants, tax deferrals and other business dominating the headlines in recent weeks.

Instead, Weiss fielded questions from four visitors from Africa ranging from how teachers are recruited to whether restaurants are inspected.

Although thousands of miles and a language barrier separate Manchester and the African continent, the French-speaking visitors appeared to share many of the same concerns of town administrators. The visitors, who came to the United States through the New-York based Operation Crossroads Africa Inc., were Therese Zernase, 22, a civil service intern from the Ivory Coast; Zoulikha Benelhadji, Dielloul, 23, of Algeria, a recent graduate of the National School of Administration; Ali Louhaddia, 27, of Algeria, also a graduate of the National School of Administration; and Ale Ndiaye, 34, of Senegal, an official in the Ministry of the Interior.

Their questions about Manchester were relayed to Weiss through John Carr, an interpreter who works for the U.S. State Department.

"Why is Manchester a town?" was the first question.

Weiss explained that originally towns were those that used citizens' meetings as their form of government. That distinction has since become blurred and size is now the most important factor in whether an area bills itself as a town or a city, he told the visitors.

Using a flow chart, Weiss described how Manchester officials are elected or appointed and the town operations that each oversees.

"One of the biggest differences noted by the visitors was the absence of strong influence by the federal government at a local level."

"The Constitution of the United States doesn't even mention local government," Weiss said.

"Most of the city managers in Africa are appointed by the central government," the State Department representative told Weiss.

Other questions dealt with public health and the American system of health care.

When Louhaddia asked whether the lack of major health problems was due to the town's standard of living or preventive health prac-

President reiterates stand on religious, political ties

By Helen Thomas
United Press International

DALLAS — President Reagan told an ecumenical prayer breakfast today, following his re-nomination for a second term, that politics and religion are inseparable.

In a prepared address to a gathering of 17,000 religious leaders and theological philosophers, Reagan appeared to challenge the constitutional premise of separation of church and state.

"The truth is, politics and morality are inseparable," he said. "And as morality's foundation is religion, religion and politics are necessarily related."

"We need religion as a guide, we need it because we are imperfect. And our government needs the church because only those humble enough to admit they are sinners can bring to democracy the tolerance it requires in order to survive."

The president, who is a Presbyterian, rarely attends church, explaining the heavy security involved would inconvenience other worshippers.

Today's speech was his strongest statement to date on the question of politics and religion and appeared to be moving closer to the fundamentalist philosophy.

It was in Dallas in 1980 that Reagan questioned the theory of evolution and said the biblical story of creation should be taught side by side with the theory of evolution in public schools.

"The past few weeks, it seems we have all been hearing a lot of talk about religion and its role in politics, religion and its place in the political life of the nation," he said.

He apparently referred to a running argument between Roman Catholic Archbishop John O'Connor and New York Gov. Mario Cuomo on how Catholics should vote, along with other recent controversies concerning religion and the presidential race.

The president acknowledged he is not a theologian or scholar on the subject but said he was speaking as one who has lived 73 years and has been active in the political life of the nation for four decades, including occupying the highest office in the land.

"I speak, in short, as one who has seen much, who loves his country and who has seen a change in many ways," he said.

He said faith and religion pay a "critical role" in the political life of our nation and always have.

He attacked the Supreme Court decisions during the 1960s that he said involved "great steps toward secularizing our nation" and removing religion from "its honored place."

Site of JFK killing Fire hits Dallas landmark

By Anne Soker
United Press International

DALLAS — The Texas School Book Depository, from which the shots were fired that killed President John F. Kennedy, caught fire early today, threatening a basement filled with memorabilia of the slain president.

A Fire Department spokesman said the first alarm came in at 2:32 a.m. CDF as a report of smoke in the building, which overlooks the spot where Kennedy was assassinated Nov. 22, 1963.

By 3:29 a.m. four more alarms had drawn about 24 pieces of equipment — 10 firefighters, said Chief Doug Miller. The fire was brought under control just before daybreak, with damage estimated at $250,000.

"It's a very, very hot fire, a working fire," Miller said. "We're didn't use a lot of water but we did need the extra people."

The fire sent clouds of thick gray smoke over the downtown area, across the street from the Kennedy Memorial Plaza and about five blocks north of Dallas Convention Center, site of the Republican National Convention.

There were no reports of injuries.

Miller said the building's sprinkler system had been shut down for repairs, and firefighters brought it into operation shortly after their arrival.

Miller said the blaze started in the basement — a storage site for equipment collected by the fire department — then skipped the ground floor and followed baseboards up to the second and third floors. He said vacant upper floors sustained some smoke damage.

Authorities were investigating to determine the cause of the fire.

"Arson is always a possibility but we have no information on that as yet," Miller said.

A police detective, who asked not to be named, said officers arrested a man for public intoxication on a corner across the street but the man did not appear to be involved.

It was from the sixth floor of the depository that Lee Harvey Oswald fired the shots that killed Kennedy and wounded John Connally, who was governor at the time.

The memorabilia stored in the basement was earmarked for a museum to be established on the sixth floor after a planned $3 million renovation. There was no immediate report on damage to artifacts.
