Bailey seeks tickets

By Sarah Posselt Herald Reporter

Hartford State's Attorney John Bailey said today that his office will have to ask for special permission from the courts to examine 1983 traffic tickets that he suspects may have been used to embezzle money from Manchester Superior Court.

Bailey said his office is preparing a motion to be presented in Hartford Superior Court that will ask for permission to examine the old tickets, some of which were dismissed by judges and prosecutors and are supposed to have been destroyed.

Bailey and state Auditor Henry J. Becker Jr. said last week that they were investigating 14 instances in which motor vehicle fines were paid to the Manchester court but never deposited in the state's accounts.

Bailey said today that the investigation started more than a year ago, when money from fines was found to be missing from the clerk's office.

Bailey said today that the investigation started more than a year ago, when money from fines was found to be missing from the clerk's office.

Becker said last week that Noren found his signature on the back of a traffic ticket showing that a Manchester prosecutor had dropped, or "molded" the charge.

Bailey said not all the tickets may have been destroyed yet, but he does not know how many were.

He said the motion for permission to examine the remaining records will argue that he is not seeking information on the guilt or innocence of anyone charged with a motor vehicle violation, but rather on the accuracy of record-keeping by the court.

He said he did not know when the motion would be ready.

Museum proud of its outhouse

NEWINGTON (UPI) — The Kellogg-Eddy House Museum has added a 19th-century outhouse to its collection, but "there's still a six-hole on Main Street," say envious officials.

The Newington Historical Society and Trust donated the wooden outhouse believed to be 200 years old because children visiting the museum had trouble imagining what it was like to live in a house without running water.

The outhouse should give them a pretty good idea, said Newington Town Historian Elizabeth Sweater Baxter.

Volunteers will restore the outhouse this spring, but the structure's antique shingles and trellis hardly make the structure unique, she said.

Main Street reconstruction would lead to loss

Authority says town should buy lots

By Kathy Gormus Herald Reporter

Members of the Manchester Parking Authority today agreed that the town should try to acquire several properties along Main Street for parking to make up for on-street spaces that will be lost if the current downtown reconstruction plan is followed.

The properties include the 120-space parking lot at the corner of Forest and Main streets that is owned by Ady Sai-Kuen Tong of Glastonbury and leased by the authority, a lot at the corner of Main and Locust streets owned by the Center Street Corp., and a lot behind the Salvation Army on Main Street.

Under the plan for the reconstruction of downtown Main Street, about 110 on-street parking spaces would be eliminated to improve traffic flow. Three off-street lots would be built on Birch, Pearl and Maple streets to make up for the loss.

However, many Main Street merchants have complained that the three new lots would be too far away from their stores to compensate for the loss of on-street parking.

"Everybody's upset about losing parking on the street and they feel there isn't enough compensation," authority Chairman Joseph Garman said during a meeting of the authority at his Main Street store this morning.

Garman said that if the street is rebuilt as planned, the lot at Forest and Main streets would probably become the most frequently used of the Main Street lots. Acquisition of the lot by the town would ensure that it remained a parking lot, he said. If the town were able to obtain more property on Main Street for parking, merchants would probably have fewer objections to the reconstruction plan, he added.

Gas fumes kill hundreds in India town

By Neal Robbins United Press International

NEW DELHI, India — A cloud of poison gas leaked from a U.S.-owned pesticide factory today and enveloped the sleeping city of Bhopal, choking to death at least 350 people and injuring more than 12,000, officials said.

Officials said the death toll in Bhopal, 360 miles southwest of New Delhi, was likely to rise in one of the worst industrial accidents in Indian history.

Most of the dead were children and old people — killed when the gas cloud leaked in the early morning hours of the day and enveloped Bhopal, the capital of Madhya Pradesh state, the Press Trust of India said.

Some 2,000 injured were admitted to hospitals and an overflow of makeshift hospital camps on the outskirts of the city in the early hours, triggered a mass panic as choking residents jumped from their beds to flee the gas cloud.

The government announced it would give $500 to the families of the dead and $100 each to people injured.

The deadly fumes, which began leaking from an underground tank on the outskirts of the city in the early hours, triggered a mass panic as choking residents jumped from their beds to flee the gas cloud.

The gas was identified as methyl isocyanate, an ingredient of carbaryl, a herbicide and agricultural pesticides widely used in India to kill a broad range of insects, said Dr. S.K. Mukherjee of the Indian Agricultural Institute in New Delhi.

Made of cyanate — a derivative of phosgen gas and methyamine — methyl isocyanate reacts with water or any moist part of the human body such as the eyes, nose, throat, lungs, and mucus membranes, he said.

"In small quantities, the gas causes irritation that gradually goes away," Mukherjee said. "In large quantities, it causes coughing along with blistering and inflammation of the throat and lungs. This can bring on death because of choking."

A storage tank of the chemical must have burst and the fumes blown toward nearby villages, said Mukherjee, head of the institute's agricultural chemicals division.

Singh appealed in a radio broadcast for people to remain calm.

State Department of Transportation already has approved the design of the project. A public hearing on the plan has been scheduled for Jan. 9 in the Livestock Center hearing room, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

William Ginter, engineer of municipal systems at the DOT, has said that if a number of objections to the plan are raised at the public hearing, the state might recommend some changes to the design.

A previous plan for the rebuilding of downtown Main Street was rejected by the state after a public hearing.

They would probably have fewer objections to the reconstruction plan, he added. "She just let out a scream," said her mother, Barbara. "I didn't know what happened. I was too busy watching my own tickets."

"I told her you can't win unless you play," said her father, Frank, who told lottery officials he was an avid Lotto player.

There were 21 second-prize winners with each ticket worth $1,446 and 5,134 third-prize winners with each ticket worth $58. The winning Lotto number was 1, 4, 13, 18, 33, 34.

Cut Your Own Taxes

There's still time for you to set up a tax-deferred IRA

Editor's note: This is the first of four articles to be published this week on steps you can take this year to "Cut Your Own Taxes" in 1985.

By Robert Metz

There's no stepping back into yesterday. Once the year ends, the tax books are closed. The only thing you can do to reduce the year's taxes is pay into tax-deferred retirement plans, Keoghs and IRAs.

Here are some facts on Individual Retirement Accounts. You can add to an IRA until April 15, 1985. Also, you can set up an IRA from scratch at any time before that deadline.

IRA is an efficient way to cut taxes. You're not only deferring taxes on that much income, but because your contributions to a retirement account are subtracted from your gross income, you may also drop yourself into a lower tax bracket.

Income placed in an IRA is not taxed until you withdraw it — usually upon retirement when you are likely to be in a lower tax bracket. The interest and dividends you earn in an IRA also accumulate on a tax-deferred basis until the funds are withdrawn.

TAX TIP: In this high-cost era, we need all the tax deferral help we can get in preparing for retirement. The IRA should be viewed as a welcome supplement to Social Security and pension benefits.

This money between you and your spouse like so long as no more than $2,000 is apportioned to one spouse.

TAX TIP: The sooner you act, the sooner your tax-deferred income will begin earning tax-sheltered money. Actually, you should set aside your IRA money as early as you can. It is not generally realized that IRA funds can be put to work for 1985 as early as next Jan. 1, 1985.

TAX TRAP: If you must withdraw some or all of your IRA contributions before you are 59½ years old you pay a penalty. Look for two charges. You are immediately charged 10 percent of the amount withdrawn as a penalty tax. And, the full amount withdrawn is subject to income tax. Remember, you didn't pay income taxes on it when you put it in the IRA.

TAX TRAP: If you set aside more than the maximum of $2,000, you face a 6 percent penalty tax on the extra amount. The tax is assessed year after year, so long as the excess remains in the IRA. No penalty tax is imposed if the excessive sum is withdrawn before income tax deadline.

Application of computers to public works is emerging. Data processing will be used in management of public works operations, such as the streets network, engineering design, building inspection, preventive maintenance, and a number of other areas.

The engineering division will have an expanded role. Kandra hopes to increase its capacity to serve as a consultant to other town agencies in technical matters.

The town already in the process of preparing accurate townwide maps, the engineering staff will need to keep the maps updated on physical features of the town, features like the location of utility lines.

Kandra sees problems, potentials in public works future

Public Works Director George Kandra has taken a look at the future for the public works department and foresees some problems and some potentials.

In a report he submitted to General Manager Robert Weiss, Kandra addressed goals and proposed improvements for the department in coming years.

Here are some of the developments he foresees: Application of computers to public works is emerging. Data processing will be used in management of public works operations, such as the streets network, engineering design, building inspection, preventive maintenance, and a number of other areas.

construction standards will be enforced. A streets inventory and rating system should be instituted to serve as a basis for annual street resurfacing expenditures.

The town should assess its snow maintenance activities, from equipment use to size of routes, and materials used. Kandra also suggested tree-trimming and brush-cutting operations be re-employed along the shoulder of roads to achieve safety improvements.

The town needs to find a supply of sand and gravel. The town's gravel pit at Tolland Turnpike will soon be exhausted and the town has no replacement. Buying sand and gravel outside will be expensive, Kandra said.

Street trees have been lost and certain town vehicles are now under Chapman's program.

Kandra says the added weight of more vehicles will tax the town garage on Olcott Street, and require use of a section of the new Park Division garage on Charter Oak Street, or addition of a wing to the town garage.

The public works director recommended in his report that computer-controlled fuel dispensing be instituted at the town garage and at the police station.

to reduce more than 20 miles of small-diameter water lines. The water and sewer divisions should be reorganized for more efficient operation, Kandra said in the report.

The directors recently authorized one step in a reorganization. They approved the creation of the water utility operation and sewer operation manager positions. They eliminated one supervisor's job and one laborer's position in the process.

Kandra submitted his report dated Nov. 6 to Weiss. Weiss added it to his own report on administration accomplishments which he submitted that report to the Board of Directors. On Tuesday, the directors will review Weiss' performance as manager over the two-year period.

To catch a Duke

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor once were briefly under suspicion of being jewel thieves. The author Laurence S. Kravath in "Harry Winston, The Ultimate Jeweler," a biography of the man who sold the Taylor-Burton, Jenkins and Hope diamonds in dealings with the world's most famous and influential people.

The duke and duchess spent an afternoon in Winston's gem salon looking at the precious stones they adored and that night Winston received a panicked call from his office. A $5-carat diamond he had shown them was missing. The insurance company wanted to question the Windsors, according to Kravath, but Winston said no to avoid any hint of scandal.

The missing stone was not found for three months. It had fallen into an empty jewel case while Winston was showing it to the duke and duchess.

Entertainer Pearl Bailey will visit President Reagan in the White House soon and wants to discuss her plans for a trip to Ethiopia to help feed the starving. "I'm going to take lima beans and every other kind of beans and cook them in a big iron pot and show them how simple it is," she said.

Zinsser heads energy committee

As expected, state Sen. Carl Zinsser, R-Manchester, has been named chairman of the Legislature's Energy and Public Utilities Committee. His appointment to that chairmanship was announced today by Sen. Philip S. Robertson of Cheshire, president pro tempore of the Senate.

Zinsser had said Friday there was little doubt that he would get the appointment. Zinsser, who has been a ranking member of both the energy and the appropriations committees, did not seek chairmanship of the Energy and Public Utilities Committee. His appointment to that chairmanship was announced today by Sen. Philip S. Robertson of Cheshire, president pro tempore of the Senate.

Zinsser said today that in addition to the chairmanship of the Energy and Public Utilities Committee, he will serve as a member of the Banks Committee. In the last session of the Legislature, with Republicans in the minority, Zinsser also served on the committees for banks, energy, and program review and investigation. He will no longer serve on that third committee.

In announcing Zinsser's appointment to head the energy committee, Robertson said "Carl's extensive legislative experience and commitment on the energy committee will give Connecticut the solid leadership that is needed in handling energy legislation."

The committee is responsible for all the state's energy-related legislation, from household appliances to the regulation of the telecommunications industry. Zinsser said he pursued the energy chairmanship because he had more interest in it than in other positions.

Zinsser represents the 4th Senatorial District, which includes Manchester, Glassboro, Bolton, Columbia and Hebron. The Senate Republican Caucus announced today that Sen-elect

James Guillette, R-Vernon, has been appointed vice chairman of the Banks Committee and of the Finance, Revenue and Bonding Committee. Guillette's 14-town 25th District includes Andover and Coventry.

State Rep. Elise Swenson is waiting to hear from House Speaker Ralph E. Van Nostrand about her committee appointments. She said she told him she would serve wherever the party wants her to. She said she has not prepared for a committee chairmanship, but would turn one down if it were offered.

In announcing Zinsser's appointment to head the energy committee, Robertson said "Carl's extensive legislative experience and commitment on the energy committee will give Connecticut the solid leadership that is needed in handling energy legislation."

The committee is responsible for all the state's energy-related legislation, from household appliances to the regulation of the telecommunications industry. Zinsser said he pursued the energy chairmanship because he had more interest in it than in other positions.

Zinsser represents the 4th Senatorial District, which includes Manchester, Glassboro, Bolton, Columbia and Hebron. The Senate Republican Caucus announced today that Sen-elect

James Guillette, R-Vernon, has been appointed vice chairman of the Banks Committee and of the Finance, Revenue and Bonding Committee. Guillette's 14-town 25th District includes Andover and Coventry.

State Rep. Elise Swenson is waiting to hear from House Speaker Ralph E. Van Nostrand about her committee appointments. She said she told him she would serve wherever the party wants her to. She said she has not prepared for a committee chairmanship, but would turn one down if it were offered.

Zinsser said today that in addition to the chairmanship of the Energy and Public Utilities Committee, he will serve as a member of the Banks Committee. In the last session of the Legislature, with Republicans in the minority, Zinsser also served on the committees for banks, energy, and program review and investigation. He will no longer serve on that third committee.

PZC to air request for new shops

Plans for a 30,000-square foot shopping center on Tolland Turnpike and proposed changes to the standards with which the site is sited tonight at public hearings before the Planning and Zoning Commission.

The hearings will begin at 7 p.m. in the Lincoln Center hearing room. The shopping center, which would be known as Takerville Plaza, would be located on just the north side of the intersection of Tolland Turnpike and Parker Street, according to plans filed by Michael Konover of West Hartford.

The center would contain a retail, retail space and the Acadia Restaurant at 103 Tolland Turnpike, according to the plans. The area, which Konover wants to build the shopping center has been subject to flooding during heavy rains. Some business owners in the area have complained that development on both the Vernon and Manchester sides of Tolland Turnpike has contributed to the problem.

Konover has also applied for a wetlands permit to relocate a culvert under Tolland Turnpike and to divert a brook to the Rockman River. Under the proposed changes to highway standards, the minimum road width for collector roads would be reduced from 34 feet to 32 feet. On local roads, the minimum right-of-way width would be reduced from 60 feet to 50 feet and the minimum road width would be reduced from 32 feet to 28 feet, under the proposed amendment to regulations.

The town's public improvement and highway standards have been under review for the past year. In other business, the PZC is scheduled to consider: • Anthony Battelle's application to change the zoning of 15 acres off Spencer Street from a combination of Rural Residence, Residence AA and Business II to a combination of Business III and Industrial.

• An application from Lawrence A. Flano and Paul Flano for a determination of whether a parcel on a proposed street off Summit Street.

• Jack Davis' application to build houses with attached patios in a Planned Residence Development.

• An application from HAT Associates to defer sidewalks and curbs at 18 Main St. and at Union and North streets.

• An application from S/C Construction for permission to defer sidewalks and curbs on Saus Drive and one lot on Kent Drive.

As memory of KAL 007 fades, so does vodka boycott

By Charles Goldsmith United Press International A boycott of Russia's Stolichnaya vodka, which spread like wildfire last year, is fading. It just seems there's a claque of people who want that brand of imported vodka, said Jerry DeLillo of Boston's Martignetti liquor chain. "Our sales of Stolichnaya are back to where they were before the boycott," he said. "It's just a matter of time before it's just a very short period of time."

Judge linked to felons

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — A published report says Chief Justice Joseph Bevilacqua of the Rhode Island Supreme Court has been observed associating with convicted felons with alleged ties to organized crime. The Providence Sunday Journal reported that a newspaper reporter has seen the judge visit one convicted felon 17 times this year. Police also observed Bevilacqua's car at a shop owned by a convicted felon and saw the judge enter a clothing store described by a police officer as a "crime palace," the newspaper reported.

Harbor drains in sewage

BOSTON — Some 49 million gallons of sewage poured into Boston Harbor every day have turned the site of the Boston Tea Party and the birthplace of New England commerce into a "cesspool" and threatened business expansion throughout the Boston metropolitan area. In an effort to halt the flow which threatens the once-majestic harbor, a federal court judge last week claimed a moratorium on all new commercial sewer hookups in the 43 communities whose waste is dumped into the harbor. The Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce estimated the moratorium could affect $2.3 billion of new construction in Boston alone. And the judge, whose action prompted alarm among local officials and gee among environmentalists, may take sterner action yet. Hearings begin Tuesday that could lead to court control over the sewer system, a move that could tie up all federal aid for sewer construction in the 43 communities.

Flutie produces Heisman Trophy

NEW YORK — If Doug Flutie were a movie producer, he'd probably make a movie about himself.

Sometimes it seems like you almost can't believe the things that happen to you," the Boston College quarterback said Saturday night after being named the 50th Heisman Trophy winner. "This is just another step along the way. I can't believe the progress I've made... the whole story about how I came unrecruited and all that... it's unbelievable."

By now, the story is familiar to college football fans: The 5-foot-9 1/2 kid who was thought to be too small to play major college ball ended up in the Cotton Bowl and wins the Heisman.

But is the story over, or is it just beginning? Flutie, who has won the award twice, is still in the game.

"The closer to Flutie is, the more I have a long and happy future in professional football. They feel that way because they've watched him beat the odds in college and because more casual observers often agree."

Flutie has overcome lack of size with speed, a cannon arm and a lion's heart.

"Alan Ameche has called me, Howard Cosell has called me, Joe Theismann has called me, John Havlicek has called me," Flutie's father, Richard, said. "These

Whalers taken down by Nordiques

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — A four-goal blitz in the first six minutes of the third period gave the Quebec Nordiques an 8-4 win over the Hartford Whalers in National Hockey League play Saturday.

The loss dropped the Whalers to 8-13 and left them in the Adams Division with a tough schedule ahead, including a road game tonight against the Montreal Canadiens.

"It wasn't pretty at all," said Whalers captain Mark Johnson.

Whalers coach Jack Evans said "when you give up that many goals in the third period you always look tired. I quit matching lines in the third period by about 15 minutes. And they really ran all over us."

The Whalers were firmly in the game during the first period, but Chris Kotkowski gave the Whalers a 1-0 lead at 6:21 of the first period as his fourth goal of the season.

A power-play goal 3:57 into the second period gave Quebec its first goal on a feed from Anton Stastny to Peter Stastny for his 10th goal.

SUN CITY, South Africa (UPI)

South African boxer Gerrie Coetzee Sunday wondered whether to cry foul and risk another clubbing from American Greg Page.

Page, a 26-year-old, Arizona-based fighter, knocked out Coetzee to take the WBA heavyweight crown Saturday but most ring-side clocks were at 3:48 in the eighth round when Page landed his lethal 5-punch combo.

Coetzee's manager Hal Tucker said he had advised Coetzee to seek an annulment of the fight and demand a re-match because of the mistake.

The South African's trainer Willie Lock was quoted as saying Coetzee would appeal, but there was no word from the former champion, who rested at his home in Johannesburg.

Thousands of television fight fans phoned newspapers around the country to complain the eighth round was too long. Most private clockings at the ringside showed an overrun of nearly a minute.

But official South African timekeeper Blackie Stuart insisted the clock showed 2:31 when Coetzee put down momentarily in a controversial aftermath well exchange in the fifth and decked again in the seventh for a seven count.

Coetzee lay barely moving on the canvas for nearly three minutes as his handlers waited for him to recover from a left hook, a straight right and another left hook which struck one of the most serious beatings he has taken.

Page, scoring freely and selling "that's one from the jock" with every punch he landed, was rarely worried by Coetzee, who was outboxed and unnerved by the American's ferocity.

Coetzee was supremely confident he could retain the title he took from Michael Dokes in September 1983 and called Page a "jerk" at last week's pre-fight medical.

But the South African clearly had no idea how Page would repay the insult.

Coetzee's first setback came at the start of the second when he was slow coming out of it and the bell and still talking to his corner when Page threw himself across the ring and delivered a flurry of blows at the South African's head.

At the end of the fifth, Coetzee momentarily dropped with his knees as he corner claiming Page had caught him with a right hook after the bell.

But there was no dispute about a 3-punch combination which sank Coetzee in the seventh for a seven count, and then followed the rapid-fire delivery from Page in the eighth which earned him the win.

Stan Christodoulou, Executive Director of the South African Boxing Control Board, said there was no WBA rule to appeal over the timing controversy.

He lost the fight fair and square," he said. "He was clearly beaten in the ring."

Page's offering of a return bout to Coetzee at Sun City, said he and his corner were sure the round went longer than three minutes.

"You get a feeling for the time," Page said.

Dolphins lose to Raiders, 45-34

Marino breaks TD mark

By Les Kios, UPI Sports Writer

MIAMI — The Los Angeles Raiders and Miami Dolphins met on a fireworks exhibition in the Orange Bowl Sunday and may make it all over again in about a month.

The Raiders' defense turned out to have more firepower than the Dolphin offense as Los Angeles came away with a 45-34 victory.

The win moved the defending Super Bowl champions to the brink of an AFC wild-card berth. The Raiders, 10-4, own a two-game lead on the New England Patriots for the final wild-card entrance with two games remaining.

The Dolphins, 12-2, had already clinched both the AFC East and home-field advantage in their first playoff game. So it could well be the Raiders will be back for an encore the last weekend in December for a playoff showdown.

I think this is going to be good for us because I can't expect anything else," Marino said. "I intercepted Dan Marino twice — one for a 27-yard touchdown and the other setting up a TD."

They have the big play option. But we're not going to have that happen on defense too," Marino said. "Hopefully we're better on defense than they are on offense."

Dolphin defensive end Doug Betters is eager to get even. "It looks like we might get another chance to see Marino somewhere down the line, so at this point in the season, we can't just throw our hands up and say we're losers," Betters said. "They got us when we're looking for them next time."

Marino threw for four TDs but Dolphins fell, 45-34.

Less than two minutes later, Hayes returned his second interception 24 yards to the Miami 15. Marcus Allen carried three times, going over from 8 yards out on his last try to make it 38-27.

The Dolphins pulled to within a touchdown pass, a 3-yarder to Mark Duper with 2:09 to go, but Allen sealed it with a 22-yard touchdown run 17 seconds later.

Making the plays that count, when it counts, that's what makes the Raiders great," said Dolphin coach Don Shula.

Marino threw for a career high 476 yards, completing 15-of-37 passes, four of them for touchdowns. That gives the second-year quarterback 40 TD passes for the season, besting the one-season record of 38 held jointly by Y.A. Tittle and George Blanda.

"The records are nice, but if we had won, it would have been a lot nicer," Marino said. "We had the opportunities, but the mistakes killed us."

Ueberroth leads off meetings

By Mike Tully, UPI National Baseball Writer

HOUSTON — Impressive as a leadoff hitter in Sunday's media softball game, Peter Ueberroth now faces a hardball assignment: To get something going at the winter meetings.

The meetings officially begin today with the commissioner scheduled to make the opening remarks.

He singled and scored the game-winning run as the leadoff hitter in the media softball game, but it will take more than that to pump some life into this convention.

So far, only two transactions have taken place, not exactly what a public relations-minded commissioner wants.

Maybe Ueberroth should forget about the designated hitter poll and explore ways to put some life back into the hot stove league.

With long-term contracts and no-trade clauses, it's hard to make the kind of deals that excite the fans. And because of tampering rules, executives cannot even discuss the trades they're not pursuing.

Again, not exactly what a public relations-minded commissioner wants. Especially not for a whole week.

Ueberroth's talk will precede the major-league draft, in which non-protected players may be selected for $25,000, is slated for 9 a.m. CST (10 a.m. EST).

Last year, 11 players were selected from the St. Louis Cardinals manager general manager Whitey Herzog is taking a more active role in retaining his star reliever, Keith Hernandez.

In a series of declarations, the season condemned the punishment handed athletes who are prevented from participating for political reasons.

The resolution to this serious problem does not consist of imposing further punishment against the athletes and the Olympic Games exist," the declaration stated.

"Rather, it lies in identifying the true motives for non-participation and pointing out that such actions will isolate the representatives of the National Olympic Committee of such countries, upon their own volition, from the Olympic Games."

The action taken against officials from boycotting countries would prevent them from taking part in key votes in addition to elections. But the ban would not apply to IOC members, 17 of whom are IOC presidents.

Samaranch said the IOC would discuss the question of referees and judges of boycotting countries with the international sports federations.

Resolution urged on Olympic boycotts

MORLEY WYLER, UPI Sports Writer

LAUSANNE, Switzerland — In the International Olympic Committee president Juan Antonio Samaranch Sunday admitted the success of future Olympic Games remains in the hands of politicians despite the adoption of an IOC resolution aimed at preventing boycotts.

"The resolution to this serious problem does not consist of imposing further punishment against the athletes and the Olympic Games exist," the declaration stated.

"Rather, it lies in identifying the true motives for non-participation and pointing out that such actions will isolate the representatives of the National Olympic Committee of such countries, upon their own volition, from the Olympic Games."

The action taken against officials from boycotting countries would prevent them from taking part in key votes in addition to elections. But the ban would not apply to IOC members, 17 of whom are IOC presidents.

Samaranch said the IOC would discuss the question of referees and judges of boycotting countries with the international sports federations.

The IOC, which called this weekend's session in the wake of boycotts at the last three Summer Games, also declared one of the principal duties of all NOCs was to ensure athletes from their countries participate at the Olympics.

The season, annoyed at NOCs which hide behind rules violations when announcing non-participation, declared that the IOC was the sole authority to determine whether proper conditions exist at host cities and whether the provisions of the Olympic Charter have been observed.

The session, attended by 80 of the 89 IOC members, reaffirmed its full support for the 1988 Summer Olympics in Seoul and the Winter Games in Calgary.

The session also agreed that the IOC would be responsible for sending out and receiving replies to Olympic invitations which were previously handled by Olympic Organizing Committees of the host cities.

Samaranch said despite differing views by delegates, the outcome of the session showed unity. He said no one spoke out against the resolution, nor even the Soviet Union and its East Bloc allies, who have been voicing their opposition to Seoul staging the 1988 Games.

Samaranch said the Executive Board would reply to a letter

Chris reaches semifinals

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI)

Chris Evert Lloyd overcame a swirling wind to defeat Sophie Amich of France, 6-2, 6-1, today and advance to the semifinals of the $1.5 million Australian Open tennis tournament.

'Marathon Mania' has four around the world

By United Press International

'Marathon Mania' swept the world Sunday from the east coast of the United States to the Far East.

Four marathons and a 10,000-meter run were held from Baltimore, Md., to Tokyo as participants competed for prize money that was offered only under the table.

The biggest race was in Sacramento, Calif., where 1,800 participants from 14 countries participated in the California International Marathon in 2:10.

It was very windy and I think I played the conditions better. I was kind of glad it was a short match because I'd been hanging around all day and when I finally got to court it was pretty late."

The remaining quarterfinals are scheduled for Tuesday, pitting defending champion Navratilova against fellow American Barbara Potter and Pam Shriver against Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia.

Men's defending champion Mats Wilander struggled into the quarterfinals, needing five sets to stop fellow Swede Stefan Simonson, 2-6, 6-1, 5-7, 6-2, 6-3.

Former two-time champion Johan Kriek seeded fourth, and Australian Pat Cash, the fifth seed, also were defeated in their quarterfinals. Cash defeated John Frawley of Australia, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2.

Earlier in the day, top-seed Ivan Lendl completed a rain-delayed third-round match, beating Frenchman Tarik Benhabiles 2-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Navratilova won her match Sunday, defeating Kathy Rinaldi in the final three minutes to win the stretch her unbeaten singles record to 73 matches.

Evert Lloyd's victory over Paradis Sunday enabled her to become the first woman since tennis was "open" in 1968 to break the 1,000-victory barrier.

Only once Jean King has won more matches, with 1,040 victories, but 33 of those triumphs were in the amateur days of tennis.
