Cellular phones prove boon to business execs

If you must have a telephone, even during the time it takes to drive to your office, telecommunications companies have a new "toy" for you: a cellular phone.

Service is now available in Chicago, Washington, Baltimore, New York City and Indianapolis. By year's end, it will be in about 30 major metropolitan markets.

If you live in one of these cities and if you have $2,500 to spend — or an employer who will buy a system for you — you can start dialing from your car today.

Cellular phones actually combine two products — the physical system and the service that connects calls. Don't confuse cellular phones with the mobile, cordless phones you use around your house.

Here's how it works:

An area — your city, perhaps — is divided into a number of cells, each with its own radio antenna that can pick up and transmit calls. As you drive from one cell to another, a computer network at the central switching office transfers your call from one cell's antenna to the next. Your calls are hooked into the local phone company and, to the listener, should be indistinguishable from calls made from your home or office.

The attraction of cellular phones, at least for now, seems limited to business executives, lawyers and those in a few other professions.

But there's a lot of pent-up demand," observes Benn Kobb, assistant editor of Cellular Radio News, a trade publication. "Executives have been waiting for this a long time. Now, they're the main ones who can afford it." Eventually, Kobb suggests, once executives see how cellular phones add to productivity, lower level employees will get them, too.

Whether you, a typical consumer, embrace cellular anytime soon is another matter entirely.

"There are a lot of different applications," Kobb says. "Eventually cellular could be used so extensively for personal use that it replaces the traditional wired phone."

Perhaps.

Cellular is starting small, however, even though it's being advertised in some markets as an alternative or supplement to the familiar home phone. Industry analysts expect that cellular services will claim about 40 million subscribers by the end of 1984, and almost 1 million will have signed up by 1990.

Today, two major factors inhibit access to cellular. First, of course, is the price of the hardware. The average system today costs about $2,500. For that, you get a transmitter-receiver, antenna and handset. Installing the phone in your car will cost extra — on average, about $200.

That's just the beginning. In addition to buying the equipment, you pay a monthly service charge for access to a cellular company. Two companies operate in each city that has a cellular service, and you can subscribe to either one. It is that service which will assign you a phone number for your cellular set.

You'll also pay for each minute of air time. As always, long-distance calls cost more than local ones. Currently, those costs really add up. Nynex Mobile Communications, one of the cellular companies operating in New York City, offers several rate plans. In one, customers pay $29 a month and then pay 35 cents a minute for calls made during peak hours. Calls made at other times cost 35 cents a minute.

To cash in on the excitement, many car rental companies have added — or plan to offer — cellular service. You can expect to pay premium prices for this feature.

If you decide you can't wait, shop around for the least expensive system and the lower priced company in your community.

Cellular clearly is for the wealthy gadget lover who has everything else. But one question nag me: How can you safely concentrate on driving while you're talking on the phone?

Jobless rate remains stable

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate remained unchanged at 7.5 percent in August, the same as in July, but black males made major gains in employment as students left summer jobs, the Labor Department said today.

The politically sensitive figures confirmed the economic slowdown from a spectacular first half of the year and suggested there may be little further improvement in the unemployment rate before election day.

The number of people looking for work remained at 8.5 million.

The unemployment rate has been 7.5 percent for three of the last four months so it's hard to argue it's not 7.5 percent," a department analyst said.

The rate dropped to 7.1 percent in June, the best reading during the Reagan administration, before bouncing back in July to where it was when President Reagan took office.

During the depth of the recession the rate climbed to 10.7 percent in November and December 1982.

The employment data for August, when taken together with those for July, suggest that employment growth has moderated from the rapid pace registered earlier in the recovery," Janet Norwood, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said in testimony prepared for the Joint Economic Committee of Congress today.

The unemployment rate, when military personnel were included in the workforce, remained at 7.4 percent in August.

If the unemployment rate does not improve any more from now on it will be a major disappointment for factory workers who have regained only three-quarters of the jobs lost during the recession that ended 21 months ago, according to department figures.

The length of the average factory workweek shortened to 40.4 hours from July's 40.5 hours.

But the average time spent looking for a job improved to 17.3 weeks, from 18.1 weeks, the report said.

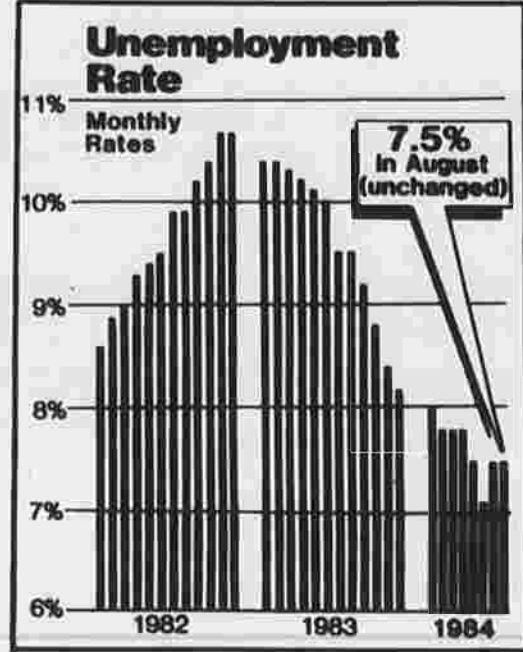

Except for the dramatic improvement among black men, other categories of workers showed comparatively little change during the month.

The rate of unemployment for black teenagers was 41.7 percent in August, slightly better than the 42.4 percent rate in month before.

The rate for Hispanic workers got slightly worse, moving to 16.7 percent from July's 16.6 percent.

Despite the leveling off of the housing industry, the unemployment rate for construction workers improved to 14 percent from 14.7 percent in July.

The rate among miners surged, to 18.2 percent from July's 7.5 percent.

Auto ad lawsuits end with dealers making donations

By Mark A. Dupuis
United Press International

HARTFORD — State officials say four auto dealerships will pay a $10,000 fine and donate cars to charity in settlement of a suit accusing the firms of deceptive advertising.

The four dealerships, owned by companies with the same principal owner, Robert Newman, also agreed to abide by the state's unfair trade practices law and regulations governing auto advertising.

The settlement, approved by Superior Court Judge Robert Satter, grees out of a suit filed last year accusing Williams Ford of West Hartford with violating the unfair trade practices act.

It also includes Burnside Motors and Newman Lincoln Mercury of East Hartford and Newman Motor Cars of Berlin, state Attorney General Joseph I. Lieberman said at a news conference.

The dealerships were accused of deceptive advertising, including advertising used cars as new.

Under the settlement, the four dealerships together will pay a $10,000 civil penalty and give $20,000 worth of cars — expected to be three vehicles — to charities.

A panel will be established to make recommendations to the court on the charitable groups should receive the free vehicles, Lieberman said.

Consumer Protection Commissioner Mary M. Heslin said the suit against the firms was part of an ongoing program launched two years ago by her agency that included adoption of the regulations on auto advertising.

"I think it's perhaps the first case of its kind and magnitude," Heslin said.

Lieberman said he believed the penalties assessed on the dealerships and the publicity surrounding the settlement would act as a deterrent to deceptive auto advertisements.

Officials said the settlement did not constitute an admission of wrongdoing by the dealers.

Wethersfield firm offers lowest bid for Bradley work

HARTFORD (UPI) — A Wethersfield company has offered the lowest bid for the key element in a $100 million renovation and expansion of Bradley International Airport, state officials said today.

W.E. O'Neil Construction Co. bid $18.24 million to build a new concourse and terminal at the Windsor Locks airport, the state Department of Transportation said Wednesday.

The new terminal and concourse is the key element in a $100 million renovation and expansion of the airport, which serves 3 million travelers annually from Connecticut and western Massachusetts.

The Wethersfield construction company was one of seven firms to submit bids for the terminal and concourse project.

Bids ranged from the apparent low of $18.24 million to a high of $20.84 million bid by an Avon firm.

DOT spokesman William E. Keish said the agency had estimated the cost of the project at about $17 million or pretty much on target with the apparent low bid.

Construction of the terminal is scheduled to begin by mid-October, officials said. The overall $100 million renovation and expansion project is slated for completion in October 1986.

The overall project is running ahead of schedule and under budget, with 90 percent of the planned work under way.

In addition to the new terminal, the present terminal is being renovated and new roadway and water supply systems are being constructed at the airport.

DOT officials said the inconvenience to travelers caused by the renovation project is at its peak and will not worsen as the project moves forward toward completion.

The renovation project is being financed with bonds that will be paid off with revenues from airlines and other airport businesses. The Federal Aviation Administration also will contribute $8.9 million toward the project costs.

Digital pays fine on computer sale

By Denis G. Gullino
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Digital Equipment Corp., fined $1.1 million for selling computers to a middleman for the Soviet Union, said Wednesday. The fine was beyond its idea who the ultimate customer was.

The fine was one of the largest ever imposed by the Commerce Department under the Export Administration Act. If Digital is charged with any more violations in the next three years, it will have to pay an additional $400,000.

Digital's German subsidiary was charged Tuesday with selling two of its highly sophisticated computer systems to a firm controlled by Richard Mueller, who then shipped the equipment to the Soviet Union.

The computers are capable of simulating missile launches and war games and can be used in the design of sophisticated military electronics, officials said.

The "willingness to settle the matter does not in any way represent an admission of wrongdoing," Digital spokesman Richard Berube said Wednesday.

"The company chose to settle to avoid continuing inconvenience to its customers and to avoid lengthy and costly litigation."

With the agreement to pay the fine the Commerce Department in turn agreed to renew Digital's general license to export and stop requiring export approval on a case-by-case basis. Digital, based in Maynard, Mass., is the world's second largest computer company.

The two VAX 11-780 model computers, considered the industry standard of excellence for their particular engineering applications, are equivalent to the Digital computer put on display Dec. 19 for reporters after it was intercepted on its way to the Soviets.

Digital was not charged in that case because the sale, to the same Richard Mueller, was beyond its control.

The government charged Digital with 40 separate prohibited sales to Mueller's firm over about 17 months but the company said the items were all parts of the same two computers.

"We did not know lurking somewhere in the process was Richard Mueller controlling this company," Berube said Wednesday.

The buyer, Deutsche Integrated Time, was not listed on the "denied parties list" published by the U.S. government.

"When you consider a thousand names on the 'denied parties list,' literally hundreds of thousands of purchase orders, it becomes a formidable challenge to find out who indeed you're doing business with," Berube said.

At the time the recaptured computer was put on display in December, complete with a new conference by Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, reporters were not told that essentially the same equipment had been delivered to the Soviets three years before.

In 1982, Chicago's O'Hare was the busiest airport in the United States — with 604,919 take-offs and landings.

Divisive debate on religion mars presidential campaign

By David Anderson
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The issue of religion, which has dominated politics in the early stages of the presidential campaign, has taken on a new and potentially more bitter and divisive character in recent weeks.

Since his 1980 campaign, President Reagan has wrapped himself in the cloak of the religious right, committing himself not only to their prayer in the schools and anti-abortion crusades but also to more fundamental efforts to make the institutions of government reflect certain religious values he believes are shared by a majority of Americans.

Mondale, however, has charged the pervasive Protestant fundamentalism that marks the current Republican campaign is a form of "moral McCarthyism."

In a speech to the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith Thursday, Mondale said:

"What I am doing today is something that, in 25 years of public life, I never thought I would do. I have never before had to defend my faith in a political campaign."

Jews have been in the forefront of groups — joined by mainstream Protestant organizations — who have expressed concern over Reagan's effort to link U.S. policy to transcendent religious design.

Reagan has sought to assure Jewish voters that despite his belief in religion and state, which is never acceptable, "necessarily related," the Constitution "guarantees there will never be a state religion in this land."

The United States, he told the same B'nai B'rith meeting Monday addressed, "is and must remain a nation of openness to people of all beliefs."

Despite Reagan's disavowal of a state religion and the notion — strongly supported by some of his fundamentalist supporters — that the United States is a "Christian nation," a number of Protestant, Jewish and Roman Catholic leaders fear Reagan's injection of the religious issue seeks to do just that.

"We are seeing in this political campaign a deliberate attempt to collapse the distinction between mixing politics and religion, which is actually necessary within certain limits, and merging church and state, which is never acceptable," said the Rev. James Dunn.

Manchester plans workshop to focus on eliminating bias

By Kathy Gormus
Herald Reporter

While characters like Archie Bunker can be laughed on the television screen, in real life the attitudes they embody can hamper the functioning of a business or a municipal government.

The five-hour workshop will begin with a film in which comedian Bill Cosby portrays an extremely bigoted character and will be followed by discussions and role playing exercises on overcoming resistance to change, dealing with biases and the supervisor's role in affirmative action, according to a proposal submitted by Fortang.

There will also be discussion of affirmative action laws, an area in which Werberman said the town's management-level employees are already well-informed.

"The best of this workshop... is to get people to start looking at how they look at minorities," Fortang said.

Werberman said that about 20 to 25 employees would be asked to participate in the workshop. He said they would include everyone responsible for town hiring.

FORTANG SAID THAT MANAGERS and supervisors must communicate to rank-and-file employees that changes in the workplace are inevitable because of the town's efforts to employ more blacks and Hispanics. Without such communication, both employees and the first minority employees in a department would probably be ill-equipped to handle the change, he said.

Fortang said he would review the town's affirmative action plan and meet with Werberman again to make any necessary changes to the workshop proposal.

NASA boosts Pratt

EAST HARTFORD (UPI) — The space agency's award of a $2 million contract to Pratt & Whitney to recommend improvements in the space shuttle's main engine system could mean "several hundred million dollars" in future contracts, a spokesman said today.

The National Aeronautics and Space Agency awarded the firm's Government Products Division in West Palm Beach, Fla. the contract to study the engine system and propose ways of improving it.

An identical $2 million study contract was awarded to Aerojet, a California-based space propulsion firm.

Phil Giarmita, spokesman for the company, said NASA has established a timetable that will lead to the selection of either firm as the winner of the competition in February.

Although the contracts are relatively small, Giarmita said the decision could eventually mean "several hundred million dollars" in future NASA space shuttle engine contracts.

He said the company has reassembled a team of space rocket experts who designed the engine that was edged out of the space shuttle's engine contract, a competition more than a decade ago.

De la Madrid says rebels changed Nicaragua

DE LA MADRID rebels at fault

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — President Miguel de la Madrid says U.S.-backed rebels have created "a climate of violence and aggression" in Nicaragua that is forcing the leftist government in Managua to become more radical.

"The Sandinista revolution depends greatly on the internal political dynamics of Nicaragua, but there is no doubt either that it finds itself being influenced by the international surroundings," de la Madrid said.

De la Madrid, 48, was responsible for getting representatives from the United States and Nicaragua to open talks aimed at reducing tensions in the region. The latest round of those talks began this week at Manzanillo on Mexico's Pacific coast.

He said the essential part of any such accord are assurances from all nations involved "not to support from their territories violent acts or destabilization in neighboring countries."

De la Madrid has taken the lead in seeking a Central America peace accord through the so-called Contadora group — Mexico, Venezuela, Colombia and Panama.

Shawmut wants wetland filled

The Shawmut Equipment Co. has asked for permission to fill in part of a wetland in a flood-prone section of Tolland Turnpike. According to plans filed with the Planning and Zoning Commission, the company wants to fill in about 1.7 acres of a 5.4-acre wetland area "to create usable commercial property fronting Tolland Turnpike."

The stretch of the turnpike, or Route 82, between Manchester and Vernon has been plagued by flooding during heavy rains. Shawmut's application will be presented to the PZC on Monday, which will have the option of scheduling a public hearing on it, according to town planning officials.

Congregation grows; Full Gospel expands

By Sarah E. Hill Herald Reporter

Full Gospel Interdenominational Church has expanded to cover half a block on Main Street in order to accommodate what its pastor says is a growing congregation. Pastor Philip Saunders says that about 1,200 "born-again Christians" currently belong to the church, which started in 1969 with a handful of members who met in the Orange Hall on East Center Street.

Before this summer, the church's main hall was crowded during Sunday services, Saunders said. The congregation often spilled into the balcony above the hall, which has more than 800 seats. Work is in progress to convert what used to be a jewelry store and a soda shop on the Bissell Street side of the building into a nursery and "children's church," which Saunders expects will make more room for adults in the main hall.

Florida executes Dobbert

By Kenneth Soe
United Press International

STARKE, Fla. — Ernest John Dobbert, "the most hated man on Florida's death row" who killed his own son and daughter, was executed in the electric chair today.

Dobbert, 46, convicted more than a decade ago, spent his final hours with his family, including his 17-year-old daughter — the sister of the two children he killed. He refused a final meal.

He had been sentenced to die twice before and won reprieves. Before dying in the oaken chair known as "Old Sparky," Dobbert's final appeal had been turned down Thursday night by the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta and attorneys had rushed his case to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The high court, with Justices Thurgood Marshall and William Brennan dissenting, delivered its refusal at 1:30 a.m. EDT in Washington.

Prison spokesman Vernon Bradford said the burly former tire recapper "was calm and resigned" when he heard the court's decision.

"I think he probably anticipated the decision. I think he felt that way yesterday when the appeals court turned him down," Bradford said.

The Atlanta appeals court allowed a temporary stay it had granted Dobbert earlier in the week to expire at 10 a.m. EDT today and state prison officials set his execution for that hour.

Dobbert was the sixth man executed in Florida's oaken electric chair this year and the eighth to die in the state since the Supreme Court reinstated the death penalty in 1976. He was the 23rd executed in the United States since the ban was lifted.

Dobbert, a 6-foot 4, 200-pound native of Milwaukee, Wis., was convicted of first-degree murder for strangling his daughter, Kelly Ann, 9, Dec. 31, 1971. He was convicted of second-degree murder for the death of his son, Ryder, 7, who died two months after Kelly Ann as the result of constant beatings.

He also was convicted of child abuse and torture of his children, one of whom, Ernest III, ran away from home at age 11 and later testified against his father.

Dobbert's history of venting his violent rages on his children made him "the most hated man on Florida's Death Row," officials said. Dobbert has admitted beating his children, but denied killing any of them.

Eighteen-month-old Stefanie Reed of Brandon, Fla. watches her father, Walter, as he gets his vital signs checked at the University of Minnesota Hospital in Minneapolis. The girl, the youngest known person to receive a kidney transplant, received her father's kidney Thursday.

Tiny Florida girl gets dad's kidney

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Tiny Stephanie Reed, 18 months old, was in stable condition today and beginning the year-long process of growing into the kidney she received from her father.

Doctors at the University of Minnesota Hospitals Thursday transplanted a kidney from Walter Reed, 28, Brandon, Fla., into the body of his daughter. The operation was the first for a child her age. She suffers from a kidney inflammation malady so rare it does not have a name.

Reed and his daughter, who is only the size of a 6-month-old, were "doing fine" after the less than four-hour operation performed by Dr. John S. Najarian, the university's surgery chairman, hospital spokeswoman Mary Stanik said.

"Stephanie is in critical but stable condition," Stanik said. "That's very normal. The father is doing fine. He's more stable than critical. The doctors said everything went well."

Stanik noted the transplanted kidney is considerably larger than the toddler's maittuning organ.

"A kidney will shrink, but right now it's a tight fit. She'll be slightly distended (but) she will grow into it," Stanik said. "In about a year everything will be all right."

The operation was complicated by double arteries coming from Reed's left kidney.

Stephanie's ailment is so rare that fewer than 100 cases have been documented worldwide.

"Maybe when Stephanie is healthy, they'll name it after her," her mother, Judy, joked nervously.

Without a healthy, functioning kidney, doctors said Stephanie's growth might forever be stunted. Her life has been a series of dialysis bag changes and tube feedings in recent months.

Doctors said Reed's kidney was used to reduce the chance Stephanie's body would reject a donor organ.

Stephanie will remain hospitalized for an indefinite period while doctors monitor her for rejection and infection. She also is expected to return for regular checkups.

Hit list made of enemies

By Gregory Gordon
United Press International

WASHINGTON — A Reagan aide delivered top House confidant Lyn Nofziger a "hit list" of 18 government employees the U.S. Chamber of Commerce wanted fired in 1981 and sent a copy to the chamber's president with the notation, "We try to please."

Responding to a demand from Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., the chamber Thursday released the note and list of employees at the Environmental Protection Agency and the Justice, Labor and Energy departments considered "unsympathetic to the objectives of this administration's economic recovery program."

Dingell said a preliminary investigation by his Energy and Commerce subcommittee "raises serious questions of legality" about the decision of Reagan's personal director, E. Pendleton James, to transmit the list to government agencies.

Those listed included 10 EPA officials, about six of whom have since left the agency; Anthony Roisman, former chief of the Justice Department's hazardous waste section; a half dozen Labor Department employees and Maxine Stutz, deputy assistant energy secretary.

"I always say you can judge a person by his enemies," said Roisman, now a public-interest lawyer, upon learning his name was on the list. "This is wonderful!"

Four top presidential aides Thursday denied through White House spokesman Larry Speakes any memory of the list or of a 1983 House meeting at which a former ranking Environmental Protection Agency official says they discussed the chamber list.

The chamber made public a copy of a Sept. 9, 1981, memo from Reagan aide Wayne Vails to Nofziger.

Vails, in sending a copy of the memo to chamber president Richard Lesher, scribbled on the bottom, "Dick, We try to please. Best, Wayne."

Lesher first provided the list to James Aug. 26, 1981, two weeks after he hosted a luncheon among those invited to the White House meeting.

John Daniel, former EPA chief of staff, recalled in an interview that the White House later passed a list containing the names of about eight EPA employees to agency administrator Anne Burford.

Daniel said Burford was upset to find the name of Walter Barber, a highly respected career official who had been acting EPA chief, at the top of the list.

He said she did not know whether the list was related to the eventual departures of any of those named.

Soviets replace top officer

MOSCOW — Marshal Nikolai Ogarkov, the No. 2 officer in the Soviet military who was given the chore of explaining why a South Korean airliner was shot down, has been removed from his post — but it is unclear whether he is in disfavor or being readied for a better job.

In an announcement Thursday, the Soviet news agency Tass said Ogarkov was out as armed forces chief of staff, a position in the military hierarchy second only to Defense Minister Dmitri Ustinov.

Without explaining the move, Tass said Ogarkov was replaced by career officer Sergei Akhromeyev — who had been Ogarkov's first deputy chief of staff.

Tass did not make it clear whether Ogarkov was being dismissed or just removed from office in advance of being promoted to a political position. Western diplomats said it was too soon to interpret the move, although Tass hinted Ogarkov will not disappear from the public scene.

Typhoon death toll climbs

MANILA, Philippines — Another 76 deaths were reported today from Typhoon Ike, pushing the overall toll to 1,429 victims from the worst storm to hit the Philippines since World War II. Another 560 people were reported missing.

The official Philippine News Agency said today 14 bodies were recovered in Kabankalan and two in nearby San Carlos in Negros Occidental province, 300 miles south of Manila, sixty people died in landslides in the neighboring province of Negros Oriental, the agency said.

Dali undergoes surgery

BARCELONA, Spain — Surrealist artist Salvador Dali, suffering from burns received in a bedroom fire, today underwent a successful skin-graft operation needed to head off a life-threatening infection, his doctors said.

Immediately following the operation, which lasted more than four hours, Dali, 80, was placed in the intensive care unit of El Pilar Clinic.

No breakthrough expected

WASHINGTON — Administration officials say they have no high hopes the meeting between Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will produce a breakthrough in the stalled superpower dialogue.

The Sept. 26 meeting in New York, announced by the State Department Thursday but not mentioned by the Soviets, will be the first high-level U.S.-Soviet encounter in nine months.

But the announcement also apparently means the Soviets have for now ruled out meeting the New York talk, to be held in conjunction with the opening of the U.N. General Assembly session, may be followed by a second session between Shultz and Gromyko or — if things go unexpectedly well — a meeting between the Soviet foreign minister and President Reagan, officials said.

Report says Meese clear

Avoid heating NutraSweet

LA JOLLA, Calif. — A popular low-calorie sweetener marketed as NutraSweet and Equal undergoes a potentially harmful chemical change when heated and should not be used in cooking or hot drinks, scientists said.

When heated, two harmless components of the sweetener, technically known as aspartame, change into a form that could have a harmful effect on people, scientists at Scripps Institution told the San Diego Union Thursday.

They warned that the sweetener should not be used in cooking or added to hot drinks until further tests are conducted.

Lucas visit solves murders

By Karen West
United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Fifteen California killings, including the sex-murders of two little girls, were solved during a secret tour of the state by Henry Lee Lucas, the one-eyed drifter who claims to have killed 360 people, authorities say.

Attorney General John Van de Kamp said Thursday that Lucas, who faces a U.S. record 34 murder charges, took authorities on an exhaustive tour that cleared up 15 unsolved murders.

Lucas, 48, who has been sentenced to die by lethal injection in Texas, has claimed to have killed more than 360 people during an eight-year cross-country odyssey.

Lucas is considered to be one of the most brutal mass murderers in this nation's history," Van de Kamp said. "He did virtually every kind of crime known to man."

Van de Kamp said it was "almost beyond belief" that Lucas could have "pinballed around the country" for that long committing mayhem and called the killer "a monster in our midst."

Lucas led officers on a 4,000-mile, 19-day trek last month, telling how and where 14 females and one male were murdered.

His youngest victims in California were 4 and 5-year-old girls abducted from their homes, beaten, strangled and buried in a dry river bed in San Luis Obispo County. One was also raped.

Van de Kamp told reporters Lucas claimed he and a companion, Otis Toole, committed the string of killings from 1973-83, following Lucas' release from a Michigan prison and mental hospital, where he served 10 years for killing his mother. Toole is now in prison in Florida.

Authorities have officially linked Lucas to 172 killings, including 10 confirmed during his trip to California. He faces 34 murder charges — the most filed against an individual in U.S. history — in at least five states.

California promised Texas authorities there would be no news coverage of the tour and that no charges would be filed while he was in the state. Van de camp said.

The slayings now considered solved took place from Imperial County near the Mexican border to Humboldt County near the Oregon line. Others occurred in Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties in Southern California, and Kern, San Luis Obispo and Yolo counties in Central and Northern California.

In a videotape shown to reporters, Lucas said he used various methods to kill people so police would not find a pattern in the murders.

"I've committed shootings, stabbings, beatings and crucifixions of humans," Lucas said in an interview with ABC earlier this year.

"Lucas, it seems, decided to talk because he claims to have had a 'religious experience' while incarcerated in Texas, and he wanted to let families know what had happened to their loved ones," the attorney general said.

Lucas was taken to 35 of the 67 sites where he told authorities he and Toole committed murders or buried victims.

OPINION

In America, the unabortored are sacred

The anti-abortionists have been getting the best of the argument for the past few years. They've been picking up points, however, more on ferocity, vehemence and claims of moral superiority than on any new arguments. There aren't any arguments in this debate, only new theatrics. If they haven't done it already, brace yourself for the anti-abortionists parading about carrying bottles containing pickled fetuses. Such demonstrations are mounted to shock the conscience, although they may only sicken the stomach.

The pro-abortionists, smarting from being accused of being baby-killers, seem bewildered and unsure. They have not been tactically adroit for they have made the mistake of defining their position as almost exclusively the choice of the pro-abortionists. Inadvertently made, a feminist one. Against the anti-abortionists' right-to-life razzamatazz they have countered with the freedom-of-choice slogan.

IT IS FINE AND GOOD to insist that women should have the final decision in what or who grows in their bodies, but by putting so much emphasis on freedom of choice the pro-abortionists have inadvertently made the issue seem to be a personal one affecting only such women who may want to have an abortion now or in the future. They have come close to making themselves seem criminally selfish, women who'd rather cut up and murder an unborn baby than take a day or two off to bring it into the world.

The happiness, even the sanity of a woman may depend on whether or not she is able to obtain an abortion. I know of a case of one of our more conspicuous right-to-life crusaders quietly arranging an abortion for her own daughter. I don't blame her for doing it, only for her hypocrisy, but you can be sure that if and when they make abortions illegal again the rich and the well-to-do will still be able to get them as they

Medicare plan: So far so good

Hospital officials do not report that the quality of care has suffered during the first year of a new Medicare payment system. In fact, it is possible that patients are receiving better care because the new system has prompted better planning and coordination between physicians and nurses.

The system is being phased in over several years. During the first year, 75 percent of the Medicare reimbursement is based on the hospital's prior costs, and 25 percent on the figure set by the government. The ratio changes each year until October 1986 when the Medicare payments will be entirely set by the government.

While it is still too early to tell for sure, the evidence so far doesn't support the grim prediction by critics that quality would be sacrificed to the bottom line.

Actually, some common sense practices have been encouraged by the new cost consciousness promoted by the system. Hospitals are doing more testing and minor surgery on an out-patient basis, for example. And hospitals are more inclined to ward planning the discharges of patients. Some have contracted with local nursing homes to reserve a certain number of beds for people who do not need to be in a hospital but are not quite ready to go home either.

were able to during the long years when it was illegal in the past, when it was, to use Theodore Dreiser's title, an American Tragedy. Perhaps this explains why anti-abortionists are usually Republicans.

BUT THERE IS MORE AT STAKE than the private tragedy and pain of a woman forced to carry a child she doesn't want and probably can't take care of. With the first screams of life out of the lungs of the unabortored child comes the question of who is going to take care of him?

There were about a million and a half abortions last year and, even so, more than a quarter of a million kids were born to unmarried, teenage mothers. Will the Elmer Gantry battalion of smug-faced, ordained fanatics who demand that women pay for their sins by going to term explain who in Sam Hill is going to rear the two million, unwanted, fatherless kids that will be arriving on America's doorstep every year?

May the unabortored who grow up to be stickup artists, muggers and sadistic killers have a sufficient sense of irony to practice their horrible craft on the fundamentalist ayatollahs who demanded that they be summoned into this world and then dumped them.

Weiss, Werbner can demonstrate

To the Editor:

I am making a formal request in your letters column that Mr. Weiss and Mr. Werbner set up a special town meeting in one of the schools and give us a personal demonstration of push-ups, etc.

I believe the taxpayers have been footing the bill for a fitness program for town employees, and we would like to see what we are getting for our money — so we can better understand Mr. Werbner's agility program he is proposing for our police department.

It kind of blows your mind to be getting a police department like "live TV" with cops jumping over 8-foot fences. I am sure Mr. Werbner can give us a personal demonstration and enlighten us.

Perhaps he can also tell us how come these men are not being paid enough for the job they do for all of us, and tell us who is going to be paying the bill to have cops jumping through space.

If the town decides to outfit these nice guys in Superman capes, I'll make them. I'll charge 1,000 percent markup on the price so Mr. Weiss will figure he's getting a real bargain.

My apologies to "Mrs." Weiss, but then she is also taking my taxpayer's buck for her town job and I have an idea that a "nutritionist" in this town is being paid better than a policeman or fireman.

Nobody is taking my town down the tube without one hell of a fight.

Mercier works, but for whom?

To the Editor:

In the Republican primary contest for the 12th Assembly District, Jonathan Mercier claims he "will work," but for whom? He is a lawyer for an insurance company. An insurance company that supports an income tax. Why would they give him time off from work for the legislative sessions unless they expected to benefit from it?

His first loyalty will be to his source of employment, then to the Republican party which he has worked for to get the nomination, then maybe the voters, at the bottom of the list.

The people have already suffered enough from the over-abundance of lawyers in the state Legislature.

Do not repeat big state surplus

To the editor:

This is a copy of a letter sent to Gov. William A. O'Neill:

As a Connecticut taxpayer, I am glad to see that our state experienced a surplus for the fiscal year 1983-84. What I am unhappy about is the amount of the surplus — $164 million! My first reaction is that the taxpayers are being overtaxed.

I would like to see some action by the Legislature to refund the surplus to the Connecticut taxpayers. In addition, so as to not repeat this surplus next year, action should also be taken now to reduce taxes for Connecticut taxpayers. Let us get revenues back in line with expenses.

FEMA lusts for big job

WASHINGTON — The Federal Emergency Management Agency may be little known to the public, but it has succeeded in drawing serious, unwelcome attention from at least one Cabinet member.

Not satisfied with its role as a mere coordinating agency in the event of some natural or man-made disaster, FEMA is feverishly lusting after a far bigger job — nothing less than running the country during any situation it decides is an emergency.

FEMA's chief is Louis Giuffrida, a former California National Guard big shot, staunch law-and-order advocate and friend of White House counselor Edwin Meese. Giuffrida likes to be called "General," and he favors martial law to handle national or local emergencies — with FEMA in command.

FEMA's aggressive self-aggrandizement has drawn fire privately from Attorney General William French Smith. In a recent letter to National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane, Smith expressed the Justice Department's concern over the empire Giuffrida has been trying to create for FEMA. My associate Donald Goldberg has seen a copy of the letter.

"This department and others have repeatedly raised serious policy and legal objections to the creation of an 'emergency czar' role for FEMA," the attorney general wrote. "Specific policy concerns regarding recent FEMA initiatives include... expansion of the definition of severe emergencies to encompass 'routine' domestic law enforcement emergencies."

The broader definition of "severe emergencies," of course, is that it would be to declare martial law and put Giuffrida on the czar's throne.

Smith wrote to McFarlane after getting hold of a draft executive order prepared by FEMA.

"I believe that the draft Executive Order raises serious substantive and public policy issues that should be further addressed before this proposal is submitted to the president," Smith wrote. "In short, I believe that the role assigned to FEMA in the revised Executive Order exceeds its proper function..."

FEMA proposes "layers of FEMA operational personnel inserted between the president and all other federal civil agencies," Smith complained. "Its mobilization exercise scenarios continue to give FEMA the responsibility of representing the Department of Justice and other Cabinet agencies at meetings with the president and the National Security Council during 'emergencies.'"

The attorney general contended that "the draft Executive Order seems to legitimize FEMA's authority beyond that of a coordinating agency."

Smith's letter hit a nerve at FEMA, where an internal memo from general counsel George Jett noted the obvious: "A serious difference of view apparently exists between this agency and the Department of Justice as to FEMA's role in national security." Jett's proposed solution to the problem? Just don't let Justice see any more documents dealing with FEMA's legal authority. "I would strongly recommend," Jett wrote, "that... no such documents be submitted to the inter-agency clearance process... until the present policy differences are resolved."

Mayors ask help for school costs

HARTFORD — A group of mayors and first selectmen have called on the state to move ahead with a plan to increase state aid to education, saying a multi-year effort to equalize school spending hasn't gone far enough.

The group, which meets monthly to discuss issues affecting cities and towns, urged the state Thursday to increase education spending to the point where the state picks up 50 percent of education costs statewide.

The State Board of Education adopted a proposed budget Wednesday calling for the state to begin a four-year effort next year to increase the state's share of school costs to 50 percent.

However, Gov. William A. O'Neill said he has not decided if he will include the proposed program in the budget he will submit to the Legislature early next year.

Five mayors and first selectmen voiced support for the program at a Capitol news conference, saying the current reliance on local property taxes to pay for schools results in inequities in education and tax rates.

"No matter how you split it up between rich and poor towns the bottom line still remains that Connecticut ranks 48th in the nation in aid to education," said Norwalk Mayor William A. Collins.

"Consequently, in a number of towns in our state students are getting poor education as well as unequal education," he said.

The state has increased school aid substantially in recent years through the Guaranteed Tax Base program, a multi-year effort to equalize spending on schools from town to town.

The mayors said the GTB program helped but isn't enough, noting the state's low ranking among states in terms of school aid.

NU eyes cost it says exempt from any cap

HARTFORD — Northeast Utilities says it may seek state approval to charge customers for costs of completing the Millstone III nuclear power plant beyond a $3.54 billion limit set by law.

NU President James Ferland said Thursday the utility is keeping track of costs it believes may be exempt under a 1983 law that "capped" the plant costs customers will have to pay at the 1982 estimated completion cost of $3.54 billion.

Northeast announced last week the estimated cost of the plant is now $200 million to $300 million more because of increased labor costs resulting primarily from stricter quality control measures.

He said Northeast has a responsibility to its shareholders to recover all prudent costs of building the plant. "We owe it to them to try and recover money that is prudently spent to recoup some of all of the increased costs."

Ferland said the company, which serves Connecticut and western Massachusetts,

State legislator arrested

BRIDGEPORT — Rep. Vincent J. Roberti, D-Conn., faces a court hearing Wednesday on charges he punched a college student in the face outside a Bridgeport bar.

Roberti, 30, was arrested about 1 a.m. Wednesday outside the Nautilus Bar after he allegedly punched Robert Westlake, 20, a Fairfield University student, twice in the face.

Roberti, who was charged with breach of the peace, described the incident as "a misunderstanding between a few people I know."

He denied he punched Westlake but admitted he shoved the student, claiming Westlake had deliberately tripped a woman as the patrons were leaving the bar on Reef Road at closing time.

The four-term lawmaker, who represents the city's 12th District, was released on a written promise to appear in Bridgeport Superior Court on Wednesday.

Trumbull hires lady officer

TRUMBULL — Susan Hamilton of Stratford has been hired as Trumbull's first female police officer.

City officials announced Hamilton was among four new appointees to the police department.

Hamilton, Leonard Scinto and Michael Massarra, both of Trumbull, and Brian Mervagitis of Stratford, will begin patrol duty on Nov. 12.

Hamilton, a Stratford resident who grew up in Trumbull, said she was "quite overwhelmed, nervous and anxious" all at the same time.

Stabbing suspect makes plea

MILFORD — Rather than face a new trial, an East Haven man whose 1982 assault conviction was overturned because of judicial misconduct pleaded guilty.

The state had charged George Hardwick, 25, stabbed his 19-year-old girlfriend more than 30 times in the face, neck, and hand. He was sentenced to 12 years in prison.

The state Appellate Court ruled in the May trial Judge Alvin G. Rothman of Superior Court deprived Hardwick of a fair trial by interrupting and rebuking Hardwick's attorney, Thomas F. Brown.

State's Attorney John J. Kelly recommended a new sentence of five years, the minimum penalty. With time already served, Hardwick could be released in six months.

State crime rate declines

HARTFORD — State police statistics show crime in Connecticut decreased 10 percent during the second quarter of this year, compared with the same period in 1983.

The figures released Thursday showed a substantial drop in most crimes against property but a rise in crimes against individuals.

However, crimes against people during the three-month period ending June 30 rose.

Murders during the quarter increased from 26 in 1983 to 28 this year. Rape rose from 166 to 181, while robberies dropped from a little from 1,508 to 1,421.

The most significant increase was in the aggravated assault category, which increased 24 percent from 1,154 in the second quarter of 1983 to 1,440 for the same period this year.

Car thefts dropped 20.4 percent to 3,144; larcenies decreased 10.7 percent to 20,487; and burglaries fell 9.2 percent to 8,474 for the second quarter.

Cop admits drug use

HARTFORD — A suspended Hartford policeman who admitted to being a drug user has pleaded guilty to a federal drug charge in connection with a major cocaine and marijuana ring.

Linn Miller of Hartford, an 11-year police veteran, entered the plea Thursday before U.S. District Court Judge Jose A. Cabranes who set an Oct. 18 date for sentencing.

Israeli jets soar over Shouf hills

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli jets firing flames screamed over the Shouf mountains east of Beirut and the Iklim Kharroub hills, where clashes between Druze and Christian militias have forced hundreds of people to flee their homes.
Lebanese military sources had no immediate explanation for the 30-minute Israeli reconnaissance flights by formations of four warplanes each.
The planes circled the Aley and Shouf mountains and later flew over the coast and Iklim arroub before heading south. The planes dropped flares over the mountainous regions, a military source said.
The reconnaissance flights coincided with recurring violence and escalating tension in the Iklim Kharroub.

Sharon may get post
TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Former Defense Minister Ariel Sharon, forced to resign in 1983 because of his part in a massacre of Palestinians, will receive an important post in Israel's new bipartisan Cabinet, reports said today.
Caretaker Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir demanded the post of industry and trade minister for Sharon to win support for a national unity government from members faithful to Sharon in their Likud coalition, Israeli newspapers said.
Prime Minister-designate Shimon Peres and colleagues in his Labor Party bloc discussed Shamir's 'ultimatum' before agreeing to the appointment, the newspapers said.
The bipartisan Labor-Likud government is expected to take office next week, perhaps as early as Wednesday, when members of the 120-member Knesset — Israel's parliament — will cast a confidence vote.
Labor and Likud leaders will work out details of the agreement this weekend and party members will vote separately on the package before it goes to the Knesset.
Labor and Likud, longtime rivals, had to unite in the new government because Labor won only 44 Knesset seats and Likud only 41 in July 23 elections. Neither had sufficient support from minor parties to form the needed majority coalition of 61 votes.

Kids charged in fire

A Bush Hill Road resident rescued a horse, goat and several cats from a burning barn Thursday night, police said. Two juveniles have been referred to court authorities in connection with the fire, which started around 5:30 p.m. at 616 Bush Hill Road, police said.

According to police, the two youths were in the barn, which is owned by Canada's Conway, lighting fires and putting them out. They were unable to extinguish one of the fires, police said.

The two were questioned by police and confessed to starting the fire, police said.

The animals in the barn were rescued by an unidentified neighbor, police said. Another neighbor, former Manchester Director of Planning Alan F. Lamson, helped put out the fire, police said.

No further information was available this morning, police and fire department spokesmen said.

Neither Lamson nor Conway could be reached for comment.

A Hartford man was arrested by police Thursday in connection with five residential burglaries committed between April and June, police said.

Norman Young, 43, was being held at the Morgan Street jail in Hartford this morning on bonds totalling $100,000. Manchester Superior Court spokeswoman said today. His case was continued until Thursday, she said.

Police said three of the burglaries occurred at the Beacon Hill Apartments on West Middle Turnpike and the other two were committed at the Falconridge Apartments on New State Road.

In addition to five counts of third-degree burglary, Young was charged with three counts of third-degree larceny and two counts of second-degree larceny.

No other information was available, police said.

In the Connecticut area, Cigna Corporation's Insurance Co. of North America ranked 29th with a score of 80. Cigna's Horace Mann Insurance Co., 24th at 82. Aetna Life & Casualty, 33rd at 80; The Hartford Insurance Group's Hartford Accident & Indemnity, 37th at 78 and The Travelers Corporation's Travelers Indemnity, 41st at 77.

Prudential Property & Casualty Co. ranked 43rd.

Richard Marrs, senior vice president of casualty property claims at Travelers, said the company has evidence from its own independent sources which shows the survey was way off of the mark.

"I doubt the validity of that ranking," Marrs said, noting the magazine results do not accurately reflect the company's track record because it canvassed the magazine's subscribers, not all of Travelers customers.

Device could settle dispute on fate of the dinosaurs

By Lidia Wresowicz United Press International

BERKELEY, Calif. — Scientists have a new device to test a theory that a mysterious "death star" triggers immense comet showers that wipe out much of life on Earth every 26 million years.

The widely-publicized theory, proposed last February by a group of scientists from the University of California at Berkeley and Princeton, speculates that a dim, distant star — as yet undiscovered — is responsible for the extinction of the dinosaurs and other life forms 65 million years ago.

The star has struck twice since, the scientists believe.

According to the theory, a red dwarf star named "Nemesis," in a distant orbit around the sun, pulls cosmic debris loose from its orbit and sends it streaking through the solar system in the form of meteors and comets. When Earth and Nemesis are in the right position, about every 26 million years, the planet the is showered with that debris.

The theory maintains that when comets and meteors pulverize the Earth they send up huge clouds of dust — which in turn shroud the planet, blocking out sunlight. For lack of light and heat, vegetation and the food chain to the highest forms of life is disrupted.

Scientists say such a catastrophe could extinguish up to 70 percent of life on Earth.

The theory was based in part on fossil records showing periodic mass extinctions that have been linked to impact craters and exceptionally high concentrations of iridium in sediments.

Iridium, a silvery-white metallic element from the platinum group, is quite scarce in Earth's crust — about 20 parts per trillion — but is 100,000 times more abundant in most meteorites.

A new device, devised by Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory chemists Frank Asaro and Helen Michel and engineers Fred Goulding and Don Malone, can measure the amount of iridium in rock samples much more quickly and cheaply than anything in use today, scientists said Thursday.

Thus, when built and operational, the unique "Iridium Coincidence Spectrometer" will make it possible to gauge the extent to which Earth has been bombarded by large extraterrestrial objects, they said.

Measuring the abundance of iridium in a rock sample and comparing it to the abundance of other elements in the area from which the sample was taken can reveal whether the iridium is extraterrestrial in origin.

Unusually high — more than 100 parts per trillion — concentrations of iridium which peak in sediments that date back to an extinction period would help substantiate the death star theory, Asaro said.

"Short of finding the mysterious star suspected of causing periodic global die-outs, measuring iridium abundance could be the critical test of this theory that has rocked the scientific community," he said.

The extinction question has long been surrounded by controversy. Some have said the disappearance of dinosaurs was not abrupt but took millions of years. Others have blamed it on overpopulation and starvation, surges of cosmic rays, asteroids or meteors and volcanoes throwing up sky-darkening clouds.

"The new spectrometer will do in three years what would take more than 100 years to do using current techniques and equipment," Michel said.

Initially, Asaro and Michel expect to measure annually some 20,000 samples of sediment dating as far back as 250 million years old, in some instances, several billion years.

Parking Authority nixes church lease; Garman gets chair

The lease on the St. James Church parking lot on Park Street will not be renewed while it expires in October, outgoing Chairman Robert Gorman told the Parking Authority this morning.

Gorman, who has resigned from the authority, said he did not think the loss of the 92 spaces currently leased for public parking would have much of an effect on customers of Main Street businesses.

"There is plenty of parking in the Main Street area right now," he said. "The control is the most important part."

Authority member Joseph Garman has been named to succeed Gorman as chairman, Gorman resigned last week, citing personal and professional reasons.

Garman, who has been on the authority since its inception, "has been a vital member, not only of the Parking Authority but of every other activity going on downtown," Gorman said.

Although most of the approx-mately 700 public parking spaces now owned or leased by the authority have posted time limits, the authority has been plagued by violations of the limits.

Gorman said the St. James Church did not want to renew the parking authority's lease because it has recently renovated the church and uses the lot for activities.

The authority leases the lot for over $13,000 a year, Gorman said. The lot has not been used to capacity because shoppers apparently prefer parking spaces closer to Main Street, he has said.

Gorman said that the authority is in a position where it can afford to resign last week, citing personal and professional reasons.

"I think we're in a position now where we shouldn't ever bother leasing," he said.

The authority could acquire up to $500,000 worth of land using its income from special taxes and the money it saves by not leasing the St. James lot, he said.

Gay link said possible in murder of teacher

The death of Robert W. Beauchene Jr., who was found shot to death in Ellington Aug. 27, may have been linked to the fact that he was a homosexual, state police said today.

"We have determined that he was a homosexual," said state police spokesman Sgt. Edward Dailey. "We cannot rule out that this may have been a homosexual homicide."

Beauchene, 34, of 69 Autumn St., died of two gunshot wounds to the back of his head, according to the state medical examiner. His body was found near Shempsit Lake in Ellington.

Police have said that there are similarities between Beauchene's death and the killing in January of a Vernon man who police say was also a homosexual.

"We have also determined that there are articles missing that he should have had on his person which indicates he was robbed," Dailey said.

Police are making a plea to anyone who may have been robbed or assaulted in the Vernon area within the past six months to come forward. Dailey said anyone with information should call 648-9905.

Claude R. Wickard succeeded Henry Wallace as Franklin D. Roosevelt's secretary of agriculture.

FOCUS / Weekend

Weekenders

It's church supper time

The weather has turned cooler and thoughts have turned to hot food and church suppers. First Congregational Church of Coventry will have a roast turkey supper Saturday in the church vestry on Main Street. The public is invited.

There will be servings from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. The charge is $4 for adults; $3.50 for senior citizens; and $1.25 for children.

Season ends at the shell

This weekend is it — the final program of this season will be conducted at the Bicentennial Band Shell on the campus of Manchester Community College. The 7th Division U.S. Army Reserve Band from East Windsor will perform at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

The program at the shell will feature the Concert, Stage, and Dixieland groups of the band. This final program will be the only afternoon one of the year. Bring a chair or a blanket and enjoy the lively music of this band. There is no admission or parking charge.

Get your winter reading

Imagine 7,000 books for sale — that's how many will be available at the annual book sale of the Manchester Public Libraries, in cooperation with the Manchester Friends of the Library. The sale will be Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Mary Cheney Library on Main Street.

The sale will feature all kinds of books for children and adults. They are bargains one can't afford to miss.

It's market day at church

Something for everyone — that's the way it will be Saturday when the St. John's Church, Main Street and Burnside Avenue, East Hartford, has its annual "Market Square" day.

There will be booths with handmade items, glassware, white elephant, toys and games, books, jewelry, plants, electrical appliances, dried floral arrangements and homemade baked goods. Refreshments will also be available.

The fair will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Some new features this year will include face painting for the children as well as various games of skill for the children. For parents there will be a tea cup auction.

Concert at St. Bridget's

The concert scheduled for tonight at 7:30 in the auditorium at St. Bridget's on Main Street will be a suitable place to take the entire family. It will feature Joe Wise, singer and composer of contemporary liturgical music.

Tickets will be on sale at the door at $5 per person.

Have a bang up time

The sound of musket fire will once again echo from the walls of Old Newgate Prison in East Granby, as that historic site hosts a special 18th century military program Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Go take a walk through history and bring the children along.

Visitors will have the opportunity to view authentic demonstrations of military drills, crafts, and other activities associated with the period during the era of the American Revolution.

In addition, you will have a chance to view the remains of Connecticut's first prison, including the underground copper mine where criminals and British sympathizers were held in captivity.

The program is free with museum admission of $1.75 for adults and 75 cents for children ages 6 to 17.

Closer to home

There's another military muster going on this weekend and it's a little closer to home.

The Marlborough Junior Ancient Fire and Drum Corps will host its 18th annual parade and muster on Sunday. The parade will start at 1 p.m. at the intersection of Pettigill Road and North Main Street in Marlborough. Following the parade, each corps will perform for about 10 minutes.

Seventeen corps are planning to attend the event and are coming from as far away as New York and Vermont.

There will be a bake sale and refreshments booth, too.

Firemen's fair aglow

This is the weekend when the members of the Ellington Volunteer Fire Department go all out to entertain the public at their annual "Lucky Party," which opened Thursday night and will be open today from 6 p.m. to about 11 p.m. and Saturday from early afternoon until about 11 p.m.

Saturday's big event is the parade, which will start at 5:30 p.m. and travel from the lower end of Main Street to the fairgrounds next to the firehouse on Gaines Street.

The fair features plenty of booths with games of chance, a variety of rides for adults and children, and many food booths. The prime money-maker for the department is the cake booth, to which each family in town contributes a homemade cake.

Raffle tickets for several major prizes will also be on sale at the fair. Winners will be drawn Saturday night.

Take a ramble along canal

Here's something for the whole family to enjoy this weekend — a ramble along the canal in Windsor Locks, sponsored by the Holland Brook Center of the Connecticut Audubon Society. It's scheduled for Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m.

Participants are invited to pack a picnic lunch and arrive early at the starting point — the parking area at the end of Canal Road — to enjoy a leisurely lunch and register.

There will be a $2 fee for the walk for center members and $3 for non-members. The charge is $1 for children and senior citizens. Hikers will be shuttled back to their cars at the end of the hike.

All's fair!

Wapping is going to bring back parade

The Rye Street Park in South Windsor will be transformed into an old-fashioned country fair this weekend as the residents return to their farming heritage in the form of the three-day Wapping fair, a 90-year-old tradition in town.

In the past, South Windsor was a rural town with many tobacco and potato farms. This year's fair will return to basics, with vegetable and animal judging, crafts, auctions, booths, rides, band concerts, horse show, and doobiebugs and a foot race, plus a big parade.

This will be the first parade in several years. Marchers will step off at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday from the intersection of Troy Road and Sullivan Avenue, led by the chief of police.

The fairgrounds will officially open at 5:30 p.m. Friday. There will be an auction at 7 p.m. and a Battle of the Bands, featuring local rock bands, at 8 p.m.

Also on Friday night the traditional softball game between the Democrats and the Republicans will be held. There will be rides, amusements and booths.

On Saturday the fairgrounds will open after completion of the parade. At 12:30 p.m. there will be a tug-of-war between the members of the police and fire departments. There will be a bubblegum contest at 3 p.m. and a pie-eating contest at 3:30 p.m.

At 4 p.m. there will be a karate demonstration and family entertainers will perform at 1, 3 and 5 p.m. There will be other events going on during the day, such as a double dutch tournament, doobiebug draw, a display of antique autos, break dancers, and in the evening, country and western music groups.

Craftsmen displaying their skills, animal exhibits, hobby collections, baked goods, meats, fruits and vegetables, floriculture and needlework.

A firemen's muster will highlight the events Sunday. The fair opens at 9 a.m. and the muster will be at 10:30 a.m. For added excitement there will be parachute jumpers at 1 p.m. along with a horseshoe tournament for partners.

Admission to the fair is $1.50 for adults; $1 for senior citizens; and children under 12 admitted free. The rides will cost 75 cents instead of $1 and advance tickets for rides will be priced at 60 cents.

These young people are enjoying one of several livestock exhibitions at the Wapping fair.

Hebron Harvest fest to host Nashville singer

The spacious Lions Park on Route 85 in Hebron will be alive this weekend with the sounds and sights of the country. The Hebron Lions Club opened its annual Harvest Fair Thursday night and it will remain open through Sunday.

The gates will swing wide Saturday at 9 a.m. and Sunday at 11 a.m. Activities will continue into the evening.

There will be good old-fashioned tractor pulls along with horse, pony and oxen pulls, a horse show, livestock showing and judging, food and craft exhibits, and entertainment by regional, national and local groups.

An added attraction this year will be a lumberjack show that will feature some daring trick log rolling on Saturday and Sunday.

Awards will be given in arts, crafts, baking, canning, livestock and other categories.

Two huge stages will provide a spacious area for the entertainers. The acts will include everything from rock 'n' roll to dancing the polka with Dick Pillay.

Area young women will also be competing for the title of Miss Hebron Harvest Fair tonight.

Saturday at the fair has become a tradition with the Blue Ridge Boys entertaining.

Sunday will be a special day, when for the first time, straight from Nashville, Tenn., Donna Fargo will entertain. She is billed as the "Happiest Girl in the whole U.S.A."

The Lions will be prowling and sometimes roaring, to make sure all goes well during this event.

Admission is $3 for adults; $2 for senior citizens; and those under age 12 are admitted free. Parking is free and plentiful.

Nashville singer Donna Fargo will entertain at the Hebron Harvest Fair this weekend.

Franklin Ave. to be gourmand's mecca

Where do 3,000 pounds of sausage mix it up with a couple of tons of onions and fresh green peppers?

At Franklin Avenue's Festa Italiana, of course, where about a quarter of a million sausage sandwiches will be sold this weekend to a throng of about a half a million visitors.

Hartford's annual Italian street festival, one of the largest in America, begins Friday at 5 and runs through 11 p.m. Sunday. Highlights include the parade, at 10 a.m. Saturday, the public mass at 11 a.m. Sunday, and an anticipated visit from vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro.

Ferraro is expected to visit the festival sponsored by the state's Democratic headquarters. She will probably give an informal address from the South Street stage around 4:30 p.m., according to people at the state's Democratic headquarters.

Celebrity visits aside, "the most popular thing to do at this festival is to eat, walk around a little and then eat some more," said Tom Samponogaro, chairman of fair booths. "This year we have about 100 booths, and 60 of them sell food."

In addition to the sausage sandwiches (the best-selling item at the fair) the "menu" includes pizza slices, fried mozzarella, calzone, claims on the halfshell, hot and cold pasta dishes, fried calamari and squid.

To satisfy those with a sweet tooth, there are always tables full of Italian pastries, along with gelato, ice cream and the standard goody fare, like soft ice cream and cotton candy.

After all of that, if your stomach can stand the thrills, there will be 30 carnival rides — almost twice as many as there were last year — ranging from the cowardly kiddies to the fast and furious.

Once again, they will be in the D & D parking lot, at 276 Franklin Ave.

If you'd prefer something calmer in the way of entertainment, you will have the opportunity to hear rock music from local bands, traditional Italian music, opera favorites from members of the New York Metropolitan Opera Company, two appearances by singer Don Cornell, and a concert with Tony Reale. In addition, a number of folk dance troupes will be performing throughout the festival, both onstage and on the street.

But don't overlook the quieter entertainers, those who wander and work the crowd.

For example, there are Angelo and Coco, a tiny, talented and temperamental duo. They are a pair of monkeys who dance, play the piano, perform card tricks and beg money from crowds, while "the boss," Tony Lupo, plays an antique-style burly gurdy and issues commands. The monkey are real charmers.

To enjoy the fair, you'll want to avoid the worst of the crowds. Fair officials suggest going right after work on Friday, or first thing in the morning Saturday. The parade is at 10 a.m., and, "if you're smart, you'll plan to be well out of this place by two in the afternoon," said Nicholas Simeone, one of the co-chairmen.

Free parking is available at the Department of Transportation lot on Jordan Lane and Franklin Avenue. If that's too far for you to walk, you can take a public bus north on Wethersfield Avenue for 75 cents.

Sweden upsets Canada

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (UPI) — Team Sweden taught their hosts a valuable lesson Thursday night. "You can batter us, but you can't beat us."

"They came here with something to prove," said Mike Bossy — one of the few Team Canada players who talked to more than 75 reporters in a deserted dressing room — after Sweden downed his team 4-2.

The New York Islanders star said Team Sweden showed "they're not gutless wimps and they can play it tough. How long has Sweden been taunted as chickens?"

"They stood up to us and they beat us. You had to know they would come out and be as tough as we were because they had something to prove."

"They weren't about to back down tonight. They weren't going to fight, but they were going to get up everytime someone knocked them down."

Sweden demonstrated its mettle late in the second period when a bench-clearing fracas broke out after Bengt-Ake Gustavsson dropped Wayne Gretzky in the corner with a stiff Team USA trips Czechs

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Brian Lawton figures the strong checking against the Czechoslovakians lifted Team USA to its 3-2 victory.

"It seemed like we were really trying to wear them out a bit and get about 700 miles an hour," Lawton said. "Coach (Bob) Johnson told us to try to wear them out a bit and get a better piece of them. We were forechecking hard, we weren't backing off and we really turned things around."

Lawton's two second-period goals powered Team USA to victory Thursday night in the second round of the Canada Cup hockey tournament.

He deflected in a slap shot by Phil Housley from the right point at 5:52, and later beat Czechoslovakian goaltender Dominik Hasek at 13:42 with Bob Carpenter and Ed Olczyk assisting on the play.

"It seemed like we were really trying to wear them out a bit and get a better piece of them, but when Carpenter got a nice pass back to Housley and it just came down I was lucky enough to pick it out of the air."

Both goals for Czechoslovakia were scored by Vincent Lukac. His second came on a breakaway after U.S. defenseman Rod Langway and Tom Hirsch were trapped at the blue line. Lukac's high drive went over the shoulder of goaltender Tom Barraso on the glove side at 15:47.

Barraso, the game's MVP, stopped 32 shots. The Buffalo Sabres goalie admitted the Czechoslovakian team hasn't impressed him.

"They haven't shown me much of the tournament as far as their play," he said. "They're a very capable team, but when they get down they lose their confidence and don't play as well, you could see it tonight in the second period."

Team USA opened the scoring in the first period with their first shot on goal when Neal Braten beat Hasek at 3:15. Lukac fired a streaked 35-foot slap shot past Barraso at 13:36 for the equalizer.

Lawton and Broken, who scored Team USA's goals, both play for the Minnesota North Stars.

Sports In Brief

Midget football collection

Annual Manchester Midget Football collection drive will be held Saturday morning starting at 10 o'clock. Players will be in their practice shirts and the girls in cheerleader sweaters as they go around looking for donations.

Proceeds go to Manchester Midget Football.

UConn sets hoop slate

STORRS — University of Connecticut men's basketball team will play a game schedule in 1984-85, highlighted by eight home games at the Hartford Civic Center.

The Huskies will play 18 home dates, eight in Hartford, nine (including an exhibition game) in Storrs and one at the New Haven Coliseum.

UConn launches its regular season on Wednesday, Nov. 28, against Minnesota in Minneapolis.

The 17 regular season home dates is the highest number of home games a single season in the history of Connecticut basketball.

Falkowski a Husky

Manchester High graduate Felicia Falkowski is listed on the 1984 UConn women's cross country roster. She is a freshman.

Also on the squad is Robin Kaminski, a Junior. She is a graduate of Robt Catholic High.

Karzar a starter

NEW HAVEN — John Karzar, an East Catholic High graduate, is a starting offensive guard for the Southern Connecticut State University football team that kicks off its season Saturday on the road against East Stroudsburg University.

Karzar is a 6-2, 225-pound senior.

Rangers sign Laidlaw

NEW YORK — Defenseman Tom Laidlaw, a five-year veteran, was signed by the New York Rangers Thursday to a new contract for the 1984-85 National Hockey League season.

Laidlaw, 26, called a "defensive defenseman" by his peers, scored three goals and had 15 assists in 78 games last season. He has not missed a game because of injuries since joining the club.

Hendrick undergoes surgery

ST. LOUIS — Outfielder George Hendrick of the St. Louis Cardinals underwent surgery Thursday for removal of a tumor from his thyroid gland.

Doctors said the operation was a success, and Hendrick will be hospitalized for two or three more days. However, he will miss the remainder of the season.

LPGA's Gowan resigns

HOUSTON — Ed Gowan, tournament director of the LPGA for the past three seasons, resigned Thursday, effective Dec. 31.

Gowan will pursue other interests within golf, including the LPGA.

"There's nothing I'd rather do than continue with the tour," Gowan said. "But after eight years of more than 240 days away from home, this is the best decision for my family and myself."

Olympic 'bomber' stands trial

LOS ANGELES — A man who followed an Olympic athlete's bus in an explosives-laden car was found by a judge Thursday to be mentally competent to stand trial on nine felony charges.

Superior Court Judge Michael Pirosh found John Blackwell, 38, competent based on evaluations by three psychiatrists.

Blackwell was arrested July 31 after a security guard and driver aboard a bus carrying four French, two Japanese and three Italian Olympians noticed him trailing behind and driving erratically in suburban Glendale.

Blackwell pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity at his arraignment Aug. 2 to the nine felony charges involving possession of explosives and illegal razor-edged throwing stars.

UCLA, UConn water coverage

LOS ANGELES — Attorneys representing UCLA, Southern California and the Pacific-10 Conference agreed Thursday in federal court in an effort to obtain a preliminary injunction allowing the UCLA-Nebraska and USC-Notre Dame football games to be televised.

U.S. District Court Judge Richard Gaudois Jr. said he would announce his decision on the injunction request Monday.

The injunction would affirm the rights of UCLA and USC to retain TV control of their home football games, specifically UCLA's Sept. 23 game against Nebraska and USC's game Nov. 24 against Notre Dame.

Mancini calls off fight

NEW ORLEANS — Saying a training camp cut to his left eye made fighting too dangerous, Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini pulled out of his lightweight bout with Kenny Rogers on orders from his doctor.

Mancini said the cut occurred during sparring sessions two weeks ago. His camp had wanted to watch his progress before making a final decision on meeting boxer Saturday at the World's Fair amphitheater.

"The one thing I fight with is my heart," a subdued Mancini said at a news conference Thursday. "The only thing I fight for is to get into the ring. I wanted to get in there and do a job on this guy."

For a long-lasting fire, choose hardwood logs that produce a shorter flame and burn less rapidly than soft woods.

If flame is the most important consideration, select wood from fruit trees. If you have fireplace logs for sale, find buyers the quick and easy way with a low-cost ad in Classifieds. 643-2711.

Save money on cleaning products by using ammonia, diluted to the strength recommended on the bottle, for washing walls and windows. Bring extra money into your home by selling no longer-needed items with a low-cost ad in Classifieds. 643-2711.

Commission backs higher postal rates

WASHINGTON - The Postal Rate Commission recommended Friday that the U.S. Postal Service raise the price of a first-class stamp from 20 cents to 22 cents and hike the cost of a postcard to 14 cents.

Residents of Surigao City in the Philippines begin to rebuild their homes Friday after the islands were struck by a typhoon that killed more than 1,400 residents of the central and southern part of the country. The Philippines is seeking U.S. disaster aid.

Philippines seeks U.S. aid

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) - President Ferdinand Marcos' government turned to the United States for relief aid Friday as the death toll from two killer storms climbed to more than 1,500 people and a 25th province was declared a disaster area, officials said.

Teens mixing drugs, Gallup poll reveals

NEW YORK (UPI) - Twelve percent of America's teenagers admit to being into "polydrugs," combining alcohol with other drugs, a practice medical authorities describe as the most dangerous of all drug habits.

Mondale to unveil tax plan

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UPI) - President Jimmy Carter's vice-presidential pick, Walter Mondale, said Friday he will disclose a plan next week for tax increases that would cut the federal deficit "fairly" by a word that's prohibited at the White House.

Doctors to open walk-in medical center in Manchester

A doctors' group that owns more walk-in medical centers than any other outfit in the state has announced plans to open one in Manchester by mid-November.

The new Immediate Medical Care Center will be the seventh in Manchester, corporation President Dr. Gregg Grinspan said Friday. Plans call for it to be housed in the old Stop & Shop building on West Middle Turnpike and offer treatment for everything from cuts and sprained ankles to sore throats and stomach aches.

States reach pact on trains

MANHATTAN, N.Y. (UPI) - The agreement requires Connecticut to pay 60 percent of the New Haven line's operating deficit and equipment costs, which have been equally split with New York since the previous agreement was adopted in 1971.

Although the agreement will cost the state more, DOT Commissioner J. William Burns said it addressed non-economic issues and strengthens Connecticut's role in the operation of the railroad.

The new plan for the operation includes the agreement between the two states and an arbitration award by a three-member panel headed by former Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, a professor at the Harvard Law School.

Two full-time doctors, Judy Hille of Bolton and Michael Erdly of Massachusetts, will head the staff of Manchester's new center, Grinspan said. It will occupy a small portion of the Stop & Shop building. Nurses, two x-ray technicians and a secretary will round out the staff.
